Y.W.C.A. 'GYM' EXHIBITION

Young Women's Classes Give Their Mid-Winter Entertainment.

WON THE BASKETBALL GAME.

Miss Margaret Mosher, Physical Director, in Charge of Program —The Program a Well Varied One.

The mid-winter exhibition of gymnasium work by the classes of the Young Women's Christian Association, held at the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium, last night, attracted a large number of friends, in fact the seating capacity of the "gym" was tested to the limit, it being necessary to use a large portion of the regular floor space.

The exhibition was concluded with a basketball game between the Y. W. C. A. and North Plainfield High School team of girls, and proved to be a most exciting contest in which the borough girls won out by the one-sided score of 26 to 4.

The first part of the program was devoted to an exhibition of gymnasium class work, opening with a grand march by the members of the various classes. This was followed with a military drill and dance by girls of the junior class, a mass drill, wand and dumb-bell exercises, by members of the Monday evening and Wednesday afternoon beginners' classes; Scotch folk dance, by the Tuesday evening advanced class; bar-bell drill, by the Wednesday evening advanced class; Indian-club drill by the Tuesday evening advanced class; Spanish folk dance by the Wednesday evening advanced class, concluding with a Swedish peasant dance by members of the Monday evening and Wednesday afternoon beginners' classes.

All of this work was under the direct personal supervision of Miss Margaret E. Mosher, physical director of the Y. W. C. A., and was thoroughly enjoyed by the spectators. The young women, not forgetting the juniors, did excellent work, showing marked improvement. All could realize the great benefit from the exercise, while the nature of the work is attractive in itself.

The program was planned to exhibit the regular class work carried on week by week in the Y. W. C. A. gymnasium. The folk dancing was introduced into regular gymnastics as a form of play and good exercise, as a means to health and not to produce finished dancing.

Throughout the drill and exercises, the participants were applauded frequently, and it was the general opinion that the work shown was worthy of highest commendation.

In part second the basketball game was played. North Plainfield was too strong for the Y. W. C. A. girls, as the score of 26 to 4 shows. The borough five played well together and showed the benefit of frequent practice. Their guarding was almost perfect, while they played an aggressive game throughout. The ball was almost always near their goal. This does not mean that the association girls did not play well. They did the best they could under the circumstances, trying to hold the score of their opponents down.

During the second half, Miss Reba Kline, one of the Y. W. C. A. best players was obliged to retire from exhaustion and Miss Elizabeth Becker took her place.

The lineup:

Y. W. C. A.—Lona Becker, centre; Reba Kline, Elizabeth Becker, Anna Daly, forwards; Helen Southard, Ida Engelhart, guards; substitutes, Elizabeth Becker, Elvira Hoester. N. P. H. S.—Marjorie Hart, centre; Bessie Conroy, Helen George, forwards; Clara Smith, Henrietta Winn, guards; Nettie Steiner, Helen Hummell, substitutes.

Miss Daisy Day, of P. H. S., was the referee, and Miss Margaret E. Mosher was the umpire.

Congregational Church Work.

At the Congregational church tomorrow evening, the subject of the midweek service will be, "The Church and the Sunday School." The program will include short talks on the following themes: "Is the Sunday School Only for the Young?" by Samuel Bingaman; "Has the Child Any Place in the Church?" by Clarence La Rue; "How Can Young Men be Held in the School?" by Mr. McClymont; "What Is the Chief Lack in Our Sunday School?" by Alexander Millar; "What Claim Has the School Upon the Church?" There will be a solo by Mr. McClymont and the Sunday schoolchoir will lead the singing.

Dates for Steeplechase Meet.

The National Steeplechase and Hunt Association has given the Watchung Hunt Club as dates for its meet, Saturday, May 28, and Monday, May 30.

HER CHILDREN TRUANTS; PUNISHMENT FOR MOTHER

Addie Richardson, colored, will have to pay a fine of eight dollars or sojourn as a guest of the county at Elizabeth for a period of twenty days for not sending her two children to school. Mrs. Richardson was warned for the last time on January 14 to send her boy and girl to school or take the consequences.

At that time the excuse was offered that the boy had no shoes and the girl had scalded her feet. An offer of shoes for the boy was disregarded and during the month of January the boy attended school for one session and the girl for six mornings and five afternoons.

Miss Ball, the truant agent, in presenting the case to Judge Runyon this morning said that she had been threatened with violence at the home of the Richardson woman and did not think it safe for her to go there again.

Judge Runyon told the delinquent mother that she had been given every chance to obey the law and he would have to impose the penalty mentioned above.

JANUARY WEATHER STATISTICAL REPORT

Weather Prophet John Neagle today announced the weather statistics for the month of January, showing that there was a great variety. The prevailing wind was southwest, it being in that quarter for twelve days; north, 2; east, 2; south, 1; northwest, 7; west, 3; northeast, 3, and southeast, 1. The mean temperature for the month was 0.6 degrees above the normal, and the precipitation was 1.73 inches above the normal. The snowfall was 8.4 inches above the normal. Other data follows:

Highest temperature, 50 degrees, date, 21st; lowest temperature, 1 degree or 1 below zero, date, 1st; mean temperature, 29.3; normal temperature, 28.7; mean maximum temperature, 38.8; mean minimum temperature, 19.9; mean daily range, 18.9; greatest range, 40.0; total precipitation, 5.88 inches; normal precipitation, 4.15; greatest precipitation in 24 hours, 1.26, date, 14th; total snowfall, 17.4 inches; normal snowfall, 9.0 inches; amount of snow on ground on 15th was 15 inches; at end of the month, 1.0 inches; number of rainy days, 13; number of days clear, 7; partly cloudy, 13; cloudy, 11.

WAYWARD GIRL GOES TO HOUSE OF GOOD SHEPHERD.

Edna Swayze, of Bound Brook, was sent to the House of the Good Shepherd, in Newark, this morning by Judge William N. Runyon. The girl was found wandering around the streets and at times was seen to be in conversation with men with whom she had no acquaintance, according to her own admissions.

Mrs. Burns, wife of the proprietor of the Kensington Hotel, had befriended the girl and had offered her employment as a waitress, but she evidently preferred her own way of living and declined to accept the place. A young woman who was in court became interested in the case and volunteered to see the girl safely delivered to the institution.

Highwaymen Get $1.40.

George Sturgis, of Graceland, while on his way to Westfield, between 7 and 8 o'clock, last night, was held up by two men, and robbed of $1.40, all the money he had. There was no violence and Sturgis thought he was getting off easy. He is employed by a local stone dealer as driver. The highwaymen were both strangers to him.

Conference Committee to Meet.

The committee appointed at the charity conference at Mayor Charles J. Fisk's office, last week, will meet Friday night at the home of Henry L. DeForest to devise ways and means for carrying the objects of that conference, that of getting in touch with all the societies and lodges in the city.

PLAINFIELD BEATS TROY

Y. M. C. A. Athletes Excel Trojans in a "Telephone" Athletic Meet.

THEY SCORE 30 POINTS TO 15.

Former Patrolman John Payne Wins the Shot Putting Event for the Locals.

Plainfield Y. M. C. A. athletes added to their laurels by posting up a victory over the Troy, N. Y., Y. M. C. A. in a "telephone meet." The representatives of both associations competed in their home "Gyms" and the results of the different events were transmitted by telephone. Plainfield was triumphant by a score of 30 points to 10.

The locals made clean sweeps in the potato race and in the running high jump. Russell Miller took first honors in the potato race in 1 minute and 41 seconds, followed by Cubberly and Fritts.

Carl Steiner excelled in the running high jump with a mark of 5 feet 1½ inches, and Chauncey Murphey was second. In the 12-pound shooting contest "Jack" Payne, the ex-cop, was first. He hurled the weight 39 feet and 7 inches.

The standing broad jump was the only event captured by the Trojans, H. Harris, covering a distance of 9 feet 10 inches. Chauncey Murphey of Plainfield, tied R. Whitehause for second, each covering 9 feet 7 inches. The summaries follow:

Standing broad jump—Won by H. Harris, Troy, 9 ft. 10 in.; second, C. Murphy, Plainfield, 9 ft. 7 in.; third, H. Whitehouse, Troy, 9 ft. 7 in.

Three standing broad jumps—Won by C. Murphy, Plainfield, 29 ft. 7½ in.; second, H. Harris, Troy, 29 ft. 3 in.; third, H. Whitehouse, Troy, 27 ft. 5 in.

Potato race—Won by Russell Miller, Plainfield, 1 min. 41 sec.; second, W. H. I. Cubberly, Plainfield, 1 min. 45 2-5 sec.; third, John Fritts, Plainfield, 1 min. 46 1-5 sec.

Shot put, 12 pounds—Won by John Payne, Plainfield, 39 ft. 7 in.; second, H. Whitehouse, Troy, 36 ft. 11½ in.; third, H. Harris, Troy, 34 ft. 4½ in.

Mrs. Guy Bender Soloist.

Mrs. Guy Bender, of the Congregational church choir, has been secured as soloist for the concert to be given by the Y. M. C. A. orchestra on Tuesday, February 15.

DR. CARROLL THOUGHT ALL WERE METHODISTS

At a meeting to further the Laymen's Missionary Movement in New Brunswick, Dr. H. K. Carroll, of New Brunswick, addressed the men upon the topic, "The call of the Laymen to the Missionary Enterprise." He is a prominent Methodist, and was under the impression that his audience was to be entirely Methodistic in character. He had progressed well into his remarks before discovering his mistake, and he then said that he would continue his talk as he had planned to give it, because he thought the Methodists needed 'stirring up' more than any one else. He said he had recently attended a meeting in this city where statistics were produced showing that the average per capita contribution on the part of the Plainfield Methodists was far below that of any other denomination.

Dr. Carroll read from a chart prepared by the Managing Board of the Methodist Foreign Missionary Society showing that of the 16,308 Methodist churches in the United States, there were 2,060 in which the total sum raised for foreign missions last year did not exceed $5.00, while in 1,726 Methodist churches not one cent was raised for this work. Nearly one-third of the Methodist Sunday schools in this country gave nothing at all to the advancement of foreign missionary work last year.

Dr. Carroll's talk was an appeal to the men of the church to organize for the advancement of this branch of service, and he pointed to the good work that has been done by the women of the Methodist church through organizing their forces. The speaker emphasized the real need that the church has for more of missionary interest and expressed the belief that when the men realize this fact they will awake to the privilege and opportunity that are theirs, and attaining to the world-view that the Master had, they will develop a strength hitherto little dreamed of.

ENDEAVORERS TO HOLD MASS MEETING, FEB. 17

The local Christian Endeavor Union will hold its next mass meeting at the Temple Baptist church, Thursday evening, February 17, at 8 o'clock. Thas was announced at a meeting of the executive committee held at the Y. M. C. A. last night. At that meeting the societies of the union will compete for a banner which is awarded to the society that has the highest percentage of its active and associate members present at the meeting. The banner is now held by the Temple Baptist Endeavorers, having been won by them at the last mass meeting.

Rev. Dr. F. W. Johnson, of Washington, Warren county, will be the speaker of the evening. The music will be in charge of Frank Stewart, who was chairman of the music committee of the State Endeavor convention, held here in October. The convention choir with Charles L. Lewis as director, will lead the singing and convention hyms will be used. At this mass meeting the Endeavorers will hear the final report of the treasurer for the State convention, William Latourette, and will dispose of the surplus from the convention.

EPWORTH LEAGUE TO HOLD A RALLY

The Epworth League, Chapter No. 1, of the First M. E. church, will entertain Plainfield Group No. 4 at a rally to be held in the auditorium of the church Thursday night. All the leagues of the Plainfield group of the Elizabeth district, which includes those from Grace and Monroe Avenue M. E. churches, of this city; Westfield, Scotch Plains, Dunellen, Bound Brook, Somerville, Raritan, Mt. Horeb, Martinsville and others, have been invited and it is expected that large delegations from all will be present.

The leader of the Plainfield Group, Mr. Phoenix, of the Somerville League, has secured Dr. T. H. Baragwanath, pastor of the Washington Square Methodist church, of New York city, to speak on the subject, "Prophets and Pensioners." The pastor has a large parish in New York and is considered a most eloquent and entertaining speaker. A social hour will follow in Vincent chapel.

Mrs. Sandford Ramsey, of New Market, has been visiting relatives in town for a short time.

PARK IDEA MUCH ALIVE

Mayor Newton B. Smalley Puts New Interest in the Scheme.

COUNCIL HEARS PROPOSITION.

Park Associates and Property Owners Offer to Donate Land—Borough Asked to Macadamize Streets.

Mayor N. B. Smalley succeeded in resurrecting the plans for a borough park to skirt the winding stream of Green brook between West End avenue and Clinton avenue at the special meeting of the North Plainfield Council last night, which was called to re-open a discussion as to the advisability of the scheme. All of the councilmen with the exception of Charles L. Nichols were present. The Park Commission was represented by George T. Rogers and H. S. Bonn. Former Councilman Robert Clark, Jr., who is also a member of the commission, was unable to be present owing to illness. A number of interested property owners were also in attendance.

L. D. Ayers represented the Plainfield Park Associates. Mr. Ayers made a proposition to the Council in which he declared that the Associates are willing to deed to the borough about twenty or thirty acres along Green brook, if the Council will agree to macadamize the proposed Park View wavenue, or other proposed streets to the extent of $1,500.

Mayor Smalley in an address strongly advocated the scheme. "I believe it would be money well spent, "said the mayor. "Today there is not a foot of public park ground in the borough and now I believe is a splendid opportunity to progress in this direction. I believe if the borough will start something in the park line that the city of Plainfield will wake up and do something. If the borough accepts the idea it is my purpose to urge the city to join in a general movement."

In his argument for a park, Mayor Smalley declared that the borough by acquiring the land in question will be able to save more than the expenditure involved. The mayor explained by a map of the property as prepared by Ayers that the borough would be able to construct a shorter sewer route, instead of the present plans to pipe Greenbrook road. The pipes could then be run, he said, through Rockview or Willow avenues and the lower section of the proposed park site, and the saving on the sewer line would reimburse the borough for the expenses involved in the park project.

In order to get the matter in tangible shape a resolution was adopted that the property owners, who are willing to donate land for the purpose, submit a proposition to the Park Commission and that the commission draw a contract for the adoption or rejection by the Council. When these formalities are complied with another special meeting will be held.

Following Mayor Smalley's advocacy of the scheme an informal discussion which lasted two hours resulted in the resolution being adopted. In addition to all of the councilmen taking part William J. Buttfield, George T. Rogers, J. V. E. Vanderhief and Frederick Harrington gave their views on the matter, while Mr. Ayers supplied information from the maps.

FUNERAL OF E. F. RANDOLPH WAS LARGELY ATTENDED.

The funeral services of Edward F. Randolph were held from the late home on Park avenue, Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, and were largely attended by relatives and friends. There were many floral tributes. Rev. Edwin Shaw, pastor of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, of which Mr. Randolph was a member for a great many years, conducted the services.

The burial was in Hillside cemetery and the pall-bearers were Clarence Spicer, Rennie, Nathan and Lewis Randolph, Frank Kellogg and J. Herbert Freeman.

Thomas Travers, of Montclair, author of "The Young Malefactor," and an authority on the boys' problem, has been secured as one of the speakers at the annual Y M. C. A. banquet, Thursday night, February 24.

Party for Henry Kenney.

Henry Kenney, of Pearl street, was given a birthday surprise party by a number of his friends last night. The young folks had a delightful time in playing games and after participating in a sumptuous repast.

John Calvin Hall, of East Fifth street, who has been ill, is slowly recovering.

WIFE BEATER SENTENCED; DUFFY GETS SIXTY DAYS

Martin Duffy, of East Fifth street, was sentenced to serve sixty days in the county jail this morning by City Judge Runyon for beating his pretty young wife and his father, who is sixty-five years old.

The elder Mr. Duffy told the story in court this morning of how his son burst the door to the apartments last night and without warning commenced to maltreat his wife and when he interfered the son deliberately struck the aged man, giving him a black eye. Mr. Duffy said that he was sitting quietly by the fire and young Mrs. Duffy was reading at the table in the dining room when the unnatural son and husband careened in under the influence of liquor and started things.

Mrs. Duffy, who was in court, refused to add anything to the statement of her father-in-law. Duffy, in his own defense said he did not mean to do it, but Judge Runyon scored him for his acts and imposed a sentence which will afford Duffy time to think the matter over.

FUNERAL SERVICES OF FORMER ASSEMBLYMAN

The funeral service of David D. Smalley, who died on Friday, was largely attended by friends and relatives at his late home on Manning avenue at 1 o'clock this afternoon. Three clergyman conducted the last rites over the bier. Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson, pastor of the first Methodist church, who was in charge of the service, made the opening prayer, and spoke words of condolence to members of the family.

The sermon was preached by the Rev. George Bowers, of Warrenville, a lifelong friend of the family. Rev. Ora J. Shoop, pastor of the Grace M. E. church, read the scriptures and delivered the closing prayer. Mrs. Thomas McDonald rendered impressively a solo, "Some day We'll Understand."

There were numerous floral tributes from friends of the deceased and family. The offering of the Epworth League of the Grace M. E. church was a beautiful wreath while the Epworth League and Ladies Aid Society of the First Methodist church sent tributes.

Interment was made at Mt. Bethel, the bearers being David Weaver, William Bohl, Joseph Humble, Andrew E. Lutkins, Worth Coddington and Lewis Bird.

HELD FOR GRAND JURY; RUSHMORE FURNISHES BOND.

A large audience was on hand in the city court this morning when the case of Mike Topack, Amos Woodruff, Patrick Breen, Charles S. Wilson and Joseph McCue against Samuel W. Rushmore for alleged assault and threats to kill was called.

Mr. Rushmore was in court with his counsel, J. P. W. Taylor, and waived examination.

Judge Runyon held Mr. Rushmore in $1,000 bonds, $200 in each of the five complaints, for the action of the May Grand Jury. All the complaints were on hand with witnesses but were compelled to await a summons from the Grand Jury next May.

Will Give an Entertainment.

The Young People's Association of the Church of the Heavenly Rest, will hold its first dramatic entertainment at the parish house tonight. There will be three sketches and a living album, to be concluded with dancing. A fine program has been arranged and a good time is promised all who attend.

Former Rector in Elizabeth.

Rev. Charles Townsend, Jr., formerly rector of the Church of the Heavenly Rest, but now of Boston, preached at the Church of St. John the Evangelist at Elizabeth, on Sunday. He is the son of Rev. Charles Townsend, of Elizabeth and is visiting the latter for a few days.

Funeral of Chas. H. Ficke.

The funeral of Charles H. Ficke, who died Saturday night at his home on Duer street, was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock. The services were conducted by Rev. John Duerchner, past of St. Peter's Lutheran church. The interment was in the North Plainfield cemetery.

Health Inspectors Active.

Borough health inspectors visited all the bakeries in the borough yesterday and posted signs showing the rules and regulations of the department. The inspectors are also planning to visit butcher shops and all places where food supplies are sold.

Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Rushmore, of Sycamore avenue, the borough, are parents of a girl, born to them this morning.

HELD UP AND ROBBED

PUT UP A GOOD FIGHT.

Another bold holdup was reported to the local police last night at about 9 o'clock by Joseph Stilzer, of Scotch Plains. The crime occurred at about 7 o'clock, but the victim was unable, because of injuries to make it known sooner. Mr. Stilzer, who is a traveling salesman while on the road between Westfield and Fanwood on his way home was suddenly confronted by three men with drawn revolvers who demanded his money.

Mr. Stilzer undaunted by the menace of firearms objected to being relieved of his possessions in so summary a manner and started in to fight. That he put up a good argument is testified to by the fact that he was severely beaten, but he says there are those who felt the weight of his fists and may possibly be identified by black eyes and other bruises. Fortunately for him they did not use their revolvers except as clubs or he would not have lived to tell the tale.

The men relieved Mr. Stilzer of his money and watch and made a getaway in the direction of this city. The police were notified to be on the lookout for the highwaymen, but up to press time nothing had been seen of any suspicious characters here. The amount of money said to have been taken from Mr. Stilzer is in the neighborhood of a hundred dollars, besides his gold watch.

"PRIVATE SECRETARY" BY AMATEURS MONDAY NEXT.

Tickets are now on sale at the Park Club and Randolph's drug store for the "Private Secretary," which will be produced by amateurs at the Park Club auditorium on the evening of Monday, February 7, at 8:15. Reports are to the effect that rehearsals are progresing to such good end that the finishing touches will be put on at a dress rehearsal on Friday evening of this week, when a few critics will be invited in to view the work of the company.

The "Private Secretary," who gets in wrong from the start, a green and unsophisticated curate, finds himself in so many funny situations that action has to take the place of words. This part is taken by Percy Watson. He is ably seconded in his efforts by a funny vulgar tailor, a blue roaring cantankerous uncle from India, and a sentimental spiritualistic aunt. The tailor's part is performed by Charles Kregar. The uncle by dia, and a sentimental spiritualistic aunt by Miss Dorothy Randall. The two fun loving mischeivous young men who get everybody including themselves into hot water, are depicted by Howard Roberts and William Little. They are ably seconded by two good looking high spirited girls, who enter into the fun. Miss Hart and Miss Nischwitz will portray them. Other members of the company are Mrs. Stead, a landlady, Mr. Marshland, Knox, a writ server, John, a butler; in the hands respectively of Miss Sinclair, Ira Vail, Arthur Woodruff and Russell Vail.

Removing Pinnacles.

Workmen are engaged in removing the old pinnacles from the cupola of the First Baptist church, and in their place will be used some other kind of ornamentation. These pinnacles have been in use since 1870 and an examination showed them to be affected by dry rot. They stand about sixteen feet in height and are made of slate and weigh nearly a ton each.

Farewell to Miss Reageny.

Mrs. James Daley, of Watchung avenue, entertained a number of friends last night in honor of her sister, Miss Mary Reageny, of Worcester, Mass. Miss Reageny has been visiting Mrs. Daley for a time and the affair was in the nature of a "farewell" prior to her return home.

Borough Bills.

Borough Clerk Frederick Martin makes the request that all bills against the borough be presented to him by Friday afternoon, in order that the Council can act upon them on the same night.

Borough Police Active.

In the borough court this morning Recorder Dolliver fined Sheridan Jones five dollars and J. O'Brien two dollars. Both were arrested on Saturday night for disorderly conduct.

Our Club Plan

Why should a man or a woman perfectly responsible as to character, and earning a good salary, not have the privilege of furnishing the house or flat he occupies on as good terms as he could make if he wanted to buy the house?

Instead of paying rent, he turns the monthly payments into capital by investing in the house.

The terms we make through our Club plan are much like those made by real estate firms, from whom you can buy houses—and the more salaried men and women who take advantage of such terms here, the more we are pleased.

This applies to Furniture, to Carpets, Rugs and Upholstery—and to these things when they are reduced as well as when they sell at regular prices.

BRYANT FORCES MISS SEEING THE GOVERNOR.

Trenton, Feb. 1.—Governor Fort, owing to his own indisposition and also to the serious illness of his sister-in-law, Miss Lillian Stainsby, of Newark, did not come to the State House yesterday. He telephoned that he would not be here until tomorrow. As a result of this he missed a host of admirers of General Lewis Bryant, commissioner of labor, who came to urge Mr. Bryant's reappointment. The visitors came from all over the State and included principally a delegation of wealthy Atlantic City residents, neighbors and friends of the general's, and a group of labor unionists from Newark and the northern part of the State.

The latter were Assemblymen Cornelius Ford, of Hoboken, president of the State Federation of Labor; Harry J. Gottlob, Henry Hilfers, Thomas McHugh, Willard L. Small and Adam Zuzi, of Newark; John Cosgrove, of Elizabeth, and Joseph Alone, of Hoboken.

These men all insisted that General Bryant had proved an efficient official and deserved reappointment. The union labor interests of the entire State, they declared, demanded this.

Those who where here from Atlantic City and who testified to the general's worth also, were Senator Edmund Wilson, Assemblyman Walter E. Edge, John J. White, A. J. Busebey, Jacob Myers, Daniel W. Myers, Harry Cook, J. Haines Lippincott, A. T. Bell, Henry W. Leeds, Elwood Johnson, Harry Wooten, Howard R. Cloud, Dr. Floyd McCall, Dr. M. H. Franklin, E. H. Cook, Archdeacon Niles, Rev. J. L. Surtees, Dr. J. W. Brooks and Rev. H. M. Gesner.

The Unionists met yesterday morning and adopted this petition, which which will be presented to the Governor:

"Whereas, there is common report that a change is to be made in the management or head of the State department of labor; and,

"Whereas, the present commissioner, Lewis T. Bryant, has made an efficient officer and performed the duties with credit and, in our judgment, with signal ability, be it

"Resolved, that we urge the advisability of the reappointment of Lewis T. Bryant as commissioner of labor, and respectfully petition a favorable consideration of his continuance in this office."

EXPECT $1,000,000 FROM THE PEABODY FUND.

Washington, Feb. 1.—A gift of $1,000,000 to the Peabody Normal Institute of Nashville, Tenn., was made at the meeting of the trustees of the Peabody education fund, which was held here late yesterday. J. Pierpont Morgan, Hoke Smith, former Governor of Georgia, and other distinguished men were on hand for the meeting. The Peabody fund is now about the same amount that was originally founded by George Peabody in 1877, $3,000,000. According to the terms of the fund it may be entirely distributed now. The offer of $1,000,000 was made to the Nashville institution some time ago, with the proviso that the State, county and city give a like amount. This has been promised.

The Junior Mission Band, of the First Baptist church, will hold a meeting Friday afternoon of especial interest.

CAUSE OF ECZEMA EXPLAINED.

After years of debate medical authorities are now agreed that Eczema and other skin diseases are not seated in the blood, but are caused by myraids of microscopic animals gnawing the flesh just below the epidermis. The patient is perfectly healthy, it is only the skin that is diseased.

Hence, scientists are now agreed that you must cure the skin through the skin. The medicine must be in liquid form in order to penetrate properly. And we can say with confidence that we have the true remedy for Eczema in our store.

The instant you wash with this soothing liquid you will find the itch relieved. We positively assure you of this. Will you try a bottle (at only 25c), on our recommendation? Ask for D. D. D. Prescription.

EXILED RUSSIAN COUNT EXPIRES IN ELIZABETH.

Elizabeth, Feb. 1.—Count Leopold C. Dezaleski, an exiled Russian nobleman and a revolutionary refugee, died yesterday in the Elizabeth General Hospital here, aged ninety-two years. He fled from his native land many years ago to escape persecution and made his home in Linden. A few years since he removed to 784½ Division street, Elizabeth.

He was a veteran of three wars and a magnificent horseman. He was marshal of the cavalry that escorted President Benj. Harrison through Elizabeth to Staten Island Sound, April 29, 1889, while the President was on his way to attend the Washington contennial celebration in New York city.

Count Bezaleski was finely educated and was a sculptor, a landscape painter, a veterinary surgeon and physician. He modeled a bust of Admiral Dewey after the battle of Manila. The bust was placed on exhibition in Elizabeth before being forwarded to the admiral.

Count Bezaleski leaves a widow.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

GOLF.

More professional golfers than ever are spending the winter in the south, according to various reports, and they will remain there until well into the spring. David Ogilvie, the Morris county professional, has been very busy at Augusta, and a new eighteen-hole course has been put in commission there.

John Inglis, whose regular green is at the Fairview Country Club, in Westchester county, opened a new eighteen-hole course down at Hampton Terrace. James Norton is located at Nassau, while Lawrence Auchterlonie is busy at Belair.

Bob Simpson is now at Beaumont, Tex., and Harry Collis has gone to Phoenix, Ariz. Arthur Fenn is at Palm Beach, and the two Andersons, Will and Tom, are doing business at St. Augustine.

A new course has been laid out at Atlantic Beach, Fla., and will be put into commission shortly. It is not far from Jacksonville. Tom Hucknell, who has gone to the club at Savannah for the winter, has his eye on a club in this vicinity for next season.

Although Stewart Gardner has secured no regular winter green, the tall Exmoor "pro" intends to make a trip South shortly with a view to taking part in some of the open tournaments. Tom McNamara, who finished second in the last national open championship tournament, has accepted a place in a golf store in Boston.

FINDING OF SATCHEL CLEARS UP A MYSTERY.

Wheeling, W. Va., Feb. 1.—While hunting on the hills east of Benwood several boys Sunday found a satchel containing a quantity of feminine finery and a number of letters and postcards, which reveal the identity of the young girl who several weeks ago was killed at Benwood while walking, in male attire, on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad track with a man. From the letters it appears that the girl was Miss Nettie Yohn, of Loysville, Pa.

The man who was with her when she was thrown under the wheels of the train is believed to have been John Guthsaw, who at one time was an employe of an asylum near Morris Plains, N. J. After the girl was run down by the train the man disappeared and has not been seen since.

One of the letters found was written by the girl to her mother, Mrs. Katherine Yohn, Loysville, Pa., in which the girl stated that she intended returning home and was very sorry she had eloped. Letters were also found addressed to Guthsaw from the girl postmarked Columbus, O.; New York city, Harrisburg, Pa.; Morris Plains, N. J., and Camden, N. J. Miss Yohn's body is in Potter's Field.

WOULD SUE FLAG BOARD.

Newton, Feb. 1.—Theodore Lawson, a farm hand, of Culvers Lake, was here Saturday trying to induce some lawyers to bring suit for time against the Branchville Board of Protectors. Lawson resents having been placed on the list of twenty-five which the board has made out and posted at the various places in which liquor is sold. Lawson insists that he is not an excessive drinker and that he and the others who were listed with him never had an opportunity to be heard by the board as a board.

Lawson says he has interviewed each member of it about the matter, but "can't get any satisfaction." He says two lawyers he conferred with told him he had a case, but they declined to take it.

Fled After Stabbing Man.

Elizabeth, Feb. 1.—The police here are looking for William, alias "Buck" Taylor, aged twenty-five, a negro who stabbed Eugene Hall, another negro, twenty-one years old, in a brawl in Serpico's saloon, 1175 Elizabeth avenue, here. Hall was cut several times with a penknife, but his wounds are not serious. He was taken to the Elizabeth General Hospital. The row started in a dispute over a game of pool.

Working for New Bayonne P. O.

Bayonne, Feb. 1.—A delegation of prominent residents, headed by Postmaster O. C. W. Lang, will visit Washington and urge the passage of a bill which Representative Eugene F. Kinkhead, of the Ninth Congressional District, has introduced providing for an appropriation of $250,000 for a new postoffice in Bayonne.

THIS JERSEYMAN HAS NOT SLEPT FOR 20 YRS.

Alonzo Wire, of Hackettstown, who, for twelve years was head of the police department, says that for the last twenty years he has not closed his eyes in sleep. He came near it, he says, several times recently, when he found himself getting drowsy in front of a hot fire, but when he would attempt to take advantage of it and lie down to compose himself for the long sought nap, sleep would flit away, and he would pass the night, as he passed so many others, in wide-eyed wakefulness.

He does not go to bed now, but reclines on a couch in the front room of his home, where, in the darkness he allows his thoughts to wander and confuse themselves as they will in the nearest semblance to sleep, of which he is capable. Neither Wire nor the physicians who have studied his case are able to assign a cause for the condition, nor can they explain why it is he has retained a state of robust health through all the years of insomnia.

The only result at all noticeable from Wire's long-continued wakefulness has been a loss of weight in the last score of years, amounting to between seventy-five and eighty pounds. He used to weigh nearly 280 pounds, and now tips the scales at barely 200. Wire believes that a stroke of lightning he received thirty years ago might have something to do with his peculiarity, though it happened years before he first suffered with insomnia.

COL. KUSER DEFENDANT IN A SUIT FOR $10,000.

Trenton, Feb. 1.—Colonel Anthony R. Kuser, of Newark, has been made defendant in a suit in the Suprme Court brought by Achille Dufour, who asks $10,000 damages for a broken leg and other injuries received by being thrown from his wagon.

Dufour alleges that he was driving a team of horses on the Basking Ridge road, near Morristown, when Colonel Kuser grabbed hold of the bridles and violently pulled the horses to the side of the road. The plaintiff avers that this caused the horses to suddenly draw the wagon into the gutter, the shock throwing Dufour to the ground. The vehicle passed over his leg, fracturing it. Dufour is represented by Vreeland, King, Wilson & Lindabury, of Morristown.

STILL MANY BODIES ARE IN CHERRY MINE SHAFT.

Cherry, Ill., Feb. 1.—A proposal that the remaining bodies in the St. Paul coal mine be destroyed with chemicals was met with bitter opposition yesterday from the scores of widows who are waiting for the weather to permit the opening of the sealed shaft. Helmetmen are expected from the State rescue station at Urbana today and it is planned to remove the lids from the two shafts and to remove the 310 victims of the disaster.

Tentative arrangements are being made for funerals and burials. Men have been engaged to dig a row of graves a quarter of a mile long.

Middlesex Asks Smaller Budget.

New Brunswick, Feb. 1.—The budget was adopted by the Middlesex County Board of Freeholders yesterday. It foots up $281,000, or $19,000 less than last year. The indications are that the county officers who were ousted will not combine the fight. Already Robert M Vredenbregh, former supervisor, and Irving Demarest, clerk, have announced that they will quit. Later, in making up the budget, freeholders appropriated $34,500 to cover indebtedness contracted by the last board, for the payment of which no funds were provided, this amount exceeding the appropriations made last year.

Contractor's Stable Robbed.

Palisades Park, Feb 1.—The stable of Leonard Best, a contractor, was entered some time Sunday night and robbed of checks wirth $27 and a quantity of clothing. The footprints of the intruder were traced to the Hudson River trolley line, and it is supposed he took a car, although no car crew remembers any suspicious looking passenger.

APPROVE SUGGESTED SITES FOR AN ARMORY

Members of the Board of Freeholders, together with General Dennis F. Collins, Colonel Nelson Y. Dungan and Lieptenant-Colonel Robert L. Patterson, viisted several sites yesterday afternoon at Elizabeth for the purpose of investigating their suitability for the proposed new armory which the State will probably erect there at Elizabeth.

Two of the sites, one at South Broad street and Rahway avenue and the other in Walnut street, seem to have met the approval of the party, but it is understood that no decision was reached yesterday regarding them. One of the party stated last night that in all likelihoood the matter wauld be brought to a head today.

As soon as a site is procurred Assemblyman Augustus W. Schwartz, of the Committee on Military Affairs, will endeavor to obtain an appropriation for the armory, which will be somewhere in the neighborhood of $100,000. The site to be purchased will not cost more than $25,000.

EAGLES TO RECEIVE.

Elizabeth Aerie Completes Plans for Its Winter Event.

One of the big events of the winter season in Elizabeth will be the annual reception of the Elizabeth Aerie, Fraternal Order of Eagles, which will be held tomorrow evening in Turn Hall in that city. Eagles will be present from all sections of the State, including Plainfield. Invitations have been given every aerie in this vicinity, and many acceptances have been received.

The decorations this year will be on a more elaborate scale than anything heretofore attempted. The colors of the Eagles, American flags, bunting, colored lights, palms and plants will be combined in an artistic manner. There will be dancing the entire evening, in addition to a vaudeville entertainment and music by an orchestra.

TO AID GIRL STRIKERS.

Women Get Charter for Cooperative Company.

Organized for the purpose of assisting the striking shirtwaist makers, the National Co-operative Waist and Neckwear Company filed its certificate of incorporation in the secretary of State's office at Trenton Saturday. The company is to have a plant at Edgewater, Bergen county, and is capitalized at $100,000.

The incorporators are Mrs. Ethel H. Stewart, Mrs. Ellen F. Hanshe, Mrs. Anna Kaplitz, of New York, and Mrs. Mary Fitzgerald, of Edgewater. Mrs. Stewart is president of the company. She is a woman of wealth and is president of the National Society of Self-Supporting Women. Each of the incorporators holds 250 shares of stock.

Dragged Dog Supposedly Mad.

Paterson, Feb. 1.—Charles Safstrum, of Hawthorne, was severely nipped on the hands by a bulldog he dragged to the police station Sunday, believing it to be mad. The animal, he said, was snapping at persons at the Erie depot. C. W. Rogers telephoned later that he owned the dog and that it was suffering from distemper and was not mad. A veterinarian will decide whether the dog has hydrophobia symptoms.

Old Farmer Terribly Beaten.

Salem, Feb. 1.—Unable to summan help after being terribly beaten by three colored robbers, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kleisch, both over seventy years of age, lay on the floor of their home until Saturday, when their plight was discovered. The old man fought until beaten down with a club. Only $2.50 was stolen. The police traced footsteps in the snow to a negro dwelling, and the inmates were arrested.

New Silk Mill in Paterson.

Paterson, Feb. 1.—A new silk firm, which has been incorporated under the name of the Knickerbocker Silk Company, began operations yesterday. The plant will occupy the top floor of the new I. A. Hall mill, at Summer and Harrison streets. It has been equipped with all the modern up-to-date machinery, consisting of thirty Crompton-Knowles high-speed ribbon looms.

Corporation Counsel and Mrs. Craig A. Marsh are in Havana, Cuba, this week and later will go to Nassau, Bahama Islands.

SUFFRAGETTES OPEN WAR

The Campaign Against White Slave Traffic in This State Begins.

TO CO-OPERATE IN ALL CITIES.

Women Declare New Jersey to Be in Danger of Invasion— Steps to Prevent It Taken.

A campaign to prevent traffickers in white slaves who are being driven out of New York from beginning operations in this State was begun by the suffragists of New Jersey last Friday afternoon.

At a meeting of the executive committee of the State organization in the Free Public Library the legislative committee, of which Mrs. Louis E. Hector, of Bath Beach, Brooklyn, is chairman, was instructed to draw up resolutions calling upon the Legislature to enforce such laws as may be on the staute books curbing the trade, and if these are inadequate to urge the enactment of laws preventing dealers in unfortunate women from carrying on their operations here.

The menace was brought to the attention of the committee by Mrs. Elizabeth P. Bartlett, of Arlington, who declared that New Jersey was in danger of invasion by white slave dealers if New York succeeded in rooting out the evil. She said that steps to prevent this could not be taken too promptly.

The other members of the executive committee agreed with Mrs. Bartlett that the danger was most threatening, and the legislative committee was further instructed to have its resolutions ready to present to the Senate and Assembly within a month.

Arrangements were made at the meeting for an equal suffrage rally in the Church of the Redeemer on February 24, the principal speaker at which will be the Rev. Anna Howard Shaw, president of the national organization. The committee in charge will be composed of Miss Emma Richards, of this city; Mrs. Ella ilborn, of Arlington; Mrs. Elizabeth P. Bartlett, of Arlington, and Mrs. Emma Fiske, of East Orange.

Delegates to the national convention in Washington, April 14 to 19, were elected as follows: Mrs. Clara V. Laddey, president of the New Jersey Suffrage Society, of Arlington; Mrs. Amelia Du Bois, of Bayonne; Miss Emma Richards, of this city; Mrs. Ella ilborn, of Arlington; Mrs. Ida Rilye, of Plainfield; Mrs. Emma Fiske, of East Orange.

At that time a monster petition asking Congress to give women the right of franchise in every State will be presented.

New Jersey is expected to furnish 100,000 names to the document. Most of these have already been obtained.

There will be another meeting of the executive committe at the home of Mrs. Chandler Sexton, 172 Cleveland street, Orange, Thursday, when steps will be taken to organize suffrage leagues in cities and towns of the State that now have no organization. Plans will also be discussed for a series of meetings similar to the one in the Church of the Redeemer. Members of the committee hope to obtain the services of Judge Ben Lindsey, of Denver, and Rabbi Wise, of New York.

FITZGERALD'S MANUAL MAKES ITS APPEARANCE

"New Jersey's Valuable Book," Fitzgerald's Manual, has made its appearance in the Legislature for 1910, and the usual clamor for this little volume of information was apparent yesterday when Thomas F. Fitzgerald, the publisher and the dean of newspaper men in New Jersey, arrived at the State House with early copies.

"The Legislative Manual," as it is called, is a mountain of information, and a session of the Legislature without a copy of Fitzgerald's Manual would be like a court room without a law book. It contains the rules of both houses of the Legislature, the various committees, the names of all members and ex-members, biographies of all State officials, outline history of the State, constitution of the United States and New Jersey, biographies of the Governor, United States Senators and Congressmen, as well as the legislators. It also contains the Governor's message, the election returns throughout the State, a list of county officers and the names of the legislative correspondents.

Charles Dodd in the Toils.

Charles Dodd, of Philadelphia, was arrested at Dunellen on Sunday on a charge of being drunk and disorderly. He was arraigned before Recorder David Campbell, yesterday morning, and discharged after the latter made an ineffectual effort to teach the prisoner how to be good. He did promise, however, to steer clear of the borough.

LOCAL GLOBE TROTTER REACHES SAN FRANCISCO

The Hamburg-American Steamship "Cleveland" with 700 American tourists aboard arrived at San Francisco at 6 o'clock yesterday morning completing a trip around the world. In the party are Mr. and Mrs. James F. Buckle, Mr. and Mrs. Pierre Mali and Miss Addie Dietrich, all of this city.

From that port the tourists will come east by rail.

Under a strict interpretation of the coastwise navigation act each passenger landed here is liable to a fine of $200 for travelling between domestic ports in a vessel flying a foreign flag.

Recently, however, the government virtually agreed to remit the fines which would total $137,000, provided the steamship company would immediately protest to Washington, the amount then being reduced to the nominal sum of $1,000 on the understanding that the company would bring a test suit in the federal court to determine the applicability of the law to this case.

STATE'S CHARITIES HAVE COST $1,739,030

Governor Fort sent a message to the Legislature last night embodying a report to him from State Auditor William E. Drake, showing the operating expenses of the eleven State charitable institutions for the year ending October 31, 1909, to have been $1,730,039.30, and of the schools under the State Board of Education's supervision to have been $281,189.07. The statement gives minute details.

Under the school money diversion law passed last year, the State schools will this year and hereafter be supported from funds heretofore distributed to local public school districts. The statement shows how much the annual loss to the districts will be.

The two consolidated statements go into every detail of expenditure. The totals for all purposes of the State institutions are: Morris Plains Hospital, $478,776.98; State Hospital at Trenton, $321,461.42; Epileptic Village, $112,592.51; Home for Feeble-Minded Women, $41,204.11; State Home for Girls, $62,555.06; State Home for Boys, $91,287.22; Glen Gardner Sanatorium, $76,151.65; Soldiers' Home at Kearny, $86,742.67; Soldiers' Home at Vineland, $55,361.24; State prison, $257,078.21; Rahway Reformatory, $146,728.23. Grand total for State institutions for 1909, $1,730,039.30.

State Schools—Normal School at Montclair, $52,174.79; Normal School at Trenton, $157,209.58; School for the Deaf at Trenton, $47,690.66; Manual Training School at Bordentown, $17,882.83; Farnum Preparatory School at Beverly, $6,231.21. Grand total, $281,189.07.

500 FILE APPLICATIONS FOR THE CENSUS JOBS

Louis V. Hoagland, supervisor of census for the Fifth New Jersey District, announced yesterday the time and place where applicants for enumerators are to be examined. All examinations throughout the district will be held on the afternoon of February 5. Those who have applied for appointments from Union county will be examined at 2:30 o'clock in the Morrel street school, Elizabeth.

Other examinations for the district will be held as follows: Morristown, school house, 2 o'clock; Madison, Republican Club rooms, 2 o'clock; Dover, postoffice, 2 o'clock; Butler, postoffice, 2 o'clock; Phillipsburg, council chambers, 2 o'clock; Washington, postoffice, 2 o'clock; Belvidere, postoffice, 2 o'clock; Markboro, postoffice, 2 o'clock; Blairstown, postoffice, 2 o'clock; Johnsonburg, postoffice, 2 o'clock; Hope, postoffice, 2 o'clock; Allamanchy, postoffice, 2 o'clock; Hackettstown, postoffice, 2 o'clock.

Saturday was the last day for the filing of enumerators' applications with Supervisor Hoagland and about 500 were received for the district. The supervisor's office was busy yesterday, for each of the applicants had to have a card of admission for the examinations before nightfall. Of the 500 applicants about 180 will be selected. As soon as the examinations have been completed, the papers will be forwarded to Supervisor Hoagland for rating and then to Washington for final rating and approval. Notice of appointments will probably be received during the last wek of February or the first week of March.

Mr. Fullmer Arrives Safely.

Mr. Fullmer, father of Mrs. Charles A. Price, of Sandford avenue, who was taken ill while visiting his daughter, recently, has arrived safely at his home in Indianapolis. Before reaching that place the train on which he was a passenger was in a slight collision, but no one was injured.

AMONG OUR NEIGHBORS

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

The borough officials have decided to abandon sprinkling the streets with water during the summer. One trial of oiling the streets gave such satisfaction that the old water wagon is soon to be made into an oil sprinkling cart. Scotch Plains will probably keep on eating dirt and germs or the residents can take up a subscription as in the past.

The Bachelors' Club holds the fourth of its series of winter dances tonight in the hall. This is the last of the club's dances until after Lent. From indications the affair will be well attended and enjoyed as well as its predecessors.

W. R. Buckley, who has been ill for several days with the grip, has returned to his position with the Central Railroad at their New York office.

Mr. and Mrs. John B. Stillger and children were the guests over Sunday of Mr. Stillger's sister, Mrs. Frederick K. Clark, of Front street.

Marshal Logan's roundup of truant players of the public school seems to have had the desired effect. Every boy is on the job now.

A number from here will attend the dance given tomorrow night at Truell Hall by the employes of A. E. Force & Co.

Mrs. Emory Snyder and son, Arthur, of Forest avenue, are spending a few days with relatives at Hampton.

Mrs. Fred Clawson and daughter have returned from a visit with relatives at New Market.

DUNELLEN AND VINCINITY.

Robert Lowrie, the borough's and county's oldest citizen, is 97 years of age today. As told in Saturday's Daily Press no formal celebration will mark the notable event in the octogenarian's career. Mr. Lowrie, however, received numerous calls from relatives and neighbors during the day, and was greatly pleased over the congratulations showered on him.

A number of boroughites will attend the wedding of Edward Herlich, of the borough, to Miss Grace Predmore, at the latter's home in Brooklyn tomorrow night. The latter having spent her recent summer vacations in the borough, is well known here.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Seventh-Day Baptist church are planning to conduct an oyster supper the latter part of the month.

Arvid Johnson has returned to Tarrytown, after a short visit with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Magnus Johnson.

The Dunellen A. C. will hold a dance and fair on Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights of this week.

An illustrated lectured will be given in the First M. E. church on Friday night, February 18.

The New Market Grange will hold a regular meeting and roll call on Thursday night.

Mrs. Blanchard Gardner is confined to her home by a serious illness.

Merle Rowland has recovered from the grip.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

Examinations of the throats of the pupils in the school here are now being made. The pupils' eyesight is is also being tested.

John Arrowsmith is recovering the use of his arm, which was injured a short time ago by a fall on the ice.

NEW JERSEY TO FREE SIX THOUSAND BIRDS

The New York State Fish and Game Commission this spring will liberate in different parts of the State, covering every section so far as possible, 4,000 English pheasants and 2,000 Hungarian grouse. A contract has been made with a firm of importers at Yardley, Pa., for the birds, with the provision that they be delivered at the time set by the State commission.

It has been found that these birds will thrive well in New Jersey. The birds which will be delivered to the State will be a specially selected lot, hardy, and of an age which will permit of their mating and bringing forth young this year. Their cost will be about $6 a pair, but it is expected that from each pair there will spring from eight to a dozen young birds, so that the investment will, therefore, actually represent $6 for every dozen or fifteen birds, which the State will own after the first season the birds have been at large.

Benjamin F. Kuser, president of the commission, will go to New Orleans to attend the national convention of Fish and Game Commissioners.

Miss Elsie Brown, of Newark, has returned home after spending a few days with friends here.

At Proctor's.

The Donna Myra Troupe, in "The Act Beautiful," has made a great hit at Proctor's theatre, receiving several curtain calls yesterday. The woman has a clear soprano voice, another is a clever dancer and the transformation scene showing the "Rock of Ages," and the temptation by the Devil is a thrilling and wonderful piece of stage work. Dave Rose & Co., in the sketch, "The Organ Grinder," is true to life, the trio being exceptionally good. Raymond & Hess, in a rural comedy skit are funny, while Jack Lyle, in his witty monologue is above the average. A special film d'art is featured every day.

Think They Have Bigamist.

Word was received by Prosecutor Garven yesterday at Jersey City that Carl Von Muller, who was recently indicted on a charge of bigamy, had been arrested in Los Angeles, Cal., by Prosecutor's Detective Thomas McDonald and Detective Sergeant Weinthal, of Hoboken. Von Muller will be taken to Jersey City for trial.

Why You Should Have A Savings Account

May we have two minutes of your time? We want you to consider with us the desirability of a Savings Account in our bank.

FIRST - Provision for future needs. You might be incapacitated at any time and unable to earn your own living; if sickness, accident or other trouble came, where would you turn?

SECOND—Opportunities and investments. Money in the bank would enable you to take advantage of the golden opportunities which are constantly arising, at any time they do arise.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

Tow Lewis, the greatest discovery ever made in vaudeville by George M. Cohan, has risen so fast and far in the legitimate that he comes here tomorrow night at the head of the biggest musical comedy organization on the road in "The Yankee Prince," a music play which Mr. Cohan wrote for himself but turned over to Lewis as his role of Steve Daly, of Chicago, is the mainstay of the piece. No one who ever saw "Little Johnny Jones" will forget Lewis as the inimitable "Unknown" who made the phrase, "Gee, but he's got a mean disposition," a slang classic along with "23" and other gems of everyday speech. As Steve Daly, Lewis is funnier than in the earlier role. He is still humorously dignified and still suggests a never-to-be-satisfied thirst but he has added an artistry to his work that was lacking before and sings and dances admirably.

Miss Adele Rafter, the tall brunette, who now has the part of the charmer in "Mary's Lamb" will play that part when Richard Carle returns to the Plainfield theatre Saturday matinee and night, February 5. Miss Rafter is one of the most gifted comediennes on the American stage.

CARLE AS LEANDER LAMB IN "MARY LAMB" AS ARTIST MCNELSON OF THE NEW YORK WORLD SEES HIM

Plainfield Theatre, Friday, Feb. 5.

She has played in "Little Johnny Jones," "Bluebeard," "The Lady from Lane," in the Kolb and Dill pieces, and in many other musical comedy companies. In "Mary's Lamb" she sings that pleasing ditty, "The Modest Little Model," which is illustrated by the shadowgraphs of half a dozen shapely chorus girls, attired in fleshings.

The young people of Grace M. E. church will hold a "Dutch Market" supper at the church tonight.

"The Pillar of Cloud and Fire" will be the subject of the prayer-meeting at the First Baptist church tomorrow night. Pastor Chamblis will be in charge.

ARRESTS MADE IN "GAS STOVE" MURDER.

Cincinnati, Feb. 1.—No formal charge except that of suspicion has been placed against Jesse Van Zandt, husband of the woman who was murdered and her body burned on a gas stove at their home at 634 Richmond street, Saturday.

The police are awaiting the arrival here of George Rutherforo, of Cape May, N. J., the father of the dead woman, who may have some suggestions to offer as contained in recent correspondence with his daughter.

The police arrested yesterday three men, two women and a twelve-year-old girl who were living in squalid rooms in Third street and who are supposed to have been friendly with Van Zant. They may be called upon if wanted as witnesses as to Van Zant's habits and movements.

Agnes Barry, eighteen years old, admitted yesterday in the convent where she is living that she was infatuated with Van Zant and that he had wanted her to elope with him last Thursday.

Van Zant denies all knowledge of the cause of his wife's death. He says she was unfaithful.

Cape May, N. J., Feb. 1.—Mrs. Jesse A. Van Zant, who was found murdered in Cincinnati Saturday, was a daughter of George F. Rutherford, owner of the Villa Nova Hoel here. Before her marriage ten years ago she was Miss Alice Rutherford. She was known here, however, as Mrs. Jesse A. De Long, and the name Van Zant was not coupled with her untoil private messages brought details of the murder.

The father and a brother of the dead woman, Elmer Rutherford, of Philadelphia, started Sunday for Cincinnati. She had visited her parents here in August last. The remains will be brought to Cape May.

Ex-Police Chief Very Ill.

Elizabeth, Feb. 1.—Former Chief of Police John Keron, who for many years was head of the police department in this city, lies in a critical condition at his home, 1161 Chestnut street, today, as the result of a paralytic stroke. He was a Democratic member of the Board of Freeholders years ago and for many years was president of Elizabeth's Excise Board. He and his son Edward conduct a livery stable in Elizabeth. The death on Friday of former Tax Assessor John McGrath, who was a warm personal friend of Mr. Keron, was a great shock to the latter. Mr. Keron is over seventy years old.

For County Lighting Plant.

Paterson, Feb. 1.—A bill which will give boards of freeholders the right to erect their own lighting plants and furnishing electricity to light the county roads was introduced by Assemblyman Thomas F. McCran at the session of the Legislature last night. The bill was drawn by County Counsel J. Willard Deyoe at the request of the Board of Freeholders of this county. The bill is similar to the law passed in 1907, which gave Paterson the right to erect a light, heat and power plant.

Paterson Saloons Kept Closed.

Paterson, Feb. 1.—For the first time in many years Paterson was Sunday an absolutely "dry" city, and the screen law was strictly obeyed. The changed excise conditions were due to the activity of the grand jury, before whom almost the entire police force was summoned during the week. Evidence against many saloon-keepers charged with violating the screen law was presented.

Hardness of Icebergs.

The hardness and strength of ice increases with the degrees of cold, and as icebergs come from the region of perpetual cold of an intensity difficult to realize it is readily seen how they can become "demons of destruction." The hardness of icebergs is something wonderful, even surpassing that of the "land ice" reported from St. Petersburg in 1740, wherein it is declared that "in the severe winter of that year a house was built of ice taken from the river Neva which was fifty feet long, sixteen feet wide and seventy feet high, and the walls supported the roof, which was also of ice. Before it stood two ice mortars and six ice cannon made on a turning lathe, with carriages and wheels also of ice. The cannon were of the caliber of six pounders, but they were loaded only with one-quarter pound of powder and with hemp balls—on one occasion with iron. The thickness of the ice was only four inches, and yet it resisted the explosion." Ice palaces have also been built in late years in this country and in Canada which have stood for weeks, so, then, how strong must be the ice in masses hundreds of feet in thickness!—Pittsburg Press.

Helped Him to Hurry.

Prince Bismarck once told a story of the battlefield of Koeniggratz. The old emperor, then king of Prussia, had exposed himself and his staff to the enemy's fire in a very reckless fashion and would not hear of retreating to a safe distance. At last Prince Bismarck rode up to him, saying: "As a responsible minister I must insist upon your majesty's retreat to a safe distance. If your majesty were to be killed the victory would be of no use to us." The king saw the force of this and slowly retreated, but in his zeal returned again and again to the front. "When I noticed it," Prince Bismarck went on, "I only rose in my saddle and looked at him. He understood it perfectly and called out rather angrily, 'Yes, I am coming.' But we did not get on fast enough, and at last I rode close up to the king, took my foot out of the right stirrup and secretly gave his horse an energetic kick. Such a thing had never before happened to the fat mare, but the move was successful, for she shot off in a fine canter."

Tricks of Short Sight.

Not only the inanimate but the animate world presents itself in strange forms to the myopic. Humanity, for instance, is often revealed in somewhat inhuman guise. Thus, so far as ocular demonstration goes, the world to the shortsighted is peopled by men and women as faceless, sometimes even as headless, as the horseman of legendary fame. Indoors myopic persons get quite accustomed to talking with persons who have neither eyes nor nose. Out of doors the phenomenon is more striking because oftener repeated. At quite a short distance the face melts into the atmosphere and becomes either a cloud or, like H. G. Wells' invisible man, a nothingness. "I see the hat and the figure, sometimes the beard. I see the walking stick. If the hand is ungloved this stick is waving miraculously a little way from the sleeve edge, for the hand, like the face, has vanished."—Strand Magazine.

Charming Away Tigers.

No woodcutter will go about his task in the Indian forests unless he is accompanied by a faker, who is supposed to exercise power over tigers and wild animals generally. Before work is commenced the faker assembles all the members of his party in a clearance at the edge of the forest and erects a number of huts, in which he places images of certain deities. After offerings have been presented to the images the particular forest is declared to be free of tigers, and the woodcutters in virtue of the presents they have made to the deities are supposed to be under their special protection. If after all these precautions a tiger seizes one of the party the faker speedily takes his departure without waiting to offer superfluous explanations.—Calcutta Statesman.

Not Mechanical.

A song and dance comedian was working in a cheap vaudeville house where a performance was given hourly. The tired performer had made nine appearances and had fallen asleep on his trunk when the manager poked him in the ribs and said:

"Hey, you—wake up! It's time for you to go on again."

His Preference.

Pompano—Why do you work so hard, Bagley? You slave from morning until night. Bagley—I know I do. I wish to get rich. I want to die worth a million. Pompano—Well, there's no accounting for tastes. Now, I would much prefer to live worth half a million.—Philadelphia Call.

A Limited "Forever."

"What's the matter, Clara?" asked a father of his daughter.

"Ferdy and I have parted forever."

"Um! In that case I s'pose he won't be calling for a couple of nights?"

His Delusion.

Howell—I had the nightmare last night. Powell—That so? Howell—Yes; I thought that I was being kicked by the foot of the bed.—New York Press.

An Example.

"Pa, what's a cynical smile?"

"Your mother will show you, my son, the next time I tell her I can't spare all the money she wants."

THE FOURTH ESTATE

Novelized by
FREDERICK R. TOOMBS.

From the great play of the same name by Joseph Medill Patterson and Harriet Ford. Coyright, 1909, by Joseph Medill Patterson and Harriet Ford.

"Nobody was wild enough to come here."

"One minute, Powow," he cautioned. "Be sure you don't mention anything to the folks about my little actress friend. I don't want them to know that I am going to take a crack at uplifting the stage. The little girl will be all right. She'll just make your libretto hum. She'll fill it with personality. Build up all those weak places. You know, Powow, there are some. Where's that poem for her? Finished yet?"

"Yes, it's here somewhere," fumbling in a pocket.

"Have you made it amorous for the little girl?"

"Judge for yourself. Of course I tried to write in your vein as well as I could, so that there would be no doubt to the authorship."

Sylvester read the lines:

Oh, Guenevere, how sweet my dear!
My spirit soars in dreams denied,
Worlds beyond worlds with thee, my bride—

"I don't like that much," he announced when he had finished. "Bride! Is it necessary to put that in writing? Besides, it don't sound as if I wrote it. Now, does it, Powow, old chap? Fess up."

"I hope it doesn't sound as if I wrote it."

"I thought you'd see it. Now, change that and it's a knockout drop. Can't you change it now? And I'll send it to the little girl tonight on a bed of orchids. Make it something beginning with 'ruby lips'—you know the sort of guff—and then here and there 'eyes like night, full of delight,' something on that order."

"Ruby, ruby—rougey lips!"

Powell sat and wrote for a few minutes. "Here," he finally said. Sylvester glanced over the shoulder of the rising young genius, who read aloud these inspiring words:

So bright and beaming are thine eyes
The very stars twink in surprise.
Thy hair so like the dusky night,
Thy kiss so vibrant with delight,
I thrill unto my finger tips,
Oh, ruby, ruby—rougey lips!

Powell literally writhed in agony as he listened to the doggerel.

"It's great!" cried Sylvester ecstatically. "And now come get your tea. Gee, I'd like to take a crack at being a poet!"

The two conspirators hurried into the dining room as Wheeler Brand and the owner of the Advance came into the drawing room.

"You're right, Wheeler; you're right," Nolan was saying. "This is a better showing than I hoped for. Look in your stocking next Christmas. There'll be something for you. When I got into the newspaper business, Brand, they told me it was the beginning of my finish, that it sucked ten fortunes down for every one it built and no middle aged man ever went into it and came out again without teeth marks all over him. But look at that." He held up a typewritten statement. "I'm richer for going in—twice as much advertising as last year at this time."

Nolan seated himself on a settee.

"The big advertisers never pull their ads. so long as they are getting returns from them," put in Brand. "Look at Dupuy. Remember how he threatened us and how his clients took their ads. out for two months?"

"Yes, but they put them back again."

"Why? Because they need us more than we need them," Brand laughed.

"Well, he's got something else up his sleeve now," remarked Nolan. "He telephoned that he would come to see me this afternoon."

"Are you going to see him?" Brand asked curiously.

"I thought I might as well. He'll be here. Maybe he wants to fire you again." The newspaper owner looked up at Brand and laughed heartily.

Mrs. Nolan and Phyllis re-entered the drawing room, and Brand became the especial object of their attentions.

The mother desired to have him print the list of her invited guests who had never attended the reception. Phyllis requested him to print a story about the violinist and was vastly annoyed when Brand informed her that the subject was a matter for the musical editor to attend to.

"And there's something else, Mr. Brand." A look of despair came into Brand's face. "Phyllis went to Miss Bartelmy's musicale the other day, and you didn't even include her name among those present," the mother said.

"Why, I'm sorry. That was an oversight, I assure you. I suppose they made up the usual list in the office."

"I hope it won't happen again," remarked Phyllis indignantly.

"Yes, and the way it's handling this Loris divorce case is all wrong," snapped Mrs. Nolan. "I know Mrs. Loris. She is no better than she should be, and people who live in icehouses shouldn't throw hot water."

"We have no policy in the Loris

"People who live in icehouses shouldn't throw hot water."

case," remarked Brand in defense. "We merely print the facts."

"Facts!" Mrs. Nolan cried. "That paper upsets me for the whole day every morning."

"There now, mother; I guess the paper's all right," ventured Nolan soothingly.

"You've got another guess, Michael. Nobody reads it but shopgirls, who spend a penny for the Advance and another for a stick of gum and hang on to a strap with one hand and the Advance with the other while they're waggling their jaws all the way down to work. That's all that reads it!" She paused for breath, then went on, "And I must say I think it's scandalous the way you attack Judge Bartelmy every little while."

"Yes," contributed Phyllis, "and his daughter's one of the most exclusive and sought after girls in New York. She's the only one of her set who has been at all nice to me. Isn't that so, mamma?"

"Yes, and why the paper should go for her father just as it does for every other prominent man in town I can't see. She must think it's very funny that such things should appear in the Advance after what she's done for us."

"Oh," suggested Brand, thinking to soothe his employer's wife, "she probably knows that you have absolutely nothing to do with the policy of the Advance!"

"Is that so?" ejaculated Mrs. Nolan indignantly. "They certainly are very kind hearted people to act the way they do in the face of that paper."

"Judge Bartelmy is first and last a politician," explained Brand.

Michael Nolan bent forward intently. The conversation had now reached a point where he realized an issue of vital importance to himself and to the Advance had been touched on.

"Well, I suppose he has been coddling up to us a little," he began, then paused.

Brand drew a deep breath, stood up erect in the middle of the drawing room and daringly explained the situation to the owner of the paper.

"Bartelmy handles people better than any man in town," he declared. "He has studied the Advance, dissected its position and—I will be frank with you—discovered its weaknesses. He knows he can't reach you through your cupidity or political ambition because you lack those qualities. He now realizes that his only hope of influencing us lies in an appeal to"— He hesitated.

"Well?" asked Mrs. Nolan ominously.

Brand found the courage to complete the sentence.

"His only hope lies in an appeal to your family's social desires." Phyllis rose from her seat, her cheeks red with anger—"and that's the only reason he has for taking you up."

Mrs. Nolan gave a scream of wrath. Nolan himself, regretting that the unpleasant scene had occurred, [illegible] the settee and advanced to calm the ruffled waters, but his face was clouded. Its serious expression indicated that he was deeply concerned over the frank statements of his managing editor, and one could instinctively feel that he was convinced that Brand had spoken the truth.

CHAPTER VI.

NOLAN faced Brand

"Come, come, Wheeler," he said. "Let's drop the subject now."

"Mr. Brand, you are forgetting your place," contributed Phyllis.

"Michael," insisted Mrs. Nolan, "are you going to let this young man ruin the whole of us? I, for one, am glad Judge Bartelmy has taken us up, and if it wasn't for the way Mr. Brand runs wild with that paper"—her voice broke—"others might." She crossed to the door at the left. "Here we've squandered money right and left and nobody would have anything to do with us. I declare I was happier poor. At least when I asked anybody to eat then they came. Look at that table in there"—she pointed—"groaning with good things to eat, and there's $100 for hothouse grapes, and nobody's touched 'em!" She picked up a bunch of grapes from a stand and began to eat them.

"Well, I felt it was my duty not to let them go to waste." She burst into tears. "Come on, Phyllis," she managed to say, and the heartbroken mother and daughter went from the room.

"You mustn't mind what mother says," Nolan said to Brand. "She's been kind o' lonely since she came back to New York."

The editor's heart swelled with sympathy for the woman whose ambition for herself and her daughter had caused the bitterest pain that injured pride can give. He saw that it would be difficult for her to learn that social position in a big city can be won only by skillful maneuvering, the ability to do which Mrs. Nolan apparently did not possess.

"Oh, I understand," he answered feelingly.

Brand and Nolan went into the library to smoke. Hardly had they disappeared when Pitcher entered the drawing room as an escort for Judge Bartelmy and his daughter Judith. Brand had not erred a few minutes previous when in the same room he had pronounced the judge to be the best "handler of people" in the city. The conversation which ensued between the jurist and his daughter as they awaited their hostess well illustrated his reasons for accepting, with his daughter, Mrs. Nolan's invitation. When Pitcher had gone in search of Mrs. Nolan it was the girl who first spoke.

"Father," she said, "I want you to know that I've been to five teas this afternoon. I'm doing you a great favor to come to this one."

"This doesn't come under the head of social duties."

"Yes, my dear; I appreciate it, but social duties"—

The girl laughed shortly.

"Now, this doesn't come under the head of social duties."

"Oh, yes," the judge answered quickly, "if you view society in its broader sense. Beyond your little world is a larger one where caste is of small consequence and where all men should be of service to each other."

"But the Nolans—they certainly haven't been of service to you?" questioned the girl.

He glanced sharply at Judith.

"But I wish them to be, and we're getting on—we're getting on."

"Their paper keeps going for you just as much as ever, father. I don't suppose one ought to mind it, but I do."

"Judith, Nolans have lived in every age in every country," pronounced the jurist. "He's a composite of anarchist and autocrat. Eventually the autocrat in him will triumph. Just now he's bounding old institutions. I, for instance, represent to him the judiciary, and he attacks me. No consequence whatever, but I'm here in defense of the United States bench. My cause is the cause of my colleagues. I tell you, Judith, I know the breed. I know how to get the venom out of his fangs. Diplomacy, my dear—diplomacy!"

Judith became enthusiastic.

"Father, I believe you would have been a great prime minister in the old days!"

The judge straightened up, smiling pleasedly at his daughter's complimentary estimate of him. "Hardly that," he protested. He became reflective. "They were feeble old men, for a thousand years courteously moving kings and their armies like pawns on a chessboard. They were always very tactful, Judith, those princes of the past."

"Oh," she admitted, "you never fail to illustrate your point, whatever it is!"

"Just imagine," said her father, "what one of those old fellows would do in this case."

"Yes, I suppose you're right, and in the end you'll make these people see how wrong they've been about you."

"Oh, yes!" he went on confidently. "As they become accustomed to their prosperity you will find that the demogogism of their paper will be modified and ultimately vanish." He seated himself near his daughter.

"That would be a terrible blow for Wheeler, wouldn't it?" she suddenly asked.

"Wheeler! Oh, Wheeler! He's an entirely different type—the idealist, the fanatical idealist. I'm sorry. I always liked the boy. His heart's all right, but his head's all wrong, and I hope he's merely passing through a phase."

"I don't think you quite understand Wheeler, father," responded Judith, rising.

He took hold of the girl's hands.

"Oh, yes, I do! Just now he has lost himself in a labyrinth, and it will take an Ariadne to lead him out. I believe the right woman might bring him to reason." He paused significantly. Judith lowered her eyes from his. "I forgive him any annoyance he may have caused me, and I hope you will forgive him too. I want you and Wheeler to be friends again and, like the princess in the fairy stories, live happily ever after." He patted her fondly on the shoulder.

Mrs. Nolan entered the room and, aglow with excitement, greeted her guests.

"Judge Bartelmy, I hope you haven't been waiting long?" she inquired anxiously.

"Not at all."

"It is so good of you to come."

"Oh, I wouldn't permit anything to keep me away!" he replied. "I've just had the pleasure of adjourning a rather important conference to be here."

This confession filled the fluttering heart of Mrs. Nolan with pure ecstasy. She could barely contain herself as she in turn greeted Judith Bartelmy.

Pitcher announced another name that appeared in the social register.

"Mr. Dupuy," he announced. He had come to keep his appointment with Nolan.

"How do you do, Mr. Dupuy?" greeted the hostess, shaking hands warmly with him. "Here's Judge Bartelmy. He's just adjourned a most important conference to come to our tea. Pitcher, tell Mr. Nolan the judge and Mr. Dupuy are waiting. Say the judge has just adjourned his court to come. Miss Bartelmy, Phyllis will be so delighted to see you." She grasped Judith's arm and led her to a door, speaking rapidly as she did so. "Phyllis wants to show you her new gown Quinlan brought over from Paris. Very smart effect, but $450, and you could hold it in the palm of your two hands—a rag!"

LICENSE SET ASIDE.

Trenton, Feb. 1.—Upon the ground that there were many irregularities in the granting by the Excise Board of Elizabeth, December 16 last, of a liquor license to Otto Aulert, Justice Bergen filed in the Supreme Court yesterday an opinion setting aside the license. The action was upon certiorari brought by Christian Hansen against the Excise Board and Aulert. The opinion is interesting because it sets forth clearly that all signers of applications for liquor licenses must be American citizens. Justice Bergen finds that the Aulert application was not signed by twelve "respectable citizens and freeholders" of the ward, as required by the Elizabeth charter.

The evidence showed that several of the signers owed allegiance to some foreign power. The opinion holds that the signers of such application must not only be residents and freeholders but also "citizens whose duty it is to support and maintain the laws of this commonwealth." Another reason given for setting aside the license is that the remonstrants against it were not afforded a proper hearing.

Justice Bergen says that the licenses was granted contrary to the laws of the State and of the rules of the Excise Board, and the action can only be interpreted to mean that the board was determined to grant the license "regardless of law, of their own rules and of the dignity of a body supposed to act judicially."

He holds that it was an application for a new place and as such the prosecutor of the writ was entitled to be heard in opposition to the license.

Want Shark River Improved.

Asbury Park, Feb. 1.—Cottagers and property owners on the north Jersey shore are about to ask the Legislature to appropriate $50,000 for the bulkheading and improvement of the Shark River inlet. Petitions are being circulated in Asbury Park and adjacent resorts in behalf of the improvement, and numerous signatures have been obtained.

Trinity Commandery, No. 17, K. T., will hold a regular conclave next Monday night.

There will be initiation at the meeting of Franklin Council, No. 41, Jr. O. U. A. M., Thursday night.

TRAVELERS CHEQUES.

Travelers' cheques are rapidly superceding Letters of Credit, owing to the fact that they are so much more readily negotiable.
For the uninitiated we might say that these cheques are self-identifying; that they may be cashed almost as readily as currency; and that they possess the safeguard of being redeemable in case of loss.
We will gladly furnish further particulars on request.

RAILROAD BOWLERS WERE ON THE JOB

At Campbell's alleys yesterday the Dispatchers team again trimmed the Poodlers of the New Jersey Central Bowling Association. After the teams finished some individual matches were rolled in which Snyder and Hall easily disposed of Lavelle and Early.

Notes of Tourney.

The Station Master wore a worried look all day. The beating he and his partner received was too much for him.

The "Big Fellow" from E'port worked hard but was simply outclassed.

Moriarity showed good work after his temporary absence from the club. His 210 was high score for the day.

The expected match between the Two Mikes, Meaney and Griffin, was postponed. The latter failed to appear.

During recess Joe Carkhuff showed Frank Campbell the sights of the "City Beautiful."

"232" still remains unbeaten.

The Danish Lutheran congregation will hold a service in W. C. T. U. hall tomorrow night. Rev. Theodore Beck will preach.

The Men's Club of the First Baptist church will meet Monday night, February 14, when an attractive program will be presented.

The fourth quarterly conference will be held at the Monroe Avenue M. E. church tonight. Rev. Dr. D. B. F. Randolph, district superintendent, will be in charge.

The Men's Club of the First Presbyterian church has decided to hold its banquet on Tuesday night, February 22, when Rev. Dr. F. C. Iglehart, of New York, will make an address.

The fourth quarterly conference of the First M. E. church will be held in Vincent chapel t omorrow night after the prayer-meeting. Dr. D. B. F. Randolph, district superintendent, will be in charge.

A special musical service will be held at the First M. E. church Sunday night under the direction of J. Edmund Skiff, the organist. The chorus choir will sing special numbers and there will be several solos.

Owing to ill health the Rev. S. D. Harris, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church, Raritan, has tendered his resignation. A successor will be appointed at the session of the Newark Conference, in Newark, March 30.

The Junior Mission Band of the First Baptist church will give a costumed home mission exercise in the church Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock. There will also be a sale of home-made fancy goods and confectionery.

Mr. and Mrs. John W. Murray, Sr., of West Eighth street, are stopping at the Haddon Hall, Atlantic City.

VOORHEES IS NAMED AT THE JOINT CAUCUS

In the joint caucus last night the Republican House and Senate majorities at Trenton unanimously selected Daniel S. Voorhees as their candidate to succeed himself as State treasurer. Mr. Voorhees was elected today at noon, when the Legislature met in joint session. His term is three years and salary $6,000 per year.

Senator Edward K. Mills, of Morris, the home county of "Uncle Dan," nominated the treasurer for caucus support as soon as Senator Ernest R. Ackerman, of Union, Senate majority leader, had called last night's gathering to order. Senator John D. Prince, of Passaic, seconded the nomination.

Majority Leader Walter E. Edge, of the House, moved that the selection be by unanimous vote and his motion upon being seconded by Assemblyman Thomas Gillen, of Essex, went through.

It is seldom that a great office is filled by acclamation so far as the majority caucus is concerned and the compliment is the more to be appreciated by Mr. Voorhees. After a symposium of praise for the treasurer and his work the caucus adjourned.

In joint session today notaries public whose terms expire this year were selected.

Democratic legislators nominated a man for State treasurer.

Late last night it was decided that City Collector Robert Davis, of Jersey City, would be the choice.

"WHITES" LAND THEIR FIFTH STRAIGHT WIN.

The "Whites" won their fifth straight victory yesterday in the Business Men's Basketball League at the Y. M. C. A. by defeating the "Grays" by the score of 22 to 9. The victory practically places the championship in the grasp of the "Whites." The lineups:

"Whites"—O. Whitford, Pierce, Listman, forwards; Hauck, centre; Shaw, Spicer, guards. "Grays"—Webster, Sebring, Barnard, forwards; Davis, center; Runyon, P. Whitford, guards.

Last Chance to Buy Canned Vegetables Below Cost

No Deception at the A&P Stores. No Misrepresentation. No Two Prices

The smallest child will receive the same strict attention and same goods at the same prices as if the parents had come in person. These are a few of the foundation stones upon which the Company was organized.

CORN

IONA, 4 cans 25c
The Corn crop in the Southern States this year was almost a failure, so we had to go to Ohio and Illinois for our Standard Corn. We have the quality, however, and the price speaks for itself.

SULTANA, 3 cans 25c

A&P, a can 10c
Absolutely perfection in Corn. The fanciest quality that the State of Maine affords. To our way of thinking, Maine Corn stands head and shoulders over any other Corn packed. Try a can and convince yourself. The climate and soil of the State of Maine make it possible for them to produce a sweetness in their Corn which cannot be duplicated in any other section of the country.

PEAS

IONA, 3 cans 25c
Every can brimful with excellent sweet Peas, every one soft and tender. Our Iona Peas have built up a reputation for themselves which will be lasting.

SULTANA, a can 10c
Our Sultana Grade of Peas is packed from Alaska the variety, and is preferred by many to the sweeter Peas.

A&P, 2 cans 25c
Extra Fancy Sifted Peas, uniform in size, very small and tender. The purest of water is used in canning these Peas. We consider our A&P Brand of Peas the Acme of Goodness.

TOMATOES

IONA, 4 cans 25c
An exceptionally good can of Standard Tomatoes. We take the entire output of more than a dozen canneries in the State of Maryland. Red Ripe Tomatoes packed in standard sized cans.

SULTANA, 3 cans 25c
Sultana Tomatoes are of the Jersey Variety—a larger can than the ordinary standard Tomato and just full of Tomatoes.

A&P, a can 10c
Our A&P Tomatoes are canned in the best Tomato-growing section of the country. Extra large cans—whole Tomatoes—hand packed.

STANDARD SUCCOTASH.
A combination of Corn and Lima Beans that is really good. Our price we know is exceptionally low for Succotash, but you have our guarantee as to the quality. 3 cans 25c. Regular price 10c can.

A&P SUCCOTASH.
Fancy Maine Corn and tender Lima Beans are used in the production of our A&P Succotash. At 10c a can we don't know of any better value in canned goods. 10c a can. Regular price 12½c.

RELIABLE PEAS.
Packed from what is known as Advancer Seed (Sweet Variety). It can be said of these Peas without fear of contradiction that they "melt in your mouth." 10c a can. Regular price 12½c.

A&P STRINGLESS BEANS.
We guarantee these beans to be stringless, small and of uniform size, and especially good for garnishing. 2 cans 25c. Reg. price 15c a can.

STANDARD STRING BEANS.
Baltimore String Beans of good quality. 4 cans 25c. Regular price 7c a can.

CUT REFUGEE BEANS.
Best quality of New York State Cut String Beans. Served with Corn, using equal quantities of each makes an excellent dish. 3 cans 25c. Regular price 10c a can.

ARENA LIMA BEANS.
All of our Lima Beans are packed for us in Monmouth County, N. J. The Arena grade is a large white tender Bean and very palatable. 4 cans 25c. Regular price 8c a can.

WHITE WAX BEANS.
To those who prefer the Golden Wax Beans we make this offer. Every bean is sweet and tender. 3 cans 25c. Regular price 10c a can.

LUXURY LIMA BEANS.
A green Lima Bean of medium size, packed with great care. You probably know the brand, and the low price will surprise you. 3 cans 25c. Regular price 10c a can.

A&P LIMA BEANS.
The smallest Lima Beans that are put in a can. As in our other A&P Canned Goods, we have selected the very best for our own brand. 2 cans 25c. Regular price 15c a can.

RAILROADS TO PAY TAXES IN LUMP SUM

Assemblyman John J. Matthews, of Hunterdon, last night introduced two bills in the House at Trenton to require the railroads to pay their taxes to the State on a specific date instead of having a year to pay up, and ordering the distribution of the railroad money due local public school districts in time for use in the reduction of taxation.

Mr. Matthews says his bill is an improvement over the Blauvelt measure which was smothered last year. The Hunterdon man had this to say of the bill:

"My first bill makes it necessary for the railroads to pay their main stem tax on February 15. Now they may pay one-fourth then, and a quarter on each of three succeeding dates, three months apart, the last payment being October 15. This will place the money in the State treasury nine months earlier than now.

"My second bill provides that the money from main stem tax shall be distributed on July 15 of the year in which it is collected, instead of being sent down to the schools in two installments, six months apart in the next year. This means the local school districts will then have their school money a year ahead."

NEW ORDINANCE ON WAY

Revised Rules for Hackmen, Expressmen, Cartmen, Motor Vehiclests and Peddlers.

THE COUNCIL TAKES ACTION.

Proposed New Law Adopted on Second Reading Will Become Operative in a Few Weeks.

The Common Council at a special meting last night adopted on its second reading the new ordinance relative to the licensing and regulation of hackmen, peddlers, etc. The ordinance is a bulky document which took City Clerk James T. MacMurray twenty minutes to read to the Council. Following its adoption a resolution was passed authorizing the city clerk to advertise the ordinance.

The ordinance is patterned much after the present law. Owners of hacks, expressmen, truckmen, cartmen, with one horse are required to pay a license of $5. For two horses the rate is fixed at $7.50

The rate on motor vehicles was fixed at $10, the drivers to pay a license fee of one dollar.

Peddlers with horse and wagon, $25; peddler and hand cart $20; peddlers on foot, $15.

The ordinance also provides that all persons receiving licenses shall deposit with the chief of police one dollar for a badge, the dollar to be refunded when the badge is turned in.

There was considerable discussion in relation to empowering the police board to revoke licenses in case of violations. The ordinance vests that power in the hands of the mayor and city judge. That point, however, will be decided when the ordinance is presented to the Council on its third reading.

Several of the changes noted which will effect the hackmen is that plates with the license number will be tacked in the vehicle opposite the seat. Numbers will also be required on both sides of the lamps. Instead of wearing buttons the hackmen will badges.

In the schedule of rates there is one change that will interest the public. Under the present ordinance double rates of fare have been in vogue after 11 o'clock. Hereafter the double fare rate will go into force at midnight. This plan will no doubt be appreciated by passengers who leave New York city on the 10:30 p. m. train and also to theatre patrons.

Expressmen will also be required to wear badges, and plates will be tacked on the sides of the wagons giving the expressman's number and date of license. The same rule will apply to cartmen and truckmen.

Cartmen will be required to sign an agreement which will be approved by the street commissioner and transportation and dumping will also be according to rules designated by the street commissioner.

Peddlers will not be permitted to trade or loan their badges as in the past under a penalty of paying a twenty dollar fine and having their licenses revoked.

The new license fees as fixed in the ordinance represent an increase of five dollars per year over the present rates. The fines for violations was increased from ten to twenty dollars.

The limitations in the hack ordinance remain practically the same with the exception of a portion of Hillside avenue, which was placed in the 25 cent fare limit.

PIANO SHOW ROOMS ARE MADE ATTRACTIVE.

The Hallet & Davis Piano Company has recently completed decorating the interior of its warerooms on East Front street. The color scheme is gray and white, similar to the company's Boston home office and the effect is extremely beautiful.

This enterprising company opened its warerooms here about four years ago and has since built up a large trade both in this city and vicinity. The firm is one of the oldest and largest piano companies in the United States, operating branch stores in the principal cities. The same extensive stock of pianos is carried in the Plainfield store, as in New York and the large cities.

Remove to Minneapolis.

Mrs. Frank H. Merrill and daughter, Miss Dorothy Merrill, of Truell Inn., left yesterday on the B. & O. Railroad, for Minneapolis, Minn., where they will join Mr. Merrill, who has the supervision of a large manufacturing plant in that city. The family will be located at Curtis Hall, Minneapolis. Miss Merrill will be missed here by many friends, especially at the high school, where she was one of the best basketball players, and captain of the girls' team.

SOCIETY HAS BUSY DAY

Teas and Luncheons of the Fashionable Folk Held Yesterday.

ALL ARE LARGELY ATTENDED.

Mrs. Orton G. Dale, Mrs. Sidney S. Schuyler, Mrs. W. S. Maltby and Miss Wharton the Hostesses.

A charming social affair of yesterday was a reception and tea given by Mrs. Sidney S. Schuyler, of 792 Belvidere avenue, in honor of her guest, Miss Mary Foxley Tilgham, of Eastern, Md. More than 150 guests from New York, Brooklyn, other distant points and Plainfield were present. The home was beautifully decorated for the occasion, the prevailing colors in the parlors and reception room being green and white and in the dining room, yellow and green, the whole idea being suggestive of springtime.

Mrs. Schuyler and her mother, Mrs. Charles Leo Abry, of New York, received with Miss Tilgham. Miss McCabe, of Boston, and Mrs. F. B. Ryan, of Cranford, poured coffee in the dining-room, while Mrs. Charles Wrenn, of New York, served punch in the library.

Those who assisted in the dining-room were Mrs. M. D. Baldwin, of Pelham Manor; Miss Abbie Bourne, of Cranford; Mrs. Frank Bruin, of Brooklyn; Mrs. Ralph H. Holland and Mrs. J. H. Reilley, of New York; Miss Eudora Sullivant, Miss Frances Cahoone, Miss Katheryn Knox and Miss Marion VanRensselaer Schuyler, of this city, and Mrs. R. N. Abry, of Cranford.

There were many delightful features during the afternoon, one of which was the excellent music by Charles Suhr's orchestra. Miss Tilghman, for whom the affair was given, will be the guest of Mrs. Schuyler for a month, and the reception afforded her an excellent opportunity to met a large number of Plainfield society people.

Society women were busy yesterday attending numerous teas and receptions given in various parts of the city, and in each case the functions were marked by delightful features. This social activity was quite in contrast to the rather dull winter season, which was in a large measure due to several deaths in prominent families throughout the city and borough.

Mrs. Orton G. Dale, of East Sixth street, gave a tea and reception yesterday afternoon in honor of her sister, Miss Lucy Slade, of Trenton, the affair being rather informal. Mrs. Dale and Miss Slade received, while those who poured in the dining room were Mrs. John Doul Miller, Mrs. T. M. Day, Mrs. Eugene H. Hatch, Mrs. E. A. Stevenson, Mrs. S. Durell Lounsbery, of this city, and Mrs. Robert Strong, of New York city.

Those who assisted in the dining-room were Miss Dorothy Fleming, Miss Laura Lovell, Miss Helen Lovell, Miss Nancy VanDeventer, and Mrs. Charles Livingston Hyde, of this city, and Miss Helen Lee, of New York. About one hundred guests attended the affair.

Mrs. Wilbur S. Maltby, of Putnam avenue, gave a red and white luncheon in honor of her sister, Mrs. William S. Heyniger, of Corning, N. Y., covers being laid for nine. The guests were Mrs. DeWitt C. Ivins, Mrs. Joseph Yerkes, Mrs. G. A. Sprague, Miss Sprague, Mrs. Frank B. Clark, Mrs. William S. Heyniger, Mrs. William Egenberger, the last named of New York.

Among the social events for the younger set was a luncheon given by Miss Susanne Wharton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifton Wharton, Jr., of Belvidere avenue, for several of the winter's debutantes and a few friends.

Appeal for Paris.

The American National Red Cross has issued an appeal for contributions for the relief of the sufferers from the flood in Paris, asking all who will give to do so quickly and generously. Contributions may be sent to the treasurer of the New Jersey State branch of the American National Red Cross. Daniel S. Voorhees, Trenton, who will promptly forward same to the treasurer of the National Red Cross at Washington, D. C. All contributions of New Jersey people should be sent through the terasurer of the State branch that they may be credited to New Jersey.

Miss Van Naltz Dead.

Miss Alice Van Naltz, granddaughter of Daniel Naylor, who formerly resided in the borough, died at her home in Orange yesterday. Miss Van Naltz was the contralto soloist in the Peddie Memorial church in Newark, and was a frequent visitor to this city.

WANT PASTOR RETURNED

First M. E. Church Congregation Invites Rev. Dr. Chas. M. Anderson.

ANNUAL REPORTS WERE READ.

Individual Communion Service Is Favored—The Laymen's Forward Movement Is Endorsed.

Rev. Dr. Charles M. Anderson, pastor of the First M. E. church, at the fourth quarterly conference held last night, received a unanimous invitation to return to his charge another year. Complimentary remarks were made by many of those present concerning the work of Dr. Anderson during the past year. The wishes of the congregation will be expressed to the district superintendent who will use his influence to have them carried out by the presiding bishop at the coming session of the Newark Conference.

The reports from all the various departments of the church showed considerable progress during the year, this being particularly true in Dr. Anderson's report. He made a large number of calls and in other ways has stimulated interest in the work. There were also encouraging reports from the Epworth League, young women's societies, Ladies' Aid Society and foreign and home mission societies, summing up the work.

There was considerable discussion relative to the laymen's missionary movement and it was decided to inaugurate an aggressive local campaign in the interest of this work.

The question of introducing the individual communion service in the church was presented and a majority of the members were in favor of it. This matter will be referred to the Official Board to be decided at the meeting to be held next Wednesday night.

It was announced that the Women's Foreign Missionary Society had decided to undertake the work of educating a girl in the foreign field and this was a source of much encouragement.

WHITFIELD DUNHAM DEAD AFTER A LONG ILLNESS

Whitfield Dunham, a resident of Dunellen, died yesterday, aged 81 years. Death was due to a protracted illness of gangrene which followed the amputation of a leg several years ago. Mr. Dunham is survived by a son, Charles Dunham, and three unmarried daughters, all of whom reside at Dunellen.

Mr. Dunham was a native of Clinton, Hunterdon county, where he engaged in farming up to the time of his removal to Dunellen about fifteen years ago. The funeral services will be held at his late home tomorrow night at 8 o'clock and in the Clinton Presbyterian church, at the latter place, Saturday afternoon at 3:45 o'clock.

THIRD ANNUAL DANCE HELD AT TRUELL HALL

The third annual dance of the employes of A. E. Force & Co. was held last night in Truell Hall and at least a hundred couples enjoyed the dance and supper. Paroubek's orchestra furnished the music for the twenty numbers on the dance order and the festivities ended shortly before 2 o'clock this morning.

A light supper was served in the dining hall at midnight which was thoroughly enjoyed. A committee composed of the following employes of the "White Store:" Misses Mamie Hughes, Mary Higgins and Elizabeth Guinee and Messrs Lawrence O'Neil, Irving Benningar, Carl Ball and Harry Blimm, had charge of the affair.

Messrs. Blimm and Ball favored the company with some excellent solos and a trio composed of Blimm, Bennett and Ball did some concerted singing which was greatly appreciated.

Pupils Visit Blacksmith Shop.

The members of the kindergarten department of the North Plainfield school watched the making of horse shoes at the blacksmith shop of William Sharkey on Lincoln place, this morning. The pupils were in charge of their teachers, Miss French and Miss Emmons.

Buy an Island.

Mr. and Mrs. Sidney S. Schuyler, of Belvidere avenue, recently purchased an island at Eastern, Md., where they propose to erect a fine summer home.

BURGLAR GOT $4.90 AT A LOCAL SALOON

Chris. Gloeckner, a saloonkeeper of West Front and Somerset streets, is minus $4.90 this morning and thankful that it is not more. Some time after 11 o'clock last night someone broke into the saloon using a back window as a means of ingress and rifled one of the two cash registers in the place.

The window pane was shattered and the catch forced back so that it was easy to enter. No noise was heard of breaking glass and no suspicious character was seen in the neighborhood after closing time, and it is the opinion of the police that amateur cracksmen did the job.

Mr. Gloeckner usually leaves ten dollars in change divided between the two registers for the use of the bartenders in the early morning and the fact that only one machine was rifled leads them to believe that the thief was frightened off by some noise before he had an opportunity to get busy on the other register.

DISCUSS SUGGESTION FOR A SEWAGE PLANT

A conference was held in the office of Mayor Fisk last night between the Mayor and several prominent men in the city including some members of the Common Council. The object of the conference was to discuss the sewer disposal plans as have been outlined before. Among the conferees were George H. Frost, O. T. Waring, William S. Tyler, Alexander Gilbert, Floyd T. Woodhull and Mr. Fuller, of the engineering firm of Herring & Fuller, of New York.

It was the consensus of opinion that the present sewer beds have reached their capacity and that to arrange for a new disposal bed now will be an economical procedure. The committee having the matter in charge will within two or three weeks have exact estimates made up of the cost of a larger and more complete disposal plant, which will be submitted to the Common Council.

Surveys will be made for the purpose of ascertaining the grades to be overcome and plans will be drawn so that the exact cost of the improvement may be ascertained.

Estimates will be made for Plainfield alone, North Plainfield by itself and the two together. It was the opinion of all those present that this would solve once and for ever the problem of sewer disposal for both the city and borough.

TO SEE MRS. FISKE IN "SALVATION NELL"

An event of unusual dramatic import will be the appearance of Mrs. Riske and the Manhattan Company in "Salvation Nell," at the Plainfield theatre on Saturday night, February 12. The play is now in its second year, having been presented at the Hackett Theatre, New York, for some twenty weeks last season, the metropolitan engagement being followed by a transcontinental tour which was ended late in August.

The production for this season is entierly new, but the wonderful cast which so splendidly supplemented the crowning achievement of Mrs. Fiskes career, her creation of wonderful role of the scrub-woman of the slums, remains practically intact.

No play in which Mrs. Fiske has ever appeared, has aroused the discussion that this one has done, and its graphic portrayal of life in the Hell's itchen district of New York with "Salvation Neil," a product of the conditions surrounding that locality, who afterwards works out a glorious redemption for herself through the power of love, makes the play one not only with an uncommon fascination, but one with a moral that becomes evident to every mind. Mrs. Fiske's supporting cast is practically the same as that of last season. The engagement will be for one performance.

Turkey Supper Tonight.

The Ladies' Christian Work Society of Trinity Reformed church has planned a good time for those attending the turkey supper at the church tonight and tomorrow night. Supper will be served from 6 to 9. o'clock, and there will be an abundance of turkey, with all the good things accompanying it.

—Neuman Brothers specialties in the vegetable line are very attractive these days. They include green beans, string beans, egg plant, spinach, lettuce, beets, cabbage, cauliflower and many others. They are the best to be found in the market.

THE VANISHING OF MILLER

Erstwhile "Dramatic" Teacher Skips Board Bill in New Brunswick.

HAD A CANDY STORE HERE.

Lack of Patronage Assigned as Cause of Flight From Bothering Creditors.

George H. Miller, formerly of this city, who was manager of the "Miller Dramatic School," in New Brunswick, left that city yesterday rather suddenly and his present whereabouts are not known. During the two months that he conducted the school in New Brunswick he had an office in the Baldwin building there.

The school was started to teach local talent how to become proficient enough to make a debut on the stage. The idea appealed to many as a good one, but the number of students was so small that Mr. Miller found it impossible to meet his obligations.

During the two months several merchants in New Brunswick, it is said, were "hung up" for various amounts, while it is said that the proprietor of the boarding house where Mr. Miller made his home, Miss Cornelia Hammell, 86 Commercial avenue, holds quite a bill against her star boarder.

C. H. Cramer, who rented Mr. Miller desk room, notified the latter that he would have to move on the first of the month, but he decided to leave before that time. He was not indebted to Mr. Cramer, it is said. Mr. Miller also secured plenty of free advertising in a New Brunswick newspaper by telling how he intended starting a branch vaudeville show in Graham & McCormick's Hall.

Mr. Miller tried two or three ventures in this city, one being a confectionery store on East Front street, but owing to an insufficient amount of patronage was forced to give up the business. Since that time he has not been in this city very much of the time.

REINHART FORECLOSURE ONCE MORE ADJOURNED

The foreclosure proceedings of the Prudential Insurance Company against Joseph W. Reinhart's estate on Belvidere avenue, was again adjourned in the office of Sheriff Kirkland, for one month, week by week, at the request of the company. The property covers nearly a whole block.

The decree of the complainants amounts to $27,680.56, and in addition tax costs of $226.54. There are also the judgments of Rachael S. Wood, $11,092.2; eorge R. Sutherland, $1,893.39, with interest of $21.82; Rudolph Cohen, $4,302.75, with interest of $38.33, all of which aggregates $35,256.31, which is considered less than half the value of the property.

MRS. MARY PULLINGER, AGED SEVENTY-TWO, DEAD

Mrs. Mary A. Pullinger, widow of the late George B. Pullinger, died yesterday at her home, 946 Park avenue, aged seventy-two years. Mrs. Pullinger is survived by one son, Frank B. Pullinger, and three daughters, Miss Marion E. Pullinger, Mrs. Carrie M. Slocum and Mrs. W. H. Davis, of Washington, D. C.

The funeral will be held at Mrs. Pullinger's late residence on Saturday afternoon at 2:30 and will be conducted by Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, pastor of the First Baptist church. The interment will be in Hillside cemetery.

A Birthday Party.

Miss May Mattison, of Duer street, gave a birthday party on Tuesday night to celebrate her seventeenth birthday. Music and games constituted the evening's amusement, piano solos being rendered by Nettie Steiner, Clara Runyon, Edward Laporte and Miss Karo Ramsey. Miss Mattison received a number of pretty and useful gifts. There were about thirty-five guests present.

First Visit in Twenty Years.

James McVoy, an employe of the Eastern Bottling Company, left last week on the Cunard Liner Campania for Killkenney, Ireland. Mr. McVoy will remain abroad until March, visiting his relatives and friends for the first time in twenty years.

Dr. Frank French to Talk.

Dr. Frank French will deliver a talk on "The Care of the Teeth" at the Young Woman's Christian Association tonight. All young women are invited to attend.

THE CHURCH AND THE S.S

Their Relationship the Subject of Meeting at Congregational Church.

SEVERAL SPEAKERS HEARD.

Method Suggested for Stimulating Attendance of Boys and Young Men.

The relation of the Sunday school to the church was the matter brought up for consideration at the regular mid-week meeting of the members of the Congregational church last night, and from the speeches made it would seem that while the Congregational Sunday school is doing well there is room for improvement in the methods. Many of the Sunday school teachers were present, including Mr. Whiton, the superintendent, and some of the ideas brought out by the informal discussion are bound to bear fruit.

Clarence LaRue spoke on the question: "Has the child any place in the Church?" This was effectively answered in the affirmative and cogent reasons given by Mr. LaRue to back it up. He proved conclusively that the church needs the child as much as the child needs the church for the development of its character.

James McClymont handled his topic: "How Can Young Men be Held in the Sunday School," with consummate ability. Mr. McClymont had evidently made a serious study of the question and when he stated that three out of every four boys who entered the Sunday school were eventually lost to the church, there was general consternation. These figures were quoted from statistics found in a statement made by Eugene Foster the great authority on "Boys," and which refers to the evangelical churches throughout the country. Mr. McClymont suggested as a remedy for this that the Sunday school session be made worth while for the boy to attend.

In order to accomplish this it will be necessary to get the best teachers, those who understand boys, he said, and those who are willing to spend the time to familiarize themselves with the matter they are to teach, and those who can gain the sympathy of the boys.

Alexander Millar spoke briefly of the things which he considered the chief lack in the Sunday school, after which Mr. McClymont sang a solo. Superintendent Whiton paid a high tribute to his corps of teachers and told some of his experiences in teaching in Bethany Mission in Philadelphia. He said boys must blow off steam once in a while and they should be dealt with leniently under those circumstances. He emphasized the fact presented by Mr. McClymont that a specially adapted teacher was needed to interest the boys in their lessons, and it would more than please him to meet with such a man or woman. He also made the assertion that nobody is too old to attend Sunday school and if the members of the church will give the school their support the school will grow and the Congregational school will become one of the best in the city.

DR. FRANZ J. A. TOREK HEADS THIS INSTITUTION.

The annual meeting of the members and patrons of the National Association for the Study and Education of Exceptional Children, was held at the Groszmann School, "Watchung Crest," on Friday also. The treasurer reported that the income of the association through contributions and other sources amounted to $20,776.63, during the fiscal year, and the expenditures were $19,246.40. The deficit of the association was reduced by $1,403.57.

The following Board of Trustees was elected for the year 1910: Dr. Franz J. A. Torek, president; Dr. S. Adolphus Knopf, vice-president; Waldemar H. Groszmann, secretary and treasurer; Dr. George Alexander Kohut, Dr. Simon P. Goodhart, Dr. Maximilian P. E. Groszmann, educational director, ex officio. The following members were elected for the scholarship committee: Dr. S. P. Goodhart, Herman Schwed, M. A. Rose. A committee on ways and means will consist of the following: M. A. Rose, Jacob W. Mack, Louis Gold, W. H. Groszman, Dr. G. A. Kohut. The organization of other committees will be announced later.

April of this year will be the tenth anniversary of The Groszmann School, the pioneer institution for the broader study of the problem of the exceptional child in this country and to which this association owes its inception.

ELKS CAUSE HER ARREST

Martha C. Thorne Accused of Obtaining Money Under False Pretences.

CAUGHT HER IN DOVER.

Worked Alleged Game Here and in Other Cities of New Jersey—Flim-flammed the Secretaries.

"Martha C. Thorne," of various addresses, is under arrest in Dover on a charge of obtaining money under false pretenses, most of which has been given to her by various lodges of Elks. The lodge at Dover caused her arrest and will undoubtedly prosecute the case against her.

Mrs. Thorne told a tale of woe to the secretaries of the lodges in various parts of the State. She claimed that her husband was an Elk and had gone to Arizona for his health and had recently died there and she was trying to obtain enough money to have the body brought east for burial. It is alleged that the story is a pure fabrication and the woman is a swindler. She managed to get the sympathy of William R. Townsend, secretary of the local Elks, and flim flammed the organization out of twenty dollars with her pitiful story.

Mr. Townsend said this morning that if the case was not fully prosecuted by the Dover Elks he would have the woman brought here for trial. It is not believed that Thorne is her real nome, nor it is known just how much money she has cajoled out of the various secretaries whom she has interviewed.

THE MYTHICAL MILLIONS OF DRAKE TEMPT "HEIRS."

"A fool and his money are soon parted" is an old saying, and one which is proved true from day to day. News comes now from New Castle, Pa., that "members of the Drake family in Western Pennsylvania" are preparing to make a raid on the stored up millions (200,000,000) of the mythical money of the estate of the late Sir Francis Drake.

It is evident that the newspapers have not yet penetrated to the confines of western Pennsylvania, or the deluded Drake heirs would not so readily put up good money to pay for "eminent" lawyers to journey across the big pond chasing a chimera. But that is just what they contemplate doing.

MISS MARY RILEY ENTERTAINS THE TEN POINT EUCHRE CLUB.

Miss Mary Riley, of Grandview avenue, entertained the Ten Point Euchre Club at her home last night. Three tables were in use. The play was spirited and the highest scores were made by Miss Elizabeth Ryan and William Cubberly. During the evening refreshments were served.

The guests were the Misses Elizabeth and Lona Becker, Mary and Elizabeth Riley, Elizabeth and Edna Ryan, Elizabeth Bartlau, Gertrude Donahue and Wilfred Donahue, of Ashland, Pa.; Joseph Miller, Russel VanBuskirk, William Cubberly, Gustave Meisner and Charles Doeringer.

T. W. Powell Critically Ill.

The many friends of T. W. Powell, of 23 Duer street, will regret to learn that he is confined to his bed and but little hope is entertained for his recovery. Mr. Powell resided on Fairview avenue ieght years ago and then removed to New York. Last fall he removed to his present address, where his daughter, Dr. Grace R. Powell, is practising medicine. Mr. and Mrs. Powell were very active workers in Grace M. E. church during their former residence here. Their son, Charles D. Powell, who is general secretary of the Y. M. C. A. at DuBois, Pennsylvania, has returned to his work after spending two weeks with his parents.

177 Children at Day Nursery.

The executive board of The City Union of The King's Daughters met this morning at the rooms of the Charity Organized Aid, when reports for the month were presented. The treasurer reported a balance of $198.95. During the past month 177 children were cared for at the Day Nursery, and Miss Olive DeLany, the city nurse, made 114 visits. The board took occasion to express its thanks for the many donations at the birthday reception, including $34.39 from outside sources.

A February Tea.

Invitations have been sent out by Mrs. Henry P. Henriques and Mrs. William Barton, of Prospect place, for a tea to be given at the home of the former, 90 Myrtle avenue, on Saturday, from 4 to 6 o'clock.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

Next Sabbath morning at the regular hour of worship at the Seventh-Day Baptist church the service will be especially for the young people. Reports will be given from both the senior and junior C. E. societies. The sermon will be delivered by the Rev. Ernest Brown, pastor of the Presbyterian church in Dunellen. Visitors will receive a cordial welcome at these services.

B. DeWitt Giles will entertain the members of the New Market Grange at his farm in Piscataway on Thursday, February 17. The occasion will be a farewell to the old farm as Mr. Giles will remove into his new house on New Market road about March 1. All the members of the Grange and their families will be present.

The fair and bazar of the Dunellen A. C. opens in Jr. O. U. A. M. hall tonight and will continue until Saturday night. The members of the club are being assisted by the young women who will be in attendance at the different booths. There will be dancing every evening.

Invitations are out for the marriage of Miss Ida McCullough to Henry Smalley which will take place at the former's home in Piscataway next Wednesday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

The Ladies' Society of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, have completed arrangements for the holding of a sociable and oyster supper in C. T. Rogers' flat on February 15.

Miss Iva Dayton will attend a luncheon to be given at the home of Mrs. William Tallamy in Plainfield on Saturday in honor of Mrs. Robert Davis, of New York.

The Borough Council will meet on Monday night. According to street corner gossip several important matters will come up for discussion.

WESTFIELD.

It was decided to build a new edifice for Westfield W. C. T. U. at the meeting held Wednesday afternoon. The building will have an auditorium and a chapel. The material to use in the construction has not yet been decided on.

Miss Emma Morris, of India, will address the Woman's Missionary Society of the Presbyterian church tomorrow afternoon at the lecture-room of the church.

W. G. Peckham and his son, Paul, will leave next Monday for a trip through Spain.

A subscription dance will be held at the Casino Lincoln's Birthday eve.

Peddler and Grocer Clash.

Elizabeth, Feb. 3.—A pitched battle over a horse took place Tuesday night on Washington avenue here between Max Rubenstein, a grocer, whose place is at 300 Washington avenue, and Alexander J. Fleming, a peddler, who lives at 15 South street. The latter claimed Rubenstein sold him the animal on Saturday, and when he went to take possession of the horse last night the grocer refused to give him up. An altercation followed, winding up in a fist fight. When Policeman Rabig reached the scene the combat was over and the victorious peddler was leading the animal away in triumph. Rabig saw no cause to make any arrest.

The fourth Thursday in February, it is announced, has been selected by the National Interdenominational Association as a day of prayer to be observed by members of every Evangelical church in this country.

FORESTERS TO FIGHT GREAT WHITE PLAGUE

Announcement is made by W. T. Bingham, of Elizabeth, representative of the Supreme Chief Ranger of the Independent Order of Foresters of New Jersey, that the Foresters have joined the ranks of the crusaders in the war upon the white plague and, with a membership of more than a quarter of a million, had decided to combat the disease by the establishment of an up-to-date sanatorum for the treatment of tuberculosis in its incipient stages. Foresters have just completed the purchase of 1,000 acres of land in one of the most desirable and healthful locations in the Adirondack Mountains.

Realizing the possibility of saving the lives of many of the members who might be stricken with this disease, providing they could receive proper treatment at the outset, Elliott G. Stevenson, the supreme chief ranger of the Foresters, determined to secure a site in a health giving region where the order could battle with the white plague. As a result the order has become the owner of one of the finest territories in the Adirondacks. Rainbow Lake, famed as a summer resort, is the spot selected. It is advantageously situated, directly on the lines of the New York Central Railroad, two miles from the well-known "Paul Smith's" and about five miles from Saranac Lake.

The site includes the famous lake from which it receives its name and hundreds of acres of spruce, pine and balsam trees. Rainbow Inn, which is included in the purchase, is a large hotel with fifty large rooms, and a large annex, both fully furnished ready for immediate occupancy. It is anticipated by Mr. Stevenson that within sixty days the sanatorium will receive its first inmates.

The purchase of the property has ben made from a contingent fund at the disposal of the supreme executive, and the institution will be conducted from a fund that the executive will arrange for, without entailing a dollar of additional expense upon the membership of the order.

This sanatorium idea is the second important fraternal feature that has been furnished the membership and their dependents by the Foresters. The Orphan's Home Fund, which was originated by the late Dr. Oronhyatekha, for twenty-five years the supreme chief ranger of the order, had for its purpose the care and education of the orphans left destitute by the death of their parents. Mr. Stevenson, who at the death of Dr. Oronhyatekha succeeded as supreme chief ranger, enlarged upon this idea so that orphans of a deceased father, even though their mother survived, could be cared for if necessary. He not only continued a Foresters' Home for the little ones now situated at Oakville, Ont., but arranged so that in worthy cases where the mother was so situated as to give proper care to very young children at her home, the order pays to her each month the sum that would be required to provide for the children were they inmates of the orphans' home. This permits the mother to keep her little family together, providing a home not only for the children but herself as well.

At present there are fifty children without parents, inmates of the home, while nearly two hundred young children remain in the care of their mothers at the expense of the Orphans' Home Fund. New Jersey has thirteen children as inmates of the home.

The Orphans' Home Fund is maintained by taking one cent each month from the regular court dues paid by each member. This small sum aggregates at this time about $30,000 a year.

ACQUITTED OF BIGAMY.

Crowds in Court Cheer When Woman Is Freed.

Mrs. Annie Roome, of New York, was acquitted Tuesday afternoon of a charge of bigamy after a two days' trial. The State had proven that she was married to Edward H. Roome in New York in 1901 and to John Reilly in New Brunswick in 1907.

That the verdict was a popular one was shown when the spectators burst into loud applause when William Carlock, the foreman, announced it. Judge Adrain Lyon had left the court house and no judge was on the bench at the time and the spectators took advantage of the situation. It was some time before the court officers could restore order.

Car Jumped Track at Curve.

Washington, N. J., Feb. 3.—The Easton and Washington trolley line was tied up yesterday morning as a result of a car jumping the track on the curve at Mount's crossing, near the borough limits. It was the first car to Phillipsburg, and Eugene Cole was motorman and Richard Powers conductor. There were seven passengers on board, all employes of the Edison cement plant. The car ran almost its length after the front trucks left the rails, the tracks being almost buried in ditch. The car was turned half way around completely blocking the track. No one was injured.

$55 Sets of Books $6.95
New Century Reference Library of Universal Knowledge

Six Beautiful Volumes Bound in Half Morocco—Dictionary, History and Atlas Combined.

We got all the publisher had left of these splendid reference books, these libraries of universal knowledge which seem to contain facts about everything any one might wish to know; beautiful books, perfectly printed on good paper, bound so that they are fit for the finest libraries, in rich half morocco; sets that were sold generously by subscription at $55 a set; and these we are going to sell you, while the limited quanaity holds out, at only $6.95

This is a most authoritative encyclopedia—please note that it is an American publication so that the things you are most keenly interested in are treated of most exhaustively. It contains the history of all the States, Nations and Countries, and a gazetteer with written descriptions of all the cities, towns and villages.

It contains a biography giving the history of the lives of over 15,000 of the world's most noted men and women.

It is a dictionary brought strictly up-to-date.

A Reference Library of this sort should be in every home and office, and when it can be had at the insignificant price we have placed on these remaining sets, surely no one can have any apology for being without one.

Falling from a horse Tuesday afternoon Charles Zimmer, thirty-seven years old, of 1809 Kossuth street, Camden, sustained contusions of the legs and head, and was cared for at Cooper Hospital.

While playing with a revolver Tuesday, William, the eight-year-old son of Richard Nabb, of Church street, Millville, was shot in the hand. The bullet was removed by City Physician Charlesworth.

County Prosecutor Ernest W. Lloyd introduced a resolution before the Cape May Board of Trade Monday evening, to take steps to erect a monument to the famous Dutch explorer, Cornelius Jacobson Mey, who discovered and named the settlement in 1623.

Asking for lodging at the Camden City Hall Tuesday, William Haven, nineteen years old, colored, admitted that he ran away from the reform school. Later in the day the youth was given a railroad ticket upon promising to return to the institution at Jamesburg.

Alfred W. Lofland, a freeholder, of Marlton, was indicted at a special session of the Burlington Grand Jury Tuesday for assault and battery on Alfred Muse, colored, at a public sale on Dr. Bruel's farm in Mt. Laurel Township, last Saturday. Witnesses claimed that the attack was without provocation.

Mrs. Mary A. Wright, of Burlington, said to have seen longer continuous service than any other Sunday school teacher in the world, has celebrated her seventy-ninth birthday. For sixty-three years she has been a class leader in the First Baptist Sunday school in Burlington. Owing to Mrs. Wright's health, a formal reception, planned for Monday evening, was postponed.

Counterfeiters, believed to have taken advantage of the statement issued by federal authorities that a recent flood of supposed bad nickels were really spurious have started to work off really spurious coins in Atlantic City. Car conductors are the chief victims of the crooks, and nearly a quarter peck of bad nickles were taken in on the Atlantic avenue line in the past two days. The counterfeits are of lead and of a poor quality.

The belief is general in Swedesboro now that Joseph Pippet, the young farmer, who left here two weeks before Christmas for Philadelphia, ostensibly to purchase a horse, and who has not been heard from since, has met with foul play. His wife feels that he stopped in Gloucester, where he probably met some one, who, after finding he had money, lured him away. It is hinted that a clue to this effect has been obtained and is being investigated.

In response to an invitation from Rev. Harold Morse, rector of Grace Church, a Merchantsville, fourteen Protestant rectors, representing towns through South Jersey, dined with him and organized an association of Episcopal clergymen, which will meet once a month and discuss matters of interest to their churches. As the prime mover, Mr. Morse was elected president. Rev. R. E. Brestell, of St. Paul's church, Camden, was made secretary. It was decided to meet the next time with Rev. Mr. Campbell, at Woodbury.

William Bowen, an industrious glass-blower, acquainted the police of Millville, Tuesday, with the fact he was sedulously endeavored to keep a dead secret. Bowen said that last Saturday his wife left their baby boy at the home of an aunt. When Bowen returned from his work at the glass plant he found on a table in his home a note written by his wife, saying she had decided to go away and earn her own living. That was all. Bowen, however, learned that a friend of his wife's had left town a couple of weeks ago, and efforts are being made to locate both.

Appearing to take the place of deputy tax collector, to which he was appointed by Atlantic City's Finance Committee of Council, Eugene Nixon was refused admission to the office by Tax Collector Lowry Tuesday. Lowry informed the applicant that he had appointed James Ballentine to the place under a city ordinance which allows the collector to name his own deputies. Nixon, who was to have secured the office for work done for the Republican machine in the last election, has retained lawyers to fight his claim. Ballentine has held the office of assistant several years and will fight to stick.

DECIDE ON LOCATION FOR THE NEW ARMORY

A site finally has been chosen for the new armory, which it is proposed shall be erected in Elizabeth for Companies C and I of the Second New Jersey Volunteer Infantry.

The location selected is the old Y. M. C. A. ball ground, on Walnut street and adjoining the Pennsylvania Railroad. The price to be paid will be $12,000. The joint committee, consisting of General D. F. Collins, of the Second Brigade; Colonel Nelson Y. Dungan, of the Second Regiment; Assemblyman Augustus S. Schwartz, from the House Committee on Military Affairs; Director John N. Cady, Samuel P. T. Wilbur, William H. Garrison, Henry Krouse and Benjamin King, from the Board of Freeholders, met at the courthouse and made a tour in automobiles to inspect several sites that had been offered for the purpose. The one most favored was at Rahway avenue and South Broad street, opposite the courthouse, but the price asked by the owners—$33,000—was considered exorbitant.

This left the Walnut street site the most available. At the monthly meeting next Thursday of the Board of Freeholdres a resolution will be offered that the county appropriate $25,000 for the armory, and this resolution, it is said, will undoubtedly be carried.

BAUER IS REAPPOINTED.

Cranford Sees No Ojection to His Serving the Borough.

County Engineer Jacob L. Bauer, of Elizabeth, and borough engineer of Roselle and Garwood, was reappointed township engineer at a meeting of the Cranford Township Committee last night. Opposition to the appointment was made by Fred W. Park, who put in a petition last month and another last night, both of which were filed. S. J. Cox presented a petition signed by friends indorsing Samuel R. Jones, an engineer of Cranford, for the position. This was also filed.

Committeman S. R. Droescher, of the committee appointed to investigate the reports circulated about Bauer, reported that for the best interests of the town Bauer should be reappointed.

Corporation Notice.

Notice is hereby given that the following Ordinance has been introduced before the Common Council, read the second time and ordered engrossed preparatory to its third reading, and that it is the intention of the Council to adopt the same.

J. T. MacMURRAY,
City Clerk.

Plainfield, N. J., Feb. 2, 1910.

AN ORDINANCE

Providing for the Licensing and Regulating of Peddlers, Hawkers, Cartmen, and the Owners and Drivers of Vehicles used for hire; and Concerning Street Traffic Regulations.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. That the Mayor of said City is hereby authorized to grant licenses under his hand and the seal of the city to so many and to such persons as he shall think proper, of good moral character, and otherwise qualified according to the provisions of this ordinance, and to incorporated companies, to carry on, wholly or in part, within the limits of the city, the business of peddler, hawker or cartman, to drive or keep for use for hire a hack, omnibus, stage, truck, motor vehicle or other vehicle for the transportation of passengers, baggage of merchandise, according to the provisions of this ordinance, and the City Clerk shall keep a detailed record of all licenses so granted.

Sec. 2. That every application for any such license shall be in writing, signed by the applicant, stating his place of residence, and the purpose for which such license is asked. Every applicant for a peddler's or hawker's license shall specify whether he proposes to conduct his business with a horse and wagon or with a handcart or on foot without wheeled vehicle. Every applicant for driver's license shall endorse on his application the names of three reputable citizens to whom reference is made as to the character of the applicant. Every applicant for a license for a motor vehicle shall set forth in his application that his motor vehicle has seating capacity for at least four passengers, and that he has equipped his said motor vehicle with a taxameter of standard make affixed to the front axle of said motor vehicle and so constructed and adjusted as to indicate automatically on the dial of said taxameter the charges for distance in accordance with the charges fixed by this ordinance. Every applicant under this ordinance for a license of any kind shall definitely agree in his said application to conform to and abide by the regulations prescribed or to be prescribed hereafter by the Board of Police of the City of Plainfield with the approval of the Mayor, to regulate traffic upon the public streets and with respect to the standing and movement of vehicles at or near the several railroad stations and other places of public assemblage or crowded vehicular traffic.

Sec. 3. That no person or corporation shall pursue, or in any manner carry on, as owner or as agent for another within the limts of said city, the business of peddler or hawker without being first licensed therefor, according to the provisions of this ordinance, under a penalty of ten dollars for each and every offense, provided that nothing herein contained shall prevent farmers and gardeners from selling the products of the farms owned or occupied by them, or milkmen from carrying on their business in said city without a license under this ordinance.

Sec. 4. That no person or corporation shall drive, keep or use for hire or wages, or cause to be driven, kept or used for hire or wages any cart, truck, hack, omnibus, stage, motor vehicle or other vehicle for the transportation of passengers, baggage or merchandise of any kind, wholly or in part within the limits of said city, without being first licensed therefor, according to the provisions of this ordinance, under penalty of ten dollars for each and every offense, (provided that none of the requirements contained in this section shall apply to owners or drivers of any livery stable vehicles, other than those vehicles kept by them for the use of passengers solicited at the railway stations or elsewhere within the city limits. One license and only one shall be required for each cart, truck, hack, omnibus, stage, motor vehicle or other vehicle, but for each driver other than the owner of such licensed cart, truck hack, omnibus, stage, motor vehicle or other vehicle, a separate license shall be required.

Sec. 5. That each license granted under the provisions of this ordinance shall expire on the first day of March next following the granting of the same, and shall state the object for which it is given, the name of the person or corporation licensed, the number of the license, and the date of its expiration, and shall be signed by the Mayor and attested by the City Clerk and countersigned by the Chief of Police.

Sec. 6. That for licenses under this ordinance the fees to be paid shall be as follows:

For license as aforesaid:

(a) To the owner in case of a hack, omnibus or stage with one horse $5.00

(b) To the owner in case of a hack, omnibus or stage with two horses $7.50

(c) To the owner in case of an expressman with one horse and wagon $5.00

(d) To the owner in case of an expressman with two horses and wagon $7.50

(e) To the owner in case of a truckman with one horse and wagon. $5.00

(f) To the owner in case of a truckman with two horses and wagon $7.50

(g) To the owner in case of a cartman with one horse and wagon. $5.00

(h) To the owner in case of a curtman with two horses and wagon $7.50

(i) To the owner in case of a motor vehicle, as defined in Chapter 113 of the Laws of New Jersey for the year 1906 ..... $10.00

(j) To the driver in case of a separate driver's license additional to the owner's license $1.00

(k) To the owner in case of a peddler with one horse and wagon. $25.00

(l) To the owner in case of a peddler with hand-cart $20.00

(m) To the owner in case of a peddler on foot without wheeled vehicle $15.00

A duly licensed expressman, truckman or cartman may have one assistant for each licensed wagon. A duly licensed peddler with horse and wagon may have one assistant and only one.

In each instance the license fee shall be paid to the City Clerk prior to the issuing of the license, and shall be paid by the City Clerk to the City Treasurer for the use of the city. In addition to the fee for license herein-above specified, every person or corporation licensed shall prior to receiving his or its license pay to the City Clerk the City Clerk's fee of fifty cents for issuing the license.

Also in addition in each case $1.00 to be deposited with the Chief of Police for badges, said $1.00 to be returned on return of badge.

Sec. 7. That no person licensed under this ordinance nor any person in the employ of any person or corporation licensed under this ordinance, shall stand or remain upon any sidewalk or in any street or any other public place in this city, for the purpose of soliciting custom or selling or exposing for sale any wares or merchandise longer than ten minutes at any one time, if requested to move from any such place by any officer of the city, or by the owner or occupant of any premises in front of or opposite which any such person may then be as aforesaid, but upon such request to move, such person so requested shall move with the vehicle, goods, wares and merchandise in his charge to a point at least 250 feet distant from the point from which he may be requested to move before stopping for the purpose of soliciting custom; and at no time shall any person or corporation licensed under this ordinance, or any person in the employ of such licensed person or corporation, solicit custom in such way as to destroy or threaten or cause annoyance or damage to any person, or solicit custom or proclaim merchandise for sale in a loud or boisterous manner; and at all times any person licensed under this ordinance, or any one in the employ of any person or corporation licensed under this ordinance, shall move from any point in any public place or street at which such person may be awaitting or soliciting custom or selling or exposing for sale any wares and merchandise, when requested so to do by any police officer of the city. And any and every person who or corporation which shall violate any of the provisions of this section shall, on conviction, be punished by a fine not exceeding twenty dollars. Provided, that nothing in this section shall be construed to prevent the licensed hackmen, expressmen or truckmen from standing with their vehicles on North Avenue for a longer time then ten minutes subject to the other provisions of this ordinance.

Sec. 8. That every person or corporation so licensed with respect to any hack, omnibus, stage, motor vehicle or other vehicle for the transportation of passengers must have a lamp on both sides of each vehicle which must be lighted from one hour after sunset to one hour before sunrise, and shall as soon as licensed, cause the number of his or its license to be permanently and conspicuously placed or painted in figures, not less than one inch and a half in height upon the outside of the lamps on both sides of each vehicle for which said license shall have been granted, and every person so licensed, and the driver of every such vehicle shall wear in a conspicuous place upon his person while engaged in the business for which the license shall have been granted, so as to be easily seen, a badge to be furnished by the city, with the corresponding number thereon, and shall also place and keep fastened within his vehicle in a conspicuous place to be designated by the Chief of Police, a card or plate to be furnished by the city with the words "Hack License," and the number of the license and the year for which it was issued, and also a card or plate to be furnished by the city specifying the rates of fare and other regulations.

Every expressman, truckman and cartman, as soon as he or it receives a license shall fasten permanently on each side of his or its wagon a plate to be furnished by the city with the words, "Licensed Expressman," "Licensed Truckman," or "Licensed Cartman," as the case may be, with the number of the license and the year and date for which issued, and every such license and every driver therefor shall also wear a badge, which will be furnished by the city, on which the number of the license is plainly displayed. All cartmen licensed for the collection of ashes and other waste material, shall provide themselves with wagons or carts to be approved by the Street Commissioner and shall sign an agreement to transport and dump all such material in places designated or to be designated by the Street Commissioner. Any violation of any of the foregoing provisions of this section shall not only subject the party licensed and the carrier to the penalty hereinafter provided, but for the second offense, to a revocation of the license.

Every peddler with horse and wagon shall as soon as licensed place on each side of his or its wagon a plate to be furnished by the city, giving the number of his or its license and the year for which licensed, and every such person, and every person acting on benalf of a corporation so licensed, shall wear on his person in a conspicuous place, a badge to be furnished by the city with the corresponding number. When the wagon or badges is loaned, hired, or allowed to be used by any other person than the person lawfully entitled, that shall constitute an offense under this section, and in addition to the penalty hereinafter provided, shall subject the owner to a revocation of the license.

Every person licensed as a peddler with hand-cart or on foot without wheeled vehicle, and every person acting on behalf of a corporation so licensed, shall wear on his person in a conspicuous place a badge, to be furnished by the city, with the number of the license, and if this badge is loaned or hired or allowed to be used by any other person than the person lawfully entitled to wear it, that shall constitute an offense under this section, and in addition to the penalty hereinafter provided, shall subject the owner to a revocation of the license. Every person or corporation violating any of the provisions of this section of the ordinance, shall, on conviction thereof, be punished by a fine not exceeding twenty dollars for each offense.

Sec. 9. That any license granted under this ordinance may be suspended or revoked by the Mayor or City Judge upon proof to the satisfaction of either that such licensed person, or in case of a corporation, any person acting on i's behalf, has been guilty of fraud with respect to making charges against any passenger or passengers, or that the owner or driver of any motor vehicle has practiced fraud with respect to the recording by his taxameter of the distance traveled, or the charges for distance, or has violated any other city ordinance, or without justifiable cause has been disrespectful toward any passenger or toward any person seeking to become a passenger; provided that no license shall be so suspended or revoked without reasonable opportunity first afforded to the licensed person or corporation to be heard on his or its own behalf; and every person or corporation who or which shall during the suspension or after the revocation of his or its license, carry on the business for which such license was granted, shall, on conviction, be punished by a fine not exceeding twenty dollars for each offense.

Sec. 10. That any person or corporation licensed under this ordinance to use for hire or wages any hack, omnibus, stage, motor vehicle or other vehicle for the carriage of passengers, may charge therefor the following rates, but no more, that is to say:

(a) As to all vehicles except "motor vehicles" as defined in chaper 113 of the Laws of New Jersey for the year 1906, for the carriage of any passenger or passengers from any point within to any point within that part of the city included within the following boundaries, that is to say: beginning at a point where the northeasterly side line of Johnston Avenue produced would intersect Green Brook; thence along said line and the northeasterly side line of Johnston Avenue to North Avenue, thence in the same course in a direct line to the northwesterly side line of South Avenue; thence along said side line of South Avenue to the easterly side line of Woodland Avenue; thence along said line and the easterly side line of Woodland Avenue to the southerly side line of Martine Avenue; thence along said side line of Martine Avenue to the easterly side line of Hillside Avenue; thence along said side line of Hillside Avenue to the southerly side line of Randolph Road; thence along said line of Randolph Road to the southwesterly side line of Plainfield Avenue; thence in a straight line to the intersection of the southwesterly side line of Spooner Avenue with the southeasterly side line of West Eighth Street, thence along said side line of West Eighth Street to the southwesterly side line of Grant Avenue; thence along said side line of Grant Avenue and the southwesterly side line of West End Avenue to the northwesterly city line in Green Brook, thence following the northwesterly city line to the intersection of said city line with the northeasterly side line of Johnston Avenue, produced, the point and place of beginning; twenty-five cents for one passenger carried and fifty cents for two or three passengers carried from the same point to the same destination at the same time and from any point within to any point without the aforesaid limits the further sum of twenty-five cents for one, two or three passengers, in addiioon to the sum above provided; provided, however, that after twelve o'clock at night until five o'clock in the morning, the charges may be double the said fares; and whenever any such hack, omnibus, stage or other vehicle shall be engaged by the hour the person licensed to use for hire or wages any such hack, omnibus, stage or other vehicle may charge one dollar for the first hour and seventy-five cents for each additional hour.

(b) As to all "motor vehicles" as defined in Chapter 113 of the Laws of New Jersey for the year 1906. For any number of passengers from one to four inclusive, for the first half mile or fraction thereof, thirty cents, for each quarter mile thereafter, ten cents, for each six minutes waiting, ten cents, and for ordering such motor vehicle within one mile and a half from any stand or station to the point ordered at which the passenger or passengers enter said motor vehicle, no charge shall be made, and for ordering such motor vehicle more than a mile and a half from any stand or station to the point at which the passenger or passengers enter said motor vehicle, a charge may be made at the rate of twenty cents for each mile or fraction thereof in excess of one mile and a half, provided that children under the age of five years shall not be counted as passengers if accompanied by older persons.

(c) That any person licensed under this ordinance as Expressman may charge for the delivery of each trunk, bag or other piece of baggage the following rates but no more, that is to say: from any point within to any point within the boundaries described in paragrapo (a), twenty-five cents and from any point within to any point without said boundaries fifty cents.

That every person or corporation licensed as aforesaid and the driver of every hack, omnibus, stage, motor vehicle or other vehicle for the carriage of passengers or baggage who shall demand for any service mentioned in this section and in addition to the amount fixed herein for such service shall, on conviction thereof, be punished by a fine not exceeding twenty dollars for the first offense, and by a fine not exceeding twenty dollars and a forfeiture of the license which may have been issued, for any offense subsequent to the first.

Sec. 11. That the first applicant to any person or corporation licensed to drive, keep or use for hire or wages any hack, omnibus, stage, motor vehicle or other vehicle for the transportation of passengers wholly or in part within the limits of the City of Plainfield, shall be entitled to conveyance to any point that that said applicant may desire to reach within the city limits, and any refusal on the part of the driver or owner of such licensed vehicle to transport such request shall render liable said owner or driver to a fine not exceeding twenty dollars for the first offense, and twenty dollars for a second offense, and twenty dollars and the revocation of the license for a third offense.

Sec. 12. No owner or driver of any hack, omnibus, stage, motor vehicle or other vehicle shall, for the purpose of securing custom, occupy with his vehicle any portion of the street in front of any railroad station or any place of public assemblage or entertainment in such a manner as to obstruct public travel. It shall not be lawful at or near the said railroad stations or at or near any place of public assemblage or entertainment for the owner or driver of or any person connected with any such vehicle or any person acting for or in the interest of the owner or driver of any such vehicle, to proceed beyond the curb line for the purpose of soliciting or securing custom, and it shall not be lawful for any such aforesaid person to solicit custom in a noisy, persistent or offensive manner. Any person or corporation violating any of the provisions of this section shall, on conviction thereof, be punished by a fine not exceeding twenty dollars for each offense.

Sec. 13. The Board of Police of the City of Plainfield, with the approval of the Mayor, is hereby authorized to prescribe and promulgate from time to time reasonable regulations, not inconsistent herewith with respect both to licensed and unlicensed vehicles for regulating street traffic generally and particularly to regulate the standing and movement of vehicles at or near the several railroad stations and other places of public assemblage or crowded vehicular traffic. It shall be the duty of all owners and drivers of vehicles to comply with such regulations and any person who or corporation which shall fail to comply with any of such regulations shall be deemed guilty of violating this section, and, on conviction thereof, shall be subject to a fine not exceeding twenty dollars for each offense. The intention of the Common Council is that this section shall be deemed to be separable from the other sections of this ordinance, and not essential to the validity of said other sections.

Sec. 14. That if any section of this ordinance shall for any reason be held to be unconstitutional or invalid, it shall not affect the other provisions of this ordinance.

Sec. 15. That the Ordinance entitled "An Ordinance to provide for the licensing and regulation of peddlers, hawkers, cartment, motor vehicle, hack, omnibus, stage and truck owners and drivers," approved March 14, 1882, and ordinances amendatory thereof and supplemental thereto, and the ordinance entitled "An Ordinance to regulate the standing of hacks, stages, etc.," approved December 16, 1874, and ordinances amendatory thereof and supplemental thereto; and all other ordinances and parts of ordinances inconsistent herewith, be and the same are hereby repealed, and all ordinances and parts of ordinances which were repealed or abrogated by any ordinance hereby repealed shall continue to be so repealed and shall be deemed abrogated.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

Fanwowod B. & E. Co. held its regular monthly meeting last night in the company's rooms. Besides the regular routine business arrangements were completed for the company's dance, which will be held in Excelsior hall Tuesday night of next week, February 8.

A birthday sociable will be held at the Baptist church tonight. A pleasing program has been arranged and a good time is expected. The younger you are the cheaper your admission fee, as one cent per year is the toll demanded.

Fred Clark, who was taken ill with typhoid pneumonia while visit- relatives at Newark, was reported as being somewhat improved yesterday.

The annual dance and reception given last night by the employes of A. E. Force Co., at Truell Hall, was enjoyed by a number from here.

A regular meeting of the Borough Council was held last night in the borough rooms.

CASE FOR JUDGE AND POPE FOR PROSECUTOR?

Bound Brook, Feb. 3.—Although Governor Fort has not yet appointed a successor to County Judge L. H. Schenck and Prosecutor John F. Reger, it leaked out yesterday that Senator Frelinghuysen has recommended for judge Clarence E. Case and for Prosecutor Frederick Pope. This announcement has stirred up all the political wrath that has been lying dormant for the past three years and petitions urging the Governor not to make these appointments are in circulation and will be sent to Trenton before Monday next. Mr. Case is law partner of Alvah A. Clark, one of the principal attorneys for the Public Service Corporation, and his appointment to the judgeship is said to have been urged by Clark, the Democratic leader of the county, whose opinions often prevail in the Republican camp. The farmers throughout the county have petitioned Senator Frelinghuysen to indorse Judge Schenck for another term. Pope was assistant prosecutor under James L. Griggs, whose term of office ended when Mr. Frelinghuysen went to the Senate for the first time.

Griggs was a member of the Thompson faction, and in turning him down Frelinghuysen criticized his administration. Pope has recently allied himself with the Senator's faction of the Republican party. Both Case and Pope are young men neither of whom has practised law for more than ten years.

Victory for Sea Isle City.

Trenton, Feb. 3.—Justice Minturn has filed an opinion in the Supreme Court sustaining a resolution passed by the Common Council of Sea Isle City providing for the erection of a music pavilion on the beach front. The proceedings were attacked by the Sea Isle City Realty Company upon the ground that Council had no authority to cause the erection of the pavilion on a dedicated portion of the beach front between Marine place and the ocean. The court held that this contention was without merit.

E. J. HERLICK WEDDED TO NEW YORK GIRL

Miss Grace E. Predmore, of New York, and who is popular in a large circle of friends at Dunellen and in this city, and Edward J. Herlich, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Adam Herlich, of Dunellen, were united in marriage last evening in New York. The ceremony was performed in the Church of the Holy Communion, Sixth Avenue and West Twwentieth street, New York, at 7 o'clock, the ceremony being performed by the rector, Rev. W. P. Hill.

The bride was attired in a traveling gown of French blue broadcloth. Attending her as bridesmaid was Miss M. Elizabeth Herlich, a sister of the bridegroom. Miss Herlich was attired in a creation of raspberry messaline silk. William F. Herlich, a brother of the bridegroom, was best man.

After the ceremony the bridal couple was tendered a reception at the home of the bride's aunt, Mrs. A. Shaw, on West Eighteenth street. The bride is the daughter of John Predmore, of Barnegat, but for several years she has lived with her aunt.

Mr. and Mrs. Herlich are now enjoying their honeymoon at Old Point Comfort. They will make their home at Dunellen on its completion.

LOVE AFFAIR RESULTS IN KILLING OF RIVAL.

Hoboken, Feb. 3.—An Italian love affair was responsible for the murder Tuesday night of Thomas Scaranzi, aged nineteen, of 256 Spring street, West Hoboken. He was shot through the heart at Palisade avenue and Chestnut street by an Italian bootblack, known to the police as Antonio Cirelio.

Scaranzi and his wife spent the evening at a moving picture show, and as they were about to enter their home on their return, the bootblack came out of a shoe store. The men started to quarrel. Finally both removed their coats apparently to fight, and Mrs. Scaranzi tried unsuccessfully to stop hostilities.

The bootblack suddenly drew a revolver and fired two shots. One bullet took effect, and the murderer fired a third shot as Scaranzi fell. The bootblack escaped.

Mrs. Scaranzi told the police she was unable to tell what the quarrel was about, as she didn't hear what was said. The police learned that Cirello and Scaranzi once ran a small restaurant in West Hoboken and dissolved partnership because Scaranzi married the girl whom Cirello also loved.

At Proctor's.

The Broncho Busters, featuring Miss Adele vonOhl, the expert horsewoman, will be the attraction at Proctor's theatre today and the rest of the week. The scenery of the sketch is in a corral, on the prairies, and the plot contains a story of heart interest. There are eight people and three horses in the act and special scenery is carried. Poole & Lane, expert sharpshooters, will interest the hunting element of the city; H. D. Crosby & Co., will present a riproaring farce, "Back Home," and Catherine Roth, who is an adept on the trombone, will display unusual talent, while the films d'art will be well worth seeing.

VAMPS CELEBRATED 28TH ANNIVERSARY

Humane Engine Company, of Morristown, entertained friends last night in Washington Hall, in that city, the occasion being the twenty-eighth anniversary of the organization of the company. The committee, Second Assistant Chief Engineer Robert Mack, Clarence Hopkins and James Wright, had prepared an interesting program, which was most heartily applauded.

The entertainers included W. Franklin Hartenstine, piano and vocal selections; Malcolm Shackelford, monologues and banjo solos; Miss Olive Crowell, whistling solo; Ernest W. Bogert, magic and the Harrigans, singing and dancing.

After the program supper was served by W. F. Day, and dancing brought to a close a pleasant evening. An orchestra furnished the music for the dancing.

GOVERNOR ASKED TO REINSTATE CAMPBELL.

Trenton, Feb. 3.—Former Attorney-General Robert H. McCarter, representing General Edward A. Campbell, has made application to the Governor to revoke the order under which General Campbell was placed upon the retired list in accordance with the provisions of the Vredenburgh act. The remittitur in General Campbell's case, directing that the order retiring him be set aside, was sent to the Supreme Court last week.

The absence of the Governor has prevented the actual issuing of the order of revocation, but it is expected that this will be done immediately upon his return to the State house. A draft of the order has already been prepared and only awaits the approval of the Executive.

Assistant Attorney-General Nelson B. Gaskill, when asked yesterday regarding a report that an effort would be made to hold up the reinstatement of General Campbell pending the passage of the retirement bill now before the Legislature, said there was no truth whatever in the report and that no such plan had been contemplated.

Mr. Gaskill said he was confident that the unavoidable absence of the Governor was the only thing that had deferred the reinstatement of General Campbell to even this date. The pending measure, also introduced by Mr. Vredenburgh, would require a physical examination on the part of the older officers of the guard.

FIVE-YEAR SENTENCE FOR UNION EVIL-DOER.

Elizabeth, Feb. 3.—In the Union County Court of Special Sessions yesterday Judge Atwater sentenced Charles Eppler, of Elizabeth, to five years in State prison for grand larceny. The prisoner had been previously in the Rahway Reformatory and broke his parole. He was a fugitive from justice and had to be extradited for his last offense.

Emil Meyers, of Rahway, another former inmate of the reformatory, was sentenced to three years in State prison for stealing $220 worth of jewelry in Rahway.

In the case of Walter Brunt, Elizabeth, for assaulting a small boy, sentence was suspended; James Ward, Rahway, assault and battery, fined $25; Michael Genobusky, stealing coal from Jersey Central cars, placed in charge of the probation officer for one year and ordered to pay a fine of $1 a month; Stephen Kerosky, larceny of $56, had been five months in jail, placed in charge of the probation officer for two years; James Marsh, Summit, on charge made by a young woman, held in $500 bail, trial February 10; Arthur Swick, Summit, held in $200 bail on another charge, trial February 10; Joseph Julite and Michael Pasquale, condusting a disorderly house in Elizabeth, pleaded not guilty, bail was filed at $1,000, trial February 11. John Bryan and Peter Wilson, Westfield, pleaded not guilty to assault and battery; bail $200; trial February 10.

GOAT AND MIRROR BAD COMBINATION.

A goat, dog and mirror in a saloon are a bad combination, according to John Kacik, of East Twenty-second street, Bayonne, who had an experience yesterday along that line which will cost him at least fifty dollars. The goat, according to the story Kacik tells, has a pedigree a yard long, and was recommended to him as a mild-tempered animal. Kaick paid $1 for the goat and was well contented with his bargain, that is until yesterday. Now he will give the goat to anyone who wants it and will give $1 besides to the person who will promise to keep the goat for one month.

Kacik named the goat Fauntleroy. Yesterday the goat walked into the saloon, where Kacik's dog has done guard duty for several years. Fauntleroy ate a bar towel. The dog growled. Then Fauntleroy devoured several newspapers. The dog resented and chased the goat from behind the bar. Round and round the barroom the animals ran, the goat keeping several feet in the lead. Chairs and table were overturned. Patrons made hasty exits. With a bound the goat landed on top of the bar. Seeing his reflection in the mirror Fauntleroy gave a mighty bound and crashed into the mirror, smashing it.

Kacik rushed into the saloon. It was fifteen minutes before he ejected the goat and not until Fauntleroy had butted him a score of times. Kacik estimated his loss at $50.

U. of P. Gets $100,000.

Philadelphia, Feb. 3.—Announcement is made by the trustees of the University of Pennsylvania that a gift of $100,000 has been received for a chair in the medical department of the institution. Further particulars of the gift will be announced on "University Day," February 22.

"I'LL SLAP YOUR FACE!" REPLY TO "HANDS UP!"

"A girl like that could lick a whole roomful of boys like you, gun or no gun," said Recorder McGovern in Hoboken Monday, addressing Hugo Wachendorf, seventeen years old, of No. 500 Grand street, who had been arrested charged with threatening with a revolver Agnes Keyle, sixteen years old, of No. 721 Monroe street.

Miss Keyle, who looks as if she could take care of herself in an emergency, told the Recorder that she was on her way home last Sunday evening when Wachendorf stopped her and, presenting a revolver told her to throw up her hands.

"I wasn't at all frightened," she said, and I said to him, 'You put that away or I'll slap your face.'"

Policeman Romano said he saw the glint of the revolver from across the street and arrested the boy. Miss Keyle said she did not think Wachendorf meant any harm, but was only trying to scare her.

The boy protested that it was all a joke and that the revolver was not loaded. After expressing his appreciation of Miss Keyle's prowess the Court told Wachendorf not to play any more such jokes and let him go.

BELCHER'S VICTIMS RECEIVE A DIVIDEND.

After a period covering five years the affairs of William H. Belcher, who absconded while Mayor of Paterson and who is is now serving a term of twelve years in the State prison, have been adjusted and a total dividend of eight per cent has been paid to creditors.

Mayor Belcher left Paterson when it was discovered that he had embezzled money of the Manchester Building and Loan Association, of which he was counsel and president. The amount involved was $20,000.

Disclosures following the Mayor's disappearance showed that he had embezzled from estates, corporations and individuals while acting as counsel more than $100,000, the largest amount, excepting the Manchester Buiding Association, being taken from the estate of the late Representative Stewart.

The dividend paid to those victimized was obtained from the sales of property owned by the Mayor, including the old General Washington headquarters at Lower Preakness and other property in the rural districts where the Mayor lived at different times during the year.

SOMERSET CATTLE BREEDERS WILL HEAR AN ADDRESS.

Somerville, N. J., Feb. 3.—Charles W. Wood, of Worcester, Mass., president of the Holstein-Friesian Association of America, is expected to make an address here on Saturday morning, February 5, the occasion being the first annual meeting of the New Jersey Holstein-Friesian Breeders' Association. The meeting will be held in the courthouse. There will be morning and evening sessions, devoted chiefly to discussion.

Mr. Wood is the author of several works on the subject of Holstein-Friesian cattle and allied matters.

Recovers Money from Former Wife.

Jersey City, Feb. 3.—George Hein, a baker, brought suit against his former wife, Mrs. Margaret Wendtland, in the Hoboken District Court yesterday to recover $500 which he said he had lent her at various times since they were divorced in December, 1908. Mrs. Wendtland did not appear at the trial, although she was represented by counsel, and Judge Fred J. Stuhr gave judgment for the full amount.

"The House Opposite."

A new mystery story in the New York Sunday World's detective series will be given with The Sunday World of February 13. This story will be in separate booklet form and is given free with The Sunday World. It has been preceded by Anna Katharine Green's "House of the Whispering Pines" and "Leavenworth Case." "The House Opposite" is said to be the best of all mystery stories. Get it with The Sunday World.

Snake Didn't Dismay Women.

Phillipsburg, Feb. 3.—A strange looking snake that squirmed out of a car of fruit that came from the South was killed by two Phillipsburg women on Brainerd street Tuesday. Chilled by cold it was hardly able to crawl when sighted by the women. The reptile was thirty inches long, had a dark colored back and white bald head and was covered with scars. When attacked it hissed and showed fight.

No Wonder.

"That man Wigglesworth is always howling about the street car service. Isn't that his voice I hear up in front?"

"Yes. And he's hotter than ever."

"Why?"

"Somebody pushed him on the car stove."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

On a charge of receiving stolen goods, Pasquale Romano, of 1026 Segal street, was held in $500 bail in the Camden police court Tuesday. Several boys testified that they sold Romano weights stolen from safety gates of the Pennsylvania Railroad. The complaint was made by Detective Harry Curtis, of the railroad company. The boys weer held on their own recognizance to appear when wanted at court.

DISAPPROVES OF THE HINTER

Remarks of Young Business Woman Will Find an Echo in the Breasts of Many.

"If there is one thing I hate," said the determined young business woman as she sat down to lunch, "it's the hinter. If some one wants to borrow an umbrella or some money from you, let her say so right out, not come shambling into your office, take away all your valuable time beating around the bush and dropping fool hints on the way. I won't take a hint. I'm not dense, but I want to discourage the habit. I think it shows cowardice.

"Take the man who wants to come to see you.' Why can't he say: 'May I call?' No, he hasn't the courage of his convictions, but he has to hem and haw, look sheepish and hint for dear life. I won't have a man like that in my house. Same thing with girls. Don't you hate the kind that suggests to a man that a taxi is so comfortable, and she does loathe the street cars, or the one who asks him if he's seen the lovely display at Huyler's or the 'cute' little boxes they send with Thorley's flowers. It would be safer for her if she kept off the subject, for the chief fun in doing things lies in planning them, and nothing is so maddening as to have others make suggestions. The hinter only makes herself unpopular, and the sooner she knows it the better. Keep quiet or say right out what you want.

"Now, don't hint that you'd like an oyster cocktail, because you won't get one if you do. Sing out like a little woman—have one? Good!"

LAKE COMO DREAM OF BEAUTY

English Writer's Tribute to Sheet of Water That Is the Delight of Artists.

The first thing you say as you set sail on Lake Como is: "Now I know where all the lovely drop scenes come from." It is an impish sort of satisfaction to confess, perhaps, and, in so far as the notion is theatrical, it does Como an injustice, says a writer in the Pall Mall Gazette. Like our own Windemere, Como is natural to a fault. That is to say, she has the defects of her picturesqueness. She is the most ladylike of the North Italian lakes. Her cinture of hills are gentler in their slope, her depths of shadow more velvety in tone, and her waters have a gayer surface than have her rivals and neighbors, Garda and Maggiore. But if Como is a child of nature, it is in a way entirely her own. She seems to have been fashioned in a holiday mood, as if, after making sterner things, nature had vowed, like Gainsborough with his landscapes, that this time she would work to please herself. Probably she said: "Here's something for the artists, bless 'em!" the result in the long run being the sort of canvas we saw at the last academy over the unexpected name of David Murray. There you have Como in a sober mood—that is to say, without the flood of sunshine that invests her like a robe. You get the blue haze of the hills, the bluer spread of waters, and a group of those hazy coracles that skim her surface like a ladybird upon a leaf. But who shall paint a Como sky?

A Professor Goes Wrong.

A college professor lately said that no new pleasure had been discovered in modern days. Is not the reading of the morning paper a pleasure they did not have in Greece and Rome? Is not the knowledge that we are not in ignorance of any important event throughout the world for the last 24 hours a pleasure as well as a gain? Is it no pleasure to pass comfortably and within a short time from Europe to America and from New York to San Francisco? Is there no gain and gratification in the fact that the uttermost ends of civilization are brought under observation within the limits of a summer's holiday with little risk of life and limbs? Is it nothing that even the man of one language can now command the profit of all the literature of all times and of all peoples? Shall not that professor revise his language?

Good English Words.

We read the following sentence in a letter given in evidence recently in a murder trial: "I gave him a home and done the best I could toward learning him the English language, as we are English speaking people." There were some who laughed when this sentence was read aloud. Yet the sentence is a brave, a sturdy one. "I done" smacks of the soil. "I did" has less energy. "I have done" is epic. "To learn a person," was for years, beginning with 1300, good English. Caxton, Coverdale, Bunyan, Fuller, Shakespeare, De Foe, Richardson used "learn" for "teach." Nor did William Morris in "Sigurd" refrain from writing: "Thou hast learned me all my skill."

Undue Familiarity.

"Did you strike this old man?" the coroner asked English.

"Certainly I did," English replied. "He called my wife bad names."

"Did he know her?" the coroner inquired.

"No," said English. "That's just it. If he had known her he might have called her names."—Testimony at a Coroner's Inquest in England.

Useful Indeed.

"Of all the useless cads, that Jonesly is the limit!"

"Oh, I don't know; he always has a match about him."

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning Feb. 6, 1910.

Twenty-eight years ago on last Wednesday, Feb. 2, the first Christian Endeavor society was organized at Williston Congregational church of Portland, Me., by the then pastor, the Rev. Dr. Francis S. Clark. Its rapid growth and worldwide influence and its continued stability in spite of many false prophecies to the contrary form one of the most remarkable events in the history of the Christian church. In the church and "for Christ and the church" it met a need that no period of the Christian centuries had been able to meet—namely, the interesting of the young people in the church. The church and the world owe a debt to the movement started by Dr. Clark, and it is a matter of earnest congratulation and thanksgiving to God that, in the years since this small beginning has become a great movement, interdenominational and worldwide, Dr. Clark's life has been graciously spared and that today he still stands at its head and after all these years is still permitted, under God, to direct this great organization with the same masterly skill that he has always displayed in his relation to this child of his young manhood now grown to gigantic proportions. As model Endeavorers let us fervently pray on this anniversary occasion that many such years may still be before him and his long and invaluable associate in this great work, Mr. William Shaw.

A great movement needs great and masterful leaders, and Christian Endeavor has always had them. But a great movement also needs a great rank and file. Generals alone never won a battle. They plan them and direct them, but success or failure depends to an incalculable extent upon the men behind the guns. Napoleon was a military genius unequaled perhaps in all history, but without the vast armies of soldiers behind him, who in their devotion were ready to die for him, he never would have won a battle and would have died an unknown Corsican. The Christian Endeavor movement has been and is what it is today as much because of its followers as because of its leaders. These followers, therefore, well deserve consideration for one anniversary, and from a practical standpoint what better idea could have been suggested than one to inspire them to become model Christian Endeavorers?

In a sentence it may be said that the model Christian Endeavorer is a Christlike Christian Endeavorer. No Christian can be an example, a pattern, a model, only in so far as he is like Christ. To the Corinthians (I Cor. ii, 1) Paul wrote, "Be ye followers of me, even as I also am of Christ," or, in other words, "Follow me to the extent that I follow Christ." This is also the thought of Christ's parable of "the vine and the branches." He is the vine, and we are the branches. And only as we abide in Him and He in us can we bring forth good fruit or live a life that is worthy of imitation by any one else.

Filled with the spirit of Christ, the Christian Endeavorer will live a consistent Christian life, be true to his pledge, loyal to his church and perform faithfully the duties and obligations assigned to him. Only such an Endeavorer can be a model in the real sense. The others are only models in the sense that they are "a poor imitation of the real thing." On this Christian Endeavor anniversary, which is also our consecration service, let us consecrate ourselves as never before to an inward life full of Christ and an outward life that will lead us as Endeavorers to perform faithfully all the obligations that we have taken upon ourselves in becoming members of the Christian Endeavor society. The results will be of inestimable value to ourselves and to the cause which we represent.

On each Christian Endeavor anniversary we should as model Endeavorers remember the "memorial fund," which was inaugurated at the Baltimore convention on the twenty-fifth anniversary of the Christian Endeavor movement. The writer of these articles in his state convention at Baltimore conscientiously opposed the pledging of the state union definitely to attempt to raise an enormous amount of money for the purpose suggested, and in this one union it was voted down. But he does not oppose the movement itself as a purely voluntary effort to erect a suitable and sufficiently attractive office building in Boston, so as to perpetuate the international headquarters and to commemorate Christian Endeavor. This is now the openly declared purpose of the officers of the society. To such a movement all Endeavorers if possible should respond, and what better time could be selected to make a special effort to do something toward this fund than upon an anniversary occasion? One effort and one offering could at least be given as a token of thanksgiving for the blessings that Christian Endeavor has brought to us.

BIBLE READINGS.

I Sam. iii, 1-10; Dan. i, 8-17; Luke ii, 41-52; iv, 1-13; Matt. v, 13-16; I Cor. xi, 1; Eph. v, 1, 2; Gal. v, 22-26; Heb. xiii, 1, 2; Jas. i, 26, 27.

In the Heart of South Africa.

In South Africa Christian Endeavor among the Dutch speaking population is very strong. There are only three societies outside the Dutch union, and of these three the Bloemfontein Baptist Endeavorers are the only English speaking group. They number twenty-six all told and for the past year have been supporting a native evangelist in Pondoland, who sends them regular reports of the work.

THE FOURTH ESTATE

Novelized by
FREDERICK R. TOOMBS.

From the great play of the same name by Joseph Medill Patterson and Harriet Ford. Copyright, 1909, by Joseph Medill Patterson and Harriet Ford.

"Well, this is getting to be a pretty serious affair. We can't be too sure about our facts.

"Mr. Nolan, Judge Bartelmy is not only a dishonest judge, but he seems to have a destructive influence on every one near him. He's corrupt and corrupting, not only in his public but in his private life.

"Wasn't—wasn't it his daughter that you were engaged to?"

"Yes, it was, and he's using her just as he did her mother before her."

"You amaze me. What do you mean?"

Brand took a deep breath.

"Why, he surrounded her mother with machine politicians and shady financiers and crooked lawyers. He sent her to the state capital when he wanted to be senator, but it was impossible; to Washington when he wanted to be minister to France, and she failed, and again when he wanted to be judge, and she succeeded, and when she found out that he was using his judicial office to steal and that she had only been a lobbyist for his rotten schemes"—

"Well?"

"Well, it killed her, Mr. Nolan, and now he's using his daughter in the same way. He's filling his house with corporation jackals like Dupuy. He sends her here to muzzle you by working on your wife and daughter. He hates me, but he would let her marry me to have his enemy in the family and make him silent."

"Why don't you go to the girl and tell her?" suggested the newspaper owner.

"About her mother and why she died?"

"Well, perhaps not. But I hope you won't follow the Bartelmy story any further. I'll be just as well pleased."

"I've got to follow it, Mr. Nolan. I can't stop," ejaculated Brand. "I've got the goods on him now. I've got a story that will drive him off the bench when we print it."

"What?" half rising.

"True; every word of it." Brand paced nervously across the room.

"For God's sake, Wheeler, don't go off at half cock!" cried Nolan.

"Half cock! Why, I tell you I've got the facts. I've been working on it for months."

"Now, listen to me. You're a young man. In spite of what you say about him I know that in his public life he's mighty well thought of by some of the most prominent men in this city, and"—weakly—"well, if they believe in him I don't—see—why"—

"Don't go off at half cock."

"Will nothing convince you?" excitedly. "If he should offer me a bribe to kill this story would you acknowledge then that he's a crook?"

"Why, yes, of course I would."

"Will you let me print that story in my own way and promise not to interfere?"

"Yes. But the girl," Nolan reminded him—"how do you think she'll feel if you print that story?"

But Brand was not to be swerved from his purpose.

"It can't be helped. I've got to go on. Somehow you know the thought comes to me that perhaps it all may turn out for the best."

"Well, I hope so," commented the newspaper owner, "but, man alive, this story you"—

He was forced to cease abruptly, for Judge Bartelmy and Ed Dupuy entered the drawing room and drew near.

CHAPTER VIII.

THE abruptness with which Brand separated from Nolan as they appeared aroused the suspicions of both the judge and his lobbyist satellite. However, they little imagined the pronounced seriousness of the conversation they had interrupted. In the mind of each ran the thought that the Advance's proprietor and his editor had been discussing the proposal to elect Nolan to the Oak Door club. Even a failure in this laudable venture they would have considered a serious setback, but probably had they an intimation regarding the story Brand wanted to write and the effort that was to be made to detect the judge in offering a money bribe they would have exhibited less of the easy assurance that marked their reentrance into the drawing room.

"Mr. Nolan, I'm afraid I must be going," said Bartelmy. "I hope to see you at my house soon, and you, too, Wheeler."

Nolan rose from his chair.

"Judge, can you spare me a few moments?" put in Brand resolutely.

The judge gave a look of surprise.

"Certainly, my boy; certainly. Will you excuse me?" turning to Nolan.

Nolan, surprised at the readiness of Brand to begin on the plan to entrap Bartelmy, readily assented and proceeded into the library with Dupuy.

"Well, Wheeler, what can I do for you?" asked Judith's father.

The young man stepped close to the other and faced him squarely.

"Judge, how about your latest decision in the Lansing Iron case today?" he asked.

Bartelmy started back in surprise.

"It was in accordance with the statutes and the constitution," he finally said.

"The supreme court of the United States was at variance with you in a similar case," advised Brand.

"Sir," indignantly, "I decline to discuss out of court questions relating to my conduct on the bench."

The judge moved as though to go.

"You weren't so particular this morning."

Bartelmy began to lose his confident, easy pose.

"I fail to comprehend you," he answered.

"Early this morning, between 1 o'clock and 3," went on the unrelenting editor.

The judge turned his head to one side and tugged nervously at his gray beard.

"A reporter for the Advance saw you come out of your house at four minutes to 1 and walk to a house on Washington avenue that belongs to the attorney for the Lansing Iron corporation."

Bartelmy turned his back on Brand, a furtive look coming into his eyes as he did so.

"You knocked at the servants' door, judge," continued the editor. "This man admitted you. One hour and fifty-seven minutes later you left that house by the same door and returned home rapidly on foot. You kept your coat collar turned up, and, contrary to your usual custom, you wore a slouched hat pulled down over your eyes. Half an hour later Dupuy came out of the same house. Ten hours later you handed down your decision reversing on a technicality the judgment of the lower court in the Lansing Iron case and freezing out the small stockholders in favor of the insiders, as usual. Those, Judge Bartelmy, are my facts!"

Bartelmy made a desperate effort to retain his self control and to command his ability to think clearly and effectively in this dire emergency. At last he spoke after minutely scrutinizing the accusing figure of Brand before him.

"It's easily explained, Mr. Brand," he said in honeyed tones. "It's a lie; that is all it is. Your reporter lied."

"I was the reporter," exclaimed the accuser in a supremely contemptuous manner, and as he spoke he wondered and marveled that such a man as the betrayer, Bartelmy, could be the father of such a girl as Judith—Judith, whom he was even now, he was convinced, putting away from his arms and his love for all time.

The false judge paled. His mouth became parched. Had he not leaned against a chair for support it is likely that his knees would not have retained enough strength to hold him up. The jig was up. Plainly the end was in sight. Indeed, it had already arrived unless—unless— Yes, there was one possible way out—if Brand would listen to the proposal. Listen? Every man had his price. Dupuy had told him so. He knew it anyway, and Brand was poor. He was ambitious too. Ah, reasoned the false judge, that is a dangerous combination—poverty and ambition. Few could overcome it honestly; few ever had, ever would. And I am rich—

"I was the reporter, Judge Bartelmy."

"Well, what do you propose to do?" he asked of Brand, putting it up to the other man to lead the conversation at this point, just as a clever tactician should.

"That depends," answered Brand doubtfully, a trifle weakly, sinking thoughtfully into a chair beside a table.

Bartelmy detected at once the note of doubt and weakness in Brand's reply and questioned to himself what it might portend.

"On what?" asked the judge carefully, trying to analyze the mental processes of his opponent, who stared at him across the table.

Brand spoke deliberately, in slow voice.

"On whether you're willing to meet me halfway."

Bartelmy's hopes immediately surged high. Ha, as plain a bid for a price as he had ever heard, and he had heard them before. He gazed, reassured, at the young man's earnest face. Ha, how skillful he was, this young Brand! How he had deceived every one! Yes, he was just like some of the other reformers the judge had met—just like some of his political friends who started to clean up certain conditions, only to be retained to let them exist as they were. But Brand was the cleverest one of the lot by far, and probably he was to divide the proceeds of this bribe with Nolan. Oh, they were a cunning pair! Had even fooled Dupuy, who thought them dangerous. And what a son-in-law Brand would make! Yes, he could have Judith; he was worthy to possess the reigning beauty of a great city. So argued to himself the false judge, and he said:

"Of course I am willing to meet you halfway, but it all depends on whether we understand each other."

"Your decision was doubtless of some value to you, and if I am willing to keep silent about its antecedent circumstances then"— Brand looked the judge in the eye expectantly.

Bartelmy felt relieved. He felicitated himself on the fact that his judgment had been correct.

"Yes; you"— He halted.

"Why"— Brand paused.

"Well?" queried the judge irritatedly

"There you are," responded Brand simply, his eyes meeting those of the jurist.

Bartelmy glanced cautiously at the editor, seeking for signs of deception, of a trap, but he found them not.

"Mr. Brand, what do you want?" he asked sharply.

"What's it worth to you?"

"I would prefer you to set the figure."

"No."

"How about $10,000?" asked the judge.

"Yes," agreed Brand, rising—"in cash tonight."

"Rather short notice for such a sum," protestingly. "Where shall I see you?"

"At my office."

"Your office—the Advance! No, no. I prefer you to come to my chambers about noon tomorrow. We shall be quite private there."

"I can't wait that long for it, judge. I've got to have it tonight."

"Oh, is it something of that sort? Well, then, come to my house after dinner."

"But I've got to be at my office," insisted the editor.

"I hardly like to go there, Mr. Brand."

"That's up to you, judge. But if you don't come the story goes to press tonight. Well?" with a rising inflection.

"I"—

Judith Bartelmy entered.

"Will you come now, papa?" she asked.

"Just a moment, my dear. I intended to ask Dupuy to dine with us."

"Oh, can't you take him to the club?" she pouted.

"That wouldn't be convenient, my dear. You know we're going to the opera." He stepped back toward the library. "Mr. Brand, I'll see you again before you leave."

A moment of embarrassed silence.

There was a moment's embarrassed silence between Judith and Wheeler Brand as the judge disappeared.

"How do you do, Mr. Brand?" she finally asked.

"How do you do, Miss Bartelmy?" His manner was awkward and strain ed.

"I haven't seen you all winter." She placed her hands on the back of a chair near a settee.

"No; I haven't been anywhere. I've been kept pretty close at work." He paused. "Won't you sit down?"

She moved to the left and occupied the settee. After a few moments of silence she said:

"It's strange I haven't seen you all winter. I suppose it will be another hundred years before I see you again."

Brand looked intently at her.

"It won't be if you wish to see me any sooner, Judith," and, thus speaking, he leaned over the back of the settee toward the girl he loved.

"Why, of course I wish—er— You were having a talk with father when I came in, weren't you?"

"Yes," rising and stepping back from her.

"Wheeler, come here," the girl asked wistfully. "I want to talk to you." He moved to a chair close by her side. "Aren't you beginning to realize that you may have been a bit headstrong?" she said tenderly, looking into his eyes. "I'm afraid you are getting in very deep. Your friends, most of them, have been patient with you so far, but there's a limit, you know, and you'll lose them."

"I'm sorry."

"Oh, Wheeler"—she was intensely in earnest—"is it worth while to let them go just for an idea?"

"A man must act according to his light, Judith."

"And a woman according to hers. Perhaps you don't realize it, but that's what I've been trying to do. You know I've been alone a great deal of my life. I've had more responsibility than most girls. I've had to decide things for myself and the younger ones and do the best I could for all of us."

"Yes, I know that. There's nobody like you, Judith."

"I'm glad if you think that."

"I'll always think that, Judith," he exclaimed passionately. "And I'll always feel all that I've lost."

"Haven't you brought it on yourself?" she asked quickly.

Brand seized both her hands, and in a tempest of emotion, long suppressed, he rose and bent over her.

"Oh, dearest, can't we have this one moment"—he was aroused to a pitch she had never seen him reach before—"even if we never have another, without thinking of anything except—except each other?" He seated himself close to her.

"Wheeler, I've a little story I want to tell you," she said fondly, yet sadly. She spoke as one pleading in a vital cause. "Once upon a time there was a girl, and she rather liked a somewhat gloomy young man. But one night something happened and then—they didn't speak for a long time—oh, a very long time. But there were other young men, and one of them has asked to call tomorrow afternoon at 5 o'clock. He was very serious about it. You see, the girl has been waiting so long that she's beginning to be afraid—afraid that—er— Oh, Wheeler, why won't you drop it all? It's not too late!"

She rose to her feet, still with her hands in his, and in another moment he stood beside her. He threw both his arms around her and held her close to his bosom.

"Judith," he whispered passionately to her.

"Why don't you call tomorrow at 4?" was her response.

TO BE CONTINUED.

"HOW ABOUT $10,000?" ASKED THE JUDGE.

Not the Place for It.

He was writing the libretto for a comic opera. Suddenly he smiled.

He had stumbled on a brand-new joke.

He was a student of jokes, a collector, a reviser, an adapter, a faddist. He subjected the joke to every known test.

Finally he gave it the third degree.

There was no longer any doubt of its originality.

He read his manuscript very carefully, and, sighing heavily, stared at the joke.

STAR INDOOR TEAM WANTS TO PLAY HERE

Jack McGrath, manager of the Greater New York Indoor baseball team, which has in its lineup Christy Mathewson, the star pitcher of the New York Giants, and Hal Chase, the peerless first baseman of the Highlanders, is desirous of bringing his star combination to this city and engage in a contest with the Plainfield baseball team.

McGrath made the proposition to the sporting editor of The Daily Press, and the matter has been referred to Manager Ernest Dorflinger for attention. McGrath will be remembered by local fans as playing in this city a number of times on the All Nationals and other semi-professional teams from the metropolis.

Mr. Dorflinger entertains an idea that such a contest can be played here and that Saengerbund Hall is the ideal hall for the game. The opportunity to see Mathewson and Chase in baseball togs on the same team would no doubt prove a big magnet for local fans, and if arrangements can be made the game will be held.

MARRIED MEN'S TEAM DOWN THE BACHELORS

In a series of four games on Campbell's alleys last night between the married men's and single men's team of Neuman Brother's grocery, the benedicts captured three of the contests. Two of the contests were real spasms of excitement. The second resulted in a tie 572 to 572, but in the roll-off the single men won. The third game was also a battle royal the benedicts just managing to squeeze through by a margin of two pins. The scores:

WESTFIELD HIGH BEATEN BY PLAINFIELD HIGH.

The P. H. S. basketball team defeated the Westfield High School team at Westfield, yesterday afternoon by a score of 34 to 15, in a fast game. Both teams played a good game. Clark was the star man for P. H. S., followed by Lidgate, while Elliot and Keeler did the best work for Westfield. In the first half half the score stood 15 to 8. The Plainfield boys did their best playing in the last part of the last half. The lineup:

P. H. S.—Forwards, Clark, Woodhull; centre, Lidgate; guards, Manley, Doane and Vail.

MORE PRIZES WON BY A. G. HOOLEY'S DOGS.

At the exhibition of dogs held by the Cleveland Fanciers club at Cleveland, Ohio, which closed Saturday, thedogs of the Meadowview Kennel, owned by Abraham G. Hooley, were again winners. Meadowview Blue Prince won first in the open class, first winners, the gold special and the fancier's cup for best English setter in the show.

Meadowview Lady Mallwyd also won reserve winners for bitches. Cleveland has always been noted for having a large number of high-class sporting dogs, which makes the winning of the Meadowview Kennels the more enviable.

Planning a Dance.

The Plainfield baseball club is planning to conduct a dance in April. John Martin is chairman of the committee in charge. Arrangements will be completed at the meeting of the club next Tuesday night.

Friends Association Meeting.

The Young Friends' Association will gather at the meeting house on Friday evening to discuss the works of Edgar Allan Poe and also of Child Labor.

HIS COUNSEL EXPECTS JACOBSON'S ACQUITTAL

Samuel Schleimer, retained by members of Company C, Second Regiment, N. G. N. J., at Elizabeth, to defend Walter Jacobson, of that city, the member of the company who will be placed on trial next Monday on a charge of murdering his wife, said yesterday that he was confident his client will be acquitted. The shooting, Mr. Schleimer said, was purely accidental. He declared he would produce evidence to show that a motive for the crime was not only improbable under the circumstances, but impossible.

Members of Company C are also confident of Jacobson's acquittal. They have been working nearly every night for the past two weeks raising funds to defray the expenses of the trial. Letters asking for funds have been sent to all members and ex-members of the company.

Mr. Schleimer's statement was the first that he has made since becoming Jacobson's attorney. The trial promises to be interesting. It is understood that the State will endeavor to prove a motive for the crime charged and that evidence that has heretofore been suppressed will be introduced. Considerable attention will undoubtedly be paid during the trial of the Springfield rifle which Jacobson used in shooting his wife. Jacobson claims that the gun was discharged by him when he thought the piece was locked.

Both the State and the defense will probably introduce experts to testify as to the workings of the rifles. Evidence of the bullet the defendant placed in his gun and which caused the death of his wife will play important part in the State's case. The bullet, it is believed, has not been found, as it passed from the woman's body out of the house through a window.

The nature of the wound caused by the bullet is said to cause considerable perplexity among experts. Where the bullet entered the shoulder it tore a large hole. The ammunition used by the guard in the rifles, it is believed, would not be apt to make a wound of that character. This brings up the question of what style bullet was used and where it was obtained.

IDENTIFIED WRONG MAN SO A JURY DECIDES

A jury in the Somerset court at Somerville yesterday decided that Miss Mira Voghte, a pretty typewriter, who is employed in New York city and resides with her parents on a farm near Belle Mead, was mistaken in her identity of Harry Christensen, the village blacksmith, as the man who held her up on the highway as she was riding home from the railroad station to her home on the night of September 30. It was a bright moonlight night and Miss Voghte, who knows Christensen well, testified that she was positive that he was the man who had dragged her from her bicycle and knocked her down.

When he had her by the throat she drew one of the large hatpins out of her picture hat and used it with such good effect that her assailant loosened his hold upon her throat and fled as she screamed for help.

Christensen was arrested the following day on complaint of Miss Voghte. He protested his innocence, and when examined by Dr. Charles F. Kolstead in the county jail there were no wounds on him inflicted by a hatpin.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

Richard Carle will gambol once more as Leander Lamb, the henpecked hero of "Mary's Lamb," when he returns to the Plainfield theatre, Saturday, matinee and night. Since he was last seen here in this part, Mr. Carle has played it from coast to coast, and the merry musical play is now in its third season of uninterrupted success. Mr. Carle's principals are largely the same as they were last season, Rita Stanwood, Marion Dean, Adele Rafter, Julia Ralph, Violet Seaton, Sylvain Langlois, George Bogues, Abbott Adams, Joseph Coffman and others. The "Mary's Lamb" chorus is as large, active and merry as ever, there being hosts of Dutch girls, cow girls, models, grisettes, shadowgraph girls, soldier girls, athletic girls and others, attired in picturesque and attractive gowns.

SALE OF LIQUOR TO DRUNKARDS MUST STOP

Drastic temperance legislation featured the meeting of the Piscataway Township Committee at New Market on Tuesday, and if the mandate of the committeeman is enforced drunkards residing in that territory will not in the future be able to purchase liquor. The committee was unanimous in declaring that the practise must stop and in the future if township liquor dealers fail to comply with the law efforts will be made by the committee to have their licenses revoked.

The course taken by the committee is due to suggestions made to the committeeman several months ago by the Rev. George H. Gardner, pastor of the First Baptist church at New Market. Mr. Gardner appeared before the committee and told the members in plain language that the law was being violated in selling liquor to drunkards.

Applications from the New York and New Jersey Telephone Company and from the Bound Brook Telephone Company to lay wires by an underground system were received and laid on the table.

John Hummer was re-appointed overseer of the Piscataway Industrial Farm for another year.

BROWN VICTIM OF A TRAGIC ACCIDENT

Local bowlers will be shocked to learn of the tragic death of William Brown, of Somerville, which occurred this morning at the latter place. Brown, who is employed as a brakeman on the Jersey Central, had his two legs cut off by being crushed between two cars. He was taken to Somerville hospital where he died.

Brown was a familiar figure on Campbell's bowling alleys during the past two seasons. He was a member of the Raritan bowling team in the Fraternal League. He also rolled with the Watchungs, of this city, in the New Jersey National tourney which is being conducted on the Tuxedo alleys at Newark.

On Monday night he was at Campbell's alleys for the last time. On this night he and Charley Mathews entered as a team in the two-man competition which will be inaugurated on February 15.

Alex. MacCauley's Narrow Escape.

Alexander MacCauley, of Bartle avenue, Scotch Plains, had a narrow escape from serious injury yesterday while working in the attic of a house at Westfield. He made a misstep and dropped through the chimney hole in the attic, falling to the cellar. He was hurried to his home and Dr. F. W. Westcott was summoned. An examination showed that no bones were broken, although the man was considerably bruised. He will be detained at home sometime.

Serious Charge Preferred.

Amos Stites, proprietor of a pool parlor at 19 Somerset street, was arraigned this afternoon before City Judge William N. Runyon on a serious charge preferred by the mother of Florence Madden, a fifteen year old girl. The crime is alleged to have been committed while the Madden child was assisting in the nursing of Mrs. Stites, who was ill in bed.

Williams and Brown Improved.

Jefferson Williams, the employe of the Pond Machine Tool Company, who was taken to the hospital Monday night, in a semi-conscious condition, recovered sufficiently to return home today. Clifford Brown, of Elizabeth, who was held up near Fanwood, and assaulted, was reported today as being greatly improved.

TRUST HOLDS MILLIONS OF EGGS IN STORAGE

Prosecutor of the Pleas Pierre P. Garven, of Hudson county, who created a sensation by starting to investigate high price of beef and other foodstuffs, and who examined before the Hudson County Grand Jury representatives of two big Jersey City cold storage plants, was in conference yesterday afternoon with Supreme Court Justice Francis J Swayze. The purpose of this conference was to formulate a plan of action under the laws of the State, to obtain information concerning the manner in which cold storage plants in Jersey City and Hudson county are operated, and to ascertain the amount of foodstuffs kept in storage in each one and how long beef, eggs, poultry, etc., have been kept in them before being placed on the market for sale. Justice Swayze is backing the prosecutor.

Several detectives of the prosecutor's office were busy yesterday endeavoring to learn something about the storage of those 36,000,000 eggs in Jersey City to which Prosecutor Garven referred Tuesday.

It leaked out in the prosecutor's office yesterday that a witness called before the Hudson County Grand Jury Tuesday threw light on where these eggs are stored and where 100,000 pounds of poultry are kept in frigid temperature. It is expected that witnesses will be subpoenaed before the Grand Jury on Friday who will tell all about the storage of the eggs and poultry, and that they will produce books to show how long they have been kept.

While it has been said that Prosecutor Garven as aiming to prosecute the cold storage plant operators under a New Jersey statue law, on the ground of conspiracy, it is said that he is working under the proivsions of the common law and of that part of the common law regarding offense against public trade.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

Rev. W. F. Randolph will speak at the Plainfield Rescue Mission meeting in the W. C. T. U. tonight at 8 o'clock. There will be a song service at 7:45 o'clock.

The Young People's Society of the Church of the Heavenly Rest will meet at the parish house tonight to consider several business matters and hear reports from the recent entertainment.

A successful all-day sewing meeting was held at Hope chapel, yesterday, when a considerable amount of sewing was accomplished. Luncheon was served at noon. A business meeting was held in the afternoon, after which tea was served. The attendance was large.

WOMEN AS DOG NURSES.

There is not a year that passes that women do not discover some new profession for themselves. They have already invaded most of the fields which men have hitherto appropriated and now from London comes the news that they are becoming veterinary surgeoons.

There is in that city a hospital for dogs, founded by Mrs. E. Leuty Collins, called the "Canine Nurses' Institute." This is run according to the most approved hospital system, except that it is conducted entirely by women. There are public wards and private wards in the institution, which is largely patronized by the rich. But little waif dogs are not refused, when they are ill, of course, and are permitted to repose comfortably in the public ward.

This is an ideal profession for women who are lovers of animals and who are not strong enough to expend their energies in real hospital nursing.

Inter-State Bridge.

Recommendations for the building of a bridge over the Hudson River at 179 th street, New York, to a point opposite on the New Jersey shore is made by the Interstate Bridge Commission in its report submitted to the New York Legislature yesterday.

Edward Krausse, of Vine street, who is ill with scarlet fever, was taken to Muhlenberg Hospital yesterday for treatment.

MIDDLEBROOK CHAPTER HELD ANNUAL LUNCHEON

The annual luncheon of Camp Middlebrook Chapter, D. A. R., was held in the chapel of the Presbyterian church, Bound Brook, yesterday afternoon, and was a delightful affair. There were about thirty-five guests including Mrs. I. Renwick Glen, Miss Kathryn Glen, Mrs. William E. MacClymont, Mrs. George H. Gains, Mrs. Frank H. Smith, Mrs. Charles H. Dunham, Mrs. Charles LaCass and Mrs. F. A. Waldron, of this city.

The menu was an elaborate one, and a feature was the table decorations, consisting of white sweet peas. The place cards were hand painted, with a picture of the ground-hog. The room was decorated with American and chapter flags, the latter being orange color. The place cards were of the same color.

Mrs. C. W. Thomas, regent of the chapter, was the toastmistress. The program included a sketch of "Old Bound Brook," covering three centuries, prepared and read by Mrs. George Stryker, of Bound Brook; piano solos by Miss Helen Olendorf, of Bound Brook; an amusing sketch, "Membranous Croup and the McWilliamses," by Mrs. F. N. Voorhees, of Bound Brook; a humorous sketch, "The Suffragette," by Mrs. George H. Gains; violin solos, by Miss Sarah Davis, of Bound Brok, and a humorous sketch, "North Pole Discoveries," by Mrs. W. H. Dunham, of Bound Brook. The affair was concluded with the singing of "America."

Mrs. George H. Gains will entertain the chapter at luncheon at her New York home on 149th street, New York, February 15, when an attractive program will be presented.

VENERABLE BISHOP RECEIVES HONORS

The first of a series of religious services marking the thirty-fifth anniversary of Bishop John Scarborough as bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of New Jersey took place yesterday morning in Christ Episcopal church, Trenton, when the bishop, assisted by the Rev. Robert W. Trenbath, rector of the church, celebrated holy communion at the church service of the feast of the purification.

There were about seventy-five members of Christ church parish to take communion, also a number of clergymen of Bishop Scarborough's diocese, who came to honor the venerable head of the church and to partake of the sacrament.

The main service in honor of the bishop's anniversary took place last night at 7:45 o'clock in Christ church, at which time there were exercises in which the rectors of all Episcopal churches of Trenton took part. The sermon was by Dean Baker, of Princeton. There was a special program of music by the combined choirs of Christ and Trinity churches, under the leadership of Sidney F. Stern and Sidney Bourne.

Cormack Caufield Weds.

Cormack Caufield, of West Front street, and Miss Margaret McLoughlin, of East Third street, were married at St. Mary's church yesterday afternoon, Father Hogan, the curate, performing the ceremony. The couple was unattended and the affair was a quiet one. The couple will reside at the groom's home on West Front street.

Mrs. Morris A. Zook, of East Sixth street, has been stopping at St. Paul Minnesota, where her husband has been ill. Mr. Zook is much better.

ON TROLLEY CONDITIONS

Trade Board Committee Report Blames the Municipal Administration.

VERBAL PROMISES SCORED.

Considered a Waste of Time to Confer With P. S .C.—Advises Enforcement of Franchise and Ordinances.

Following is the report made by the Board of Trade's trolley investigation committee at a meeting of that body last night:

"First. That the Public Service Corporation, through Colonel Hines, about October 14, 1907, promised Mayor Charles J. Fisk and certain members of the Council of the city of Plainfield, at the Mayor's office in the presence of witnesses, to place new cars on the local trolley lines of this city.

Second. That the mayor accepted Colonel Hines' verbal agreement to that effect.

"Third. That the Mayor has been unable to get the Public Service Corpofation to install the said new cars.

"Fourth. That the Public Service Corporation repainted the old cars, patched up the gears and put them back on the lines and partially fixed the road beds.

"Fifth. That the people's interests could have been protected had the Mayor and the Council obtained a satisfactory written contract for the installation of the said new cars, on October 14, 1907, when they permitted the Public Service Corporation to double the tracks on East Front street and Watchung avenue.

"Sixth. That this committee met with the Mayor of Plainfield and three councilmen, Messrs. Charles Randolph, Gloak and Tolles, at the Mayor's office on January 11 at 8 p. m. This meeting was the outcome of two letters written to the Mayor by Wiliam Jeffery, chairman of this committee under date repectively, December 31, 1909 and January 7, 1910, copies of which are hereto attached, together with the copy of the letter from Mayor Charles J. Fisk, togethr with a written statement given to this committee by Mr. Fisk at the above mentioned meeting, stating his exact standing in the matter of the trolleys. The Mayor strongly urged the committee to see the Public Service Corporation and tell it plainly "that the people of Plainfield would not stand for a continuance of the trolley nuisance and that if necessary the people would elect a new Mayor and a new Council to enforce the city's rights." The Mayor added that we, as private citizens, representing a civic organization of 250 people, could supply the public sentiment which he thought the Public Service Corporation most dreaded.

"Seventh. This committee believes that it is unwise for it to interview the Public Service Corporation in the premises; that the inability or failure of the city authorities in securing a written agreement has been the main cause of the continuance of the trolley nuisance, and the utter indifference of the Public Service Corporation to the frequent demands of the Mayor to place the new cars on the local lines is the outcome of a verbal agreement.

"Eighth. That this committee recommends the city authorities permit the Public Service Corporation to double track the local line and where streets are too narrow to permit it, to have return lines on other streets, eliminate all unnecessary switches and discontinue the obsolete methods now employed at various points in the city to return the cars; with reference especially to the switch at Somerset and Front streets, and the laying to of cars at the head of Park avenue; all this on equitable terms both to the city and the corporation.

"Ninth. That in the future the city should secure written agreements with the Public Service Corporation, without evincing any desire to gouge or to permit, through acquiescence and lack of practical business judgment, the Corporation to gouge the city.

"Tenth. We believe the present condition of the local trolleys to be intolerable, exasperating and unnecessary, and that it works a great hardship both on the commuters and those about town, and that only a revision of the present understanding between the city and the Public Service Corporation, based upon an up-to-date, business-like agreement, will give the people good trolley service and the Public Service Corporation an opportunity to make money.

"Eleventh. That we think it is the duty of the Board of Trade for Plainfield and North Plainfield to draw the attention of the city authorities to needed improvements and to any condition or situation.

TO TALK ON HIGHWAYS

State Supervisor Robert A. Meeker to Be Chief Massachusetts Speaker.

State Supervisor of Public Roads Robert A. Meeker, of this city, will be the chief speaker before the Massachusetts Highways Association at the City Club in Boston next Thursday, and the fact that the Jersey road boss is to be present is being utilized for getting together the most representative men in the State of Massachusetts for this coming meeting.

Mr. Meeker has been asked to speak on "Advanced Road Construction," and he has consented to give a talk along practical lines in road building, including the cost and maintenance of bituminous roads. This last part of road construction he has been asked to especially enlarge upon, the Massachusetts Highways Association being convinced that New Jersey is even ahead of that great commonwealth in road building and maintenance.

Mr. Meeker is rated as an excellent public speaker, and is a master of the subject on which he has spent many practical years of his life as an engineer.

DRAKE FAKIR ARRESTED

In Toils of P. O. Department for Using the Mails to Defraud.

Syrous M. Drake, another one of the fakirs who are bleeding some too confiding people, was arrested yesterday in New York and taken before U. S. Commissioner Shields, on a charge of using the mails to defraud. Drake claims a residence at Huntersville, Minn., and has been enjoying an income from people in the west and southwest, who are anxious to subscribe to a fund which is to be used to recover some of the money supposed to be awaiting the American heirs of Sir Francis Drake.

The Drake arrested in New York yesterday has been interested in other schemes to get money, according to evidence recently produced the means used being a magazine known as the "Royal Register," whose subscribers had the first chances on anything recovered. But it goes without saying that the chances of recovering from the estate are absolutely nil.

Mrs. Eleanor Dunn, who last year made an exhaustive search of the records in England and who had at her command nformation which none of the previous or subsequent seekers for the wealth have had, is confident that nothing will ever be recovered for the descendants of Sir Francis Drake who live in this country.

In an interview last night Mrs. Dunn said that Syrous M. Drake had been in correspondence with her for some time previous to her departure for England and she had met him in his office, 544 West Forty-second stret, New York, last August. At thatt ime she was not very favorably impressed with the man and his subsequent actions, when he invited her to attend a meeting of the Drake Associatin in New York, which turned out to be a meeting of the supposed heirs of the Anecke-Jans estate, which was supposed to be located in Holland.

Mrs. Dunn said that Syrous Drake was illiterate and was hardly competent to undertake the mission which he pretended to be engineering. She also said that associated with Drake in this scheme was one J. H. Fonda, of West Eleventh street, New York, and a lawyer by the name of Elmer E. Good, whose offices were in Buffalo, N. Y.

Letters which Mrs. Dunn has received from correspondents in Texas would seem to ndicate that Syrous M. Drake had been doing quite a lucrative business in that State. It is believed that only the widest publicity of the facts in the case will prevent the depredations of the confidence men, who are gathering in the shekels from the ignorant and trusting Drakes who are scattered widely over the country.

Dr. Kirk to Speak Here.

Dr. Kirk, of Philadelphia, one of the foremost dentists in this country, will address the Plainfield Dental Society at its next regular meeting and banquet.

MASQUERADE BALL AT THE PARISH HOUSE

A masquarade ball under the auspices of St. Faith's guild was given in the parish house of St. Stephen's church last night and was attended by about seventy-five couples. Many of the costumes were original and unique. Prizes were awarded for the two best costumes and were won by Miss Helen Borrup, as a baby and William Lamberton, as Uncle Sam.

The unmasking at 10:30 caused some merriment as the disguises were were so good that nobody knew who was who. The house rang with laughter when the disclosures took place. Japanese girls flirted with Spanish Dons and Dutch girls and Colonial dames vied with each other in capturing the noble cavaliers of the period of Louis XII.

Dancing continued until midnight to music furnished by Suhr's orchestra and the evening was voted one of the most enjoyable ever held in the parish house.

MISS ANNA L. SPENCER, AGED 78 YEARS, DEAD

Miss Anna Louise Spencer, aged about seventy-eight years, died at Muhlenberg Hospital this morning, following a severe attack of pneumonia and pleurisy with which she was taken several days ago. She resided alone for many years in a house at Seventh street and Park avenue, which was owned by the Spencer estate. Yesterday morning neighbors found the aged woman critically ill and Dr. Norman Probasco was called. He at once had the woman removed to the hospital, but the disease was in such an advanced stage that no hope for her recovery was entertained.

Miss Spencer was one of nine children, her mother being Mrs. Ann Louisa Spencer. She died in 1881 and Miss Spencer was an executrix of the estate. The Spencer estate in Plainfield is valued at about $30,000 and in addition Miss Spencer owned considerable personal property. V. W. Nash, Jr., was attorney for Miss Spencer and the estate as well. There are two children surviving, Thomas Spencer, of Orange, and Charles Spencer, who lives in the West. The former came to Plainfield yesterday to take charge of his sister's affairs.

ANOTHER COUPLE SEEK JUSTICE HAND'S HELP

It cost $14 for Mrs. Cassie Brooks of North Broad street, and William Brokaw, of Newark, to get married at 2:30 o'clock this morning at Justice Hezekiah Hand's altar.

Mrs. Brooks and Mr. Brokaw came here to attend a social function from Somerville yesterday afternoon. They had intentions of returning on the 2:08 a. m. train, but they missed it.

Mr. Brokaw, however, solved the problem of their dilemma, by making inquiries for a clergyman or justice of a peace. "Judge" Hand's address was secured and the couple went to the latter's home on East Fifth street.

Ten minutes after their arrival the couple were united in the bonds of matrimony. The witnesses were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ross, of this city, who reside next door to Justice Hand.

When the ceremony was completed the bridegroom handed Justice Hand a ten dollar bill and also presented Mrs. Ross and Mrs. Hand with two dollar bills.

Dunellen Marriage.

Miss Monica Vodovich and Charles Danick were united in marriage in St. John's church last Saturday morning at a nuptial mass celebrated by Father Dunphy. Miss Mary Danick was the maid of honor and the best man was Michael Sola.

Ladies' Guild Meeting.

The Ladies' Guild of the Netherwood Reformed church held its monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. F. O. Rush on Leland avenue yesterday afternoon. After the transaction of routine business a social hour was enjoyed.

John McElroy Very Ill.

Mayor N. B. Smalley, of the borough, received a communication from the State Hospital at Trenton stating that John McElroy, who was committed to the institution in 1907, was seriously ill of cancer.

JERSEY MAYORS CONFER

Governor Fort Gives Them His Ideas of Municipal Government.

All the Mayors of the various cities, towns and boroughs are in conference in the Assembly Chamber at Trenton today.

The Governor called the meeting to talk on matters relative to municipal government in this State, with especial reference to legislation as to: Tax rate and debt limit, municipal boards or departments with a single head, a State Department of Municipal Accounting, the appointment by the Mayor or other city authority, rather than the electiono of city officials, not necessarily elective and a shorter ballot for municipal elections.

The Mayors of fifty-seven municipalities were present, including Charles J. Fisk, of this city, and Mayor William A. Sandford, of Dunellen.

Mayor Newton B. Smalley, of North Plainfield, sent this dispatch which was read at the meeting:

"Unable to attend your conference of Mayors today, I wish to go on record:

"First, as being opposed to the life tenure of office law.

"Second, opposed to the direct primary law.

"Third, opposed to the general tendency to increase expenses in borough and city affairs as being un-American, unwise and contrary to the people's interests, and

"Fourth, against State interference in municipal affairs."

In calling the conference to order Governor Fort declared that the greatest problems in government are municipal, and said that the question of taxation is one of the most vital for the reason that the towns get practically all their revenue from direst taxation. The total amount of taxes raised for municipal purposes last year, he said, was $22,450,000. He said that the average tax rate this year will probably reach $1.75, the maximum tax rate fixed by law.

Going on Governor Fort said the past municipal government has been rapidly drifting to commission government. Departments with single heads are now being seriously considered by those who are the most thoughtful on these subjects. There should be but a single head in a city or town and that should be the Mayor, and departments should exist with one or more at their head. One is preferable in my opinion, approved by the Mayor, to hold office co-existent with the term of the Mayor and the Mayor should be elected for not less than two years and four years would be preferable. Every official in the municipality except the members of the Council or other legislative body should be appointed by the Mayor with the consent of the Council.

"Non-partisan boards, so-called, which we have in so many cities and towns, composed of say two of the majority and two of the minority party, are quite unsatisfactory, and are usually the most partisan of boards. Dividing the patronage and other things, allowing the two of each party to select their share of the spoils and then all voting divide. There is not a police or fire department in the State under this system that is as good as it would be under a single headed commissioner, with full power and with the department under civil service rules or a tenure of office act with removals only for cause after charges and hearing.

"Make the Mayor not only the chief executive in name, but in fact. Hold him responsible fo everything in an executive in the city or town. We hear much these days about a short ballot. I believe that in our State we have the shortest ballot of any State in the Union. We elect in the State only the Governor and the Legislature, all other State officials are appointive. It is the right system even if it is troublesome to the executive. If he is not willing to assume the responsitility he should not accept the office.

"It would be better if every county official were appointed by some official or board. City Councils and boards of chosen freeholders are too large in the counties, where the act for the smaller board has been adopted they have found much benefit from it. One member of Council from each ward and the member of wards limited by population would be a great improvement in many places. Make your local governments supreme in local affairs. Stop fixing salaries for some local official or the police, or firemen, or other officials at Trenton. Pass general laws for incurring indebtedness by the municipal officers with or without popular vote. Put municipal government where it belongs, in the hands of the people of the city or town and let them be responsible for the kind of government they have."

PLEADS NOT GUILTY TO CRIMINAL LIBEL

William J. Shearer, formerly county superintendent of schools and at one time superintendent of the public schools in Elizabeth, was arraigned before Judge Atwater in the Court of Quarter Sessions, Elizabeth, this morning, charged with criminal libel, growing out of a letter circulated about the city last September and purporting to defame the present superintendent of schools, Richard E. Clement. Mr. Shearer plead not guilty and trial was fixed for February 21. He was released in $1,000 bail, which was furnished by himself in cash.

The letter referred to was signed "H. E. Brew," in which an attempt was made to show that the Hebrew children of Elizabeth were not accorded the same privileges as other children. The Board of Education was charged with graft and there was a vicious attack made on Superintendent Clement. Mr. Shearer is at present engaged in the real estate business in Elizabeth.

DUNELLEN FAIR GETS AN AUSPICIOUS START

The fair and bazar inaugurated last night by the Dunellen Athletic Association in Junior O. U. A. M. hall, in that town, was largely attended and the indications are that the association will net a handsome profit. The purpose of the fair is to secure a fund which will enable the association to place on the diamond a strong ball team next season.

Dancing was one of the principal forms of enjoyment for the throng. The fair will continue tonight and tomorrow night. Tonight a delegation from the Plainfield Baseball club, headed by Manager Ernest Dorflinger will be in attendance.

The committee in charge is composed of William Piddington, Jesse Ayers, Benjamin Dodwell, Corwin Apgar and Clarence Voorhees.

LOST VALUABLE DIAMONDS

Mrs. F. R. Ryan's Gems Worth $3,000 are Taken from Her Home.

Mrs. F. P. Ryan of Orchard street, Cranford, who was a guest at the reception given by Mrs. Sidney S. Schuyler, of Belvidere avenue, Wednesday, has reported the loss of diamonds valued at $3,000. It is her belief that she left them at her home before coming to this city, and that they were stolen in her absence.

In speaking of the matter today, Mrs. Ryan said that a maid she hired two weeks ago through an employment agency, left her employ Wednesday afternoon after she went to the reception. While she does not accuse the servant of theft, the suspicions are strongly against her in Mrs. Ryan's opinion. The firm which insured the gems has detectives working on the case, and Mrs. Ryan has offered a reward of $100 for the return of the diamonds.

Mrs. Ryan left her home at 2 o'clock that day. She took her jewels from her bureau and placed them in a chamois bag, she says, which she meant to take to the reception. She remembers placing the bag on the table and believed at first that she had taken it with her. Later, however, she felt sure that the valuables were left at home.

READY TO BUILD BRIDGE

But Union Freeholders First Want Approaches Filled in at Albert St.

In response to a petition signed by nearly all of the interested property-owners, Freeholder J. Hervey Doane secured the adoption of a resolution at the meeting of the Union County Board of Freeholders yesterday calling for the appointment of a committee to confer with the Somerset County Board for the purpose of building a new bridge over Green brook at Albert street.

The freeholders stand ready, it is believed, to build a bridge at that point, just as soon as the city and borough complete the work of filling in the street up to the point of the proposed structure. Freeholders Doane and Wilbur both favor the improvement, realizing that the people are obliged to cross the brook at West End avenue or go a mile further west to Clinton avenue.

There was a bridge in that vicinity many years ago, but it was destroyed by floods. It is now proposed to erect a concrete structure there.

The sum of $22,000 was appropriated to the hospitals in the county, as follows:

Muhlenberg Hospital, this city, $5,250; Elizabeth General, $8,000; Alexian Brothers, $7,000; Summit Hospital, $2,000; new hospital in Elizabeth, $3,000.

Freeholder Doane also secured the adoption of a resolution providing for the suitable marking of the graves of soldiers of the Revolutionary War, in this county, which is in addition to marking those of Civil War veterans. Gen. Drake has been made an assistant supervisor of this work.

PASTORS' AID GIVE RECEPTION TO REV. AND MRS. HERRING.

Under the auspices of the Pastors' Aid Society of the First Presbyterian church, a reception was given at the church to Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Charles E. Herring. Owing to the disagreeable weather the attendacne was not as large an anticipated. However, those present spent a very enjoyable evening and the affair was marked by sociability.

During the evening, Otto Knauer, tenor sololist of the church quartet, sang several numbers, accompanied on the piano by Clifford A. Braider, and he was obliged to respond to encores. After the informal proogram refreshments were served by a committee from the society.

Dr. Randolph to Preach.

Rev. Dr. D. B. F. Randolph, of this city, district superintendent of the Elizabeth district of the Newark Conference, will preach at the First M. E. church Sunday morning and in the evening the pastor, Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson, will deliver an address in addition to special musical program by the choir under the direction of J. Edmund Skiff, organist.

Will See "The Chocoloate Soldier."

About fifteen young men, members of the N. P. H. S. Alumni Association, will go to New York Saturday night to witness a performance of "The Chocolate Soldier, after which they will have a supper. Dr. Raymond S. Stevens will be in charge of the party.

BOARD OF TRADE LIVELY

Meeting Last Night Full of Enthusiasm and Projects for Local Improvement.

PREST. JEFFERY OPTIMISTIC.

Monument, for City, Better Train Service and More Light—Mayor Smalley's Suggestion.

Enthusiasm marked the regular meeting of the Board of Trade last night, and despite the weather Coward's Hall was comfortably filled. President William Jeffery presided for the first time at a regular meeting and he infused a part of his own optimism and vigor into the proceedings. If things pan out as Mr. Jeffery has them in mind Plainfield will soon assume an aggressive growth in civic righteousness and many of the things which are now lacking to make the city the most desirable place of residence will be supplied and "Greater Plainfield" will become an assured fact.

Some of the things in which the board is to interest itself at once are: To increase the membership to 500 before next Christmas; erect a monument to the soldiers from this community who fought and perished in the Civil War; have the local telegraph offices open to the public on Sundays for more than one hour; and supply the center of the city with electric arc lights so that passengers on the trains entering the city need not be forced to ask "where is Plainfield" on alighting from the trains.

Mayor Newton B. Smalley, of North Plainfield and Mayor Charles J. Fisk spoke briefly on subjects pertinent to the welfare of the city and aroused the members to long continued applause by their suggestions for local improvements.

The meeting opened at 8:25 and after the routine business had been completed announcement was made of the addition of twenty-nine new members to the roll. It was voted to send to United States Senator John Kean a letter of thanks and appreciation for his help in the matter of securing the new Federal building for the city. Among the other matters taken up was the suggestion of E. T. Barrows that the Central Railroad supply a better night service between this city and New Yrk. A letter was read by Secretary Herr from C. H. Smith, in which Mr. Smith called the attention of the board to the apparent unfairness of the giving of contracts for new school buildings to outside contractors and architects. L. B. Woolston declared that the local architects could give just as good if not better results, and he did not think the Board of Education should arbitrarily select foreign talent.

Charles A. Case's application for appointment as stenographer to the board was read and laid on the table and several bills presented by Mr. Schwed were referred to the finance committee for scruitny and payment.

At this point Mr. Jeffery vacated the chair and Mr. Coriell assumed the psition while the president read the report of the special committee appointed to look into the trolley matter. This report, which is of interest to every Plainfielder, will be found in another column. It was adopted after some little discussion between Mr. Jeffery and Mayor Fisk on the meaning of a paragraph relating to new cars. The Mayor finally admitted that the report was substantially correct.

George H. Frost, on request of the president, gave a figure for the rent of one of the rooms in the New Frost building and it was decided to place the matter in the hands of the executive for action. Coward's hall will hardly accommodate the increased membership and it is quite likely that the new room will be rented at $50 per month.

A. E. Force, chairman of the Civic Improvemnt Committee, announced that Herman Schwed and Eugene Laing were working with him and that they had managed to have Park avenue cleaned up at least once. This committee was appointed for another year. It was announced that the annual banquet would be held on March 3 at Truell Hall, and after some discussion the price of tickets for the banquet was placed at $5.

Mr. Jeffery made a short speech before introducing the two mayors, and in it he recommended the improvements noted above. He said that the time was coming when we would have a greater Plainfield and it behooved the representative citizens to bear the fact in mind that a stand still policy would not benefit the city. He urged the men of the board to see to it that no backward steps be taken and that they push

707 TO 721 BROAD ST., NEWARK.

$450,000 GIVEN TO SOME SEVEN COLLEGES

New York, Feb. 4.—Gifts amounting to $450,000 to seven institutions were announced Wednesday at the seventh annual meeting of the General Education Board held at the office of the chairman, Frederick T. Gates. All these gifts are from the Rockefeller fund and they are all conditional.

More than forty applications were received from various colleges, but only seven were granted. Thorough investigation is made into each application and in every case a secretary of the board visits the institution. These are the appropriations:

Williams College, Williamstown, Mass., $100,000 on condition that the college raise an endowment of $1,000,000; Wesleyan University, Middletown, Conn., $100,000 toward $1,000,000; Cornell College, $50,000 toward $200,000; St. Lawrence University, Canton, N. Y., $50,000 toward $200,000; Georgetown College, Georgetown, Ky., $25,000 toward $100,000; the Women's College of Brown University Providence, R. I., $50,000 toward $200,000; the Salem College for Women, Winston-Salem, N. C., $75,000 toward $300,000.

George Foster Peabody resigned as treasurer of the board and I. G. Myers was elected in his place. Mr. Peabody will continue to serve as a member of the board. Dr Wickliffe Rose, of Nashville, general agent of the Peabody fund, was elected a member of the board.

PERSONAL.

A. H. Osmun, of the Men's Shop, has recovered from a recent illness and has returned to his store.

Miss Margaret McKenna, of St. Elizabeth's College, Madison, is visiting her mother on Grove street.

Miss Lyda Boice, of Somerset street, who has been detained at home with typhoid fever, has recovered.

Mrs. Louise Cooley, of Somerset street, who has been seriously ill for the past two weeks, is improving slowly.

Grace Vail, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward E. Vail, of Elmwood place, is ill with a slight attack of scarlet fever.

Miss Ethel Anderson, Miss M. Louise Bushnell and Henry B. Newhall, of this city, are registered at the Chalfonte, Atlantic City.

Miss Anna Rafferty has returned to St. Elizabeth's College, Madison, after spending a week with her mother on Sandford avenue.

SWEDISH KING TRIES TO STOP EMIGRATION.

Stockholm, Feb. 4.—In an effort to check emigration from Sweden, King Gustav has just approved a plan for a series of national plays in Swedish theatres to awaken a more patriotic feeling among the people. The enterprise will be pushed with especial vigor at Gottenburg, where most emigrants bound for America embark. The King says that emigration has for years drained Sweden of a large proportion of its best and most enterprising blood. The recent general strike, which ended with many high class workingmen out of positions and still a larger number dissatisfied with labor conditions in Sweden, has given a decided impetus to emigration.

As a supplement to the theatre plan, the King has engaged the arctic explorer Nordenskjold, to tour the county, lecturing on national subjects to keep the Swedes at home.

PASTOR DECIDES TO MOVE.

New Brunswick, Feb 4.—Rev. Frederick C. Uhl, pastor of St. James' M. E. church, who was given a unanimous invitation at the fourth quarterly conference of that church to return as pastor for another year, has advised the official board that an opportunity for work in a larger field has presented itself and that there is likely to be a change in the pastorate. The pulpit supply committee has the matter under consideration.

Mr. Uhl came to St. James' church two years ago from South Amboy. His pastorate here had hardly commenced when the church was destroyed by fire and for several months the congregation was without a church home. At the time of the last conference the church had not yet decided where to locate, yet the pastor decided to return to St. James.

At that conference a call was given to Mr. Uhl by a Long Branch church, which paid a salary $400 higher than St. James', yet he preferred to return here rather than leave St. James at a time when its members had not a home.

Love Blighted, She Sought Death.

Elizabeth, Feb. 4.—Melancholy over disappointment in love, Maria Bisney sought death by trying to drown herself in a creek near the almshouse yesterday. She was rescued despite her struggles by Superintendent of the Almshouse Edward McGrath and Clark Abell, a carpenter. The girl begged to be allowed to die. She was taken to a hospital where it is feared pneumonia may develop from her exposure.

CRITICISM OF A "FAT" STORY

We were criticised for telling fat people to "tender" seventy-five cents to their druggists for a large case of Marmola Tablets. Several wrote in saying the use of the word "tender" was incorrect, that "tender" in such a connection raised the impression the druggist might refuse seventy-five cents as insufficient.

Now, isn't that odd? A few weeks ago seventy-five cents was "tendered" to a Broadway druggist and he did refuse it. That is, he said he had no Marmola Tablets, whereas he did have seven cases. But, the wholesale house was closed, it being on a Saturday, and he had to prevaricate to protect his regular customers, who absorbed those seven cases later in the day.

This elegant pharmaceutical adaptation of that famous, fashionable fat reducer, the Marmola Prescription (viz., ½ oz Marmola, ½ oz Fl Ex Cascara Aromatic, 3½ oz Peppermint Water), is certainly having a remarkable vogue. Millions of cases of tablets are sold yearly and their fame grows. This is doubtless because of their harmlessness (guaranteed by the Marmola Co., 988 Farmer Bldg., Detroit, Mich.), and sure ability to remove ten to sixteen ounces of fat (not flesh) a day without inconvenience, bother, need for exercising or interference with the taker's appetite for good things.

ADVERTISE IN THE DAILY PRESS

COUNSEL FEE CUT DOWN.

New Brunswick, Feb. 4.—Captain James A. Parker, referee in bankruptcy, would not allow Senator George S. Silzer a fee of $1,000 as counsel at the hearing of the creditors of the Cincha Stopper Company yesterday, but said he would give him $150. The creditors have been paid in full and the report submitted showed the receipts were $28,274.72, and the balance on hand is $1,799.49, with which counsel and other fees are to be paid. The matter has not yet been finally adjusted, but will be at a further hearing tomorrow.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

Rev. J. Morgan Read, president of Pennington Seminary, will preach in the Mullica Hill M. E. church Sunday.

A new steel bridge to replace a wooden structure over Woodbury Creek, at the point known as the "White Bridge," is being erected.

Councilman William J. Thompson, of Gloucester, has received many congratulations on the occasion of his fortieth wedding anniversary.

For the fifth time the fox chase by the Reliance Club, of Mantau, has been postponed because of storms. Washington's Birthday has now been fixed for the event.

Detective Baltzel, after a long search for Captain Andrew Jeffries, of Steelmanville, who disappeared two weeks ago, has decided that the man left the country. No trace of him can be secured.

From injuries sustained by a fall about a month ago, Captain James C. Mason, forty-eight years old, of 606 West street, Camden, died Wednesday. He was one of the best known pilots on the river.

John Jessup, Jr., who is daily spending some time along the Woodbury Creek after ducks, Wednesday saw five blackbirds, looking for food. These birds are seldom seen North at this time of the year.

The Cape May County Board of Freeholders has adopted a resolution offered by Freeholder John P. Fox, to widen to the extent of sixty feet the county road in Ocean City from Bay avenue to the drawbridge.

In a fight at Haddon and Kaighn avenues, Camden Wednesday, Frank Frider, twenty-one years old, who says he is homeless, was so badly cut about the head that he was compelled to visit Cooper Hospital for treatment.

The new Board of Excise Commissioners of Lambertville granted hotel licenses to the following, at $400 a year, Tuesday night: Jennie Savage, York Street House; Joseph J. Curtis, Belmont House; George E. Gordon, Union House; Walter E. Ennis, Lambertville House, and Thomas McNamara, South Main street. Mary Cavanaugh was refused a continuance of a license at 47 South Main street, and Patrick Fox was refused a pool table license.

Invitations have been issued by the Young Friends' Association of Moorestown for a meeting to be held in the assembly-room of the Friends' High School Thursday evening, February 10, when Miss Alice Paul will speak on "The Suffrage Movement in England." This will be Miss Paul's first appearance at a public meeting in her home town and in the very school she attended as a child.

Totally blind for about eighteen years, Mrs. Rebecca Garwood, ninety years old, of 1219 South Third street, Camden, was seized with vertigo, and, in falling from a chair, dislocated her right shoulder. The attending physician has hope for her recovery. Mrs. Garwood is the mother of Daniel S. Garwood, a master painter, who was killed in an automobile accident at West Berlin December 4.

Last Sunday Constable Jonathan D. Cunard, of Almonesson, found six men, with as many dogs, chasing a fine doe around the lake at that place. He learned their names and ordered them to call off the dogs. Little attention was paid to his orders until the dogs gave out. The deer was chased all around the lake and up toward Westville, where it was seen almost fagged out. The constable communicated with Game Warden John H. Avis, of Woodbury, and Wednesday the latter received word from the State Game Commission to prosecute the men.

A decree of divorce has been recommended by Special Master George S. Hilton in the suit of Minnie Jacobus, of 519 Totowa avenue, Paterson, against her husband, Charles J. Jacobus. The petitioner is a trained nurse and alleged desertion on the part of her husband. She averred that some time ago when she went to Elizabeth to take care of a patient she did so with her husband's consent, and when she returned to her home in Paterson her husband had sold out everything and left for other parts.

Horseman's Club Incorporated.

Elizabeth, Feb. 4.—The Westfield Driving and Riding Club filed articles of incorporation here yesterday with the clerk of Union county. The objects for which the club is formed are to promote the interests of the pleasure driving public, to give matinee races or race meetings, and establish a fraternal feeling among pleasure drivers for mutual benefit. The club will strive to maintain harmonious relations with other organizations similar in character. The eleven trustees of the club for the first year are: C. W. Sorter, J. S. Irving, J. E. Gallagher, R. L. Edwards, C. B. Smith, Dr. C. M. F. Egel, J. G. Ten Eyck, Dr. H. H. Butler, W. R. Hutchings, C. D. Floyd, H. W. Evans. The incorporators are the foregoing, with the addition of William Wortendyk and W. L. Clark. The headquarters will be at 239 Central avenue, Westfield.

The official board of the First M. E. church will meet in Vincent chapel next Wednesday night following prayer-meeting.

forward with the purpose in view of making Plainfield the most popular and best known city in the State. Mr. Jeffery was frequently interrupted by applause. He said in reference to the monument which he would like to see erected at the triangle near the Crescent avenue church, that he would appoint a committee of nine to start the project properly and this committee would be appointed as soon as he had conferred with the "powers that be."

Mayor Newton B. Smalley made everyone sit up and take notice when he introduced a suggestion for the improving of the corner of Front and Somerset streets. It was nothing less than the removal of an eyesore and a detriment to the onward progress of the city. He referred specifically to a saloon which decorates that corner and its attendant nuisances. He also mentioned the peanut stand on the west corner and the bootblack stand on the east. All these things prevent to a great extent the traffic of the street to say nothing of the harm done to the merchants of the borough the danger to women pedestrians and the general dilapidated appearance of the great thoroughfare between the borough and the city.

Mr. Smalley said he would like to see this main approach to the city made into a decent street. At present it is disgraceful. Some saloon licenses cost more than it benefits and this is one of the cases. It could be remedied by refusing a renewal of the license so as to put the property on the market, then, in the hands of the proper people a modern building could be erected, the obstacles on both sides of the street removed and beauty take the place of ugliness. Then refuse a license for that corner forever. The end would justify the means and the improvement would be so marked that the whole city would rejoice. The speech was recived with tumultuous applause.

Mayor Fisk followed and in referring briefly to Mayor Smalley's suggestion said that the proprietor of the place in question was a public spirited man and one of the solid citizens as well as a keeper of one of the best resorts in the city and he thought Mr. Smalley's plan would be difficult of accomplishment. "We must not think we are the biggest thing in the world," he said. Referring to the license question as compared with the tax rate Mayor Fisk said the city might grant licenses at a lower figure and have a saloon for every 250 people, but that is not the policy of a well ordered city. Comparing the taxes with those of twenty years ago, he said there was only a difference of approximately one cent per capita, it being five cents now and was four cents percapita twenty years ago, and now we have no mud roads, we do have electric lights and sewers and things which were merely dreamed of in those days. He also said he would like to see a Chamber of Commerce formed here and all the civic organizations combined.

The following were elected to membership last night.

Messrs. L. K. Strouse, Joseph Kingston, Walter S. Marder, Frank Weed, J. C. Field, T. S. Davis, H. A. G. Taylor, Charles L. Lewis, P. Frank Stone, Lamar Van Syckle, Sylvester J. which is working harm to the people, but that it is not the business of the Board to undertake the work of the administration of the city's government or any part thereof, and that if the city is unable to induce the Public Service Corporation to treat Plainfield fairly and to adjust the existing obnoxious trolley nuisances, then for the city to coerce the company and enforce every possible feature of the franchise or ordinance of 1891, sections 12, 17 and 18, particularly, and any other prior or subsequent measure or ordinance which will give the city what it wants, and that, if necessary, the city authorities should use force to restrain the continuance of the trolley evil; that the people of Plainfield are sick, sore and tired of it. It calls for immediate and heroic treatment and for the application of equitable business methods in arranging a new basis of understanding between the city of Plainfield and the Public Service Corporation.

"Twelfth. That we respectfully submit to this honorable board the foregoing report with a request that copies of it be sent to the Mayor, every member of the Common Council and the newspapers of the city of Plainfield and the borough of North Plainfield, and to the Public Service Corporation, and that the people of this city generally be informed as to the exact status of the case."

EPWORTH LEAGUE RALLY

Societies from Nearby Towns Attend the Plainfield Group Meeting.

More than two hundred young people attended the group rally of the Epworth League, Plainfield Group, at the First M. E. church, last night, representing Plainfield, North Plainfield, Somerville, Bound Brook, Dunellen, Scotch Plains and other nearby places. The storm prevented the attendance of members from Mt. Horeb and Raritan.

Edward V. B. Phoenix, of Somerville, group leader for the Plainfield district, was in charge of the meeting, while J. J. Marsh, of this city, who is president of the entire district, made a few remarks urging the hearty and united co-operation of all Epworthians in the district that greater things might be accomplished the coming year.

The rally opened with a song service, in which the singing was led by a quartet, and Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson, pastor of the First M. E. church, offered prayer. Mrs. Thomas MacDonald, soprano soloist, sang "These Are They," as an offertory, in a pleasing manner. When the roll was called, the First M. E. church showed up the largest attendance, 41, with Somerville second, 39, and Monroe Avenue church third, 33. There were sixteen representatives from Grace church, eleven from Bound Brook; five from Dunellen and two from Scotch Plains.

The address of the evening was by Rev. Dr. T. H. Bagawanath, pastor of the Washington Square M. E. church, New York. He is one of the most prominent divines in the New York Conference and the Epworthians congratulated themselves in being able to secure him.

Dr. Baragwanath took for his subject, "Prophets or Pensioners," and he delivered an interesting and practical talk. He said that the prophets of old were inspired by God to work for truth and righteousness and that was their chief aim. Today many seek to be pensioners of God's great bounty, instead of working for Him. The speaker said that God wants prophets.

"Why don't people come to church? is the question often asked," said the speaker. "Many say that the creed interferes with church attendance, while others say that the church is always demanding money and offer that as an excuse. There are plenty of people who would never go to church, creed or no creed, and as for the money question, there is a Romanist church near my church in New York, that is largely attended by the poor. Money is constantly demanded from them, and yet that edifice is always filled.

"The trouble is we are living in a period of indifference when many persons would rather be pensioners than prophets. What we need is the old-time fire in the heart, the power to move men and things in the right direction. We take our vows at the altar and then seldom attend a service afterward. I am not so well acquainted with your territory here, but I think I do know New York. We have there what are called ecclesiastical bargain counter hunters.

"I would rather have a church of 200 or 100 consecrated Christian people than a crowded church every Sunday, which is nothing more or less than a procession. The church must provide work for its members. The strength of a church can be measured by the number of consecrated workers.

"When a person comes to me and says, 'What can I do?' I think there is some hope for that person. Many are content to do nothing and be pensioners. Some take their ease at home, others at the church. We need a baptism of fire on our young people. We must recognize the spirit of sacrifice before the world will be evangelized."

The speaker referred to the importance of common-place things in life and illustrated this by telling the story of an old mine owned by his father in England. It was given up as worthless and yet only within recent times it was discovered to be one of the most valuable in all England, radium having been found there. In conclusion he said that there was nothing so sweet on earth as helping others and he urged everyone present to become thoroughly consecrated to the Master's service.

A social hour then followed in Vincent chapel to which all were invited. Opportunity was given those present to become better acquainted and a committee comprising Miss Helen Whitney, chairman; Miss Eda French, Miss Jane Bailey and Arthur Humble provided a pleasing entertainment which consisted of the representations of well-known advertisements by the young people, the audience being expected to guess them correctly. The following were presented:

Gold Medal flour, Miss Mildred Burnett; Dutch Cleanser, Miss Helen Edgar; Shredded Wheat, Miss Eleanor Stutsman; Pearline, Miss Mary Hannah Bingaman; Best & Co., the Misses Marion and Dorothy Lynn; Grapenuts, Edward Brown; California Limited, Miss Helen Campbell; Kingsford Corn Starch, Miss Frances Rittenhouse; Jell-O, Miss Edith Randolph and Fred Martin; Cream of Wheat, Leslie Leland; Buster Brown Stockings, Charles Small; Bakers' Cocoa, Miss Ethel Prior and Edward Bingaman; Zu Zu Twins, Miss Eleanor Stutsman and Martin B. Stutsman; Ivory Soap, Miss Jane Bailey and Arthur Humble; Karo Syrup, Harry Little; Japalac, Miss May Randolph; Pears Soap, Lawrence Edgar.

It was announced that the next rally will be held at Bound Brook in April, when Rev. Perry Bascom, of that place, will make the address.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

The Methodist congregation is in a flourishing condition according to reports presented at the Fourth Quarterly Conference meeting. The following committees were appointed for the ensuing year: Foreign Missions, T. J. Todd, G. T. Schenck, J. F. G. Kinney, F. H. Gise, G. S. Smith. Home Missions and Church Extension, Mrs. M. E. Harris, Mrs. F. H. Gise, Mrs. T. J. Todd. Sunday Schools, F. H. Gise, W. Rinker, J. Tetlow. Temperance, I. J. Stites, Mrs. Ella Kennedy, Mrs. J. T. G. Kinney, Wm. Kennedy, Wm. Giddis. Tracts, Lillian Archibald, Jennie Stites, Helen Shively. Education, Mrs. J. F. G. Kinney, Mrs. F. H. Gise, Mrs. Mary Richardson. Freedman's Aid, Miss May Apgar, Miss Lilly Kennedy, Miss M. Elizabeth Herlich. Hospitals, Miss Elizabeth Harris, Mrs. W. A. Knox. Church Records and Auditing Accounts, F. H. Gise, Jacob Fisher, Elizabeth Harris. Parsonage and Furniture, Mrs. W. A. Knox, Mrs. J. Fisher, Mrs. Ella Kennedy, Mrs. M. E. Harris and the Ladies' Aid Society. Estimating Ministerial Support, Mrs. M. E. Harris, F. H. Gise, Jacob Fisher. The following officers were elected: Trustees, Thomas J. Todd, J. Fisher, I. J. Stites, W. W. Walters, J. Tetlow, J. F. G. Kinney, Sidney N. Williams. Stewards, F. H. Gise, George S. Smith, Mrs. P. C. Smith, Mrs. T. J. Todd, Mrs. F. H. Gise, Mrs. M. E. Harris, Miss Elizabeth Harris, Miss May Apgar, Mrs. Emma Perrine, Mrs. George Huff, William Rinker, Mrs. J. Tetlow, Mrs. Lizzie Eyck; Miss May Apgar, financial secretary; I. J. Stites, treasurer of the official board.

Postmaster Charles Day, who has been ill from the effects of a bad cold, is able to attend to his duties again.

Miss Elizabeth Martine has returned to Flemington after a pleasant stay with Miss Eva Schneider.

Mrs. Edward Pennock has been entertaining friends from Pittsburg.

Miss Irene Day will entertain the G. E. Club next Tuesday.

Peter Mohan has resumed work after a week's illness.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

Arrangements are being made to reopen the Public Library in the near future. The committee request that all books being held out be returned to Mrs. Dunn at the postoffice at once so that they can be catalogued with the other books. Over fifty books are being held and those who borrowed them from the Library should be willing to return them at once, so as to aid the Library committee in their work.

Notwithstanding the bad weather, the Birthday Sociable held last night in the parlors of the Baptist church, was a success in every way. A pleasing program of music and recitations was rendered and enjoyed by a large audience. The receipts were for the benefit of the treasury of the Ladies' Circle.

A business meeting of the Epworth League will be held tomorrow night in the Methodist church. Following the business session Rev. J. Marran, of the Methodist Book Concern, of New York, will make an address upon mission work.

A number of the members of the Epworth League from here attended the rally meeting of the society held last night in the First Methodist church, Plainfield.

The masquerade dance held last night by the young people of St. Stephen's Episcopal church in the house, Netherwood, was attended by a number from here.

Miss Mamie Gallagher, of Metuchen, is spending a few days with Mrs. W. R. Buckley, of Front street.

Mrs. Thomas M. Paff, Jr., of Westfield avenue, was the guest of friends yesterday in Rahway.

Mrs. George MacCauley, of Grand street, is quite ill with pneumonia.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

When Richard Carle returns to the Plainfield theatre tomorrow afternoon and night he will be seen as Leander Lamb, the hen-pecked hero of "Mary's Lamb." This is the lively and tuneful musical comedy that Mr. Carle presented here last season. Since then there have been few changes in his company, the principals being Adele Rafter, Julia Ralph, Violet Seaton, Rita Stanwood, Marion Dean, Sylvain Langlois, Geo Bogues, Abbott Adams, Joseph Coffman and others. The chorus, as always in the Carle shows, is large, rosy and nimble of foot. There are hosts of attractive young women, who appear as grisettes, models, Parisian dandies, shadowgraph girls, athletic girls, soldier girls, and in various other guises, being always handsomely or picturesquely attired

REV. JOHN Y. BROEK MAKES AN ADDRESS

The mortgage burning at the Grand Avenue Reformed church, Asbury Park, Wednesday night, was held on the anniversary of the founding of the local church, and was a dual occasion for rejoicing and congratulations. Several ministers took part in the exercises, including Rev. John Y. Broek, former pastor of the church, and now pastor of Trinity Reformed church, this city.

One of the best talks of the evening was by Mr. Brooek. He first spoke in a humorous vein and then offered his hearty congratulations at the payment of the church debt. He referred to the very pleasant associations with the church for two and a half years while he was pastor. It was in that church that he was ordained and during his pastorate accomplished effective work, helping the church in all departments.

Launching out on the line of what makes a modern and a model church Mr. Broek said he did not think it was a church modeled entirely after the manner of the church in the last century, although there were probably some features that might be followed with profit.

"The model church for the twentieth century," he continued, "is the apostolic church of the first century. It is based on four foundations—prayer, liberality, brotherhood and the missionary spirit.

"The church should be pre-eminently a home of prayer for the pastor, the members, the Sunday-school, the afflicted, missioons, etc. We could not have all things in common life in the olden days, owing to the changed economic conditions, but that would not hinder our liberality and tolerance of other people. The church is the whitest organization on earth today and should be first in men's minds. We ought to share our sorrows as well as our joys, no matter about the social scale, for we are all brothers. The missionary spirit is vitally necessary. The burning of this mortgage is no evidence of church spirituality. There are things worse than mortgages that can overtake a church—for instance, the lack of spirituality and the missionary spirit."

Surprised Miss Christensen.

A surprise party was given to Miss Laura Christensen at her home in the West End, last night. Friends were present from New York, Brooklyn, Newark and this city. Games and dancing were enjoyed, after which supper was served. The table was attractively decorated in red and white.

Death of Carl Johanson.

Carl Johanson, twenty-two years old, died at Muhlenberg Hospital this morning. The funeral will be held at the Swedish Evangelical Pilgrim church on Sunday afternoon at 3 o'oclock. Rev. Mr. Englund, pastor of the church, will conduct the services.

BRANCHVILLE BOYS MISSING.

Newton, Feb. 4.—Although Ernest Bales and James and Charles Clifford, young lads of Branchville, left their homes Monday night, and have not returned since, the relatives of the missing boys did not give an alarm to the authorities that they were missing until yesterday, when a quiet search failed to reveal any trace of them.

Then James Newell, grandfather of the Clifford boys, who resided with them, turned the matter over to the officials. The last known of the youngsters was Monday night, when they spent the night in the Borden creamery at Branchville Trains have been watched at Sussex and other points, thinking that the fugitives might board one.

Their absence is not due to the reading of wild West stories, but, according to Newell, Ernest Bale, the oldest of the trio, received a letter Monday from his father, Oscar Bale, of Ridgewood, directed to Mrs. John J. Struble, with whom he boards in Branchville. He got the epistle out of the postoffice himself, and, it is said, opened it and found money to pay for his keeping. The other boys were taken into his confidence, and, although all were less than sixteen years of age, decided to travel.

CONFUSION.

When in the window of the milliner,
I view you with amazed bewildermen,
And may not know which end is front or rear,
Nor even tell, O Chaos! which may be
The top or bottom. Fruits and flowers strange,
And feather heaped on feather, till they rise,
Like Ossa upon Pelion, piled, of old,
And then some, I am filled with wondrous awe—
My 'wildered senses reel and I would fain
Betake me to some Bacchanalian grot
Where snowy-aproned saellites dispense
O'er slabs of rosewood or mahogany
The foamy, soothing essence of the hop.

But when I see you set in perfect poise
Above my lady's face, when I behold
The subtle blending of her loveliness
With your strange shape of erstwhile mystery,
And all that once was dark is then made clear,
I strive in vain for words, articulate,
To voice the seething thoughts that crowd my brain;
I grope for language, that I may express
My wonder, but by tongue can only say:
GOSH!

Bachelor Tax Assessor's Will.

Elizabeth, Feb. 4.—The will of the late Tax Assessor John McGrath will be presented to the Union County Orphans' Court for probate next Monday. The dead man's estate is estimated to be worth about $40,000. He was a bachelor, and it is understood the property is bequeathed to his only surviving sister, and a niece. He has two nephews living in Staten Island, but it is said no provision has been made for them in the will.

Ordination of Rev. G. B. Dunshee.

Elizabeth, Feb. 4.—Rev. George B. Dunshee was ordained last night in the Third Presbyterian church, at East Jersey street and West Scott place. Mr. Dunshee was formally connected with the work in Parkview chapel, Newark, and left that field about three years ago for his present work in Bethel chapel in this city.

Successful Furnace Fires

PATENTED

The BOYNTON

Square Fire Pot

makes tending the furnace easy, but best of all it makes a joyous fire. Round fire pots burn strongly through the center with a rim of half dead clinkers at the edge and when you shake the fire the middle drops out. You've noticed it. Fires built in BOYNTON Square Pots are all live coals. A shake down is an even shake. The whole fire settles. There is no waste. The fuel being equal, a square pot will develop almost twice the heat, or the same heat for about half. The square pot is our patent and can be had only in the BOYNTON furnaces. We have a dealer in your town. He will be glad to show you.

There are BOYNTON heating plants of all kinds. Ask about our Round or Sectional Boilers for Steam or Hot Water. Also Ranges.

LITERARY

Among the innumerable magazines which monthly flood the news stands it is interesting to come across one which, in its policy, is "quite unlike any other." This is the Wide World Magazine which publishes nothing but fact—no fiction or tales of imagination being allowed within its covers. But the "fact" is served up so attractively, and the stories of real adventure and strange experiences possess so potent an interest, that the fiction is not missed.

Scribner's Magazine for February has as a frontispiece a striking picture in colors of a modern locomotive running at great speed. It is one of several accompanying an article which describes the life of a modern engineer, by the artist, William Harnden Foster. Theodore Roosevelt's article shows his remarkable capacity for observation and for picturesque and vivid description. It is not a haphazard record of travel, but Mr. Roosevelt has carried out the project as he saw it before starting—to associate each species of the large game with the region in which it flourishes. He reproduces the panorama of the life as he has seen it. This present article pictures "A Buffalo Hunt by the Kamiti"—the buffalo being one of the most dangerous of African wild animals.

A cheery, optimistic tone is characteristic of Lippincott's Magazine, and the February issue is no exception to the general rule. The number opens with a long and intensely powerful detective story by that versatile genius, Carolyn Wells. The new tale is entitled "The Gold Bag," and it is fully up to the standard of its famous predecessor by this author—"The Clue," which has been one of the most successful books of the season.

The February Century opens appropriately with a portrait of the late Richard Watson Gilder, for twenty-eight years editor of the magazine, reproduced from the painting by Cecilia Beaux; and the first feature of the number is Mr. Gilder's last serious poem, "Love in the City." The magazine's tribute to Mr. Gilder includes memorial poems by Elizabeth Stuart Phelps and Charles T. Rogers, and consideration of his public activities as follows: "As Poet," by George Edward Woodberry; "As a Moral Force in Politics," by Henry van Dyke; "His Philanthropic Work," by Jacob A. Riis; "His Relation to the Arts," by Cecilia Beaux; "His Editorial Relations," by his associate editor, Robert Underwood Johnson. There are further tributes of appreciation and regret from President Taft, Frances Hodgson Burnett, John Burroughs, Helen Keller, Hamilton Wright Mabie, Andrew Carnegie and others who knew and loved the man and his work.

PARENTS OF BRIDE AND GROOM MARRIED THEM.

Easton, Md., Feb. 4.—Adolphus S. North, of Montclair, N. J., and Miss Marie Bixby, of Chicago, were married at 11:30 o'clock yesterday morning at Woodstock House, the residence here of the bride's sister, Mrs. John Hathaway.

The officiating clergymen were the fathers of the bride and groom, Rev. Charles Hendrik Bixby, rector emeritus of St. Paul's Episcopal church, Hyde Park, Chicago, and Rev. Dr. Frank Mason North, of New York, secretary of the New York City Church Extension Society.

Mr. North, who is a Wesleyan University graduate, is engaged in the building business at Montclair. Mr. and Mrs. North will make their home in Montclair.

DETENTION SCHOOL FOR TRUANTS IS PROPOSED.

Jersey City, Feb. 4.—County Superintendent of Schools M. H. Kinsley and Judges John Blair and Robert Carey, of Hudson, held a conference at noon yesterday in the office of Prosecutor Pierre Garven on the subject of establishing a county school of detention for the enforced education of children prone to truancy.

It was stated at the conclusion of the conference that the project met general approval, and that an effort would be made to have a law enacted permitting the Board of Freeholders to erect a school along the lines suggested by Superintendent Kinsley.

THAT "POLITICAL CENSUS."

Washington, Feb. 4.—Assuming entire responsibility for his letter, read in the House yesterday, concerning the appointment of census supervisors in his district, Representative Crow, of Missouri, rose to a question of personal privilege in that body yesterday to state that the letter expressed his sentiments exactly. He charged that the Democrats had "gerrymandered" his district to make it Democratic, and he did not regret having written that he would recommend for appointment only those who would agree to obtain information concerning the political views of the people in the district.

"They had been voting every man dead or alive, and to make good the measure, they had voted the names of horses and dog there."

—Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Walsh, of Third street, have removed to Duer street.

TRAVELERS CHEQUES.

Travelers' cheques are rapidly superceding Letters of Credit, owing to the fact that they are so much more readily negotiable.
For the uninitiated we might say that these cheques are self-identifying; that they may be cashed almost as readily as currency; and that they possess the safeguard of being redeemable in case of loss.

A NEW HAT IN TOWN

THE "PLAINFIELD"

We've been two years getting this hat. In answer to the question, why don't you put in a two dollar hat, we have always said that we would when we found one that was as good value for the price as the Knox productions. We didn't find it, we created it. We've spent twenty years making hats and when we decided to go after a Two Dollar hat we knew just what we wanted. We went to Danbury, the largest hatting centre in the country, and after looking over the samples submitted and picking out the best we suggested some changes to make it better yet. To get these we had to guarantee to use a large number of hats, but we got what we wanted. ENJOY TURKEY SUPPER

The Trinity Church's Ladies' Christian Work Society Hold Annual Affair.

Trinity's annual turkey feast, given under the auspices of the Ladies Christian Work Society, as usual, scored a big hit. Close to four hundred people participated in the bounteous repast last night and another big crowd is expected tonight.

Every detail went off without a hitch. Mrs. E. T. VanWinkle, chairman of the general committee, was ably assisted by a corps of assistants, and strangers were made welcome by Mrs. E. A. Parse and other members of the reception committee. The first supper was served at 5:20 o'clock and the business was continued until after nine o'clock.

The room was tastefully decorated in green and white. The pillars were adorned in green and white crepe paper while the chandeliers were given an Oriental touch with Japanese decorations of the same colors.

During the evening the guests had the opportunity of listening to a series of charming musical selections by the Misses Lucie Coriell and Harriet Randall.

The following were in charge:

Supper room—Mrs. Anna M. Gillem, Mrs. G. Q. Dolliver, Mrs. J. L. Dolliver, Mrs. J. Angerbauer, Mrs. Dunham, Mrs. Louis Neuman, Mrs. P. K Dilts, Mrs. Frank E. Woodruff, Mrs. Cornelius Higgins, Mrs. J. G. Stevens, Mrs. Kinney, Mrs. Lafayette Rosensthiel, Mrs. George Frieday.

Give the Church $25.

The Young People's Society of the Church of the Heavenly Rest met in the parish house last night and elected nine new members, including William Pearson, who was made an honorary member. The society donated $25 for church purposes, and the reports from the recent entertainment were very encouraging. At the next meeting, February 17, the society will adopt colors and consider plans for greater usefulness.

No Case Against Stites.

The case of Florence Madden against Amos Stites in which Stites was accused of a serious offence, was heard yesterday afternoon before City Judge William N. Runyon and dismissed by him. There was no cause for action. Harry C. Runyon appeared for Mr. Stites.

Borough Family Smoked Out.

The borough fire department was called out at 10:45 o'clock this morning. A back draft caused the smoke to fill the home of Clark Mundy on Stone street, and Mrs. Mundy becoming alarmed, 'phoned fire headquarters. When the firemen arrived, however, the house had been cleared of the smoke by means of ventilation by the neighbors.

Richard Carle Coming.

Richard Carle, author, composer and comedian, comes to the Plainfield theatre tomorrow afternoon and night. He will appear as the henpecked hero of "Mary's Lamb," the best of all his musical comedies. "Mary's Lamb" is the piece that ran all summer at the New York theatre and had two extended engagements in Chicago.

THE FOURTH ESTATE

Novelized by
FREDERICK R. TOOMBS.

From the great play of the same name by Joseph Medill Patterson and Harriet Ford. Copyright, 1909, by Joseph Medill Patterson and Harriet Ford.

As they stood there in fond embrace, her lips raised to his, Judge Bartelmy appeared at the extreme end of the room. He gave a sudden start as he saw their oblivion to all else but themselves. His cold blue eyes shone with the satisfaction that filled him. He had done a good day's work, he congratulated himself. He had arranged to buy Brand's silence for $10,000 when it was really worth twice that sum to a man of the United States judge's wealth and standing. Why, he had originally planned to give Brand twice that sum as a wedding present when he married Judith.

"Mr. Brand," the judge declared, "I will call at your office tonight at 9 o'clock. Judith, I am ready to go now."

The couple drew apart in confusion. She walked away slowly from her lover, her eyes wet with tears. She went out of the room with her father, leaving Wheeler Brand standing in the middle of the room, overcome by the unconquerable sorrow that filled his soul.

"I put it through."

"Well, did you put it through?" he asked.

Brand threw back his head, and his misery was imprinted in every line of his face. Yet by superhuman will power he forced his voice into steadiness as he said:

"Yes—I put it through."

CHAPTER IX.

AT 9 o'clock in the managing editor's room in the Advance building Wheeler Brand and three other men, Howard Hartley, Jeff Thorne, staff reporters, and Bill, their much browbeaten understudy, were industriously at work. At one side of the office diagonally from the managing editor's desk was a high mahogany desk which backed against a wooden partition which cut off a small room used as a "morgue," the place where newspaper and magazine clippings are kept for reference.

Through the partition a round hole about five inches in diameter had been cut with a handsaw, and on a table in the morgue a camera had been rested with the telescopic protuberance containing the lens projecting through the hole in the partition into a private mail box directly above the desk. The door of this box, into which were placed letters arriving for the managing editor during his absence, had been unlocked. A line of shoe thread had been fastened to the door of the box and extended down behind the desk to the floor and across to the left hand side of Brand's desk. A slight tug on the thread would cause the door of the mail box to open, exposing to the lens Brand's desk, his chair and another chair which had been placed at the right of the desk next to the telephone.

For several minutes the mysterious preparations went on. Just what they meant no one but Brand could tell, and he was strangely silent, except as to directing what should be done.

Hartley was anxious to make certain that the lens aimed directly at Brand's desk. He measured the line with his eye.

"Get it?" called Jeff.

"No, not yet. Wait a minute," Howard answered, dodging around quickly toward the little "morgue." "I haven't got the focus right yet. Hold on!"

Jeff lighted a match, held it up and stood between the two chairs.

"How's that?" he cried.

The answering voice came back.

"Yes; that's the very thing. It's all right now."

Brand stepped forward from a corner of the room from whence he had been watching the final preparations for the strange event that was to occur.

"Are you all set now, boys?" he asked. "Is your camera in the right place for the flashlight?"

"Yes, sir!" cried Jeff and Howard simultaneously.

"The flashlight is planted here, sir," said Howard, pointing to a narrow pan

"I'm hungry."

"Broke?"

"Sure!" The boy grinned.

Dillon, one of the "has-beens" characteristic of the type that prey on the newspaper men at night in the big cities, would ordinarily have received short shrift from a busy man like Brand, but Dillon, an ex-newspaper reporter, had once given Brand, when a beginner, some valuable pointers, which the now managing editor had never forgotten.

"Tell him to come in," ordered Brand. He reached for the office telephone and called the night city editor. "The Patriot has got the town skinned on shipping," he said. "Do you know who's doing it for them? Well, I think you'd better hire him."

Joe Dillon wandered in.

"Good evening, Mr. Brand," he said weakly. Durkin, who had summoned him, followed him in.

"Well, Joe, what is it?"

"Wait a minute, Durkin. Got a story for us, Joe?" queried Brand sympathetically.

Dillon staggered forward.

"Better sit down," cautioned Brand. "Same old story, eh?"

"No. I'm hungry."

"Durkin, go get one hot roast beef sandwich and a big pot of black coffee and see that he gets them."

"Yes, sir." The lad sped away after dexterously catching a quarter which Brand tossed him.

"I wish I was going in there to work with the boys instead of eating charity grub," began Dillon plaintively. "I know you mean all right, Mr. Brand. I've tried and tried again to fight it off, but it's useless. I can't. It's too late. I'm a dead one. The hard stuff, the five cent whisky, has got me. You never heard how this thing started, did you, Mr. Brand? If it hadn't been for my wife"—

"Oh, cut it out!" cried Brand, and Dillon shambled out of the room.

Downs hurried in. He had become night editor when the shakeup occurred at the time of Brand's promotion.

"Young Bobbie Doolittle pinched again for speeding," he rattled off. "Three show girls in the auto. All of 'em lit up. Bobbie weeping because the girls had to miss the theater, and his mother's at me all evening to keep it out. What'll I do?"

Brand leaned back and smiled.

"Well, it was on her account we kept out his partial elopement with her French maid and the time he kissed the head waiter at the St. Honore hotel in lieu of a tip, and I guess—well, print this one. It may help brace him up."

"Oh, and that disappearance case," reminded Downs. "The girl's come back—old gag, visiting her friends in Jersey, but she's been off on the suit case circuit all right."

"Home now?" jerked the managing editor.

"Yep."

"Think she'll stay there?"

"She might."

"Well, she can't if we print this, so let's forget it."

"But we've had a man on it two days," persisted Downs. "We're the only paper that's got it."

"Well, we won't be the one to kick her down," pronounced Brand, turning his head away to end the conversation.

"All right, just as you say."

The telephone bell rang. Brand took off the receiver.

"Hello! Tell Mr. Dupuy I'm busy!" he cried after taking the message. "What? Send him in. That's all, Downs. See that they take care of Dillon, will you?"

The night editor nodded in the affirmative and gazed rather curiously at Brand as he went out.

Dupuy came into Brand's office with a most circumspect and deferential air. Dressed in evening clothes, carrying his silk hat in his hand and with a boutonniere of hothouse violets in his lapel, he gave every indication of being the society figure that his name and wealth had made possible for him.

The lawyer lobbyist walked directly to the desk at which Brand was seated. In reply to the managing editor's salutation he bowed stiffly and leaned forward over the desk.

Several moments elapsed before Dupuy spoke. He was trying to put his opening words in the most judicious language, and well he might hesitate when one considers the nature of his evil errand.

"The gentleman who was coming to see you tonight," at last he said carefully, "has had to go to the opera with his daughter. He has asked me to come in his stead."

An expression of complete bewilderment spread over the other's face.

PIANO MOVING A SPECIALTY.

"A gentleman? what gentleman?" he interrogated.

Dupuy was momentarily nonplused.

"Why, the gentleman who—ah, with whom you made an appointment for 9 o'clock this evening—here—at your office."

Brand still refused to show his hand.

"I should be very glad to hear what you have to say, Mr. Dupuy, but, frankly, I don't know what you are driving at."

The visitor was annoyed. He was positive that Bartelmy would not send him on a wild goose errand. Surely the judge and Brand had come to terms regarding the silence of the Advance as to the Lansing Iron case decision. The editor was playing with him now, he knew—dangling him on a verbal hook to tantalize him.

"Oh, come, you know who I mean—Bartelmy!" snapped the judge's despicable tool.

"Judge Bartelmy!" exclaimed Brand in surprise. "Well, what about him?"

Dupuy produced a card, which the editor glanced at.

"What's this?" he asked. Then he read: "'Dupuy will represent me.' In what?"

He started to put the card in his pocket.

"Perhaps you would better let me have that so I can return it to him." Dupuy reached eagerly for the card, which Brand slowly extended to him. "This refers to that transaction of which you and he were speaking this afternoon," continued the lawyer.

Brand laughed loudly.

"Well, Dupuy, I'm a poor hand at guessing riddles. I give it up. What's the answer?"

The lawyer became impatient.

"The transaction involving the—ah—the investment—of a certain—sum of money," he explained haltingly.

"A business deal I was going into with the judge?" in amazement.

"Precisely."

"If I had any business with the judge, Dupuy, I would prefer to do it with the judge."

"But I am his plenipotentiary."

"Mhm, mhm!" grunted Brand negatively.

"You are rather unreasonable, Brand." A wearied and hopeless look began to show in the lawyer's visage.

The young editor noted this and resolved to temporize with and exasperate this man whom he despised above all others, even above Bartelmy himself. Bartelmy, believed Brand, even if he was a scoundrel, actually had superior mental ability, was a brilliant thinker and acted boldly in many of his dishonest transactions on the bench. But Dupuy—he was to Brand the hanger-on, the skulker, the vandal jackal that devoured corpses in the night that braver animals had fought and killed by day. His eyes blinked in the light, did Dupuy's. It was in the underground runways that he coursed the swiftest. And as these thoughts sped through his brain the editor looked away absently.

Dupuy came hot on his trail.

"Shall I make an appointment with him for you, say, tomorrow morning?" he anxiously queried of the newspaper man.

"I don't care."

"Then I'll do it!" he said decidedly and moved away from the desk. "And—er"— He saw that Brand was still indifferent. He returned to the desk. "Things will remain stationary until then?" he asked.

"A business deal."

"Things never remain stationary in a newspaper office," responded the managing editor laconically.

"What I mean is that there would be no story—er—about him until you see him."

"I don't know what you are talking about."

"Can we let it go over for one day?"

"I don't know what you are talking about."

"You insist on his coming here personally?"

"Of course I don't. I don't insist on anything."

"How much time have we got?"

"He knows all about that."

Dupuy was immeasurably relieved at this last remark. It was the first time that Brand had indicated that Bartelmy and he had had an engagement.

"Mr. Brand, I can almost assure you that my client will keep his appointment." The lawyer's voice rang out firmly.

The editor nodded carelessly toward the speaker, who spun on his heel and speedily strode away. The telephone bell sounded. Brand bent over quickly.

"Hello! Who—oh, yes, Mr. Nolan. No, sir, not yet, but I think we'll have him landed all right in about half an hour. Please don't worry about it. It'll be all right. Just go away and hide somewhere, for they'll be doing the baby act as quick as I trap him, and you'll be squeezed to death before we get to press. You promised me this chance. You want to know what's going on? Well, where will you be? Triple 3 Plaza. Get off the wire, Miss Stowe. Yes, Mr. Nolan, they cut in on us. I'll call you up later."

CHAPTER X.

BRAND hung up the telephone receiver with an anxious expression on his face. "Nolan must keep away from this," he muttered tensely. "Let him take a train or go to sleep or bury himself if he wants to. If Bartelmy or Dupuy gets hold of him after I've shown my hand there'll be the merry d—l to pay, and if they find him they might succeed in coaxing— I wonder if Nolan will stick; I wonder if Nolan will stick," he kept repeating over and over to himself.

The noise of voices raised in indignation broke in upon him from the outer hall at his right. "Oh, that's a chestnut," some one cried; "he's always out, always when I come."

"You're not out, are you, old man?" asked young Nolan of Brand. "Who's that fly duck that tried to keep me from coming in?"

"I'm sorry, Nolan; I'm very busy tonight, and you'll have to excuse me. I'm very busy."

"Brandy, old boy, I came in on business. Want to get a job for my friend Powell here. He's a poet." He dragged the wan eyed rhymester up to Brand's desk.

The editor looked Powell over.

"We don't carry poets on the payrolls," he grunted.

"But just look at this one, Powow, let Mr. Brand see your ode to the opening of the Omaha exposition. He went in the competition with this."

Powell handed the poem to Brand.

"And I see he came out with it," snorted the newspaper man.

"Yes, sir," agreed Powell faintly.

"People haven't time for poetry," commented Brand.

"That's what I've been trying to tell Powow," put in Sylvester. "He was born after his time."

"How would you like to be a reporter?" asked the editor.

Powell's eyes gleamed with a sickly color that showed that he was enthused.

"A reporter? Oh, yes, sir!" he said.

Brand took down the phone.

"Hello! Give me night city editor, please. Hello! That you? I've got a cub here named Powell. Please give him a week's trial. Report to city editor."

"Where is he, sir?" asked Powell, bewildered.

"You're a reporter now. Find out."

"Yes, sir." He started toward the hall door.

"Over here, Powow," cried Sylvester, leading him in the opposite direction.

Joe Dillon now added to the managing editor's troubles by again coming into the office.

"Thank you, Mr. Brand," he began. "Could you spare me a little car fare?"

Brand tossed him a quarter. "Never mind now," he said. "Say, Joe, go out with that cub tonight. It will give you something to think about, and you can show him as much in a night as he'd learn in a month alone. Mr. Dillon, allow me to present you to Mr. Sylvester Nolan. Mr. Dillon broke me into the business," said the editor to the newspaper owner's son.

"How would you like to be a reporter?"

Sylvester drew a ponderous wad of bills from his pocket and offered the top one to the old "down and outer."

"You want to handle my friend Powow with gloves," advised Sylvester. "He's just full of temperament."

The old newspaper man indignantly refused the money which young Nolan held out to him and plunged out of the office.

The poet stood a mute witness to the proceedings.

"Go after him!" commanded Brand.

"Thank you, sir," and Powell darted frightenedly after Dillon.

"Who is that old joker?" asked Sylvester of the editor.

"He was the best reporter that the Advance ever had."

"What's the matter with him?"

"Booze."

"Too bad! Well, a fellow ought to learn to control himself," remarked Sylvester pompously. "Now, Brandy, old boy, I want to ask you just one more favor tonight, in reference to a little actress friend of mine, Miss Gueneviere McKenzie."

"Oh—come—don't"—

"Run her picture in a prominent place, won't you?" Sylvester handed Brand a photo. "Miss Gueneviere McKenzie. Don't you know her? She's in the second row at the Tyroll, and it's a darn shame. I've got a libretto for her later on. Can't you help her out and get her a small part now?"

"I'm afraid that is hardly in my line."

"You'd be doing a favor to the show, for she's good enough to be a prima donna. She's been kept back by jealousy. Told me so herself. When will you have it in—tomorrow?"

Don't conclude that you have never had any opportunities in life.

OIL-DRILLER HAD GRIEVANCE

Doesn't Want Any More Dealings with Women, and Most People Will Not Blame Him.

In boring for oil, when the drill reaches the depth where it allows gas to escape, every precaution is taken against igniting it, lest there should be a destructive explosion. This necessary precaution gives point to the following story, told by a writer in the Pittsburg News:

"I can deal with men," growled a grizzled oil driller, "but a woman can outdo the best of us!

"The other day I brought in a well down in Virginny, right close to the kitchen door of a little farmhouse. Just as we were getting to the ticklish point, where smoking wasn't allowed within forty rods, out comes the farmer's wife and goes to building a big fire in a Dutch oven.

"Mebby I didn't kick, but she just showed me a batch of dough, an' said if she didn't bake it 'twould spoil. If I wanted the fire out I had got to pay for the dough. Ten dollars, too.

"She just dared me to touch that Dutch oven, an' I didn't touch it, either. I just gave her the ten.

"Mebby we didn't get that fire out quick. If the well had broken loose it would have blown me an' the whole farmhouse out of sight!

"No, sir, I don't want any more dealings with a woman. They're too risky."

CAT THAT CANNOT BE LOST

Left Behind When Ship Sailed Puss Boards Another Vessel and Follows 3,000 Miles.

Sailors and officers of the Norwegian steamship Minerva, which sailed for Baltimore to load coal, claim that they have on board the original and authentic "cat that came back," and moreover this feline cannot be lost.

The sailors declare that the cat boarded the Minerva of her own free will at the Lamberts Point coal piers over a year ago, and that she at once became a favorite on board.

The steamer was then loading a cargo of coal for Portland, Ore., and in some way the cat got left behind when she lifted anchor and steamed on her 3,000-mile voyage.

She had been at her destination eight days when one morning the cat again walked on board, and the only way the sailors could figure out how she got there was that she had stowed away below, but several days later the mystery was solved when it was discovered that after the Minerva had left Norfolk the cat boarded a British steamer going the same way, and, recognizing members of the crew of the Minerva at Portland, followed them back to the ship.

The cat got her picture in the papers on the Pacific coast for that, and she is still with the ship.—Norfolk Virginian-Pilot.

The Academy of Silence.

It is written that among the various schools of Grecian philosophy existed one known as "The Academy of Silence, composed of 100 men, each member pledged to the purpose of the school, writes Hollis Godfrey in the Atlantic. To them came one seeking admission. Their list of membership was closed and their head calling the would-be neophyte before the assembled audience, showed him without a word an urn so filled with water that not a single drop could be added. The neophyte, reading the message, bowed silently, started to withdraw, but hesitated and returned. Picking a petal from a flower, he dropped it on the brimming bowl so dexterously that it floated without dislodging the slightest particle of the liquid. The membership of the academy of silence became 101.

Not a Lager Beer Sign.

The lady was disconsolate. "My dear," she said to her friend, "I've had such a disappointment. Mrs. Blank and I were going to take the house at 23 Washington Square North for the winter. We had planned to furnish it so prettily, but when I went around to look at it the other day I saw one of those horrid lager beer signs right next door. And I thought that was a restricted neighborhood. Of course we can't take the house, and I'm simply heartbroken."

"Well, you can cheer up again then," replied her friend. "That wasn't a lager beer sign you saw. It was the double eagle of Russia on the coat of arms hanging in front of the Russian consulate."—New York Sun.

Can't Please Everybody.

Mrs. Asquith came in for a good criticism for inviting Maud Allen to a luncheon. Smarting under it, she invited next time the great Parisian artist in clothing, M. Poiret.

"This time," she said, "there will be no mistake. As the only objection to Miss Allen was that she was the artist who had reduced clothing to the minimum, I have invited the artist who has raised clothing to the maximum. Now there can be no criticism."

But, strange to say, there was.

Painted His House with Opium.

Silas Morgan, living on Whidbee island, Washington, found several dozen cans containing a substance resembling paint, and believing a case of red paint had washed ashore, painted his house with the material. On taking a sample to town, he was told that the sticky fluid was pure opium and each can worth about $300. As he had used or spoiled nearly thirty cans of the opium he had wasted more than $9,000.—Greenville News

CLOTHES MADE HIM NEW MAN

If Anyone Doubts the Tonic Effect of Good Appearance, Let Him Read This.

A London medical man, having declared that new clothing is a powerful mental and moral tonic, and that a man in shabby attire is often less capable than his well-dressed mental inferior, the Ottawa Citizen says that "it might give the doctor some trouble to explain why nearly all our millionaires wear trousers that bag at the knees and cling so pitifully to the ready-made necktie."

Instead of trying to explain why millionaires dress in that way we think the London doctor could very truly reply that "they don't." With the doctor's view that new and neat clothing is a powerful mental and moral tonic we heartily agree. One may test it in his own case, or note it in others, while always before us we have convincing evidence that women show the tonic effect of being well dressed. We may cite one case, says the Toronto Star. A Toronto man had been in hard luck. Largely through his own folly he had gone so completely to the bad that he was stopping his old-time acquaintances on the street and asking them for dimes. One man who had known him in his better days took him home and fitted him out with clean linen, a nice tweed suit, hat and shiny shoes. What was the result? The man who one day had been furtively wheedling dimes from acquaintances next day walked along the street with his head up and had no trouble whatever in borrowing one, two or five dollars from every person he recognized. New clothes made a new man of him, fired him with ambition and he raked in more long green in one day than he used to get in a month.

WHY HE WAS BEING WATCHED

Detective's Explanation Something of a Slur on the Quaint Old Dutch City.

During a period of political agitation a stranger arrived in Magdeburg, where, on applying to the authorities, he obtained a permit or ticket of residence. He had not been long in the town before he became aware that his steps were being dogged by a man in blue uniform. He bore it for days, but at last said to the spy: "Sir, do you wish to drive me mad? Why do you pursue me in this way?" "I am a detective, and my instructions are not to lose sight of you," was the quiet answer. "Why, what fault have the police to find with me?" shouted the stranger in the greatest excitement; my passport is in order, here is my ticket of residence; I am a citizen of Berlin; why do you follow me about?" "It states in your passport," was the reply, "that you were going to reside here for pleasure; that looks suspicious, as it is the first time anyone came to reside in Magdeburg for pleasure."

Wheat Older Than History.

Wheat belongs to the wholly distinct botanical family of the grasses. Its ancestral home is unknown, but so far as early narratives possess evidential value there seems some reason to credit its place of origin to western Asia. Wheat is older than the history of the man who has sown it from the beginning, of the farmer's art. The earliest memorials record wheat as already under cultivation; many races believed it the gift of the gods. The misconception as to the origin of this cereal suggested in the question may have been based upon a faulty recollection of a theory once proposed, namely that wheat was a cultivation derivative of the wild Triticum ovatum, a grass of the Levant. This grass was put under selective cultivation for a score of years and it responded to the effort in a considerable degree. It developed into a better grass, but grass it remained; it did not become wheat.

Salt Cellar in Olden Times.

During the latter part of the middle ages the salt cellar was the most conspicuous object on the table. It was always placed in the center of the long table at which the household gathered, my lord and lady, family and guests being at one end, and the servants and retainers at the other, and in this way one's social position was at once apparent, the "gentle folk" sitting "above the salt" and the yeomanry below it. Among the wealthy the salt cellar was of gold or silver. Benvenuto Cellini chased some for Francis I. that were of the most exquisite workmanship, and at the Louvre may be seen several rich specimens of salt cellars in faience, and the famous set made at Orion for Henry I.

The Oldest Family.

The Austrians are known to be the greatest "stickers" for genealogy, many of the nobles tracing their descent back to almost the dawn of history. Even in Austria, however, it is generally admitted that the dukes of Norfolk represent the oldest family in the world. According to the most trustworthy authorities the Howards are of Saxon origin, the name in those days being Hereward. So far back as 957 there are trustworthy records of the family.

Obliging the Lady.

"I see you've got an automobile," said Citiman. "I thought you swore you'd never buy one."

"Yes, I did say that once," replied Subbubs, "but our new cook insisted that we must get one because her church is so far away from our house."

Sense and Sensibility.

For some days the dining room had been disturbed by the invasion of the new boarder. She was fat, fifty and very sentimental, and her tender nature led her to whisper so many rapturous confidences in her neighbor's ear that all the rest of the table felt uncomfortable, so uncomfortable that one day after a harassed breakfast the neighbor determined to make a struggle for liberty and general conversation. Her opportunity came that night at dinner.

"Sweet flowers of spring!" murmured the sentimentalist, apostrophizing the nodding daffodil centerpiece. "Aren't they dear? So full of poesy! And don't you think that we ought always to call them daffadowndillies instead of daffodils?" she whispered.

"No, I don't," answered the neighbor uncompromisingly and quite out loud. "Just think how awkward it would have been for Wordsworth if he'd had to write:

"And then my heart with pleasure fillies
And dances with the daffadowndillies!"

For once the sentimentalist was silenced.—Youth's Companion.

Facts About Hailstones.

If it was not for the countless trillions of dust particles that float separately, invisible in the atmosphere, there could be no raindrops, snow crystals or hailstones. From a perfectly dustless atmosphere the moisture would descend in ceaseless rain without drops. The dust particles serve as nuclei about which vapor gathers. The snow crystal is the most beautiful creation of the aerial moisture, and the hailstone is the most extraordinary. The heart of every hailstone is a tiny speck of dust. Such a speck, with a little moisture condensed about it, is the germ from which may be formed a hailstone capable of felling a man or smashing a window. But first it must be caught up by a current of air and carried to the level of the lofty cirrus clouds five or six or even ten miles high. Then, continually growing by fresh accessions of moisture, it begins its long plunge to the earth, spinning through the cloud and flashing in the sun like a diamond bolt shot from a rainbow.—New York Tribune.

The Thunder Sounding Smoke.

The Victoria falls, the native name for which is Mosi-oa-Tounya, or the Thunder Sounding Smoke, have rightly been called the most beautiful gem in the whole of the earth's scenery. No pen picture or photograph can give the faintest idea of the marvelous grandeur and beauty of the scene. The majesty and mystery of the gigantic gorges, the foaming torrents, the wonderful atmospheric effects—all come upon one with a force and power as though nothing had ever before been read or heard in connection with them. The falls by moonlight are a truly fascinating spectacle. The roaring clouds of spray, the somber rain forest, the stream of the Zambezi shimmering far above the trembling earth, the lunar rainbow, combine to make an inimitable picture.

Where the Zambezi takes its mighty plunge of a sheer 400 feet the river is over a mile wide, or, to be exact, 5,808 feet.—Rand Mail

Horse or Beef?

The first day horse was served out at Kimberley some of it was cooked for the officers' mess at the mounted camp. At the table Peakman said:

"Gentlemen, I am sorry to say that we were unable to get all our ration in beef today and had to take part if it in horseflesh. This which I am carving is beef; the horse is at the other end, and any one who prefers it can help himself."

Nobody did prefer it, and so they all ate beef and made a good dinner. When they had finished Peakman suddenly exclaimed:

"By Jove, gentlemen, I find I have made a mistake in the joints. This is the horseflesh and the other is beef."

Needle Dust.

In factories where needles are made the grindstones throw off great quantities of minute steel particles, with which the air becomes heavily charged, although the dust is too fine to be perceptible to the eye. Breathing the dust shows no immediate effect, but gradually sets up irritation, usually ending in pulmonary consumption. Ineffective attempts were made to screen the air by gauze or linen guards for nose and mouth. At last the use of the magnet was suggested, and now masks of magnetized steel wire are worn by workmen and effectually remove the metal dust before the air is breathed.—London Graphic.

Not Entertaining.

A vender of fresh shrimps had had a very unexciting day. Money was scarce. Eventually in a dreary street a woman stood shouting at the door.

Hurrying up, he asked eagerly, "A pen'orth, mum?"

"No," she replied sharply; "a hap'orth. D'ye think we've got company?"—London Scraps.

What He Lacked.

"He's got no license to talk the way he does."

"Oh, he's got a license, all right! What he lacks is a muzzle."—Cleveland Leader.

Disagreeable.

Aunt—I can tell at a glance what other people are thinking of me. Niece (absentmindedly)—How very disagreeable for you, auntie!

Although the world is full of suffering, it is full of the overcoming of it.—Keller.

THE HOUSE OF MAYORS

Heads of State's Municipalities Decides to Form an Organization.

CHARLES J. FISK PRESIDES.

Plainfield's Mayor Talks on Excise and Is Appointed Chairman of Most Important Committee.

The conference of Mayors of New Jersey held at the State House, Trenton, yesterday at the invitation of Governor Fort, resulted in the decision of the executives of cities to form a permanent organization which is to meet annually for the discussion of municipal matters. The Legislature is to be asked to make an appropriation of $500 to defray the expenses and to pay for the printing of the proceedings and such other expenses as may be incurred. The organization is to have no permanent president, the presiding officer to be chosen for each meeting.

An important feature of the session was the condemnation of the present Bishops' law by Mayor Mravlag, of Elizabeth. He declared the law was a dead letter act and was violated in many cities Mayor Charles J. Fisk, of this city, who presided over the meeting, agreed with the Elizabeth Mayor, and asserted that the excise laws are not only violated, but are put on the statute books to be violated. A resolution was adopted providing that the Legislative Committee draft a bill amending the present Bishops' law.

Mayor Crawford, of Montclair, wanted the conference to adopt two resolutions, one providing that local officers be elected by separate ballots, and the second that there be no party designations. He asserted the best men should be elected to office without consideration of party, but the resolutions were defeated. The Mayors also voted down a resolution to have the term of their office extended from two to four years.

Governor Fort appointed committees on organization, legislation, taxation and municipal boards. Mayor Fisk heads the committee on legislation.

Legislation—Mayor Charles J. Fisk, Plainfield; Mayor T. Frank Appleby, Asbury Park; Mayor Victor Mravlag, Elizabeth; Mayor L. M. Cresse, Ocean City, and Mayor Edward H. Flagg, Tiverton.

Taxation—Mayor Bird W. Spencer, Passaic; Mayor C. A. McFadden, Long Branch; Mayor William Cardwell, East Orange; Mayor S. H. Ladd, Vineland, and Mayor Thomas J. Scully, South Amboy.

Municipal Boards—Mayor Andrew McBride, Paterson; Mayor F. P. Stoy, Atlantic City; Mayor C. S. Ellis, Camden; Mayor William Howard, Rahway, and Mayor John J. Cain, Bayonne.

Surprised Miss Geoller.

A surprise party was given in honor of Miss Florence Geoller at the home of Miss M. Flynn, of West Third street, Tuesday evening. It was largely attended. There were piano selections by Miss Flynn, Miss Geoller; vocal selections by G. G. Taylor and J. Slick, of the Franklin Minstrel Company. Refreshments were served at midnight.

Williamsbridge Here Tonight.

Basketball fans will have the opportunity of witnessing what should be a fast game tonight when the Y. M. C. A. aggregation will clash with Williamsbridge. The New Yorkers defeated the locals on their former appearance in this city but Plainfield is cocksure of evening up the score tonight.

Mary's Troubles.

Mary Czyrka, a Polish woman, appealed to Chief of Police Kiely this morning for help in capturing a recreant lover. The woman was unable to talk English and her case was referred to Overseer of the Poor Ayres. Louis Fay, of West Third street, went along as interpreter.

P. H. S. Entertainment.

The pupils of the Plainfield High School held an entertainment yesterday afternoon, and hereafter a similar affair will be given every Friday afternoon, the program to consist of recitations, vocal and instrumental music.

Stole His Meat.

David B. Hermann, a butcher, of 542 West Third street, reported to the police this morning that sometime during the night a front window of his store was broken and eleven chickens and three smoked hams stolen.

PLAN SPECIAL ELECTION

Borough Council Arranges to Prepare Sewerage Petitions According to Law.

IN CIRCULATION NEXT WEEK.

Council Pays Miscellaneous Bills and Grants Six Building Permits —Discussion on Sewers.

Within the coming week petitions will be prepared and placed in circulation in the borough for the purpose of securing the consent of fifty per cent. of the property owners which is necessary to go ahead with the proposed sewerage system project. It will also be necessary to secure the signatures of one-quarter of the property owners also, to conduct a special election for the issuance of bonds, to finance the project. At the borough Council meeting last night William J. Buttfield, chairman of the sewer commission, announced that the various petitions and other legal requirements are being shaped so that by next week things will be in shape for a general advance.

The Council had little business to transact and after the routine business was disposed of there was an informal discussion on the sewer matter. Everybody appeared satisfied over the manner in which the matter is progressing and the general opinion is that the borough will have its system in operation within another year.

On the recommendation of Councilman J. J. Stahl, five building permits were granted as follows: Edgar C. Schenck to erect a dwelling on Westervelt avenue, near Manning avenue; W. D. Debele, to erect a barn on Somerset street; L. A. Tunison, for the erection of three chicken houses on Maple avenue; U. B. Crane, to make alterations to a building on Verdon street; Walter M. Conover, to build a wagon house on Jackson avenue.

Miscellaneous bills to the amount of $4,961.93 were ordered paid. Of this amount $307.60 represented expenses in the fire department.

Boys Annoyed Her.

Mrs. Mary Holland, of Prescott place, complained to Judge William N. Runyon in the city court this morning of the actions of a gang of boys who have been annoying her for the past few weeks by snowballing her front door and steps. Three of the boys were in court this morning and received a reprimand from the judge and were instructed to warn the other boys that if the annoyance continues they will all be arrested and punished.

Bible Classes to Meet.

The Y. W. C. A. Bible classes will resume study at the association Monday night, following the supper at 6:30. These classes meet every Monday night and all interested are urged to join.

EAST END CHURCH OFFICERS INSTALLED

Preparatory services together with the ordination and installation of deacons and elders were held at the Netherwood Reformed church, last night, and were in charge of Rev. John Y. Broek, pastor of Trinity Reformed church, assisted by Rev. Royal A. Stout, pastor of the Netherwood church.

These elders were installed first: James C. Hanson, one year; Samuel O. Rush and William Carson, two years; then these deacons: Gustave Frumerie, one year and Claud Genond, two years. Enoch Berry, the third deacon elected for two years, was detained by illness and he will be installed and ordained tomorrow morning if able to be out.

The elders then met and elected Samuel O. Rush clerk. In the regular business, Miss Lillian Yorks was received into membership on confession of faith. James C. Hanson was elected primarius delegate to the Classis of Newark, and Samuel O. Rush as secundus.

Samuel O. Rush was elected president pro tem of the Consistory, and James C. Hanson clerk. Following the installation and ordination of deacons and elders, this advisory board to the Consistory was appointed, and will meet with that body regularly: Jacob Voehl, Jr., W. A. Banks, John Johnson, A. H. Stevens, George D. Merkel and Amos Andrews.

The first regular meeting of the Consistory will be held next week Friday night, following the prayer service and the first communion service of the church will be held tomorrow morning. Rev. John Y. Broek, assisted by Rev. Royal A. Stout will be in charge.

AN "INFANT PRODIGY" WILL BE HEARD HERE

Probably not one person in ten is aware that within thirty miles of Plainfield one of the greatest violinists in the world has established his residence, and it is possible that those wo do realize it, scarcely know how remarkable a man in many ways this musician really is.

Almost every year, there is launched upon the world a so-called "infant prodigy" of some kind or other. A little master of the violin or piano, who does wonders at the age of six, and then when a year or two has passed is never heard of afterwards. It is rare that one of these baby artists develops into something really great, and almost never does one of them attain the first rank, yet the famous Belgian violinist, whose name is now world known, Ovide Musin, was one of these wonderful children. At eight years old he already showed such a remarkable talent that his father sent him to the Royal Conservatory of Liege, and at eleven years of age he reecived the first prize for violin playing at the Conservatory.

Musin's knowledge of his art, aside from the mechanicial performance, is remarkable. He knows the history of the violin from the very earliest days, and has ever shown the keenest interest in this side of his work. He himself owns a number of remarkable violins and bows of great age and value.

Plainfielders will have an opportunity on February 22 of hearing this famous artist, under the auspices of the Boys' Work Committee of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Y. M. C. A.

ENJOYABLE BIRTHDAY SOCIAL AT HOME OF MRS. JOHN GILES

Mrs. John Giles, of Highland avenue, entertained a company of thirty-five guests at her home last night in honor of her daughter Grace, whose birthday it was. Games and music filled up the evening's card of entertainment and refreshments were served.

Among those present was Mrs. Steir, of Fanwood, and the Vroom brothers, of this city, who captivated the party with their playing and singing. John Consolic, of Cranford, also played and sang for the amusement of the company. The party broke up at midnight.

Mrs. Harry Hall Dead.

Mrs. Henry L. Hall formerly of this city, died at the home of her sister in Newport, R. I., this morning. She was a woman of loveable character and was prominent in charity work here. The husband and a daughter survive her.

Fourth Quarterly Conference.

The fourth quarterly conference will be held at the Monroe Avenue M. E. church, Wednesday night. Rev. Dr. D. B. F. Randolph, district superintendent in charge. Reports of the year's work will be presented.

CHANGES HIS PLEA; GETS LIGHT SENTENCE

Walter Jacobson, the Elizabeth National guardsman, who was to have stood trial on Monday to answer an indictment charging him with killing his wife the day following Christmas, decided today to change his plea from not guilty to one of guilty of manslaughter. This he did through his counsel and it was requested that sentence be pronounced at once. Accordingly, Jacobson was given three years in State prison.

Jacobson maintained that the shooting was purely accidental and his counsel declared that it would be shown at the trial that there was no motive for the deed. Jacobson is a member of Co. C, of Elizabeth, and that company has been raising funds in his behalf for the expense of the trial.

MIANTONOMO DANCE AN ENJOYABLE AFFAIR

Saengerbund Hall was crowded last night with a merry throng of dancers, the occasion being the annual ball of Miantonoma Tribe, No. 118, Independent Order of Red Men. It was one of the most successful dances in the history of the tribe and the committee is highly gratified over the good showing.

In addition to a big representation of local members of the order and their friends being present there were delegations present from New Brunswick, Perth Amboy, Elizabeth, Newark and other towns.

RICHARD BOYCE HAS A GOOD OLD HEN

Can local chicken raisers beat this record? Richard A. Boyce, proprietor of the Somerset Hotel has twenty-three hens and he is getting on an average of nine eggs a day.

One of Mr. Boyce's prize layers is a Plymouth Rock, which he declares he would not sell for a ten-spot. This hen has laid eleven eggs in the last eleven days.

Two weeks ago the hen had its right leg broken by being run over by a wagon. At the time Mr. Boyce had intentions of killing the hen, but about one hour before execution time the Plymouth Rock, started to cackle "like the old michief" as Mr. Boyce declared.

The latter decided that something was the matter and repaired to the henroost. There he discovered that the maimed hen had laid one of the largest eggs that he had gathered in many days.

As Mr. Boyce took the egg from the nest, amid the cackles of the hen, he muttered (and maybe the hen understood).

"Well, old girl, I won't chop your head off today, keep on laying and you shall continue to live."

The hen has been laying ever since and te indications are that it will live to a ripe old age.

THE PRIVATE SECRETARY.

Dress Rehearsals for the Show on Monday Night.

A dress rehearsal of the "Private Secretary" was held last night at the Park Club auditorium. Kindly critics were on hand to see the youngsters through. Finishing touches will be put on at tonight's rehearsal in preparation for the performance to be given next Monday evening at the Park Club at 8:15.

As an amateur performance the play bids fair to being creditably presented by a number of young men and women of the Bible classes of Holy Cross church. The proceeds go to the piano fund and for missionary purposes.

Sunday-school Teachers Meet.

The officers and teachers of the First Baptist church Sunday-school held their monthly meeting at the church, last night when reports from the various departments were presented. That of the treasurer showed the finances of the school to be in excellent condition. It was announced that a social will be held in the church, February 10, under the auspices of the Sunday-school.

Will Plan Good Friday Service.

The Plainfield Ministers' Association will meet next Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock in Trinity Reformed church. There will be no regular program, but there will be a discourse of the Good Friday service.

MINNIE MADDERN FISKE IN "SALVATION NELL"

For several months Mr. Sanderson has been engaged in efforts to induce Mrs. Fiske to visit Plainfield and present her greatly successful play, "Salvation Nell." Inasmuch as Mrs. Fiske's time is usually booked only in the larger cities for one or more weeks stay, it has been difficult to induce her to accept a single night's performance. Luckily for Plainfield an interruption occurred in her tour, and Mr. Sanderson hastened to New York and secured the prize for Saturday, Feb. 12, and for a single performance the production is so unusually large it requires two or more cars to transport the scenery, and a special wagon is now being built to convey the scenary from the railroad to Plainfield theatre. Owing to the great amount of scenery and effects employed, it is impossible to give a matinee, so contrary to custom there will be no holiday matinee on Lincoln Day.

The production is said to be marvelous in its completeness of detail, as are all of Mrs. Fiske's productions, particularly the Bowery scene of the first act, and what the New York reviewers declared to be the most wonderful street scene ever staged, that of the tenement five points, the scene of the third act. The Manhattan company of nearly fifty people supports Mrs. Fiske and both company and production are exactly as during the very successful New York run of the play last season except that the production is entirely new. This is a matter worthy of recognition in these days of shortened casts and curtailed productions for the road tours of successful New York offerings. Mrs. Fiske adds lustre to the American stage as she does to American womanhood and her engagement.

SALVATION ARMY PLANS FOR A CAMP MEETING

Commencing next Sunday evening at 8 o'clock the Salvation Army will inaugurate one of its greatest evangelistic efforts. The local corps is turning its building into a miniature woods which will remind one of the old fashioned camp meeting, which will last for a whole month. The decorations which are being placed in the hall will change its appearance so as to resemble a summer evening in the woods with all the environment of the real thing.

who will have charge of the singing during this special campaign, and she will also conduct the opening services. Meetings will be held every evening during the coming week excepting Monday and Friday. Captain and Mrs. Hewitt extend a cordial invitation to all Christian workers to take part in the great soul saving effort.

The decorations in the Salvation Army hall in preparation for the month of special services will prove one of the most novel enterprises the army has ever established. The hall with its rows of pine and spruce trees is a veritable camp in the woods. The platform is backed with a tent which gives the final touch to the rural appearance of the scene which is bound to attract the people to the services. The shade and light effects are particularly pleasing to the eye.

Glee Club to Meet.

The Y. W. C. A. Glee Club will meet at the association Monday night for rehearsal under the direction of S. Frederick Smith, leader. Twenty applications for membership have been received and others are desired.

Mrs. George Wellbrock is seriously ill at the home of her mother, Mrs. Mary E. Hope, of 932 West Fourth street.

TRADE BOARD COMMENDS POLICY OF DAILY PRESS

The following self-explanatory letter was received from the Board of Trade today with a request for publication:

Board of Trade,
Plainfield-North Plainfield.
Plainfield, N. J., Feb. 5, 1910.

Editor, The Daily Press:

Your publication of the proceedings of the meeting of the Board of Trade, held on Thursday evening last, in yesterday's issue of your paper, was correct in every detail and is worthy of strong commendation.

The Board of Trade of this city, like all other Boards of Trade, should be relied upon to use every effort in securing for the administration of this city, such sentiment as will help that administration in the execution of its work which will best satisfy the public, and it is highly important that the newspapers of the city of Plainfield report the proceedings of such a civic organization in an earnest, intelligent, clear and forceful manner. The Board of Trade of this city has set up a high standard and expects to follow it; one which will be full of activity, intelligence and thoroughness; not calculated to work wrong or harm to any man or men, but to stand for right and justice.

I might add that the reports in some of the other newspapers hereabouts were maudlin, insignificant and calculated, perhaps well so, to belittle the dignity of a time-honored institution and one which at this very meeting took in more members than it had during the entire previous year.

Believe me in thanking you again to be

Yours faithfully,
WILLIAM JEFFERY,
President.

A. S. HERR,
Secretary.

OFFICERS ARE CHOSEN BY PHTHISIS SOCIETY

The executive board of the Anti-Tuberculosis Society of Plainfield and North Plainfield, met last night, and formally adopted the new constitution and by-laws, presented in connection with the plans for incorporation, and officers were elected for the coming year. The reports received were of an encouraging nature and showed increased interest in the campaign against tuberculosis.

These officers were chosen: President, Rev. E. Vicars Stevenson; first vice-president, Dr. W. H. Murray; second vice-president, William Dutcher; treasurer, James P. Murray; secretary, Dr. B. VanD. Hedges.

En Egg Within an Egg.

From Somerville comes one of the most remarkable productions in the shape of "hen fruit" that has ever come to the notice of poultrymen. R. M. Culp, proprietor of Grace Poultry Farm in that town, is exhibiting an egg which has another perfectly formed egg inside it. The outer shell measures 8½ inches by 8 inches in circumference and 3½ by 2¼ inches in diameter.

The inner shell, which covers another egg perfect in contour is a fair sized specimen of a pullet's best efforts. Besides the egg inside the rest of the space between the two shells was filled with albumen.

Planning Good Friday Service.

All singers who have expressed their willingness to sing in the Good Friday musical service, are requested to attend the first rehearsal at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, Monday night. R. Laslett Smith, the director of the chorus, will be at the church tomorrow afternoon from 3 to 5 o'clock, and will be glad to receive in person any additional applications.

Miss Chadbourne Will Speak.

Miss Elizabeth Chadbourne, who has been conducting Bible class study at the Y. W. C. A., will have charge of the vesper service at the association tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock and Miss Hope Irene Miller will sing.

Plainfielders at a Reception.

Plainfield guests attended a reception given by Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Clark, of Elm street, Westfield, last night, in honor of their daughter, Miss Alice Clark. The evening was spent in games, cards and dancing.

Public Affairs Committee to Suggest to Common Council on Monday Night That Voters Pass on Proposed Big Bonded Indebtedness.

Primary steps will be taken, in all probability, at the regular meeting of the Common Council on Monday night to arrange for a special election to decide whether the voters will consent to a huge bond issue for the purpose of condemning the plant of the Plainfield-Union Water Company, the object being for the municipality to obtain control of the water supply.

The public affairs' committee, of which Frederic E. Mygatt is chairman, will make a report in which it will suggest that the question of bonding the city be submitted to the taxpayers as the law provides according to an act of the Legislature passed in 1876. It is proposed to have the corporation counsel draft the proper papers, to be submitted at the March meeting for the special election in question. The bond issue desired, according to reliable report, will aggregate the stupendous sum of one million five hundred thousand dollars.

Should the voters sanction such an obligation, the bonded indebtedness of the city will jump beyond the two million mark for it is now considerably over six hundred thousand dollars. It was but a few years ago that the bonded indebtedness was less than half the amount.

In the report of the Water Investigation Committee of the City of Plainfield submitted just one year ago this month, Corporation Counsel Marsh's opinion on the condemnation of the plant is published. In it, Mr. Marsh incidently says, in part:

"The statute under which this city may acquire the power to take and convey water from such sources as may be practicable, into and through the city, or to purchase water works from any water company, or to condemn such water works, &c., is to be found in General Statutes, beginning on page 646, and extending including the supplements in page 653. A further supplement will be found in the Pamphlet Laws of 1900, on Page 44.

"Before the city can exercise any powers under these acts of the Legislature, the provisions of the Acts are required to be assented to by a majority of the legal electors of the city voting at an election to be held at any time to be fixed by the Common Council, of which election the City Clerk is required to give public notice by advertisement signed by him, and set up in at least twenty public places in the city and published in the official newspapers for at least six days previous to the day of election. The clerk is required to provide for each elector voting at such election, ballots to be printed, or written, or partly printed and partly written, on which shall be either the words 'for the adoption for this city or the provisions of an act entitled "An act to enable cities to supply the inhabitants thereof with pure and wholesome water," or 'against the adoption for the city of an act entitled "An Act to enable cities to supply the inhabitants thereof with pure and wholesome water." Other details as to the time polls are to be open, manner of conducting the election, &c., are given in the same section.

"You are correct in your understanding that the Common Council is not obliged to proceed to condemn the present plant even if the election is favorable to that course. The act leaves the city free to take and convey water from such source or sources as may be practicable.

"You are also correct in understanding that the city is not under any obligations to accept the award of the Commissioners if Commissioners should be appointed to condemn the water works plant now in use in this city, provided, however, that timely action is taken after the Commissioners shall have reported to evince the purpose of the city to abandon the proceedings."

In another communication from the Corporation Counsel are to be found these extracts:

"'If the Plainfield-Union Water Company has the 'corporate right, power, franchise or privilege' of tak-

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

The funeral service of Whitfield Dunham was conducted at his late home last night by the Rev. E. O. Brown. The body was taken to Mr. Dunham's former home at Clinton today, where another service was held in the Presbyterian church at 3 o'clock this afternoon. Interment was made in the Dunham family plot at the latter place. A number of friends of the dead man accompanied the remains to Clinton.

There was another big crowd at the Dunellen A. C. fair last night. The Plainfield Baseball Club assisted the local boys by sending a delegation. The affair will terminate tonight.

The Home and Foreign Missionary Society of the Methodist church will meet on Tuesday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. William Rowland have recovered from the grip.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

Following a business meeting of the Epworth League held last night in the Methodist church, Rev. J. Manan, of New York, gave a short but interesting address upon Missions. The meeting was well attended and Mr. Manan's remarks were enjoyed by all.

Services tomorrow at the Baptist church will be Sunday-school 9:30 a. m., morning preaching by pastor 10:45, followed by the monthly communion; adults Bible class at 4 o'clock, only evening service being the B. Y. P. U. meeting at 7 p. m. in the parlors of the church.

Alexander MacCauley, who was painfully injured Wednesday by a fall from a building on which he was working at Westfield, was not so well yesterday.

Fred Clark, who has been dangerously ill with typhoid pneumonia at the home of his uncle in Newark, is reported as improving nicely.

James Fitzgerald still continues to improve from his serious attack of pneumonia, being able to sit up for a while now every day.

Mr. and Mrs. Emory Snyder and family have removed from Forest avenue to their new home on Second street, near Terrel road.

The weekly prayer and praise meeting of the Methodist church will be held tonight in the church.

NO "JAG" BOARD HERE.

Mt. Holly, Feb. 5.—Tipplers will now have the privilege of imbibing at public bars without fear of interference on the part of a "jag" commission, the local Township Committee having refused to appoint such a body after agitation by temperance workers.

For several weeks the temperance people have been before the committee in support of a petition asking for the "jag" commission, but action was deferred from time to time until this week's meeting, because the petitioners did not seem able to present the names of enough persons who would signify a willingness to perform the duties of such a busybody office.

Finally it was decided to end the agitation, and the committee turned down the proposition by a vote of 4 to 1.

JOHN J. O'MEARA WANTED.

Inquiries of a dying father for his son have caused Mrs. Charles D. Wesley of 172 Central avenue, New Haven, to write to Chief Corbitt, of Newark, in an effort to find her brother, John J. O'Meara, who is believed to be in that city. Mrs. Wesley wrote that her brother left New Haven seven years ago for Galveston, Texas. He has since been heard from in Newark and in Jersey City, but his address is unknown to his relatives. Thomas F. O'Meara, father of the missing man is dying according to Mrs. Wesley, and he constantly asks if "Jack's home yet."

The Senior Boys' Y. M. C. A. basketball team defeated Leal's School's "seconds" in a close contest Thursday by the score of 11 to 10. The line-up:

Senior Boys—Dunning, Love, forwards; Boice, center; Zerega, Hancock, guards. Leals—Foote, Rowland, forwards; Jewett, center; Brandege, McCutchen, Heeley, guards.

ENGINEERS AT WORK ON INLAND WATERWAY

Atlantic City, Feb. 5.—State engineers sent here from Trenton as a result of protests registered with Governor Fort by hotel proprietors and yacht clubs against further expenditure of State funds in the Cape May district began surveys Thursday in Grassy Bay for the Atlantic County section of the inter-reson canal.

As soon as the surveys are completed, contracts will be awarded and yachtsmen are promised that a considerable portion of the obstructed channels between Atlantic City and the upper end of the State canal will be opened up before the middle of summer.

State Waterway Commissioner Schneider declared that it will not be a difficult matter to bring Atlantic City into steamboat communication with Beach Haven, Barnegat and Bay Head, a dream of years which the shallow channels have heretofore made impracticable. He said:

"With three miles of excavating through Grassy Bay, where shoals have been encountered in the surveyed route for the canal back of Brigantine Beach, cutting through about 1,000 feet of shallows near Harvey Cedars, where the tides of Barnegat and Little Egg Harbor bays meet and the dredging of another 500 foot strip near Waretown, the new channel, which is to be not less than 100 feet wide and have a depth of not less than six feet of water, will be complete from Atlantic City to Bay Head.

There has been much criticism of Commissioner Schneider because work was started upon the canal at Cape May, where more than $75,000 has been expended by the State, instead of in the vicinity of Atlantic City.

The original plan was to start operations here and work in both directions. Schneider insisted yesterday he had nothing to do with the abandonement of the plan, as a result of which land syndicates in the Cape May resort section have been enabled to reap a harvest in improved boarding house lots facing the State canal.

BOY OF FIFTEEN HAS AN INCOME OF $37,500

New York, Feb. 5.—Michael J. Mulqueen was appointed by Judge Hendrick, in the Supreme Court Thursday, to take testimony as to the amount to be allowed to Robert A. Chambers, fifteen years old, son of the late Robert Chambers and Josephine Blanche Chambers, who died on February 7, 1909, and November 10, 1909, respectively.

The boy inherited his father's estate, which gives a total income of $5,700 a year. Mrs. Chambers, who was one of the Singer family, of sewing machine fame, left a will by which her son inherited practically the whole of her estate, which yields $30,000 a year, making the lad's total income $37,500 a year.

Mortimer M. Singer, maternal uncle of the boy, in his petition for the granting of an extra allowance of $6,500 a year for the lad's support, and education, said it would be a fair allowance, as the boy desired to purchase from the estate of his mother two horses and a miniature brougham, and to maintain the horses, carriage and liveried servants, and that he should be allowed to do so because of his position in life.

Young Chambers is now living with his maternal aunt, Mrs. Daniel M. Brady, at 23 West Seventy-sixth street. The petitioner set forth that Mrs. Brady lives in a style equal to that maintained by the boy's parents while they were alive. He said that the boy was attending the Berkeley School at a cost for tuition and board of $500 a year. The estate includes a farm at Newton, N. J., and lots and a tract of land in Trenton, N.

G. A. R. Night in Long Branch.

Long Branch, Feb. 5.—G. A. R. night in Long Branch will be observed February 10. On that date the department commander and staff will visit James B. Morris Post No. 49, at G. A. R. Hall and complete arrangements for holding the annual encampment here next June. Mayor Charles O. McFadden and members of the City Council and a delegation from the Board of Trade will be present to greet the members of the council of administration. The meeting will be open to the public.

GREAT REMNANT SALE

Began Tuesday Morning

Tables piled high with every sort of goods give evidence of the scope of the sale. We've hunted into every part of the store for these short lengths and odd lots—the search has been thorough.

A Remnant Sale at this store is much like separating wheat from the chaff—we mean to rid our stock of all short lengths and odd lots before we enter the new season.

Spring goods are arriving daily—we need the space taken up by these remnants—so out they MUST go. Prices are cut to just about half usual value.

We couldn't possibly tell you ALL about the splendid money saving opportunities of the Sale here—variety of goods on sale is so extensive only a visit to the store can acquaint you with the values. But—we say this—you may come prepared to share in the best Remnant values Tepper's have ever offered. Sale began when the doors opened—Tuesday morning.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

The annual outing of Millville Elks will take place at Wildwood Sunday, February 13.

In attempting to butcher a bull, Joseph Harris, of Millville, was pinned against the side of the pen and severely bruised.

A Williamstown storekeeper recently bought out a fellow merchant and is now selling the goods, most of which is stock bought before the Civil War.

Dr. J. G. Edwards, of Williamstown, was in attendance at the birth of a baby girl, perfectly formed and healthy, whose weight is only one and a half pounds.

Game wardens found a young deer dead in the woods near Dividing Creek Station, and are searching for the hunters who are believed to have wounded the animal.

Game Warden Edward R. Davis, of Salem, has in his possession a buck fawn that was killed by a bulldog below Cantoon. The warden has evidence against the owner of the dog, and suit will be started.

Squire and Mrs. John D. Clevenger, of Mt. Holly, noted but did not celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of their marriage Wednesday, Mrs. Clevenger not being physically able to participate in any celebration.

A burglar worked in daylight yesterday and succeeded in stealing jewelry and money to the value of $155 from the home of Elbert C. Hancock, of 886 Stuyvesant avenue, near Cadwalader Park, Trenton.

James Biggs, sixty years old, of 729 Clinton street, Camden, was held under $500 bail by Recorder Stackhouse, Thursday to answer a charge of brutally beating his wife because there was not food enough on the table.

After a four hours' consultation of committees from the Board of Freeholders and the Society of the Sons of the Revolution, relative to the replacing of a tablet on the Red Bank Battle Monument, no conclusion was reached.

The Burlington County Farmers' Exchange has closed a contract for 25,000 berry crates for distribution among its members. It will require a train of thirty-one cars to convey this lot from the manufacturing place in Maryland to Burlington county.

Relatives yesterday claimed the body of Reuben Edwards, who was horribly mangled Wednesday when his team was struck by an Atlantic City express train at Haddonfield. Edwards was seventy years old, a retired farmer, living at Oaklyn, and the father-in-law of former Assemblyman Edgar Coles.

The employes of the West Jersey and Seashore Railroad have been notified that hereafter they will be paid in cash from the pay car each man to be identified by some one in authority as he steps into the car. The notice casually mentions that the car attendants are to be heavily armed and that each pay car will contain a riot gun, which will be used to protect the car.

Notice was given Thursday by counsel for the defendants that an appeal would be taken from the verdict in the suit of Clarence Ross and Mrs. Jennie I. Thornton against Mrs. Amelia Ross Sparka and Emma Ross, an action involving an estate of $100,000, in which decision was given Wednesday for the plaintiffs in Camden.

Thomas Logan Gaskill, Willard Morgan, Harry Scovel and other Camden lawyers were in court Thursday at Mt. Holly acting as counsel for Harry M. C. Fly, who appeared before the court on a rule to show cause why his license should not be revoked. This crusade against liquor men of Mt. Holly is being carried on by Mrs. Charles H. Engle of that place, and in whose behalf a circular letter has been mailed asking for additional funds to continue the work.

PEDIATRIC SOCIETY IS FORMED BY PHYSICIANS.

With the distinction of being the second State society in the country, the New Jersey Pediatric Society was formed at a meeting held at the Free Public Library, Newark, Thursday night. The society, which will devote itself entirely to the diseases of children, was formed with a charter membership of thirty-four physicians who are especially interested in this branch of the profession. Nearly every city in the State is represented in the membership.

The organization of the society is the outcome of an idea that Dr. Coit has been at work on for some time. The only other State Pediatric Society is in Ohio. It is planned to arrange for about four annual meetings of the society, when all of the medical profession will be invited to listen to papers on hygienic subjects, presented by eminent practitioners. The first of these meetings will be held in Newark within a month. The annual meeting of the society will be held this year at Atlantic City the day before the annual meeting of the State Medical Society, which occurs about the third week in June.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

BASEBALL.

Just thirty-four years ago Wednesday some of the high moguls in the baseball world met and formed what is still called "The National League."

Hon. Morgan G. Bulkeley, of Hartford, Conn., was elected at this meeting as president of the new body, and Nicholas E. Young, of Washington, D. C., secretary and treasurer.

The charter members of the league were: Chicago, Boston, Mutuals of New York, Athletics of Philadelphia, Hartford, St. Louis, Cincinnati and Louisville.

The Mutuals and the Athletics were expelled on Dec. 7, 1876, for failing to fulfill their contracts. Then on Dec. 5, 1877, the Hartford and St. Louis teams resigned. A year later the Louisville club followed suit and on Oct. 6, 1880, the Cincinnati club was expelled for failing to observe the rules.

The present New York and Philadelphia clubs were re-elected to membership in 1883. The Pittsburg team joined in 1887. The Detroit club was elected to membership in 1881, but resigned in 1888.

A. Anson, now known as "Pop," was the first champion batter of the National League, and hit over .300 for fifteen consecutive years. In 1879-1887 be batted over the .400 mark.

The first National Association was formed in 1858, and was hastened by the poor conditions which existed on the amateur baseball field.

The interest in the great outdoor game has steadily increased since 1876, with a gratifying result being shown in England, Central America and Japan, while the Detroit club has been wintering in Havana, playing games in that vicinity.

The increase in attendance alone shows the interest. In 1901 there were 1,920,031 paid admissions, while in 1908 3,514,285 "fans" paid for the privilege of seeing games in the National League alone.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

The Junior Mission Band will hold an entertainment and sale in the lecture room of the church, this afternoon.

WHY WASTE THE MONEY.

On Monday night, the Common Council will decide whether a special election should be held to bond the city for the purpose of obtaining control of the water supply. We believe that every member of that body knows that the taxpayers would not permit a tremendous bonded indebtedness to be incurred for such an object. To hold an election would mean merely a waste of the people's money.

We have had a surfeit of this sort of thing. Too much of the municipality's receipts have been used for investigations that have only resulted in telling the people what they already knew and this at a great expense to themselves. The tax rate is high, the bond indebtedness is high; why, therefore, attempt to make the burdens heavier? The effort we believe, would be futile, but it would mean that the taxpayers' money would be wasted in defraying the expenses incident to such an election.

Plain Field Notes and Queeries

By Druid

We have had ample time to form a very definite opinion upon the artistic beauty of snow. As a Christmas gift it has its sentimental value for those of us who love old traditions, and the youngsters divide their affections between cold snow and hot plum pudding. But even in the case of feather-frozen rain water it is possible to have too much of a good thing. Here we have been smothered these six solid weeks under a cold blanket, once white and dry, now wet and dirty, and are getting eyesore with the glare. How nice it would be if our city fathers would preach and distribute civic sermons on the fine art of making ends meet by adapting means to ends better than we generally do. In the charming weeks of October and November, when skies were bright, the breezes balmy and bracing, and our lungs glorifying in the change from stuffy September, our model citizens were darkening the air with smoke from their burning leaf piles. How if they had stored these and all other sweepings against storm time? Give the beautiful snow its nine day show, and then set the neighboring village of Gotham a brilliant example of how to get rid of its snowfall economically and quickly by each householder melting his patch by his own out door fire.

* * * *

The high cost of living, or, as J. J. Hill, our wise man of the Northwest, happily puts it, "the cost of high living." Either way the thing is a fact but not at all a stubborn one. We flatter ourselves that we—our noble selves—are anything but really superstitious. In silly, childish ways we too, of course, confess to two or three, just to be sociable. All the same, no hard-headed nation is quite so far gone as we are on the meat superstition. One would be disposed to forgive it if we had any meat worth being superstitious about. I except pork, our most succulent animal product, next after the despised rabbit, which, however, needs the aid of pork to complete its deliciousness. We have no juicy beef, our lamb is flabby, our mutton as raggy as the beef, and store chicken is always a laughable delusion. Here comes Lent, when good churchfolk mortify their flesh by a supposed anti-meat bill of fare for forty days. I have known intimately a goodly number of women and men of high and low degree who have flourished galore on fleshless fare, some for forty years. So might I have done but for a sinful love of meats flavored by fire, burnt offerings more grateful to the nose than the palate, unless one lights on meats speckled with yellow fat all through.

* * * *

We seem to hear less of the cry that this is the golden age for young men than we did during the Roosevelt campaigns. Someone writes that grey-headed youngish men are now in fashion in the business world. It was amusing in the 80's so read in all the papers accounts of "aged" prisoners of 50, "venerable" patriarchs of 55, and to note the almost contemptuous way young cub editors and space writers would refer to eminent public servants in their sixties as if they were Egyptian mummies, no longer to be tolerated. This particular phase of journalism was undoubtedly inspired by upstarts, who wanted the aforesaid "old" men's jobs. At last the papers have discovered that it is bad form to make believe that while Englishmen in public life are in their full prime between sixty and seventy, their American cousins are considered played out when fifty. It was a disgraceful libel on our finest men of note. I have been privileged to converse repeatedly with Americans of the first rank in their public and private callings who were over eighty and in full intellectual activity. One was in his ninety-seventh year. The lengthy letters of some of these notable men are in so exquisite a hand as to put to shame the scrawls of public men only half their age.

* * * *

High time that the Times, and other papers behind the times, cry aloud and shout against the humiliating actions of the once flourishing New York church known as the late Dr. John Hall's. Since his virtual crowding out of its pulpit in his old age there has been "no luck aboot the hoose" and lately less than ever. We have listened to a succession of professional reviewers who have failed to revive its lost glories or even its vitality. The arts of singing men and sensational speakers have drawn audiences but not a congregation. Worthier ministers have been sandwiched between these, gifted preachers and genuinely zealous apostles and workers, of whom Dr. Broughton, of Atlanta, Georgia, is a noble example. We have thrilled under the power and charm of such as he. Very tempting offers were made to induce these survivals of the great days to desert their congregations and accept the bigger bribes of Fifth avenue. To their honor be it recorded that they declined with thanks. And now two good men in English pulpits have rejected the offer of a $20,000 yearly wage, with a furnished house thrown in. Is it decent to proclaim in public that great New York, that this vast and great land, no longer breeds great preachers? Even the newspapers of England laugh at the blunderers who think that Christian gentlemen can be bought with American dollars like curios at an auction sale.

SLICK HORSE THIEVES.

Westwood, Feb. 5.—A horse was stolen from the stables of George W. Collignon, and a light wagon and harness from George May, Thursday. The thieves visited the livery stable of Calvin Gardenier, at Hillsdale, and were about to drive out of the barn with one of the owner's best horses and carriage when they were discovered by a hostler. They told the employe that they had gotten into the wrong barn.

Questioned by his employer as to why he did not give the alarm he said that he thought the men were from the outskirts and had been attending the card party in Firemen's Hall. The police all over the county have been notified.

FINED THREE YERS AGO, BEGINS TO SERVE TIME.

Freehold, Feb. 5.—Convicted three years ago of selling liquor without a license at the Highlands and fined, William Conklin Thursday began serving out his fine in the county jail.

After his conviction in 1906 Mr. Conklin filed notice of appeal and gave bonds to await the decision of the higher court. The Supreme Court affirmed the conviction and sentence of the lower court, and Mr. Conklin's lawyers appealed the case to the Court of Errors and Appeals. Two weeks ago this court handed down an opinion affirming the decisions of the two lower courts.

When the case was brought up Thursday, Thomas P. Fay, Mr. Conklin's counsel, asked for more time, saying that if his client were given two or three more weeks he thought he could get the money to pay the fine. This Judge Foster refused to do, declaring that three years should be long enough for a man to pay his fine, and he was committed to jail. Unless he succeeds in getting the money to pay his fine, which was $300 and costs, Mr. Conklin will be compelled to serve out the fine at the rate of $1 a day, or 365 days.

Rev. C. E. Phelp's Will.

New Brunswick, Feb. 5.—The will of Rev. Charles E. Phelps was probated Thursday afternoon. He was pastor emeritus of the Church of St. John, the Evangelist. The will was drawn February 25, 1870, with a codicil dated February 17, 1883. He had outlived the witnesses, Arthur G. Ogilby and William H. Leupp, and the will had to be proved by the identification of signatures. A witness on the codicil, John Wycoff, is also dead. The will left one-third of the estate to his wife and the rest to his sons, Charles E. D. Phelps, of this city, and Rev. A. S. Phelps, of Bound Brook. The wife has died and the sons get the entire estate. The codicil simply changed one of the executors.

AMONG OUR NEIGHBORS

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

The honor roll in the schools for January is as follows: Primary department—Miss Lulu M. Coisen, teacher, Ruth Boss, Jeffery Soffield and George Wooden. Intermediate department—Miss Meta Soper, teacher, Helen Richard, Grave Boss, Mary Nelson. Fifth and sixth grades—Miss G. DeBoer, teacher, May Harlow, Nellie Roberts, Nellie McDonough, Laura Shrope, Robert Hamilton, Peter McDonough, Joseph Harlow, John Hogan. Grammar department—Frank Meskill, teacher, John Ball, Nellie Hogan, Winnifred Savered and Mary McDonough.

Miss Fitzgerald, of New York, has returned to her home after spending a short time with friends in town.

Mid-year examinations in the local school were finished yesterday and show much improvement in the pupils.

Mrs. M. Lyons, of Plainfield, visited her sister, Mrs. John Horan Thursday.

The P. O. S. of A., held a regular meeting at Washington Hall Thursday night.

Mrs. George Sandher is spending a few days with her sister in New York.

Mrs. Daniel Randolph visited friends in Plainfield yesterday.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

Richard Carle, the distinguished American comedian, author, composer and manager, will appear at the Plainfield theatre tonight in "Mary's Lamb." This is the lively and entertaining musical comedy that ran all summer at the New York theatre and during two long engagements in Chicago. It has been seen in all the big cities of the country from Boston to San Francisco. Mr. Carle brings here practically the same cast and the same large and active chorus that appeared with him all last season.

Mrs. Fiske will appear in her "Divine comedy of the slums," "Salvation Nell," at Plainfield theatre, Saturday night, Feb. 12. As the humble scrub girl of lowly environment Mrs. Fiske does some of the finest acting of her career. Her interpretation is sincere, tense, moving; every nuance in the girl's character is emphasized with exactly the right touch of delicacy, a feature that makes Mrs. Fiske's artistry preeminent. There is no exaggeration, no striving for effect. Mrs. Fiske does not "act" but lives the part of Nell Sanders.

FOUND DEAD IN A HUT.

Trenton, Feb. 5.—Covered with a few old coats and pieces of carpet, the body of Charles Davis, a farm laborer, was found Thursday lying on the floor of an old hut in a woods at Eldridge Park, a short distance from the Johnson trolley line, in Lawrence Township.

The body had evidently been lying there for some time. It is not known as yet what caused death but it is believed to have been caused by heart trouble, superinduced by exposure.

Davis, who was about fifty years old, built a two-room hut in the lonely woods some time ago, and went there to live with a brother. The former had been employed at different times as a laborer on the farms in that locality. The brothers lived in one of the rooms and kept chickens in the other.

CAPTURE JAIL-BREAKER.

Belvidere, Feb. 5.—Sheriff Wieder received a telegram from Carbondale, Pa., Thursday night stating that Roy Faulkner, of Alpha, who with James O'Brien escaped from the Warren County Jail, at Belvidere, about three weeks ago, had been captured there. Both prisoners were awaiting trial on charges of burglary and larceny.

O'Brien a few months ago escaped from the Flemington jail before his sentence expired. A reward of $50 was offered by the Warren County authorities for the capture of Faulkner, and there is an additional reward of $50 by the government, he being a deserter from the army.

PERSONAL.

Mr. and Mrs. Alberto Buccini, of New York, are spending the week-end with Miss L. A. Force, of Duer street.

Miss L. Walduck, of Truell Inn, returned home today after a pleasant visit at the Windsor Hotel, Atlantic City.

Mrs. Allen Coddington, of Fairview avenue, was called to Morristown today to attend the funeral of her brother.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Bremmer, of Jefferson avenue, are the happy parents of a daughter who arrived on Tuesday last.

Mr. and Mrs. D. S. Alpaugh, of East Sixth street, are now enjoying life at Nassau, Bahamas, stopping at the Colonial Hotel.

Miss Hattie VanNest, of Martinsville, Somerset county, returned home today after a pleasant visit at the home of her aunt, Mrs. Martha D. Colthar, 149 Duer street.

Mrs. A. Jackson, of 35 Somerset street, was given a surprise party at her home Thursday night in honor of the twentieth anniversary of her birthday. Cards were the feature, after which supper was served.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

The Sunday school of the First M. E. church will hold a missionary rally tomorrow afternoon. J. E. Skiff will sing and there will be other attractive features.

Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, pastor, will preach at the First Baptist church tomorrow, morning and night, and the Sunday-school session will be held at 2:30 and the men's Bible conference at 2:45 o'clock.

Special Musical Service.

There will be a special musical service at the First M. E. church, tomorrow night, under the direction of J. E. Skiff, organist. The special numbers will be as follows: Duet, "I Will Magnify Thee," Miss Laura Gesswein and Mrs. Joseph Dunham; anthem, "I Will Lay Me Down in Peace;" "Lift Thine Eyes," (Elijah), the Misses Bertha vanNuis Willis, Price and Laura Gesswein, Jessie Haines, Mrs. Harry Moyer and Mrs. J. E. Skiff; offertory solo, "By the Waters of Babylon," Mrs. Arthur Price; anthem, "O For the Wings of a Dove."

Served 245 Suppers.

The second night of the turkey supper given by the Ladies' Christian Work Society of Trinity Reformed church was well attended last night, 245 suppers having been served. This compares favorably, as far as numbers go, with last year. The higher cost of turkeys and other food stuffs may reduce the actual net receipts which last year were $286. In any event the affair was a success and the managers and workers are to be congratulated.

Alcove Club Doings.

The Alcove Club held a smoker in its rooms, 113 East Front street last night at which fifteen invited guests were present. The affair was arraigned by B. Bebout and William Curren. The club is arranging for its annual ball which will be held in Truell Hall after Lent. The committee in charge of this affair will be: William O'Keefe, chairman, James Forrestel, Joseph Lynch, Henry Bebout, Charles Bebout, Thos. Mahoney and William Curren.

Sunday School Competition.

At the Congregational Sunday school tomorrow the competition between the classes for the silver class cup presented by John M. Whiton for attendance, will begin. There will begin also a competition between the boys and girls in securing the greatest number of new members. At the end of four months the party that secures the greatest number will be treated by the defeated side to an entertainment.

Nineteenth Organ Recital.

The nineteenth recital in the series being given Sunday afternoons by S. ELECTION FOR BOND ISSUE

ing water from a subterranean source within the limits of this city and this city needs to acquire that 'right, power, franchise or privilege,' I think that the Legislature by the act in question intended to provide a way of accomplishing that purpose.'

"This proposition seems to me to admit of no doubt. For example, the company now has the corporate right of taking water from the subterranean source beneath the surface of the lands now owned by it at the company's pumping station in this city. Plainly the city (after properly adopting the act of 1876) can condemn that land and the corporate right to take water from the subterranean source beneath its surface. So if the company should acquire other land within the city and construct a new pumping station, the city could condemn that land and the pumping station and the right to take water from beneath its surface, and so on ad libitum provided always that the needs of the city including not only present needs, but the needs of a presumably largely increased population in the near future make it reasonably necessary that the city should acquire such rights.

"I am of the opinion that after the approval of the act of 1876 the city would not be bound to take all of the corporate rights and powers conferred by the section of the charter just cited, but may take such rights powers, privileges and franchises only as may be necessary to be acquired to accomplish the public purpose in view. See Sixth Ave. Railroad Co. v. Kerr, 72 N. Y. 330. If the city should take more rights, powers and franchises, than are necessary to be acquired to accomplish the public purpose in view, the Water Company would have just ground of complaint. I am of the opinion that under the act of 1876 above cited, upon its provisions having been properly accepted by this city, the city would have a right to purchase or condemn so much of the corporate rights, powers, franchises and privileges of the Water Company to take water from any lake pond, stream or spring, within the territorial limits of the City of Plainfield and the Borough of Fanwood and the Township of Fanwood as may be required for the domestic and other purposes by the inhabitants residing within the corporate limits of the city, provided that the right of owners damaged thereby be legally obtained or paid for as required by law, and to store and convey such water by means of acqueducts, pipes, mains, reservoirs and other suitable works and appliances, through the lands streets and roads of the City of Plainfield and said Fanwood municipalities."

THE FORUM.

Editor, The Daily Press:

In the report of the discussion on Sunday school matters at the Congregational meeting last Wednesday evening, a statement of one of the speakers, for the sake of accuracy, should be corrected or explained. When it was said by one of the speakers that three out of four boys who enter a Sunday school are lost, the meaning was that proportion after a time pass out of the membership of the school. It does not mean that anything like that proportion are lost to the church or to Christian character. It would be altogether too discouraging to have such an opinion spread. It by no means does justice to the noble and successful work done in our Sunday schools. From my own experience, I should say that not one out of ten are lost to Christian character.

Respectfully,
C. L. GOODRICH.
Pastor of the Congregational church.

Series of Special Sermons.

Rev. Ora J. Shoop, pastor of Grace M. E. church, will preach a series of special sermons Sunday evenings during February. Tomorrow night the subject will be "An Ancient King who Played a Losing Game Against God," and the succeeding ones will be as follows: Feb. 13, "Three Young Men With Three Consciences—and God;" 20, "Ruth, or Womanhood of the Rarest Type, the Secret Disclosed; 27, The Old Testament's Strongest and Weakest Man—and the Reason."

N. Y. AMUSEMENTS.

"Seven Days," the new comedy, which Wagenhals and Kempe produced at the New York Astor Theatre in November, is the season's success there. It deals with many up-to-date questions, woman's rights, divorc which is settled by the divorcee's falling in love and being married over again, a dash of spiritualism, and a burglar on the side, who hides throughout the play in many unexpected places, and finally assists in the denouement. "Seven Days" is bound to make a sensation, when it goes on tour.

One of the genuine treats of New York is "The Lottery Man," which enters upon its third month at the Bijou next week. This is the comedy which Alan Dale declared to be "the winner of the season," and it is a singular fact that every New York critic rendered a verdict equally as praiseworthy. The Shuberts, who are presenting this Rida Johnson Young comedy, have made no mistake in selecting Cyril Scott as the star. They are to be complimented lso on having surrounded him with a cst of more than ordinary calibre. The cast includes Mr. Scott, Helen Lowell, Louise Galloway, Robert MacKay, Harry S. Hadfield, Janet Beecher, Ethel Winthrop, Mary Leslie Mayo and Wallace Sharpe. The matinees are Wednesday and Saturday.

Prof. Lowie, of the American Museum of Natural History, Central Park and 77th street, this morning made a plastr cast of the head of Kiwi Amohau, leading chief of the Tribe of Maoris, now appearing at the New York Hippodrome. The plaster cast will be added to the New Zealand collection of the museum and later other casts will be made from the heads of several of the women of the tribe. Kiwi, the chief, submitted to th operation of having the cast made this morning, until the wet plaster began to harden on his face, when he suddenly became impatient and would have destroyed the result had he not been persuaded by his manager, Wm. F. Whyte, who accompanied him to the Museum, to remain quiet until Prof. Lowrie and his assistants were able to remove the cast.

"Madame X," the impressive drama by Alexandra Bisson, that so thrilled all Paris, was given its metropolitan premiere at the New Amsterdam Theatre, New York, on last Wednesday evening. Henry W. Savage is the producing manager and the cast is one of the most brilliant in years, the roster comprising Dorothy Donnelly, William Elliott, Robert Drouet, Malcolm Williams, W. H. Denny, John McKee, Harry G. Bradley, Charles E. Verner, Frank Wright, Christine Blessing, Mary Mallon and many other players of high rank. Not since the days when Clara Morris, in America, and "the divine Sarah" Bernhardt, n France, so moved the hearts of the auditors, has a play been greeted as has "Madame X." In dramatic thrill, tragic force and sympathetic appeal this drama of a mother's love has justly been put even a step ahead of such works as "Article 47," "Camille" and "East Lynne." Its tense realism and wnderful fidelity to truth set it apart as a veritable masterpiece of its kind.

REV. L. L. CROOM ADDRESSES MIDDLESEX CENTRAL BAPTISTS.

The Women's Auxiliary of the Middlesex Central Baptist Association of New Jersey, colored, held its second quarterly meeting in Calvary Baptist church, Saturday and Sunday. Mrs. M. E. Whindleton, of this city, the new president, presided, assisted by Mrs. L. L. Croom. The five counties were well represented with pastors as well as a delegation of women.

Rev. L. L. Croom, who had been previously chosen, delivered the address on Saturday. He said that true eloquence does not consist of words or long speeches; that there was nothing of value in them unless it had connection with high intellectual and moral endowments. He said that justification, active powers and perseverance are three qualities that produce the power to convict and these qualities must be within the speaker.

Mr. Croom said that one should realize his own personal responsibility and thus make use of the talents given to every man according to his ability. He commenced the women's auxiliary, adding that such organzations quicken the interest in the spiritual welfare of their own sex. He said that the prejudice against women is rapidly passing away and though the glorious light of liberty has come her ability and consecration to the work of the uplift of falling humanity. She can no longer say she is prevented from doing what she would for Christ.

A vote of thanks was extended to Mr. Croom for his excellent address and a synopsis was ordered spread on the minutes. The offering for home and foreign missions amounted to $50.

Elizabeth, Feb. 5.—The Union County Petit Jury for the January term was discharged Thursday by Judge Atwater, with the exception of one panel of twelve which is now engaged in trying an atrocious assault and battery case. The other forty-eight jurymen were paid off by Sheriff Kirkland.

MAY FAVOR A CHANGE IN THE BROWN IDEA

New York, Feb. 5.—Brown University, at Providence, R. I., should no longer be a denominational institution, in the opinion of a committee recently appointed to consider the relation of the Baptist charter, under which Brown was incorporated, to its present growth and needs. Everett Colby, formerly a State Senator, and leader of the "new idea" in New Jersey politics, made the announcement Thursday night as one of the committee, which also numbers Governor Hughes, of New York, and President Faunce, of Brown.

Brown, Mr. Colby told his fellow-graduates at their annual banquet had largely departed from the denominational idea, but still feels itself fettered by its charter. The faculty, he thought, could be improved if it were not restricted to Protestants exclusively, and its members could then also share in the benefits of the Carnegie Foundation.

OUR IMMIGRATION TOTAL FOR PAST SEVEN YEARS.

Washington, Feb. 5.—Interesting comparative facts are disclosed in a study of the immigration to the United States for the seven years ended June 30 last, during which time 6,617,155 aliens were admitted, more than seventy per cent. of whom came from southern and eastern Europe and western Asia, composed largely of southern Italians, Greeks, Hungarians, Hebrews, Roumanians, Slavs, Bulgarians, Turks, Armenians and Syrians.

The addition to the population in those seven years was more than a million greater than the total population of the New England States, according to the census of 1900.

Estimates are that the immigration to the United States during the present fiscal year will aggregate more than 900,000 people. During the first six months of the current year 11,519 were denied admission.

MRS. BROKAW WINS SUIT; GETS $15,000 ALIMONY.

Mineola, L. I., Feb. 5.—Mrs. Mary Blair Brokaw has been granted a separation from her husband, William Gould Brokaw, by Justice Putnam, of the Supreme Court, and alimony of $15,000 a year. In an opinion filed with the clerk of the Nassau Court Thursday Justice Putnam held that Mrs. Brokaw's allegations against her husband of cruel treatment are fully proven and that she is entitled to the separation decree.

Her request for alimony of $30,000 a year, however, was held by the court to be excessive in view of the Brokaws' proven statement regarding his income. The justice cut the amount in half in making the alimony award.

THREE YEARS FOR SLASHER.

Newton, Feb. 5.—Judge Hunt yesterday sentenced Antonio Meyer, who pleaded guilty to assault and battery on Frank Souigh, to three years in State prison. The prisoner had cut Souiga in the face at the home of a fellow-countryman, Thomas Green, last Christmas morning. In pleading guilty he had saved the county the expense of a trial, which inclined the judge to leniency.

William O. Bell, of Andover, a confessed wife-beater, was sentenced to Rahway Reformatory, and then the operation of the sentence was suspended under the condition that Bell treat his wife with respect and secure employment. There were two indictments against Bell, the other sentence also being suspended. "I have a very small feeling of mercy and absolutely no respect for a man who beats his wife," said the court Judge Hunt said but for the fact that the defendant's wife and child had no support aside from that which he furnished, the operation of the sentence would go into effect immediately.

Bell is a deserter from the United States army, and was captured during the past fall by detectives in the service of the government five years after desertion. Nothing was done with his case.

SPENDING MILLION DOLLARS.

South Amboy, Feb. 5.—Nearly half a mile of track and trestle have been built in connection with the new coal dumper now in course of erection. The steel structure, eighty feet high, that is to be the machine that will grip a fifty ton car full of coal, and turn it completely over, spilling its contents into the hold of a waiting vessel, doing this at the rate of fifty tons every three minutes, is receiving the finishing touches.

Engines, cars and crews are contributing their share toward completing the greatest transformation that South Amboy has ever seen. When this is done a duplicate of the same is to follow on a nearby pier. This work involves the outlay of more than a million dollars. The first dumper is expected to be in operation by May 1.

JERSEY POSTMASTERS.

Washington, Feb. 5.—The President sent to the Senate Wednesday the following nominations to be postmastes: Louis Sabow, Chrome; Brice P. Walling, Sussex; James W. Kelly, Tuckerton; Jacob Feldman, Woodbine; Samuel L. Major, Roebling.

LITERARY

Some figures prepared from the 1905 anthracite coal output—practically all from Pennsylvania mines—will convey an idea of where the country's hard coal renders its final accounting. In that year New York, New Jersey, and Pennsylvania consumed in round numbers 41,000,000 tons; New England, 8,000,000 tons; States west of the Ohio river, 7,000,000 tons; Southern States, 2,000,000 tons, and Canada, 2,000,000 tons. Only 40,6000 tons were exported.—From "Our Coal Supply To-Day," by Guy Elliott Mitchell, in the American Review of Reviews for February.

Charles Dudley Warner once went so far as to say that no matter how objectionable the character of a paper may be, it is always a trifle better than the patrons on whom it relies for its support. I suspect that Mr. Warner's comparison rested on the greater frankness of the bad paper which, by very virtue of its mode of appeal is bound to make a brave parade of its worst qualities; whereas the reader who is loudest in proclaiming in public his repugnance for horrors, and his destation of scandals, may in private be buying daily the sheet which peddles both most shamelessly.—Francis E. Leupp, in the February Atlantic.

The February number of "Success Magazine" opens with a remarkable series of letters entitled "The Things He Wrote to Her," by Richard Wightman. "Where Business Which Rules Us All, Is Not Quite Wise—As Yet," is the third instalment of Charles Edward Russell's series entitled "The Power Behind the Republic." There is a timely and authoritative article by Louis Brownlow, late of the Orient, entitled "Our Chance in China." E. A. Van Valkenburg.

The Strand Magazine for February contains two serial stories, five short stories and six striking articles, besides several pages of those "Curosities" with which Strand readers have become so familiar during the last few years. A. E. W. Mason's exciting story, "The Murder at the Villa Rose," is continued and increases in interest as the complications grow. M. Hanaud is a detective well able to cross swords with the immortal Holmes.

JERSEY GOLFERS BEATEN IN VERY CLOSE MATCH.

Palm Beach, Fla., Feb. 5.—John J. Radel, a member of the Baltusrol Golf Club of Short Hills, and the Forest Hill Golf Club of Forest Hill was beaten here Thursday in the feature match for the Lake Worth championship.

In the first round there were five extra hole contests, but the one in the first division, where R. H. McElwee captured the twenty-first hole after Radel had led all the way around, was easily the best.

H. Allsopp, of Forest Hill, N. J., is the only other metropolitan player in the championship division, having disposed of G. W. Willett, of the Country Club who tied for low score in the qualifying round.

FOR ASSISTANT PROSECUTOR.

Hackensack, Feb. 5.—The principal topic among Bergen's politicians is the question who is to be appointed assitant to Prosecutor Wendell J. Wright. It is understood that John S. Mackay, who has held the position for over five years, will not be selected.

Mr. Wright says that there are four candidates in the field: District Court Judge Guy L. Fake, a former Assemblyman and Republican county committeeman; John G. Zabriskie, of Wyckoff, who represents that borough in the county organization; Edward C. Irion, of Hackensack, and William E. Ellis, of Edgewater. John M. Bell, of Rutherford, is said to be a possible candidate.

While Prosecutor Wright did not say that he would not reappoint Mr. Mackay, he did say that there are four candidates of whom he had knowledge and Mackay was not one of the four. He further stated in connection with Mr. Mackay that if the position was not worth asking for it was not worth having.

Questioned about the matter by a reporter, Mr. Mackay stated that he had nothing to say at this time.

MAY SELL O'DAY ESTATE.

Asbury Park, Feb. 5.—Residents of Deal are stirred by a report that negotiations are under way for the purchase of the Daniel O'Day property, one of the largest country estates along the North Jersey shore. Report has it that negotiations have been opened by various academies and boarding schools, and yesterday it was said that a New York school for boys was about to close a sale.

The house on the estate was built for Daniel O'Day, a Standard Oil man, and was completed in 1904. The property consists of about forty acres. The house was designed by George Freeman Thompson and is reported to have cost $250,000. The property is assessed at about that figure. Last summer part of the house was rented for $6,000, realty men say. O'Day occupied the other part. An inventory of the estate was taken last Friday. Local real estate agents, it is understood, were informed recently that the O'Day property had been withdrawn from the market. The estate borders on Deal Lake.

THE FOURTH ESTATE

Novelized by
FREDERICK R. TOOMBS.

From the great play of the same name by Joseph Medill Patterson and Harriet Ford. Copyright, 1909, by Joseph Medill Patterson and Harriet Ford.

"I scarcely think we can do that sort of thing in the Advance. We don't print pictures of chorus girls unless there's some good story about them—lost jewels, barred from a hotel on account of a dog, divorce or"—

Sylvester broke in relievedly, "Oh, she's been divorced!"

"Has she! When?"

"Last year."

"That's dead. Wait till her next. She doesn't go in."

"Why—why—won't you do it?" stammered the young man, who, deeply appreciating the fact that he was his father's son—yes, indeed—failed to comprehend how any employee on the Advance could refuse him anything. "She's the cutest little girl you ever saw, you old gazoot. You stick to me, and I'll give you an interest in this paper some day. Why, she was in"—

He inserted the point of the lead pencil.

"That all may be," responded Brand, rising to end the conversation, "but the Advance doesn't issue passes to the stage entrance."

Sylvester's jaw fell in his astonishment at this unexpected blow, and after a moment, after vainly endeavoring to find appropriate words for a reply, he went out of the room.

Brand was impatient because of the precious time that had been wasted. He had work to do and little time in which to do it, and it was the most important work he had ever done in his life.

He sent the office boy to bring the two reporters, Howard and Jeff. Speaking to Miss Stowe, the "central" of the Advance's private telephone system, he said: "Do not put anybody else on this wire until you hear from me, no matter how long it takes. Understand? Connect this phone with editorial room 4 and have it connected until I tell you. Now be sure about this. Understand? Again he repeated, as it concerned the success of his entire scheme, "Don't break the connection until I tell you myself."

The two reporters came in.

"Now, boys, understand what I want you to do. You've got to take, word for word, a conversation I'm going to have here. Go in room 4. You, Jeff, take the receiver."

"Yes, sir."

"And you, Howard, take the extension. Thus you will each hear what is said. Keep it glued to your best ear and take down every word you hear tonight between Judge Bartelmy and me. The judge will sit in the chair at the right of my desk. I will be in my own chair. The telephone will thus be midway between us. Whatever words he and I say will be said almost directly over the mouthpiece of the phone. Now, you see what I am going to do"—

Brand took a lead pencil from his pocket and began a proceeding which the two reporters, accustomed as they were in their business to ingenious strategy, failed at first to understand. Then the scheme dawned on them. Brand took the telephone receiver from the hook, and the metal arm immediately snapped upward, establishing the connection. Then he inserted the point of the lead pencil in the small aperture under the little metal arm or hook and deliberately broke it off. The tiny wedge thus held up the hook. Brand now hung up the receiver, and the pencil point prevented the weight of the receiver from bearing the hook down and breaking the connection. The connection was made continuous without the slightest indication that such was the case. Every word now spoken within a reasonable distance of the mouthpiece would be conveyed to the telephone and the extension telephone in editorial room 4, where Howard and Jeff were to be stationed. They had stenographers' pads with them, on which they were each to take down the conversation in shorthand.

"This phone will be open all the time that Bartelmy is here," announced Brand. "Go in there, Howard, and see if you can hear Jeff and me talking. Sit over here, Jeff." He pointed to the chair at his right. Howard went out.

"Now, Jeff, take down this and take down what you say to me," continued the editor.

"Jeff, you know I think the dog in the moon was seven times too slow in his journey through the paths of men, having lost 6,749,739,274,480 pounds in his auto northward. Is that your opinion?"

"No, not entirely. Hence and hereafter we complain of such a miraculous egotism of generality and solecism of peaceful garments and cold thought."

Brand struck a blow on the desk.

"On the contrary, it was unquestionable and with nasty justice, miscalled

"One can never be too careful about matters of this kind."

namby-pamby—got it?" cried the editor, bending over the mouthpiece. "Come in, Howard!"

Howard hurried into the room.

"Compare your notes, boys," instructed the managing editor.

They held the records side by side and quickly glanced over them.

"They are almost exactly the same," they exclaimed in unison.

"All right. Now chase back to room 4, both of you!"

The office boy brought Brand a card. He took it, and as he glanced at it his eyes narrowed down into little sparks of light.

"He's on time," he murmured. "Very well, Durkin," he ordered, "show him in, and, Durkin, remember, don't let any one else in under any circumstances."

A half a minute later Judge Bartelmy stood in the doorway. He nodded briefly to Brand, and his eyes swept around the entire room before he stepped in. Slowly he proceeded in front of Brand's desk.

"Good evening, judge," said the editor.

"Good evening, Mr. Brand."

"Let me take your things. I'll hang them up," offered Brand. Just as Dupuy had been, Bartelmy was in evening dress. He took off his white kid gloves and put them in his pocket and then handed his hat and coat to the editor. Brand opened the door of a closet at the right hand side of the room and hung the judge's things therein. He closed the door. Bartelmy stepped to the closet, opened the door and peered sharply into its four corners, even fumbling behind his long coat, to make sure that no witness was lurking there to spy on him.

"Oh, that's the way you feel!" commented Brand. "I'll show you over the place. But you shouldn't worry."

Bartelmy coughed nervously.

"One can never be too careful about matters of this kind, Brand. I should think that you would have learned that much by this time."

"This is my first experience of this kind," said Brand.

"Of course it is," answered Bartelmy, with a tinge of sarcasm in his voice. "It always is 'the first time.' But you are assuredly very lucky indeed, Brand, to do so very well at your first try at—at"—

"Come, look over the place, and let's get through with it," put in the editor.

He crossed and locked the door through which the judge had entered. Then he led his visitor over to the door on the opposite side of the room opening into a hallway which extended to various rooms. He pointed to the room directly across the hall. "It's quite dark, you see," he said. "This is where a couple of editorial writers sit. They go home nights, lucky dogs, not being newspaper men." Bartelmy was quick enough to catch the ironical comment of the busy managing editor on the scholarly men who wrote the opinions of the paper. Brand drew the judge back into his office and locked the door behind him.

"Now we are alone, absolutely alone," commented Brand significantly. He led the way to his desk and pointed out to the judge the chair at the right hand side. Brand dropped into his own chair. "Have a seat, judge," he said.

Judge Bartelmy drew the chair indicated even closer to the managing editor's desk and seated himself in it. He leaned forward toward Brand and rested his elbow on the desk. His face was within ten or twelve inches of the telephone.

CHAPTER XI.

BARTELMY, now that he had taken the final and extremely distasteful plunge and had come to the office of the Advance, waited for Brand to make the opening remarks about the particular object of his visit.

Brand was waiting for the judge to do the same. It was the newspaper man who spoke first, after the two had seated themselves. He was anxious to get the matter over with as quickly as possible, for he well knew that, in spite of all his precautions, affairs in a newspaper office are so uncertain that an interruption of an unexpected nature might occur to ruin the entire plan.

PIANO MOVING A SPECIALTY.

"Mr. Dupuy was here a short time ago," he ventured.

Judge Bartelmy proceeded to explain the appearance of the lawyer lobbyist in the affair. While it was plain to Brand that the judge had sent Dupuy as a go-between so that it would be impossible to connect Bartelmy with the payment of any money as a bribe, the jurist did not propose to acknowledge that such had been his laudable purpose. He gave an entirely different reason.

"Yes, I know," he said. "He found me at the opera with my daughter. I hoped, Mr. Brand, that by allowing me to act through him you would spare me this last humiliation."

"Would it not be safer for you if no third party knew of your transaction with me?" suggested Brand.

The judge pitied the colossal ignorance of this amateur in trickery. Did not he know that in the superior spheres of crooked practices it became necessary to employ third persons on many occasions to put through matters of this sort? And he was a newspaper man of years of experience too. No, this peculiar young man would never finish supplying the judge with surprises; of that Bartelmy was positive. Perhaps it might be in order to observe at this point that, while Brand of course could not know that these thoughts were passing through his visitor's mind, he at the same time would have been ready to confess that he was going to provide several more surprises for the jurist. But there are different varieties of surprises.

"Dupuy is in my confidence," the judge pronounced with an air of finality.

"He's not in mine," responded the managing editor.

"You're mistaken in him. I know him intimately."

"Oh, the pity of it," exclaimed Brand, "that you should be intimately acquainted with such a man as Dupuy!"

Bartelmy could not restrain a sarcastic smile at the editor's sneer at Dupuy.

"Mr. Brand," he said quickly, "your moral reflections at this juncture impart a certain quaint humor to the situation."

"I am afraid that is the trouble with me. My humor is nearly always unintentional." Brand sighed as though sorry for himself.

The judge began to show signs of nervousness.

"Well, shall we get on with it?" the editor asked him.

"Yes. I must rejoin my daughter. She's waiting for me at the opera. She was very anxious that I should not come here tonight. It was curious—her persistency in the matter."

Brand drew his chair closer to the desk—closer to the telephone.

"Let us get to business," he said.

The judge went on talking about his daughter.

"She displays an unusual, I should say an extraordinary, curiosity as to my mission here," he said. "My daughter would have made a great cross examiner if she had been a man."

"We're wasting time, judge." Now it was Brand who was becoming impatient.

"Am I to understand that the payment of this sum"— Bartelmy began.

Brand raised his voice to a high pitch.

"Ten thousand dollars!" he said.

"Yes," agreed Bartelmy cautiously. "Am I to understand that it—ah—wipes out of your recollection not only the incident of which you were speaking, but also as to"— He paused.

Brand helped the would be briber to complete his sentence.

"You mean your secret interview last night with Dupuy and the attorney for the Lansing"—

"Yes, yes."

"Lansing Iron corporation?" continued Brand, bending close to the telephone.

"Yes. Will this sum, paid in hand, induce you to forget—ah—not only that incident, but also various other matters to which the Advance seems to have taken exception in the past?"

"Dupuy is in my confidence."

Brand sank back in his chair.

"You mean you want us to let up on you all around?"

"Precisely."

"Then that's understood."

"You will make a memorandum for me in writing to that effect—a receipt, so to speak?"

He pushed a pad toward the managing editor.

"All right—certainly," agreed Brand, taking up a pen.

The judge began to congratulate himself on the ease with which he was handling the young man.

"This is—ah—more business like," he said.

But Brand gave him another shock when he said:

"Yes; I'll draw it up in duplicate. Each of us will keep a copy—signed."

"Ah—ha—ha!" The jurist leaned back and laughed. "You're a clever lad, Brand. Well, well; youth will be served." He pushed the pad away.

"It's getting late, judge," he warned.

Bartelmy reached into the inside pocket of his evening dress coat and extracted an oblong package. Slipping off a rubber band that encircled it, he unwrapped the yellow paper and laid before him on the managing editor's desk a neat stack of crisp new bank bills, all of the $500 denomination.

Bartelmy started to count the money, but he desisted and pushed the bills over toward Brand.

"Count it," he said.

"You count it."

The judge leaned forward and began the task. His head was within four or five inches of the mouthpiece of the telephone. He picked up the bills, one at a time, and as he counted them he laid them in another pile.

"Five hundred," he said—"one thousand, fifteen—two thousand, twenty-five—three thousand, thirty-five—four thousand, forty-five—five thousand. There is half of it," he remarked.

"Yes; that's $5,000," assented Brand.

"Six thousand," said the judge, continuing with his task—"seven thousand, seventy-five—eight thousand."

"Eight thousand dollars," agreed Brand.

"Nine thousand," counted the judge.

"Nine thousand dollars," said Brand.

"Ten thousand dollars," the judge counted.

"Is that correct?" he queried of the editor.

"Ten thousand dollars, correct," was the reply. "That will wipe the slate clean between us."

Brand held out his hand to take the money.

The judge picked up the pile of bills, compressed them with his hands and extended the money across the desk.

"Take it, Brand," he said.

As the false judge said these words and stood with the money in his hands and held it out to the editor a loud explosion thrilled every nerve fiber in his body. A blinding glare of light filled the room, and the air was filled with the choking gaseous fumes of the smoke of the powder used by photographers in making flashlights.

A pang of terror shot through the craven heart of the would be briber. He started back in his alarm, his eyes almost blinded by the unexpected flood of light that had subsided as quickly as it had come.

"My God! What is that?" he cried, rubbing the back of one of his hands across his eyes.

Wheeler Brand, who had risen in his place at his desk when the judge had finished counting the money, set his face into hard, unyielding lines as the judge besought him to speak, to explain. He had won. He had completely at his mercy this cold, crafty betrayer of the public trust he had sworn to hold sacred. And it was with unmistakable triumph in his voice that he gave the reply that was to be imprinted on the brain of the false judge as long as he was to live—a reply that would haunt him while awake and awake him when he slept:

The judge, realizing that he had been tricked—that he had been photographed in the very act of handing bribe money to the managing editor of the Advance—displayed rare presence of mind for a man whose complete social and professional ruin had become suddenly imminent. He rushed across the room at the point where the flash occurred, hoping to obtain hold of the camera and destroy the plate. Owing to the pall of smoke he had been unable to see just in what manner the camera had been arranged. But when he reached the side of the room there was no camera to be seen, only a round hole extending through the partition into the next room and from which the camera had been removed. He stood and gazed in dismay. He knew now that he was at the mercy of Brand and the Advance to a degree that he hardly dared to estimate.

He turned around and walked back to the desk. Brand was still standing in his place, looking fixedly at the judge.

Bartelmy was not beaten yet. He knew that he would not be beaten until the Advance appeared in the streets spreading forth to all the world the story of his shame.

Shaking from head to foot in his rage, he pounded the desk and cried out:

"You have gone to all your trouble for nothing. I am going direct to Mr. Nolan's house, and in less than an hour you will receive orders to kill that story—that dastardly pack of lies you want to print!"

Brand smiled calmly. He gathered the $10,000 in bills, which lay scattered on the desk where Bartelmy had thrown them when he dashed for the camera.

"I'll keep these as evidence," he said. "When they have served their purpose we will return them to you, or maybe we will send them to the minority stockholders in the Lansing iron company. That's who the money probably belongs to."

Bartelmy accepted the situation with stoical composure for the time. He saw that he would have no chance in a hand to hand struggle with the young athletic editor for possession of the money. Besides, he must see Nolan—must see him at once. That was the most important matter to which he should now attend.

He walked deliberately to the closet and secured his hat and coat. He turned the key and went out of the door leading to the outer hall.

Soon Become Penitent.

Elizabeth, Feb. 5.—Jesse Bentley, a saloonkeeper in the Polish quarter, was arraigned in the Union County Court Wednesday afternoon for contempt, he failing to respond to an indictment by the last grand jury charging him with selling on Sunday. Three Poles who were arrested for assault and battery swore that Bentley sold them liquor on Sunday. The grand jury, which had finished its work, reconvened and indicted Bentley. He was very penitent Wednesday for not appearing and pleaded not guilty. He will be tried February 15.

SPECIAL COMMITTEE ON CHARITABLE WORK MEETS.

Henry L. DeForest, Julius E. Erickson, Duncan W. Taylor, Rev. George A. Warner and Hugh F. Fox, the special committee appointed by Mayor Charles J. Fisk at the charity conference a week ago, met last night at the home of Mr. DeForest to consider ways and means for carrying out this resolution which was adopted at the first meeting:

"That the Mayor be requested to appoint a committee of five to assemble representatives of all the various agencies for social betterment and relief with a view to appointing a general registrar and promoting effective co-operation in the conduct of such work." It is understood that all the church and private, benevolent and fraternal organizations will be invited to take part."

There was little that could be done last night owing to the brief time in which the committee has had to make up its plans. Another meeting will be held soon when steps will be taken to get in touch with all the societies. A report of the matter is to be made to Mayor Fisk when completed and he will call another conference.

BACK FROM VISIT TO MOTHER IN ILLINOIS.

William Day, of Liberty street, returned yesterday after spending five weeks with his mother, Mrs. S. L. Day, at Channohan, Ill. Mrs. Day was 84 years of age on January 24 and the event was marked by a big celebration.

Mrs. Day is a native of New Providence and is well known among the older residents of this city. She removed to Illinois fifty-seven years ago with her husband, who died in 1884. Before her marriage she was Harriet Bedford, of New Providence.

Dr. Thomas Travis to Speak Here.

The Young Men's Christian Association today sent out invitations for the annual dinner to be held Thursday night, February 24. The special speaker for that occasion will be Dr. Thomas Travis. He will give facts that were gleaned in six years of study in the conditions of the asylums and prisons of France, England, Australia and the United States. The result of his work is published in a book entitled "The Young Malefactor." Judge Lindsay has written the introduction to Dr. Travis' volume.

Mrs. Force's Funeral.

The funeral of Mrs. George W. Force was conducted privately at her late residence, 109 West Fourth street yesterday afternoon. Rev. Charles L. Goodrich, pastor of the Congregational church, was in charge. Charles Dunn, a nephew of the deceased, also spoke. Interment was made at Hillside cemetery.

THREE-CORNERED TIE IN INDIVIDUAL TOURNAMENT

Results in the roll-off of the individual tourney on Campbell's alleys last night resulted in a three-cornered tie for second prize money between Blatz, Nash and Matthews, which will necessitate a special series to be rolled on Monday night to determine who is eligible to second place honors in the tourney.

In the series between Blatz and Nash, the former won two out of three games; Blatz also won the odd game with Eddie Laing, while Nash captured two straight from Laing. The scores:

Nash	173	185	174
Blatz	211	182	185
Laing	209	126	158
Blatz	170	177	192
Laing	169	176
Nash	170	210

P. H. S. BASEBALL PROSPECTS BRIGHT

Baseball prospects for a strong team next season at Plainfield High are exceedingly rosy according to the dope furnished by Captain Harry Van Zandt. The players have received intimations from the baseball authorities that practise will start in the gymnasium within one week's time.

Captain Van Zandt, who has been the mainstay in the box for three seasons, will toss 'em over the plate again this season, while Terry is in line for sub twirler. Behind the bat will be Lidgate, who did fine work last season.

On first base will be seen Smith, a newcomer. Smith is a former Peddie star and his acquisition will strengthen the infield considerably. Nash looks to be in prime condition for second base and Clark will undoubtedly hold down third sack again.

There is likely to be a keen competition for the position of shortstop to fill Giddes' place, between Rifferts and Ricketts. Captain Runyon, Rifferts, Carpenter, Doane and others are candidates for the outfield.

P. H. S. FIVE SCORES AN EASY VICTORY

The P. H. S. basketball team defeated the Leal's five yesterday afternoon at the Y. M. C. A. with the score of 43-18. Both teams did a lot of bad shooting and failed to make many good goals. The High School had it all around Leals when it came to passing and some pretty team work was exhibited. At the end of the second half the score stood 24 to 7.

When the second half was full under way the teams started to pick up and before the final whistle blew both teams did some fast playing. Morris distinguished himself by making the most goals and Doane played a great game at guard. Jewett played the best game for Leals seconded by Lawrence and Dallas. All through the game Leals showed lack of hard training and the game would have been much more interesting if the High School had had to gfiht hard. The line-up.

P. H. S.—Forwards, Clark, Morris, Woodhull, Manley; centre, Lidgate; guards, Overton, Doane.

Goals were made as follows: Morris 8, Clark 5, Doane 5, Lidgate 2; field 1 foul! Manley 1, Jewitt, 2 field and 3 foul; Driscoll 1, Hibbard 1, Stevenson 1, Dallas 1, Lawrence 1 field and 1 foul. Time of halves 20 minutes. Referee, Line; umpire Doane; timer, Listman.

DR. EDWARD RUSHMORE BOOSTS BASKETBALL

In Dr. Edward Rushmore, of Park avenue, this city can boast of having one of the oldest basketball players in that branch of sport in the country. Dr. Rushmore is seventy-three years of age, and although he is busily engaged at his profession, he finds time to play three or four games in the local "gym" every week.

Dr. Rushmore, according to Physical Director George L. Listman, is one of the fastest players in the association, not barring members of the first and second teams. "He is agile on his feet, has a splendid interference, and is an accurate goal shooter," said Mr. Listman the other day, in singing the merits of Dr. Rushmore to a Daily Press reporter.

Basketball, according to the opinion of Dr. Rushmore, is one of the finest sports in America. That is what he said to a Daily Press reporter this morning. He declared that it was a great exercise which will prove beneficial in building up the physical systems of the old and young. This is the way the doctor put it:

"Basketball is exhilarating to the mind and that has a wholesome effect on the whole body."

ORDER HYMNS SUNG IN PUBLIC SCHOOL.

The teachers' committee of the Board of Education at New Brunswick is investigating an order stopping the singing of gospel hymns in the Bayard school. The school board has revoked the order.

W. C. Armstrong, City Superintendent of New Brunswick, and the members of the school board refuse to discuss the matter, but according to information made public the parent of a Jewish child objected to gospel hymns at the school.

Members of the Junior Order of American Mechanics heard of the matter and it was brought to the attention of Harry G. Burton, a member of that order and also a member of the school board. He heard from two of the Bayard school teachers, he says, that at a meeting of the teachers Miss McLaughlin, the supervising principal, had told the teachers to have the singing of hymns stopped.

On further investigating Mr. Burton was told that City Superintendent Armstrong had given the order. Mr. Burton brought the matter up before the school board Joseph Ridgeway, chairman of the teachers' committee, said no such order had been issued by the committee, and they are now endeavoring to find where the order came from. The singing of gospel hymns at the school has been resumed.

DIED IN THEATRE AS GRAND-DAUGHTER DANCED.

Mt. Holly, Feb. 5.—Five hundred people were surprised and shocked in the local theatre Thursday night at the announcement made by Dr. George W. Vanderveer that the performance would close, owing to the sudden death of Mrs. Catherine Desouza, aged seventy-one years. Mrs. Desouza was the mother of Mrs. George Clothier, whose dancing class of children was giving an opera, under the auspices of the Women's League, for the benefit of the village nurse fund.

Mrs. Desouza, seated near the stage, fell over and died immediately, while her granddaughter, Ernestine Clothier, was performing a dance. The woman, who had suffered from heart disease for several weeks, was carried to the lobby. Her death was kept a secret, and the performance continued until the arrival of Charles Latour, a nephew who decided that the facts should be made known.

When informed of the death of her mother, Mrs. Clothier fell in a faint, and several physicians worked over her some time.

The performance will be continued this evening, under the management of E. B. Hults, but the members of Mrs. Clothier's family will not take part.

HOUSES HID TRAIN, CAUSING MAN'S DEATH.

Camden, Feb. 5.—Driving over a crossing at Seventh and Roydan streets, where the view of the tracks is interrupted by a row of houses, David Miller, aged forty-five, was hit by an express train from Atlantic City, and died while on the way to the hospital yesterday.

He was driving a team for R. F. Smith & Son, lumber dealers. One horse was killed and the other so badly injured it was destroyed.

The crossing is in the heart of the city. A bell is the only warning.

Clark Tourists in Honolulu.

The Pacific Commercial Advertiser, of Honolulu, Hawaii Territory, under date of Monday, January 24, contains an interesting account of the reception given to the Clark tourists upon their arrival in that place on January 23. A copy of the newspaper has been received from James F. Buckle, who, with Mrs. Buckle, is with the tourists and is now on the last stretch of the journey from California. The newspaper contains several fine pictures of the tourists.

Second of Series of Sermons.

Rev. Charles S. Kemble, pastor of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church, will preach the second in the series of sermons on the Epistle to the Romans, tomorrow morning. There will also be reception of new members. The topic will be "Why the World Needs a Saviour." Miss Stella Rink will lead the Epworth League meeting at 7:15 o'clock and the pastor will preach in the evening.

Obsequies of Mrs. Smalley.

A large number of friends and relatives attended the funeral service of Mrs. Mary E. Smalley at her late home on Craig place yesterday afternoon. Rev. William Newberry, of Brooklyn, was in charge of the services. Interment was made at Hillside, the bearers being W. L., A. I. and D. C. Smalley, G. W. V. Moy Dr. C. R. Thiers and Charles Irving.

Mr. Carson's Denial.

MESSAGE OF SOCIALISM

Rev Dr. Herring Explains Cause of Gulf Between Socialism and Church.

THE CRY OF HUMAN NEED.

"Thou Shalt Love Thy Neighbor as Thyself," is the Political Creed—An Able Sermon.

Rev. Dr. Charles E. Herring delivered an instructive discourse last night at the First Presbyterian church. His theme was "The Message of Socialism." In part he said:

"These are two great forces, whose purpose is to bless humanity; the church with the Gospel of Jesus, and socialism with its economic system. Socialism believes that our whole social and industrial system should be so reconstructed that private ownership of land should be replaced by public collective ownership, and that the State should be the one employer. All labor would thereby come under the control of one central power. Socialists believe that there is something radically wrong with our industrial system, in that it does not give all men an equality of opportunity. It is because of this great wrong in our social system that socialism has come into being. Great wealth and great power are in the possession of the few, and they 'practically hold the life of the rest in their hands.' There is 'senseless extravagance' at one end of the social scale, and 'poverty, misery and degradation' at the other end. No cartoon is more frequent in the papers than the one which pictures the common people as a helpless mortal in the power of some heartless giant who controls the necessaries of life.

"There has been a great gulf between the church and socialism, and for this reason, I believe, that they have misunderstood each other. Mr. Spargo, a socialist leader, said at a recent meeting of the Alumni Club of Union Seminary: 'Socialism is nailing its theses, like Luther, at the doors of the Christian church, and this is what they say: "If a man says he is a Christian, and stands sponsor for that which steals the bloom from the cheeks of maidens; if he stands for the privileged few against the rights of the many; if in every-day life, he is denying his brother, he is denying his Lord! A large part of the sin of the world is due to the mal-adjustment of the social system."'

"This is what Lavelye, the Belgian economist says: 'If Christianity were taught and used comfortably to the spirit of its founder, the existing social organism could not last a day.'

"The basic truth of socialism, then, is in accord with the teachings of Jesus Christ, but it does not contain the whole truth that is needful for the world. Socialists have criticized the Christian faith in this, that it has regard simply for the individual, and not for the social relations of men; that it does not interest itself in man as a citizen, as a member of society, and in his relation to his fellows in industrial matters. True, finds one of the glories of Christianity that it does concern itself with man's individual value in the sight of God; but if each man is of infinite value to 'our Father,' is there not the thought of brotherhood in that? Christ does not teach that the evil of the world will be remedied when the circumstance of men are changed. What is needed, is not simply an economic change, but a spiritual change in men. 'To get men right economically, we must first get them right religiously.' Prof. Cairns, of Aberdeen, Scotland, speaks truly when he says: 'The crying need of our age in the industrial sphere is the deepening and diffusion of the sense of the common good.'

"The message of socialism is that the great need of the world has been caused by the selfishness of men; men who, if they profess religion, have not permitted it to touch their social life. Prophets of God are needed today, as in the times of Isaiah and Amos, to tell men that they have no more right to sin in their corporate life than they have to sin in their individual life. It is true, as Mr. Spargo says, that we cannot preach to men to be good when we don't care for the conditions that make them bad.' The church of God should be in the van of the fight against all social wrongs.

"Socialism is a great cry of human need. It is a call for justice; because it is a call for equality of opportunity. It is mainly an importation from Europe where the conditions of life are harder than in this land, but it is a call to the Christian church to preach the Gospel of social righteousness. When Oliver Wendall Holmes was asked his creed, he said: 'My creed consists of just

TRADE BOARD INTERVENES FOR CITY HACKMEN

The Board of Trade has taken up the question of the proposed ordinance which will affect the earnings of the city's hackmen and has addressed the following letter to the Common Council to be read at the meeting of that body tonight. The communication is signed by President Jeffery, Secretary Herr and the entire executive committee.

"We desire to draw your attention to the proposed ordinance affecting the hackmen, which will come up for a third reading February 7, 1910, at the meeting of the Council for the city of Plainfield, N. J. We understand that the proposed ordinance provides for single fares up to midnight.

"We can quite see the necessity for improvement in the regulation of traffic, and are sensible that the proposed new conditions will impose upon the hackmen strict obligations and expense that the cost of living and the rents have very materially increased of late years, but to burden these men with further limitation, especially in extending the single fare period until midnight is in our judgment unsound and unwise. It is between eleven and twelve o'clock at night that the hackmen have an opportunity to earn extra money, thus adding to their meagre earnings of the day, to keep abreast under strong competition and legislative limitation with the expense of caring for himself, his family and his outfit.

"Therefore, we earnestly request you to allow the single fare period to remain as it is, i. e., eleven o'clock at night, and to take such action as may be necessary at your meeting to accomplish this result."

WHIST FOR CHURCH NETTED PARISH $150

The Charity Whist given by Mr and Mrs. L. J. Geary on Saturday night for the benefit of St. Stephen's church was attended by about one hundred society people, and the net result of the games including donations was $150. Prizes were offered at each table and the big prize, a silver loving cup, which was offered for the highest score was captured by J. K. Pettit, of East Orange. This cup was offered by Mr. and Mrs. M. McKenzie. After the playing was over light refreshments were served.

FIRST CAMP MEETING SERVICE AT SALVATION ARMY

In spite of the cold snap last night Salvation Army hall was well filled to witness the opening of the mid-winter camp meeting. The handsomely decorated room was a source of delight to those who appreciate local color and the services were in harmony with the surroundings.

Mrs. Adjutant Jackson who is in charge of the music also spoke taking her text from the Book of Isaiah. The singing by the newly formed choir was delightful. The meeting tonight is for members only and the meeting tomorrow night will be in charge of Sydney T. Perrin.

Held Special Musical Service.

A large congregation enjoyed the special musical service at the First M. E. church, last night, under the direction of the organist, J. E. Skiff. The chorus choir sang exceptionally well, and the solo parts were much enjoyed. There was a duet by Miss Laura Gesswein and Mrs. Joseph Dunham; a selection from "Elijah," by the Misses Willis, Price, Gesswein, Haines, Mrs. Harry Moyer and Mrs. J. E. Skiff, and Mrs. Arthur Price sang as an offertory, "By the Waters of Babylon."

Not Plumbers Enough Here.

Although the official weather report says "one degree above zero" this morning, there are many who have frozen water pipes who are willing to make affidavit to the fact that four or five below would be nearer the correct figure. There were not enough plumbers in town this morning to attend to all the frozen pipes in the fifty or more houses which were affected by the sudden frigidity.

Votes Against Sabbath Desecration.

At the First Presbyterian church, yesterday, a rising vote was taken for the purpose of recording a protest against an attempt on the part of certain legislators to permit a descration of the Sabbath by allowing the sale of liquor on that day. Everyone present arose in protest.

Will Speak in Trenton.

Rev. John Y. Broek, pastor of Trinity Reformed church, will make an address on "The Work of the Home Department," at the Third Presbyterian church, Trenton, this evening.

RECEPTION AND TEA ARE LARGELY ATTENDED

Mrs. Henry P. Henriques, of Myrtle avenue, and her mother, Mrs. William Barlow, of Prospect place, gave a reception and tea at the home of the former, Saturday afternoon. More than 250 guests invited and nearly all were present during the afternoon.

The parlors were decorated with palms, white carnations and narcissus and the dining room was decorated in green and white. During the afternon a fine program of music was given by the VanEps Trio.

Mrs. Henriques and Mrs. Barlow were assisted in receiving by Miss Galdys Danbman, of New York. Those who poured were Mrs. A. C. Hartshorne, of Freehold; Mrs. George Howe, Mrs. Samuel Townsend and Mrs. John W. Murray, Jr., of this city. Mrs. Charles D Stillman served ice.

Those assisting in the dining-room were Mrs. William McCutchen, Mrs. E. C. Murray, Mrs. George A. Warner, Mrs. Willis West, Mrs. Charles Barlow, Mrs. W. S. Hobbie, Mrs. E. H. Hobbie, Mrs. C. W. McGee, Miss Kathryn Hartshorne, Miss May Murray, Miss Bernice Sharrett and the Misses Barlow.

SOME GOWNS SEEN AT THE CARLE SHOW

The women of Plainfield in whatever society they move are democratic and informal generally and always tastefully gowned, whether at private entertainments, sporting events, concert or theatre. As the beautiful gowns of the women patrons of the opera go far towards making that institution the social success that it is, so do the splendidly dressed women patrons of the McIntyre concerts and the Plainfield theatre increase the interest and enthusiasm and their own enjoyment in the best of music and the drama that can be secured for their pleasure.

The comfortable fur coat has set aside many of the exquisite evening coats worn earlier in the winter, but spring will bring them out again. Saturday evening at the Plainfield theatre, where Richard Carle appeared in "Mary's Lamb," there were a number of notable gowns.

Mrs. Edwin S. Hooley wore a decollete gown of dark blue meteor crepe with inserts of Oriental embroidery on the bodice and finished about the square neck with bands of soft white lace. Her wrap was of biscuit color broadcloth, trimmed with black satin bands.

Mrs. A. G. Hooley was gowned in black simply made and wore a few beautiful jewels. Their guest also wore black and her beautiful hair needed no ornament.

Mrs. Frederick W. Yates wore under a black fur coat, a two-toned grey silk gown made empire with yoke and collar of point Venise lace.

Mrs. H. Reeve Stockton's gown was a white dotted black foulard, with deep square collar of heavy Irish crochet which terminated in small revers in front leaving the throat bare.

Mrs. Marion S. Ackerman, being still in mourning, wore black crepe dechine and heavy lace. Around the coiffure was a band of black ribbon held in place at one side by a black enamelled butterfly.

Mrs. Frederic W. Butler wore a figured grey satin with yoke and bertha of white lace and a diamond brooch. Her wrap was beige cloth with sable fox collar.

The gown worn by Mrs. Laurens H. VanBuren was a soft black directoire satin with very little ornament. Her guest wore pink silk trimmed with white lace.

Mrs. Leon Moran was simply gowned in a tailor-made suit of black chiffon broadcloth with a bodice of white net and lace embroidered in pastel shades.

Mrs. LeRoy Gates wore a visiting gown of black chudda cloth with yoke and collar of black applique over cloth of gold.

Black seems to be the "happy medium" chosen for informal as well as formal wear and the exquisite laces and oriental embroideries relieved it of all sombreness.

Society will be very largely represented at the Plainfield theatre, next Saturday, Lincoln's Birthday, when Mrs. Fiske will appear there in "Salvation Nell," a play in which this clever actress has scored a big hit.

Weather Cold and Snappy.

Plainfielders had another taste of real wintry weather today and last night. Sergeant John Naegle reported that the thermometer went down as far as one degree above zero. That is the official figure although the thermometers of scores of citizens registered four degrees below zero.

FIRE SCARE AT CHURCH

Pastor Dismisses Crescent Ave. Congregation at Morning Worship.

ON FIRE CHIEF'S ADVICE.

No Sign of Disorder When Rev. Dr. Zelie Makes Announcement —Cause of the Trouble.

A fire scare brought the morning worship in the Crescent Avenue church to an abrupt termination yesterday morning and resulted in the dismissal of the congregation at 11:30 o'clock by the pastor, Rev. Dr. John Sheridan Zelie.

The prime cause of the excitement was the issuance of smoke from the register in the rear of the church. Shortly after the service had gotten underway, James E. Kimball, head usher, noticed the smoke, and immediately telephoned to Fire Chief Doane.

The firemen arrived at the church at 11:05 o'clock. Efforts were made to locate the cause of the smoke in the cellar, but the labors of Chief Doane were in vain. After a consultation with the trustees Chief Doane advised that Dr. Zelie dismiss the congregation. At 11:30 o'clock the service was brought to a close by singing the doxology.

While nearly every person in the congregation was aware of the presence of the firemen, all kept their heads and not even a ripple of excitement prevailed. After the dismissal the members of the congregation left the church in perfect order.

Chief Doane and the firemen remained on duty one hour after the service was concluded, but their efforts to discover the source of the smoke were fruitless. No traces of fire were discovered. Chief Doane, however, entertains the belief that the smoke was due to the burning of varnish in the register which was painted a few days ago.

SMALL HOUSE FIRES KEEP FIREMEN BUSY

An alarm at 6:40 o'clock this morning called the firemen to the residence of Hugh Fox, at 508 Central avenue. Members of the household discovered a quantity of pillows and bedding on fire and 'phoned headquarters. The services of the firemen, however, were not needed and the flames were extinguished by members of the family.

A wooden barrel in the cellar of the house occupied by Mrs. Edith Gibson on East Fifth street, caught fire by some hot ashes at 9 o'clock yesterday morning. The flames spread to a quantity of excelsior. The firemen on arrival applied a chemical stream and put out the flames in quick order.

At 11 o'clock this morning the department was called to 160 Central avenue, where the house was filled with smoke. The smoke was caused by plumbers burning paper in the cellar, while thawing the pipes.

ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE TO OPEN WAR HERE

The Anti-Saloon League will conduct a vigorous campaign in this city next Sunday, when several mass meetings are to be held here, and there will be addresses by prominent temperance workers. At the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church in the afternoon, former Governor Glenn, of the South, will be the principal speaker. At the same hour a mass meeting will be held at the First Baptist church, where Judge Covington, of Georgia, will speak.

The campaign is in charge of Frank Burke, the head of the Anti-Saloon League of the State, and he will also speak here on Sunday. This is part of a plan of the league to carry its work into all parts of the State.

Grace Church Recital.

The rendition of the Introduction to the third act of Lakme, by organist S. Frederick Smith, of Grace Episcopal church, yesterday, demonstrated this musician's versatility and charmed a large congregation. The rest of the recital was in keeping with the first number and pleased all those who were privileged to hear the splendid music.

The Rasores to Meet.

The Rasores will meet tomorrow morning with Mrs. A. V. D. Honeyman, 806 Third place. The subject will be "Emerson."

LOST NOON-DAY MEAL AND INCIDENTLY HOME

Just as they were finishing their mid-day meal yesterday the Sinker family, residing on Rahway road, noticed smoke curling up at the corner of the house and upon investigating Mr. Sinker discovered flames pouring out of a second floor window near a chimney. In a few moments the entire room was ablaze and soon the entire floor was being consumed. Knowing that the house was doomed Mr. Sinker hastened to get his family out doors and notified the borough fire department and the smoke eaters from Scotch Plains.

The efforts of the firemen were confined to saving some of the furniture on the first floor because no water was to be had. The house was completely destroyed. The only water in the neighborhood was in the cistern and that was unavailable because it was directly under the kitchen.

The house was owned by W. W. Corbell, of Lincoln place and Duer street, and is said to be covered by insurance. Mr. Sinker's loss will amount to several hundred dollars on which no insurance was carried. It is believed that the fire started from a defective flue.

ENTERTAINMENT GIVEN BY JUNIOR MISSION BAND

An instructive and altogether charming entertainment was given Saturday afternoon by the Junior Mission Band, of the First Baptist church in the lecture room. The members of the band, who have been studying and working for the past half year for Home Missions, presented a cosumed representation of the various nationalities aided by the Home Mission Society. Mrs. Reuben Knox, who has charge of the band, in errogated them on the early settlement of the United States, and later imigration into it. The replies were made by members of the band in their national costumes. Miss Dorothy Lee represented the Spaniards; Katharine Sill, Catholic French; Elsie Moore, French Huguenots; Fred Hunt, English Cavalier; Everett Case, Pilgrims; Bessie Case, Puritans; Lucy Douglass, Scotch; Lillian Fountain, Irish; Louise Sill, Quarker; Mary Buchanan, Hollander; Emmeline Manning, Swede; Claire Doremus, Italian; ate Hoffman, Russian; Emily Pilger, Hungarian; Elizabeth Wynn, Japanese, and Constance Harris, Chinese. Mabel Douglass took the part of the German, assigned to Flora Krausse, who was detained at home by illness in the family. Margaret Bonnell told of the work of the Home Mission Society; Mrs. Arthur M. Harris read "A Colonial Christmas Story;" Rachael Smith recited "Emily Geiger's Ride," and Mrs. Albert E. Kennelly read a leaflet "How to be Happy," by Mrs. Alice Freeman Palmer.

Appropriate music by the band was a feature of the entertainment, Miss Alice Drake being the accompanist. The selections were "Prayer for our Country," "The Breaking Waves Dashed High," "Italian Hymn" and "My Country 'tis of Thee." William Holmes of the church choir, sang with fine effect "Massa's in the Cold, Cold Ground," and Miss Elsie Moore sang very sweetly "The Boston Tea Party."

The dolls, aprons, linen scrap books and patch work quilt made by the members of the band to be sent to Ellis Island, were on exhibition at a table presided over by Mrs. Frederick S. Thompson.

A sale of fancy articles, cake, candy and valentines followed the entertainment, and chocolate and wafers were served. Miss Edna White was in charge of the fancy table and Mrs. George White and Mrs. Harold Serrell managed the chocolate. Mrs. John McLoughlin and Mrs. Albert E. Kennelly had control of the costuming.

Lunacy Inquisition.

A Lunacy Inquisition in the case of Dennis Tully, a brother of Mrs. James Hurley, of Belmont avenue, will be held in the borough council chambers tomorrow afternoon. Francis J. Blatz, Esq., will represent the petitioner, James Hurley, a nephew of Tully, and will ask that a guardian be appointed for property owned by Tully in Illinois. Sheriff Ross served subpoenas on the jurymen on Saturday.

Will Discuss "House Boats."

"Gospel Boats" will be the subject discussed at the meeting of the Women's Foreign Missionary Society at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church tomorrow afternoon. Mrs. W. A. Halliday, Mrs. Duncan W. Taylor, Mrs. John Gray Foster, Mrs. John Doull Miller and others will take part. Balloting for nominations for officers will take place.

IT'S THE MAN HIGHER UP SAYS TRADE BOARD HEAD

The following self-explanatory letter was received today from the president of the Board of Trade with a request for publication.

Board of Trade,
Plainfield-North Plainfield.
Plainfield, N. J., Feb. 5, 1910.

Editor, The Daily Press:

Upon reading my letter which appeared in your issue of today, it occurs to me that I may have suggested unwittingly that the reporters for the other paper who were present at the Board of Trade meeting February 3, had not properly reported the doings of the same. For this reason, and to be specific I want to say, what I complain of is, that the news of the meeting which appeared in the other paper, was not properly placed, and the headlines of the same, were for the most part, very unsatisfactory. The news thus issued lacked cohesion, directness and force, being split up into several news items, and not containing (as your paper did) the full report of the trolley committee. The report, not having been signed by the third member of the committee, who happens to be associated with the paper in question, lead me to conclude that the responsibility rests not with the reporter, but with someone else.

The report of the trolley committee was the most thorough, that has ever been received by the board, and the matter contained therein should be known to every person living in the city and the borough. I leave it to the people to decide why the report was not published. Believe me to be

Yours faithfully,
WILLIAM JEFFERY,
President Board of Trade

BENDER'S SHOES BROKE; PROMISES WITH A STRING

Louis Bender, a cobbler, of Madison avenue, will probably think twice before he again tries to lock a trio of healthy Italian boys in his shop, especially after he has broken faith with one of them. Louis caused the arrest of James Martin. Saturday night, a young man who is quite respectable and has an enviable record as a peaceable young man who is employed in a local factory and is prompt and careful in his work for which he earns good wages, but this morning Judge William N. Runyon discharged the boy after hearing the story of the alleged assault on which Martin was held.

A friend of Martin's bought a pair of second hand shoes which Bender guaranteed to the extent that if they broke anywhere within a week he would repair them free of charge. After two days the shoes did break at the toe and on Saturday night Martin and his friend returned to Bender's shop to show him the condition of the footwear. In the meantime another pair of shoes had been left with Bender for soleing and heeling the charges for which were seventy-five cents. This the boy refused to pay until the damage to the second hand shoes had been repaired.

A scrimmage followed in which the locking up process occurred and one of the boys had his ear lacerated. Bender caused the arrest of Martin, who proved to the satisfaction of the court that he was not to blame and the complaint was dismissed.

ERNEST POWLISON TO WED MISS MARGARET L. GIBBS.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Powlison and son, Leslie, of the borough, left this morning for Whitehall, N. Y., to attend the marriage of their son, Ernest Powlison, to Miss Margaret Lillian Gibbs, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Gibbs, of that place.

The ceremony will take place tomorrow noon at the home of the bride's parents, and after a trip the couple will reside in this city. Mr. Powlison is a civil engineer and was formerly in the employ of Street Commissioner Gavett, and also of F. A. Dunham.

Improving Pastor's Study.

Through the kindness of the Ladies' Christian Work Society of Trinity Reformed church, the pastor's study in the rear of the church is being enlarged to more than double its former size. A new carpet will be laid on the floor and the wall papered and the wood work painted. The much-needed improvement is appreciated by the pastor.

Zero Weather Closes Shop.

Owing to the zero weather this morning the large force of employes at the "Klondyke" was obliged to quit work for the day. It was impossible to get the shop warm enough for the men.

SPECIAL ELECTION DATE

Voters May Decide Municipal Ownership Question Next Month.

SOME ESTIMATES ARE MADE.

Condemnation Proceedings Would Not Mean That City Would Have to Buy the Plant.

If the plans of the advocates of municipal ownership do not miscarry, the special election on the public control of the water supply question will be held during the latter part of March or early in April. As told exclusively in this paper, the Common Council will receive a report on this matter from the public affairs committee at tonight's meeting. In all probability, if favored by the city fathers, the subject will be referred to the corporation counsel who will be told to see that the proper legal formalities are complied with for the proposed referendum.

Although it has been understood that the Plainfield Union Water Company values its business at nearly three millions of dollars, some friends of municipal control believe that by condemnation proceedings the plant may be obtained for approximately one million dollars. The interest on this would be $45,000 a year. They estimate that there are 4,000 householders here paying on the average of $20 per year, which would make the receipts $80,000. The total running expenses per annum, they figure, are approximately $15,000. In this they see a snug profit for the municipality in addition to having absolute ownership in a valuable franchise.

As was told in The Daily Press on Saturday, the condemnation proceedings suggested would not mean that the city would necessarily have to buy the plant. It would simply mean that the authorities wou'd then be in a position to estimate whether the purchase would be a feasible business proposition.

On this subject, the exhaustive report of the Water Supply Company submitted last year to the Common Council, says:

"In view of the fact that the State statutes from which all of the powers of the city will be derived cannot be made operative until the statutes shall be adopted by vote of the people, it follows that the first step to be taken is a re-submission to the voters of the question of the adoption of the provisions of the statutes whereby to acquire the powers necessary to enable the Common Council to adequately handle the situation. (In supra, there has recently been enacted a new law which may or may not be more adapted to the city's needs according to circumstances. See L. 1906, page 664). In this connection it must be borne in mind that the question which the statutes required the voters to pass upon is not that of acquiring or not acquiring the works of the water company, or the question of whether we shall have municipal ownership or not, but only the question of whether the provisions of statute shall become operative in this city without which no powers exist in the Common Council upon which it is possible to exercise any discretion either one way or the other.

"If the statutes shall become operative it will then be possible for negotiations to be entered upon to ascertain the price for which the water company will sell, and if no price can be agreed upon, to proceed by condemnation to ascertain by award of commissioners the price for which the works can be acquired in that way. Then for the first time will the Common Council have trustworthy information upon this most important question of cost. It is not even possible to guess with any degree of approximation what the cost will be until a judicial determination as to what elements may properly be included by the commissioners in making up their figures. Condemnation proceedings may be carried far enough to have these questions of what it will cost the city to acquire the water works, finally determined by the proper legal course, so that the figures may be in hand for the consideration of the Common Council in determining the questions which will have to be decided. If then, with all the other considerations fully in hand it shall be found that a contract can be made with greater advantage than to condemn, the condemnation proceedings may be abandoned at any time without prejudice to the city, or if thought desirable to acquire and operate the works after full knowledge of the cost, the condemnation may be consummated.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

The last service of the Union evangelistic services was held in the First Baptist church last night. Rev. E. O. Brown preached the sermon. The men's service in the Methodist church on Sunday afternoon was largely attended. On the whole the campaign was successfull and all of the churches will have their enrollments increased.

The Dunellen A. C. fair came to a close on Saturday night. The committee in charge expects that when all of the returns are in the profits will be close to the $100 mark.

The Misses Ethel Garretson and Iva Dayton spent Saturday and Sunday visiting friends out of town.

The cold snap which started on Saturday has given the New Market pond a half inch coating of ice.

The Borough Council will hold its regular monthly meeting tonight.

Miss Mabel Cole has returned from a visit to Paterson.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

The adults Bible class meeting held yesterday afternoon in the parlors of the Baptist church was well attended. The interest shown in the new departure in the church work is most encouraging to the pastor, Rev. Franklin K. Mathiews.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Backer and son, of Netherwood avenue, spent Sunday with Mrs. Backer's mother, Mrs. Robert Jahn, of Park avenue.

The monthly observance of the Lord's Supper was held at the close of the morning service at the Baptist church yesterday.

Captain H. B. Saunders, of Washington Valley, has returned from a business trip of several weeks along the Southern Coast.

An interesting weekly meeting of the Epworth League was held last night in the class rooms of the Methodist church.

Miss Evelyn Buckley has returned from a week end visit with Miss Leona Henry, of Plainfield.

The weekly meeting of the B. Y. P. U. was held last night in the parlors of the church.

The cold snap has made skating good again on Marsh Lake.

SOMERVILLE.

The event of the week in the social world was the dance held Friday evening by the Somerville Athletic Club in the new armory. The patronesses were Mrs. H. Fox Galpin, Mrs. James L. Griggs, Mrs. John G. Gaston, Mrs. Jerome W. Brokaw, Mrs. John D. Case, Mrs. A. A. Lawton, Mrs. William F. Garretson, Mrs. Oliver G. Allen. The committee was as follows: S. Judson Galpin, chairman; Frank L. Brokaw and J. Howard Nevius. This club has become a popular institution in Somerville, which was proven last evening by the large attendance. Music was furnished by Mueller's orchestra of Newark and the decorations by Henry, the florist.

The General Frelinghuysen Chapter D. A. R., was entertained Friday afternoon at the Wallace House, by the first vice-regent, Mrs. A. McWilliam, and Miss Doughty. Mrs. McWilliam presided. A paper was read on "Old Time Lights."

The Woman's Home Missionary Branch of the First Baptist church, has elected the following officers: President, Mrs. Emma E. Kline; vice-president, Mrs. John Lant; secretary, Mrs. John Lindsley; treasurer, Mrs. N. H. Mason.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis P. Gaston, Master Kenneth Gaston, of West Cliff street, and Miss Frances Gaston, of West High street, left Friday for Palm Beach and other points in Florida.

A regular army sergeant will be in attendance at Company M armory this week, and will conduct a company school.

Mr. and Mrs. George Coe and Mrs. Smalley, of Millstone, are spending a week in Newark.

Miss Olympia and John De Phillips are spending a week with relatives at McElhatan, Pa.

Mrs. George Conkling, of Glen Gardner, is a guest of Mrs. Conkling, on South street.

Fred Swan, of Kentucky, is visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Cupier Swan, in Harlingen.

RARITAN.

Because of ill health Rev. S. D. Harris, pastor of the Methodist church, has been compelled to tell the official board of the church that he cannot return to Raritan another conference year. During the past six months Mr. Harris has often been able to preach only by sitting in a chair.

A large eagle, which was shot last autumn by P. V. Z. Stryker, in Pike county, Pa., which measures eight feet from tip to tip, has been handsomely mounted and is now in the window of Rohn's drug store, on Somerset street.

Rev. Dr. La Mont, of New York city, preached in the Methodist church yesterday morning. In the evening there was a union service with the Reformed church, when Dr. W. H. DeHart preached.

The Junior Baseball Club held a successful dance Friday evening in St. Bernard's hall. Music was furnished by the Social orchestra of Raritan.

A rummage sale is in progress in the building next to the bank on Somerset street, in the interest of the Fourth Reformed (German) church.

Mrs. S. P. Hunter, of Dover, has been spending this week with Rev. and Mrs. S. R. Harris, at the Methodist parsonage.

Mrs. A. H. Barker and son, of New York, are guests of Mrs. Barker's mother, Mrs. C. Harding, on Dougherty street.

Miss Edna M. Stryker, of Belle Mead, has been visiting Miss Emma Wyckoff, at Harlingen.

Mr. and Mrs. John Cahill have been entertaining Frank Cox, of Princeton, this week.

A new fireproof addition is in course of construction at the Kenyon shops.

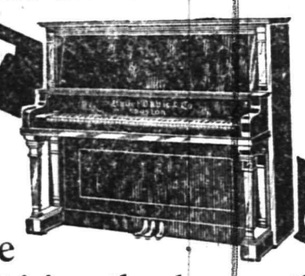
A. A. McDonald is spending a month in Bermuda.

Plainfield Council, No. 294, J. O. U. A. M., will meet tonight and act upon several applications for membership.

John C. VanDyke, of East Fifth street, still continues to improve at the hospital and will be able to return home in a few days.

FROM FACTORY TO HOME

As a careful buyer you want the best piano, but you only want to pay for what you get. The ordinary piano is manufactured expensively for lack of factory facilities and sufficient capital to buy for cash, and the instruments when manufactured are sold through jobbers and retailers to you. Why should YOU pay all these useless expenses and profits



THE HALLET & DAVIS PLAN

We buy the best materials the markets of the world afford, hiring the best artisans, sparing no expense in thoroughly equipping our factories with the most approved machinery, not only to do the work more accurately but save cost to you.

We sell direct to you through our branch stores and factory distributors. The result is that you buy the best piano in America at any price.

Write to-day for catalog and "Hallet & Davis Pianos and Their Friends."

White Sale

Our Annual February Event to Economically Purchase White Goods and Undermuslins.

The advantages of our allied buying connections and our ability to undersell, are ably demonstrated in this Annual Sale of White Goods.

Purchases were made months ago when cotton prices were considerably lower than they are today. This advance preparation manifests its worth to you in the special values which are a notable feature of this Annual Sale.

Splendid stocks have been gathered in all qualities of White Goods and Muslin Underwear. The undergarments are excellently made, of good materials and in ample proportions.

Prices show savings the thriftily inclined woman will surely take advantage of. It's advisable to buy a whole year's needs while such worth-while economies are in force. Read the price list. Take our advice—buy now.

two words; "Our Father." Beecher said there was a whole theology in those two words. There is more. There is a whole system of sociology. There were social wrongs in our Lord's day, but He preached that the great need of men was not a change of circumstances, but a change of heart. I believe that this is the message that is needed for today. If there is real change of heart a man cannot but think of his brother and think of him in business as if he were in his place. That is the meaning of "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself."

THE BEAUTIFUL LACEWING FLY

On almost any evening during the summer twilight the charming lacewing fly may be seen; its curious flight alone will suffice to identify it, says a writer in The Strand Magazine. Between the hedgerows of the lanes, in the garden paths, or along the woodland glades, it may be readily distinguished from the numerous moths that appear as the daylight declines.

The flights of the moths are very varied in character; some of the larger and dark-colored kinds sweep past at a tremendous pace, their movements leaving doubt in the mind of the observer whether his eyes have not deceived him, while many of the smaller and pale-colored species flutter about like wind-tossed snokflakes. Between these two extreme methods, every graduation of locomotion by flight may be observed.

Distinct from all, however, appears that of another insect. It is apparently traveling along a straight line, its pale, silvery wings extended wide and rapidly vibrating, but its progress is so slow and inbored when compared with even the slowest-flying moth that we are reminded of a traction engine moving along a road on which motor cars and cyclists are hurrying by. This slowly-progressing insect is the lacewing fly.

CARPET ECONOMY.

When choosing a carpet, if you have to study economy, select one with a small pattern and of rather a light color. The small pattern cuts to a greater advantage, for there is less waste in matching the design as the breaths are sewn together, and when the wool begins to wear the light color will not contract so painfully against the string foundation as it would if it were many shades darker in tone.

There will be also economy in time in the lighter, well-covered carpet. Every thread and speck of dust will not show on it as in the heavy reds and blues.

TEMPERANCE SCHEME.

A great movement to restore the English public house to its traditional use as a place of ease, recreation and refreshment has been initiated in England, reports the London Express.

Lord Halsbury, the former Lord Chancellor, presided over a gathering of peers, members of Parliament, clergy and others, at which it was decided to establish a True Temperance Association. The aim of the movement is to associate the moderate people all over the country who dissent from the extreme and destructive proposals of puritanical teetotalers, in a reasonable and sane policy of improving licensed houses by rendering them more like the Continental resorts, where the ordinary man feels no shame in sitting with his wife and children—and of thus reducing drunkenness.

Lord Halsbury drew a clear distinction between the methods of teetotal repression and the aims of the True Temperance Association, in his introductory speech.

"The great aim of our organization," he said, "will be to try something which has not been tried yet in this matter—appealing to the will and the heart of the people, instead of resorting to mere means of repression. If you were to train up a whole body of abstainers, who were abstainers because they could not get drunk, they would not be men, they would be slaves.

"The view of the temperance party is to improve the public house out of existence, instead of improving it for the public use. They regard the public house as a disgraceful place to go to, and as a place which, if a man visited it, he should leave as soon as he had a drink.

"Is it surprising," asked Lord Halsbury, "that the public house should have become a mere drinking shop? It cannot be denied that such results have been produced. We want to alter all that, and to make every public house a decent place of refreshment and resort." This declaration was greeted with much applause.

"The very essence of this movement is to try to remove the stigma which attaches to the public house," said Lord Halsbury. "It is very hard that a respectable man who lives in a village should be debarred from getting a drink and from friendly intercourse with other men simply because it is thought that to frequent a public house marks him as a less respectable member of society. It is also a dangerous policy."

"The more open drinking is the better," said Rev. H. R. Gamble of Holy Trinity, Sloane street. "English people are not prepared to be dragooned into total abstinence or into adopting the organized hypocrisy of total prohibition." He supported the scheme in the interests of free and healthy social life.

The monthly business meeting of the Christian Endeavor Society of Trinity Reformed church, will be held tomorrow night at 8 o'clock.

The Junior Christian Endeavor Society of Trinity Reformed church, will meet Wednesday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. The topic will be "Unselfishness," and Miss Adele Freeman will be the leader.

HINDU WOMEN'S PROGRESS.

From her role of half-toy, half-slave to man, penned up in the seclusion of the zenane (women's apartments), the women of Hindustan is rising to equality with men, writes Saint Nihal Singh, in The Review of Reviews. India is daily getting anxious to accord its women a humane and a just treatment. Sex inequality had decreed that while the widower was allowed to marry, even permitted to indulge in polygamy, the widow was forced to remain a widow. This injunction is no longer being faithfully obeyed. Widows of the highest caste are being allowed to marry.

Moreover, Hindus are making special efforts to establish homes where young and old widows are kindly treated and taught to be nurses, doctors, teachers and missionaries. The aim of these institutions is to inspire the widows to help toward the uplift of East India society and also to make them capable of supporting themselves instead of being charges on their relatives, as has been the case heretofore.

Polygamy was never very common in India, but today it is doomed. Today the woman of India is leaving the privacy of her apartments, going to modern schools for education, and entering the arena of public activity, to help along the evolution of Hindustan. Schools and colleges, especially designed for girls, and neighborhood centres meant for the advancement of matured women, are coming to be pronounced features of East Indian cities.

RAPID CUSHION MAKING.

Orange-colored linen in two shades and the coarsest mercerized cotton are the requisites for one of the moost effective sofa pillows to be found.

A large square of the deeper orange is cut for each side of the cushion cover. From the centre of each is cut away a square representing about two-thirds oof the size of the cushion. Under this opening is inserted a piece of the lighter orange. The edges of the deeper orange are turned under, and along the place of joining is run a row of heavy outlining in black floss.

Nothing remains after both back and front are completed but the making of the cover and the slip stitching which shall hold in the pillow.

Quick work, indeed, but the most pleasing result, and for those who rate themselves as busy people far more satisfactory than the lengthy piece of embroidery.

Sardine Omelet.

Four canned sardines, free from skin and bone, one heaping tablespoonful of butter, white pepper, three eggs, one teaspoonful anchovy extract, one tablespoonful cream or milk. Break the eggs into a basin, add the cream or milk and beat up well, cut the sardines into small dice, add these, with the anchovy, extract, and mix thoroughly. Season with a pinch of white pepper. Melt the butter in an omlet or small frying pan, pour in the mixture, cook while stirring until the eggs begin to set. Then form the mixture into a cushion shape or half moon. Brown in the oven and turn out quickly on to a hot dish. Serve at once.

P. H. S. NOTES.

The senior English classes of the High School will present parts of Macbeth and Julius Caesar to the school in a few weeks. They are rehearsing every day now and have some very good actors in the classes. Every year it is the custom of the English class to give parts of the Shakespeare play which they are studying.

The election of a new member for the Athletic Association in place of Harry VanZandt, who has resigned, was held today in the school library.

A committee has been appointed for the selection of the junior play to be given next month in the auditorium. It is composed of Katherine Sminck, Louise Bird, Wilbur Tovell, Alfred Clark.

The High School second team will play the North Plainfield second five this afternoon in the High School gym.

The P. H. S. basketball team will play the Rutgers preps five on Wednesday, Feb. 9, in the local High's gym. It will be a fast game as there is much rivalry between the teams.

VARIOUS SPORTS.

Three Sunday School Athletic League contests will be played tonight.

The Harlem Y. M. C. A. five will be the attraction next Saturday night. The Harlems are rated faster than the Williamsbridge boys and another exciting contest is anticipated.

Williamsbridge wants another game with the local five. The schedule, however, is filled, and unless there are any cancellations, Manager Listman will find it a difficult job to accommodate the New Yorkers.

At Proctor's.

"Early Days East and West," will be the title of a fine sketch to be presented by Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Young & Co., at Proctor's theatre today. It gives an interesting review of the early days. Special scenery is carried. Clark & Razillian, America's representative society gymnasts, will appear in clever athletic work. Howell & Webster, who are clever in snapp singing and talk are live entertainers, while Till's Marionettes will prove a big treat for the little ones. Special films d'art will be shown.

Proctor Gift Lost.

It was rumored here today that the offer of $500,000 made last May by William C. Proctor, '83, of Cincinnati, for the Graduate College of Princeton University, had been withdrawn by Mr. Proctor. The offer was made with a proviso that an additional $500,000 be raised by May 1, 1910, and that the "prospect" site be abandoned. None of the university officials would discuss the rumor last night, the only comment being that no official notice of the withdrawal had reached Princeton.

Rev. Edwin Shaw's Sermon.

"No Room in the Inn for Jesus," was the topic of Rev. Edwin Shaw's sermon at Trinity Reformed church, yesterday morning. It was founded on the story of the birth of the Saviour as recorded in the second chapter of Luke and Mr. Shaw drew some very helpful lessons from the historical event as told in the chapter read.

Funeral of Carl Johanson.

The funeral of Carl Johanson, the Swedish youth, who died Thursday night, was held yesterday afternoon at the Pilgrim Lutheran church and was largely attended by the Swedish community. The services were conducted by Rev. Mr. Englund, pastor of the church, and the interment was in Hillside cemetery

McConnell Bitten by Dog.

The Dutch Arms, the men's association of Trinity Reformed church, has decided to give a banquet on Friday night, March 18, with the women of the church as guests. James C. Field is the chairman of the committee of arrangements.

Kenneth Bartron Christened.

Kenneth Bartron, young son of Mr. and Mrs. Martin P. Hingle, of 124 Duer street, was chirstened Saturday at the residence of the parents. Rev. John Y. Broek, pastor of Trinity Reformed church, officiated.

W. C. T. U. to Build.

The W. C. T. U., of Westfield, is to erect a $10,000 building on its property in Prospect street, that place. Recently a donation of $500 was given to the Union.

The Mullet in Gulf Waters.

The mullet has always attracted a goodly share of attention. His fame is not circumscribed by the boundaries of the gulf. Whether the visitor be from the Atlantic or the Pacific coast or from the shores of the Mediterranean or the Baltic, he wants to see, examine and feast on the mullet.

He is the best known fish that swims. Some have a prejudice against him; but, like all feelings of this nature, it rests on an unsubstantial foundation. It cannot bear investigation, for the mullet plays a greater part in appeasing the craving for sea foods than any fish that inhabits the waters of the gulf. He is here in summer and winter, in fall and in spring. When the fisherman contemplates his plight, when luck is against him and a feeling of depression creeps over him, the mullet, always ready to give him a helping hand, rushes into his seine and contributes to his fortune and to the gastronomic pleasure of the thousands of people to whom they are shipped. He is a regular standby. In prosperity and in adversity he is always here in abundance.—Pascagoula Chronicle.

Helping Him Out.

He was well groomed, sober, evidently intelligent, but he looked worried as he approached a policeman on Broadway, near Long Acre square.

"Officer, I know my name and all that sort of thing," said he, "but I don't know where I live. What'll I do about it?"

"Advertise," said the bluecoat with a stony stare. "What are you giving me?"

"Honest," continued the worried one, "I'm a stranger in New York. Got here this morning. Had the address of a boarding house on a slip of paper a friend gave me. Went there, engaged board, left my trunk and then went out on business. Now I've lost the strip of paper somehow, and I've forgotten the street and number. What'll I do?"

"Advertise," repeated the bluecoat, but less bluntly. "Then go to a hotel and wait for an answer. Another way is to write to the friend who gave you the address."

"Thank you," said the lost one gratefully.—New York Globe.

Life's Day.

The time that has elapsed since the first appearance of life on earth has been variously estimated at 100,000,000 to 200,000,000 years. To tax our powers of comprehension as little as possible Dr. H. Schmidt of Jena has taken the shortest estimate and has tried to make understandable the five great evolutionary periods through which life has passed by comparing them with a day of twenty-four hours This is the result: The archeozoic period (52,000,000 years) is represented by 12 hours 30 minutes; paleozoic (34,000,000 years), 8 hours 7 minutes; mesozoic (11,000,000 years), 2 hours 38 minutes; cenozoic (3,000,000 years), 43 minutes; anthropozoic (100,000 years), 2 minutes. If the last period, the age of man, be compared in its subdivisions by the same scale it is found that the "historic" portion covers only 5 seconds, and 2 seconds are sufficient for the Christian era. It seems incredible, but the evidence is convincing that this does not exaggerate the time relations of our written records with the records of the rocks.

An East Indian Crime.

The occidental reader who shrugs his shoulders deploringly over the evils of Indian caste has little conception of what suffering the custom involves. Its tragedies extend even to the humble, commonplace matters of everyday life. A little incident witnessed by Prince Bojidar Karageorgevitch and chronicled in his "Enchanted India" needs no comment.

Stones and flying sticks were thrown at a little pariah girl whose shadow as she passed defiled the food of a Brahman.

He merely threw away the rice, which the dogs soon finished. But the bystanders who witnessed the girl's insolence in going so near a holy man—she, so base and unworthy—flew at the unhappy creature, who ran away screaming and dropping the load of wood she was carrying on her back.

Meat on a Spit.

It was the custom in mediaeval times to serve roast meat on a spit and to pass it round the table for each guest to cut off what he liked. In France one still finds chicken livers and bacon served on small spits.

It is probable that many people continued to prefer fingers to table utensils even after these were perfected and in general use, for knives were certainly invented at the period when Charles XII. chose to butter his bread with his royal thumb.

Wanted One Saved.

"My task in life," said the minister complacently, "consists in saving young men."

"Ah," replied the maiden, with a soulful longing, "save a good one for me, won't you?"

Scriptural Carving.

A Scriptural method of carving fowls when in secular company was claimed by a witty clergyman who, having been asked to carve one day, said, "Inasmuch as you demand it, I will carve the fowl according to Biblical principles." "Yes," exclaimed the hostess, "act according to the Scriptures." The theologian therefore began the carving. The baron was tendered the head of the fowl, the baroness the neck, the two daughters a wing apiece and the two sons a first joint, the carver retaining the remainder.

"According to what interpretation do you make such a division?" inquired the host of his guest as he regarded the clergyman's heaping plate and the scant portions doled out to the family.

"From an interpretation of my own," replied the clerical wit. "As the master of your house the head belongs to you by right; the baroness, being most near to you, should receive the neck, which is nearest the head; in the wings the young girls will recognize a symbol of their noble thoughts, that fly from one desire to another; as to the young barons, the drumsticks they have received will remind them that they are responsible for supporting your house, as the legs of the capon support the bird itself." — London Standard.

Camel a Delicate Beast.

Contrary to the widespread but erroneous opinion, the camel is a very delicate animal. A camel that has worked fifteen days in succession needs a month's pasturage to recuperate. It is liable to a host of ailments and accidents. When a caravan crosses a sebkha, or dry salt lake, it is rare that some of the animals do not break a leg. If the fracture is in the upper part of the limb there is nothing for it but to slaughter the animal and retail its flesh as butcher's meat.

If the lower part of the limb has been injured the bone is set and held in position by means of splints made of palm branches, which are bound with small cords. If no complications ensue at the end of a month the fracture is reduced. When it is a case of simple dislocation the injured part is cauterized with a redhot iron, then coated with clay and bandaged with a strip of cloth. Fifteen days afterward the animal is generally cured.—Vulgarisation Scientifique.

That's All He Forgot.

The cab containing the absentminded man and his family drew up in front of the Broad street station. There emerged the absentminded man, his wife, three children, a birdcage, a dog on a leash and innumerable bundles and parcels. The absentminded man paid the driver, gathered up the bundles, dropped them and pressed his hand dramatically to his fevered brow.

"There," he exclaimed, "I just knew I had forgotten something!"

His wife carefully counted the three children, saw that the dog and the birdcage were intact and took an inventory of the bundles.

"We seem to be all here," she remarked. "I am sure we have everything. What do you think it is you have forgotten?"

"Why, bless my soul!" cried the absentminded man. "Now that we are here I've forgotten where we intended going!"—Philadelphia Ledger.

Tongue Caught Ermine.

"This stole is of tongue caught ermine, hence its high price," the salesman said.

"Tongue caught ermine, eh?"

"Yes, madam. You see, the ermine's coat is extremely delicate. A trap tears it horribly. So the trapper catches it by the tongue.

"The ermine is fond of ice. The trapper smears heavy knives with grease and lays them here and there on the snow. The snow white ermine, lithe and quick, rushes up in the zero weather, licks what he takes for a sliver of ice, and, lo, is doomed, for the steel of the heavy knife has frozen fast to his tongue."—Exchange.

Longest English Lawsuit.

The longest lawsuit ever heard in England was that between the heir of Thomas Talbot, Viscount Lisle, and the heirs of Lord Berkeley respecting certain lands and possessions not far from Wootton-under-Edge, in the county of Gloucester. It commenced at the end of the reign of Edward IV. and was pending till the reign of James I., when a compromise took place after it had lasted about 120 years.—London Answers.

Unheeded Remonstrances.

"Was that you scolding a poor dog that was merely indulging his natural inclination to howl at the moon?" asked the kind hearted man.

"Yes," answered his neighbor.

"Don't you know you ought to be kind to dumb animals?"

"That dog isn't dumb; he's only deaf."—Washington Star.

There Was.

The disheveled bard entered the weary eyed editor's apartment.

"Is there an opening here for a poet?" he inquired.

"Yes, indeed," replied the editor, touching a button underneath his desk, and the next instant the poet disappeared through a trapdoor in the floor. —Exchange.

A Good Loser.

"John," she asked, "do you ever play poker for profit?"

"No," he replied thoughtfully; "the game serves as my way of being charitable."—Philadelphia North American.

MARRIED AGAINST GERMANY.

Royal marriages do not affect international relations as they once did, but they have their influence.

Royalty makes more fuss over its boys than its girls, yet Emporer William would be better off if he had more girls. He has female cousins, but it is more satisfying to a monarch or a prince to marry the daughters and granddaughters of a king or emporer than his cousins.

The Queen of Spain is Victoria's granddaughter, so Spain is a virtual ally of England. Portugal probably will become another ally through the marriage of King Manuel with an English princess. England is represented in Norway, has prospects in Sweden, is related to Denmark and through Denmark with Russia and Greece.

The Queen of Italy inherits hostility towards Austria with her Montenegrin blood and has had her part in weakening Italy's ties with the triple alliance. Ferdinand of Bulgaria, though partly German, is related to Manuel and indirectly to Alfonso.

Europe is pretty well married against Germany. Edward has played his cards well. Daughters, granddaughters and nieces are cheaper than Dreadnaughts.—Chicago News

CHINCILLA COATS.

Despite the costliness and increasing rarity of chinchilla, this fur is still a favorite for the fortunate ones who can make use of it. In many long coats representing the limit of luxury the skins are placed horizontally at the lower part of the coat, forming a deep hem. The sleeves, too, are arranged in this way.

Innovations in lining are always noticeable. Some of these chinchilla coats are lined with gray satin, and three accordion-pleated flounces of chiffon are added.

They are graduated in size, and are headed with a band of silver embroidered net.

A comfortable abundance of pockets of various sizes is to be found on all of the newest models. These are tucked away in the linings so cleverly that no bulkiness is evident.

Accounting for a Condition.

"Why is it that we have so few great works of literature?" said the man with long hair.

"Perhaps," answered Miss Cayenne, "it is because so much of our literary talent is devoted to proving that literature is extinct."—Washington Evening Star.

Regulate Diet.

If one's face is too red, be careful of the diet. Take no hot drinks, but cooling ones. Don't wash the face with cold water nor when you feel flushed. Lukewarm water is better When going out in the sun wear a thin veil. Hot foot baths are also said to help in a case of this kind.

GRAY EXPLAINS ACT IN LICENSE MATTER.

Summit, Feb. 7.—James S. Gray doesn't see why his letter and free tickets to an automobile show which he sent to Excise Commissioner David D. Gilchrist, should be considered as an effort to improperly influence the latter to vote for a retail liquor license which Gray desired.

As told, the letter set forth Gray's plans to conduct a workingman's hotel, asked if Gilchrist would be in favor of granting the needed liquor license for the place and requested an early reply. Gilchrist paid no attention to the letter, but became vexed later upon receiving from Gray the complimentary tickets to the motorcar show.

In commenting on the matter, Gray said that four or five weeks ago he did communicate with the various members of the city's Excise Board. Gray exhibited a copy of the letter that he mailed to Gilchrist at that time, the salient features of which have already been outlined. Continuing, Gray said.

"Regarding the complimentary automobile show tickets that Gilchrist speaks of, I wish to say that I mailed some two or three hundred of complimentary tickets to various citizens in the city of Summit and vicinity, and it never occurred to me for a minute that Gilchrist would anticipate my influencing his vote on a retail liquor license for a twenty-five cent automobile show ticket."

BRANDEIS AND VETREES LOOKED AT THE PAPERS.

Washington, Feb. 7.—The Ballinger-Pinchot Congressional Investigating Committee took a good long time in executive session Saturday to ruminate over a dilemma with which it is confronted. It has received the preliminary installment of papers, records and other documents called for by Attorney Brandeis, counsel for L. R. Glavis. The committee now does not know whether it ought to turn this mass of material over to Brandeis without examination, or let him into the secrets contained therein. It is possible that there might be something bearing on the Interior-Forestry squabble that ought not to be published in the interest of the government—such as reports of secret agents on certain land matters.

Attorney Brandeis, however, claims that the committee promised him an opportunity to go over the papers and up to date has not lived up to that obligation. John J. Vetrees, who heads the legal staff of Secretary Ballinger and the other officials of the Interior Department, was on hand when the committee met. He went over the case with Brandeis. The documents which the committee considered came in a bulky package nearly as big as a trunk.

Patersonians Inspect Auto Engine.

Trenton, Feb. 7.—To inspect the workings of the automobile fire engine used in this city, Mayor McBride and Commissioners of Fire and Police William A. Hotson, William Ryan and John Mallon, of Paterson, with Mayor Bird W. Spencer and City Counsel A. D. Sullivan, of Passaic, came here Friday. The auto engine was taken from the firehouse, and the visitors were driven through Trenton streets on the apparatus under its seventy-five horsepower gasoline engine. Then the visitors witnessed the work of the automobile engine throwing water over a five-story building. The visitors took dinner at the Trenton House, and were then taken to the depot on the automobile engine.

Game Dealer Fined $700.

Atlantic City, Feb. 7.—E. R. Willis, a dealer in game, was fined $700 by Magistrate DeHart Friday afternoon for having prescribed game in his possession out of season. William Loder, of Egg Harbor City, said he visited Willis' establishment and found there nine pheasants, six quail and twenty rabbits, each of which called for a fine of $20 under the State law. The State law provides that no game of the sort mentioned shall be kept in possession after January 15.

Aged Woman's Gift to Institute.

Ocean Grove, Feb. 7.—Mrs. H. S. Kidder, who recently attained her ninety-third birthday, has donated the sum of $1,000 to the Garrett Biblical Institute, one of the theological schools of the Methodist church, located at Evanston, Ill. The gift is in memory of Mrs. Kidder's late husband, Rev. Dr. D. P. Kidder, who was one of the professors of this institution at the time of its founding.

"Black Diamond" in Jail.

Long Branch, Feb. 7.—William Holmes, a negro known as "Black Diamond," was arrested in New York Friday and admitted he had pawned jewelry found in Broadway last summer valued at $800. The jewels were lost by Mrs. Pitman West. The pawn tickets were not recovered, but the name of the purchaser of the tickets was learned by the police. Holmes was committed to Freehold.

THE FOURTH ESTATE

Novelized by
FREDERICK R. TOOMBS.

From the great play of the same name by Joseph Medill Patterson and Harriet Ford. Copyright, 1909, by Joseph Medill Patterson and Harriet Ford.

As the judge disappeared Wheeler Brand sank heavily into his chair. He spread his arms on his desk and bowed his head between them until his cheek rested on the cool polished surface.

"You count the money, judge."

"Judith, Judith!" he sobbed, and his body shook uncontrolledly as he wept for the girl he loved.

CHAPTER XII.

MIDNIGHT in the rooms of a leading daily paper in a big city is not a time when peaceful slumber is in order for those who are concerned in the business of producing the paper. It is the time when trained brains and trained hands are exerted to the extreme limit of their capacity to get the very latest news into shape, into type, into the press, into the mail wagons and "on the street."

And it is in the composing room where the brunt of the battle is borne in the final hours in which is completed the record of a world's doings and undoings for a day. Masses of "copy" swirl upward in the tubes or are carried in by boys from the city editorial room. The typesetting machines click, click, click, in unceasing monotony, and the proofreaders scan columns of "green proofs" with a rapidity, when under pressure, that would amaze the uninitiated observer. The "makeup" men cluster around the cumbersome tables or "stones" on which the forms are made up, lifting in the metal lines of type here, making corrections or shifting cuts there and locking the forms to be shunted into the stereotype room, where the paper matrices will be made. When the matrix is placed in the casting box the molten stereotype metal is poured in, and within a very few minutes the cylindrical plates, hardened quickly in the casting box by the pouring of cold water into the jacket, are locked on the cylinders of the gigantic duodecuple press and ready to whirl off over 100 copies of a paper per second, all printed, pasted, folded and counted.

Midnight in the offices of the Advance on the night that Judge Bartelmy's photograph was taken with $10,000 of bribe money in his hands found the staff of the paper in all departments working as probably they had never worked before, except on election night. The story required considerable time for preparation. The notes of Howard and Jeff, the two reporters who recorded the conversation of Brand and Bartelmy, had to be translated from shorthand into English. Then an introduction and a head had to be written, and the art department had to break all previous records in turning out a cut made from the photograph resulting from the flashlight.

In the composing room men were working like galley slaves to get the great Bartelmy exposure story into type and into the forms. The composing room in the Advance building was a "double decker"—i. e., a second story had been built in the rear part of the room to accommodate the proofreaders. This second story was really but a half story, extending out over a portion of the composing room, and the walls were partitions, the lower half of wood and the upper half of glass windows.

On the lower floor the linotype machines were set in rows. A steam table loomed on one side. On another table, an ironbound one, rested the galleys containing matter for the night's edition of the paper. At the extreme left of the room a wooden partition shut off the small office that the managing editor used at night when he superintended the makeup proceedings. A door opened into this small room from the outer hall, close to a door opening from the hall into the composing room itself. At the opposite end of the compartment a door opened into the composing room. In his small inclosure Brand, the managing editor, had a desk and a telephone. Adjoining the partition, which shut him off from the composing room and on the outside of it, was a desk used by the copy cutters, who cut the pages of manuscript—after they had been pasted together—into "takes." A take is one of the sections into which a story is cut, so that several compositors can work on different parts of the same story simultaneously, resulting in the saving of considerable time in setting it up.

The typesetting machines clicked off rapidly the words, sentences and paragraphs of the Bartelmy "beat" and the other stories which had to be crowded into the "mail edition." Brand was in his little room at the right, reading the proof of the introduction of the account of the accusation of the United States judge, which introduction he had chosen to write himself. McHenry, the deposed managing editor and now Brand's assistant, was at the forms with the makeup men.

A boy rushed in with a cut for McHenry. The busy editor squinted at it and waved the boy to one side.

"Why do they send us this baled hay when we've got a live one?" he said disgustedly.

Downs came in from the city room.

"That Clinton street fire is getting better every minute," he said to McHenry. "We ought to have at least four columns on it."

McHenry glared at the speaker.

"Are you crazy, man?" he exclaimed. "Do you think we use rubber type? You'll have to keep it in three."

Downs was dissatisfied.

"All right. This shop is going to the d—l," he answered, shaking his head negatively. He went out of the composing room.

McHenry went over to one of the makeup stones.

"Where are the cuts for the Chicago and Bryan jump heads? I can't find them anywhere," he asked.

"All right. They go there." He pointed to a space in one of the forms as a boy handed him another cut. McHenry held it up to the light and hurried into Brand's office with it. He laid it proudly on the managing editor's desk.

"That's a wonder, Mac!" pronounced Brand.

McHenry agreed.

"Yes; you can almost count the money in old Bartelmy's hand!" he exclaimed, and he peered closely once more at the metal slab.

Brand meditated a moment.

"I'm going to change the makeup on that page," he decided. "Put this cut at the top of the page, so that when the papers are folded on the newsstands every one that passes by will see Bartelmy offering a bribe of $10,000 to suppress the truth about himself. Is your story all up yet?"

"Yes. It's in the form."

"Then go finish it off and send it down to the stereotyping room."

McHenry turned away.

"Won't this make the Patriot sick?" he said as he left. "They'd give the shirts off their backs to beat us on a story like this or to keep us from doing it to them."

As McHenry went out of the door into the composing room Sylvester Nolan dashed into Brand's room from the hall through the other door. The lad was plainly excited, his face showing an amount of animation that, for him, was a decided novelty. His eyes flashed and his breath came in short gasps, indicating that he had been hurrying.

"Where's my father, Mr. Brand? Where is he?" he gasped.

Brand suspected something of the Nolan son's errand.

"I'm afraid you'll have to find him," was the only information he chose to impart.

Young Nolan drew close to the desk at which the managing editor was working.

"Judge Bartelmy wants him," he exclaimed. "The judge, the judge! Don't you understand?"

"Does he?" asked Brand with utmost unconcern.

Sylvester grew impatient at his father's employee who dared assume indifference toward his father's only son.

"I want to know where he is," he demanded.

"Well, I can't tell you." Brand rose and stepped away, with Sylvester following him.

"I understand that you are going to publish something about the judge that's beyond the limit," said the son.

"Possibly."

"Well, this thing's gone far enough,"

"That cut is a wonder, Mac!"

snapped Sylvester. "In the absence of my father I forbid it. Do you hear?"

Brand took up a bundle of proofs and moved to the door.

"I'm afraid I can't take orders from you," he said and he stepped calmly out into the composing room.

Sylvester, nonplused, looked about uncertainly for a moment. Then, with a sudden thought, he went to the telephone.

He placed the receiver at his ear.

"Hello! Hello! I'm Mr. Sylvester Nolan. Get me the house on the wire, please." An office boy entered. "What do you mean by trying to prevent me from coming up here?" asked young Nolan.

"My orders."

"You're discharged." The boy grinned amusedly and hurried out.

"Hello! Hello!" continued Sylvester at the telephone. "Is this you, mother? I want to speak to father. I'm at the Advance office. Hell's breaking loose here, and I want him to come down quick. Isn't he there? Where is he? Expecting him any minute? Oh! Jump in a taxi and come down, will you? All right. Good!"

He hung up the receiver and walked swiftly into the hall to leave the building.

Downs and Brand entered the little room.

"There is a big fire in Clinton street," the former said. "McHenry won't give me room, but I've got to have it."

"Jump in a taxi and come down."

"That's it. The good stuff always comes in bunches," said Brand, showing his disgust. "What else you got?"

"Your cub, Powell, just came in with a prose poem on a dance hall suicide."

"Let's see it." The managing editor looked at the story, smiling broadly as he did so. "Send him in."

"Is Mr. Brand in there?"

"Here; you can't go in there," a voice was heard in warning, and Brand looked up.

A Veritable Niagara of
A.P.C. WASH FABRICS
The Most Advanced Product of the New England Looms
Gigantic Sale
125,000 Yards, at 6 2/1 c

A Nation-Wide Movement

This is part of a nation-wide movement for the distribution of the mighty output of the greatest cloth printing works in the world. Millions of yards will be sold within the next two weeks. This store is one of the chief distributors, and our share of these fabrics would, if stretched in a single line, reach almost from Newark to Philadelphia.

Every foot of the vast space we devote to the show and sale of wash fabrics—counters, shelves and tables—will be crowded with these useful, beautiful fabrics tomorrow and until the big lot melts away before the rush of buyers sure to come to us every day while this sale is on—and a largely augmented force will be ready to speed the selling.

New French Finish, Vast Variety

One can have little conception of the real beauty of these A. P. C. Printed Wash Fabrics—the low price is bound to prejudice some folks against them, but if you will come and see the display, see the fabrics in the piece, and in the model gowns here for your inspection, you will realize the true merit of these wonderful economical fabrics. Many of them are replicas of costly imported fabrics as you will observe, closely imitating rich foulards and woven woolens.

Many of the patterns are so refined and elegant that they will be largely used, particularly for morning dresses in both city and country and especially by those who spend the Summer at mountain or ocean resorts.

There are styles for children, for young people, the middle-aged and older folks, and the variety is so tremendous that it matters not much what sort of a dress one wishes for it can be made from these fabrics.

.6 1/2 Yard—A. P. C. Gingham Styles, A. P. C. Military Blues, A. P. C. Rose Pink, A. P. C. Lilac Checks.

.6 1/2 Yard A. P. C. Linen Finish, A. P. C. Polka Dots, A. P. C. Shirt Waistings, A. P. C. Coin Spots.

40-in. 29c White Mercerized Batiste, 16c yard.
35c All-White Satin-Figure Waistings, 22c yard.

30c Pure Irish Tan Linen ..... .19
Every thread pure linen—rich golden tan; satin finish; woven of the original natural color of the flax.

Absolutely Unfadable Colors

Amazing is it may seem as you look at the wonderful intricate designs and marvelous colorings, every color is absolutely fast and infadable, no matter how often the goods may be put thru the washtub. This is due to the fact that in the making of the A. P. C. fabrics only the most expensive indigo and aniline dyes are used. It is certainly a satisfaction to all wearers of washable dresses to be sure that the colors are there to stay.

Come to this sale tomorrow or any day this week prepared to buy from one to a dozen dress lengths. Provide now for future possible needs as the opportunity to select from so great a variety is not likely to come again this year.

See the Model Dresses
Eight of Them to be Given Away

We want all visitors to the store to see the Model A. P. C. Wash Dresses in the newest fashions, showing you just how beautiful these remarkably low-priced fabrics lend themselves to the artistic draping of the figure. These designs are by noted Metropolitan modistes and you will be interested in the fact that those who participate in this sale may secure one of these gowns free.

Save your sales checks—as these gowns are to be given as a premium to the purchaser of the greatest number of yards of A. P. C. Wash Fabrics ordered at one time charged on a single sales check.

Quantities bought at different times will not be counted in the aggregate—the single purchase alone will count in the awarding of the gowns. Awards will be made when the sale is over.

BASKETBALL.

The Y. M. C. A. basketball team defeated Williamsbridge in one of the most exciting games of the season on Saturday night. Score 27 to 23. By downing the New Yorkers the locals retrieved themselves nobly for the defeat sustained on New Year's day.

Plainfield led in the first session by the score of 16 to 1.. In that half the locals executed fast team work which mystified the visitors all the way.

Williamsbridge in the final round displayed a tendency to overhaul Plainfield, but the speedy work was continued and when the whistle blew the score Plainfield was on top with four points to spare. The lineup:

Y. M. C. A.—Aaholm, Collier, forwards; Linke, Foster, centre; Foster, Gavett, Minor, guards. Williamsbridge—White, Hughes, forwards; Johnson, centre; Crane, Hallett, Ingraham, guards.

The Y. M. C. A. "second team" and Consolidated five had an interesting battle, which was won by the former team by the score 27 to 16. The lineup:

"Seconds"—Templin, Manley, forwards; Hoagland, centre; Naylor, Meimcke, guards. Consolidated—Murphy, Line, forwards; Hauck, centre; Vail, Davis, guards.

Playground Report.

At a meeting of the Playground Committee on Saturday night it was decided to transmit to the Common Council today the offer of Andrew McLean Parker to lease to the municipality at a nominal rental twelve acres of land at Woodland avenue and Randolph road for a public athletic field. President Marshal presided at the meeting.

HEAVEN A REAL PLACE
SAYS REV. J. Y. BROCK

Rev. John Y. Brock, pastor Trinity Reformed church, delivered the fourth of the series of sermons on "Heaven," at the church last night, the topic being, "Where Is Heaven?" He took his text from John 14: 2, "I Go to Prepare a Place for You." In part he spoke as follows:

"Heaven is of all absorbing, and intense interest and of deepest importance to us. Really, every Christian has some friend in heaven and we cannot help, after wondering and asking the question, where they are and what are they doing? Could some only come back and tell us about them.

"Heaven is our home. It is the only home a Christian has. Earth is not our home and God never intended that earth beautiful, though it might be, should be our home. Earth is the land of sojourn and pilgrimage. We nightly pitch our tent one day nearer heaven.

"There are many questions that confront and perplex us when we think of the locality of heaven. Is heaven a state of blessedness or a it must have a dwelling place the a condition of happiness and that heaven or a place does not exist.

"We believe with the Bible teacher that heaven is not only a condition of happiness but also a distinct place. Although the soul is an enity, it must have a dwelling place. The fact that the soul is invisible does not do away with the necessity of an abode. We shall also have material bodies in heaven, and they shall be glorified. A body must exist in some place. Christ had such a body after his resurrection. He passed through closed doors and yet He could be seen with the material eye. Jesus distinctively taught that heaven is a place in many passages of Scripture.

"But where is heaven located? The Bible gives us difinite information that there is such a place as heaven, but does not give us the least hint as to its exact location. The idea which the average person has of the ocality of heaven is that it is somewhere in the sky. There is no answer at all. Others state that this earth after it is purified from its wickedness by fires of conflagration, hall be heaven. Another view held s that heaven lies about us, that he spirits of the departed hovers n the air around this earth, and the spirits although invisible are as near is in death as they were in life. The view although comforting, is not Scriptural.

"The idea of heaven is always to take our thoughts away from earth. In the Bible heaven and earth are always contrasted. We are told to place our affections on those things that are above. Heaven is a place where Christ is. Scripture strains language to tell us of the glories and beauties of that place. The idea presented in the Bible is that heaven will be far better than we can imagine or conceive of, and will be a most attractive place."

FIFTY BELGIAN HARES
KILLED BY TWO DOGS.

Two dogs entered the rabbit warrens of Adolph Bohren, on Greenbrook road on Saturday night, and killed fifty Belgian hares. The dogs entered the coop by a trap door and after enjoying their feast the canines found themselves unable to gain their freedom.

Marshal Frank Culver captured the dogs yesterday. Both are untagged, one being a fox terrier and the other a wolf hound. They are being held at the borough police station. Bohren estimates the damage at $50.

Will of Wealthy Recluse Probated.

Bayonne, Feb. 7.—The will of Mrs. Rosa Wackernagel, the rich recluse, supposed to have been penniless, who died at the Bayonne Hospital, several days ago, as the result of inhaling gas with suicidal intent, and left a fortune of nearly $30,000., has been admitted to probate. The executor, George Ochs, of Port Richmond, Staten Island, a nephew of the dead woman, cut short a visit in Germany to return and take charge of his aunt's effects. One of the witnesses of the will, who has been missing, has been found. He is Adolph Winkopf, a bank clerk, in New York. Before the will was probated Lawyer Solinsky and ex-Judge John Crook, of Richmond Borough, who represent Ochs, went to the Garfield Trust Company, in New York, one of the seven institutions in which were deposited the savings of the deceased, in order to make a search of the vault, the only one that remained unvisited. It was then ascertained that the keys to the vault were missing. In order to open the vault, an order will have to be procured from the comptroller of New York.

"Private Secretary" Tonight.

The "Private Secretary," a farce comedy, will be given by the young people of the Bible classes of the Church of the Holy Cross in the Park Club auditorium tonight. It is an ambitious attempt, but it is said that the presentation will equal some of the best professional work. The performance will begin promptly at 8:15 o'clock. Tickets may be procured at Armstrong's drug store or at the Park Club.

WANT NAME FOR SCHOOL

LECTURE FOR FEBRUARY 15.

Ovide Musin to Play on February 22—Bill for White Rats and Pigeons—Other Items of Interest.

The Dunellen avenue school which is now called the West End school, needs a name which must be in keeping with the names of the other public schools of the city and the Board of Education would like suggestions from the public as to the most acceptable and popular appellation Someone has already suggested La Fayette as being appropriate, using as an argument that had it not been for the Count the great American institutions would never have come into being.

This with several other matters came up before the board at its meeting last night at which all the members excepting James F. Buckle were present. Reports from the medical and dental examiners were read and a shudder ran down the spines of the members of the board when Secretary Woodhull announced that more than three hundred exposed nerves were discovered in the teeth of pupils in two schools.

A communication was read from City Clerk J. M. McMurray announcing that Herbert Buxton and Charles C. Randolph were appointed by the Common Council to act with Messrs. Lovell and Tyler on the Board of School Estimate.

Applications were received from William Baker, of 202 Watchung avenue and John A. Kriney, of 361 Evona avenue, for positions as janitors. Both applications were filed.

The application of F. J. Hubbard for permission to use the High School auditorium for a violin concert on February 22 in which Ovide Musin is to appear, caused a lengthy discussion. The concert is to be given for the benefit of the Y. M. C. A. boys' department and the question which arose was as to whether such a function came under the head of "educational" endeavor or merely money making. The McIntyre concerts, all of which were given in the High School, were cited as a precedent and on a motion of Mr. Tyler the required permission for the use of the auditorium was granted.

Mr. Woodhull said the board ought to be careful what they did as they were being subjected to criticism for some of their acts. Mr. Tyler said he did not care how much they were criticised as what they did was done with conscientious regard for their duty.

After a short discussion the bill of the Black & Boyd Mfg. Co. was ordered paid. This bill has been held up because the bronze plating on the lamp posts of the Washington School was worn off. The company promises to repair the damage as soon as the frost is out of the posts.

There will be a lecture given in the auditorium on February 15 by H. B. Winship, whose topic will be "Schools and Their Critics." The 700 questions made by the Senate Investigating Committee have been answered and the papers containing them will be forwarded to Trenton as soon as they have been revised by Dr. B. vanD. Hedges and Mr. Woodhull.

One of the bills passed for payment last night caused an inquiry. It was from a local dealer and was for thirty-two white rats and some pigeons. They were purchased for demonstrating purposes for the class in bioglogy. The meeting adjourned at 9:30.

BIG ICE HARVEST AT WATCHUNG POND.

The ice harvest at the second pond at Watchung will probably break the record for the place this season. The ice houses which are nearly full now will contain about 24,000 tons and after that the ice will be stacked up outside the buildings. McDonough Bros. have about seventy-five men at work today cutting and stacking ice.

The first crop was of an average thickness of twelve inches and the later which is being cut now will average eight and a half. Mr. McDonough says this ice is pure crystal and free from snow.

WIRTH LOSES ANOTHER HORSE: HIND LEG BROKEN, SHOT.

A horse belonging to John Wirth, the baker, of West Front street, slipped and fell in Smith's alley this forenoon and his near hind leg was broken, necessitating the destruction of the animal. It was shot by Patrolman McDonald.

Mr. Wirth seems to be unfortunate with his horses, this being the fourth or fifth animal he has lost either by fire or broken limbs during the past two years.

CITY FATHERS RECEIVE LICENSE APPLICATIONS

The usual number of applications for liquor licenses were presented at the February meeting of the Common Council, last night, and they were referred to the license committee to be reported on at an adjourned meeting on Thursday night, February 24, for action. All licenses expire March 1, hence the necessity of action this month.

The applicants for saloon, hotel and wholesale licenses are as follows: Jerome W. Leary; Jacob Blimm, Jr., Ellsworth C. Westcott, George J. Weinman, Clark Brothers, Christian Gloekler, Henry Windham, Alexander Riley, Hotel Kensington; Alexander D. Findlay Michael F. Watson, Frank Linke and the Eastern Bottling Company.

Just prior to the presentation of the licenses, the application of John Burns, proprietor of the Hotel Kensington, for a transfer of his license to the new proprietor, Alexander Riley, was received and was acted upon favorably, Chairman Clay, of the license committee, recommending that the transfer be made. Mr. Riley took possession of the hotel business this morning. He also presented Riley's application for a new license beginning March 1.

TRADE BOARD TO TALK ON MUNICIPAL OWNERSHIP

Mayor Charles J. Fisk is anxious to push forward with all possible haste public sentiment for the proposed special election at which the question of municipal ownership of the water plant may be submitted to the voters. He sent yesterday to President William Jeffery of the Board of Trade this letter.

"At a meeting of the Common Council held this evening, a resolution was adopted of which the following is a copy:

"Resolved, That it is the sense of the Council that the question of the adoptions of the provisions of an Act, entitled "An Act to enable cities to supply the inhabitants thereof with pure and wholesome water," be submitted to the voters of the city at a special election to be held as soon as the necessary preparations can be made; and,

"Further Resolved, That the Corporation Counsel be, and is hereby, requested to prepare at or before time for the regular meeting of the Council in March next, the necessary resolutions, notices, etc., for bringing about such submission, to the end that action may be taken thereon at such regular meeting."

"This is an important matter, and if I may suggest, I think it would be well to call a special meeting of the Board of Trade, at which meeting you could invite the Merchants' Association, and members of the Plainfield Protective Association, and such other people as you may think proper to be present; and Mr. Mygatt, chairman of the public affairs committee of the Council, having this matter in charge, will be very glad to present the matter for discussion. I suggest a special meeting of the board for this purpose, as it will probably take most of the evening to thoroughly discuss the matter. It should be done before the next meeting of the Council on March 7. The earlier date it can be arranged for the better."

SIX FIRE ALARMS IN FORTY-SEVEN HOURS

Six alarms in forty-seven hours is a new record for the local fire department. The sixth call to duty since nine o'clock Sunday morning was made at 8 o'clock today when the apparatus responded to an alarm due to a small fire at the home of E. L. Van Campen, 530 East Second street. A defective flue was the cause and the damage was trifling.

At 6 o'clock last evening fire was discovered in a pile of rags in the cellar of Abrams' shoe store on West Front street. The blaze was the result of carelessness on the part of a gas fitter who had been engaged in thawing out pipes in the cellar during the afternoon. Martin Connaughton turned in the alarm. When the department arrived on the scene the blaze was out.

All the work of answering the six alarms fell on the downtown companies, while the west end and east end firemen were permitted to remain indoors during the zero snap.

Cancelled Game.

The basketball game scheduled for tomorrow between North Plainfield High and South Orange is off owing to cancellation by the management of the latter team.

ACCEPT ATHLETIC FIELD OWNERSHIP REFERENDUM

Andrew Mc Clean Parker's Offer Welcomed by the City Fathers.

FOR PUBLIC PLAYGROUND.

No Action Is Taken on the Education Board's Plan for Playgrounds at the Public Schools.

The Playground Commission, through the secretary, Joseph W. Gavett, communicated with the Common Council at its February meeting, last night, regarding the offer of Andrew McClean Parker to provide a fully equipped athletic field for the city for a nominal rent; also that the Board of Education had approved plans for establishing playgrounds at the Bryant and Franklin Schools.

In connection with the playground idea, it was stated that $1,000 would be needed to equip these yards with steel slides, swings, sandboxes; also the services of an instructor. It is proposed to purchase the equipment from Spalding Bros., for $600, and the salary of an instructor would be $50 a month. The Council took no action regarding the playground idea, but after a meeting of the Council as a committee of the whole, it was voted to accept Mr. Parker's offer.

All the necessary papers, together with maps, etc., as well as a lease prepared by Corporation Counsel Marsh, were presented. The offer of Mr. Parker is that the city shall have the use of the athletic field which will be located on Randolph road and Woodland avenue, for a term of ten years at the nominal rental of $1 a year, the city to provide for taxes and maintenance, after it is fully equipped. It was explained that the cost of the enterprise to Mr. Parker would be about $20,000. At the end of ten years the city has the option of purchasing the field and equipment for cost, with six per cent. added, otherwise it will revert to Mr. Parker or his estate.

The field is to be under the direct supervision of the Playground Commission, and will be for the use of the city in general, which includes the Plainfield High School, Y. M. C. A., as well as other local bodies. The commission will have the right to charge a revenue for the use of the field to be applied to its maintenance. The field comprises between twelve and fifteen acres.

Action was urged on the proposition last night for the reason that Mr. Parker is going away soon to be absent about two months and he was anxious to know whether the city would accept the proposition, so that he might go ahead and provide for the improvement and equipment.

Mayor Charles J. Fisk was invited to say a few words in explanation of the offer, which he did, and Former Councilman George P. Mellick, of the Playground Commission, spoke in favor of the matter. He said that all appreciated Mr. Parker's offer and he was sure that the commission would give the best of care and attention to the maintenance of the field.

ASSEMBLY RECEIVES LOCAL OPTION BILL

The introduction of the local option bill backed by the Anti-Saloon League took place last night in both Houses, Senator Gebhardt introducing the bill in the Senate and Mr. Ridgway in the House.

The bill is identical throughout with the Plummer bill of last year. It provides that upon a petition of at least thirty per cent. of the voters of any city, town, township, village, borough or other municipality of the State, the County or Circuit Judge shall order a special election, to be held at least sixty days from any other election, in and for such municipality to decide whether or not licenses shall be issued therein. If the majority shall vote against license, no license shall be granted in such municipality until such vote is reversed, but if the majority shall vote for license, licenses shall be granted as before. After two years a new election may be obtained by either side in the same way, whether license or no-licens won before. The bill expressly excepts the serving of liquor in a private home, the use of wine for sacramental purposes, its sale by manufacturers outside of dry territory, and the sale by druggists for medicinal purposes.

—A social dance for the benefit of the Finderne Baseball Club at Bound Brook will be held in the hall at that place on Lincoln's Birthday night.

City Fathers to Have Voters Decide on Water Supply Question.

RESOLUTION FAVORING IT.

The Common Council Orders Corporation Counsel to Comply With the Legal Formalities.

Steps were taken by the Common Council at the February meeting, last night, to prepare plans for submitting the question of the city acquiring control of the water supply, as exclusively announced in The Daily Press. Mr. Mygatt offered the resolution, which was adopted, that it is the sense of the Common Council that the question be submitted to the people for a vote, and that Corporation Counsel Marsh be requested to prepare such papers for consideration at the March meeting.

The idea is to have the matter in such shape that the election can be held the latter part of March or the first of April. Mr. Mygatt explained the importance of action at this time, and the matter having been discussed more or less by the members of the Council, all were prepared to vote in favor of the proposition.

Some little amusement was occasioned when the vote was taken. Mr. Buxton absented himself from the room for a few minutes, and it was the opinion that he did not care to vote on the question. Sergeant Jacob Dunham was sent after him and returned within a few minutes with the absent member. He voted in the affirmative.

This action does not mean that the city will buy the local water plant, but simply that if the people so decide condemnation proceedings will be instituted for the purpose of ascertaining the price at which the city can buy the plant if it desires.

WANT HIGHER PRESSURE

The Dunellen Council Demands Better Service from Watchung Water Co.

COMMITTEE TO MAKE FIGHT.

Mayor W. A. Sanford Defers Discussion on Sewerage Question Until March Meeting—New Tool House.

The Dunellen Council at its meeting last night was slated to discuss the projected sewerage affiliation with North Plainfield, but on the suggestion of Mayor William A. Sanford, the matter was deferred until the March meeting. In making the suggestion Mayor Sanford stated that it was his wish that the full membership of the Council be present when the discussion takes place. At the meeting last night Councilman Firman H. Gise was unable to be present owing to illness, and it was because of his absence that the matter was put over.

Mayor Sanford declared, however, in his remarks on the subject, that the borough should not hesitate when the proper time comes to take up its share of the contract with North Plainfield. "Sewers are necessary here," he said, "if you wish to see our borough expand, and whatever expense there is the money will be well expended."

Mr. Sanford referred to his presence at the recent meeting of New Jersey mayors held at Trenton. He declared that in his opinion the city of Plainfield would ultimately join interests with North Plainfield in the proposed sewerage system.

Water pressure occupied the attention of the Council for a time. At the recent fire at the Hall Printing Press Works the firemen were handicapped in fighting the flames owing to low pressure and on the recommendation of Fire Chief Wyhuskey the Council will make an effort to secure more efficient water supply from the Watchung Water Company. Councilman R. F. Bogardus was appointed chairman of a committee to place the matter before the water company.

The water company will be requested to place a dial in the engine house which will show the daily pressure. It will also be asked to furnish a telephone at fire headquarters. The Council declares that this is a necessity as when a fire occurs the water company can be notified to start its pumping engines and therefore save a loss of time.

A resolution was passed authorizing the erection of a storage house for tools to be built in the rear of borough hall.

LENT BEGINS TOMORROW

Both the Episcopalians and Roman Catholics Observe the Fast.

THE ORDER OF SERVICES.

Ash-Wednesday Ushers in the Season of Self Denial for All but the Evangelical Churches.

Tomorrow, Ash Wednesday, will usher in the solemn season of Lent in which the faithful among the Episcopal and Roman Catholic churches practice self denial. The Daily Press has published the programs of all but one of the Episcopal churches and the observances of the Roman Catholic churches will be as follows:

Beginning with tomorrow morning the first service in St. Mary's church will be at 8 o'clock when the ashes will be blessed and distributed. In the evening at 8 o'clock the Rosary service will be celebrated. There will also be a sermon, celebration of the Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament and the distribution of ashes.

On Friday evening at 8 o'clock the service of the Stations of the Cross will be observed followed by the Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament.

At St. Joseph's church at 7:30 tomorrow morning, the ceremony of the blessing of the ashes will be celebrated, the service to be followed by a mass. At 8 o'clock in the evening the Rev. William H. Miller will preach a Lenten sermon which will be followed by the distribution of ashes. On Friday night at 8 o'clock the Stations of the Cross service will be said. Special services will also be conducted on Sunday night. A vesper service will be followed by a sermon and the Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament.

The program at Grace Episcopal church for tomorrow will include five services. At 7 o'clock in the morning there will be a celebration of Holy Communion; at 10 o'clock, morning prayer, Holy Communion and sermon; at 12, noon, the Pentecostal Office; at 5 o'clock, evensong with address and at 8 o'clock a special service for men. The program of the lenten services in this church will be printed tomorrow.

HOTEL PROPRIETOR SELL HIS BUSINESS

John Burns disposed of his business at the Hotel Kensington last night when the Common Council by an unanimous vote favorably acted on his petition to transfer the excise license for the place to Alexander Riley, of Philadelphia. Mr. Riley took possession today. The consideration for the deal, negotiated by Ralph L. Morrow, is not known but is said to have been over $13,000. This includes only the hotel business, the hostelry being owned by John H. Campbell.

Since purchasing the business, a little over a year ago, from W. J. Paulson, of Red Bank, Mr. Burns has made an enviable reputation for himself as a man of business integrity and in consequence made a host of friends here. His place has been considered a model one. Mr. Burns and his family today removed to their old home in Flemington. He has amassed a fortune during the years he has spent in the business in various cities and will now lead a retired life.

MR. AND MRS. ED. FEIRING GIVE CHARMING EUCHRE.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Feiring of Orchard place, entertained friends at a delightful euchre last night. Thirty-two guests were in attendance and the decorations were green and white. After the card contests supper was served.

The games were highly enjoyable as well as productive of keen excitement. The winners of the woman's prizes were Mrs. Fred Todd, Mrs. McKeon and Miss Elizabeth Casey; the men who divided the prize list were John Kyle, John Carty and John Connolly.

To Prohibit Minors at Shows.

Included among thirty-two bills that appeared in the House at Trenton, last night, were measures to force the plain designation of all prison-made goods, to require that children under sixteen years of age may not enter a theatre or dance hall unaccompanied by parent or guardian; to keep boys under eighteen years out of pool and billiard rooms.

Cutting Ice Again.

The cold snap has given the icemen a chance to harvest another crop of ice at Watchung pond. Fifty men were given jobs this morning.

ENGINEER'S IDEA ON WATER SUPPLY

In a lengthy communication to the Common Council, last night, R. H. Hood, of Stelle avenue, an engineer of note, took up the question of the city voting on the question of owning its water supply. He advocated this strongly, claiming that in fifty years the city could own its plant through the issue of bonds.

He said that the citizens should be allowed to vote on these three propositions: First, the cost of the present plant; secondly, the advisability of condemnation proceedings; thirdly, the feasibility of building a new plant.

In the opinion of Mr. Hood a reservoir located on the Watchung hills is the proper thing, so that Plainfielders can obtain their water supply through gravity and not by pumping as at present. He said that there was no question but that Plainfield should own and control its water supply, instead of allowing a company to do so and sell it wherever it desired.

Regarding the question of improved sanitary sewage disposal, Mr. Hood said that he did not think the time ripe for action, in view of the new legislation constantly being enacted at Trenton. The communication was referred to the public affairs committee.

BOROUGH SCHOOL BOARD WILL LOSE GOOD MEN

For the purpose of discussing the annual budget which will be presented to borough citizens for their approval or disapproval at the annual school meeting in the Somerset street school on Tuesday night, March 15, the borough school board will meet in special session next Monday night. There is considerable sentiment existing among borough citizens that the budget should be lowered and it is the understanding that the school board will make an effort to meet the prevailing ideas on the question.

The school meeting is likely to be one of the most important in several years as four vacancies are to be filled. The terms of Dr. James R. Joy, Dr. J. H. Cooley, Councilman C. L. Nichols and Robert Clark Jr., expire. Mr. Clark has served one year in the board, having been elected last year to succeed J. Herbert Case, resigned.

If Drs. Cooley and Joy carry out their determinations the board will be obliged to elect members to succeed these citizens who have rendered excellent service during their administrations. Dr. Cooley is the dean of the board, having served twelve years, and Dr. Joy has served nine years. Both men have declared their intentions of stepping out at the school meeting.

It so happens that these men have served as chairmen of two of the most important committees. Dr. Cooley has been the head of the buildings and grounds committee for several years, while Dr. Joy has been of valuable assistance as chairman of the teachers' committee.

FAULTY CONSTRUCTION OF BUILDING ALLEGED

William J. Ford, of 222 East Fourth street, in a communication to the Common Council, last night, took occasion to complain of the methods and material used in the erection of a concrete one-story building on that street by Louis Van Nest. He alleged that the material had cracked, the side walls had bulged, making walking on that side of the street dangerous.

Mr. Ford said that he took the matter up with Chief Doane, who informed him that he was ill at the time the building was erected, and not able to give the matter his attention. Mr. Ford declared that in case of fire there would be serious consequences and he requested the Council to take the matter up. It was referred to the fire and buildings committee.

Rescue Mission Anniversary

The Plainfield Rescue Mission will hold its fourth anniversity tonight at 8 o'clock in the W. C. T. U. hall, when reports of the work for the past year will be presented. There will be several addresses by local ministers and there will also be special music.

Building Permits.

Building Inspector T. O. Doane today granted three building permits as follows: Enoch Berry, 283 Leland avenue, two dwellings, corner Emerson and Midway avenues; J. E. Curtis, garage, 715 Carlton avenue; H. Mauro, stable, 302 East Second street.

CASE GETS JUDGESHIP

Alvah A. Clark's Junior Partner Succeeds Judge Schenck.

F. A. POPE NEW PROSECUTOR.

Senator Frelinghuysen's Suggestions Are Approved by Governor John Franklin Fort.

Judge Louis H. Schenck, who has served two terms as Judge in Somerset county at Somerville, has been succeeded by Clarence E. Case, who was appointed yesterday by Governor John Franklin Fort. Judge Schenck was appointed first by Governor Franklin Murphy and was re-appointed by Governor Stokes. Each term was for four years.

Judge Case is thirty-three years old and was born in Jersey City. He received his education in Rutgers preparatory school, and Rutgers college, graduating from the latter with the class of 1900. He studied law in and graduated from the New York law school and soon after his graduation entered the office of Alvah H. Clark at Somerville, where he practiced for a time. About five years ago Judge Case became a partner with Mr. Clark and afterwards served a term as secretary to the president of the Senate. He took an active part in the last presidential election. His experience in the courts has eminently fitted him for the duties which he will assume as Judge of the District Court in Somerset county.

Frank Allen Pope, who succeeds John F. Reger as prosecutor of Somerset county, was born August 10, 1873, and is the son of the late Charles F. Pope, who was postmaster at Dunellen for twenty years. His mother was Louisa H. Todd, a niece of Rev. John H. Todd. His education was begun in the public schools and finished in the New Jersey Law School. He was raised on a farm at Martinsville and studied law while tilling the soil. He entered the law office of George W. Anderson in 1892 and was admitted to practise in 1896.

His practise ever since has been a successful one. He served as assistant prosecutor to James L. Griggs for five years and from this experience is qualified to enter on his duties as prosecutor for Somerset county.

BLUES DOWN WHITES IN EXCITING CONTEST.

The "Blues" triumphed over the "Whites" in an exciting Business Men's Basketball League battle at the Y. M. C. A. yesterday by the score of 17 to 11. The playing was conducted on extremely close lines in the first half which ended with the score 8 to 5 in favor of the "Whites." In the final round the "Blues" played an uphill game and won by the score of 17 to 11. The line-up:

"Blues"—Stone, Best, forwards; Dunning, centre; Burdick, Hubbard, guards. "Whites"—O. B. Whitford, Spicer, forwards; Hauck, centre; Pierce, Line, guards. Officials, G. L. Listman and Paul Whitford.

Sunday Sports' Measure.

Advocates and opponents of Sunday baseball filled the House of Assembly yesterday afternoon, when a public hearing on House bill No. 19, was introduced by Mr. Olwell, of Hudson county. The measure gives as much attention to tennis, golf, cricket, rowing and "other clean and harmless athletic sports." The matter was argued pro and con with unusual vigor on the part of the advocates and opponents of the measure.

Grandmother Arranged Surprise.

Carl Heinrich Haurand, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Haurand, of Somerset street, was four years old on Sunday. In honor of the event Mrs. Frederick Vordemeir, of Fairview avenue, the boy's grandmother, arranged a surprise party, which was held at the home of the parents. An enjoyable time was had by all and Carl Heinrich was the recipient of numerous presents.

At Industrial School Hearing.

Superintendent of City Schools Henry M. Maxson went to Trenton today to be present at the hearing of Senator John A. Prince's bill for the establishment of industrial schools in the State. It is understood that the measure will be vigorously opposed by the public school authorities in all sections of the State.

ROSELLE PARK NOW HAS BRANCH OF P. B. A.

Roselle Park, Feb. 8.—Local No. 31, Patrolmen's Benevolent Association, which includes in its membership policemen from Roselle, Roselle Park, Cranford and Linden, and is open to policemen of Westfield and Garwood, was formally organized here Saturday afternoon. The organization meeting, which was featured by the election of officers, was followed by a banquet, at which the guests of honor were State President John Beggens, of Jersey City, and other officials of the P. B. A. Borough officials from Roselle and Roselle Park were also in attendance.

The officers elected by the local are: President, Simon Birmingham, of the Roselle Park force; vice-president, Eugene Lewis, Roselle; recording secretary, M. J. Madden, Roselle Park; financial secretary, James Ratchford, Roselle Park; treasurer, James Hennessey, Cranford; sergeant-at-arms, R. O. Bennet, Cranford. The entertainment committee is composed of James Ratchford, Simon Birmingham and Joseph Giesler. Delegates to the Satte convention at Atlantic City next September are James Ratchford, James Hennessey and Arnold Hergenham.

Members of the organization present were: Linden, Frank Novelli, Arnold Hergenham, William Wright and Fred V. Covey; Roselle, Joseph Giesler, John Kenney, Eugene Lewis, Daniel Hennessey; Cranford, R. O. Bennett, James Hennessey, Thomas Wood; Roselle Park, Simon Birmingham, James Ratchford, M. J. Madden.

President Beggens said that the objevt of the organization was to weed out the men who were a disgrace to the police. The organization, he said, stands for a fair day's work and a fair day's pay. He advocated neat appearance and uniform courtesy to all citizens by patrolmen. State Vice-President James J. O'Brien, of the Elizabeth department; Captain John J. O'Leary, of the Second Precinct, Elizabeth, and Patrolman Daniel McCarthy, of Elizabeth, made short addresses, as did Frank Fierer, chairman of the police committee Roselle Park, and John Gregory, a member of the police committee, Roselle.

TOWNSHIP FARMERS DO NOT WANT SANITARIUM.

Trenton, Feb. 8.—Since the objections prevailed against establishing a tuberculosis preventorium at Lakewood, where Governor Fort used all the power of his office to prevent the bringing of diseased children into New Jersey from New York, residents of Hopewell Township, Mercer county, object to Bishop McFaul establishing a sanitarium at Marshall's Corners for the cure of incipient cases of consumption.

The bishop is much interested in the fight being waged against the white plague, and he wants to build this institution. Hopewell Township folk, through their Township Committee, Saturday night voted negatively on the proposition. Dr. G. N. J. Sommer, Bishop McFaul's physician, gave out a statement yesterday to the effect that the institution would work no hardship in the township; that the price of property would not be depreciated, and that there was no good ground for asking that the sanitarium be put back one and a half miles from the proposed site. Some farmers of the township threaten to go to the Court of Chancery if the bishop makes further efforts to build the sanitarium.

FACT ABOUT LYONS DEPOT.

Trenton, Feb. 8.—The State Railroad Commission has made an order reopening the proceedings involving the alleged inadequate station facilities at Lyons, on the Lackawanna Railroad. Further testimony will be taken before the commission on Tuesday of next week.

The testimony will be directed toward showing the following facts: The period during which an agent was maintained throughout the year at this station, the date on which the maintenance of an agent throughout the year was discontinued, the reasons for such discontinuance, the receipts properly to be credited to the station during the last fiscal year of the railroad company, the receipts to be credited to the station at which an agent is maintained throughout the year, located nearest to the station at Lyons, and the receipts to be credited to the station during the fiscal year of the railroad immediately preceding the discontinuance of an agent throughout the year.

The Missionary and Aid Society of Warren chapel will hold a cake sale for the benefit of the chapel deficit fund at the home of Mrs. Joseph W. Gavett, 811 Third place, Friday afternoon from 3 to 6 o'clock.

THE FOURTH ESTATE

Novelized by
FREDERICK R. TOOMBS.

From the great play of the same name by Joseph Medill Patterson and Harriet Ford. Coyprright, 1909, by Joseph Medill Patterson and Harriet Ford.

"Oh, yes, I can," was the cool response, and Dupuy walked in. "Brand, you print that picture of Judge Bartelmy and your paper's as good as dead," he threatened.

"Get out or I'll throw you out!"

Brand smiled.

"Oh, we'll try to struggle on."

"The whole thing was a dirty piece of trickery, and we can prove it."

"Go ahead and prove it."

"We'll prove it was a faked picture," snarled the lawyer.

"What are you going to do?"

"Never mind what we'll do."

Dupuy now delivered the prize threat that he had saved for use in the last extremity, should it arise, and he was justified in assuming that it had arisen.

"A temporary injunction would certainly issue in a case like this," he said sternly. "I'll get one and close your shop."

"Sure! That's the thing! Get Bartelmy to issue one," suggested the managing editor sarcastically.

"I will and put a stop to your game! This muck raking mania is sweeping the country like a disease, breeding madmen everywhere. Brand, this is your finish!" He shook his fist violently.

Brand jumped up in anger and strode toward the lawyer lobbyist.

"Now, you get out of here or I'll throw you out!" he announced hotly.

"You will, will you? You just wait!" Dupuy backed slowly out of the doorway.

Brand hastened out into the composing room.

"Mac, they're beginning to squirm already!" he cried.

"We'll make them squirm more in the morning," responded the night editor significantly.

CHAPTER XIII.

BRAND, busily engaged in writing the caption for the cut that was to reveal Bartelmy in his true light, was interrupted once more—this time by the entrance of the greenish hued face of the poet reporter, Powell.

"You sent for me, sir?" asked the new scribe.

"So you've covered a suicide?" said Brand.

"Powow's" eyes rolled wildly. He clasped his hands and his knees shook in his horror at what he had learned.

"Oh, yessir—a terrible sight! I shall dre-e-e-a-m of it, sir! It would take a Dante to write of it. Oh, I"—

"What was this girl's name?" asked Brand in matter of fact tones.

"Madeline."

"Madeline what?"

"Her last name," the poet asked dazedly. "I guess I don't remember. Oh, yes, it was Jenks—Madeline Jenks!" He spoke feverishly.

Brand picked up the poet's first newspaper story and began to read it. In spite of the high pressure of events that night in the Advance office, in spite of his ever present fear that Bartelmy and Dupuy might in some way persuade Nolan to order the sensational bribery story killed, this many sided young man found the time to bother with the fantastic young poet reporter and his fantastic first article.

He plucked off the first two pages and threw them on the floor. Powell winced painfully at the massacre of his first reportorial offspring. "Begin there," said Brand. Powell lunged downward to rescue his first two pages, but Brand kicked them away from him. "Where'd she live?" he next asked.

Powell clasped his hands and gazed plaintively at the ceiling.

"Over a chop suey cafe, sir."

"Number and street?"

"Two forty-three and a half West Pearl street."

Brand threw away two more pages, Powell watching him anxiously the while.

"Put that next. Here Madeline Jenks," Brand began to write, "an inmate of 243½ West Pearl street. What did she do?"

"She destroyed herself utterly!" the new reporter wailed.

Brand went on writing.

"Is she dead?"

"Yes, sir."

"Shot and killed herself—when?"

"Tonight at 9 o'clock."

Brand wrote on.

"Last night at 9 o'clock. Why?"

Powell answered very intensely:

"Oh, she could no longer face the ghastliness of her existence. She knew she"—

"She was weary of life in the streets."

"I don't blame her," Brand commented to himself. He turned to Powell. "There's your story. Thirty words—you had 3,000. And remember the story of the creation was told in 600 words."

Powell picked up the pages of his story which Brand had discarded and walked dejectedly away.

"Mac," Brand ordered, "here's a dance hall suicide. Put it with local brevities, will you?"

Had Brand at this moment been able to see through the wall that separated the composing room from the hall he would have witnessed a sight that would have deprived him of some of the self possession that marked his present demeanor. A figure clad in an elaborate evening gown crept softly up the stairway, stood irresolutely at the landing and then turned into the managing editor's office. Judith Bartelmy probably never looked more beautiful in her life than she did that night. A flush of excitement enhanced the soft allurement of her exquisite features, and the low cut neck of her sleeveless gown completed a picture of feminine loveliness that, innocently enough on her part, was admirably adapted to the purpose Judge Bartelmy had in his unprincipled mind when he sent her to the Advance office. "You are my only hope," he had told her after Dupuy had at first failed to locate Nolan. "You must go and plead with Wheeler Brand or else I am ruined. Your father will be ruined absolutely." At the sight of her father's emotion and yielding to the fervent pleadings of her only living parent she had willingly consented to undertake the mission. Unpleasant though she knew it would be, she believed it her duty to stand by in his hour of dire need the father whom she loved, the father whom she did not know.

As she entered the office and paused in conjecture as to just how she would proceed she heard footsteps hurriedly ascending the stairs, and, withdrawing into a shadow in a corner, she saw Michael Nolan and Mrs. Nolan cross the hall and disappear into the composing room.

"Thank heaven!" she murmured fervently. "They will stop this story, which father says is a horrible lie."

Wheeler Brand will never forget—he has since said so from the depths of his soul—the shock that went through him when he saw Nolan, accompanied by his wife, making their way toward him on that memorable night.

"Remember the story of the creation was told in 600 words."

McHenry was speaking when they entered.

"There is your first page, Brand," he was saying, "and it sends Bartelmy to state prison."

The managing editor gazed approvingly at the appearance of the page of type and the cut in the form as it lay exposed on one of the stones under a shaded electric light. He looked up to congratulate McHenry on the manner in which he had completed the makeup of the page when his jaw suddenly fell. His eyes took on an amazed stare. He was looking straight over the night editor's shoulder. McHenry caught Brand's expression and whirled about. Then he, too, saw the owner of the Advance and his wife draw near. The triumphant air with which the wife and mother sailed along by his side boded no good to Brand and his story.

Nolan paused in front of the form without looking at the contents at first.

"Wheeler," he said kindly, "I've been notified about this story, and I think it best that I read it carefully myself, analyze it and learn all the circumstances under which it was procured before I allow it to go to press. That is a task which cannot be done in the short time that remains before press time, so we had best let it go over until tomorrow—delay it one day. That won't hurt the story any."

Mrs. Nolan clutched at the ex-miner's arm and cried shrilly:

"Now, now, Michael, that's not your usual way to explain things to one of your employees. Order him to destroy all this miserable stuff about the judge at once. Don't hesitate like this. Think what it means to me, to the children, to us," she pleaded.

"There, there, mother; you keep out of this," said Nolan kindly, yet firmly. "I'm trying to do the best I can for you. It's because of you that I'm here now. But you see"—

Ed Dupuy burst excitedly in upon them, and as the typesetters were beginning to become distracted from their work owing to the unusual situation Brand began to fear that this new intruder would prove the final demoralizer of the entire night shift.

"Mr. Nolan," cried Dupuy, "we haven't a minute to lose! They are almost ready to go to press." He looked intently at the newspaper owner.

"Yes, quite right. We do go to press very soon," cried Brand confidently, "and I know Michael Nolan is the man who will order it done."

"Michael," cried Mrs. Nolan at the top of her voice, which rose sharply over the din of the typesetting machines, "are you going to stand for this? Mr. Brand acts as if he owned the Advance and treats you as if you were the office boy. He thinks he's a great reformer and knows it all. We other people have a right to our opinions, too, and I don't see why you and your family should be made to suffer on account of him as we have had to ever since you took him up."

Judith Bartelmy heard the storm scene, lived a part of it herself huddled in the managing editor's office. She felt that Nolan would not let the story be used from what she had heard, and she could not suppress a pang of pain that pierced her heart at what she believed to be the fanatical vindictiveness of Wheeler Brand against her father. Yet she was a true woman, and she could not, in spite of her loyalty to her parent, avoid feeling a touch of pride at the strength of character, his determination, at the sacrifices he had made, to accomplish what he believed, even if foolishly, to be his duty.

"They don't need me," she finally muttered, and, gathering up her costly skirts, she tripped daintily across the paper strewn floor out into the hall and down to her carriage.

Nolan dropped his head in thought when his wife had finished her tirade. He paced up and down nervously. He looked at the clock, then at the form with its accusing contents, then at Brand, then at his wife.

"I'll go and telephone Judge Bartelmy," put in Dupuy. "He'll be anxious."

The lawyer took himself off.

Brand saw the danger of delay. He doubted if any man would be able to successfully withstand the pressure that Bartelmy and Nolan's family would be able to bring to bear on the owner in another twenty-four hours.

"No, no!" he exclaimed to Nolan. "You would fail me again. I have tried to prove this judge's guilt to the people, but I fear I have only succeeded in proving it to his daughter. A day's delay would be fatal, I know. At least Bartelmy could get another judge to issue an injunction against us even if he would not dare to do it himself. And there are other steps he might take."

His voice rose higher, and he worked himself into a frenzy of earnestness.

He stood before the little group gathered around the ink black form and continued his impassioned words:

"You know I thought we were going to be absolutely unmuzzled here. You were a free man. Poverty couldn't frighten you, and you had seen both sides of life. You promised to back me up, no matter what it cost, so long as we printed the truth, but at the first big test you fail me."

Mrs. Nolan was on the point of becoming hysterical in her agitation.

"Michael, Michael"— she began.

"There, mother, you go home with Sylvester. He's waiting outside for you. After all, this is a man's job we've got here. I am the head of the family, and I will settle this matter in my own way," he said sternly. "You must not attempt further to interfere."

He led her out of the room.

Brand spoke to McHenry.

"Did you hear, Mac?" he asked. "He won't decide to run it."

"It's touch, old man—it's tough!"

THE PRIVATE SECRETARY

Clever Performance by Amateurs in Park Club Auditorium.

ACTORS WERE LETTER PERFECT

Percy Watson and Miss Dorothy Randall, the Stars—All the Company Good.

Amateur actors come and conquer, some of them leave reminders behind them, while others pass into oblivion and with reason. But the young people of Holy Cross church who interpreted "The Private Secretary" last night in the Park Club auditorium, belong to the first mentioned class, and it is hoped they will not stop at the performance of last night, but that they will continue to add to their repertories and give other plays. Individually and collectively the performers were equal to the dramatic demands made upon them and acquitted themselves with an aplomb worthy of veterans.

A synopsis of the play is not necessary, neither is criticism of the individuals who performed so well the intention of this story, but salient features such as Percy Watson's conception of the private secretary, and Miss Dorothy Randall's splendid characterization of "Miss Ashford," should be given their meed of praise. These two young people acted with a freedom from self consciousness which was refreshing, while they were ably supported by the whole company.

The absence of the need for a prompter was noticeable. All the actors were letter perfect; something unusual in an amateur performance, and during all three acts they were interrupted by applause by the large audience.

INDICT FORMER MAYOR AND FOUR COUNCILMEN.

West New York, Feb. 8.—On charges of conspiring to defraud the township of West New York of $4,000 the Hudson County Grand Jury has voted to indict Ord Darling, John Kammer, Erastus R. Carpenter, George Garisch and Charles Waringer. Mr. Darling once was Mayor of West New York.

The finding of the indictments is the result of an inquiry prosecuted by a citizens' committee, headed by Richard Miller, present Mayor of West New York, and is on the basis of an allegation that while in office Mr. Darling and four councilmen voted to pay $4,000 of moneys not actually due for the erection of Liberty fire hosehouse.

Evidence was gathered by investigators. There are several other charges to be investigated, including the payment of money for road-building and other city improvements.

Friends Bid Farewell.

More than fifty friends gathered at the North Avenue station, Wednesday night last, to bid farewell to Mrs. Franklyn Heath Merrill and daughter, Miss Dorothy Merrill, who left for Minneapolis to join Mr. Merrill, the well-known inventor, who is interested in the manufacture of a delivery wagon he has invented; also other inventions soon to be placed on the market.

Horse Broke Leg and Was Shot.

While going through Exchange alley this morning a horse attached to an V. Mazzino's peddling wagon slipped on the ice, fell, and broke its leg. It was not discovered that the animal's leg was broken until it was raised off the ground. It was then that the owner decided to call Dr L. S. Pocock who shot the suffering animal.

Pipes Burst; Work Stopped.

A burst pipe flooded the blacksmith shop at the Pond Tool Works yesterday morning at 8:30 o'clock and compelled the workmen to lay off for the day.

FORT RIGHTLY FAVORS INCOME TAX REFERENDUM

Taking a stand diametrically opposed to that of Governor Hughes, of New York, with reference to the proposed amendment to the United States Constitution giving Congress the power to impose an income tax, Governor Fort last night submitted to the Legislature a form of the amendment received from the Federal Government accompanied by a message strongly advocating its passage.

Governor Fort notes that there is criticism of the amendment on the ground that under it the income upon State or municipal securities might be taxed. He does not agree to this point of view, declaring that there is no merit in the charge that if the amendment is adopted and becomes a part of the fundamental law there will be a decrease in the value of municipal securities, or that Congress might, through such a tax, impair the power of the States, as argued by Governor Hughes. "Neither of these suggestions seems to me to have force," said Governor Fort. Continuing, the Governor says: "Suppose one per centum of tax were levied upon incomes. Under such a tax the holder of a one thousand dollar four per cent. State or municipal bond would pay an income tax on forty dollars a year, which would amount to forty cents per annum.

"If the patriotism of our citizens and the interest of our financial institutions, who take and hold State and municipal securities, is at so low an ebb as to cause such a tax to affect the value of State or municipal securities, we are indeed in an unfortunate condition in the Republic. No one can believe that such a condition exists.

"The inability to impose an income tax, if the necessities of the government require it, would amount to a national calamity.

"The Congress practically unanimously adopted and submitted this proposed amendment. It is vital to the safety and security of the Republic in time of need, and is without danger in the power conferred.

"It is submitted to the Legislature for its action in the firm conviction that its approval is in the interests of a just and equitable method of taxation."

A Trio of Drinkers.

Three drunks faced Judge William Runyon in the city court this morning, only one of whom was disorderly. They were P. D. Bethune, of 1047 West Front street; John Powers, of Worcester, Mass., and Edward Burnett, of Washington Valley. The last named was guilty of disorderly conduct, having created a rough house at the saloon of Jacob Blimm, on Somerset street, because he was refused drinks in the place. Burnett was fined five dollars and the others were discharged with reprimands.

Amends Civil Service Bill.

An amendment to the civil service bill of last year was introduced by Senator Ernest R. Ackerman in the State Senate last night, providing that the offices of chief examiner and secretary be consolidated and the salary of the new official be placed at $4,000.

RESOLUTION OF RESPECT FOR MRS. HENRY HALL.

These resolutions have been passed by the board of managers of the Plainfield Exchange for Woman's Work, of which Mrs. Henry L. Hall was president:

The many friends of Mrs. Hall have been shocked to learn of her sudden death at Newport, R. I., on February 5, and in the Plainfield Exchange for Woman's Work her loss will be irreparably felt. She has ben an earnest, tactful, capable friend of the Exchange. Taking the presidency at a critical time in its career, she showed rare executive ability in guiding the Exchange into a larger and more effective field, and yet with it all, her kindly nature created only friends for her in the board. She was an officer with whom it was a satisfaction for the other officers to work, and a woman who often at cost to herself, held the interests of the Exchange in her heart, and who gave of her time to its cause.

It is the pleasure of the board that this expression of their sorrow and appreciation be entered on the minutes of the society, a copy sent to Mr. Hall and also published in the Plainfield papers.

GOVERNOR TURNS DOWN MAJOR CARL LENTZ.

Governor J. Franklin Fort this morning turned down Carl Lentz, of Newark, as chairman of the State Board for the Equalization of Taxes, and in his place named Former Speaker Frank B. Jess, of Camden, who has been a member of the board since last winter. The promotion carries with it an increase in salary from $3,500 to $5,000.

Judge William Vendenburgh, of Freehold, was re-appointed to the Court of Errors and Appeals. Rushton Dixon was appointed Judge of the Trenton District Court, as a result of bitter opposition to George W. MacPherson.

George Everett Halsey Appointed.

George Everett Halsey, of East Orange, was nominated by Governor Fort last night for member of the State Board of Assessors to succeed David Baird, of Camden, whose term expired last year; but who held over because no successor was appointed. Mr. Halsey will be confirmed today or tomorrow by the Senate.

Will Investigate Telephone Rates.

A public hearing on Senator Gebhardt's resolution providing for a Senate inquiry into the telephone rates of the New York Telephone Company will be held in the Senate chamber on Tuesday, February 15, at 3:30 o'clock in the afternoon. The hearing will be held before the Senate committee on judiciary.

Sunday School League Results.

A big crowd witnessed the basketball contests in the Sunday School Athletic League at the Y. M. C. A. last night. Six contests were played and the results as follows: Scotch Plains 19, First Presbyterian 8; First Baptist 44, Crescent Avenue 12; Grace P. E. 37, Hope Chapel 11.

PROPORTIONS OF BEAUTY.

If a woman be five feet five inches in height, her extended arm should measure, from tip of middle finger just five feet five inches, exactly her own height. A woman of this height should measure twenty-four inches round the waist and thirty-four inches above the bust.

The upper arm should measure thirteen inches and the wrist six. The calf of the leg should measure fourteen and a half inches, the thigh twenty-five and the ankle eight. From her thighs to the ground she should measure just what she measures from the thighs to the top of the head.

The distance from the elbow to the middle finger should be the same as the distance from the elbow to the middle of the chest.

From the top of the head to the chin should be just the same length as the foot, and there should be the same distance between the chin and the armpits.

The length of her hand should be just one-tenth of her height, and her feet just a seventh, and the diameter of her chest a fifth.

A GIRL WITH STYLE.

It matters little to many girls who are always in the well-dressed class how the every flighty fashion vane whirls and veers. For them there are styles that are always good, conservative and dignified. And it is these girls who stand out pre-eminently in a class so far removed from that which bows to every little whim of fashion as the two poles.

The tailored suit is one of the set styles. It is always admirable. Skirts are narrow or plaited, quite five inches off the floor and cut with the normal waist line or slightly above it. Seams are tailored and heavily stitched. The coats are innocent of trimming, mannish in cut with large pearl or fabric-covered buttons. Sleeves are full length, with a turnback or straight stitched cuff trimmed with three smaller buttons.

The Consistory will meet at Trinity Reformed church after the prayer meeting tomorrow night, instead of Thursday night.

ABOUT HALLEY'S COMET

Celestial Visitor Soon to Be Visible—Will Present Brilliant Spectacle.

ITS HISTORY SINCE A. D. 451.

Superstition of the Ancients—Orbit Discovered in 1682—At Its Best May 18.

Once again the pendulum is swinging into sight and within three months all eyes will be turned heavenward to gaze on the monster comet which bears the name of the man who first discovered that the brilliant mass of gas had an orbit of its own and would surely appear again even going so far as to predict the month and approximate day.

Halley's comee will be visible to the naked eye in April and May and in the early part of the latter month will be a morning spectacle, while at the end of that month it will be best visible at evening. The location of the comet will be found in the western heavens near the horizon:

Many superstitions are connected with the appearance of this comet, not the least of which is the belief that its approach heralds panic, disaster and pestilence to say nothing of death and destruction.

Edmund Halley, who rounded out his active career in the high office of Astronomer Royal, of England, was the first astronomer to recognize that the comet which he had seen in 1682 traveled the same circuit as those of 1607 and 1531. These three returns was the same comet at its feeblest. He did not recognize in his comet the great visitor of 1301, 1378 and 1456, but the identification was a triumph for his mathematics, a cold matter of equations. He was proud of the work, however, and he announced his discovery and predicted the comets return with unerring accuracy.

The superstitious dread which accompanied every re-appearance of this comet is told of in history. In the year 451 Attila and his hordes were sweeping out of Hungary in the long train of wagons hooded with hides, not men and women but demons, their leader no king or chief but Attila, the Scourge of God. The comet blazed the path to the fat weaklings of Rome and behind him lay a desert. And the trembling Romans believed that it was the comet that brought the destruction Atilla wrought.

1068 showed England cowed before the onrushing Normans and Danes and attributing the invasion to the comet. 1378: The comet spreads its threat across the sky and Holy Church is rent by a great schism. 1456: Hunyadi makes his last stand for Christendom and beats back the Turk at Belgrade, but Athens goes down, the Crescent floats above the Cross. This is the comet which Pope Calixtus is fondly believed to have fought with a papal bull. 1531: Pizarro sweeps down on the empire of the Incas. Christendom no longer fears its comets. The people look on it as a harbinger of good fortune. 1607: Jamestown is settled and the comet beams on the beginning of a new and greater empire. 1682: La Salle opens the Mississippi through a savage fallow waste, which is to be the granary of the world. 1759: The comet looks upon the Plains of Abraham where Wolfe and Montcalm fell equal heroes in the combat that decided the fate of America. This was the critical beat of the great pendulum.

Halley was a poor boy, working in a soap factory in England. He was born in 1656 and was the son of a soap boiler in a London suburb. He was taken from his squalid surroundings by Dean Collet's noble charity and the boy was sent to Oxford when seventeen years old. Three years later he published a treatise on the planetary orbits and argued the sun's axial rotation. This was a surprise to all his friends as none knew of his study of the heavens in fact were ignorant of his predilection for astronomy. He showed that he had it in him to rise above the ordinary and the tenacity to cling to a purpose once formed.

The question has naturally arisen as to the comet next spring—will it be a blaze of glory and wonder in the empyrean for all men to see or will it be an object of telescopic inquiry only? The comet has been most uncertain; sometimes it has stretched a flaming sword across the sky and at other times it has been but a thin wand among the stars. At any rate in whatever shape the comet appears it will prove that Halley's computations were correct even though they were made under great disavantages and with instruments which at the present day would seem to be mere playthings.

Latest advices from astronomical experts puts the date on which the comet will be most plainly visible as May 18.

CITY FATHERS' ROUTINE

Minor Matters Which Occupied Attention of Common Council.

MANY PETITIONS WERE HEARD.

Reports, Resolutions, Communications and Recommendations Take Time of the Governing Body.

Owing to the fact that the Common Council had not held a regular meeting since January, there was an unusually large number of petitions of minor importance presented at the February session, last night, and it required a considerable amount of time to dispose of them.

Interested property-owners asked the Council to vacate property on West Eighth street, between Central avenue and Division street, being an extension of New street, claiming that it had not been opened in twenty years, the legal time allowed for such improvements. The matter was referred to the street committee and later an ordinance complying with the request of the petitioners was introduced passed on two readings, ordered advertised, and March 7 was fixed as the time for a public hearing.

Andrew D. Jennings, whose term as a trustee of the fire department pension fund, expired, was reappointed for a ful term of four years, upon the recommendation of Councilman Duncan W. Taylor, of the fire and building committee.

The bonds of Tax Collector William R. Townsend, City Treasurer William F. Arnold and Street Commissioner A. J. Gavett were presented and referred to Corporation Counsel Marsh for approval, after which they will be filed.

A communication was received from the Board of Education informing the Council that Leander N. Lovell and William S. Tyler had been appointed as representatives of that body on the Board of School Estimate, and the communication was filed.

W. H. Siegland, of West Fourth street, petitioned for lights between Clinton and Hunter avenues; Rosa Frucht presented her bond required in connection with the removal of a house, both matters being referred to the proper committees.

The Public Service Corporation informed the Council that two lights had been located on Thornton avenue, as ordered. H. H. MacMurray and other residents of West Fifth Sixth, Seventh streets and Hobart avenue, petitioned for sanitary sewers and this was referred to the sewer committee.

Andrew McClean Parker, who explained that he had recently acquired considerable land on Randolph road, said that he wished to add his name to the petition for the improvement of that thoroughfare. This was referred to the street committee, as was also a petition from W. H. Abbott and others asking that the building line be established on the south side of Woodland and Hillside avenues to conform to that on the opposite side of those avenues.

N. W. Randolph and others asked for two lights on Belleview avenue, near Park avenue. This was referred to the light committee. Petitions for two hydrants on Midway avenue, between Leland avenue and George street and a fire-alarm box at Leland avenue and George street, were referred to the fire committee with power.

Residents of Watchung avenue, between Hillside and Woodland avenue, petitioned for crosswalks; also that property owners be made to clean their walks of snow. The matters were referred to the proper committees.

Mayor Charles J. Fisk appointed John O'Brien, of the Board of Health; Dr. William H. Anthony, of the hospital and Robert McCormick, of the First National Bank, special policemen, and they were confirmed on motion of Councilman Charles C. Randolph, of the police committee.

Building Inspector T. O. Doane reported that he had granted fifteen permits during the past month. Overseer of the Poor A. D. Ayers reported alms house expenses for the past month to be $361.41 and outside expenses of $264.69.

Chairman Buxton, of the finance committee, presented four volumes of block maps of the city, prepared by Frank J. Hubbard, civil engineer, and a resolution offered by him and adopted, approved the same as the official city maps. In this connection H. C. Van Emburgh, civil engineer, was engaged for the year to make such changes as may be necessary from time to time.

A resolution offered by Mr. Buxton and adopted, provided for an appropriation of $21 to secure copies of certain laws to complete the file at the city offices.

Other resolutions offered by Mr. Buxton and adopted, authorized the city treasurer to pay to the sinking funds the following amounts: $950 on account of Darrow Avenue School; $1,400 on account of East End fire house; $450 on account of the Dunellen Avenue School, and $525 on account of the furnishing fund for that school; also authorizing the city treasurer to purchase the city bonds on account of school, new fire house, etc., for the various sinking funds.

On the request of Tax Collector W. R. Townsend, who advanced the money, Mr. Buxton offered a resolution, which was adopted, refunding to him $15.83, that being an amount overpaid by Miss Emily Hartridge.

Mr. Gloak, chairman of the street committee, offered several ordinances, which were adopted on first and second readings, ordered advertised an Monday night, March 7, was the time fixed for a public hearing on the several matters.

These ordinances include one to open and layout Stelle avenue from Union street to the George E. Fuller property; another changing the name of Dunellen avenue, in the city, to that of Mrytle avenue, the name applied to that avenue in the borough; another accepting Thornton avenue as a public street from Park to Hillside avenues; another to vacate Byron place, on petition of L. V. F. Randolph.

Mr. Gloak also offered a resolution which was adopted, inviting sealed proposals for crushed stone, culverts, crosswalks, etc., to be opened March 7.

The Council approved the expenditure of $17.26 for the inspection of the auxiliary fire boxes in the public schools, and a resolution offered by him and adopted, provided for the expenditure of $150 to install a fire box in the new Darrow avenue school. Another resolution by the same member and adopted, authorized the fire and buliding committee to purchase a bale of sponges at a price not to exceed $2.90 a pound.

The fire and building committee, through resolutions offered by Mr. Taylor and adopted, authorized the fire and building committee to have the stalls in the new East End fire house lined with metal at an expense not to exceed $28.50, to be charged to the bond issue of No. 4 house, and to purchase fifteen rubber coats and twenty-one pairs of rubber boots for the call men in the department, and charged to the bond issue of No. 4 house.

On a motion of Mr. Mygatt, the president was requested to appoint a sewage committee of three, of which the president will be a member ex-officio, to take up the work of last year's committee. The appointments will be made later. Also on the motion of Mr. Mygatt the old consolidation committee was discharged.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

A large crowd of rooters helped the Baptist A. C. basketball team on to victory in the game played last night in the Y. M. C. A., Plainfield. The game was one of the most exciting games of the season and had been looked forward to with interest by the lovers of the game, as it was the first time Scotch Plains and the team of the First Presbyterian church had met, and neither had met defeat. The Presbyterian's team had six victories to its credit, while Scotch Plains had played five games and had a clean slate. The 'Plains team never was in danger, the final score being 18 to 9. The result put the 'Plains team in the lead in the Sunday School League.

Two arc lights are needed in town; one at the corner of Front street and Park avenue, and the other at the Park avenue trolley corner. Both places are important corners and are poorly lighted.

Arrangements are all completed for the B. & E. Company dance, which is to be held tonight in Excelsior hall. The firemen are looking forward to an enjoyable time.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Demarest, of Plainfield, were the guests over Sunday of Mr. Demaret's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Demarest, of Front street.

Township Clerk Edward L. Hand and Tax Collector John Z. Hatfield left today for a two weeks' pleasure trip to Sanford, Florida.

The annual township report is finished and will be ready for distribution among the taxpayers the latter part of the week.

The monthly meeting of the Ladies' Circle of the Baptist church was held in the parlors of the church yesterday afternoon.

The regular monthly meeting of B. & E. Company was held last night in the company's rooms.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

Mrs. Mary Eliza Davis, aged 75 years, one of the oldest residents of Piscataway township, died suddenly on Sunday of an attack of pneumonia. The deceased is survived by a husband and several children. The funeral service will be conducted in Piscataway chapel tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

The Lenten season in the Episcopal and Catholic churches will begin tomorrow with special Ash Wednesday services. Father Dunphy read the rules and regulations for Lent at the services in St. John's church on Sunday.

Wilson Fredericks attended the meeting of the Republican County Executive Committee at New Brunswick on Saturday night at which "Dory" Strong's forces were victorious in a test vote 35 to 11.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

The South Plainfield A. C. have not yet selected a manager for the coming season but it is probable that Joseph Miller, who managed the club last year, will manage it next season also.

Lenten service will be held on Ash Wednesday night in the Sacred Heart church here. The service will be in charge of the Rev. Father J. F. Baldwin.

Miss Josephine DeBoer, of the local school staff, has been called to her home in New York by the serious illness of her father.

Miss Annie Bohl, of Newark, is spending a short time with friends in the village.

Mr. and Mrs. William Hamilton visited relatives in Fords yesterday.

ARRESTED ON USURY CHARGE.

Trenton, Feb. 8.—E. R. Van Horn, Eastern manager, of the Interstate Loan Company, of Chicago, was arrested here Saturday, when he came to collect an instalment on a loan made by him to James W. Miller, a waiter. The waiter had told a detective of the rate of interest he had been paying to this man, and the detective waited until Van Horn appeared, and immediately arrested him. He was held on the charge of usury.

From papers in his possession, the police say, he came to collect money from twenty-one persons, to all of whom apparent loans appear in exchange for chattel mortgages.

Paying an agent of a company "commissions" for getting loans has been condemned by the Court of Errors and Appeals of this State in both the Pitcher and the Martin cases, where the managers of loan agencies were fined thousands of dollars and the business halted in this State.

In Van Horn's case arrest was made on the technical charge of doing business without a license, and the charge of usury was subsequently preferred.

The police say Van Horn's method was to come into New Jersey, insert advertisements in the newspapers for answers, to go to the postoffice and then visit the homes of the prospective borrowers. This suit will determine whether he was acting contrary to the letter and spirit of the decision of the Court of Errors and Appeals of New Jersey.

The Robin Hood Hat.

An excellent little hat for everyday wear in the country is in Robin Hood shape, and is of velvet or felt. It is most seen in blue, green and black, and is trimmed with a single, upstanding, perky quill. The Robin Hood shape is distinct from all others has character and is a success. It is picturesque and certainly smart looking.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

A collection for the sufferers of the Paris flood was taken Sunday at the services at the First Reformed church, Bayonne.

The proposition to discontinue the high school at Pennsgrove because it does not pay in dollars and cents, will result in a warm session.

By a unanimous vote Millville City Council has been placed on record as favoring the building of a State road between Millville and Malaga.

Miss Louisa Kettenring resigned as teacher in the Ferrel Public School, Woodbury. Miss Mary E. Ferree, of Harrisburg, will finish out the term.

Miss Margaret McClure, who has been assistant in the postoffice at Williamstown, for fifteen years, has resigned. She will be succeeded by Miss Ada Eldridge.

Some of the residents of Ocean City have been able during the last few days to solve the meat problem. Thousands of soft-shell crabs have been washed up on the beach.

A group of Trenton men left Sunday for Pittsburg to attend the annual convention of the American Germanic Society, and with the instruction to vote for Atlantic City as the next place for holding the convention.

A farmhouse on the Bridgeton and Millville pike, about three miles west of Millville, owned by Isaac Rosen, of Carmel, William Fowler, tenant, burned Sunday. This was one of the biggest farmhouses in that section.

After owning for a few days only a boathouse on the bay front at Ocean City, which he had bought from former Mayor Joseph G. Champion, of that city, Assemblyman Hand, of Tuckahoe, has sold it to Arthur C. Bredo, of Philadelphia.

Albert L. Watkins, a negro, of Atlantic City, will be placed on trial at May's Landing this morning before Supreme Court Justice Thomas W. Trenchard, charged with the killing of Ernest Crown, in Atlantic City, in December.

County Solicitor Roscoe Ward, of Bridgeton, and Freeholder George Reeves, of Millville, who went to Washington, D. C., to urge the War Department to repair the Mauricetown drawbridge as early as possible, were informed that the matter will be considered immediately.

As a detached locomotive was 1,000 feet inside the Erie Railroad's Bergen tunnel in Jersey City Saturday night a side rod broke and the engine came to a sudden standstill, blocking the eastbound track. Eight incoming trains on several branches were held upon the meadows for fifteen minutes before traffic was resumed.

The Atlantic County Board of Freeholders are considering the project of enlarging the county clerk's office at May's Landing. The records of the county property transfers, mortgages and various court matters and legal transactions are becoming so voluminous that the present quarters are becoming inadequate to properly shelve the books.

Contractor Hillpot, of Red Bank, who was recently awarded the contract to build the new county boulevard from May's Landing to Tuckahoe, a distance of twelve miles, will start operations in a few days. The road, when completed, will furnish the link connecting the seacoast route, making a continuous highway from Cape May to Atlantic City.

The decision of the Court of Errors and Appeals in declaring the civil service law unconstitutional, so far as it applies to municipalities, will provide places for fifty Democrats in Bayonne. When Mayor Cain and the Democratic Council assumed power on January 1 the Republican office-holders were not disturbed because of the civil service act. There are 250 applicants for the fifty jobs.

There was a slim attendance in all the churches of Merchantville Sunday night because a long freight train stood twenty minutes so that no one could cross the tracks. The conductor refused to break the train and, as a result, not only did many persons turn homeward, but passengers for a passenger train that arrived were unable to board it. A complaint addressed to the general traffic agent at Broad Street Station, Philadelphia, was signed on the spot.

MISSING LAD FOUND FROZEN IN SWAMP.

New Brunswick, Feb. 8—The body of John Peller, Jr., the three-year-old son of John Peller, of Sayreville, who disappeared from home on January 28, was found Sunday afternoon by his father. The body was discovered about half a mile from the lad's home, entangled in briars in Edgar's swamp. It was frozen stiff. He had been dead several days.

On the day he disapepared the grandmother, Mrs. Adam Tealer had allowed the boy to walk home alone from her house. The houses were near together and she had watched the boy until he entered the gate of his home. Instead of going into the house he wandered off and no trace of him was found till Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Neidig, of the borough attended the twenty-fifth wedding anniversary of the former's sister at Brooklyn on Sunday.

NEW STREET HEAD IN OFFICE.

Rahway Feb. 8.—Benjamin W. Hughes street commissioner, yesterday turned over to William Armstrong, his successor, his keys and effects. The retirement of Mr. Hughes is generally regretted. He made one of the best street commissioners Rahway has ever had. Strong efforts were made to have Mr. Hughes retained. When the complexion of politics changed from Democratic to Republican, two of the Republican councilmen asked Mr. Hughes to allow them to use his name and promised him their support. When the vote was taken they cast theirs against him.

Commissioner Armstrong will, it is understood, make a complete change in the street department. Isaac Toms, driver of the city team, who has held the position for the past six years, will be succeeded by A. Creedon. Men who have worked on the streets some as long as twenty years, will find their jobs filled by new men. Frank Price, overseer of the poor, turned his office over to James Barron, and the O'Connors, superintendent and matron of the almshouse, vacated their places for William and Anna Harrison.

ILL IN CAR; SOON DIES.

Asbury Park, Feb. 8.—Edward Lambert former councilman at Bradley Beach, was stricken with acute indigestion and heart failure yesterday morning in a Belmar trolley car and died in a few minutes. Lambert lived long enough to be taken into Farley's drug store, where he expired before restoratives could be given. He was fifty-five years old and leaves a widow. Mr. Lambert was a member of the February grand jury and was to have gone to Trenton today.

Heinz's Sauer Kraut

Plainfield in .... The Olden Days.

Re-printed from The Weekly Constitutionalist

July 13, 1871.

The corner stone of the First Methodist Episcopal church of Scotch Plains, will be laid with appropriate services on Thursday, the 13th inst., at 2½ p. m. The public are cordially invited to be present.

To the Members of the Common Council:

Gents—Please take a walk from Cherry St. to Madison Avenue, on the south side of Front St., and see if it does not need improvement, as much as it does before a certain Councilman's door, where it is done at public expense.

No Bonds.

July 20, 1871.

The Sunday School scholars of the Second Presbyterian Church of this city, held a picnic in the grove near the residence of Manning Etelle, Esq., on Tuesday last. The children numbered some 200, and made quite a procession, carrying handsome banners in their midst inscribed with different mottoes.

Messrs. John W. Laing, proprietor of Laing's Hotel, and Geo. Miller, of the City Hotel have been made the recipients of handsome clocks, from Messrs. Hetfield & Jackson, carriage manufacturers, Rahway, N. J. The clocks are models of ingenuity, telling the time of day, week and month in the year. They are from the celebrated Utica, N. Y., Clock Manufactory.

Picnic—The members of "Warren Engine Co. No. 3" will hold their annual picnic in Vail's Grove, situated on Fourth Street, in this city, on Monday, July 31st. The committee of arrangements will spare no pains to make this one of the grandest affairs of the season, and no doubt but what their efforts will be heartily endorsed by the firemen and citizens generally. "Warren" has the honor to propose the first "Picnic."

MEAT PRICE WAR NOW AN ENDURANCE CONTEST.

New York Feb. 8.—With extreme cold weather tending to drive quotations up and the first wave of enthusiasm in the crusade against high food prices receding, the campaign in metropolitan territory settled down yesterday to something like an endurance contest.

The week opened, however, with prospects of trouble for the combines alleged to be illegally keeping up rates for necessaries of life through misuse of cold storage and by other means. New York and New Jersey renewed activities in the campaign.

Attorney-General O'Malley of New York State, is credited with the intention to invoke an old injunction against the packing companies granted in the Supreme Court in 1902, and forbidding them from fixing meat prices and preventing competition by agreement as to rates and supply. This is said to be still in force. Regulative ordinances introduced in the New York Board of Aldermen and aimed particularly at alleged cold storage evils are to be pressed for passage.

LAWMAKERS BUT NO FORT AT ATLANTIC CITY FEAST.

Atlantic City, Feb. 8—Governor Fort and Mayor Stoy, of Atlantic City, failed to appear at the annual banquet of the Board of Trade, held at the Shelburne Saturday night, when it was expected that both would express their views on the coming contest over the demand of Atlantic City and other resorts for legal right to furnish drinks to hotel patrons Sundays. Two score members of the State Legislature were included in the list of guests which also included several Congressmen and local dignitaries.

The banquet held in the prettily decorated dining-room of the Shelburne, was one of the finest ever given by the board. Congressman John J. Gardner of this district, was toastmaster, assisted by President Walter J. Buzby, of the Board of Trade. The other guests included Circuit Court Judge A. B. Endicott, Representative Ernest W. Roberts, of Massachusetts; Colonel Walter E. Edge, floor leader of the State Assembly; President Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, of the Senate, and Congressman Henry Boutell, of Illinois.

Between the Acts.

Between the acts doth hubby fret
And soon declare
That he must go outside to get
A little air.

No use at all for wife to pout
Or cross become;
He needs fresh air and must go out
To gather some.

But there is surely something wrong
About the breeze;
For hubby comes back smelling strong
Of musty cheese.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

GOLF.

According to a dispatch from the West, there is no certainty that friction between the Western Golf Association and the parent organization has been entirely averted. It is asserted that the national body has been lacking in courtesy on one or two occasions recently; also that the speech of Silas H. Strawn at the annual meeting last month was not fair to the "insurgents." Strawn by the way, was one of the Western delegates who worked in conjunction with Leighton Calkins on the revision of the constitution. Anyhow, here is part of the Chicago dispatch:

On the surface the political golf situation seems all serene, but down underneath the fire is still simmering. There are two reasons for this—Strawn's speech at the United States Golf Association meeting and the discourtesy shown by Robert C. Watson, the secretary, in not replying to certain official letters written by the president and secretary of the Western Golf Association.

One club here, of which the strange part is that Strawn is a director, wanted to change from an allied to an active member. The secretary of the club put his foot down hard and said: "We will wait and see if the United States Golf Association secretary will first answer letters from the Western Golf Association secretary." This is bad business and very bad politics on the part of the New York man. A little oil, a short but polite reply, would have been far better. It would not have hurt his dignity. As it looks now, the fat is liable to be in the fire at any time and all the good work by the peacemakers go for naught.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

The official board of the First M. E. church will meet tomorrow night in Vincent chapel after the prayer service.

Rev. C. L. Goodrich pastor of the Congregational church, has already received six church letters for the next communion.

The Men's Club of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church will meet at the Hartridge School auditorium tonight for bowling.

"The Christian's Use of His Creed" will be the subject of the prayer-meeting at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church tomorrow night.

Rev. C. L. Goodrich, pastor, will meet the Junior Endeavor Society of the Congregational church at the church Friday afternoon at 3:45 o'clock.

The Women's Home Missionary Society of the First Baptist church is holding an all-day sewing meeting at the church today. At noon luncheon was served.

The Young People's Society of the First Baptist church will have charge of the mid-week prayer meeting at the church tomorrow night and Mr. Herrman, teacher of the Men's Bible class, will be the leader.

The Sunday-school of the First Baptist church will hold a social Thursday night, the admission being an orange, which will be distributed between the Children's Home and other local charity institutions. A fine program has been prepared for the occasion.

The regular sewing meeting of the Women's Home Missionary Society of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church will be held in the church parlors Friday afternoon from 2 to 5 o'clock. Two boxes are being prepared and contributions of money and clothing are much needed.

BOSTON NAVY YARD ROW IS AIRED SECOND TIME.

Boston, Feb. 8.—The second of the "women's courtmartials" was opened at the Charlestown Navy Yard yesterday, when Passed Assistant Surgeon Ansey Hamilton Robnett was put on trial for his alleged participation in the expulsion of Dr. Edward S. Cowles, of Boston, from a dance at the yard on the night of December 11. The verdict in the case of George P. Auld, who was tried last week, has been forwarded to the Navy Department.

There were two charges against Surgeon Robnett, the first "that he did aid and abet Paymaster Auld in the expulsion of Dr. Cowles from the navy yard dance December 11 last, Cowles being a properly invited guest and the action being unauthorized and unwarranted; second, that he subsequently used insulting language to Dr. Cowles over the telephone."

Like Paymaster Auld, Surgeon Robnett received a reprimand from the Secretary of the Navy following the first complaint of Dr. Cowles. Dr. Cowles' wife then pressed the charges to the officials in Washington and the courtmartial of the two officers was ordered.

Included in the list of witnesses for the defense were Miss Dorothy Hesler, of Evanston, Ill., who is engaged to be married to the young surgeon, and Paymaster Auld. Much of the same evidence presented in the trial of Auld was expected to be used in the proceedings against Robnett, and it was thought yesterday that the case would be completed within two days.

"I Believe That No Man

has the right to ask a woman to marry him," a District of Columbia physician recently wrote in the "Sunday School Times," "unless he is able to protect her after he is dead, any more than a married man has the right to leave her during his lifetime to be cared for by her friends and neighbors." Life Insurance provides in the best and surest way for wife and family.

TRAVELERS CHEQUES.

Travelers' cheques are rapidly superceding Letters of Credit, owing to the fact that they are so much more readily negotiable.
For the uninitiated we might say that these cheques are self-identifying; that they may be cashed almost as readily as currency; and that they possess the safeguard of being redeemable in case of loss.
We will gladly furnish further particulars on request.

"The Poodler" aggregation has been joined by Messrs. Hall, Vanderhoof and McCarthy.

Secretary McCarthy was back on the job. Although not hitting them very strong he kept all in good humore.

"Van" had an off day. Nothing he could produce would get them.

"Abe" found a 207 among his. It was his first two hundred game and the Somerville celebrated accordingly.

Chief Rooter Charley Stryker was again missing. A quiet report said he and "Mory" had gone gunning.

Deshler was froze up at Rossele Park and failed to show up. All wondered if he had "Cold Feet."

An interesting match between McCarthy and Hall resulted in a win for the former by 99 to 98.

Lavelle had high average for the day. He feels much elated in topping "The Expert" but the bunch up stairs say "Accidents will happen."

Vanherhoof's 22 is still high score.

BLATZ WINS SECOND IN THE INDIVIDUAL

Frank Blatz captured second honors in the roll-off in the individual tourney on Campbell's alleys last night. Matthews landed in third place and Nash took fourth honors. It was agreed that the bowler having the biggest total would be the winner. Blatz totaled 1,177; Matthews 1,096 and Nash 1,084.

Johnny Campbell was the winner of first prize money. He led the procession with 13 wins and 3 defeats. He was also high average man with a mark of 194.7. Matthews annexed the high score mark in the tourney with a score of 259.

	Won.	Lost.
Campbell	13	3
Blatz	10	6
Matthews	10	6
Nash	10	6
Kiely	9	7
Skelly	8	8

BOWLING.

The game scheduled for tonight between Plainfield and New Brunswick Elks at the latter place has been postponed. A new date will be announced next week.

That Plainfield Elks team is one of the "Big Noises" in the Elks' bowling championship series is readily seen by the official averages and records as furnished by Secretary Oscar Hauger, of Hoboken.

In the championship race the locals are a good third and have a fine chance to land the title. Jersey City is first and Hoboken is third.

Johnny Campbell, of this city, tops the individuals in the high score and averages. Johnny's high score mark is 254 and his average 197.11, which is a splendid showing. The official standing and records follow:

RE-ELECT O. T. WARING

Plainfield Riding and Driving Club Holds Its Annual Meeting.

HORSE SHOW DATES ARE SET.

Board of Directors Membership Increased to Twenty—Mr. Fairbairn Heads Show Committee.

Orville T. Waring has been re-elected president of the Plainfield Riding and Driving Club, for the coming year. The other officers are these: Vice-president, Robert A. Fairbairn; secretary, L. G. Timpson; treasurer, Edwin S. Hooley.

The dates selected for the annual horse show are Thursday, Friday and Saturday, June 2, 3 and 4, which is a week earlier than last year, owing to the fact that Philadelphia is to have no show this year. This will also mean that the Plainfield show will be larger and better than ever, as a majority of the exhibitors who go to the Quaker City will come here. One prominent horseman said today, that the local show this year would almost be in the nature of an international affair.

The club has increased the membership of the board of directors from twelve to twenty, and although it is not yet ready to announce the additional names, it can be said that they will be men who are prominent in the horse show world. Robert A. Fairbairn has been named as chairman of the horse show committee, with power to appoint his assistants.

This will make a very busy season here in sports, as the steeplechase meet of the Watchung Hunt Club will be held on Saturday, May 28, and Monday, Decoration Day, May 30, and the card promises to be the best in the history of the club. Following the horse show, the annual bench show of the Plainfield Kennel Club will be held.

FUNERAL SERVICES OF MRS. HENRY L. HALL

Mrs. Ida Redford O. Hall, wife of Henry L. Hall, whose funeral was held at Newport, R. I., Monday afternoon, was buried at Hillside cemetery, yesterday afternoon. Mrs. Hall died at Newport on Saturday, the news of which caused a deep shock among her many friends here. Mrs. Hall had been ill for sometime and prior to leaving Plainfield underwent an operation and another more recently at Newport.

Mrs. Hall was born at Newport, R. I., July 17, 1865, and spent the early years of her life there. She was married to Mr. Hall at Newport, October 27, 1887, and lived there for the first five years of her married life. The couple resided at Fanwood for six years, previous to removing to the Netherwood section of the city nine years ago.

During her residence here Mrs. Hall was greatly interested in charitable enterprises. She was president of the Cup Bearers Circle, of the King's Daughters for four years, and during the past two years was president of the Woman's Exchange, her term of office expiring on the day of her interment at Hillside Cemetery.

The Exchange work absorbed a great deal of her interest and effort and she contributed greatly to its success by her untiring energy and perseverance. She was also actively associated with the Day Nursery and the King's Daughters' Baby Camp, and she was a regular attendant at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church.

Mrs. Hall was also a member of the Woman's Auxiliary Board of Muhlenberg Hospital, in which connection she was very active and familiar and a regular visitor at the hospital. All of her charitable work was done quietly and effectively and anything approaching ostentation was carefully avoided. Her home life was charming; her married life ideal and she had a wide circle of friends both in this city and at Newport.

Dr. Paul W. Harrison at Gibraltar.

The Steamship Berlin, with Dr. Paul Wilberforce Harrison, the missionary to Arabia from Trinity Reformed church; Mr. and Mrs. L. V. F. Randolph and daughter, of this city, among the passengers, reached Gibraltar on Sunday, and all on aboard were reported well.

JURY FINDS TULLY OF UNSOUND MIND

The inquisition of lunacy conducted in the Borough Council chambers yesterday afternoon resulted in a twelve-man jury deciding that Dennis Tully, a former resident of the borough, isof unsound mind and unable to administer to the affairs of his property, in Chicago, in a competent manner.

The proceedings were instituted at the behest of James Hurley, a nephew, and relatives of Mr. Tully, in view of having the Supreme Court appoint a guardian for the property. Francis J. Blatz, Esq., represented Mr. Hurley. Appearing as witnesses were Dr. B. D. Evans, of the New Jersey State Hospital, of which institution Mr. Tully is an inmate, Drs. C. B. Lufburrow and Frederic J. Hughes and Mr. and Mrs. James Hurley.

The commission was made up of Judge William Newcorn, Dr. A. H. Dundon and Albert Steiner. The jury was composed of William J. Conroy, foreman; George Kirch, George Egel, Everett Marsh, Richard McCullough, Richard A. Boyce, John Y. Barrett, Robert Trewin, Charles Jensen, William G. Debele, Philip Currin and Edward Terry.

Mr. Tully's estate consists of about $5,000 in cash and personal property and two properties on Wentworth avenue, Chicago.

WOMEN'S EXCHANGE HOLD ANNUAL MEETING

Officers were elected and reports presented at the annual meeting of the Plainfield Exchange for Women's work, held at Grace church parish house. These officers were elected: President, Mrs. Richard Boardman; first vice-president, Miss Elizabeth R. Cook; second vice-president, Mrs. T. W. T. Maxwell; treasurer, Mrs. E. S. Hyatt; recording secretary, Mrs. E. A. Lyon; corresponding secretary, Mrs. J. L. Greenleaf.

The report of the treasurer was as follows:

Amount received from sales, $8,179; amount paid consignors, $7,686; amount for association, $493; received from consignors' tickets, $52; income for Exchange, pay expenses, $545; expenses for the year, $2,209; income from Exchange, $545; balance, $1,664. The association is entirely dependent upon subscriptions, donations, etc. At present there are 135 consignors to the Exchange, each of whom is paid monthly all money due her.

COAL HANDLER NEARLY CRUSHED TO DEATH

George Pace had a narrow escape from being crushed to death yesterday at South Plainfield while at work unloading a coal car at Ten Eyck's and Kelly's coal yards at that place. Only the prompt action of Pace's fellow employes who hurried to his assistance saved the latter's life.

While transferring the coal from the car into the pocket, Pace missed his footing and was pinned between the car and pocket and before he could extricate himself he was buried beneath several tons of coal.

Pace when rescued from the trap was in a semi-conscious condition. Examination by a physician disclosed that no bones were broken, but that one leg was badly crushed, in addition to numerous bruises about the head and body.

MISS CARROLL RESIGNS AS CONTRALTO SOLOIST.

The chairman of the music committee of Trinity Reformed church has received the resignation of Miss Winifred Carroll, contralto of the church quartet, to take effect May 1. It will be acted upon at the meeting of the Consistory tonight.

Miss Carroll will take a similar position at the First Presbyterian church, on May 1, succeeding Miss Jessamine Burd, of Somerville, who goes elsewhere. Miss Carroll has been singing at Trinity church for the past three or four years and has given entire satisfaction.

KINDERGARTEN TEACHERS FORM AN ASSOCIATION.

A Kindergarten Teachers' Association, with a membership composed of teachers in city and borough schools was organized last night with a membership of sixteen. Meetings will be held on the first Tuesday nights of every month. The object of the association is to study the best methods and results to be derived in kindergarten teaching.

NOW SEARCHING THIS CITY

Victor Lees, of East Orange, in Personal Quest of Missing Wife.

MAY BE KEPT A PRISONER.

All Other Clues Are Given Up Excepting the One in This City by Her Heart Broken Husband.

Victor Lees, the East Orange caterer, having failed to get any help from the police in his search for his missing wife, is in this city today taking steps to find the young woman. Mr. Lees states that all the clue he has is that his wife came to visit a girl friend who lives next door to an Italian woman who has a telephone in the house and with this meagre information he is looking for the one home thus equipped.

In telling his story Mr. Lees added some information which was not contained in his letters to this newspaper. He says that the girl whom his wife came here to visit exercised what would seem to be an hypnotic influence over his wife and this influence was primarily gained through gifts of various articles of wearing apparel and furniture in the home at East Orange. Mr. Lees also declared that, while he and his wife had always lived in perfect harmony in their twelve years of married life he thought that the influence of the girl in question had tended to estrange his wife from their humble home.

When his wife first met this unknown girl it was at a dinner party in Orange where Mrs. Lee went to help wait on the table. The two women became fast friends and the one for whom Mr. Lees is looking in order to locate his wife, importuned her to accept some clothing and the hat with which she is alleged to have come to Plainfield. Other gifts followed the clothing and from that day until his wife left home, Mr. Lees, says, she has been under the influence of the other woman.

The failure of Mr. Lees to find his wife will entail much trouble for him. His father, who is a wealthy German, wants to know the wife and perhaps will settle an income on her together with that of Mr. Lees himself, and it will simplify matters if the woman can be found as it will mean the lifting up above any possible state of want of both people.

W. EDGAR GREEN TO WED MISS ANNIE FISK.

Announcement was made yesterday of the engagement of Miss Annie Hall Fisk, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Pliny Fisk, of Trenton, and cousin of Mayor Charles J. Fisk, to William Edgar Green, son of the late Judge Elmer Ewing Green, of the Court of Errors and Appeals. The wedding will take place in the fall. Both Miss Fisk and Mr. Green are widely known in Trenton.

Miss Fisk is a granddaughter of the late Dr. John Hall, for many years pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Trenton. Her father was a brother of Harvey Fisk, founder of the banking firm of Harvey Fisk and Sons.

Mr. Green was graduated from Princeton University in 1902, and was captain of the championship baseball team during his junior year. Since graduation he has been engaged in the pottery and rubber business in this city, being a director of the Cook Pottery Company and the Acme Rubber Company. He was elected last spring to succeed his father as a director of the Trenton Banking Company.

BUZZARDS' CLUB PLANS TO HOLD A POOL TOURNAMENT.

A special meeting of the Buzzards' Club was held in Buzzards' Roost, Babcock building, last night, when arrangements were made for a supper to be held next month. A committee comprising Roy Lee, George Doty and James Niles was appointed to arrange the details.

It was decided to purchase buttons or pins for each member and Edward Koechlein was appointed a committee of one to get them. Final action was taken on the pool tournament which will begin tomorrow night. Honors will be awarded for first, second and third place. Raymond Harvey was elected a member of the club.

Mr. and Mrs. Carson Surprised.

Mr. and Mrs. Brooks Carson, of Norwood and Manning avenues, were given a surprise party at their home Monday evening. The party was arranged by Mrs. Jacob Long of Somerset street. The evening was spent playing games and dancing, after which refreshments were served. There were about fifty guests. Music was furnished by Bert Naylor.

BOROUGH SEWERAGE NOW

Petition and Consent Must Be Signed by February 15 to Secure Action.

COMMITTEE OF FIVE BUSY.

Failure Sure if Property Owners Do Not Sign at Once—No Agents Names Wanted.

The Sewerage Commission of North Plainfield, consisting of J. P. Emmons, C. L. Nichols, J. O. Osgood, E. S. Boyer and W. J. Buttfield, having decided that the question of sewerage for the borough is a necessity and should be attended to without delay, have addressed the following communication to the real estate owners of the borough through this newspaper.

To the Owners of Real Estate of the Borough of North Plainfield:

The borough laws require that there shall be obtained consent of a majority (according to its assessed valuation) of the property owners before any system of sewerage can be constructed.

It is necessary also to obtain from the property owners a written application to the Borough Council to submit the question of such construction to the voters of the borough at a special election.

Forms of the required consent and application to be signed by property owners have been placed with the clerk of the borough at the office of the collector, 94 Somerset street and also with the steward of the Park club, Washington avenue.

We believe that it will be generally conceded that there exists an imperative demand for the improvement in question for reasons of health, economy and development of the borough. If you are in accord with this view you are requested to call at either the collector's office or the Park Club, without delay, and sign the consent and application above referred to.

It is recommended that signatures be made as follows:

Every individual property owner should sign in person and not by an agent.

A married woman owning property in her own right should sign in person.

A corporation should, by resolution of the directors, duly authorize an officer of the company to sign its name on its behalf.

Property in the joint name of two or more persons should be signed for by all such owners of record.

Signatures in behalf of "estates" should be made by the parties holding legal title to the land.

All signatures must be witnessed.

To permit of action on this improvement by the Borough Council at its adjourned meeting to be held February 18th next, the requisite signatures should be secured before the 15th of this month, and to this end we urge your immediate attention to this matter.

Unless consents are forthcoming the whole project must of necessity fail and every property owner who omits signing promptly will contribute to such failure.

Respectfully submitted,
J. P. Emmons,
C. L. Nichols,
J. O. Osgood,
E. S. Boyer,
W. J. Buttfield,
Sewerage Commission.

PLAINFIELD BALL CLUB TO CONDUCT A DANCE

The Plainfield Baseball Club at its meeting last night made arrangements to hold a ball on Easter Monday night, March 28. The hall in which the event will take place will be decided on later. The committee in charge is John Martin, Adam Shott and Norman Barnes.

The question of a ball park for next season was discussed at length. It appeared to be the sentiment of the club that unless suitable grounds can be leased, a stock company will be organized, and a modern park erected.

Six new members were elected and several applications for enrollment were received and placed on file.

Climax Athletic Club to Dance.

The Climax Athletic Club will give a dance at Truell Hall Friday night. The committee in charge comprises J. P. Terry, F. P. Kelley. Music will be furnished by Charles Suhr.

Sesame Club Meeting.

The Sesame Club will meet tomorrow morning at the residence of Mrs. H. E. Chase, 916 Putnam avenue.

Art and Happiness.

LAWRENCE DOYLE DEAD

Popular Young Physician Succumbs to a Lingering Disease.

AT AGE OF THIRTY-ONE YEARS.

Gained Fame as a Ball Player—Member of K. of C. and I. O. F.—Funeral Services at St. Mary's Church.

Dr. Lawrence D. Doyle died at 2 o'clock this morning at the home of his sister, Mrs. Ulysses Force, 605 Richmond street, after an illness of several months. A coincidence of Dr. Doyle's death is that two months ago today the funeral service of his mother, Mrs. Mary Dagnell, was held at St. Mary's church, the former dying on December 4.

Dr. Doyle was in his thirty-first year and was a native of Asbury, Hunterdon County, where he was born on June 13, 1879. At one year of age his father, Lawrence Doyle, died and the family removed to this city in 1886.

Graduating from St. Mary's parochial school in 1896, Dr. Doyle entered Seton Hall College, at South Orange, where he studied medicine for three years. After taking a one-year course at Bellevue Hospital, in New York, he entered a New York medical school from which he graduated after four years of study.

At the conclusion of his studies Dr. Doyle located at Woodbridge, where he remained three years, after which he practised at Bound Brook until last September. Failing health induced him to go to Beloit, Michigan. After residing there for three months he came to a realization that his case was hopeless and returned to his home here in company with his mother, who had also gone there in the hope of benefitting her health.

While at Seton Hall Dr. Doyle gained fame and glory in baseball circles as a pitcher on the college nine. During vacation periods his popularity as a ball player soared to a higher degree in this city where he pitched on local teams.

His chief triumphs in local balldom was made when he was the star pitcher of St. Mary's team in the days of the city amateur league. Scores of hot battles for supremacy were waged on the old St. Mary's and Hope chapel diamonds in those days, and the name "Doc Doyle" was the bye-word for hundreds of local fans, schoolboys and grown-up folks, alike. "Doc" had a disposition that won him friends wherever he went and a host of his admirers in the local athletic world are mourning his death today.

"Doc" Doyle, as he was called by a host of friends, was always noted as a game and gritty player and that characteristic was prominent during the last two weeks of his life while he awaited the approach of death to end his sufferings.

While practising at Woodbridge he affiliated with the Knights of Columbus and Independent Order of Foresters of that town.

Surviving Dr. Doyle are two sisters, Mrs. William Townley and Mrs. Ulysses Force, and a step-father, William Dagnell, all of whom reside in this city.

The funeral service will be held at 9 o'clock at St. Mary's church when a solemn requiem mass will be celebrated. Interment will take place in St. Mary's cemetery.

"SALVATION NELL" HERE NEXT SATURDAY NIGHT.

Mrs. Fiske, America's representative actress, and her famous Manhattan Company, will present "Salvation Nell," the realistic play of the underworld life which enthralled New York for more than half of the season, at the Plainfield theatre Saturday night, Feb. 12. With unsparing truth, and an assurance born of actual experience, the author, Edward Sheldon, has written a play of slum life in the metropolis, whose truth and message strike home to every heart. Not in many seasons has the metropolis been so stirred as by this realistic presentation of life as it exists in the crowded centres of every large city. "Salvation Nell" has been fitly called a "divine comedy of the slums."

California Pastor for New York.

Rev. Malcolm J. McLeod, pastor of the Presbyterian church, Pasadena, Cal., has accepted the call to the Collegiate church of St. Nicholast (Reformed), Fifth avenue and Forty-eighth street, New York city, succeeding the late Rev. Donald Sage Mackey, and will enter upon his new duties May 1.

Painting on View.

H. de Marceu's wonderful painting, "The Village Blacksmith," is on exhibition at Cowperthwait & Van Horn's, 73 Market street, Newark. The public is invited to see this superb work of art.

TRADE BOARD HEAD ON 'JOE' FRELINGHUYSEN

William Jeffery, president of the New Providence Township Circles on the Square, organizer of the movement of the Warren Township Circles and president of the Plainfield Board of Trade, in an address to Warren Circles at Mount Bethel last night stated that the time "had come when the farmers of Somerset county would organize to defeat Joseph Frelinghuysen."

"The appointments of county judge and prosecutor made recently by the Governor," said Mr. Jeffery "undoubtedly upon the recommendation of the Senator, without reference to the character of the gentlemen appointed, were very unsatisfactory, and the kind of political cleaning which had been done in the township of Warren last fall should be extended to include the good Senator himself. I predict that the farmers of Somerset county will rise up against Mr. Frelinghuysen. He has missed a glorious political opportunity; one that will never again return his way."

Mr. Jeffery then discoursed freely on government and taxation and convinced the farmers that they were getting very little in the way of real road improvement or other advantages for the money which they were paying in taxes.

SKELLY IS INDICTED; WHEREABOUTS UNKNOWN

Louis Skelley, who for some time has conducted a news, candy and fruit store at 129 North avenue, has been indicted by the Grand Jury for illegal liquor selling. Skelly has disappeared and his wife says she does not know where he is.

Skelly's offense was aggravated because, it is alleged, he sold the "stuff" on Sundays when the legitimate sources of supply are closed. He had no license and the quality of the booze he is said to have sold was said to have been vile. When asked yesterday where her husband had gone Mrs. Skelley said that he was staying in New York for a few days and she was not certain as to the date of his return. Mrs. Skelley is attending to the store with the assistance of her aunt.

Constable Weaver sought Skelley as soon as the papers for his arrest were issued, but when he arrived at the store his quarry had fled. It is surmised that Skelley had received underground information of the intention of the authorities to arrest and so made a clean getaway. He lived with his wife in the rear of the store on North avenue.

SURPASSING CRUELTY; SOLD STARVING COW

A case worthy of the attention of the Humane Society occurred this morning and for downright cruelty, it is said, it surpasses anything recently seen in this city. Herman Mintz, a butcher, of West Third street, it is alleged, had sold a cow to a resident of the Netherwood section and when the animal was sent to the propective purchaser's home this morning he refused to accept it saying that the cow was not in good condition.

On the way back to Mintz's shop the cow dropped in its tracks on Seventh street, and when Dr. Aaron F. Carpenter, who was summoned, saw the animal he declared it was dying from starvation, but could be saved if given food at once. This was not done and the cow was taken away by Theodore Glazier who said he would kill the animal.

BARACA CLASS.

Popack Goes to Jail.

Vincent Popack, forty years old, was sentenced to forty days in the county jail this morning by Judge William N. Runyon for being drunk and causing a disturbance at the blacksmith shop of John H. Stevens 209 East Second street, yesterday afternoon. Popack might have escaped with a lighter sentence had he not abused the police after his arrest.

DRUNK, MAD OR VENGEFUL

Attempt to Have Locomotive Sent to This City on Wild Goose Chase.

PSEUDO ENGINEER'S FREAK.

Train Despatcher Vanderhoef Wise to Game; Tries to Have Man Held—He Escapes.

Running hastily into the office of A. M. Runyon & Son a half hour after midnight last night, a man dressed in the garb of a railroad engineer or fireman, requested of Mr. Vermeule permission to use the telephone. He was apparently in a great hurry and said his engine had broken down between Central avenue and Liberty street and he wanted to talk with the train dispatcher at Jersey City.

He called up that official and reported his engine stalled and asked that another locomotive be dispatched to his assistance. The dispatcher evidently did not take any stock in the proposed engineer's story and wired Chief Kiely to have the man held. Captain Christenson, who was on duty, sent a patrolman to the office of Runyon & Son, but the man had disappeared.

Mr. Vanderhoef, the train dispatcher in Jersey City, said that it took a half hour to get into telephonic communication with this city when he attempted to get police headquarters at midnight. He believes the man who tried to play the trick on the railroad company was either a discharged employe or was demented.

The man is described as being about forty years old, five feet eight inches tall smooth shaven, and wore the overalls, jumper and cap of the regular fireman or engineer. No trace of him could be had after he left the office of the undertaking firm.

AUTO & CARRIAGE CRASH; MR. AND MRS. HARRIS HURT

An accident which nearly resulted seriously for Mr. and Mrs. Arthur M. Harris, of 935 Central avenue, occurred last night shortly after 9 o'clock at the corner of Seventh street and Central avenue. An automobile supposed to have been driven by A. R. Stevens, of 746 Grant avenue, collided with a carriage in which Mr. and Mrs. Harris were driving toward town. The latter were thrown violently to the ground and sustained severe bruises and their carriage was badly shattered. Some damage was done to the automobile.

The cause of the accident, as far as can be ascertained, is the high wall surrounding a garden at the corner where it occurred. Neither driver could see the lights of the other's vehicle. This is the third accident which has occurred at this point, all of which are attributed to the same cause.

ITEMS OF INTEREST FOR THEATRE-GOERS.

Owing to illness, Chauncey Olcott has been advised by his physician to go South for his health. Consequently his engagement at the Plainfield theatre on Monday night has been cancelled.

Manager Sanderson, after much effort, has secured Ruth St. Denis for Washington's Birthday, when she will appear in her classical and world famous dances.

Walter Damrosch and his famous orchestra on their silver jubilee tour will give a concert here on March 2.

Mrs. Minnie Maddern Fiske will appear in "Salvation Nell" at the theatre on Saturday night.

Shakespeare's Predecessors.

An interesting paper on "Shakespeare's Predecessors" was presented by Mrs. J. Sperry Hansen at the meeting of the Monday Afternoon Club in the Hartridge School Auditorium. A number of members supplemented the paper with accounts of dramatic writers preceding Shakespeare's time. An animated discussion on the subject, "When and How Should English Classics be Presented to Children" was led by Mrs. Morris F. Benton.

Harry Tomlinson, of East Millstone, has taken a position as clerk at Day's grocery store.

Mrs. George Coriell has returned from Saratoga, where she visited her sister.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

The second of the B. & E. Company's winter dances, which was held last night in Excelsior hall, was one of the most enjoyable the firemen have yet held. The hall was prettily trimmed and the friends of the company were out in force, to enjoy the last dance before the opening of the Lenten season. Naylor's full orchestra was kept busy responding to encores for the enchanting two step and waltz, and there was not a dull moment from 9 o'clock until 1:30, when Home Sweet Home was played.

A business meeting of the B. Y. P. U. was held last night in the parlors of the Baptist church. Following the business session the members enjoyed a social hour together. Refreshments were served and a most enjoyable time was had.

Fred Clark, who has been severely ill with typhoid pneumonia, is improving nicely, being able to sit up for a short time now each day.

Henry Demarest, of Front street, has been detained at home from business for several days on account of an attack of the grip.

Miss Lillian Hoyt, who has been visiting Mrs. Charles Haberly, of Front street, has returned to her home in New York.

Miss Elizabeth Riley, who has been visiting Mrs. Ferdinand Schmidt, of Forest avenue, has returned to her home in New York.

Miss Mamie Gallagher, who has been visiting Mrs. W. R. Buckly, has returned to her home at Metuchen.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfonso Salvatore, of Park avenue, have been entertaining relatives from New York.

WESTFIELD.

The Ladies' Aid Society will hold an oyster supper in the parish house of the First Presbyterian church tomorrow evening. This supper will take the place of the annual turkey dinner.

The question of increased school facilities for Westfield came before the meeting of the Board of Education held last evening.

The members of the old hook and ladder company will hold their annual banquet at Mooney's Hotel on Lincoln's Birthday eve.

Upchurch Lodge, A. O. U. W., held a regular meeting last evening.

Captain Kellogg is still on deck and ready for insurance. We saw him at the fire the other night gallantly fighting the devouring element and warning people of their danger. The Captain knows how and where to insure your property. Call upon him forthwith. Don't delay because nobody can tell where peril hides.

The new meeting house of the Scotch Plains Baptist church will be dedicated on Thursday, June 29. Sermon at 2 o'clock p. m., by Rev. Thomas Armitage, D. D., pastor of the Fifth Avenue Baptist church, New York. Evening services at 7:30 o'clock; several eminent speakers will deliver addresses.

Another fine lot of strawberries was left on our table on Tuesday last, from the farm of Mr. Augustus Marbus, Washington Valley. They were of the Agricultural and Monitor varieties and were delicious. Thanks.

The Sabbath School connected with the Central Reformed church held a strawberry festival on Thursday and Friday evenings, 15th and 16th inst., in the basement of the new church edifice, inaugurating the opening of their school room. The whole affair was a very decided success, reflecting great credit upon those comprising the executive committee. The arrangements were as complete as it was possible to make them in the short space of time.

No Fourth of July will occur in this city this year. There was a mistake in the calendar.

FOR TAX EXEMPTION, DIVORCEES AND ESSEX.

Trenton, Feb. 9.—Essex's contribution to the bills thrown in the House hopper Monday night, while not highly important, were interesting in several instances. From Mr. Terhune came a measure designed to exempt from the collateral inheritance tax that portion of the estate of the late Amos H. Van Horn, of Newark, bequeathed for the purpose of public monuments or other memorial. Mr. Terhune would also, by another bill, raise the salary of the sergeant-at-arms in the Chancery Court at Newark, from $1,200 a year to $1,500, and by a third bill would permit divorced women to resume their maiden names once a decree nisi has been entered.

Mr. Minard, chairman of the Essex delegation, also offered three bills as his share of the grist. One of these would permit the Essex County Board of Freeholders to get around the difficulty that is confronting them in the way of sewer drainage at the proposed Essex Isolation Hospital at Soho. This measure provides for a connecting of the sewage and drainage of any county hospital with any sewer or drain now existing or hereafter to be constructed. Mr. Minard, by a second bill, would amend the title to Chapter 179 of the laws of 1899, relative to county boards, and his third measure was one put in last year by Mr. Clark, at the request of Adrian Riker, releasing the title of the State in certain real estate in Orange, of which Moses Bennet died seized.

Mr. Wohlfarth introduced a bill providing for the repaving of streets and highways in first-class cities and the mode of assessing the cost and expenses thereof, and Mr. Kissam submitted a measure providing for the regulating, cleaning and repair of streets, sidewalks and public grounds in cities.

White Sale

Our Annual February Event to Economically Purchase White Goods and Undermuslins.

The advantages of our allied buying connections and our ability to undersell, are ably demonstrated in this Annual Sale of White Goods.

Purchases were made months ago when cotton prices were considerably lower than they are today. This advance preparation manifests its worth to you in the special values which are a notable feature of this Annual Sale.

Splendid stocks have been gathered in all qualities of White Goods and Muslin Underwear. The undergarments are excellently made, of good materials and in ample proportions.

Prices show savings the thriftily inclined woman will surely take advantage of. It's advisable to buy a whole year's needs while such worth-while economies are in force. Read the price list. Take our advice—buy now.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

GOLF.

Abe Findlay, the well known golfer, says he could name six professional golfers whose combined wealth would exceed $1,000,000. Incidentally, Findlay does not name the fortunate sextet. He said:

"Take Donald Ross, at Pinehurst, for example. Ross gets $2 an hour teaching, and has three or four men to help him. He sells three thousand clubs during the season, and his repair bill is large. Just figure it up for yourself.

"I know several men who have taught big financiers who have benefited by stock market tips given them. Professionals are a canny lot and most of them have sense enough to put by a large share of their money. Once in a while you will find those whose single idea is to put out of business those who distill Scotch whiskey. One of our greatest professionals has that idea just now.

It is understood that both the Forest Hill Field Club and the Yountakah Country Club will seek new professionals this season. Tom Gourlay is at Forest Hill at present, while George Pearson's contract with Yountakah will expire on April. 1.

The Scottish women's championship tournament will be held this year over the links of the Nairn Club on June 13 and following days. Miss Elsie Kyle, of St. Andrews, is the title holder.

Even at this early date plans are making abroad for the professionals. The Olton Golf Club has arranged for an open tournament for June 29 and 30, at which Braid, Taylor, Vardon, Herd, Massey and others will compete.

There has been a change in professionals at the Camden, S. C. course. W. C. Skelley, formerly at the Wilmington Country Club, has succeeded Jack Croke. The latter did not find enough business to suit him, judging by some remarks about a "lemon" he made on leaving.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

The official board of the First M. E. church will meet tonight after the prayer-meeting to decide about the individual communion service.

The Sunday school of the First Baptist church will hold a social tomorrow night. A literary and musical program has been arranged.

"The Boy Problem" will be the topic for the mid-week meeting at the Congregational church tonight. Fathers and mothers of boys are urged to attend.

Rev. Dr. Campbell, of the borough, will give a talk at the Y. W. C. A. tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock. He will give these talks every Thursday afternoon during Lent.

The Mission Study class will have charge of the Epworth League meeting at the First M. E. church, Sunday evening at 7 o'clock, when the subject of "Korea" will be considered.

The Men's Club of the Congregational church will omit its meeting this month, as it is arranging for two meetings on March 4 and 29. On February 17 a "Patriotic Supper" will be given.

The Junior Epworth League of the First M. E. church will meet in Vincent chapel, Friday afternoon in charge of Miss May Randolph, superintendent. An attractive program has been arranged.

The regular sewing meeting of the Women's Home Missionary Society of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church will be held in the parlors of the church, Friday afternoon from 2 until 5 o'clock.

On account of the previous engagement of Mrs. Lennox and daughter, they will be unable to speak on "China" at the West End Tabernacle, tomorrow night. The service has been postponed to Friday night.

Under the auspices of the Ladies' Bible class of the West End Tabernacle, a cottage prayer-meeting was held Monday evening at the home of Mrs. Blair on Evona avenue. Mr. Hardingham led the meeting.

The day of prayer of the Women's Foreign Missionary Society of the Baptist church, will be observed at the First Baptist church, Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock. All women of the congregation are invited and are requested to bring "The Helping Hand."

The Young People's Association of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church will meet Friday night for mission study in three classes. The adult class will be taught by Miss Harriet Halloway, on South America; the class for girls by Miss Edna Brown, on Korea, and the class for boys by Howard McWilliams, on Immigration.

P. H. S. NOTES.

The senior class will give the junior class a dance in the auditorium on Saturday night, February 12.

The faculty is getting ready to play the seniors in a basketball game a week from Friday. Mr. Travell will come over from Morristown to play centre. If the game is as good as last year, it's well worth the time.

A SUGGESTION.

As the Board of Education invites suggestions for an appropriate name for the new school building in Dunellen avenue, we venture to say that it might well be named in honor of Grover Cleveland. Mr. Cleveland was the only Jerseyman to be called to the highest office in the gift of the nation. He was born and he died in this great State and was always proud of it. Grover Cleveland was in every sense of the world a great man, a self-made man and one who commanded the admiration, if not the political support, of his countrymen. There could be no political significance in the matter. When that great American passed away, tribute to his memory was paid by his political opponents in New Jersey in convention assembled at Trenton when the delegates arose in their seats and stood in silence to show their appreciation of him. In that convention there were an unusual number of brilliant minds, men who were always proud to refer to Mr. Cleveland a fellow citizen of their State. So far, our schools have been named for authors and poets, none of whom ever resided in New Jersey, and so would it not be a welcome departure to name one in honor of a great statesman and a Jerseyman?

SIGN IT NOW.

An appeal is made by the North Plainfield Sewerage Commission for borough property owners to sign the necessary petition for a special election to vote on the proposed construction of a sewage disposal system. As this appeal, to be found in another column of this issue, rightly says, "there is an imperative demand" for this improvement. For years the growth of the borough has been retarded by lack of any modern system of sewage disposal and it would be a crowning glory for the present administration to bring about the sorely needed improvement. Every property-owner owes it to himself and to the community in which he lives to sign the petition without delay.

Andrew Carnegie has succeeded in finding another city where his name will appear on a public building. Poor Sister Elizabeth has consented to advertise the philanthropist by accepting his offer to build a $75,000 library building in his honor.

The mid-week meeting at the First Baptist church tonight will be under the direction of the Young People's Society, and will be led by H. W. Herman.

THE FORUM.

Editor, The Daily Press:

As a property owner in both city and borough, I wish to compliment Mayor Smalley, of North Plainfield, on his remarks concerning the need of doing away with a saloon at the main entrance or gate to the beautiful borough. Its existence there is a nuisance. I know and every man knows that women do not like to pass that corner at night because they are annoyed by patrons of the place. I do not say to take away the license but I do believe, and hundreds of others are of the same opinion, that the license should be transferred to a less objectionable place. I do not believe, in other words, that the licensee should be deprived of his franchise as I have much respect for him. I do believe, however, that the saloon where it is is a detriment to the community.

CHARLES P. SEBRING.

Cruelty to a Cow.

Editor, The Daily Press:

Dear Sir—Feeling sure that you, out of pity for poor dumb animals, will give me a little space in your valuable paper, I give you the following account of one of the most cruel acts I ever saw. At 10 a. m. today a poor wretched cow was being driven through the streets, and at about fifty yards from Watchung avenue on East Seventh street, fell down exhausted at noon. I saw the same poor beast in the road opposite to Grace church and learned from a police officer that the animal had been purchased in Dunellen two days ago and was afterwards sold to a man in Netherwood, who on seeing the miserable condition of the animal refused to accept it, the driver then had to take the cow back to the owner, a man named Mintz, living on the corner of Third and Liberty streets. The poor animal could hardly walk, its hind legs were stiff and the skin hung from the bones which were almost protruding. The police officer willing to end the misery of the cow was willing to shoot it, but could not get permission to do so, as the veterinary surgeon had said the animal was not suffering from any disease, but was starving to death. Trusting the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals or some other proper authority will take this case up and punish the man Mintz as he deserves, I am, dear sir,

Sincerely yours,

M. D.

Trade Board and Water Question.

In reply to the suggestion contained in the letter written by Mayor Charles J. Fisk to William Jeffery, president of the Board of Trade, Mr. Jeffery has notified the Mayor that he will bring the matter of the water question before the executive committee of the board at its next regular meeting, Monday afternoon, February 14.

Men's Club Enjoys Social Session.

The members of the Men's Club of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, held a social session at the Hartridge School Auditorium, last night, when bowling, pool and billiards were enjoyed, after which refreshments were served. There was a large attendance of men.

STATE C.E. CONVENTION TO BE HELD IN OCTOBER

The executive committee of the State Christian Endeavor Union, which held its winter session Monday afternoon in the Young Men's Christian Association building, Newark, fixed the date of the next annual State convention, to be held in Trenton, for October 5, 6 and 7. A conference of county officers and superintendents of departments will be held in March, to be addressed by President Sproull and several of the leading State Endeavor workers. President Sproull appointed Rev. Dr. Adelbert Chapman, of Hackensack; Rev. Dr. John F. Morgan, of Jersey City, and Rev. Dr. P. T. Pockman, of New Brunswick, a committee to formally assure Rev. Dr. Frederick W. Johnson, of Washington, Warren county, head of the State Endeavor Christian citizenship work, of the unanimous indorsement of the State executive board for Dr. Johnson's efforts to retain proper Sunday observance laws.

The meeting was the largest attended in years, every county, except Warren, Cape May and Atlantic being represented. Upon the invitation of President John T. Sproull, the presidents of more than a dozen county local unions attended, and a majority of the district secretaries. Reports from the ten heads of departments were presented, each showing the work of the year to be well advanced since the Plainfield convention. Middlesex Union, under the direction of the new president, Rev. J. H. Northrup, of Perth Amboy, is arranging for a county increase rally February 20 in New Brunswick. Union county has also arranged for an increase rally in Elizabeth next Tuesday. Sussex will organize "schoolhouse societies" in rural districts, where there are no churches. Bergen has added six new societies, while Mercer, Passaic and Gloucester have each made increases of five to ten.

William Russell, president of the local union told how Essex had organized eight new societies since the Plainfield convention, and leads in the number of senior and junior societies, and was holding monthly congress sessions and county conferences. P. R. Nuessle, of Newark, for the introduction committee, stated that two Essex Endeavorers removing to the Philippines had given letters of introduction to Endeavor officers in those islands.

Miss Mae Hill, of Flemington, announced as her assistants in the junior department for the year, Miss Edna R. Kelly, of Jersey City; Mrs. G. N. Dey, of East Millstone; Miss Nellie D. Stultz, of Westville, and Mrs. A. Brownelle, of Hammonton.

Mrs. G. D. Boker, of Jersey City, was re-appointed superintendent of the State intermediate department, and Rev. Dr. Adams, of the African Methodist Episcopal church, was appointed superintendent of the State colored work to succeed Bishop Alexander Walters, who has removed from the State.

President Sproull was authorized to offer three banners, to be awarded at the State convention, one to the county union making the greatest gain in membership, one to the society receiving the largest number of associate members as active members, and one to the society having the largest number of voluntary participants in the weekly meeting. Mr. Sproull submitted a table showing that the gain of new societies in the State, three hundred, as apportioned by the national society, could be accomplished before the Atlantic City convention by organizing an Endeavor society in thirty-three per cent. of Presbyterian, Congregational, Baptist and Reformed churches not now having one.

The proposed memorial building, to be erected in Easton as Endeavor headquarters, was commended to the State societies for voluntary assistance.

REDUCES ASSESSMENTS IN TRUNK SEWER COST.

Trenton, Feb. 9.—At the request of the Orange Common Council, Mr. Kissam, of Essex, yesterday introduced a bill reducing the assessments which may be levied on the various municipalities for the construction of the Passaic trunk sewer. Under the present law, as passed in 1907, the municipalities are to be taxed five per cent. of their ratables. Mr. Kissam's bill yesterday would cut this in half and make the tax two and one-half per cent. of the ratables.

For instance, Orange's ratables in 1907 were something like $22,000,000. By the existing law Orange's tax on this would be $1,100,000. Mr. Kissam and the Orange Council think one-half of that amount will be sufficient to meet the obligation of the city for the sewer, inasmuch as the estimated cost of the work to Orange will be approximately $490,000.

Following the introduction of Mr. Kissam's bill, Mr. Minard, of Essex, withdrew House bills 89 and 91, and offered two new measures in their place. The withdrawn bills have been subjects of criticism in that lawyers have interpreted them as antagnostic to the interests of plaintiffs in district court actions against corporations. Mr. Minard thinks he has met the criticisms in his new bills. These amend the act relative to appeals in district court cases, and the practise in such cases relative to set-offs.

BRITISH PUT THROUGH INDIA PRESS GAG BILL.

Calcutta, Feb. 9.—The press bill, designed to suppress the dissemination of seditious literature, was passed by the Imperial Council yesterday.

The measure requires the proprietors of newspaper and job presses to deposit with the government a sum of money, which will be forfeited should the depositor be convicted of an attempt to incite to murder or sedition or to influence the public against law and order.

S. O. Tank Wagon Breaks Down.

A Standard Oil Company tank wagon was disabled on West Front street yesterday and trolley cars were held up for a time. The wagon in charge of John Taynor, driver, was wrecked going over the trolley tracks, the rear axle breaking off near the wheel.

Entertained Sunday-school Class.

The Sunday-school class of Hope chapel, of which Arthur C. Maclay is the teacher, was entertained last night by Mrs. Minnie B. Stoeckle of Stebbins place. The evening was spent in playing games, after which refreshments were served.

Brightside Circle to Meet.

The members of Brightside Circle, King's Daughters, will meet at the home of Mrs. Frank W. Jones, 16 Mountain avenue, tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock. A full attendance is desired as considerable business will be transacted.

Y. M. C. A. CONCERT FEB. 15; PREPARING HAYDN'S SYMPHONY

The Y. M. C. A. orchestra will give its next concert on Tuesday evening, February 15, in the Y. M. C. A. hall. The soloists will be Mrs. Guy Bender of the Congregational church choir, and Mrs. A. B. Price, of the First M. E. church choir. The orchestra will also have the assistance of the Scotch Plains Choral Society.

The orchestra has begun rehearsing the Military Symphony by Haydn, lately purchased by the public library through Dr. Leonard Waldo and will play it at one of the spring concerts.

Salvation Army Meeting.

The second of the special meetings in the Salvation Army Hall last night was well attended and an interesting talk given by Sidney T. Perrin. Some of the old familiar gospel songs were effectively sung by the choir and Mr. Perrin's talk was a strong appeal for men to compare the value of eternal life with earthly possessions. At the end of the meeting two persons sought the altar professing conversion. The meeting tonight will be conducted by members from the West End Tabernacle and Plainfield Rescue Mission. A cordial invitation is extended to the public to attend these meetings.

Pulled Hair; Fined One Dollar.

Lena Bender, the fourteen-year-old daughter of Issac Bender, of Somerset street, was fined one dollar in the borough police court this morning for quarreling with two young daughters of Solomon Weintraub, while returning from school on Somerset street yesterday afternoon. Mr. Weintraub, the complainant, exhibited in court a bunch of hair which he claimed the Bender girl pulled from the head of one of his daughters.

Mrs. Eskesen's Funeral.

The funeral service of Mrs. Edward Eskesen was held at St. Mary's church this morning where a requiem mass was celebrated by Father Sciolla. During the mass Albert Mathews rendered impressively a solo, "Ave Maria." Interment was made at St. Mary's cemetery, the bearers being Andrew McConnell, Patrick McNamara, Thomas Muldowney, James Moore, John Winzenreid, Martin Kane.

WATCHUNG HILLS SITE FOR 'M. O.' WATER PLANT

Owing to lack of space, the following letter from Richard Haden Hood to Mayor Charles J. Fisk, as read at the Common Council meeting on Monday night, was crowded out yesterday:

"I reluctantly write you regarding the water supply of Plainfield because of the shortness of my residence here. As an engineer, I have given the matter much study, being, I believe, the largest private consumer of water in the town.

"First. Plainfield should design, build, own and operate a new municipal water plant.

"Second. Of all public utilities, the water department is about the only strictly self-supporting one. In the debt limit restrictions for New York, the bonds for water supply are not included, because of the self-supporting nature of this utility.

"Third. The bonded debt of Plainfield is now about $30 per head; but 80 per cent. of this debt is covered by two items—sewers and schools. As neither of these items produce any direct money revenue, it is not probable the debt will be less at any future time.

"Fourth. A properly designed, built, and operated plant will pay for itself within fifty years without increasing any taxpayer's bills for taxes or for water.

"Fifth. The problem is divided into two parts; the water supply and the water distribution. I will concede that the latter part (distribution by pipes) could be handled just as cheaply twenty years hence, but the other part, the water supply, its ownership, its conservation, its protection from contamination, its original purity, present difficulties hard to solve even now, and probably impossible twenty years hence.

"Sixth. The present water company and the water its supplies, I do not wish to unfairly criticse. It is being operated for the benefit of the stockholders and is probably no more grasping than public service corporations elsewhere. It is operated at a profit and after 1912 the town should have that profit.

"The company drove a hard bargain with the town in 1902, but has lived up to its contract and is entitled to its full profits up to 1912.

"With that practicability that characterizes success, the coal pile was located near the railroad and the wells near the coal pile,—not exactly an engineering operation,—now fairly satisfactory, but entirely unsatisfactory twenty years hence. The present supply is not sufficient in summer droughts, and it is only a question of time before the company must build a storage reservoir to permit it to pump in wet weather a surplus for storage to supply the dry weather shortage.

"Seventh. The ideal plant for the town is a gravity surface supply with reservoirs and filter tanks, all located in the Watchung Hills, high enough above the present populated section to be free of all contamination. Unfortunately there is no choice of location at this late date, and there remains but one possible location for these reservoirs.

"Eighth. The present water company's plant is useless for a comprehensive solution of the problem with a proper regard for the future requirements. This company can sell at a profit all of its water to neighboring communities regardless of Plainfield. It could not therefore be bought as cheaply as a much more modern plant could be built, yet the new plant would be worth probably three times the present plant; but no matter how cheaply the present plant could be bought, it is not what the town needs and should not be seriously considered as a solution of the water supply problem of the future.

"Ninth. The present contract expires in 1912, the voters and taxpayers of the town should immediately be allowed to vote on three propositions:

"First. Continuance of present contract with the water company.

"Second. Purchase of present plant by condemnation proceedings.

"Third. A new modern municipal water plant.

"The decision should be made without delay as there is little time to properly prepare for building a new plant, for such I believe the town must build.

"Tenth. In regard to a new sewerage disposal plant, it would seem unwise at this time to take up the matter. Sewerage disposal is in its infancy. New legislation and adjudication of the rights of the lower-situated communities will soon define and limit what a town must do, and what it must not do with its sewerage. The present plant may be too small to operate efficiently, but it would be well to lose a little money in its operation, rather than erect a new plant under present unsettled conditions and open to extended litigation for damages.

CORPORATIONS FIGHT TO HAVE TAXES SET ASIDE.

Trenton, Feb. 9.—Thirty-five New Jersey corporations now doing business in this State filed appeals with the State Board of Equalization yesterday to set aside the taxes upon intangible personal property levied by Jersey City. The assessments in the aggregate amount to approximately $1,500,000, and the companies contend that they were illegally made.

The attempt of the Jersey City assessors to tax the companies was founded on the theory that the difference between the par value and the actual value of corporation stock constituted an intingible personal asset, taxable in this State at the principal office of the corporation.

The appeal involves some of the great corporations of the country. They were filed by the following companies: Erie Elevator Company, National Lead Company, American Linseed Company, National Sugar Refining Company, American Car and Foundry Company, International Steam Pump Company, National Enamel and Stamping Company, International Smelting and Refining Company, Allis-Chalmers Company, Amalgamated Copper Company, American Thread Company, Central Leather Company, Standard Chain Company, American Hominy Company, Ingersoll-Rand Company, American Smelters Securities Company, Railway Steel Springs Company, Union Bag and Paper Company, United States Gypsum Company, United States Bobbin and Shuttle Company, New York Air Brake Company, Pittsburg Coal Company, Union Typewriter Company, Virginia-Carolina Chemical Company, American Steel Foundries Company, American Car Company, Central Foundry Company, American Piano Company, American Hawaiian Steamship Company, Distillers' Securities orporation, American Hide and Leather Company and Cuban-American Sugar Company.

MRS. SAGE PAID $1,500 TAG.

New Orleans, La., Feb. 9.—Mrs. Russell Sage paid $1,500 for being tagged here Saturday. "Tag day" in New Orleans, an annual institution, means a request of every person seen on the streets for contributions to several worthy causes. A badge exempting a donor from further contribution is presented upon the payment of any sum. Mrs. Sage was stopped by a little girl and exchanged $1 for a tag. Before leaving for Houston, Tex., last night, Mrs. Sage gave a check for $1,500 to the "tag day" charities.

Mr. and Mrs. Buckle in Montana.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

Cape May County's receipts last year were $418,421.47; expenditures $387,808.64, according to County Collector Scull, Ocean City.

The parish house of St. Mary's Protestant Episcopal church, Haddon Heights, will be dedicated next Sunday, Bishop Scarborough officiating.

Not allowed to molest the dogs of prominent politicians, Millville's two dog catchers have resigned, and a Camden colored man will succeed them.

Annie Kelly, a middle-aged woman, was found helpless and half frozen by an Atlantic City policeman just before daylight, and only recovered after several hours of treatment in the City Hospital.

While throwing a switch in the Pennsylvania Railroad yards in Camden yesterday, Lewis R. Carson, a conductor, of 230 Benson street, badly injured his right hand. He was cared for at the Homeopathic Hospital.

Cards were sent out Monday announcing the marriage on Saturday of Sterling Wilson Cole, of the Camden County prosecutor's office, and Miss Bertha Daws Sutton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward M. Sutton, of Camden.

Monday's zero weather was responsible for the death of Joshua Atkins, a negro, sixty years old, of Eighth street and Ferry avenue, Camden. He was found apparently asleep in a vacant house at 871 Central avenue, but efforts to awaken him proved unavailing.

Fire breaking out on the hay-laden schooner Wilber E. Postles, of Camden, the boat was sunk in mid-stream to save E. G. Miller's lumber yard and several shore dwellings. The Paulsboro and Billingsport fire companies were unable to save the boat on account of the high wind.

Enemies are charged with having set fire to the sloop Franklin G. Westcott, moored near Somers Point Sunday, and destroying the craft. The sloop, owned by Howard Somers and Walter Westcott, of Steelmanville, was used to carry truck from the mainland to Atlantic City during the summer season.

Supreme Court Justice Trenchard, sitting in Camden, Monday reserved decision after hearing argument on an application of Freeholder Black, of Atlantic county, for a writ of certiorari to review the action of his board in awarding Riley Brothers the construction of the shore road at a cost of $196,000.

Mayor Appleby's Sunday afternoon closing order at Asbury Park was defied by twenty or more fruit and candy dealers Sunday. Originally the notice included drug and cigar stores, but later druggists were told it did not cover cigar sales and this alleged discrimination angered the aliens. Thomas J. Winckler, present of the City Council, who is not in accord with the Mayor's order, told the Italians to keep open if they wanted to. Names of the violators were taken.

Boardwalk spectators crowded along the seaward rails of the promenade in Chelsea Monday to watch a successful fight put up by men of the crews of three big barges and a deep-sea tug to prevent tons of ice gathered on the sides of the vessels from turning them over by its weight. Fighting with steam driven through pipes from the tug's boilers, the seamen partly freed the endangered vessels from their dangerous coating of frozen spray and the flotilla started on up the coast just before nightfall.

A howl is going up in Atlantic City because of the increase in the gas bills since a monopoly was formed by the two rival concerns. The Business Men's League is to tackle the issue at its next meeting of trying to get some of the yeast out of the combination's bills. The new consolidation promised the same price of gas, ninety cents per thousand net, as was in force before the combination was formed, but many householders who paid the ninety cent rate when competition existed, have received bills for double their old bills.

DR. JOHN CHAMPLIN PRESENTS WESTERLY WITH A HOSPITAL

Many Plainfielders who were formerly residents of Westerly, R. I., will be interested in the announcement of the opening of a new hospital at that place by Dr. John Champlin, who is also known to many here. At the annual meeting and banquet of the Association of Westerly Physicians, last Thursday evening, Dr. Champlin gave his colleagues a surprise, by stating that he had equipped a private hospital at his own expense for the use of the people of Westerly and any doctors in that section of the country.

Dr. Champlin then invited the physicians to inspect the place after the banquet. It seemed almost incredible that the hospital could have been built and equipped and kept a secret. This is Westerly's first hospital. Although built and equipped by Dr. Champlin the institution will be for the general use of the public. It will be known as the Westerly Sanitorium and any physician may bring his patients to the hospital or patients may have any physician they wish.

CURE YOUR KIDNEYS.

Do Not Endanger Life When a Plainfield Citizen Shows You the Cure.

Why will people continue to suffer the agonies of kidney complaint, backache, urinary disorders, lameness, headaches, languor, why allow themselves to become chronic invalids, when a certain cure is offered them?

Doan's Kidney Pills is the remedy to use, because it gives to the kidneys the help they need to perform their work.

If you have any, even one, of the symptoms of kidney diseases, cure yourself now, before diabetes, dropsy or Bright's disease sets in. Read this Plainfield testimony:

Mrs. M. Newman, 552 West Fifth street, Plainfield, N. J., says: "A constant pain in my limbs was the principal symptom of my kidney trouble. When I saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised, I procured a box at Randolph's Pharmacy, and soon after I began taking them the pains in my limbs disappeared. I heartily recommend Doan's Kidney Pills."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

THE FOURTH ESTATE

Novelized by
FREDERICK R. TOOMBS.

From the great play of the same name by Joseph Medill Patterson and Harriet Ford. Copyright, 1909, by Joseph Medill Patterson and Harriet Ford.

"This is such a live thing I don't see how I can kill it," the managing editor said, rubbing his hand over the face of the form.

"That's the best first page ever made up in America," said McHenry, with justifiable professional pride.

Brand was inconsolable.

"I've been working ten years for just this thing," he said, "something so plain that even children would see what the big thieves are doing."

"You go home!" Brand suddenly ordered McHenry.

"What?" was the surprised exclamation.

"I said go home!"

Brand's face was beginning to twitch nervously. He stood in the middle of the composing room, under the flooding white glare from a sixty-four candle power electric light, and clinched and unclinched his hands, not daring to look McHenry squarely in the face. The night editor began to guess what was passing through Brand's mind.

"Yes, but," he began to protest—"but"—

Brand cut him short, saying agitatedly:

"I am still managing editor."

McHenry now realized plainly that the intensely earnest Brand had decided to run the story that very night regardless of Nolan's attitude. It would be an easy matter, as Nolan, of course, would not remain at the office much longer. And McHenry well knew that such an act would not only bring about Brand's discharge from the Advance, but that it would as well injure his reputation in other newspaper offices, where obedience to one's superior, as in any well regulated organization, is a man's first duty under all circumstances.

"Why, man," he exclaimed questioningly, "you're surely not going to run this story?"

Before Brand could give an answer to this last question, even if he had intended to do so, Nolan broke in on the pair.

"Mr. Nolan," began Brand, "you have heard the whole story of this miserable affair, both sides of it—Bartelmy's and my own, from our own lips. Whatever defense or explanation Bartelmy gave you I don't know. But, so far as I am concerned, I told you the facts and the truth. You must know that by this time. You must believe it. Therefore why do you or how in heaven's name can you hesitate?"

"Wheeler, my boy," he said, "I have learned much from you. I have needed contact with such a man as you. I have led a rough life for most of my career. When I rose to be chairman of the Street Railway Workers' union I did so simply through my ruggedness of character, my ability to master men. Then I was driven out into the world, an outcast, and became a day laborer in the mines. When the day came that I owned my own mine it was again a case of fight, fight, FIGHT, for the lawless claim jumpers threatened me above ground, and the lawless floods assailed me below ground. So in the life I led I did not get the opportunity to study or even become familiar with the important questions and the problems that confront the men that guide the policy of newspapers."

Nolan drew close to Brand and placed his hand affectionately on the young editor's shoulder.

"But you, Wheeler—you have taught me much about those big issues that I did not know, and you have shown to me the high ideals that should guide the newspaper writer, the newspaper editor and the newspaper owner as well. You are right in this case." His voice rose to majestic heights. "Wheeler Brand, I have learned from you that the Advance is more than a newspaper. It is a great, throbbing, potential force. It is the strong arm of the Right standing against the evil arm of the Wrong. So we must not falter. We must not delay. Show the big thieves up, Wheeler. Let the story go to press."

Nolan turned quickly away and hastened out and down into the street.

A warm glow of enthusiasm spread over the face of Wheeler Brand as he picked up a bundle of proofs.

"We'll show them up!" he cried exultantly. "We'll show them up, and we'll put them down!"

CHAPTER XIV.

BRAND and McHenry began eagerly to inspect the final proofs of the Bartelmy story. Two figures suddenly stood in the doorway of the composing room. Ed Dupuy's telephone call was beginning to show results. Judge Bartelmy and Judith, ready for a last effort to prevent the publication of the condemnatory article, quite unobserved, glanced to where Brand and his associate editor were at work. "Don't come in yet. Wait a few moments," whispered the judge. The girl slipped down the hall into the managing editor's little office, the coign of vantage from which she had previously been able to hear all that took place in the composing room. Bartelmy proceeded directly to the form before which the two editors were working, and Brand saw that he must undergo another unpleasant encounter before the presses began to whirl off his story. He glanced impatiently at the clock and raised his brows questioningly to the judge.

"Mr. Brand, has Mr. Nolan been here tonight?" asked Bartelmy.

"Yes."

"Have you received instructions about this story?"

"Yes."

"What were those instructions? Is the story to be printed?"

"I am not at liberty to discuss with any outside person the communications I receive from the owner, but I will add for your information that the story will be on the press in a very few minutes."

At this latest declaration of Brand's Judith could restrain herself no longer. She rushed through the doorway, across the grimy floor, regardless of the flowing train of her silk gown.

Brand rubbed the back of his hand across his eyes as though they were deceiving him.

"Good God, it is Judith!" he exclaimed. Then he turned to his assistant. "Here, Mac, hurry—take this form away."

The girl's face and eyes were aglow with the effects of the nervous strain under which she labored on that epoch making and epoch breaking night before the startled night shift of the Advance.

"Wheeler, you're not going to use that picture?" she pleaded.

"Take the form away," again ordered Brand, his voice almost failing him.

"No, no; don't send it! Wait, wait!" She threw herself over the inky form, her arms outstretched.

Brand tried to draw her away.

"Judith, please!" he protested.

"They can't have"— She was hysterical.

"Go to lunch, boys," ordered Brand to the typesetters.

"We'll miss the mail," protested McHenry.

"I don't care. Go to lunch."

The compositors ceased work at the linotypes and, wondering and whispering, slowly filed out.

"Judith," Brand besought her, "won't you"—

"Listen to me, Wheeler," she broke in. "I know everything. Father has told me everything about—his—guilt. You understand what it means to me, what he is to me. You must spare him for me!"

"Judith, it's impossible."

"But it is the human thing to do. Oh, forget these ideals. Be just a man—a man who loves a woman and protects her. You do love me, I know, in spite of everything that you've done."

"Yes, I love you!" he cried fervently.

"And Wheeler, dear, I've not changed," she told him fondly. "I can see how right you mean to be in what you are trying to do, but in this you are wrong. Whatever my father may have done, his intentions were honest. He had been involved by others and when he tried to extricate himself it was too late. They, not he, were guilty. It was for their sakes, not his own, that he offered you that money, so you see you are wrong. Why, Wheeler, if you belonged to me and committed a crime I would die to shield you from the penalty."

Brand answered her quickly.

"That is wrong reasoning."

"No, no; it is right. That must always be," she cried. "It is like—like a law of life. Can't you see that too? I belong to you. Yes, I belong to you, and you should shield me. You must feel toward my father as he were your own because he is mine. It's not possible that you would do this thing to your own father. Think of him that way—your own father! You'll not regret it. I'll make it up to you with all my love for all the rest of life! Wheeler, say you will do what I ask." She broke down completely and sobbed brokenly, leaning across the form. "Oh, say you will do what I ask!"

Brand tried to raise her, but she clung to him frenziedly.

"Judith, for God's sake, don't!" he said.

"Yes, yes; you must, you shall!" She was losing all control of herself in her desperation.

TO BE CONTINUED.

Fresh From Paris Bandboxes Come These Gorgeous Hats

French from tip of brim to top of feather are these dashing original, charming Pattern Hats from Paris. We've just been looking at the new arrivals. They are great—not merely original, not merely new, but truly beautiful and becoming to any woman whose face, form and bearing enable her to carry an ultra-fashionable hat.

We are the first to reveal these harbingers of the springtime to an eager public. They tell the story of the trend of fashion far better than any pen. Come, see these rare beauties—come tomorrow.

Prices run from $25 to $100.

New Toques and Turbans for present day wear; a fine collection of styles in Black and Fancy Straws and other new materials; values running from $3.50 to $3.75; about 30 dozen to be sold at only $1.95

A. P. C. Wash Fabrics at 6½c Yard
ARE SELLING LIKE HOT CAKES

We are surprised and delighted. We hadn't any idea that the first day of this sale of A. P. C. Wash Fabrics would come anywhere near equaling the sale of last year—the weather was so cold. But when the sales sheets were tallied we found a most decided gain over last year's first big day's selling. And yesterday again the sales were tremendous, people buying twenty-five, fifty and one hundred yards at a time—some taking whole bolts of pretty stuffs for future pursonal use, others buying for some charity work with which they were associated—thousands buying two or three dresses for themselves or their children.

It is a great sale, truly—moving along with a force that is irresistible—breaking records, distributing vast quantities of goods, delighting the people.

THE PATTERNS—See the display,, see the fabrics in the piece, and in the model gowns here for your inspection, and you will realize the true merit of these wonderful economical fabrics. Many of them are replicas of costly imported fabrics as you will observe, closely imitating rich foulards and woven woolens.

Many of the patterns are so refined and elegant in appearance that they will be largely used, particularly for morning dresses in both city and country, and especially by those who spend the Summer at mountain or ocean resorts.

There are styles for children, for young people the middle-aged and older folks, and the variety is so tremendous that it matters not much what sort of a dress one wishes for it can be made from these fabrics.

THE COLORINGS—Amazing as it may seem as you look at the wonderful intricate designs and marvelous colorings, every color is absolutely fast and unfadable, no matter how often the goods may be put thru the washtub. This is due to the fact that in the making of the A. P. C. fabrics only the most expensive indigo and aniline dyes are used. It is certainly a satisfaction to all wearers of washable dresses to be sure that the colors are there to stay.

Come to the sale tomorrow or any day this week prepared to buy from one to a dozen dress lengths. Provide now for future possible needs as the opportunity to do so while assortments are so large is not likely to come again this year.

THE MODEL DRESSES—(To Be Given Away)—We want all visitors to the store to see the Model A. P. C. Wash Dresses in the newest fashions, showing you just how beautifully these remarkably low-priced fabrics lend themselves to the artistic draping of the figure. These designs are by noted Metropolitan modistes; and you will be interested in the fact that those who participate in this sale may secure one of these gowns free.

Save your sales checks—as these gowns are to be given as premiums to the purchasers of the greatest number of yards of A. P. C. Wash Fabrics ordered at one time charged on a single sales check.

Quantities bought at different times will not be counted in the aggregate—the single purchase alone will count in the awarding of the gowns. Awards will be made when the sale is over.

"DAVE" FRANCIS WANTS TO GO TO U. S. SENATE.

St. Louis, Feb. 9.—David R. Francis, former Democratic Governor of Missouri and twice mentioned in national conventions as a Presidential possibility, formally announced his candidacy for the party nomination to succeed United State Senator William Warner, Republican, Monday night.

Former Governor Joseph W. Folk also may be a candidate for the Democratic nomination, although his candidacy has not been announced. The primaries will be held in November.

Francis was Secretary of the Interior in President Cleveland's Cabinet during his second term and president of the Louisana Purchase Exposition.

James A. Reed, of Kansas City, and Sterling P. Bond, of St. Louis, have also announced their candidacy for the Democratic nomination. Governor Hadley is announced as a possible Republican candidate to succeed Warner.

RESCUE MISSION REPORTS AT FOURTH ANNIVERSARY

The fourth anniversary of the Plainfield Rescue Mission was held in the W. C. T. U. rooms last night, the program being in charge of John LeMatty, superintendent. There was an excellent address by Rev. Edwin Shaw, pastor of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, who gave words of encouragement; also an address by John B. Oakley, of Elizabeth, and Mr. LeMatty. During the evening, Mrs. John Manley and son, Raymond, sang solos and duets.

Mr. LeMatty reviewed the work of the past year, spoke of the encouraging outlook and especially thanked all the pastors of the city and the Christian workers for their great help in the past year; also those who have contributed money to the work. A social time followed, when the women of the mission served refreshments.

The report for the year shows that there were held 315 meetings and these were attended by 12,000 people. The superintendent made twenty-five calls. The following confessed Christ:

Harold Leach, Charles Williams, Mrs. Thomas Leach, John Van Dyke, Thomas Martin, John Snell, William Doescher, Eugene Woods, C. E. Garretson, Barney Tracy, Miss Bird, John Butler, John Norris, Ben Hurling, Charles Harris and William McCormick.

Many needy ones have received help from the mission along the line of provisions, night lodging and medical aid. The total number of conversions was twenty.

The report of the treasurer, William L. Wright was as follows. Balance on hand, February 1, 1909, $45.53; donations, $245.75; evening offerings, $201.51; paid out, $480.73; balance on hand, February 1, 1910, $12.06.

DELIVERS ILLUSTRATED LECTURE ON "BEN HUR"

State Deputy John J. Hickey, of the Knights of Columbus, delivered an interesting illustrated lecture before Watchung Council, Knights of Columbus, last night, on "Ben Hur." The lantern was operated by Augustus Searing. The views were among the finest ever presented and the lecture was very instructive.

The members decided to hold a carnival in June, and the same committee that served last year with Theodore J. Shirley as chairman, was appointed to arrange the details. The carnival will be held on West Front street, near Grant avenue. After the meeting a collation was served.

FORGER CONVICT KILLS YOUNG WIFE AND SELF.

New York, Feb. 9.—Herman Straus, aged twenty-five, shot and killed his wife Annie, aged eighteen, and then shot himself through the heart, dying instantly, at 204 East Twenty-first street, yesterday.

A week ago Straus was released from Sing Sing prison, where he had served a term of a year and a half for forgery. Since then he had quarreled frequently with his wife, according to the police.

Straus left a letter to his parents, who reside in Far Rockaway, and are wealthy, in which he said that he intended to end his troubles.

The police declare that last Saturday he forged a check for $50.

Straus wanted his wife to take the check to Far Rockaway and have it cashed there. She refused and the pair separated, she going to live at the home of Mrs. English, on Twenty-first street. He went to the apartment of Mrs. English and shot his wife as she lay on a couch.

Will Not Observe Holiday.

The Merchants' Association has decided that as Lincoln's Birthday falls on Saturday this year that the stores will not close. It was intended according to the holiday schedule to have kept open only half a day, but being Saturday and the fact that stores in other cities are to be kept open on that day the stores in this city will do likewise.

TO HONOR WILLIE KEELER

Local Ball Fans to Give Banquet to Famous Diamond Star.

BEGAN CAREER IN THIS CITY.

Celebration to Be Held at Hotel Iroquois Monday Night, Feb. 21—Prominent Speakers for Occasion.

Plainfield ball fans who cheered "Wee Willie" Keller way back in 1891 and '92, in the days of the old Crescents, when he pasted the ball against the outfield fence by his timely wallops, and who since that time has glittered as one of the biggest diamond stars of the country, will have an opportunity to greet their former hero again in this city on Monday night, February 21.

It is the occasion of the "Willie Keller Banquet," which will be held in the Iroquois Hotel. The tributes to Keeler is being arranged by the old time fans and admirers of the great player of later days, which includes a score or more of boys who at that time watched his performances through the knotholes of the fences. A big time is assured to all who attend the testimonial and the committee in charge of the feast has fixed the rate at two dollars per plate.

Jerome Leary, proprietor of the Iroquois, has promised a "bang-up feed." In addition to the "inner fixin's" several fine speeches are sure to be heard. City Judge William N. Runyon will act as toastmaster, and Samuel St. J. McCutchen, a former star player on the old Y. M. C. A. Crescents, will also be present. An invitation has also been extended to William P. McLoughlin, sporting editor of the New York World, to be present. Arthur Irwin, who twenty-five years ago was a star, will also make a speech. Members of the old Crescent nine wil also be on hand to join in the celebration.

Eyes of local ball fans have been focused on Billy Keeler since he graduated from the Crescents. Keeler played here in 1891 and 1892. During the latter part of the latter season his fine work here attracted the attention of the management of the Binghamton (N. Y.) club of the Eastern League. At the close of a game in which he starred against the West Ends of Somerville, he was signed by an agent of the Binghamton club.

Going to Binghamton he made an instantaneous hit and at the end of the season he led the batters of the Eastern League. The New York National League club purchased him from Binghamton and gave Keeler a trial on third base. As "Wee Willie" was a southpaw, Manager John M. Ward did not think he would do at third base and sold him to Brooklyn.

Keeler afterward went to Baltimore, where he was a member of the triple champion team, and in 1902 he jumped from Baltimore to the New York Americans, where he has since played in the outfield. All through his career Keeler has been rated as a star, and although he is nearing his thirty-eighth year, he still has confidence that he can travel in fast company for several years.

Without exception, Keeler has always enjoyed the distinction of being the most scientific hunter in the professional baseball world. He is also counted on as a timely batter and one of the surest fielders in the business.

The committee in charge is John G. McLaughlin, William N. Runyon, George Johnson, John J. Kenney, Ernest Dorflinger, V. W. Nash, Jr., William R. Cass, G. E. Firstbrook.

DEBELE AND CAMPBELL HOSTS AT A PARTY.

William G. Debele and William Campbell entertained about twenty-five of their friends at a Salamagundi party given in Debele's hall last night. The interest of the men folk centred in a domino tournament in which the honors were captured by J. J. Stahl, Chief of Police George Weiss, George Schlereth and John Schenck. Games were played and the young folks found enjoyment in dancing. A bounteous repast also contributed to the pleasures of the evening.

CONTROVERSY OVER NEW HACK ORDINANCE

Replying to a communication from the Board of Trade in which that organization made a plea on behalf of the local hackmen, asking that they still be permitted to charge a double fare after 11 o'clock at night, instead of changing the hour to midnight, William R. Townsend, secretary to the mayor, has sent this letter to William Jeffery, president of the board:

"Your letter of the 7th inst., addressed to Hon. Charles J. Fisk, Mayor of Plainfield, is received. Mr. Fisk directs me to say that as the ordinance has passed its second reading, been duly engrossed and advertised, it cannot be changed at present. He it cannot be change at present. He further states that a great many people coming out on the 10:30 p. m. train from New York, were strongly opposed to the old ordinance, claiming that they had to pay double fare to reach their homes.

"However, his honor desires to say to you that, if the ordinance is found to be unjust, etc., it can be easily amended, but not in its present progress."

SERVICES FOR MEN AT GRACE CHURCH

A series of special services for men, which is to be held on each Wednesday evening during the season of Lent at Grace church, was inaugurated last night with evidences of future success and assured usefulness. Notwithstanding the rough and unpleasant weather prevailing a very god congregation consiting almost entirely of men was present.

The service was entirely popular in its character and consisted of reading of scripture, repetition of the creed, collects and prayers. The entire vested choir was present and bright hearty hymns were sung by the congregation led by the choir. A brief address was given by the rector, the Reverend E. Vicars Stevenson, on the subject of "True Manhood and Its Responsibilities and Opportunities in the Life of the Day."

These services though especially designed for men are not exclusively for men. The public will be welcomed and we have pleasure in commending the value of these services to the consideration of the men of our community.

On Wednesday evening next at 8 o'clock Mr. William Fellowes Morgan will be the speaker. Mr. Morgan is a prominent layman of the Episcopal church. He is president of the church club of Newark and he is a very familiar figure in the field of sports and interests of men largely. Members of the Baltusrol Club will probably be quite familiar with his name and character.

Reverend James N. Deaver, the rector of S. Augustine's church, Atlantic City, will deliver an address before the Mission for Colored People at Grace church on Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock.

EIGHT CANDIDATES EXAMINED FOR PATROLMEN'S JOBS.

Eight candidates for the position of patrolman on the local police force were examined as to their fitness for the position. They were first subjected to a physical examination and last night were put through some mental stunts the results of which will not be known for several days.

The following men faced the music: Thomas McInerney, James Kane, Stanley S. Smith, Harry Burlowitz, Theodore Poland, Chester Gregar, Peter Dooley and Martin Galbraith.

Noted Pacer to Be Sold.

Joe McGregor, the pacer, which has a mark of 2.19 formerly owned by George Ferguson, of this city will be sold at auction at the horse sale to be conducted at the County House stables at Somerville on Saturday. The horse is known by local horsemen by his many brilliant performances at the Plainfield Driving Park in past years. The horse is now owned by E. H. Van Doren, of Somerville.

Warren Chapel Bread Sale.

The women of Warren chapel will hold a home made bread and cake sale Friday afternoon from 3 to 6 o'clock at the home of Mrs. J. W. Gavett, 811 Third place. Those who are unable to attend personally and want to buy some of the home made food may telephone No. 917-W.

CRUELTY CASE POSTPONED

Herman Mintz and Others Concerned in Starving Cow Incident to Be Heard.

GEORGE POLLIX WAS OWNER

The Charge of Cruelty Will Be Prosecuted and the Guilty Ones Punished.

Herman Mintz, the reputed owner of the cow which fell in the street from weakness due to starvation yesterday appeared this morning at the city court, but the hearing was put over until tomorrow in order that the first owner of the cow could be brought before the court.

In speaking about his unfortunate purchase this morning Mintz declared that when he bought the cow it was with the intention of sending her to Terry's pasture at Netherwood to be fed up, and it was while on the way to Terry's that the creature came to grief.

The man who was driving the cow disappeared this morning, but he is well known and will be brought to court tomorrow morning. Mintz said he bought the cow from a man named Pollix, of Dunellen, and when the animal left there appeared to be strong although she was very thin. Mintz fed the cow in his stable for two days before attempting to send her to the Netherwood pasture. Someone wanted to know if he expected the poor animal to feed on snow as there seems to be a dearth of grass just now. Mintz was non-committal on the subject. Mrs. Van Hoesen, the S. P. C. A. agent, was on hand to help prosecute the case which will be heard tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock.

COL. CHANDLER WILL TALK HERE SUNDAY

There is a treat in store for the many friends of Colonel Chandler, of New York. The colonel will speak here next Sunday morning at the Temple Baptist church and in the afternoon and evening he will speak at the Salvation Army hall.

Colonel Chandler has been the head of the training college of the Army in New York and this will be his farewell appearance in Plainfield. He is to take up the work either in the western part of the country or will go to England, this point is not yet decided.

The camp meeting services now going on in the hall are bright and cheerful and are growing in interest. Last night they were conducted by members of the West End Tabernacle and others from the Rescue Mission, Robert Love and John LaMatty speaking and Mrs. Manley rendering effective solos. Tonight Adjutant and Mrs. Jackson will have charge of the meeting.

BIG TIME FOR BOYS ON LINCOLN'S BIRTHDAY

The Boys' Department of the Young Men's Christian Association will observe the anniversary of Lincoln's Birthday on Saturday morning for the boys of the city who are twelve years of age or over.

Captain Herbert B. Saunders, of Scotch Plains, will be the speaker. Captain Saunders is the organizer of the "Morning Watch" among the boys. He has many friends in Plainfield and in the local association. And aside from the active and effective work which he is doing in his own locality he is often called upon to serve in other cities. He has just returned from spending several days with the boys of Baltimore, Md., and Jacksonville, Fla.

He will take for his subject an utterance made by Ted Lincoln to his father, when they were reviewing a grand parade in Washington at the close of the war. Mr. Lincoln asked of the senators who were present "What shall we do with them," referring to a large number of colored men who were in the procession, when Tad Lincoln spoke up and said, "Give them another chance, father."

Following the exercises in the hall the fellows will be entertained in the gymnasium by the members of the Boys' Department and a basket ball game between the "ups" and the "downs," two picked teams from the department. The admission will be by ticket only and the tickets can be secured at the association building or from the committee of boys who will have charge of them.

Mrs. S. A. Moore, of Orchard place who recently suffered a slight stroke of paralysis, is improving.

A QUESTION OF PROFIT

Women Partners in Boarding House Venture at Odds Over Gains.

NELSON RUNYON TO DECIDE.

Ocean Grove Enterprise too Involved for Ordinary Mathematicans It Is Reported.

Now the question is who paid the bills and how much and who collected the weekly modicum for the feed and lodging? This question will have to be solved by Master in Chancery Nelson Runyon, in order to satisfy two women litigants who are scrapping over the results of a boarding house partnership.

The partnership was entered into two years ago by two Westfield women and their purpose was to run a boarding house at Ocean Grove. The case came to light in the Chancery Court at Newark yesterday before Vice-Chancellor Stevens, when Councilor Martin P. O'Connor, of Elizabeth, representing Sarah J. Fream, one of the women, asked that the case which she had instituted against Emilie J. Gluck, the other woman, be referred to a master to take an account of the receipts and expenditures of the enterprise.

Counselor L. E. Hart, of Westfield, and Counsellor Winfield S. Angleman, of this city, appeared for the defendant and on Mr. Angleman's suggestion the case was referred to Mr. Runyon, who fixed Friday, February 18, as the day on which he will hear the case.

As each one of the women thinks the other has had more than her share of the profits of the venture there is some likihood of an interesting session when the matter is threshed out. It is barely possible that their system of accounting is wrong or that neither is an expert at figures, who knows?

"ALLIE" FRITTS SLATED TO SUCCEED LIEUT. GAUB

The vacancy caused in the borough fire department by the resignation of Lieutenant William Gaub has resulted in the receipt of numerous applications for the job by Mayor Newton B. Smalley and Councilman J. J. Stahl, chairman of the fire committee. About twenty ambitious fire fighters are out after the plum. Mayor Smalley, it is said, will appoint a successor to Gaub in a few days, and Albert Fritts is said to be first choice for the position.

Gaub, who resigned, with the intentions of taking a position in the west, received a monthly salary of $70. It is one of the best paying positions in the borough, hence the merry scramble for the berth.

FINANCIAL REPORT OF FANWOOD TOWNSHIP

The financial report of Fanwood Township, including the reports of collector and treasurer; also a list of delinquent taxpayers for the year ending January 1, 1910, has just been printed and distributed in the township. The report is gotten up in a neat and concise manner, making it easy for the citizens to see at a glance the condition of township affairs.

John Z. Hatfield, collector, reports in the general account, receipts and expenditures of $23,286.32, and $16,141.80 on account of school fund and $9,129.15 on account of sale of bonds, which is attested by E. L Hand, township clerk.

W. S. Terry, treasurer, reports receipts with last year's balance of $20,206.09, and disbursements the same. The township expenses total $1,749.60, and labor on roads and sidewalks $692.94. The other items follow:

Board of Health, $153.40; supplies of the poor, $358; dog account, $723.98; county road bonds, $5,688.78; board of police, $31.67; crushed stone and other material—District No. 1, $549.03; District No. 2, $289.05; District No. 3, $108.28; fire hydrants, $593.75; fire department, $196.85; street lighting, $1,636.46.

The report of delinquent taxpayers shows a total uncollected taxes of $1,815.95, for 1908 and 1909 and previous years, and the collected amount is $1,419.76. A list of the delinquent taxpayers is also given.

DENTISTS HEAR DR. KIRK

Editor of Dental Cosmos and Dean of U. P.'s School Delivers Address.

LOCAL ORGANIZATION DINES.

Philadelphian Talked for an Hour on Dental Work in the Public Schools.

Dr. Edward C. Kirk, dean of the dental department of the University of Pennsylvania; editor of The Dental Cosmos and one of the foremost men in the profession in this country, gave an interesting talk at the meeting and banquet of the Plainfield Dental Society, held at the Park Club last night. The society considered itself fortunate in being able to get Dr. Kirk here.

Dr. Kirk spoke especially concerning dental work in the public schools, presenting many interesting cases and incidents; also on prophalaxis. After his talk, there was an informal discussion of the two subjects, all of which proved helpful.

The society held a short business meeting first, then the banquet was enjoyed, after which Dr. Kirk was introduced and talked for more than an hour. The following dentists were present:

Drs. Frank W. French, Charles G. Davis, W. E. Stelle, Frank Wells, Charles L. Moore, O. B. Whitford, Frank Clawson, Guy Hillman, Chas. R. Thiers B. F. Leonard, Ray Stevens, George Moore, Clive W. Montfort, of this city; Dr. Hogan, of Dunellen; Drs. Naylor and Voorhees, of Somerville; Dr. C. M. F. Egel, of Westfield, and Dr. Edward C. Kirk of Philadelphia, the guest of the evening.

QUARTERLY CONFERENCE AT MONROE AVE. M. E.

The fourth quarterly conference was held at the Monroe Avenue M E. church last night. Rev. Dr. D. B. F. Randolph, district superintendent, presided. Various reports for the past year were received. The Ladies' Aid Society reported through its new president, Mrs. Ira Van Arsdale, that three-fourths of the $100 pledged for the church had been raised, and the balance would be secured at a birthday social to be held on Washington's Birthday.

The Epworth League reported that it had raised $100 during the year and had given support to the various benevolences and the native missionary in Africa. The trustees reported the financial condition of the church to be excellent, that all bills are paid and there is a balance in the treasury.

It was not necessary to extend an invitation to Rev. Charles S. Kemble, the pastor, to return next year, as that was done at the second and third quarterly conferences.

TELLS ORANGE GIRLS THEY MAY SOON VOTE

Telling the young men and women of the Orange High School they would likely enjoy equal voting privileges when twenty-one years old if the present progress of woman suffrage continues, William A Calhoun, formerly President of the Orange Common Council, and now leader of the Republican majority in that body, won the applause of the girls by his address in the school yesterday.

Mr. Calhoun explained the work of the Common Council and deprecated the idea of government by commission. Speaking of the success of the Galveston Commission, he said the commission idea was in its infancy, and that following the devastation of Galveston by flood and fire the quickly formed commission was a success because the five men named to manage the city's affairs included men of State and national prominence.

Mr. Calhoun said he favored the Council form of government as it exisits at present, and told the school children the secret of all successful government in municipalities was in the selection of efficient representatives. "A commission made up of good men will be an able body" said Mr. Calhoun, "just as a Common Council will be an effective organization if the best men are chosen."

PANGBORN'S ESTATE BROUGHT JUST $4,560

A large crowd and spirited bidding marked the Special Master's sale of the Stephen Pangborn estate which was conducted by John H. Van Winkle, Esq., at Boyce's Hotel, the borough yesterday afternoon. The sale consisted of four properties which were owned by Pangborn at the time of his death about twenty-five years ago. According to the terms of his will the property remained in the name of Mrs. Pangborn, who died about three years ago. Yesterday's sale was the result of a petition filed some time ago in the Court of Chancery by the heirs.

The properties realized $4,569. James J. Nash, of Sandford avenue, purchased the house and lot at 33 Linden avenue for $775; a lot corner Pearl and Warren streets brought $330, the purchaser being George Scheelin; Albert Pangborn secured the house and lot at the head of Race street for $1,630, and C. W Krausse purchased a house and lot on Race street for $1,625.

DIVORCE GRANTED WOMAN; THE BRIDE OF AN HOUR

Mrs. Helen Gibson Kentner, of Trenton, has been granted a divorce in a suit which she instituted on the ground of desertion. Mrs. Kentnor complained that her husband, Ward H. Kentnor, had deserted her one hour after their wedding.

The evidence showed that the couple were married on July 12, 1907, by a justice of the peace and after escorting his bride to the door of her parents' home Kentnor left her saying he would return the next day to make arrangements to go to housekeeping. He failed to appear and when she confronted him at his home he said he wanted nothing more to do with her. She was given an interlocutory decree which will become absolute in six months. The couple have one child, the custody of which is given to Mrs. Kentnor.

MISS CAREY LECTURES ON "LIFE IN FINDLAND."

Miss Estelle Brenton Carey, of this city, delivered a lecture on "The People of Findland at Home," at the College of Mt. St. Mary, this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Miss Carey is highly cultured, has traveled extensively in the Russian Empire and is consequently well conversant with the social, political and religious conditions of the country at the present time. It was about these things that she talked this afternoon.

Miss Carey is also an experienced lecturer, having spent some time delivering lectures in private and national schools throughout England. The lecture this afternoon was attended by a large and cultured audience.

OVIDE MUSIN.

Violin Virtuoso to Be Heard Here.

It is reported that Ovide Musin, the famous violin virtuoso who is to give a lecture recital at the Plainfield High School auditorium on Washington's Birthday, is considering Plainfield with a view to opening a conservatory. Mr. Musin was for many years at the head of the Royal Conservatory, of Belgium, which was situated at Liege, and he has been attracted to Plainfield because of its resemblance to that well governed clean little city, where his students would escape many temptations of city life.

Mr. Musin gives his lecture recital under the auspices of the Boys' Work committee of the Y. M. C. A. Joseph McIntyre will be the accompanist on that occasion.

James E. Martine to Speak.

James E. Martine will be one of the speakers at the banquet of the Dutch Arms, men's association, at Trinity Reformed church, Friday night, March 18. He will speak on municipal ownership, State control and conservation of government resources. Robert Clark, Jr., will be the tastmaster and there will be other speakers. The men have decided to invite the women of the church to the banquet.

Discharged From Muhlenberg.

Clifford Brown, of Elizabeth, the driver for James A. Hearn & Son, who was found unconscious from concussion of the brain two weeks ago at Fanwood, and who was removed to Muhlenberg hospital, was discharged yesterday cured.

How Would Columbus Do?

Among the suggestions received by this newspaper as a name for the new West End School that of Columbus has been given. "No politics nor poetry in this," says the suggester.

BIG CONTRACT OF P.S.C.

Corporation Spends Half Million for Machinery for Electric Power.

SOME TO COME TO THIS CITY.

New Equipment to Be Apportioned to the Various Divisions of the Company's Systems.

The Public Service Corporation has just entered into contracts with the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company and the General Electric Company for more than $500,000 worth of machinery for the generation and distribution of electricity. The new equipment will be apportioned to the various divisions of the company's system so that improvements will be made in all of them. The contracts will call for generating apparatus capable of producing 15,000 kilowatts of current and as the old machine to be displaced have a capacity of only 2,000 kilowatts the gain in service will be about 13,000 kilowatts. All of this will be additional current available for lighting and railway business.

In the list of apparatus bought is one 9,000 kilowatt turbine to go to the Marion power station and three 2,000 kilowatt turbines, two of which will be put in service in Paterson and one in Cranford.

A new rotary transformer of 2,000 kilowatts capacity will be set up in the Garfield avenue sub-station, Jersey City, a similar rotary has been bought for the service in Newark; one of 1,500 kilowatts will go to West New York to improve conditions in the North Hudson section and a 500 kilowatt rotary will go to Plainfield.

Of the other apparatus bought practically every station and sub-station will get something. One effect of the changes will be the closing of the old Wayne Street station in Jersey City.

"THE DIVINE COMEDY" OF THE SLUMS BOOKED.

Mrs. Fiske and the Manhattan Company will appear in "Salvation Nell" at the Plainfield theatre on Saturday night, Feb. 12. This is an announcement that may well stir the blood of all who are interested in the things of the stage. In this "Divine comedy of the slums" Mrs. Fiske, whose career has been so conspicuously brilliant, has reached new heights of achievement and that in a field far removed from those in which she had formerly been so successful. Her realization—it cannot be properly called characterization—of the scrub-woman of the West Side bar-room is said to be a contribution to the stage that will live in the memories of all who witness it. Her supporting company is practically intact from last season, and the production which is entirely new, is characteristic in its completeness and unusual features of Harrison Grey Fiske's keen artistic insight.

MRS. MARGARET FLANDERS, AGED 72 YEARS, DEAD.

Mrs. Margaret Mann Flanders, of Dunellen, died yesterday after an illness of five days duration. Mrs. Flanders was in her seventy-third year and had been a resident of that place for about ten years, where she conducted a notion store on North avenue.

The funeral service will be held Saturday afternoon at the home of her brother-in-law, Edward Willis, 1320 South avenue, this city.

To Sing "Olivet to Calvary."

The choir of Grace Episcopal church will render Maunder's "Olivet to Calvary" on Friday evening, February 18. This will be the first cantata ever sung by the new male choir and promises to be a splendid musical effort and quite in keeping with the season. The music will be sung under the direction of S. Frederick Smith, organist of the church, and has been in preparation for the past month.

For Sewerage Signatures.

For the purpose of giving borough property owners an opportunity to affix their signatures to sewer petitions the office of Tax Collector George F. Brown will remain open until 6:30 p. m. every day. The office will also be open from 8 to 9 o'clock in the evenings.

Thimble Club Entertained.

The Thimble Club met with Mrs. George Mehl, of Madison avenue, yesterday afternoon. A large quantity of sewing was done and a thoroughly informal social time was enjoyed. Refreshments were served.

—Saturday a. m. M. C. Van Arsdale will start up his February clearance sale of shoes. 127 East Front street. ***

STATE JUSTICES OF PEACE PERFECT ORGANIZATION.

Trenton, Feb. 10.—The New Jersey State Association of Justices of the Peace and Constables met at Masonic Hall Tuesday afternoon and adopted the constitution and bylaws, as reported by the committee appointed to draft them. Articles of incorporation were also brought before the meeting, and after the reading of the charter the officers signed it. The charter was left to counsel to file with the Secretary of State.

Several committees were appointed, the most important among them being the finance committee, of which David C. Kelsey, of this city, was named a member. Others on the committee are A. D. Potter, of Clayton, and J. A. Donnelly.

According to the articles of incorporation, the association will put forth all efforts to elevate the dignity and increase the power of the office of justice of the peace and constable.

A bill to extend the civil jurisdiction of justices of the peace was discussed, and it may be that a bill to that end will be introduced before this Legislature adjourns. Another measure to extend the criminal jurisdiction was also discussed, but it was thought that this matter could be taken up later.

As it has been brought to the attention of the association that several officers are indulging in sharp practise, it was decided to give such matters special attention.

WALL STREET BROKERS SURPRISED AT REPORT.

New York, Feb. 10.—Wall street brokers professed to be amazed yesterday at the action of the board of governors of the Stock Exchange in making Hugh F. Criss, of the failed firm of Roberts, Hall & Criss, the scapegoat for the recent flurry in Columbus and Hocking Coal and Iron and in denouncing him for characterizing the firms that failed to take up orders given him as "welchers."

Criss himself admitted that he was amazed at the decision but referred all inquirers to his attorneys.

The amazing action of the special committee that investigated the pool declaring that ratification of Criss' orders which it is admitted were carried out in good faith, was not binding because the acceptance was by clerks or subordinates, without the actual knowledge of the firms themselves," comes in for warm criticism. It is argued by leading brokers that this action is revolutionary inasmuch as every firm on the street has been in the habit of leaving all details such as these to subordinates and never before has any brokerage concern refused to take its orders on the ground that the exchange broker failed to deal directly with principals.

This action of the governors is very likely to be a factor in a court proceeding inasmuch as Criss insists that he executed orders as they were sent to him and that as those who gave the orders were notified that they had been executed they and not his firm must bear the loss.

FARMERS' SCHOOL ON RAILROADS.

New Brunswick, Feb. 10.—The executive committee of the State Board of Agriculture has accepted the offer of the Central Railroad officials to furnish the board free of charge a train for institute work over that road. The train is to consist of three coaches, two fitted up as lecture-rooms for the institute lecturers and the third a combination to accommodate the workers and the demonstating apparatus used by them.

The work will start at Somerville, and the train will be run over the branch roads and the main line to Phillipsburg. As planned at present the train will start Monday March 17, and the trip will occupy three days. A printed schedule of the various stops and subjects to be discussed will be issued by the railroad and the State board a couple of weeks before hand, so that those interested will know when and where to meet the train. The committee in charge of the institute train work of the State Board of Agriculture is Dr. E. B. Voorhees, New Brunswick president of the State Board; Franklin Dye, Trenton, secretary of the State Board, and E. R. Collins, Westfield, chairman of the committee on transportation. Final arrangements for the train were made yesterday with T. B. Koons, traffic manager of the railroad.

FOR CENTRAL BANK AND A "DILL" AS STANDARD.

New York, Feb. 10.—J. Pease Norton, professor of political economy at Yale University, who believes that the increased production of gold and its consequent cheapening is responsible for high prices, is convinced that the only permanent remedy for the evil is the adoption of a new standard of money, to supplant the gold dollar. He makes this suggestion in a statement just issued here.

Professor Norton proposes a new unit of exchange, which he calls the "dill." This, he says, would be an imaginary unit, whose value would be equal to the purchasing power of certain specific quantities of staple commodities as designated in federal law. His plans include also a central bank, which would issue on demand to banks and licensed storehouses "dill" credit notes to the extent of ten per cent. of the value of gold, silver or commodities on hand.

WHY SALVES FAIL TO CURE ECZEMA.

Scientists are now agreed that the eczema germs are lodged not in the outer skin or epidermis, but in the inner skin. Hence, a penetrating liquid is required, not an outward salve that clogs the pores.

We recommend to all eczema patients the standard prescription Oil of Wintergreen as compounded in liquid form known as D. D. D. Prescription. A trial bottle of this D. D. D. Prescription, at only 25 cents, will instantly relieve the itch. We have sold and recommended this remedy for years, and know of wonderful cures from its use. We recommend it to our patrons.

That Postal Deficit

Postmaster-General Hitchcock reports that the Post-Office Department loses $64,000,000 a year in the business of carrying second-class mail (magazines and periodicals).

There is not a deficit of $17,000,000, as the department alleges, but actually a surplus of more than $10,000,000, when the specific loss on free rural delivery is taken into consideration, and the department's figures of $64,000,000 loss on second-class matter are wrong by more than $60,000,000.

THE SATURDAY EVENING POST

for February 12th devotes its editorial page to this subject, showing the injustice of the recommendation to raise the rate on all magazines and periodicals—but not on daily papers or the country weeklies.

One fact: In the year ended June 30th, 1908, the weight of second-class matter compared to 1907 *de*creased 18,000,000 pounds. The postal expenditures *in*creased $18,000,000. There is something in it besides second-class matter.

Look for a dozen more facts in this week's (date of February 12th) number of THE SATURDAY EVENING POST.

PASTOR EXHIBITS RARE BIBLES

Ocean Grove, Feb. 10.—What is believed to be the most valuable collection of rare Bibles in this country is owned by Rev. Marshall Owens, rector of St. Paul's Episcopal church, this place. These Bibles were exhibited at the church last night, in the course of a lecture delivered by Mr. Owens.

In the lot was a copy of the famous "Breeches Bible," so called because of the curious wording found in the third chapter of Genesis, seventh verse, "And they sewed figge leaves together and made themselves breeches." This version was printed in 1576. Another very rare edition is the Bishop's or "Treacle" Bible, in which is found, Jeremiah vii., 22: "Is there not treacle at Gilead?" Still another rare book, one of the oldest in the collection, is the "Bugges" Bible (1551). This version has the peculiar wording of Psalm xci., 5: "So that thou shalt not need to be afrayed for any bugges at night," instead of "terror by night."

Rev. Mr. Owens also exhibited a leaf from Tyndale's Testament, printed in New Jersey (1791), by Collins the State printer. The lecture last night was delivered in anticipation of a trip to the Holy Land, upon which Rev. Mr. Owens will start shortly.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

GOLF.

Walter J. Travis has not been in accord with the West in the recent agitation over the government of golf in this country. In view of this the following comment in "The American Golfer," edited by Mr. Travis, is pertinent, even if it may not be altogether amusing to Western players:

The step taken by the Western Golf Association at its recent annual meeting in postponing action on the proposed amendment to change the name from the Western Golf Association to the American Golf Association—with all that it meant—somehow reminds one of a match which recently took place at one of the noted Southern courses. Mr. A. was 1 up and 2 to play. He laid his approach stone dead at the seventeenth and felt quite happy in the comfortable assurance of at least a half . . and, in fact, allowed himself to revel in the thought that possibly the match might be his by 1 and 1. A change came o'er the spirit of his dream when his opponent, playing the like, half topped his ball, which scuffled along and ended up by trickling into the hole. And he also won the last hole and the match. The loss of the match, however, did not make Mr. A. feel so badly as the vain attempt to satisfy himself as to what kind of stroke it was that his opponent played on the seventeenth. "What I can't quite make out," he said after the match was over, "is whether he intended to pitch or run. I think he intended to pitch."

"Not at all," said the opponent "the stroke was played just as I intended—a sort of half top." "Half top be ——; now what would you call it?" said A to one of the gallery who had witnessed the play. "Neither a pitch nor a run-up, neither an approach nor a put, but simply an act of God," was the reply.

The regular sewing meeting of the Women's Home Missionary Society of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church will be held tomorrow afternoon from 2 to 5 o'clock. Two boxes are being prepared and contributions are much needed.

Rev. C. L. Goodrich, pastor of the Congregational church, will meet the Junior Endeavor Society of the church tomorrow afternoon at 3:45 o'clock. Parents are urged to cooperate with the pastor in securing a large attendance of children.

Under the auspices of the Sunday-school of the First Baptist church a social will be held in the church tonight. A unique program has been prepared. The admission will be one orange and those received will be distributed among local charities.

NELSON KILMER, SHORE HOTEL PROPRIETOR, DEAD.

Ocean Grove, Feb. 10.—Word has been received here of the death at Nassau, Rennsaleer county, N. Y., of Nelson H. Kilmer, a former Ocean Grove hotelkeeper, well known throughout New Jersey. Mr. Kilmer for twelve years kept the Alaska House, which hotel under his management was headquarters for all religious bodies of the State whose annual conventions are held in Ocean Grove.

As a hotelman, Mr. Kilmer was noted for his open-handedness. All a minister of the gospel short of funds had to do, when he desired to spend a vacation at the seashore, was to make his wants known to Mr. Kilmer. For years Mr. Kilmer was prominently identified with the Epworth League of the New Brunswick district. He was a member of the Masonic Order, the Odd Fellows, the Heptasophs and the Golden Eagles.

A coincidence in connection with Mr. Kilmer's death is that, when the news of his decease was received here, his long-time friend and legal adviser, Wesley B. Stout, also lay dead in the Grove.

CONTROL BOARD BILL READY.

Trenton, Feb. 10.—Governor Fort says that Attorney-General Wilson has prepared the Executive's bill providing for a State board of control for the purchase of supplies. This bill is to be introduced next week. The measure provides that the commissioner of charities and corrections and the purchaser of supplies at each State institution shall constitute the board, the members to serve without salary.

The Governor believes the State will be saved thousands of dollars by thus centralizing the purchase of supplies instead of allowing independent buying, as at present.

GIRL STUDENT NEAR TO DEATH UNDER TRAIN.

South Amboy, Feb. 10.—Miss Gretchen Stumpf, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Stumpf, had a very narrow escape from an awful death Tuesday at the New York and Long Branch Railroad Depot. She is a student in a Newark business college, and yesterday stepped out of the station to board a train. The smoking car was directly opposite her, and she walked along the side of the train, intending to take the next car.

Before reaching this car she tripped and fell, her body passing under the car and between the front and rear trucks. The fall cut and bruised her face, and made her half unconscious, and before she could regain her feet the train started.

Chief of Police James McDonald called to the girl to roll over, and at once jumped to her assistance and pulled her from under the train before the wheels crushed her to death. Her face required the care of a physician, and Dr. Albright was summoned. After the cuts and bruises on her face had been treated she was placed on board a trolley car and taken to her home. She is suffering now more from fright and nervousness than from the effects of her fall.

PRISON AND FINE ON MANSLAUGHTER VERDICT.

May's Landing, Feb. 10.—For killing his cousin in a quarrel over the postponement of a "donkey party," Albert Watson was yesterday convicted of manslaughter. He was sentenced at once to ten years in State prison at hard labor and to pay a fine of $1,000.

Ernest Crown appeared at the Watson home, Baltic avenue, Atlantic City, on the night of December 4, after a proposed "donkey party" had been postponed. He objected to the postponement, and there was a quarrel. Watson's defense was that he had no intention of shooting Crown, and that the killing was accidental.

Lincoln's Birthday Celebration.

New Providence, Feb. 10.—The executive committee of the Republican Club has made all arrangements for the celebration of Lincoln's Birthday in the Methodist church Saturday evening. The orator will be J. Wilmer Kennedy, assistant superintendent of the city schools of Newark, who will deliver an address on "Lincoln." The musical program will consist of selections by William Y. Webbe, at the organ and vocal selections by Professor A. G. Balcom, John W. Till, Miss Inez Jessup, the kindergarten teacher, and Mrs. Amos A. Potter. Miss Louise Bittner, a pupil in the eighth grade, will deliver Lincoln's Gettysburg address, and a chorus of singers from the school will render the "Soldiers' Chorus," "My Country 'Tis of Thee," and "The Star Spangled Banner."

FUTURE CENSUSES TO COST MUCH LESS

It seems highly probable that New Jersey is about to hold its last census taking under the old and present system; and that in 1920 entirely different conditions will exist, through which all the present red tape operations will be done away with and the State saved at least three-quarters of the cost that falls upon the government. That is to say that should the proposed system now be in use in this State, instead of the large amount that is estimated this year's census taking will cost, the expense would be reduced to about one-quarter of what it will cost this year.

The system which it is proposed to install in this State is the same as now in force in the State of Massachusetts. There one supervisor has complete jurisdiction over the whole State. He is at the head of a permanent bureau of census, and has full charge of all the work. The plan is to have a sort of skeleton system, whereby upon short notice the branch can broaden out and the work carried on with much greater accuracy and speed, not to mention the large sum of money saved.

The plan of having each State in the Union adopt the system has been discussed much at the nation's capital, and seems to have found great favor with the country's lawmakers. However, it is impossible to force any State to adopt the system except through the legislature, but there is no doubt but what in time it will be used throughout the country with a saving of something like $10,000,000 every ten years, or an average of $1,000,000 a year.

TRINITY REFORMED CHURCH PLANS TO BUILD ADDITION.

At the meeting of the Consistory of Trinity Reformed church, last night, the wardens were empowered to secure estimates for painting the exterior of the church; making all necessary repairs, exterior and interior, and redecorating the church inside. They were also empowered to secure estimate on the cost of building an addition in the rear of the church to accommodate the members of the junior and beginners' classes of the Sunday-school.

The church owns about ten feet of land in the rear of the church, and there has been talk of utilizing that space, thereby giving the Sunday school the extra rooms needed. The wardens will submit its report at the next meeting of the Consistory. This looks as though the church will remain in its present location for the next ten years at least.

Presented With a Gold Watch.

At the meeting of Watchung Council, Knights of Columbus, Tuesday night, Andrew E. Kenney, on behalf of the members, presented Francis J. Blatz, who is now past grand knight, with a handsome gold watch, in appreciation of his services for the council. Mr. Blatz took occasion to thank the members for the gift.

H. W. VanArsdale has resigned as janitor of Trinity Reformed church, and Henry P. Seader, who formerly held the position, has accepted it and will begin his duties March 1.

THE FORUM.

Editor, The Dail Press:

Dear Sir:—I would like to add a line to that of another Resident of East Seventh Street concerning the wretched starving condition of that poor cow which was driven through these streets yesterday. The poor animal was suffering intensely and hardly able to drag itself along, only when compelled to by the use of the whip and finally sank from utter exhaustion to the ground. I earnestly hope that the Humane Society will give this case their attention and that Herman Mintz, owner of the cow, will be severely punished for this atrocious act of cruelty to a dumb animal.

Very truly yours,
Another M. D.

FACULTY AND SENIORS PLAY BASKETBALL TOMORROW.

There will be great doings in the High School tomorrow afternoon when the faculty turns out to play the seniors. The faculty are very confident of victory with two of the Business Men's team, Best and Hubbard. Mr. Travell is expected to come over from Morristown and play center, a position at which he distinguished himself last year. Bostwick will show some of his old college work at forward. The faculty will have a harder rub this year than last, because there are some pretty crack players among the seniors. The lineup will be: Faculty—Best, Bostwick, Travell, Howe, Clark and Hubbard. Seniors—Morris, Vail, Ricketts, Runyon, Loizeaux Overton.

The school will give its usual entertainment tomorrow afternoon in the auditorium. Doane and Riffert will give a little of their Dutch hot air, and there will be dancing and games. Last Friday was very successful and the idea is certainly a good one.

DELTA UPSILON FRATERNTY.

New York, Feb. 10.—Governor Charles E. Hughes was elected president of a new corporation to be known as the Delta Upsilon Fraternity, which was launched Tuesday night at a dinner at the Republican Club attended by members of most of the thirty-eight chapters of the college fraternity.

David Starr Jordan, president of Leland Stanford, Jr., University, and Erman J. Ridgway, the magazine publisher, were elected vice-presidents. Verne M. Bovie, Marietta, '98, and Starr J. Murphy Amherst, '81, were elected secretary and treasurer, respectively.

The purpose of the new corporation is to broaden the society's power in holding property. Under the laws of New York each of the 8,500 members of the fraternity throughout the country will be members of the corporation.

Nearly 113 Years Old.

Mrs. Pauline Brooks died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Fannie Stream, No. 161 East 109th street, New York, on Monday. She was born April 19, 1797. She leaves nine children, forty grandchildren, twenty great-grandchildren and three great-great-grandchildren. The following rules she attributed to her long life: Don't worry, eat three hearty meals a day, retire and rise early, live temperately.

Britton Pleads Guilty to Theft.

Eugene Britton, colored, of this city, was arraigned before Judge Atwater at Elizabeth yesterday charged with stealing $6 from a German woman. He pleaded guilty, explaining that he took the money from the counter in a cobbler's shop owned by the complainant's husband. He said that he was without funds and had been summoned South by the news that his brother was dying. It was learned that Britton was convicted of assault and battery five years ago and had served time at Rahway. He will be sentenced next Wednesday.

Horse Fell on Icy Street.

A bay horse, attached to John Wirth's delivery wagon, slipped and fell on the ice at the corner of Grant avenue and West Third street at 7 o'clock this morning. One hour's time was consumed in getting the animal on its feet. After this was accomplished the horse was taken to Watson's barn on West Third street. One of the hind legs of the animal was badly cut and bruised.

Kane to Alter Building.

A permit was granted to Alex. Kane today by Building Inspector Doane, to make some extended alterations to the large building formerly utilized for a lumber storehouse on East Third street, near Fillmore avenue. Mr. Kane will convert the building into five dwelling apartments and one store at an expenditure of about $5,000.

ATTEMPT TO WRECK CARS.

Red Bank, Feb. 10.—Two attempts were made to wreck cars on the Monmouth County Electric Company's line Monday night, in Coon Hollow, near Shrewsbury. The car which leaves Red Bank at 8 o'clock ran into a fence rail which was laid on the track and broke it in two without doing the car any damage. The car was in charge of Albert Van Brunt and Edward Brooks, and when it reached switch No. 5, near Long Branch, Sylvester Emmons and Joseph Withers, the crew on another car, were warned of the attempt.

This car left Red Bank at 8:50 o'clock, and in Coon Hollow Emmons just had tome enough to stop his car before running into three fence rails. There were seven passengers in the car. Three years ago a similar attempt was made to wreck cars at the same place.

AN AEROPLANE DANCE.

Paris has started a new dance which is quite the fashion. It is the outcrop of aviation, and is called "L'Aeronnette." It is the creation of M. Leport, the great dancing master of Paris.

It has four movements. In the first the couples dance a slow step, which is to imitate the rolling of the aeroplane. In the second movement the couple raise their arms slowly as they dance which is to represent the rising of the aeroplane in the air. The third movement is difficult to describe. It is an irregular step to illustrate the unsteadiness of the aeroplane in its flight. The fourth movement describes the descent, which is a long, sliding step.

A humorist has insisted that there should be a fifth movement, which should be the crash of an areoplane. When asked what the movement shou'd be said that all the couples should fall to the floor and the quick pick up the dead.

SEAL COATS.

The long coats of sealskin, or, let it be whispered, nearseal are being bought and worn by fortunate women.

They reach a'most to the ground and are superbly lined. Jeweled and tortoise-shell buttons are used on them.

The cut of these coats are extremely graceful, preserving a long line and lacking in the bulkiness of our mothers days. Frequently there is a cutaway effect in the front, and just to give variety many of the sides and backs are curved at the lower edges.

A Dream of Opulence.

I'd like to be a plutocrat
With millions in control,
And never have to shudder when
I bought a ton of coal;
I'd like to see my wealth of coin
In gay profusion tossed
And buy big beafsteaks when I liked
And never ask the cost!

AMONG OUR NEIGHBORS

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

In the presence of about one hundred guests Miss Ida McCullough and Henry Smalley were united in marriage at 5 o'clock yesterday, the ceremony being performed at the home of the bride's parents in Piscataway by the Rev. George H. Gardner, pastor of the First Baptist church of New Market. The bride wore a gown of white embroidered messaline and carried a bouquet of roses. She was attended by Miss Elsie McCullough, her sister, as maid of honor, who wore pink messaline. Edith Gulick, a niece of the bride, was bower girl, and Bergen Merle was best man. Miss Mabel Garretson, of Belle Mead, played the wedding march. Mr. and Mrs. Smalley are now on their honeymoon. On their return they will reside at Dunellen.

Mrs. William Carman will soon remove to Marlboro, where she will make her home in the future with Rev. Mr. Davis, formerly of Lebanon.

W. H. Taylor, who has been confined to his home with a severe rheumatic attack for more than a month, displays little improvement.

G. J. Dumont and A. Purda have returned from a week's sojourn in New York where they went on a sight-seeing tour.

Louis Block has returned from Philadelphia. While in the Quaker City Mr. Block transacted a real estate deal.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Herlich have returned from Old Point Comfort where they spent their honeymoon.

Irving Fenner and Russell Garretson have formed a real estate partnership.

Mrs. Frank Randolph is able to be out again after a severe illness.

Guard Against Injury in Athletics.

The Montclair Board of Education has rejected a resolution providing that boys of the public schools be required to show a physician's certificate before taking part in any interscholastic athletic contest. The Board, however, has ordered an investigation of the means taken by the medical examiners and physical instructors of the Montclair schools to determine the fitness of the contenders in the athletic contests.

WILL DR. WILSON RESIGN PRINCETON PRESIDENCY?

The Daily Princetonian, an undergraduate publication of Princeton University, published an editorial today voicing sentiment of the undergraduates in the graduate school controversy. This comes before an important meeting of the Board of Trustees this afternoon. The editorial write conferred with both Dean West and President Wilson in reaching his conclusions, so what he says may be considered authoritative. The editorial says in part:

"Dean West believes in a college entirely composed of graduates. He sees the matter primarily from the graduate student's standpoint. President Wilson, after the experience gained in watching developments at Merwick since its foundation has changed his ideas on this point and now thinks that upper classmen should be allowed to live in the same buildings with the graduates. This does not mean that they should in any sense dominate the college, but that the few undergraduates who might so desire might be allowed to live there.

"A fair-minded observer would say that Dean West's report had the sanction of the trustees, whether or not they have ever adopted it as a body. Mr. Proctor's ideas upon what the proposed college should embody are gained from this report. He overlooked the fact that central location was as essential in the plan as first outlined and that subsequent experience at Merwick has convinced President Wilson and a majority of the committees of both faculty and trustees that it is, more than ever, necessary.

"Rumors of resignation have been plentiful, but we sincerely hope that there is no need for even a thought of such a thing on the part of any one."

Faculty, alumni and undergraduates of this institution are aroused to a high pitch of interest and are somewhat apprehensive as to the outcome of the meeting. It is thought likely that President Wilson's resignation will be discussed, however.

TO USE INDIVIDUAL COMMUNION SERVICE.

The official board of the First M. E. church met last night after the prayer meeting and acted favorably on the proposition to use the individual communion service hereafter. The service will be secured in time for the communion the first Sunday in March. This action is in accordance with that taken at the fourth quarterly conference held recently.

Emphasis was also given to the resolution proposed by Senator Ackerman and adopted at the laymen's missionary meeting, regarding missionary effort, and the board decided to go forward and increase the church's missionary work in foreign fields. The First M. E. church is now giving about $1.29 per capita member, but it is proposed to increase this amount.

FINDS RARE OLD COINS.

Workman Stumbles on Them in Deserted House.

Frederick Deibert, Sr., who purchased one of the old Pennsylvania Railroad houses which are being torn down at South Amboy, heard yesterday that one of his men had found a can containing about $6,000 in gold hidden between the rafters near the chimney place. He hurried to the house, only to find that the workman, Charles Grover had gone away with the prize.

Mr. Deibert hunted up Grover and then learned that the actual find was about twenty old coins in a sardine can, but this proved pretty good, as they are mostly old English coins some dated 1707, one dated 1776, and a white penny bearing an eagle and dated 1853, which is said to be worth $300. Mr. Deibert contends that he owns the coins as the owner of the house, but Grover is holding to them by right of discovery.

NEGRO PORTER FOUND GUILTY OF MURDER

Edward Savage, the colored porter who stabbed to death Mrs. Ada Snell, a colored woman, in her apartment, 57 Montgomery street, Jersey City, on October 19 last, was convicted of murder in the first degree in the Hudson County Court of Oyer and Terminer late yesterday afternoon. The jury was out less than fifteen minutes.

The trial has lasted three days, and during that time many witnesses were examined, some who witnessed the actual slaying and others who said they heard Savage declare he would kill Mrs. Snell. There were a number of physicians called by Prosecutor Garven, who conducted the State's case, and each one testified that the slayer was not insane, only shamming.

His case may be taken up on appeal in an effort to save him from the electric chair. His lawyers, Travers Spraggins, colored, and Herbert Davis, white, assigned by the court to defend him, say he is insane, while experts on psychic research say he is in a state of mind where the spirit of the woman he killed dominates him.

It was intended to apply to the court yesterday for permission to put on the witnes stand experts on spiritualism. Lawyer Davis, who was to have made the application, had an attack of vertigo at his home in Hoboken early in the morning and reached court after the case was practically in the hands of the jurors. When the jury's verdict was announced Savage never moved a muscle and did not appear to know what was going on about him. His wife was seated behind him when the foreman of the jury said:

"Guilty of murder in the first degree, as charged."

Mrs. Savage did not appear to display any emotion, and left the courtroom with a party of friends.

BANKER ASKS DIVORCE FROM HIS GIRL BRIDE.

New York, Feb. 10.—James Balletti, a young banker, has sued his wife for an absolute divorce on the novel plea that at the time of the marriage she committed a fraud in overstating her age. She was sixteen, and told him, he alleges, she was eighteen.

Balletti married Miss Margaret Bornheim on April 11, 1908. It was practically an elopement. Balletti had prepared a home for his bride in an apartment in East 106th street.

A few minutes after they arrived there she went out for a walk and never came back. The next morning he received a letter, in which she said she regretted the step she had taken. When inquiries were made at her home in Jersey City it was learned that the family had moved.

For weeks every day one of Balletti's friends or relatives has been waiting at the foot of Cortlandt street expecting to see Mrs. Balletti. Two days ago she came across the ferry, and as she stepped off the boat, Paul Balletti, a cousin of James, and who had been a witness to the marriage, served her with the papers in the suit.

KILLS HIMSELF IN A CROWD.

Well-Dressed Man Thought to Have Tried Suicide Before.

Before people waiting for a trolley car at Valley Road and Mount Pleasant avenue, in West Orange, last night at 8 o'clock a man of 50 years of age placed a revolver to his temple and shot himself. An hour later he died at the Orange Memorial Hospital.

It was evidently his second attempt at self-destruction, for the surgeons at the hospital found a mark on his left side where a bullet grazed the skin near the heart, leaving an ugly scratch, and the underclothing was scorched. Not a scrap of paper or a marked article of any kind told his identity. He was well dressed. He had only one eye.

All he had in his pocket was a $2 bill and 15 cents in change, left after he had paid for a cigar and two glasses of beer at a hotel near the tracks.

New Water Superintendent.

High Bridge, Feb. 10.—At the monthly meeting of the High Bridge Common Council Monday night a bureau of water was created, and Patrick H. Murray was appointed superintendent. His duties will be to inspect and ascertain every user of water in the borough, number of taps, amount of water used, amount of water tax paid, render all bills and make all collections, of which he will receive five per cent. He will be required to make monthly reports to the Common Council. The receipts last year balanced the disbursements. Council made the following appointments: Special marshals, Charles Smith and Rocas Zack; fire marshals, John D. Alpaugh and John Meade, of the Taylor Hose Company, and Rutherford Seals and Edward D. Trimmer, of the Liberty Hose Company.

"TRUSTIES" PUT ON TRAIL.

Taken for Fugitives They're After—Catch and Lose Runaways.

Clarence Brown and Benjamin Cohen, two "trusties" at Newark City Home at Verona, were detailed by Supt. Heller to recapture three other inmates of the home, who escaped from the institution on Monday. Brown and Cohen had an unpleasant experience. Hiding in ambush in Montclair, they were arrested by the police, who supposed they were the runaways for whom a general alarm had been sent out.

Upon establishing their identity, which involved some delay they were released. Then they went on to Newark, where they found the runaways in the street.

Some men in a crowd took the part of the captives and one of them struck young Brown in the face. This interference resulted in the fugitives again making their escape. Brown and Cohen returned to the city home late last night disgusted with the detective business.

GUILTY OF ILLEGAL VOTING.

Men Who Offer Bribes, Not Voters, Real Offenders.

First of the election fraud cases on trial at Paterson resulted yesterday in the conviction of Daniel Davidson and Abraham Merritt on indictments for voting and registering illegally.

Judge Scott remarked that the real offenders were more intelligent men who offered bribes to influence such men as those who had just been convicted. "They are the real debauchers of the ballot," the Court declared.

IMPOSING DINNER TO HONOR GEN. BREINTNALL

Trenton, Feb. 10.—The military dinner given Tuesday night in honor of Adjutant-General R. Heber Breintnall, retired, was one of the most imposing affairs ever held in this State. The affair was held in Hotel Windsor and long before the dinner the lobby of the hotel was fairly alive with uniformed officers.

To present to him an oil painting by Richard Blossom Farley a young Trenton artist, the officers of the guard thought it would be well to give Adjutant-General Breintnall a dinner. The requests for invitations grew so rapidly that the general committee had to throw open the doors and nearly 200 officers out of 387 in the whole guard, responded and were present Tuesday evening.

The enthusiasm at the dinner was so great that Adjutant-General Breintnall had to visit the tables to pay his personal respects to the diners, all of them being known to him. Whenever he approached a group, the members rose from their chairs and cheered. Many a time the old veteran's voice broke with emotion.

General Murray, as chairman of the general committee, announced that Major-General P. Farmer Waser would preside as toastmaster. Colonel Nelson Y. Dungan, commandant of the Second Regiment, made the presentation speech to General Breintnall.

General Campbell, in a speech, told how he viewed the Vredenburgh retirement act, the constitutionality of which he successfully contested in the courts. He gave as his reason for doing this that he first believed the Constitution was the bulwark of the liberties of the people, and second, that he wanted to throw around other officers who might follow him safeguards by successfully contesting the matter.

"If I have succeeded, and I believe I have, then I feel repaid for the trouble of the past eleven months," he concluded.

The committee in charge of the banquet was composed of Quartermaster-General C. Edward Murray, chairman, representing his own department; Colonel Thomas S. Chambers and Major Alexander P. Gray, Jr., representing the division staff; Adjutant-General Wilbur F. Sadler, Jr., representing the adjutant-general's office; Brigadier-General Dennis F. Collins, representing the Second Brigade; Major Alexander P. Gray, representing Colonel Edwin W. Hine, in command of the First Brigade; First Regiment, Major Arthur H. Mackie, representative; Second Regiment, Colonel George L. Forman; Third Regiment, Major Thomas D. Landon; Fourth Regiment, Lieutenant-Colonel Arthur L. Stelle; Fifth Regiment, Major William W. Salter.

P. B. A. WOULD FATTEN ITS PENSION FUND.

Trenton, Feb. 10.—That the P. B. A., better known as the Patrolmen's Benevolent Association, which has its clutches so strongly on the police department of Newark, intends, despite newspaper criticism of late, to continue its lobbying at Trenton for State legislation, was shown Monday night by the appearance here of Henry Weller, of Newark. Weller is a Newark patrolman, and head of the Newark branch of the order. He was on the job Monday night with a number of brother policemen from dicerent parts of the State.

Mr. Weller and his companions offered no police matters to the Legislature Monday night, but they were feeling out the lawmakers regarding a bill the P. B. A. is especially interested in. It has to do with a plan to compel Newark to pay into the Newark police pension fund four per cent. of the amount Newark expends annually in police salaries. In other words, if it costs Newark in the neighborhood of $800,000 a year for salaries to its patrolmen, Mr. Weller and his P. B. A. would have the city set aside four per cent. of this, or $32,000, for the police pension fund.

FINDS WIFE REMARRIED AND HIMSELF DIVORCED.

Kansas City, Mo., Feb. 10.—Returning to his old home in Kansas City, Kan., after an absence of five years, during which time he was supposed to be dead, Charles G. Vail Tuesday found that his wife had been appointed adminstratrix of his estate, sold the property and married again. She is now Mrs. Newell S. Wight, of Wolcott, Kan.

Fortunately, however, in order to be sure that she was not taking an illegal step, Mrs. Wight secured a court order granting her a decree of divorce before she remarried.

With his wife and four children Vail lived happily until June 5 1905. Then he was adjudged insane and sent to an asylum. He was released in a few months, returned to his family and then soon disappeared. On February 11, 1906, Mrs. Vail was appointed administratrix of his estate. Vail said upon his return that he had been living in Salina, Kan.

Vail paid his wife a visit when he learned she had remarried. He said he would make no attempt to get her to return to him.

Miss Anna Young, of this city, who has been spending several weeks with relatives at Lebanon, has returned to this city.

Corporation Notice.

Notice is hereby given that the following Ordinance has been introduced before the Common Council, read the second time and ordered engrossed preparatory to its third reading, and that it is the intention of the Council to adopt the same.

J. T. MacMURRAY,
City Clerk.

Plainfield, N. J., Feb. 2, 1910.

AN ORDINANCE

Providing for the Licensing and Regulating of Peddlers, Hawkers, Cartmen, and the Owners and Drivers of Vehicles used for hire; and Concerning Street Traffic Regulations.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. That the Mayor of said City is hereby authorized to grant licenses under his hand and the seal of the city to so many and to such persons as he shall think proper, of good moral character, and otherwise qualified according to the provisions of this ordinance, and to incorporated companies, to carry on, wholly or in part, within the limits of the city, the business of peddler, hawker or cartman, to drive or keep for use for hire a hack, omnibus, stage, truck, motor vehicle or other vehicle for the transportation of passengers, baggage or merchandise or for the purpose of soliciting custom or exposing for sale any wares or merchandise, according to the provisions of this ordinance; and the City Clerk shall keep a detailed record of all licenses so granted.

Sec. 2. That every application for any such license shall be in writing, signed by the applicant, stating his place of residence, and the purpose for which such license is asked. Every applicant for a peddler's or hawker's license shall specify whether he proposes to conduct his business with a horse and wagon or with a handcart or on foot without wheeled vehicle. Every applicant for driver's license shall endorse on his application the names of three reputable citizens to whom reference is made as to the character of the applicant. Every applicant for a license for a motor vehicle shall set forth in his application that his motor vehicle has seating capacity for at least four passengers, and that he has equipped his said motor vehicle with a taxameter of standard make affixed to the front axle of said motor vehicle and so constructed and adjusted as to indicate automatically on the dial of said taxameter the charges for distance in accordance with the charges fixed by this ordinance. Every applicant under this ordinance for a license of any kind shall definitely agree in his said application to conform to and abide by the regulations prescribed or to be prescribed hereafter by the Board of Police of the City of Plainfield with the approval of the Mayor, to regulate traffic upon the public streets and with respect to the standing and movement of vehicles at or near the several railroad stations and other places of public assemblage or crowded vehicular traffic.

Sec. 3. That no person or corporation shall pursue, or in any manner carry on, as owner or as agent for another, within the limts of said city, the business of peddler or hawker without being first licensed therefor, according to the provisions of this ordinance, under a penalty of ten dollars for each and every offense, provided that nothing herein contained shall prevent farmers and gardeners from selling the products of the farms owned or occupied by them, or milkmen from carrying on their business in said city without a license under this ordinance.

Sec. 4. That no person or corporation shall drive, keep or use for hire or wages, or cause to be driven, kept or used for hire or wages any cart, truck, hack, omnibus, stage, motor vehicle or other vehicle for the transportation of passengers, baggage or merchandise of any kind, wholly or in part within the limits of said city, without being first licensed therefor, according to the provisions of this ordinance, under penalty of ten dollars for each and every offense, (provided that none of the requirements contained in this section shall apply to owners or drivers of any livery stable vehicles, other than those vehicles kept by them for the use of passengers solicited at the railway stations or elsewhere within the city limits. One license and only one shall be required for each cart, truck, hack, omnibus, stage, motor vehicle or other vehicle, but for each driver other than the owner of such licensed cart, truck, hack, omnibus, stage, motor vehicle or other vehicle, a separate license shall be required.

Sec. 5. That each license granted under the provisions of this ordinance shall expire on the first day of March next following the granting of the same, and shall state the object for which it is given, the name of the person or corporation licensed, the number of the license, and the date of its expiration, and shall be signed by the Mayor and attested by the City Clerk and countersigned by the Chief of Police.

Sec. 6. That for licenses under this ordinance the fees to be paid shall be as follows:

For license as aforesaid:

(a) To the owner in case of a hack, omnibus or stage with one horse $5.00
(b) To the owner in case of a hack, omnibus or stage with two horses $7.50
(c) To the owner in case of an expressman with one horse and wagon $5.00
(d) To the owner in case of an expressman with two horses and wagon $7.50
(e) To the owner in case of a truckman with one horse and wagon $5.00
(f) To the owner in case of a truckman with two horses and wagon $7.50
(g) To the owner in case of a cartman with one horse and wagon $5.00
(h) To the owner in case of a cartman with two horses and wagon $7.50
(i) To the owner in case of a motor vehicle, as defined in Chapter 113 of the Laws of New Jersey for the year 1906 ..... $10.00
(j) To the driver in case of a separate driver's license additional to the owner's license..... $1.00
(k) To the owner in case of a peddler with one horse and wagon .$25.00
(l) To the owner in case of a peddler with hand-cart..... $20.00
(m) To the owner in case of a peddler on foot without wheeled vehicle $15.00

A duly licensed expressman, truckman or cartman may have one assistant for each licensed wagon. A duly licensed peddler with horse and wagon may have one assistant and only one.

In each instance the license fee shall be paid to the City Clerk prior to the issuing of the license, and shall be paid by the City Clerk to the City Treasurer for the use of the city. In addition to the fee for license herein-above specified, every person or corporation licensed shall prior to receiving his or its license pay to the City Clerk the City Clerk's fee of fifty cents for issuing the license.

Also in addition in each case $1.00 to be deposited with the Chief of Police for badge, said $1.00 to be returned on return of badge.

Sec. 7. That no person licensed under this ordinance nor any person in the employ of any person or corporation licensed under this ordinance, shall stand or remain upon any sidewalk or in any street or any other public place in this city, for the purpose of soliciting custom or selling or exposing for sale any wares or merchandise longer than ten minutes at any one time, if requested to move from any such place by any officer of the city, or by the owner or occupant of any premises in front of or opposite which any such person may then be as aforesaid; but upon such request to move, such person so requested shall move with the vehicle, goods, wares and merchandise in his charge to a point at least 250 feet distant from the point from which he may be requested to move before stopping for the purpose of soliciting custom; and at no time shall any person or corporation licensed under this ordinance, or any person in the employ of such licensed person or corporation, solicit custom in such way as to obstruct travel or cause annoyance or damage to any person, or solicit custom or proclaim merchandise for sale in a loud or boisterous manner; and at all times any person licensed under this ordinance, or any one in the employ of any person or corporation licensed under this ordinance, shall move from any point in any public place or street at which such person may be awaiting or soliciting custom or selling or exposing for sale any wares and merchandise, when requested so to do by any police officer of the city. And any and every person who or corporation which shall violate any of the provisions of this section shall, on conviction, be punished by a fine not exceeding twenty dollars. Provided, that nothing in this section shall be construed to prevent the licensed hackmen, expressmen or truckmen from standing with their vehicles on North Avenue for a longer time then ten minutes subject to the other provisions of this ordinance.

Sec. 8. That every person or corporation so licensed with respect to any hack, omnibus, stage, motor vehicle or other vehicle for the transportation of passengers must have a lamp on both sides of each vehicle which must be lighted from one hour after sunset to one hour before sunrise and shall as soon as licensed, cause the number of his or its license to be permanently and conspicuously placed or painted in figures, not less than one inch and a half in height, upon the outside of the lamps on both sides of each vehicle for which said license shall have been granted, and every person so licensed, and the driver of every such vehicle shall wear in a conspicuous place upon his person while engaged in the business for which the license shall have been granted, so as to be easily seen, a badge to be furnished by the city, with the corresponding number thereon, and shall also place and keep fastened within his vehicle in a conspicuous place to be designated by the Chief of Police, a card or plate to be furnished by the city, with the words, "Hack License," and the number of the license and the year for which it was issued, and also a card or plate to be furnished by the city specifying the rates of fare and other regulations.

Every expressman, truckman and cartman, as soon as he or it receives a license shall fasten permanently on each side of his or its wagon a plate to be furnished by the city with the words, "Licensed Expressman," "Licensed Truckman," or "Licensed Cartman," as the case may be, with the number of the license and the year and date for which issued, and every such license and every driver therefor shall also wear a badge, which will be furnished by the city, on which the number of the license is plainly displayed. All cartmen licensed for the collection of ashes and other waste material, shall provide themselves with wagons or carts to be approved by the Street Commissioner and shall sign an agreement to transport and dump and must transport and dump all such material in places designated or to be designated by the Street Commissioner. Any violation of any of the foregoing provisions of this section shall not only subject the party licensed and the driver to the penalty hereinafter provided, but for the second offense, to a revocation of the license.

Every peddler with horse and wagon shall as soon as licensed place on each side of his or its wagon a plate to be furnished by the city, giving the number of his or its license and the year for which licensed, and every such person, and every person acting on behalf of a corporation so licensed, shall wear on his person in a conspicuous place, a badge to be furnished by the city with the corresponding number. If the wagon or badge is loaned, hired, or allowed to be used by any other person than the person lawfully entitled, that shall constitute an offense under this section, and in addition to the penalty hereinafter provided, shall subject the owner to a revocation of the license.

Every person licensed as a peddler with hand-cart or on foot without wheeled vehicle, and every person acting on behalf of a corporation so licensed, shall wear on his person in a conspicuous place a badge, to be furnished by the city, with the number of the license, and if this badge is loaned or hired or allowed to be used by any other person than the person lawfully entitled to wear it, that shall constitute an offense under this section, and in addition to the penalty hereinafter provided, shall subject the owner to a revocation of the license. Every person or corporation violating any of the provisions of this section of the ordinance, shall, on conviction thereof, be punished by a fine not exceeding twenty dollars for each offense.

Sec. 9. That any license granted under this ordinance may be suspended or revoked by the Mayor or City Judge upon proof to the satisfaction of either that such licensed person, or in case of a corporation, any person acting on its behalf, has been guilty of fraud with respect to making charges against any passenger or passengers, or that the owner or driver of any motor vehicle has practiced fraud with respect to the recording by his taxameter of the distance traveled, or the charges for distance, or has violated any other city ordinance, or without justifiable cause has been disrespectful toward any passenger or toward any person seeking to become a passenger; provided that no license shall be so suspended or revoked without reasonable opportunity first afforded to the licensed person or corporation to be heard on his or its own behalf; and every person or corporation who or which shall during the suspension or after the revocation of his or its license, carry on the business for which such license was granted, shall, on conviction, be punished by a fine not exceeding twenty dollars for each offense.

Sec. 10. That any person or corporation licensed under this ordinance to use for hire or wages any hack, omnibus, stage, motor vehicle or other vehicle for the carriage of passengers, may charge therefor the following rates, but no more, that is to say:

(a) As to all vehicles except "motor vehicles" as defined in chaper 113 of the Laws of New Jersey for the year 1906, for the carriage of any passenger or passengers from any point within to any point within that part of the city included within the following boundaries, that is to say: beginning at a point where the northeasterly side line of Johnston Avenue produced would intersect Green Brook; thence along said line and the northeasterly side line of Johnston Avenue to North Avenue; thence in the same course in a direct line to the northwesterly side line of South Avenue; thence along said side line of South Avenue to the easterly side line of Woodland Avenue, produced; thence along said line and the easterly line Woodland Avenue to the southerly side line of Martine Avenue; thence along said side line of Martine Avenue to the easterly side line of Hillside Avenue; thence along said side line of Hillside Avenue to the southerly side line of Randolph Road; thence along said side line of Randolph Road to the southwesterly side line of Plainfield Avenue; thence in a straight line to the intersection of the southwesterly side line of Spooner Avenue with the southeasterly side line of West Eighth Street; thence along said side line of Eighth Street to the southwesterly side line of Grant Avenue; thence along said side line of Grant Avenue and the southwesterly side line of West End Avenue to the northwesterly city line in Green Brook; thence following the northwesterly city line to the intersection of said city line with the northeasterly side line of Johnston Avenue, produced, the point and place of beginning; twenty-five cents for one passenger carried and fifty cents for two or three passengers carried from the same point to the same destination at the same time and from any point within to any point without the aforesaid limits the further sum of twenty-five cents for one, two or three passengers, in addition to the sum above provided; provided, however, that after twelve o'clock at night until five o'clock in the morning, the charges may be double the said fares; and whenever any such hack, omnibus, stage or other vehicle shall be engaged by the hour the person licensed to use for hire or wages any such hack, omnibus, stage or other vehicle may charge one dollar for the first hour and seventy-five cents for each additional hour.

(b) As to all "motor vehicles" as defined in Chapter 113 of the Laws of New Jersey for the year 1906: For any number of passengers from one to four inclusive, for the first half mile or fraction thereof, thirty cents, for each quarter mile thereafter, ten cents; for each six minutes waiting, ten cents; and for ordering such motor vehicle within one mile and a half from any stand or station to the point ordered at which the passenger or passengers enter said motor vehicle, no charge shall be made; and for ordering such motor vehicle more than a mile and a half from any stand or station to the point at which the passenger or passengers enter said motor vehicle, a charge may be made at the rate of twenty cents for each mile or fraction thereof in excess of one mile and a half; provided that children under ten years of age shall not be counted as passengers if accompanied by older persons.

(c) That any person licensed under this ordinance as Expressman may charge for the delivery of each trunk, bag or other piece of baggage the following rates but no more, that is to say: from any point within to any point within the boundaries described in paragraph (a), twenty-five cents and from any point within to any point without said boundaries, fifty cents.

That every person or corporation licensed as aforesaid and the driver of every hack, omnibus, stage, motor vehicle or other vehicle for the carriage of passengers or baggage who shall demand for any service mentioned in this section more than the amount or rate fixed herein for such service shall, on conviction thereof, be punished by a fine not exceeding twenty dollars for the first offense, and by a fine not exceeding twenty dollars and a forfeiture of the license which may have been issued, for any offense subsequent to the first.

Sec. 11. That the first applicant to any person or corporation licensed to drive, keep or use for hire or wages any hack, omnibus, stage, motor vehicle or other vehicle for the transportation of passengers wholly or in part within the limits of the City of Plainfield, shall be entitled to the preference to any point that that said applicant may desire to reach within the city limits; and any refusal on the part of the driver or owner of such licensed vehicle to comply with the request shall render liable said owner or driver to a fine not exceeding twenty dollars for the first offense, and twenty dollars for a second offense, and twenty dollars and the revocation of the license for a third offense.

Sec. 12. No owner or driver of any hack, omnibus, stage, motor vehicle or other vehicle shall, for the purpose of securing custom, occupy with his vehicle any portion of the street in front of any railroad station or any place of public assemblage or entertainment in such a manner as to obstruct public travel. It shall not be lawful at or near the said railroad stations or at or near any place of public assemblage or entertainment for the owner or driver of or any person connected with any such vehicle, or any person acting for or in the interest of the owner or driver of any such vehicle, to proceed beyond the curb line for the purpose of soliciting or securing custom, and it shall not be lawful for any such aforesaid person to solicit custom in a noisy, persistent or offensive manner. Any person or corporation violating any of the provisions of this section shall, on conviction thereof, be punished by a fine not exceeding twenty dollars for each offense.

Sec. 13. The Board of Police of the City of Plainfield, with the approval of the Mayor, is hereby authorized to prescribe and promulgate from time to time reasonable regulations, not inconsistent herewith, with respect both to licensed and unlicensed vehicles, to regulate street traffic generally, and particularly to regulate the standing and movement of vehicles at or near the several railroad stations and other places of public assemblage or crowded vehicular traffic. It shall be the duty of all owners and drivers of vehicles to comply with such regulations, and any person who or corporation which shall fail to comply with any of such regulations shall be deemed guilty of violating this section, and, on conviction thereof, shall be subject to a fine not exceeding twenty dollars for each offense. The intention of the Common Council is that this section shall be deemed to be separable from the other sections of this ordinance, and not essential to the validity of said other sections.

Sec. 14. That if any section of this ordinance shall for any reason be held to be unconstitutional or invalid, it shall not affect the other provisions of this ordinance.

Sec. 15. That the Ordinance entitled "An Ordinance to provide for the licensing and regulation of peddlers, hawkers, cartmen, motor vehicle, hack, omnibus, stage and truck owners and drivers," approved March 14, 1882; and ordinances amendatory thereof and supplemental thereto; and the ordinance entitled "An Ordinance to regulate the standing of hacks, stages, etc.," approved December 16, 1874, and ordinances amendatory thereof and supplemental thereto; and all other ordinances and parts of ordinances inconsistent herewith, be and the same are hereby repealed, and all ordinances and parts of ordinances which were repealed or abrogated by any ordinance hereby repealed shall continue to be so repealed and shall be deemed abrogated.

FREDERICK R. TOOMBS.

From the great play of the same name by Joseph Medill Patterson and Harriet Ford. Copyright, 1909, by Joseph Medill Patterson and Harriet Ford.

"Judith, listen to me," he said inspiredly. "I'm not the man who loves you or is loved by you. I've no right to think of you or of myself. I'm an instrument to an end in the history of a great God. Can't you see this thing as I do?"

"I can't reason. I can't argue. I can only feel."

The judge had drawn a few steps away from the pair during the scene between them. He viewed with calculating satisfaction the battle that his daughter was waging so valiantly in his behalf, and he had felt that not even the young stoic Brand could resist this powerful and final appeal of the girl he loved. At his daughter's last outcry he drew near to the editor.

"Brand, are you human?" he demanded strongly, pointing to the prostrated girl with his walking stick.

"Human, human, Judge Bartelmy!" he exclaimed. "You are true to yourself to the end. You bring your daughter here so that by torturing me with the sight of her suffering you may escape the penalty of your thievery. I was willing she should think me heartless to spare her the greater pain of knowing you as you are. But now you bring her here in her innocence to repeat to me your lies. You're degrading her, dragging her down to your own level, just as you did her mother before her. If she lets you go on using her it will be with her eyes open."

Judith raised her head amazedly.

"What are you saying?" she asked.

Brand turned to her and then to the judge.

"Why, he's lied to you just as he's lied all his life. He told you he was trying to shield others. He lied. He never shielded any one but himself. Judge Bartelmy, the power of men like you must be destroyed. When justice is corrupted the nation rots. If I keep silent about you and your methods I become your accomplice; I betray my trust just as you have betrayed yours."

Bartelmy raised his hand deprecatingly. Brand, however, drew a deep breath and went resolutely on. He spoke to both the girl and the judge.

"Judith, if at the cost of my life I could spare you this grief I would do it gladly. But even that would do no good. You would always despise me for failing when my test came and always despise yourself for having caused me to fail. Can't you see you and I are nothing in all this? The individual does not exist, only the cause. Judge Bartelmy, that story goes to press," he cried, raising his eyes to meet those of Judith's father.

Bartelmy saw that he had played his last card. It was his highest trump, but it had failed to win. What Judith could not do he surely, under the existing circumstances, could not do. Nolan, the only man who could save him if he would, had gone, he knew not where.

And it was now press time. All was over. Bartelmy took a single step toward his daughter.

"Brand, that story is my obituary," he said in low tones.

"Oh, no," was the response in saddened voice. "Men like you don't finish that way. You'll have about six hours, judge, before that story is read by the public."

Judith, too, was ready to admit that her last and culminating effort had been in vain. Wearied and unstrung, she raised herself from the fatal form that was to besmirch the name and the father that had been her source of pride. She crossed over toward her father, who stood silent and despairingly in the shadow of one of the linotype machines.

"Goodby, Wheeler. I am going out of your life forever. I am sorry it had to end like this—all our plans, all our hopes"—

The thought of the happy moments that she had spent with Wheeler, building air castles for their future when they would be man and wife, came over her. It swept down the wall of reserve and determination with which she had deemed it necessary to surround herself. She halted and gazed steadfastly into her father's face. Slowly she raised her hands and pressed them against her cheeks as though horror stricken. Then she turned, rushed impulsively back to Wheeler Brand, and, bending tensely toward him, she searched his strong young face as best her tear dimmed eyes would let her. He returned her gape unflinchingly. Judge Bartelmy saw the girl's struggle to decide between the father who had dishonored her name and the lover who meant a life of happiness, purity, success and inspiration. He was wise enough in the ways of the world to know that again was Brand to prove a victor over him.

The girl stood immovable a moment. Then she extended her arm toward her lover. Judith Bartelmy had made her choice.

The judge's features showed but little of the storm into which his emotions had been plunged. His years of practiced self control had come to

ADVERTISE IN THE DAILY PRESS

"Six hours, did you say, Mr. Brand?" his aid and enabled him to face the ruin of his career and his life and his name without the frenzied demonstration in which most men in his position would have indulged. To the last he was the cool, polished, suave hypocrite that he had been in the beginning, when those who sought to loot the public for private gain found him a willing tool.

"He is right," Bartelmy said to Judith. "He has told you the truth tonight—the absolute truth." He looked at his watch. "Six hours, did you say, Mr. Brand?" he asked.

Brand had gathered Judith to his arms. She sighed contentedly as she laid her head upon his shoulder. "Yes," he answered the judge.

Judge Bartelmy stood watching the united couple for a moment before he turned and walked away, muttering as he went: "Six hours. One may travel far in these days in that time."

* * * * * * *

The great ship heaved and lunged through the giant seas that swept over her bows, out of the freezing night, out of the cold northeast. The captain and the first officer, lashed to opposite ends of the lofty bridge, choked in the flying spume of wind riven mid-ocean.

Somewhere a deep toned bell told of the hour in the sailors' accustomed fashion. From somewhere out of the depths of the vast groaning fabric tumbled the men of the watch who were now to go on duty to relieve their storm beaten fellows.

And somewhere down in the shivering, rearing hull a gaunt faced, hollow eyed man lay on the saffron hued velvet cushions of a narrow couch at the side of a luxurious stateroom. He was fully dressed in spite of the lateness of the hour and of the fact that he was sleeping—just as he had been the night before. He tossed uneasily. Sometimes he thrust his hands out convulsively as though to ward off a threatening danger. He began to talk incoherently. The ship rolled, and a tray containing dishes and an evening meal that had gone untouched crashed to the floor. "The press—the printing press—has started," he muttered, disjointedly as the sound of the breaking dishes penetrated into his wearied brain. His hand instinctively crept under one of the cushions. It grasped and for a moment fumbled with a blue steel object, which it drew weakly forth—a revolver. The shock of the cold steel roused the sleeper. He opened his eyes and gazed fascinatedly at the instrument of death. With a cry of terror he relaxed his fingers, and the object dropped to the floor. He groaned the groan of a lost soul in the anguish of its never ceasing torture. He turned his face to the wall and tried in vain to close his eyes in sleep.

Judgment had been pronounced in the case of "JUDGE BARTELMY VERSUS THE PEOPLE, WHEELER BRAND AND THE ADVANCE."

THE END.

A GENERAL ELECTRIC PLANT FOR ERIE, PA.

Erie, Pa., Feb. 10.—Because it considered Erie best in location, transportation facilities, labor conditions proximity to coal and iron supplies, and notwithstanding that there are over 260 factories already here, the General Electric Company clinched its decision to locate the largest branch here yesterday by letting contracts for the erection of four large plants on the 900 acres purchased east of this city. These new plants will bring 8,000 workmen to Erie.

ALLEN DARE DEAD.

Long Branch, Feb. 10—Allen Dare, for years an engineer of the Pennsylvania Railroad, died Monday from stomach trouble after a lingering illness. He was born at Madison, N. J., forty-nine years ago. Besides a widow, who was Miss Rebekah Field, of Middletown, he is survived by three brothers, Raymond S. Dare, of Irvington; Emory H. Dare and Walter E. Dare, of Maplewood, and two sisters, Mrs. Frank W. Chism and Miss Emily Dare, also of Maplewood.

Mr. Dare was a past high priest of Standard Chapter 35, R. A. M., a member of Long Branch Lodge, F. and A. M., and of Corson Commandery, Knights Templar, of Asbury Park.

The funeral services will be held at his late home in Long Branch tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock, and the interment will be made at Fairview cemetery, Red Bank.

PLAINFIELD DOGS WON

Local Kennels Awarded Blue Ribbons at the Madison Square Show.

GREATEST EXHIBITION YET.

Abram G. Hooley, W. de la Anderson and Edmund L. Mackenzie Show Their Canines.

Nearly all the blue canine blood in the United States was brought together at Madison Square Garden, yesterday, and will be during the next three days, while the Westminster Kennel Club annual bench show is on, and as usual, Plainfield dogs figured prominently in the prize-winning. Almost every dog who has his name in "Who's Who Among the Canines" could have been found among the two thousand barking dogs.

Abram G. Hooley's Meadowview Kennels turned out several prominent winners, the most notable being Champion Rockview, which swept everything in the English setters' champion class.

Messrs. Anderson's Boreas Kennels, showing Russian wolfhounds, made a great showing, although they were not as good as usual, owing to the fact that the best dogs are getting over the distemper. They were awarded a number of blues. Draco of Boreas, considered the best dog in the show, was beaten by Boris of Boreas, because the former was out of championship form. Lasky who, in Morristown, beat him, received a blue in the open class. Boreas Princess in the bitch class got second.

Edmund L. Mackenzie, of Midlothian Kennels, exhibited his famous Scottish deerhounds, which won winners' ribbons in both dog and bitch classes.

The Watchung Hunt Club, through Charles W. Fisk, exhibited its pack of hounds, individually. On Saturday the hounds will be shown as a pack. For English foxhounds Class 108, open dogs, Barker of the Hunt club won third, and in Class 107, open bitches, Cheerful of the same club, received first prize.

LISTMAN TO ORGANIZE Y.M.C.A. BALL LEAGUE

Physical Director George L. Listman, of the Y. M. C. A., was one of the chief factors at the meeting of the State Physical Directors Association at Newark yesterday. Mr. Listman was selected chairman of a committee to reorganize the New Jersey State Y. M. C. A. baseball league in which Plainfield won the championship two years ago.

In addition to be named as league organizer, Mr. Listman participated in a lively discussion on rules governing basketball contests.

The directors fixed March 12, and the place Paterson, for holding the State Y. M. C. A. athletic meet this year. There will be four events, standing and broad jumps, shooting, putting and a quarter-mile potato race.

The directors also decided to conduct the State Y. M. C. A. swimming championships in Newark during the latter part of April.

RUTGERS PREP. LOSES TO PLAINFIELD H. S.

The Plainfield High School basketball team triumphed over Rutgers Prep five in a fast game of basketball played at the local gymnasium, yesterday afternoon. The final score was 49 to 9. It afforded the P. H. S. an excellent opportunity to square accounts for its defeat in football last fall.

The visitors were all good athletes, but they failed to get the ball in the basket often enough to win out. The school boys put up one of its best games of the season, every player deserving credit. Morris and Doane divided honors, while Manley was excellent at guard. Lidgate, Overton and Elmendorf also played well, seconded by Searll.

When the game opened both teams played hard and five minutes elapsed before Morris made the first basket. Then the goals became plentiful and P. H. S. ran the score up at a rapid rate. Few fouls were called and it was altogether a remarkably clean contest.

All during the second half the teams worked hard, but Rutgers aggregation could not keep pace with the local five. The school boys got in some fine passing during the last five minutes. At the end of the first half the score was 26 to 4. The lineup:

P. H. S.—Forwards, Morris, Manley, Woodhull; centre, Lidgate, Morris; guards, Doane, Overton.

Goals from field—Morris, 9; Manely, 1; Lidgate, 5; Doane, 6; Overton, 2; Elmendorf, 2; Todd, 1. Goals from foul, Doane, 3; Elmendorf, 3. Referee, Collier; umpire, Clark. Time of halves, twenty minutes. Timer, Anderson.

BASKETBALL.

A fine basketball program will be presented at the Y. M. C. A. on Saturday night. The crack Harlem five of New York will be here to try conclusions with the locals; the "second team" will have for its opponents the N. P. H. S. quintet.

Three basketball contests in the Sunday School Athletic League will be decided tomorrow night. The schedule calls for games between Congregational and First Baptist; Scotch Plains and Grace P. E., and Trinity Reformed and First Presbyterian.

Results in the Boys' Basketball League were as follows: Pennsylvania, 5; Yale, 0; Princeton, 8; Carlisle, 2; Harvard, 4; Cornell, 0. It was Yale's first defeat in the series but the Elis lead the procession with nine victories and one defeat.

At Proctor's.

Sophie Everett & Co., are giving a "House Warming" at Proctor's theatre, today and the rest of the week. It is a sketch of the old-fashioned kind, filled with pure fun and a laugh every minute. The Tankas, clever Japanese jugglers, will appear in a marvelous act, while Warner & Lakewood will present a big novelty sketch, entitled "The Scarecrow and the Maid." The scene is laid in a cornfield. Myers and Myers, sisters, do a song and dance that is a winner from start to finish. The films d'art include a series on the life of Moses.

Lincoln's Birthday Exercises.

Exercises appropriate to Lincoln's birthday will be held in Washington School, Darrow avenue, tomorrow morning at 10:30 o'clock. The program will consist of music, recitations and an address by Rev. George A. Warner, rector of the Church of the Holy Cross. The public are invited to attend.

PYTHIANS PLAN A HOME

The Matter Will be Discussed at Grand Lodge Session Next Week.

300 DELEGATES ARE EXPECTED.

Result of Election for Officers—Competition Drill for Trophy to Be a Feature of Meeting.

One of the most important propositions to be considered at the annual session of the Grand Lodge of New Jersey, Knights of Pythias, in Trenton, Wednesday and Thursday, February 16 and 17, will be the dispensation of the money contributed to the Pythian charity fund of the order. The question of providing a home, somewhat on the order of the Masonic Home at Burlington and the Odd Fellows' Home in Trenton, by these two named secret organizations, is favored by many prominent and active members of the K. of P., and it is not improbable that a movement of this kind will find favor with the representatives.

The contributions to the fund are voluntary by the subordinate lodges, and many of the lodges are anxious to contribute a set sum yearly. Some disposition of the amount of money on hand will be made at the coming session, at any rate.

A feature of the session will be a competitive drill by the degree teams throughout the State for a trophy presented by rand Chancellor Henry A. Heinrichs, of Paterson. This contest will take place Wednesday evening, February 16, in Masonic Hall, Trenton, at the close of the day's session, and will be open to the lodges of the State. All members of the order are privileged to witness the contest.

It is expected that at least 300 delegates will attend the session, which is scheduled to open at 10 o'clock on Wednesday, February 16. Unity and Perseverance lodges, of this city, will be represented. The contest for grand outer guard will be decided on the floor of the convention the opening day. There are a number of candidates for this elective position.

The result of the election for grand officers by subordinate lodges resulted as follows: Grand chancellor, A. Lewis Drucker, Elizabeth; grand vice-chancellor, Harry C. Keeler, Newark; grand prelate, William D. Quick, Somerville; grand keeper of records and seals, Elmer E. Margerum, Trenton; grand master of exchequer, John Patrick, Rutherford; grand master-at-arms, Samuel A. Dobbins, Mt. Holly; grand inner guard, George H. Hill, Morristown.

ALLEGED WIFE SLAYER ON TRIAL FOR MURDER.

New Brunswick, Feb. 10.—John, alias Paul, Kohute was placed on trial before Justice James J. Bergen and a jury yesterday upon the charge of murder. It is alleged that he beat his wife to death at Fords with a clothespole. David D. Stults, of South Brunswick, was excused from serving as a juror because he was a grave-digger and was needed at the cemetery.

Prosecutor Booraem told the jury it would find the case a repulsive one, with hints of the unfaithfulness of the wife and al almost unbelievable brutality of the husband. It is alleged he beat her, threw her out of the house and again ejected her when friends brought her back. The pieces of the broken clothespole were in court. An axe is also said to have been used in the assault.

STOCK YARD BLAZE IN BOSTON COST $500,000.

Boston, Feb. 10.—Boston's beef supply was nearly "cornered" by a spectacular four-alarm fire, which destroyed aprpoximately half a million dollars' worth of property at the Brighton stock yards early yesterday. The fire is thought to have originated in the engine room of the New England Rendering Company's building, connected with the Brighton abattoir on North Market street. The blaze spread to the cattle shed of the Boston Packing Company within a few minutes and threatened for a time to wipe out the entire abattoir plant, which covers nearly twenty acres of ground.

By hard work the firemen succeeded in confining the flames to the building of the rendering company and the cattle shed.

NEW STATE TAX BOARD HEAD IS SEVERELY ILL.

Trenton, Feb. 10.—Frank B. Jess, of Camden, who was appointed president of the State Board of Equalization of Taxes by Governor Fort Tuesday to succeed Major Carl Lentz, of Essex, is severely ill at his home in Haddon Heights.

Mr. Jess' appointment, it is said here, gives general satisiaction in South Jersey, where he is very popular. He was elected Speaker of the Assembly on his second year in that body. As told, Mr. Jess is already a member of the board and will take his place at its head on April 13, when the Governor will name his successor.

JOHN NAGLE SETS AT REST

The Disputes as to Official Figures.

SAVE THIS FOR REFERENCE.

On Monday, February Seventh, the Official Figure Was One Degree Above Zero.

John Nagle, the local weather man, has submitted to this newspaper a record of the cold weather from 1893 to February 1910, and in order to settle disputes as to the actual temperatures suggests that those who are interested cut this out for future reference. The discussion as to the actual state of the thermometer on February 7, is therefore settled.

It has been said that more than one thermometer, especially on the outskirts of the city, showed the mercury hovering around four and five below zero on the morning in question, but as these instruments are not always accurate the official figures should decide the question.

The records for the past seventeen years in which zero or lower was recorded are as follows.

January	17, 1893	8 below
"	6, 1896	1 below
"	2, 1899	7 below
"	5, 1904	13 below
"	26, 1905	zero
"	24, 1907	1 below
"	31, 1908	zero
"	19, 1909	zero
"	1, 1910	1 below
February	6, 1895	5 below
"	17, 1895
"	17, 1896	4 below
"	4, 1898	3 below
"	10, 1899	9 below
"	18, 1903	3 below
"	16, 1904	zero
"	5, 1905	4 below
"	7, 1907	5 below
"	5, 1908	2 below

The official thermometer on February 7, showed the mercury 1 above zero. Mr. Nagle says February is the coldest month in the year.

BIG RAHWAY CONCERN RAISES ITS DIVIDEND.

New York, Feb. 10.—The stock of the International Smelting and Refining Company, it was said after the directors' meeting yesterday, has been placed on an eight per cent. basis by the declaration of a quarterly dividend of two per cent., as compared with one and one-half per cent. quarterly dividend previously paid.

The company, which has only $10,000,000 of its authorized $50,000,000 capital outstanding, was organized about a year ago by the Cole-Ryan United Metals interests, to compete with the American Smelting and Refining Company.

Its principal property at present is the lead-refining plant at Raritan, N. J., purchased from the United Metals Selling Company. A smelter now building in Utah will be in operation in the spring.

NATIONAL SUGAR REF'G PAYS GOVERNMENT $604,304.

New York, Feb. 10.—National Sugar Refining Company yesterday paid to the Federal Government $604,304.37, the amount which expert examination of its books showed was due the government on sugars imported by the company upon which duty was not paid. It was announced that the officials of the company disclaimed any responsibility for the frauds and have offered to co-operate with the government in finding out who engineered the fraud. It was stated by Deputy Attorney-General Denison that the settlement has been approved by the government and that it in no way precludes criminal prosecution of those who were responsible for the fraud.

CARPENTER FELL TO DEATH ON BOARDWALK.

Atlantic City, Feb. 10.—Women fainted on the board walk late Tuesday afternoon when Ira Sewell, a carpenter of Pleasantville tumbled from a scaffold of a new building at Kentucky avenue and was dashed to death on the plank deck of the promenade.

The man fell three stories and hit the walk with force enough to splinter heavy planks. He was dying when picked up, and never recovered consciousness, although rushed to the City Hospital.

New Judge Held County Berth.

Trenton, Feb. 10.—Huston Dixon, who was named by Governor Fort Tuesday as District Court judge of this city, to succeed George W. Macpherson, is the present county solicitor of Mercer. He is the son of the late Dr. John Dixon, graduate of Princeton, class of 1895, and was leader of the Republican majority on the floor of council for several years. Mr. Dixon married the only daughter of the late Benjamin F. and Mrs. Lee, who is the sister of Francis B. Lee.

Miss Agnes DeCamp, of Franklin avenue, who has been detained at home for several weeks with a severe attack of rheumatism, is able to be out again.

CRUELTY CASE THURSDAY

Formal Complaints to Be Entered Against Three Men Next Week.

AUTOPSY PERFORMED TODAY.

S. P. C. A. to Prosecute Case Through J. P. Taylor and R. Newton Crane.

The case of cruelty, the complaint for which has not yet been prepared against Herman Mintz, was postponed again this morning until next Thursday morning. William De Meza, who appeared for Mr. Mintz asked for a severance in the complaint so that three separate actions will be necessary and it may possibly happen that Mr. De Meza will demand a trial by jury for his clients, Mintz and Elmer Rice, the alleged driver of the cow, and who it was said, was seen to whip the animal while driving her through East Seventh street.

William R. Coddington, counsel for the S. P. C. A., was not able to attend to the society's interests in this case and J. P. W. Taylor, assisted by Robert Newton Crane will prosecute the matter.

All the witnesses were present this morning and Mrs. Van Hoesen, the society's special agent, but as the complaints in the action had not been prepared nothing could be done.

In connection with this case, the communication sent to The Daily Press and signed "another M. D.," and which was published in yesterday's issue, lacked the name of the M. D. If the doctor will send his address to this office it would be gladly received. Mrs. Van Hoesen would like to have as many witnesses of the affair as possible.

Drs. Butler and Carpenter, the veterinary surgeons are performing an autopsy this afternoon on the cow at Theodore Glazier's animal morgue to determine the exact cause of the animal's condition. It is said to be the defense of those who are charged with cruelty that the cow was suffering from tuberculosis and that they were not aware of the fact.

LINCOLN PARTY FOR THEIR SCHOOL FRIENDS

LeRoy Woodhull and Edson Woodhull, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd T. Woodhull, of West Front street, entertained a number of their school companions in the athletic association and sophomore class of the Plainfield High School at a "Lincoln party" at their home last night. There were fifteen in the party, including the hosts.

The spirit of the occasion was displayed in the patriotic decorations, arranged by Mrs. Woodhull. They consisted of the P. H. S. colors, red and blue, the sophomore class colors, red and white, and the national colors, red, white and blue, all of which were intermingled and above all was displayed a fine portrait of Lincoln. The various colors were also used in the table decorations.

During the evening there was vocal and instrumental music and the game of "500" was also enjoyed. Later all adjourned to the dining-room, where supper was served.

Those present were LeRoy and Edson Woodhull, Clyde Doane, Roy Titsworth, Russell Morris, Kenneth Runyon, Fred Allen, Frank Clark, Gardner Bristol, Harry Van Zandt, William Briggs, Fred Martin, Irving Martin, of this city; Jack Riffert, of Bound Brook, and Eugene Lidgate, of Fanwood.

C. E. Meeting and Social.

The monthly meeting and social of the Christian Endeavor Society of the Netherwood Reformed church, was held last night at the home of Mrs. Amos Andrews, North avenue. Miss Sadie Johnson was elected treasurer of the society. A social time followed the business session, during which there were piano duets by Mrs. Samuel Rush and Miss Maud Berry and piano solos by Miss Wood. Refreshments were also served. There were sixteen members present.

Civil Service Examination.

A civil service examination for letter carriers and clerks will be held at the local postoffice on Saturday, February 26. No application will be accepted unless properly executed and filed prior to the hour of closing business on February 21. Further information can be secured of W. B. Sharp, clerk at the postoffice.

MUNICIPAL PROBLEMS TO BE STUDIED BY THEM

As president of the Board of Trade, William Jeffery today sent the following letter to members of that body:

"It is my purpose to organize a class of members of the Board of Trade to meet Thursday evenings once a week to take up topics for discussion, especially those which concern the welfare of the city of Plainfield, the borough of North Plainfield, and adjacent territory. The plan will be to invite men who are well up in the various subjects to come and lecture to us and to make every effort to improve ourselves.

"There will be no expense, no smoking; we will meet at 8 o'clock and get through at ten. If then, this appeals to you and you desire to become one of the class, will you kindly sign and return the enclosed slip and meet with us on Thursday evening, February 17, at 171 East Front street, top floor. Secretary Herr has been kind enough to offer us the use of his class room free of charge."

SUNDAY SCHOOL AFFAIR AT FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH

The Sunday-school of the First Baptist church held a novel social and entertainment, last night, which was largely attended by members and friends of the school. The price of admission was an orange and in this way nearly a barrel of the fruit was received to be distributed today among the charities of the city.

The first part of the evening was devoted to an interesting entertainment, entitled "What Doheeny Done," being extracts of the story of that name appearing in Everybody's Magazine, portrayed in shadowgraph. The arrangement was by Miss Pauline Denton, who took entire charge, and read the story. The various characters were taken by the following: "Doheeny," Howard Armstrong; "Mulcahy," Russell Bird; "Hennessey," Gideon Fountain; "Hippo," the hypnotist, Robin C. Brown; "The Girl," Miss Evelyn Hillman.

A social then followed during which refreshments consisting of crullers, cheese and coffee were served. The affair was in charge of Mrs. Harold Serrell, Mrs. Frank W. Jones, Mrs. Lewis Matlack, Mrs. F. H. Thompson, Mrs. Walter C. Dobbins, Mrs. John G. MacLaughlin, while they were assisted by other officers and teachers of the Sunday-school. An enjoyable part of the entertainment was the piano solos by Miss Ethel King and Miss Evelyn Hillman, and they were obliged to respond to encores.

HARD LUCK HAS JUSTICE ROGERS IN ITS CLUTCH

Hard luck is still following Justice Clark T. Rogers, of New Market. Yesterday afternoon he closed up his office and went home. With him he took a basket of groceries and the day's receipts of the mill which consisted of $85 and several checks.

After arriving at home Mr. Rogers went to the barn and during his absence a person entered the house and stole the $85 which was in bills. "Judge" Rogers is now looking for the fellow.

Mr. Rogers has been the victim of several robberies of recent date. About two months ago he was "touched" for $100 while coming from Dunellen to this city on a trolley car.

Boys' Y. M. C. A. Banquet.

Rae D. Boice, Schuyler G. Line and Roy Love were appointed a nominating committee to submit a ballot on the night of February 18, when they will meet for a banquet and a formal organization. This class is a new one in the Y. M. C. A. and the attendance since it has been started has warranted a more definite organization and make it a more permanent class.

Physicians Meet.

The Plainfield Clinical Society met at the Park Club last night. Dr. J. Stanley Woolley read an interesting paper on "Some Clinical Facts of Diagonis."

Death of a Child.

Michael, the five-months-old son of Mr. and Mrs. R. Nargi, of 612 West Third street, yesterday. The funeral service will be conducted tomorrow.

FOR EXCISE AMENDMENT

Mravlag to Present Draft of Referendum Bill for Sunday Selling.

TO MAYORS ASSOCIATION.

Committee Meeting on Friday to Consider Matter—Charles J. Fisk is Chairman—The Suggestions.

Mayor Charles J. Fisk, chairman of the legislation committee appointed at the conference of New Jersey Mayors held at Trenton last Friday, has called a meeting of the committee to be held in the State House, Tuesday, when a number of propositions referred to it by the conference will be taken up for discussion with a view to framing a report to be presented to all the municipal chief executives when they gather at Trenton Friday.

The subject in which the greatest interest centres with reference to the work of the committee is the form of recommendations to be made for amendments to the present excise laws. Mayor Mravlag, who introduced the resolution declaring the necessity of amending the excise laws and delegating the power to the committee of proposing suitable amendments, is already at work upon a draft containing his ideas of the situation.

As he stated in his remarks to the Mayors' conference, Mr. Mravlag believes there should be a more liberal law dealing with the sale of liquor on Sunday, and following out this line of thought he will submit to the committee suggestions proposing to give power to governing bodies of cities and towns to determine, upon a three-fourts vote, what hours saloons will be allowed to keep open on Sundays. He would also compel all saloon-keepers during the hours their places of business are open on Sunday to have the entire bar room exposed to view from the street.

RUMMAGE SALE FOR LOCAL CHARITY WORK

Under the auspices of the Charity Organized Aid, a rummage sale is held every Friday afternoon at the rooms, 544 West Front street. Here shirtwaists sell for ten cents, shoes for ten and fifteen cents, dress skirts go at twenty cents and underclothes for five cents. There are also good overcoats to be had for a half dollar and hat bargains that will please the feminine heart.

Thrifty women of all nationalities, who know how to "make over" and clean and patch, take advantage of these sales. Their children go to school neatly and warmly dressed and their husbands are surprised. If you believe in helping along this work of helping others to help themselves, telephone 103 to send for those out-grown overcoats in your attic; those shirtwaists that you never wear. The committee at present is greatly in need of all kinds of cast-off clothing to meet the demands of the throngs that gather weekly at the aid rooms.

THE WEATHER.

Snow, probably heavy, tonight and Saturday; warmer tonight; northeast winds increasing to high.

Maximum, 36; minimum, 15.

William N. Tier Surprised.

William N. Tier, of Bank place, was given a surprise party at his home, last night, by about twenty of his friends. The evening was spent playing euchre, and first and second honors went to Miss Ida Tier and Miss May VanFleet, while Elmer E. Ripley and John M. Lewin received first and second honors for the men. Refreshments were served after the play.

Rev. John Y. Broek Officiates.

Rev. John Y. Broek, pastor of Trinity Reformed church, went to Caldwell, Essex county, Wednesday afternoon, to officiate at the funeral of Miss Adelaide Buckmaster, a former member of the Grand Avenue Reformed church, Asbury Park, who died at Caldwell while on a visit there. The burial was at Newburgh, N. Y., yesterday morning.

Banquet Tickets on Sale.

Tickets for Willie Keeler's banquet which will be held at Iroquois Hotel on Monday night, February 21, were put on sale today at Schreiner's pharmacy and by members of the committee. The number of seats is limited to sixty.

To Lecture on "Astronomy."

Professor Mitchell, of Columbia University, will deliver an illustrated lecture in the First Presbyterian church, tonight, the subject of which will be "Astronomy." He will also talk about the Halley comet.

LECTURE AT MT. ST. MARY'S

Miss Carey's Graphic Description of the People of Finland Heard.

FINN SUPERIOR TO RUSSIAN.

Praise Given to Finnish Diet for Educating the Poorer Classes—Now All May Learn.

There are comparatively few people who include a visit to Finland in a trip to Europe from this country, and a great deal of the information given by Miss Brenton Carey yesterday in her exceedingly interesting lecture on Finland at Mount St. Mary's College, must have been received with surprise by the majority of those who had the opportunity of hearing her. In describing some of her impressions as an experienced traveler in Finland the lecturer emphasized the striking superiority of the Finnish peasant over his Russian brother across the border.

She paid a high tribute to the upright character of the Finns generally, regretting that their many sterling qualities were concealed from the casual tourist under manners that are not calculated to assist those of his countrymen who are endeavoring at the present time to make the grand duchy of Finland a popular resort with holiday travelers. In speaking of the educational and philanthropic institutions in this northern corner of European Russia, Miss Brenton Carey pointed out how great was the progress that had been made in recent years in the social and intellectual development of the people under the enlightened rule of the Finnish administration, and how striking is the contrast in these as well as in many other respects with the present day condition of things in Russia generally.

The lecturer spoke in high praise of the work that had been accomplished by the Finnish Diet, the national parliament, in the educating of the poorer classes. Education which formerly was within the reach of the very few is now a possibility for everyone, even for those living in the more remote rural districts. The country is gradually being covered with a network of schools of every description and further, farmers and peasants, cultivators of the soil, are being encouraged to obtain the latest scientific knowledge at the various agricultural institutions, requisite to the carrying out of their farming operations in the most up-to-date intelligent manner.

The people of Finland are further making strenuous efforts to put down the sale of intoxicating drinks in their country, and in this direction especially, the Diet has done much to assist them by the passing of bills restricting the sale of alcohol, and also by giving its hearty support and co-operation to every private organization which has for its object the stamping out of the evils of drunkeness in the country. The lecturer pointed out that whilst Finland forms a part of the great Empire of Russia, the Finish people are not directly under the government of the Czar. Nichols II. is not the emperor but the grand duke of Finland, and the Finnish people are subject to the laws of the constitution given to them by the Swedish government in 1782. Alexander I., the Russian emperor, in annexing the Swedish province of Finland in 1809 in accordance with the terms of the treaty of Friederikshamm, swore to faithfully uphold the fundamental laws of the country.

With this knowledge it is possible to understand that the prison system of Finland should be separate and should differ so entirely from that of Russia. The lecturer related several interesting incidents in connection with her visits to some of the State prisons in Finland and she spoke with enthusiasm of the idealistic aims of the Finnish prison authorities who endeavor rather to reform the wrongdoer than to simply mete out the just punishment for the crime, and that in the choice of prison governors, chaplains, wardens and other officials the greatest care and discrimination are shown in the selection of those men and women who are to be entrusted with the spiritual and temporal control of thier fellowmen.

When a new penal code based on the Italian system was introduced in Finland a few years ago, a prison commission was sent out to study the prison systems of Europe. It also paid a visit to this country and many of the ideas borrowed at that time from foreign states have since been put to practical use in the new prison buildings in Finland, and today many of these prisons are models of what such places should be.

In concluding a highly interesting lecture, Miss Brenton Carey spoke

SPEAKERS FOR BANQUET

McAdoo, Wakelee and Sullivan Consent to Respond to the Toasts.

AT TRADE BOARD DINNER.

C. J. Fisk to Be Toastmaster at Affair to Be Held at Truell Hall on Thursday, March 3.

William G. McAdoo, promoter of the Hudson tunnels; State Senator Edmund Wakelee, of Bergen county, and Assemblyman Mark A. Sullivan, of Hudson county, will be the speakers at the annual banquet of the Board of Trade to be held at Truell Hall, on Thursday night, March 3. The banquet committee from the board, of which Edmund Rushmore is the chairman, completed the arrangements yesterday for the speakers, and the list is considered a strong one, representing both branches of the Legislature, and in addition a man who has achieved fame in the industrial world.

The tickets for the banquet will be out in a day or two and the committee will now go ahead and arrange the other details. The price of the ticket this year will be $5 and the committee assures the public that nothing will be left undone in making the affair a success. Mayor Charles Joel Fisk has accepted an invitation to be the toastmaster on that occasion.

In addition to the large number of Plainfielders who are expected to be guests, prominent men from all parts of the county have signified their intention of being present.

LOCAL OPTION LEAGUE TO HOLD MASS MEETING

The Anti-Saloon League's local option bill was intoduced into both Houses of the Legislature last Monday evening, and they are beginning the campaign in earnest throughout the State to try to push the measure to passage. Among the three or four weeks of meetings by former Governor Glenn, of North Carolina, Judge William A. Covington, of Georgia, and other prominent temperance leaders of the country throughout the State, is to be one in the First Baptist church Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock, to be addressed by Judge Covington.

Judge Covington is considered by many temperance people of the country as the leading orator for the cause between the Oceans. He attracted great attention on Jan. 19 in Richmond, Va., where he addressed a large anti-saloon gathering. He spoke an hour and a half, and then the audience shouted and asked for more. The judge went on for three-quarters of an hour longer, and then retired amid a great ovation by the audience.

Judge Covington is also a leader of nation wide reputation in the anti-child labor law crusade. In his State he pushed such a measure to passage by his eloquence and leadership in the Legislature.

It is a part of the Anti-Saloon League's program to have the ministers of the State observe Sunday, February 20, as a day of concerted discussion on the local option bill, and it is reported from the office of the League, in Newark, that the pulpits of the entire State will be almost be a unit in observing this day, according to reports received from the pastors at the League office. With these big men from other States stumping New Jersey, and their other extensive and thorough plans, the local optionists say they expect to hold the center of the stage during the coming three or four months.

Galluppo Fined $50.

G. Galluppo, of Watchung, who was arrested on December 18, for an alleged insult to Mrs. William Cannon of the same place, and who pleaded non-vult in the Somerset county court last week, was fined $50 by Judge Schenck this morning. Galluppo was also extended the privilege of paying the fifty at the rate of one dollar a week. Francis J. Blatz, Esq., was Galluppo's counsel.

Josephine Schafer Married.

Letters received by friends of Miss Josephine Schaefer in this city announce the marriage of the operatic star in Milan, Italy, last month. Miss Schaefer's engagement was announced exclusively in The Daily Press last November.

STORES OPEN TOMORROW; BANKS AND P.O. CLOSED

Tomorrow, Lincoln's Birthday. The Daily Press will be issued as usual. The banks will all be closed and the postoffice will be closed after 10 o'clock. All the stores will be open for business as usual. In the evening Mrs. Minnie Maddern Fiske will present "Salvation Nell" at the Plainfield theatre, and at the Y. M. C. A. in the morning all boys over twelve years of age in the city may listen to a talk by Captain Herbert B. Saunders, of Scotch Plains, the organizer of the "Morning Watch" among the boys' clubs of the country.

The exercises held in the public schools this morning were of a patriotic order and consisted of singing, recitations and speeches. At the High School Rev. Edwin Shaw, pastor of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, talked to the pupils on "Knowing a Good Thing When You See It."

Mr. Shaw's discourse took on the form of a eulogy of the life of the martyr president and held him up as a pattern from which to tell a good man when you meet him.

SHE WAS ANXIOUS TO SEE MRS. FISKE

When Manager H. S. Sanderson, of the Plainfield theatre was enjoying his sleep at his palatial home in Cranford this morning about 6 o'clock, he was aroused by the ringing of his telephone bell. It was a woman's voice at the other end and the information was requested whether it was too late to buy tickets for Mrs. Fiske in "Salvation Nell" tonight. Mr. Sanderson is a gentleman; he does not swear.

"Some one of these days," said Mr. Sanderson with his usual smile in telling the story, "I'm going to ring her husband up at 3 o'clock in the morning and ask him to send me around a pound of butter in the morning."

There is a multitude of reasons why all who appreciate the best in dramatic art should not fail to see "Salvation Nell" in which Mrs. Fiske will appear at Plainfield theatre tomorrow night. The advent of Mrs. Fiske is an event far out of the ordinary in theatredom. This fact is enhanced if anything in her present play, for Nell Sanders is one of the most appealing and congenial parts which the genius of Mrs. Fiske has ever illuminated. In addition, the famous Manhattan company, Mrs. Fiske's supporting organization, has never been better than in this colossal drama of the slums; the stage settings mark the last word in the development of modern stage craft, and the story unfolded in the play is one of the grandest love stories the stage has ever projected.

TICKETS ARE OUT FOR BOY'S HOLIDAY FESTIVAL

The anniversary celebration of the birth of Abraham Lincoln in the Boys' Department of the local Y. M. C. A. is planned for all the boys of the city who are twelve years of age or over. The admission to the hall is by ticket only. The doors will be opened a little before 9 o'clock and any boy who wants a ticket can secure them free at the association office or from the following boys from the different schools.

Gerald Thickstun, Whittier School; Alfred Smalley, Franklin School; David Berse, Washington School; Daniel Kiley, Bryant School; John Causebrook, Lincoln School; Dan McNamee, Stillman School; Gilbert Lewis, Somerset School; Benjamin Cole, Dunellen; Frank Alliger and Monroe Goodman, of Westfield. Captain Saunders will speak. A gymnasium exhibition and basketball game will be given in the gym after the exercises.

Will Address Dutch Arms.

James E. Martine will be one of the speakers at a meeting of the Dutch Arms, men's association, at Trinity Reformed church, Friday night, February 18. He will speak on municipal ownership, State control and conservation of government resources. He will not speak at the association's banquet on March 18, as stated yesterday.

J. Frank Burke at Trinity.

J. Frank Burke, superintendent of the New Jersey Anti-Saloon League, will occupy the pulpit at Trinity Reformed church, Sunday morning.

—Saturday a. m. M. C. Van Arsdale will start up his February clearance sale of shoes. 127 East Front street. ***

CHAS. L. NICHOLS RESIGNS

A Seat in Borough Council Made Vacant Because of His Illness.

GOES WEST FOR HIS HEALTH.

Action to Be Taken at Adjourned Meeting of North Plainfield Fathers Friday Night.

Charles L. Nichols has tendered his resignation as a member of the North Plainfield Council after years of highly valued service. His action is due to the fact that his physician ordered him to give up all business cares. Accordingly he has gone to California for an indefinite stay.

Before his departure on Wednesday, Mr. Nichols sent his resignation to Mayor Newton B. Smalley. It follows:

"Inasmuch as I am leaving the borough for an indefinite period, I think it would be greatly to the benefit and interest of the Council to have a successor to my seat elected to fill my unexpired term. I beg, therefore, to hand you this my resignation as a councilman of North Plainfield to take effect at once.

"Thanking you, Mr. Mayor, and all the gentlemen of the Council for all the courtesies extended and regretting the necessity of my leaving you, I am, sincerely and respectfully yours, C. L. Nichols."

Mayor Smalley declined to discuss the matter today when asked for a confirmation of the resignation beyond saying that Mr. Nichols had resigned. He said it was too early to discuss candidates for the vacancy and that that matter would be solely in the hands of the Council. Formal action will be taken at the adjourned meeting next Friday night when resolution thanking Mr. Nichols for his services and regretting his resignation.

Mr. Nichols is a Standard Oil man and is a vestryman of Holy Cross church. His services to the borough have been in many capacities, but his work in the Council has attracted the greatest attention and commendation.

DR. J. HERVEY BUCHANAN AT HEAVENLY REST CLUB

The Men's Club of the Church of the Heavenly Rest was entertained by Dr. J. Hervey Buchanan in the parish house last night and the largest gathering of members in the history of the club was on hand to listen to the doctor's discourse and the strains of the orchestra of which he is the master mind.

Dr. Buchanan spoke for half an hour on the subject of "Antitoxin" as used in the cure of diphtheria and explained the way the remedy works. The toxic poison of the disease after getting its seat in the throat works downward and the antitoxin works upward, thus when the two elements meet in the human system the disease is killed because of the superior strength of the remedy. The lecture was listened to with consuming interest and when Dr. Buchanan declared that the Plainfield Board of Health was the equal of any board in the country he was greeted with applause.

The music of the "Bunch" also was highly appreciated and applauded to the limit. Three new members were added to the roll last night, bringing the total membership up to 103.

REV. C. L. GOODRICH CHOSEN HEAD OF MINISTERS' ASSO.

Officers were elected at the meeting of the Plainfield Ministers' Association, held at Trinity Reformed church yesterday afternoon, and it was announced that at the April meeting, Rev. Dr. Charles E. Herring, of the First Presbyterian church, will be a travel talk.

These officers were chosen for the coming year: President, Rev. Chas. L. Goodrich; vice-president, Rev. Dr. Charles E. Herring; secretary-treasurer, John Y. Broek.

Mrs. Margaret Boyd.

Mrs. Margaret Boyd, of 21 Somerset street, died yesterday afternoon after a brief illness. She is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Mary Hoffman. The funeral service will be held Wednesday morning at 8:45 o'clock at St. Mary's church. Interment will be made at Calvary cemetery, New York.

Dance at the P. H. S.

The P. H. S. Seniors and Juniors will hold a dance in the High School tomorrow night. The feature of the evening will be a "feed" as the boys call it and what is known as the valentine idea will be carried out.

A GREAT SUIT AT $17.50

Women's New Spring Model Lined With Skinner Satin

We know a New York house that does not charge for alterations but asks you $21.00 for this same suit, buys it from the same tailor as ours, but it seems cheaper when you pay $21.00 and get the alterations for nothing. We said the same suit, we forgot to say the $21.00 suit did not have Skinner lining, ours has. You might pay us $2.00 for fitting, $2.00 from $21.00 leaves $19.00, buying from us you are $1.50 to the good and get a better lining, then, too, we guarantee the fit, when they do not charge you cannot be so particular. Made of a splendid quality serge in all colors, 34 in. coat, lined with Skinner's satin; perfect hanging skirt 17.50

New Spring Walking Skirts

Of excellent quality fine panama, two handsomely tailored stylish models, in the new pleated front and back or tunic or overskirt effect; with graduated pleats from knee to hip, skirts that are dressy, perfect fitting and smartly tailored . 6.50

Girls' Stylish Wash Dresses

It is simply marvelous, despite the high price of cotton fabrics how much value can be put into a dress for so little cost. WESTFIELD.

Miss Ethel Boyd Wilson and August Porst were married at the Methodist parsonage Wednesday morning by Rev. A. W. Hayes. The young couple were accompanied by a party of friends who witnessed the ceremony. Both are residents of Westfield and after a short wedding trip will make their home in Westfield

The question of a shade tree commission is to be taken up by Westfield Council and it is probable that a separate commission to care for the shade trees of the streets will be created. At present the care of shade trees is in the hands of the Park Commission.

Westfield Board of Education has given the Board of Trade permission to hold the meeting of February 17 in the auditorium of the Washington School. This meeting is one called by the Board of Trade for a general public discussion of the high tax situation.

The Garwood Athletic Association is preparing to put a strong baseball team in the field the coming season, and is already hunting available players.

Leslie Trevennen has been appointed organist at the Baptist church in place of Miss Decker, resigned.

A reception was given Rev. Gorden M. Russell at the Garwood chapel last evening.

SOMERVILLE.

Nine men and one woman took the examination for census enumerators at the courthouse this week. The examination was conducted by William D. Bauer, local secretary of the United States Civil Service Commission. The result will not be known for some time.

O. J. Brown sold his fifty-acre farm at Harlington to R. J. Franklin, of Brooklyn, who intends erecting a handsome summer home and making extensive improvements, including a trout pond.

Mrs. Abram Van Fleet, who has been very ill at her home on West Cliff street with meningitis, is so far improved as to sit up an hour.

A dance will take place on the evening of Lincoln's Birthday at the Military Academy near Somerville.

Charles W. Brokaw is confined to his home in East Somerville with a severe attack of appendicitis.

N. O. Dunster started yesterday morning for Michigan. He expects to be away about two weeks.

Miss Susan S. Anderson has returned from Morristown, where she spent a week with relatives.

Mrs. W. W. Anderson is a guest of her daughter, Mrs. William Wyckoff, at Harlingen.

RARITAN.

One-half of the new filtering plant was started up on the Duke estate a few days ago. The other half is expected to be ready by tomorrow.

All the teams in Raritan not steadily employed are carting sand for the Duke estate to be used for ornamental purposes.

The rummage sale for the benefit of the Fourth Reformed German church, which closed on Tuesday, netted $165.

The women of the Methodist church will hold an Aunt Dinah's quilting party in the chapel on Tuesday evening.

Thomas Hickey, of Lehigh University, has been spending part of this week with his mother, Mrs. Hicke, in Raritan.

Miss Elvira Hehn, of Passaic, has been spending this week with her grandmother, Mrs. Philip Conners.

John Sarpe has arranged to hold a series of dances in St. Rocco's Hall each Thursday evening.

Peter Myers, of New York, is visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward A. Myers.

TRENTON CHURCHES WILL FIGHT LEAVITT BILL.

Trenton, Feb. 11.—Official action opposing Senate bill No. 31, which Senator Leavitt has introduced in the Legislature, and which amends the law concerning the government of Presbyterian churches in such a way that it is claimed the statute and the Presbyterian form of government will conflict, was taken Wednesday evening at a meeting attended by pastors, elders and trustees, representing six of the nine Presbyterian churches in this city. Every church in the city, with the exception of Bethany, of which Senator Leavitt is a communicant, and the Fifth, was represented. The Walnut Avenue church did not send any delegates, but a report from that congregation was filed with the meeting.

The move against the bill is in the nature of a set of resolutions, which were presented by Rev. Dr. Hugh B. MacCauley, pastor of the Fourth Presbyterian church, and which were adopted without a dissenting vote.

Senator Leavitt was informed by Dr. MacCauley last evening of the meeting's action. A committee was named to wait upon the Senator and formally present the resolutions adopted.

Communications from Presbyterian churches in Newark, Hackensack and Salem, asking to join the protest movement in this city, were received and read.

CLOSE EVERY EVENING EXCEPT SATURDAY AT 5:30.

BAMBERGER'S

"THE ALWAYS BUSY STORE"

MARKET, HALSEY & BANK STS.

COURTESY.

How much does courtesy cost?

Nothing—it's the cheapest thing a storekeeper has to offer AND IT IS THE SCARCEST.

Supposing there were two stores or three stores or a DOZEN stores situated at about the same distance from your home, all selling about the same grade of merchandise at about the same margin of profit. If the salespeople in ONE of these stores were more obliging and attentive than the rest, WOULDN'T YOU GO TO THAT STORE TO TRADE?

Of course you would, and what is more, you'd go out of your way to do it.

Now for us to claim that we have cornered the market on obliging salespeople would be as ridiculous as it is untrue. There are lots and lots of pleasant people in other stores, but we believe that you will find MORE of them here than in any other store in the whole Metropolitan District.

We go upon the theory that the average person, if SATISFIED, is apt to be pleasant, and when new salespeople enter our employ the first thing we do is to make them feel that they have SOMETHING TO WORK FOR and that OUR success is also THEIR success. In this way we encourage loyalty, and LOYAL salespeople SIMPLY CAN'T HELP BEING COURTEOUS.

It has been said, and truthfully, too, that every package we send out contains JUST AS MUCH GOOD WILL AS IT DOES GOOD VALUE.

We shall probably have something to say about BRAINS before long.

LANCASTER, PA., BLAZE CAUSES $400,000 LOSS.

Lancaster, Pa., Feb. 11.—A fire which threatened the business centre of Lancaster yesterday caused damage estimated at $400,000. It started with an explosion, presumably of gunpowder, in the hardware store of Reilly Bros. & Raub. This establishment was destroyed, as were also the stores of Henry Gerhart, merchant tailor; W. W. Appel, jeweler; Catherine Myers, millinery, and the lodgerooms of George H. Thomas Post No. 84, and Admiral Reynolds Post No. 205, G. A. R.; the Red Men, Odd Fellows and Knights of the Golden Eagle.

Several employes of the hardware store were injured by the explosion, but none seriously.

The buildings destroyed were owned by A. C. Kepler, and his loss is estimated at $200,000. Last September the warehouse of Reilly Bros. & Raub was burned, and was just rebuilt. Their loss on stock is placed at about $125,000. The other losers by the fire are unable to give an estimate of their losses.

The Grand Army loses a very fine collection of war relics, comprising those of the Revolution, War of 1812, and the Rebellion, and including some historic battle flags.

BERGEN'S ASSISTANT PROSECUTOR QUITS.

Hackensack, Feb. 11.—The resignation of John S. Mackay as assistant prosecutor of Bergen County, was tendered to Prosecutor Wendell J. Wright yesterday. After mentioning the fact that he had served five years as assistant prosecutor under the late Ernest Koester; that he had been acting prosecutor six months during his illness, and had served six months under Mr. Wright's administration, he continues:

"I beg leave to tender my resignation and ask that it be acted upon at once. I have tried to fulfill my duty during the term of office and therefore conclude that if my services were desired in the future I need not ask for re-appointment. Not having been asked and having positive information that others have been asked, I beg to respectfully resign.

Prosecutor Wright was busy with the grand jury, and could not be questioned as to the course he would take.

It is understood that the new assistant prosecutor will be John B. Zabriskie.

SAVAGE TO DIE IN WEEK OF MARCH 21.

Jersey City, Feb. 11.—Convicted of murdering a colored woman of whom he was jealous, Edward Savage, a negro, was yesterday sentenced by Judge Blair to die during the week beginning March 21. He was sentenced after Judge Blair had denied a motion of Savage's counsel for an arrest of judgment.

Herbert Davis, counsel for Savage, held that he had not had time between the finding of the verdict and the imposition of sentence to prepare a motion for a new trial. Judge Blair did not take this view.

A Bowl for Nuts.

A bowl for nuts is in the form of half an English walnut. It is of silver-plated ware, lined with a gold wash, and there is a glass inner bowl which exactly fits into the huge shell. This may be taken out and polished and prevents scratching of the gold lining. The outside of the silver bowl is decorated with leaves and twigs, also of gold and it stands on four little feet of stout twigs.

The Stars.

Softly the trembling tapes of the night
Glow from the altars of their wonderland.
Each seems the candle of an acolyte
Lit in the darkness by a priestly Hand.
Lo, these be worlds, and our world to their sight
Is but a candle burning in the night!
—Marie Hemstreet, in The Outlook.

A Sad Mistake.

"Give me a ham sandwich," shouted the traveler at the depot lunch counter. Two seconds later he complained to the attendant. "That was the worst sandwich I ever had. No more taste than sawdust, and not big enough to see."

"You've et yer ticket," returned the attendant contemptuously; "this here's yer ham sandwich."—Human Life.

M. & A. TEPPER

If you will read the editorial page in this week's (date of February 12) number of

THE SATURDAY EVENING POST

Edition 1,575,000 Copies

you will find it clearly proved from the Post-Office Department's own reports, that it is totally unnecessary to put any additional tax on magazines and periodicals, and that a deficit of $17,500,000 is not chargeable to the periodicals.

* * * * * * * * * "For instance, the Post-Office Department is charging $13,821,100 of the cost of rural free delivery against the second-class mail. Now, rural free delivery was established as a matter of Government policy, and we believe in it, but it is not fair to charge one dollar of this expense against the magazines. It is undoubtedly of benefit to the daily newspapers, but the Department is trying to exempt them from an increase in rate. The magazines do not need or want once a day or twice a day deliveries on these rural routes.

"Page 256, Postmaster's Report, 1908, says: 'Franking privileges weighed 4,555,634 pounds. They certainly cost the average price of all mail in all ways. And Governmental matter for Departments other than the Post-Office weighed 18,644,010 pounds.'

"This report says that if the matter was charged at postal rates it would yield a revenue as follows:

Second-class	$ 531,560.94
Franked matter	3,987,546.44
Government matter	16,362,131.95
Total credit due Department	$20,881,239.33

"And that awful deficit disappears.

"It is impossible that a business of over $200,000,000 should not offer an opportunity for enormous savings. And a business like that of our great Postal Department, with endless ramifications, must offer endless opportunities.

* * * * * * * * * "No Postmaster-General entering his position to-day, with all the duties befalling a Cabinet official besides running his Department, no matter how great his intelligence or how fine his training, can grasp the details of this enormous business before he disappears. There is no time given to him to find these opportunities to save expense. The affairs of the Department must, for the most part, be administered by those under him."

Given a chance they would save in business economies more than the alleged deficit of $17,500,000.

☛ We ask Congress to give us a Director of Posts—as recommended by the joint Congressional committee of 1907, an officer who shall be non-political, and whose term of service shall not be subject to political changes, and who shall conduct the workings of the Post-Office Department with the efficiency, economy and business-like methods which distinguish high-class American business enterprise.

AGE OF NIAGARA FALLS.

In the current issue of Science Professor J. W. Spenser defends an opinion advanced last year, but recently disputed by other geologists, concerning the length of time during which America's best known cataract has existed, says the New York Tribune. His estimate of the interval is 39,000 years, which is considerably more than that of Professor George F. Wright, who makes it 7,000 years, but far less than Professor Grove K. Gilbert's estimate of about 150,000 years.

All attempts to solve this fascinating problem are based on a well established fact. As the Niagara river is undermining the ledge over which it tumbles, and as the uppermost statum of rock breaks away in consequence, the position of the falls is continually changing.

It is now fully seven miles from the vicinity of Lewistown, where the shelf terminates. Obviously if the history of the cataract dates from the time when it began to eat its way backward from that point—an assumption which is probably warranted—and if the retreat has been at a uniform rate, computation of the age of the falls would be a comparatively simple task. Since the late Professor James Hall charted their position, in 1842, they have receded 250 feet, an average of about four feet annually.

The erosive work of the river, however, has not been regular, as some geologists once took for granted. Indeed, it has been exceedingly variable, and it is the lack of uniformity which embarrasses those who seek to determine how old the falls are. One of the influences which may have operated with different force from one period to another are variations in the thickness or hardness of the rock to be worn through.

It is uncertain, too, whether the falls have always been as high as they are now (160 feet). Professor Spenser, for instance, thinks that Lake Ontario's level was once only thirty-five feet lower than Lake Erie's. If he is correct, the undermining effect must have been much smaller then than at present, and the rate of recession much slower. Furthermore, it is generally believed that the volume of water discharged by the Niagara river has not always been what it is now.

Professor Spenser was one of the first to adduce evidence that the contents of the three lakes formerly reached the St. Lawrence Valley by another route than that now followed, and that the Niagara then served as an outlet for Lake Erie only.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

GOLF.

The fact that Philadelphia golfers as individual players are not taken more seriously by critics seems to have struck a tender spot in the City of Brotherly Love. It is a matter of record that for years those who have been responsible for the unofficial rankings have with almost unvarying consistency ignored the Philadelphia amateurs.

Until the latest list was compiled the Eastern golfers claimed most of the leading places, but now the first sixteen is made up from an equal division of Eastern and Western experts. In the East favored players represent the New York and Boston districts, while in the West Chicago claims nearly all the good ones.

In defence of Philadelphia it has been pointed out that collectively its team has on more than one occasion made a good showing in the Leslie cup matches. In fact, two years ago at Brookline the Quarker City delegation eliminated Boston in the preliminary contest, only to lose to New York the following day. Last fall Philadelphia met defeat in the contest with Boston by the narrow margin of a single match, while in the decisive clash New York only defeated Boston by the same scant margin.

This, then would seem to prove Philadelphia's strength collectively. Where there is more than ordinary collective strength there is bound to exist a certain amount of individual merit, which, if given sufficient opportunity, might succeed in proving a right to national recognition. As it is, Philadelphians seldom appear in tournaments outside their own district, and this is more particularly so with regard to the national fixtures. Therefore, the inference is that if they played more away from home they would stand higher. When asked for their opinions on the subject James Thomson, the Philadelphia Country Club professional, and Jack Campbell, the Overbrook "pro," both declared that the Philadelphia amateurs compare favorably with those of any other city.

BASKETBALL.

The P. H. S. basketball team will play Bound Brook High School at the local gymnasium on Wednesday, February 16, and on Saturday, February 19, will play Kingsley School at Essex Fells.

Manager Listman, of the Y. M. C. A. basketball team, has been trying to arrange a game with Montclair Y. M. C. A., but the latter finds it convenient not to make a date. It looks as though the Montclair players are afraid of being beaten.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

A "Patriotic Supper" will be given at the Congregational church Thursday night, February 17.

"Three Young Men with Three Consciences—and God," will be the topic of the special sermon by Rev. Ora J. Shoop at Grace M. E. church Sunday night.

The Mission Study Class of the First M. E. church will have charge of the Epworth League meeting Sunday night at 7 o'clock, when "Korea" will be the topic.

Judge Covington, of Georgia, will speak at a mass meeting in the First Baptist church Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock under the auspices of the Anti-Saloon League of New Jersey.

The Plainfield Graded Union of Sunday-school Teachers will meet Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the Y. W. C. A. Mrs. Frank French will lead the devotional exercises, Mrs. Julius Williams will teach the lesson for beginners, Mrs. Douglas Darby will tell a story for the primary department teachers and Miss Beeching will teach the junior lesson.

MAYOR FISK CONFERS WITH MAYOR STOY.

Atlantic City, Feb. 11.—Charles J. Fisk, Mayor of Plainfield, who was president of Governor Fort's State Excise Commission in 1908, and who is now chairman of the State organization of Mayors, was here Wednesday in conference with Mayor Franklin Stoy. Mr. Fisk and Mr. Stoy are members of the legislative committee selected by Governor Fort to prepare suitable municipal legislation for presentation to the Legislature this session. Their meeting here was because of that fact.

When the Mayors adjourned their recent session in Trenton it was with the intention of getting together again in Trenton on February 25. This date, however, has been changed to February 25. The legislative committee will meet in Trenton next Tuesday afternoon.

CAPTAIN SHARP, U. S. N., SUCCUMBS TO TYPHOID.

Washington, Feb. 11.—Captain Alexander Sharp, president of the Navy Inspection Board, and recently commander of the battleship Virginia, died at the Naval Hospital in this city at 3:45 o'clock yesterday morning after about a month's illness from typhoid fever. He was born in White Haven, Mo., in 1855 and entered the naval service as a midshipman in 1870.

THE FORUM.

H. Mintz's Version.

Editor, The Daily Press:

Kindly allow me space in your valuable paper to answer the article signed "M. D." and a resident of East Seventh street, regarding a cow which was driven from Watchung avenue on East Seventh street. I beg to state that if "M. D." had investigated the facts of the case regarding this dumb beast, he or she, would not have been so free to criticise an innocent party. The facts in this matter are these: This cow was not my property nor never had been, and was never in my possession, and from my investigation of this matter, the animal was not starved or in a starved condition. From the investigation pursued by me in this matter, I have ascertained that this cow is suffering from a disease and not starvation.

I trust that in the future "M. D." will not be so ready hereafter to criticise or condemn until they have first ascertained the right party.

Sincerely yours,
H. MINTZ.

Other Dogs Did It.

Editor, The Daily Press:

On complaint of Adolph Bohren, of Greenbrook road, two dogs belonging to Franke Linke were arrested for killing his rabbits. The dogs in question were both licensed to travel, the licenses having been taken off in some way when arrested. It is really a very peculiar incident that Linke's dogs should have been the victims of these rabbits, as his son has tamed rabbits at home and the dogs never touch them. I am very positive that if Mr. Bohren looked a little sharper he would soon come to the conclusion that Linke's dogs were not the only ones.

At Proctor's.

The merry farce, "The House Warming," being presented at Proctor's theatre, is one big scream and it has made a great hit. The visit of a doctor, thought to be a piano tuner, and the comical sea captain, mistaken for someone else, makes it one big laugh. The scarecrow-dance and the farmer's daughter, combines to make another hit and takes well with the audience. The Tankas, clever Japanese magicians, are great and the Myers sisters can both sing and dance. The films d'art pictures are winners.

Six Cent Award Against Voorhees.

Foster M. Voorhees, formerly Governor, was the defendant in a suit for damages tried yesterday before Judge Vail and a jury in the Hudson County Branch of the Supreme Court. The complainant was Albert Reiners, who charged that Mr. Voorhees as his counsel delayed bringing a suit for $5,000 damages against the Campbell Art Company, of Elizabeth, until the statute of limitations operated to prevent the trial of the matter. The jury awarded Mr. Reiners six cents damages.

Increase in Motor Vehicles.

The receipts of the State Department of Motor Vehicles during the months of December and January amounted to $80,036, or $22,444 more than in the corresponding months of 1908 and 1909. During the latter months there were 6,254 registrations and 5,558 licenses issued by the department. In the last two months there were 8,572 registrations and 6,781 licenses, indicating a substantial increase in the use of automobiles in this State.

Sentenced for Killing Wife.

John Kohute, of Fords, retracted his plea of not guilty at his trial at New Brunswick yesterday afternoon on the charge of murdering his wife in January, and entered a plea of guilty to murder in the second degree. Justice Bergen sentenced him to twelve years in State prison. Kohute beat his wife with a clothespole, axe and shovel. He declared in his defence that he had found she had ben unfaithful to him, and had only chastised her to punish her.

About 300 pairs of Women's Boots, Tan and Black, Button and Lace at a uniform price of - - $2.98

These are just a few of the many things offered in this sale and it ought to be the BIGGEST SALE WE EVER PULLED OFF

No Sale Goods Exchanged or Money Refunded
No Sale Goods Charged at Sale Prices

We adopted this system of terms of sale two years ago and it works right, and why we do it is this:

Our idea of a Genuine Shoe Sale is to get rid of broken lines of shoes which of necessity accumulate, and to get the cash, and every salesman is instructed to fit both feet and thus insure a fit—then when the sale is over you've got the shoes, and we've got the money, and we don't have to figure on any exchanges—this is a fair proposition and we want to make it plain.

Our advice is to get in as early as possible—as naturally the selection is better.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

The borough residents are again agitating the jail question, and this time it is said the jail will materialize. Several years ago when it was about decided to purchase cages for the borough guests, it was found that there was no building available to place the cages in. Now the borough has its borough hall and Recorder Charles Sheelin has asked the Council to take the question up again and arrange to provide accommodations for prisoners.

The public Library books that were out when the Library closed last summer are not being turned in very fast. The Library committee are anxious to have all books in before the re-opening of the Library, and those who hold them should be interested enough in the association to help the committee in its work of reorganization.

Guy Dushanick, formerly of the borough, tendered a party last at his home to a number of his friends from here and Westfield. A pleasant time was enjoyed, the evening being devoted to games and music.

Tomorrow, Lincoln's Birthday, will not be generally observed; about the only ones who will enjoy a holiday being the commuters. Owing to the day falling on Saturday the stores will remain open all day.

Brown Henry, of Liberty street, Plainfield, has been visiting his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs Henry, of the borough.

Edward L. Hand's two new houses on Forest avenue are enclosed and will be ready for rent early in the spring.

Clarence, the young son of George A. Clark, of Westfield avenue, is ill at his home with pneumonia.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Place have removed to the house on the corner of Lehigh and Railroad avenues, owned by William Hamilton.

George Pace, who was severely injured a short time ago in the TenEyck and Kelly coal yard, is now getting along nicely.

Mrs. William Leddin, of Brookside avenue, has returned home after a short visit with out of town friends.

Miss Ethel Pace, of Plainfield, is spending a short time with relatives here.

Mrs. P. J. McDonough was in Plainfield yesterday.

Mrs. James Galligan was in New York yesteday.

WHIRLED TO DEATH AROUND A SHAFTING.

Camden, Feb. 11.—Caught in belting in the Philadelphia Wire and Steel Company's plant, at Point and Pearl streets, late Wednesday afternoon, John C. Rhodes, sixty-nine years old, of Sharon Hill, Pa., was whirled around the shafting.

When his clothes parted from the strain he fell to the boor unconscious and died from a fractured skull in the city ambulance while being taken to the Homeopathic Hospital.

MEANS TEN YEARS' SENTENCE.

Paterson, Feb. 11.—James Davidson and James Carey, charged with holding up Leonard Unger, of 42 North Second street, and robbing him of $16 and a silver watch, were tried before Judge Scott Wednesday. Davidson was sentenced to five years in the State prison, and Carey was given six months in the county jail.

The pair originally pleaded not guilty, but retracted that plea yesterday and entered pleas of non vult. Davidson was sentenced to State prison for a long term some time ago, and only on account of the respectability of his family did the prosecutor and Judge Scott sign a petition for his pardon. He had still five years to serve, so that when he goes back to prison this time he will stay there for ten years, as the unserved portion of the old sentence will be added to his present one. Carey proved of much assistance to the police in convicting Davidson, and the court believed that he would not have been mixed up in the affair at all had it not been for Davidson, so his sentence was a lenient one.

"DRY" AFTER MIDNIGHT.

Elizabeth, Feb. 12.—The question as to what hour the saloons in this city shall close has been settled by the excise commissioners, who amended a section of the law and made the time 12 o'clock midnight. It was only recently that the same commissioners fixed the closing hour at 1 o'clock, but the preachers and others in the city got after the board and the saloon-keepers were informed yesterday of the change.

The saloon question has been a much argued one for the last few weeks, the saloon-keepers trying to induce the commissioners to permit them to remain open until 2 a. m., while the preachers and others thought midnight was late enough.

Mr. and Mrs. L. V. F. Randolph and daughter, Miss Blossom Randolph, and Dr. Paul W. Harrison arrived at Naples yesterday on "The Berlin."

TRANSVAAL AND ITS RESOURCES

Dr. William Macdonald, of Pretoria, South Africa, is making a tour of America on behalf of the Transvaal Government to inquire into the latest methods of agricultural science more especially in regard to the dry-farming movement in the West. It is believed that the methods which are being successfully applied in the Great Plains region and in Utah will prove of equal value in the reclamation and settlement of the desert regions of South Africa and other parts of the British Empire.

Regarding the Transvaal, Dr. Macdonald gave some interesting information to a reporter for the Washington Post. "This State is 112,099 miles in extent, and so has an area of 71,000,000 acres," said Dr. Macdonald. "It is about the same size as Arizona. As is well known, the Transvaal is remarkably rich in precious metals. The gold output for last year was $150,000,000, or one-third part of the output of the whole world. Again, near the town of Pretoria is the famous Premier diamond mine, where the Cullinan diamond, the most valuable gem ever found, was dug up. Besides gold and diamonds, the Transvaal has large deposits of coal, iron, copper, tin, etc. It is thus destined to have a great future from the mineral standpoint.

"But vast as are its mineral deposits, it is confidently believed by many people that the agricultural and stock-raising possibilities of this land are much greater. The Transvaal can raise cattle, horses, sheep, ostriches and angora goats, grow tobacco, maize (corn), wheat, tropical fruits of all kinds, oranges and lemons, coffee, fiber plants, and also all fruits of the temperate zone. Already a considerable export trade has been started with England, and now quantities of maize and citrus fruits are being shipped to the European markets.

"Up to the present time it has been said that irrigation was the great need of the Transvaal, but I am a firm believer in the potentialities of the dry lands of this region. The staple crop of the colony is maize, and by means of conserving the moisture in a rational and scientific manner it will be possible to grow large crops of this cereal with little or no fear of drought, and the same will naturally apply to other crops and forage plants.

"The annual rainfall of the Transvaal varies from about twelve to over forty inches, with an average for last year of twenty-three inches. To promote this matter, the government of the Transvaal has recently started a dryland experiment station, under the Department of Agriculture in the western portion of the colony for experiments in proper methods of tillage and the raising of drought-resistant crops."

SOME DON'TS FOR WIVES.

Don't begrudge your husband a few hours spent with his men friends. You meet friends. Be considerate and give him the same privilege.

Don't bother him with troublesome trifles that happen during the day.

Don't whine and complain over household difficulties.

Don't overwork and be tired and cross when he comes home. Your husband will see you tired and irritable where he will not be conscious of a few grains of dust, which may have dissipated at the expense of your strength.

Don't let yourself get old and ugly. Take time to keep yourself young and to cultivate good looks. If you can't be beautiful, try to be interesting.

Don't forget to cultivate your mind. Read about what is going on in the great world, so that if he makes a remark on current events you will be able to answer him intelligently instead of giving him a blank stare.

Don't inquire how his business is unless you are sure from his face that he has something pleasant to tell you.

HOW NEW BOWS ARE WORN.

There is no end to the methods that are employed this winter in the use of bows. They are worn at the neck, back and front, and also at the belt, back and front, and always at the top edge.

The bow or rosette is placed at the bottom edge, as it was last season.

The newest spot for a rosette is not at the bottom edge, as it was last season.

The newest spot for a bow is at the front of the bodice, just below the yoke. This is a different color from the frocks, and it is usually made of liberty satin. It is not full and loose, but long and trim. The loops and ends are the full width of the ribbon and are laid out in flat lines.

These touch up not only dress costumes for theatre, restaurants and informal dinners, but they are worn on simpple house frocks. The more vivid colors are used to give brilliancy to simple gowns such as white, gray or black.

Among the colors are apple green, plum, purple, parrot, green, turquoise, blue, geranium red and black, with rhinestone centre.

of the prominent position which is held by the women of Finland in the social and political life in their country. In Finland the franchise has long ago been extended to women and it is yet to be proved that the Finnish people have made a mistake in admitting women members into the national parliament. They have up to the present proved themselves eminently fitted to be entrusted with the interests of their electors and they never fail to command the respectful attention of the other members of the Diet to the speeches which they are now and again called upon to make.

We agree with the lecturer in the remarks which she made as to the influence of climate on character and it is perhaps due to the conditions and strenuous exertions of the Finnish people to overcome the depressing physical drawbacks of a northern climate that have given them the necessary strength of character to progress in the face of many and varying difficulties.

TO ESTABLISH BUREAU OF VITAL STATISTICS.

Rahway, Feb. 11.—At a meeting of the Board of Health, held yesterday, the clerk was instructed to notify the physicians of Rahway that the board intends to establish a bureau of vital statistics, that all physicians must report by the next meeting of the board, all records of births and deaths since January 1, 1909, and that those failing to do so will be referred to the State board for prosecution.

The clerk was also instructed to communicate with boards of health of other cities and towns in the State, to learn what is done with worthless dogs. The board being anxious to have such dogs exterminated, will select the best means, and will ask the Common Council to carry out the project.

President Smith named the following committees: Auditing, Ritter, Randolph and Brickell, sanitary, Randolph, Brickell and Ritter.

Medical Officer Frederick W. Sell reported two cases of diphtheria and one of scarlet fever. When Health Officer Frederick J. Mix was asked if the yhad been properly looked after he replied that he went to see them, thought he did not think it was his duty.

Commissioner Brickell said there seems to be quite some friction existing between the medical and health officers, and thought it was time it came to an end. On motion the medical officer was instructed to visit and investigate contagious cases and then turn them over to the health officer, whose duty it is to look after them.

OPPOSED TO SEWAGE PLANT.

Trenton, Feb. 11.—John W. Manning, president of the Trenton Water Commission, has come out with a strong opposition to the establishment of a $1,000,000 sewage disposal plant here, as demanded by the State Board of Health, under a State law.

He says so long as Trenton has to filter and otherwise purify Delaware river water to get rid of sewage from up the stream, there is no good reason why towns and cities down the valley should not purify to eliminate Trenton sewage. He asserts that the dangers from sewage have been greatly exaggerated by the State authodities.

Mystery surrounds the serious injury of Thomas McAllister, Jr., twenty-three years old, of Academy street, Bridgeton, and some ugly reports are afloat. The young man is suffering from injuries said to have been the result of a blow on the head with a beer bottle, which laid open the scalp and caused blood poisoning.

Nellie, the eleven-year-old daughter of Harry Woodington, of Cherry street, Mt. Holly, is in a serious but not dangerous condition, as a result of an accident while on her way to school yesterday. While carrying a nicely sharpened pencil she slipped and fell, the pencil point piercing the eye and penetrating the brain. The sight of the eye will be destroyed, but up to this time there does not seem to be any serious effect from the injury to the brain.

Harry M. C. Fry, formerly of Camden, owner of a string of race horses and a well-known turfman, also proprietor of the Imperial Hotel, on Washington street, Mt. Holly, had his license revoked Wednesday evening by Judge Horner after a fight against the Law and Order Society lasting for a week. The society alleged many violations of the law on the part of Mr. Fry, who took charge of the hotel last September, since which time he expended several thousand dollars in improving the property, which is the best hotel in town. This makes two hotels and two saloons recently put out of business there, and it is said that more are to follow. Fry expects to appeal from Judge Horner's decision.

February Furniture Sale

Has Again Demonstrated that Our Prices Are the Lowest in Newark

WISE planning many months ago alone made this annual event possible. The greatly advanced prices of to-day which most stores are paying make it quite impossible for them to offer such HIGH-GRADE FURNITURE at a full quarter over our prices—this has been proven since the sale opened by wise buyers, who visited everywhere before coming HERE AND BUYING. These prices prove everything.

U. S. FARMERS IN CANADA.

It is not necessary to dwell for long upon the physical prosperity that is being enjoyed by Americans who have moved into the Canadian Prairie Provinces. They would not stay there if they were not doing well. Though bread and butter are great social and political acclimatizers the fundamental contentment of the American in Canada is the product of something more than growing thirty bushels of wheat to the acre, and seeing his land multiply in value. For your American abroad is nothing if not intensely patriotic. He carries a watch in one vest pocket and Old Glory in the other. Wherever an opportunity arises he sings, "My Country 'tis of Thee," and if an opportunity does not soon arise, he quickly makes one. I have joined scores of times in singing the first verse of that sonorous hymn to the tune which some of my friends believe has been appropriated by England for what they supposed was a parody on the junior national anthem. There must be something extraordinary in the political atmosphere which reconciles the immigrant from below forty-nine to life in a foreign country. For the American does not live by bread alone.

The truth is, of course, that when Americans come to Western Canada they don't find it a foreign country at all. In soil, climate, transportation, agricultural machinery, currency, social observances, churches—in everything except the outward political forms, the differences which they thought would be tremendous are only trivial. In most cases they are in favor of the adopted land.

TO REVIVE THE OLD DANCES.

A movement looking to the revival of certain forgotten dances is under way. One of those that may come into favor again is the sarabande. Others are the passepied, galliard, and pavane.

The pavane is one of the oldest examples of the ceremonial dance, and the name under which it has descended to us was derived from the old French word peacock. It came, of course, from the spreading of the cloaks, mantles, and rich garments by those who danced its slow, stately measures.

The galliard is a pleasing contrast to the stately pavane. It is a lively dance—often done in Elizabeth's day, "high and disposedly"—which is a typical and early example of a dance of skill, shown in the agility demanded by the various steps. It is of Roman origin, and was in those days in double time. In the classical English form, however, it is in triple time. The galliard, it is interesting to remark, is the "cinquepace" of Shakespeare.

The word "sarabande" means noise and is of Arabic origin. The characteristic dance bearing this title dates back to Spain of the twelfth century, and was performed alone, or by groups, with bells or castanets. It was originally given by women only and was of a wild character; but after crossing the Pyrenees it was transformed by the French into a noble and solemn measure. It was Cardinal Richelieu who danced the sarabande with bells on his ankles to win the favor of Anne of Austria.

THE RAVEN REVISED.

Once upon a morning foggy, while I lolitered, grouched and groggy
Over biscuits that were soggy and an egg that was a bore,
While I dawdled, almost dreaming, and my coffee never ceased
from steaming,
Suddenly there came a screaming—
screaming never heard before.
"'Tis some suffragette," I muttered,
"screaming at my outer door,
Just a noise and nothing more."

ROSELLE MAN HELD FOR POSING AS AN OFFICIAL.

New York, Feb. 11.—Because he was elated over having attained the distinction of being a grandfather at sixty and imagining that there must be something akin between a New Jersey lawyer and a Brooklyn deputy police commissioner, John H. Kemple, a lawyer, of Roselle Park, was a prisoner in the Tombs Police Court yesterday charged with impersonating an officer. He dropped into a station house early yesterday and told Lieutenant Becker, who had the desk, that he was "overflowing with the milk of human kindness."

"Huh!" snapped Becker, and continued posting up the blotter. Then Kemple got on his dignity. He demanded to know if the man at the desk realized who was addressing him, and when Becker gruffly ordered him to "beat it," Kemple broke in with the assertion that he was "Deputy Commissioner of Police Reynolds, all the way from Brooklyn."

The scared police officer these are perilous days for policemen who fail to recognize the new officials—jumped to attention and explained he could not turn out the reserves for the inspection of the "new commish," and finally demanded that "Reynolds" show his badge. This he could not do and he was locked up on the charge of impersonating an officer.

In court yesterday he was accompanied by Deputy Commissioner Reynolds and the latter asked for his discharge, explaining that Kemple had been celebrating the advent of a grandson and was the victim of a temporary hallucination. He asked that he be discharged without a reprimand and this was done.

NO NATIONAL GUARD BODY FOR BURLINGTON.

Burlington, Feb. 11.—Efforts to organize a company to take the place of the disbanded Company A, Third Regiment, National Guard, have been dealt a deathblow by Colonel John A. Mather, commandant of the regiment, upon whose recommendation the order of disbandment was issued last month. Senator Lewis has been exerting his utmost influence toward the recognition of the city in a new company, but Colonel Mather has written him that it is useless to consider the matter. He says his action was taken with great reluctance, but for the best interests of the guard, and that it would be unwise to undertake the formation of a new company at this time.

"If in the future, however," the colonel says, "there should occur a vacancy in the regiment, and it is then believed to be possible to organize an efficient company in your city, I will be glad to recommend to the military authorities that a Burlington company be formed."

At Salem it has been reported that the Governor has authorized Colonel John A. Mather, of the Third Regiment, to recruit a company at that place, to be known as Company A, and take the place of the one recently disbanded at Burlington. Quarters will be procured at once. Dr. W. H. Carpenter, who has charge of the preliminary arrangements, has a large list of young men who desire to enlist.

FOUND UNCONSCIOUS AT FOOT OF STEPS.

Doyer, Feb. 11.—Found unconscious and probably fatally wounded at the foot of the stone steps leading to his boarding-house early yesterday morning, John Hanchin has been taken to the hospital at Morristown. The police are investigating whether he was injured as the result of accident or crime. The man was a Slav. He came here Wednesday with John Bartch looking for work. They had been employed on the Lackawanna cut-off near here.

They went to the boarding-house at 63 Gold street, kept by Joseph Erlicki. Hanchin had either fallen or been thrown from the top of the stone steps leading to the entrance. A deep gash at the base of the skull was the principal injury, but he had lost so much blood that the physician who examined him declared it was almost impossible for him to recover.

Bartch has been held here for further examination. County Detective Edward Brennan, of Morristown is working on the case.

NEWARK WOMAN WOOED HIM, IS HUNT'S CLAIM.

Boston, Feb. 11.—Eldredge G Hunt, sixty-five years old, recluse member of the wealthy family of that name, of Weymouth, Mass., who for three generations have supplied the bulk of American made cannot firecrackers, asserted yesterday that the breach of promise suit brought against him by Mrs. Eva May Brower is the culmination of an energetic courtship begun by Mrs. Brower when she lived in Newark, N. J., and to which he has ever remained cool and unresponsive. That Mrs. Brower sent him fruit and flowers and many letters from Newark, but that his replies were dictated through the demands of common courtesy and that all along his heart remained untouched, the firecracker manufacturer claims actually to be the case.

Somebody used his name, he says, in an advertisement for a wife and Mrs. Brower responded. The widow however, is suing for $10,000 heart balm. She is now located in Connecticut.

THE CONFLICT OF LOVE AND FAT

The average man will "jolly" with the stout girl; but he steals glances over her shoulder at that Miss Slender. He would sooner hold the hands of the latter in a fatuous silence than really enjoy himself with the other. Such is the power of line. Just a line—from chin to toe, or nape to heel—that's all. But it rings the merry marriage bell.

Fat women should not refine—but refine—their own lines by means of that phenomenal—the Marmola Tablet. No exercising or dieting is necessary. Simply take one tablet after each meal and at bedtime, and in a little while the overplus of fat—the coarseness of aspect—will disappear. The figure will become slight enough to permit of a maidenly contour, a pure outline, being fashioned with corset and gown. Then victory—if not revenge.

Although Marmola Tablets often take off uniformly a pound of flabby fat a day, they are quite harmless (being made of the famous fashionable prescription, ½ oz. Marmola, ½ oz. Fl. Ex. Cascara Aromatic, 3½ oz. Peppermint Water). Consequently, even timid ones are safe in using them, for no ill—not even a wrinkle or stomach ache—will follow their use; seventy-five cents secures a large case at any druggist's or by mail from the Marmola Co., 988 Farmer Bldg., Detroit, Mich.

Burington, Feb. 11.—Mystery of the finding of a suicide message scribbled on the photo of Albert Joyce, a trolley conductor, and signed "His wife" was increased yesterday, when Mrs. Joyce was found alive and well in a shoe factory in Mt. Holly. Patrolman Hayes found the photograph and a woman's handkerchief held down by a stone at the brink of the abandoned town wharf yesterday afternoon. Joyce told Mayor Farner yesterday morning that his wife left him three years ago and he has not since spoken to her. The police say Joyce admitted that he had given the photo found by the policeman to a young woman living near this city on the Mt. Holly road.

Further mystery is added by the fact that this young woman has disappeared from her home since Sunday, after telling some friends that she was going to Philadelphia and others that she was going to Florida.

The police say this young woman may have left the suicidal message at the wharf beside the terminal of Joyce's trolley run. Joyce this morning asked Prosecutor Atkinson to make an investigation.

Mrs. Church—Are your children being brought up to help themselves.

Mrs. Gotham—Oh, yes; I never lock the cookie jar!—Yonkers Statesman.

A STATE GAME FARM IS FAVORED

Trenton, Feb. 11.—Included in the recommendations soon to be made to the Legislature by the special joint legislative committee to investigate the fish and game laws is one providing for the establishment of a State game farm for the propagation of game to be liberated within the State. The committee will also suggest that the farm be in charge of a head keeper at a salary of $1,200 a year. It would also have the State appoint a chief game warden at $1,800 salary and two assistants, to receive $1,200 a year each, as well as two extra wardens at $900 each. According to the recommendations the county wardens should receive $900 salary, providing they have no other occupation during their term of office. Another recommendation is that an annual license of $100 be imposed upon each pound net fishing in the Atlantic ocean, Sandy Hook and Raritan Bay.

Assemblyman Amos H. Radcliffe is chairman of the special committee, and he and Chancery Clerk Samuel K. Robbins and Benjamin C. Kuser, president of the State Game and Fish Commission, are to draw a bill for presentation to the law mill embodying the recommendations of the committee. Some of the other changes in the present fish and game laws which the committee will suggest are:

Season for wildfowl shooting to open on November 1, as now.

Season for black duck and mallard to close March 1; for all other ducks on March 15 and for geese and brant on April 10. Shooting of black ducks in season be allowed until 7 p. m., except in fly-ways on the beach.

Present law prohibiting the shooting of other ducks, geese and brant and reed and rail birds after sunset and before sunrise be continued.

Season for reed birds and rail birds to be from September 10 until December 1.

No open season for wood duck for five years.

Open season for shore birds, surf birds and bay birds to be from July 1 to December 1, except for English snipe.

No open season for upland plover for five years.

Open season for quail, partridge, grouse, rabbit, etc., to be November 1 to December 15.

No open season for deer for five years.

A penalty should be provided for taking fish other than herring with a two-inch mesh in the tributaries, rivers, coves and streams of Barnegat Bay, and that portion of the bay proper which is within the present limits of the township of Brick.

A law regulating the size of seines to be used in Sandy Hook and Raritan bays for the taking of fish.

A closed season for the netting of Mullica river during January, February, March, April and May of each year.

Unlawful to fish under the ice.

The present law to be so amended as to make the open season for black bass pickerel, pike, crapple, calico bass, white bass, pike-perch, white and yellow perch from June 15 to December 1.

CIVIL SERVICE TANGLE OVER STATE PRISON JOB.

Trenton, Feb. 11.—State Prison Keeper George O. Osborne and Gardner Colby, secretary of the Civil Service Commission, had a conference with Governor Fort at the State house yesterday with reference to choosing a parole agent for the State prison as the successor to Henry K. Straley, deceased.

The act creating the Civil Service Commission superseded the act of 1905, establishing the office of parole agent, and placed the position under civil service regulations.

In the classification of the officers at the prison the parole agent was placed on the competitive list. If that classification stands there will have to be an examination of candidates for the place and the certification to Keeper Osborne of the three getting the highest standing in the test. From these three the keeper will have to make the appointment.

The act of 1905 provided for the appointment by the keeper, subject to the confirmation by the Governor of one of his State prison inspectors or deputy keepers as parole agent.

The question has been raised whether this provision for confirmation by the Governor stands as against the general provisions of the civil service law, thereby removing the position of parole agent from the competitive class.

State Prison Keeper Osborne wants the place in the non-competitive class if it can be done legally. The whole matter has been referred to the attorney-general.

Cleaning Carpet on Floor.

To clean a carpet without taking up, take a cup half full of corn meal mixed with salt and sweep well when spots are left; then take oxgall or ammonia. Both are very good things to make the carpet as bright as a new one.

NEWARK'S AUTO SHOW TO BE ON A BIG SCALE.

More than $350,000 worth of automobiles and accessories will be on view at the Newark Automobile Show, which opens February 19, at Essex Troop Armory, in Roseville avenue, Newark. In comparison with the shows that have already been held in New York, Philadelphia and Chicago and the ones which are to follow, the Newark event will scarcely be surpassed in any detail. Aside from the variety of the exhibits, there will be special features every day. Harry McDonough, a well known vocalist, who is one of the singers for the Edison Phonograph company, has been engaged to sing each day.

LIQUOR DEALERS' SIDE TO BE GIVEN IN CHURCH.

The fourth of a series of discussions on the liquor traffic will take place at the meeting of the social service class of the First Unitarian church of Orange at noon Sunday. Thomas C. Hayes, president of the Retail Liquor Dealers' Protective League, will be the speaker and his subject will be "The Saloon in the Community."

Successful Dance.

The Nonpariel Social Club held a successful dance in Saengerbund hall last night. More than two hundred persons were present. The chairman of the committee in charge was William H. Jones.

MERCER SENATOR FOR PUBLIC UTILITY LAW.

Trenton, Feb. 11.—Senator Harry D. Leavitt, of this city, declared yesterday for a public utilities law and said that such an act should be passed by the present Legislature. While he thinks all public utilities corporations should be properly regulated by law, he is not in favor of as radical a measure as that proposed last year and the year before by William P. Martin, of Essex county. The Martin plan on this question is now before the Assembly in the Sullivan bill. When Senator Lovett was seen yesterday, he said: "I think a public utilities bill should be passed at this session, and I am in favor of enacting such a law. I stand where I did two years ago when I voted for the Robbins public utility measure."

Continuing, Mr. Leavitt stated that he thought the Scharff public utility bill, House No. 2, was a fair measure, and he seemed inclined to favor it. He said, however, that the Delaware and Raritan Canal hearing Tuesday before the special committee of which he is a member, took so much of his time that he had not looked up thoroughly the Pierce public utility bill, House No. 105, as he had intended.

Dropping the subject of particular bills, Senator Leavitt said that the measure to be enacted should provide for fair rate-making powers, but that there should be a review by the State courts in order to give proper protection to the corporations. Both the Scharff and the Pierce bills provide for this court review of any order issued by the public utilities commission, upon the proper filing of an appeal.

Both measures provide for the regulation of all railroad, street railroad, traction, canal, subway, gas pipe, oil pipe, electric light, heat power, water, telegraph, telephone and other public utilities corporations or any common carrier.

Senator Leavitt thought that the regulation of stock issues should be included in the law. This the Scharff measure omits. The Pierce bill prohibits the issue of stock except for cash at par value or more or for property equal at least to the actual per value of the stock. It also prohibits the issue of bonds except for cash or property equal at least to eighty per cent. face value of the bonds.

ANTI-SALOON CRUSADE STARTS IN ELIZABETH.

Elizabeth, Feb. 11.—The first of the big meetings arranged to take place in various parts of the State during next week in the interest of the local option bill, backed by the Anti-Saloon League of New Jersey, is scheduled for Proctor's theatre, in this city next Sunday night. The chief speaker at this meeting will be former Governor Robert B. Glenn, of North Carolina, who has been engaged to spend the week in New Jersey working up sentiment favorable to the bills introduced by Senator Gebhardt and Assemblyman Heritage.

In addition to Governor Glenn and other speakers, the Anti-Saloon League has invited Messrs. Gebhardt and Heritage to attend the meeting and make addresses explaining their views with reference to local option.

College Daily Sets a Precedent.

The Daily Princetonian, the undergraduate periodical of Princeton University, has been elected to membership in The Associated Press, and yesterday morning's edition contained news supplied by that agency. This marks a precedent in college journalism, The Daily Princetonian being now the only college daily which publishes outside news dispatches.

SUNDAY SCHOOL CLASS AT THE FESTIVE BOARD

Edgar F. Sheppard and his class of young men, of the Sunday school of Trinity Reformed church, gathered around the festive board in the primary department of the school last night and did justice to a fine spread provided by Mrs Johnson, stewardess of the Park Club. The class had as its guests Rev John Y. Broek, the pastor; Frederick E. Smith, superintendent of the Sunday school, and Horace J. Martin, assistant superintendent.

The election of officers for the ensuing year occurred after the dinner and resulted as follows: President, Elmer E. Gayle; vice-president, George Cole; secretary, A. R. Waldron, and treasurer, Gustave Miesner. The speeches which followed the election were made by Rev. Mr. Broek, Mr. Sheppard, Mr. Smith and Mr. Martin and were in the nature of good advice to the young men and were filled with thoughts for character building, which made visible impressions on their hearers.

The feeling of comradeship existing between the young men and Mr. Sheppard was evident from the attention paid to his remarks and that the feeling is reciprocated there is no possible doubt. No better illustration of this could be had anywhere and as someone put it "wouldn't it be a great thing if other classes in other schools could get together under the same conditions and thus promote that feeling of confidence and love which leads to the greater love of the Master?"

The evening thus spent was a profitable one for all those present and great credit is due the committee having the banquet in charge. These were Edward Honeyman, Charles Doeringer and Elmer E. Gayle. The other members of the class were Russell Doeringer, Chester Harriman, A. R. Waldron, Russell Perine, Gustave Meisner, Leslie Crane, George Cole, Walter Dennis and Merrill Higgins. The party broke up at 11 o'clock. The room was handsomely decorated with flags.

BISHOP GIVES UP PLAN FOR PHTHISIS SANITARIUM.

Trenton, Feb. 11.—Bishop James A. McFaul, through his counsel, Peter Backes, yesterday withdrew his application to the township committee of Hopewell for permission to erect a tuberculosis sanatorium on Bennington Mountain, near Marshall's Corner.

The plan of the bishop met with considerable opposition in the community and the township committee recently gave a hearing at which both sides presented their case.

The Township Committee announced that it would make known its decision yesterday and Mr. Backes went to Hopewell, having with him a petition signed by 300 residents of the township favoring the granting of the application.

When he got there he was informed by the Township Committee that it considered the matter closed, and that it would be useless to present the petition before the decision of the committee, which it was known would be adverse, had been announced.

Mr. Backes asked leave on behalf of Bishop McFaul to withdraw the application. This was granted and should there be a change of public sentiment in the township the application may be renewed subsequently.

Bishop McFaul made a statement this afternoon in which he said that the Roman Catholic Dioces of Trenton owns more property in the township than any single individual. He said the diocese would not establish an institution which, in his judgment, would depreciate the value of property, and cited statistics gathered by the National Association of Tuberculosis showing that such sanatoriums are not detrimental to the health of communities nor injurious to property interests in the vicinity.

Bishop McFaul purchased a farm some time ago, intending to use it for indigent tuberculosis patients within the diocese, regardless of their religious beliefs. The plan met with general favor except on the part of some residents in the immediate vicinity of the proposed sanitarium.

DEATH OF A. M. CLARKE, EX-N. J. SENATE CLERK.

Buffalo, N. Y., Feb. 11.—Andrew M. Clarke, formerly of Newark, who held a city position here, died suddenly Tuesday night at a vestry meeting in Grace Episcopal church. Mr. Clarke was laughing and chatting with the other vestrymen of the church when he suddenly gasped, threw up his hands and fell to the floor, expiring almost immediately. Apoplexy was the cause of death.

Mr. Clarke served in the Civil War. After the war he engaged in newspaper work for a few years in New York city. He removed to Newark, where he remained for about five years.

After serving as clerk of the New Jersey Senate, he founded "The Trenton Sunday Advertiser."

HERE AND THERE.

William E. Purcell, who was sworn in last week as a member of the United States Senate from North Dakota, to succeed F. L. Thompson, resigned, is a Jerseyman, was born in Flemington fifty-three years ago. Mr. Purcell is a son of the late Joseph Purcell of that place and a brother of Mrs. Michael Slattery of Mine street. He studied law with the late J. N. Voorhees and then went West, settling in Wahpeton, North Dakota, where he established an extensive law practice. His ability was quickly recognized and he became one of the leading men of his state and at various times was highly honored. Mr. Purcell is a Democrat. He is a brother of Captain John Purcell, of the United States navy, who is known as the "Hero of Samoa," because of his bravery at the time the gunboat Trenton was wrecked in a hurricane in the Samoan harbor.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

Rev. Edwin Shaw, pastor of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, will postpone for one week his talk to the Juniors of the church tomorrow, because of his absence at New Market.

The West End Tabernacle will hold a cottage prayer meeting Tuesday evening. The regular prayer-meeting will be held Thursday night and the Junior Endeavor society will meet that afternoon at 3:30 o'clock.

Mrs. William Lennox and daughter, who have been missionaries to China, will give an account of their labors in that country this evening at the West End Tabernacle at 8 o'clock. All interested are invited.

CITY JOTTINGS.

Miss Elsie Burner, of Jackson avenue, is detained at home by illness.

Mrs. Martha Randolph, of West Fourth street, is spending sometime at Rayno, Va.

Edward S. Harding, of John street, left today for Philadelphia, where he will spend the week-end with friends.

James Manning, of Dunellen, who underwent an operation at Muhlenberg Hospital, is reported today as doing well.

REFUSED DIVORCE HERE SEEKS ONE IN NEVADA.

Trenton, Feb. 11.—Charles H. Haring, who is suing his wife, Ada L. Haring, of Elizabeth, for divorce in Neveda, made an unsuccessful attepmt to secure a divorce through the New Jersey courts by charging Mrs. Haring with desertion.

He has been living in Nevada, it is said, since last July, or about three months after Vice-Chancellor Stevens advised the dismissal of the suit in this State, on the grounds that the desertion complained of by Haring had not been proven.

Haring started the New Jersey suit in June, 1908, alleging that for more than two years before his wife had manifested toward him a coldness amounting constructively to desertion. Mrs. Haring denied these charges and made a counter complaint against her husband.

She said that in 1903 Mr. Haring visited Denver, Col., as a delegate to a Christian Endeavor convention held in that place, and upon his return he manifested an entire change of disposition toward her. For days at a time, she said, he would not speak to her, and insisted that all communications between them should be in writing. After that, she said, he abandoned, to a great extent, his church and religious work and duties, and neglected his family. In the latter part of the year, 1905, Mrs. Haring said, she found that her husband had met, while in Denver, a single woman living in Long Island City, to whom he had become engaged by representing that he was an unmarried man. Mrs. Haring charged her husband with these facts and she said he promised to stop his attentions to the other woman and to break off the engagement. This, she claimed, he had not done, but had continued to visit and make presents to his affinity. Upon this statement of facts the Court of Chancery dismissed Haring's suit.

ATLANTIC CITY PASTOR RESIGNS

Atlantic City, Feb. 11.—Announcement has been made of the resignation of Rev. John Hardenbrook Townsend, rector of the Church of the Ascension, and known to thousands of visitors, and has created a great sensation.

Rev. Mr. Townsend, who came here more than twenty years ago, went abroad shortly after January 1 under a three months' leave of absence. A few days ago Rev. Mr. Townsend forwarded his resignation to John B. Slack, secretary of the board of vestrymen, stating that his decision to retire was irrevocable and suggesting Rev. Charles Niles, former archdeacon of western Florida, recently appointed associate of Ascension church, as his successor.

The vestry accepted Rev. Mr. Townsend's resignation at a meeting on Monday night. The news of the pastor's action became known last night. He is said to be in Torquay, an English coast resort.

The Finding of Fingall

By GILBERT PARKER

(Copyright, by Short Stories Co., Ltd.)

"Fingall! Fingall! Oh, Fingall!"

A gray mist was rising from the river, the sun was drinking it delightedly, the swift blue water showed underneath it, and the top of White Faced mountain peaked the mist by a hand-length.

Two men, lounging at a fire on a ledge of the hills, raised their eyes to the mountain side beyond and above them and one said presently:

"The second time. It's a woman's voice, Pierre."

Pierre nodded, and abstractedly stirred the coals about with a twig.

"Well, it is a pity—the poor Cynthie!" he said at last.

"It is a woman, then. You know her, Pierre—her story?"

Pierre raised his head toward the sound; then, after a moment, said:

"I know Fingall."

"And the woman? Tell me."

"And the girl. Fingall was such as Shon McGann, all fire and heart and devil-may-care. She—she was not beautiful except in the eye, but that was like a flame of red and blue. Her hair, too, then, would trip her, if it hung loose. That was all, except that she loved him too much. But women—et puis, when a woman gets a man between her and the heaven above and the earth beneath, and there comes the great hunger what is the good? A man cannot understand, but he can see and he can fear. What is the good? To play with life, that is not much, but to play with a soul is more than a thousand lives. Look at Cynthie."

He paused, and Lawless waited patiently. He knew Pierre well.

Presently Pierre went on.

"Fingall was genteel. He would take off his hat to a squaw. It made no difference what others did; he didn't think; it was like breathing to him. How can you tell the way things happen? Cynthie's father kept the tavern at St. Gabriel's Fork, over against the great sawmill. Fingall was foreman of a gang in the lumber yard. Cynthie had a brother—Fenn. Fenn was as bad as they make, but she loved him and Fingall knew it well, while he hated the young skunk. The girl's eyes were like two little fireflies when Fingall was about, and what he thought of her he said to me once. 'They are the kind God made for the whole year round.' He was a gentleman though he had only half a name—Fingall—like that! I think he did not expect to stay; he seemed to be waiting for something, for always when the mail came in he would be there, and afterward you wouldn't see him for a time. So it seemed to me that he made up his mind to think nothing of Cynthie, and to say nothing."

"Fingall! Fingall! Oh, Fingall!"

The strange, sweet, singing voice sounded nearer.

"She is coming this way, Pierre," said Lawless.

"I hope not to see her. What is the good?"

"Well, let us have the rest of the story."

"Her brother Fenn was in Fingall's gang. One day there was trouble. Fenn called Fingall a liar. The gang stopped piling. They expected the usual thing. It did not come. Fingall told him to leave the yard and they would settle some other time. That night there was a wicked thing. We were sitting in the barroom when we heard two shots and then a fall. We ran into the other room. There was Fenn on the floor, dying. He lifted himself on his elbow, pointed at Fingall and fell back. The father of the boy stood, white and still, a few feet away. There was no pistol showing—none at all. The men closed in on Fingall now. He did not stir; he seemed to be thinking of something else. He had a puzzled, sorrowful look. The men roared round him, but he waved them back for a moment and looked first at the father, then at the son. I could not understand at first. Some one pulled a pistol out of Fingall's pocket and showed it. At that moment Cynthie came in. She gave a cry. I do not want to hear a cry like that often. She fell on her knees beside the boy and caught his head to her breast. Then, with a wild look, she asked who did it. They had just taken Fingall out into the barroom. They did not not tell her his name, for they knew that she loved him.

"'Father,' she said all at once, 'have you killed the man that killed Fenn?'

"The old man shook his head. There was a sick color in his face.

"'Then I will kill him,' she said.

"She laid her brother's head down and stood up. Some one put in her hand the pistol and told her it was the same that had killed Fenn. She took it up and came with us. The old man stood still where he was. He was like stone. I looked at him for a moment and thought, then I turned round and went to the barroom. The old man followed. Just as I got inside the door, I saw the girl start back and her hand drop, for she saw that it was Fingall. He was looking at her very strange. It was the rule to empty the gun into a man who had been sentenced, and already Fingall had heard his 'God, have mercy.' The girl was to do it.

"Fingall said to her in a muffled voice, 'Fire, Cynthie.'

"I guessed what she would do. In a kind of dream she raised the pistol up—up—up, till I could see it was out of range of his head, and she fired. One, two, three, four, five! Fingall never moved a muscle. But the bullets spotted the wall at the side of his head. She paused after the five, but the arm was still held out, and her finger was on the trigger. She seemed to be in a dream. There were only six chambers in the guns and, of course, one chamber was empty. Fenn had its bullet in his lungs, as we thought. Some one beside Cynthie touched her arm, pushing it down. But there was another shot; and this time, because of the push, the bullet lodged in Fingall's skull."

Pierre paused now, but waved his hand toward the mist which now hung high up like a canopy between the hills.

"But," said Lawless, not heeding the scene, "what about that sixth bullet?"

"Mon Dieu, it is plain! Fingall did not fire the shot. His revolver was full, every chamber, when Cynthie first took it."

"Who killed the lad?"

"Can you not guess? There had been words between the father and the boy; both had fierce blood; the father in a bad minute fired. The boy wanted revenge on Fingall, and, to save his father, laid it on the other. The old man? Well, I do not know whether he was coward or stupid or ashamed—he let Fingall take it."

"And Fingall took it to spare the girl, eh?"

"For the girl. He knew it wasn't good for her to think that her father killed his own son."

"And what came after?"

"The worst. That night the girl's father killed himself, and the two were buried in the same grave. Cynthie—"

"Fingall! Fingall! Oh, Fingall!"

"You hear? Yes, like that all the time as she sat on the floor, her hair about her like a cloud, and the dead bodies in the next room. She thought that she had killed Fingall, and she knew now that he was innocent. The two were buried. Then we told her that Fingall was not dead. When he was strong enough to go out I went with him the first time. He was all thin and handsome as you can think, but he had no memory and his eyes were like a child's. She saw him and came out to meet him. What does a woman care for the world when she loves altogether? Well, he just looked at her as if he'd never seen her before and passed by without a sign, though afterward there came trouble in his face. Three days later he was gone, no one knew where. That is two years ago. Ever since she has been looking for him."

"Is she mad?"

"Mad? It is not good to have one thing in the head all the time. What do you think? So much all at once. And then—"

"Hush, Pierre. There she is," Lawless said, pointing to a ledge of rock not far away.

Without looking at them she slowly turned away and passed up the hillside, her eyes scanning the valley as before.

They watched her till she rounded a cliff and was gone, then they shouldered their kits and passed up the river on the trail of the wapiti.

One month later, when a fine white surf of frost lay on the ground, and the sky was darkened often by the flight of the wild geese southward, they came upon a hut perched on a bluff at the edge of a clump of pines. It was morning, and Whitefaced Mountain shone solemnly clear without a touch of cloud or mist from its haunches to its crown.

They knocked at the hut door, and in answer to a voice entered. The sunlight streamed in over a woman lying upon a heap of dried flowers in a corner and a man kneeling beside her. They came near, and saw that the woman was Cynthie.

Then Pierre broke out suddenly, "Fingall!" and caught the kneeling man by the shoulder. At the sound of his voice the woman's eyes opened.

"Fingall! Oh, Fingall!" she said, and reached up a hand.

The bearded man stopped and caught her to his breast.

"Cynthie! Poor girl! Oh, my poor Cynthie!" he said.

In his eyes, as in hers, was a shine light; and his voice, as hers, said indescribable things.

Her head sank upon his shoulder, her eyes closed. She was asleep. Fingall laid her down with a sob in his throat, then he sat up and clutched Pierre's hand.

"In the east, where the doctors cured me, I heard," he said, pointing to her, "and I came to find her. I was just in time. I found her yesterday."

"And she knew you?" whispered Pierre.

"Yes; but the fever came hard after." He turned and looked at her, and, kneeling, smoothed away the hair from the smiling, pathetic face. "Poor girl!" he said. "Poor girl!"

"She will get well?" asked Pierre.

"God grant it!" Fingall replied. "She is better—better."

Lawless and Pierre softly turned and stole away, leaving the man alone with the girl.

The two stood in silence, looking upon the river beneath. Presently a voice crept through the stillness. "Fingall! Oh, Fingall!"

It was the voice of a woman returning from the dead.

No Competition.

Noah chortled.

"Anyway, nobody can dispute that I got to the top of Mount Ararat," he cried.

Herewith he defied future explorers to adopt his methods.

ADVERTISE IN THE DAILY PRESS

SHOULD SECRETS BE KEPT FROM HUSBAND?

One of the first things that a bride feels bound to do is to empty her past of every little event, every "affair and all episodes which happen to most young women. She pours them into the sympathetic and willing ears of her husband and feels very much better after the shifting of the burden.

But is this right? Is it fair to the other person who shared the secret before? The wife should remember that the proposal which she feels impelled to disclose to her husband is not entirely hers. That lover who was refused offered his life to one person, and it is dishonorable for her to tell a person for whom the words were not intended.

There is another side to this question. Self-preservation suggests that a dignified reticence will prevent the return of these confidences in boomerang chastisement. Men frequently brood over facts, and a distorted, exaggerated idea results.

When every little affair is disclosed to a husband a jealousy of his wife's life and friends rankles in his heart. He misinterprets and is thoroughly uncomfortable.

Do not speak quickly and repent at intervals which stretch for years and years. Do not read your old love letters for your husband to criticize.

This is not a plea for a secrecy that destroys a perfect trust and love between man and woman. Two minds can carry a burden better than one, and the knowledge that your helpmeet understands will make your days worth while. But fortify yourself with the knowledge that he does understand.

Remember that there must be a foundation of trust which should respect a silence in the loved one. If a husband insists that everything be told, explained or excused, he is fulfilling the role of his wife's mentor, not her equal.

Tell your thoughts or your own secrets to your broad-minded husband. Keep the secret that belongs to another to yourself.

TO CLEAN FURNITURE.

It is not always possible to take upholstered furniture in the open for a thorough cleaning and beating. In cities there is neither yard or porch for such work.

Many housekeepers make this lack an excuse for letting furniture get into a condition that would horify them could they realize the germs and dirt concealed.

This is the less excusable, as even heavy tufted furniture can be kept clean indoors without raising a tornado of dust.

Here is a simple plan:

Wring out of warm water a cloth that is large enough to cover a large portion of the furniture. The cloth should not be linty and should be just damp and not wet.

Beat the cloth well with a rattan beater. When one side has become dusty the cloth can be turned. Sometimes it will be necessary to use several cloths on a single piece. Continue until the cloth is not soiled. The dust sticks to the wet surface and the furniture is freshened by the treatment.

If the color of the furniture is not too delicate the cloths can be wrung from hot ammonia water to still further brighten the covering.

If the beating has not removed dust from the corners of tufted furniture it should be attacked, with a small, stiff toothbursh. Better yet, two can be used, first a dry one to get out the worst of the dirt, and then one just moistened to act like the damp cloth.

Remember, moistening does not mean wet. Make a mistake and your furniture is streaked, possibly ruined. When the upholstery is clean rub up the woodwork with a polish.

"PRETENDING."

Practical education is the fashion of the day. The boy at school is confronted with facts. Fancies which soften and beautify life are thought superfluous, and fairy tales are often banished from the nursery. Not long ago a lady walked into a village school and reprimanded a teacher there for telling the babies a fairy story.

Letters in the papers followed, and many agreed with the action of the visitor. To teach a child what was not "true" was said to be unpardonable.

Nevertheless, to listen to stories which are not true and to play games of pretense is, and always will be, a part of the childish program.

Go into your own nursery, and "Let us pretend" are the first words you hear. The nursery table is converted into a boat, the nursery floor is the ocean, the boys the sailors and pirates, and the girls the maidens who are carried off and eventually saved.

That it is all pretense enchances the joy of the whole thing. Before childish eyes spreads a glorious world. Who could be so hard-hearted as to dispel it?

"Discovered."

"Don't you get tired of saying 'discovered!' every night and two matinees?" asked the camdian of the troupe.

"Yes," answered the villian; "I have been 'discovered' so often I begin to feel like the North Pole."—Exchange.

Don't Be A Furnace Slave

The BOYNTON

Square Fire-Pot

FURNACE

reverses the usual order of furnace facts. It requires the least amount of fuel and the least amount of care. In return it gives the biggest, hottest fire you ever knew; a clean, clinkerless fire. It burns all the coal and when you shake it all the dust goes up the chimney. BOYNTON furnaces are clean. They give the maximum of heat for a minimum of expense. We will gladly give you the name of the nearest BOYNTON dealer, so that you may investigate.

There are BOYNTON heating plants of all kinds. Ask about our Round or Sectional Boilers for Steam or Hot Water. Also Ranges.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning Feb. 13, 1910.

Topic.—Bible texts that help me.—Ps. cxix. 97-104. Comment by Rev. Sherman H. Doyle, D. D.

The Bible is divinely designed to help men. It is not a treatise on science, philosophy or even ethics, but a revelation from God and of God, with the supreme purpose of telling men what they are to believe concerning God and what duty God requires of them. Moreover, the book itself is intended to help us to believe and to do God's will and desire. There is no Christian who has not found the Bible a book of helpfulness. In the One Hundred and Nineteenth Psalm, the longest of all the Psalms, having 176 verses, the psalmist speaks continually of the word of God, its greatness and its helpfulness. In every verse of this lengthy poem there is some word referring to the law of God.

In the paragraph selected for our especial study he speaks particularly of the helpfulness of the Bible. He begins by exclaiming: "Oh, how I love Thy law! It is my meditation day and night." Then he proceeds to tell why he loves it and meditates upon it. (1) It gave him wisdom. (2) By it he refrained from a wicked life and from evil ways. (3) In it he found the truth set forth and learned to hate evil. No doubt various parts of the Scriptures furnished the inspiration for these different effects, and therefore David seems to have had his favorite texts or particular portions of the law that helped him.

All Christians have without much doubt had special texts in God's word that have helped them. In meeting trial and temptation how many have found strength in Paul's words, "I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me." In overcoming temper and learning to control it how many have found strength in the words of Solomon, "He that is slow to anger is better than the mighty; and he that ruleth his spirit than he that taketh a city." Amid life's adversities and discouragements how many have leaned hard upon Christ's promise, "Lo, I am with you alway." The fact of His constant presence has been a support to thousands in the Christian centuries. In want and distress many have turned to the Twenty-third Psalm and have found help in the psalmist's stanza, "The Lord is my shepherd; I shall not want." The dying have followed their leads upon Ps. xxiii. 4: "Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil, for Thou art with me; Thy rod and Thy staff they comfort me." In the sorrow of bereavement help has always been found in the consolation of Christ to His disciples: "Let not your heart be troubled. Ye believe in God; believe also in Me." The Bible is full of helpful texts. Seek one for every necessity in life, and in them you will find "grace to help in the time of need."

To assure a successful meeting let each one recite a helpful text and explain how it has been helpful.

BIBLE READINGS.

Ps. xxiii. 46; I Matt. v. 1-12; xi. 28; xxviii. 20; John xiv. 1-3; I Cor. xv. 20, 54-58; Gal. ii. 20; Phil. iv. 13; Jas. v. 13-18; Rev. ii. 10.

A Far North C. E. Society.

Here is a scene in Malmberget, Sweden, fifty miles beyond the arctic circle, where the most northern Christian Endeavor society in Europe has its home. Dr. Francis E. Clark visited this region several years ago. The longest day here is 408 hours, and the longest night in winter is of the same length. For seventeen days in winter the sun does not rise. For seventeen days in summer the sun does not set. What leisurely Christian Endeavor meetings they can enjoy in Malmberget!

Advertise.

Many societies have splendid meetings, but no one ever knows about them except the members and a few of their particular friends. Every society should keep the notice of its meetings before the public in some way. The Sterling (Colo.) society does it by placing a card in the postoffice, in hotels and other public places, and on that card the following is neatly printed:

C. E.
What is it?
A society for young Christians.
Where is it?
At the Presbyterian church.
When is it?
Every Sunday evening at 6:15.
What is the attraction?
Spiritual benefaction,
Good fellowship
And good music.
Shall I attend?
Sure!

ARITHMETIC CONFERENCE

Principal Savitz Talks on Mathematics to County Principals.

TO MAKE SOME TESTS SHORTLY.

Aim Is to Make Course Interesting and Practical—More Time for Teaching Composition.

At a regular meeting of the Union County Principals' Association was held at the Van Court Inn, in Roselle, the subject of "Arithmetic in the County Course of Study" was again under discussion. The superintendent, Dr. J. J. Savitz, strongly impressed upon the principals the importance of making the work in the lower grades very concrete. The aim of the whole course is to make the work interesting and practical. Pupils are to be trained in mathematical judgments of everyday life, such as judging the weight of objects, the lengths of lines, the volume or capacity of vessels and tanks of various shapes and sizes. While attention is given to this direction, many devices for increasing speed and accuracy in the fundamental operations have been suggested. Dr. Savitz gave to the principals a series of tests in addition, subtraction, multiplication, division, and the simpler processes of fractions with instructions that these tests be given in all grades from the third or fourth through the eighth. The tests are to be given during the present month and the results tabulated and recorded.

It was determined to extend the county examinations to the sixth and seventh grade. Heretofore, the examination has been given to eighth grade pupils only. It is believed that the extension of the examinations to the sixth and seventh grades will result in greater uniformity in the work of the county schools.

There was a vigorous argument as to whether or not the teaching of technical English grammar was out of place in the grades. There seems to be a movement on foot to devote more time to the teaching of composition as it is thought to be of more practical utility to a majority of the pupils than the work in technical grammar. The high school teachers, however, complain that the pupils come to them now with too little knowledge of English grammar to do the best work in Latin and the modern languages. It was decided this year to make but one set of questions in English and that to cover both grammar and composition.

MR. AND MRS. A. J. JENNINGS ENTERTAIN AT MUSICAL.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred J. Jennings, of Warrenville, gave a musical to a number of their friends Thursday night, in honor of the Misses Leach and Stine, of Mt. Carmel, Pa. Many fine selections, both instrumental and vocal, were rendered by the Misses Leach and Stine, Rev. George Bowers and daughter, Maud, Mrs. Andrew Haye, Mrs. G. D. Peck and Miss Kathryn N. Reed gave recitations to the delight of all. Refreshments were served at a late hour.

The guests were Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Jennings, Mr. and Mrs Guy D. Peck, Mr. and Mrs. I. V. Adams, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Haye, Rev. and Mrs. George Bowers and daughter, Maud, Mr. and Mrs. John Miller, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Friday and daughter, Anna, Mr. and Mrs. George Friday, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Toms, Mrs. John Cooper, the Misses Leach and Stine, Charles Jennings, Andrew Haye, Miss Florence Haye, Miss Kathryn N. Reed, Miss Ruth Miller, Benjamin Jennings, Charles Miller, Mrs. Eliza Jennings, Miss Eva Gisspie and Miss Tillie Kirch.

Gave a Successful Dance.

The Climax Athletic Club gave a successful dance last night at Truell Hall. Despite the storm over fifty couples were present and enjoyed the dancing, music for which was furnished by Charles Suhr's orchestra. There were guests from Rahway, New York, Metuchen, Westfield, Newark, Somerville and this city. J. P. Terry and F. P. Kelly had charge of the affair.

Great Salvation Army Meetings.

Great salavation meetings will be held at the barracks of the Salvation Army on East Second street, tomorrow afternoon and evening, when Col. Chandler, of New York, will speak. Captain and Mrs. Hewitt and Adjutant and Mrs. Jackson will assist at these meetings and there will be a choir of twenty voices.

Who Is J. F. L.

If "J. F. L." will send his name and address to this office his communication will be published. This is required in all cases as an evidence of good faith. The name, however need not be published.

BOYS OBSERVE BIRTHDAY OF ABRAHAM LINCOLN

The boys' Lincoln Day celebration which was held at the Y. M. C. A. this morning was a big success and close to one hundred and fifty boys, twelve years of age and over, were present. The leading feature of the observance was an interesting talk to the boys on the life of Lincoln by Captain Herbert B. Saunders, of Scotch Plains.

Captain Saunders held the attention of the youths for half an hour. He held Lincoln but as a type of manhood that all boys should try to emulate. Following Captain Saunders address the boys sang a number of patriotic songs.

The boys were also entertained in the gymnasium where a number of Y. M. C. A. athletes displayed their prowess. A basketball game will be played this afternoon. The affair was under the supervision of C. William Bingeman, superintendent of the boys' department.

SCHOOL CHILDREN TO CONTRIBUTE TO HOSPITAL

The Patrolmen's Benevolent Association, which is promoting a scheme to raise funds for the hospital, announce that boxes will be placed in all the public and private schools of the city and borough on the afternoon of March , and the contest will continue from March 4 to 11. Permission has also been secured to place similar boxes at the different stations of the New Jersey Central in this city.

The prize cups and banners have been purchased and the former are now being suitably engraved. Envelopes will be distributed among the school children, so that they can take them home and secure contributions for the hospital. The children and individual classes raising the greatest amount of money will be rewarded.

HEART-BROKEN HUBBY HUNTS FOR MRS. LEES

There is just one more chance left that the clue started here may result in bringing to light the whereabouts of Mrs. Anna Lees, the missing wife of Victor Lees, of East Orange. It is this: Mrs. Lees came to a house in Plainfield, where there was a German woman who had planned to make a trip to Germany, but was detained on account of illness This woman had a daughter who met with an injury to her arm. These facts have come to light through investigations made by the husband of the missing woman.

Mr. Lees is confident that if the doctor who attended a woman or the two women, mother and daughter can be found, he will be able to locate the house and thus get on the track of his wife. In order to aid the doctors of this town in remembering the case Mr Lees said that a doctor from New ark, whose name he does not know, was called in consultation with the local physician.

Mr. Lees hopes that with this to guide the memories of Plainfield physicians some one of them will remember the circumstances and divulge the address of the people whom Mr. Lees is endeavoring to find. The despairing husband is now searching the restaurants in New York for the Italian woman who bought the house from the woman who was too ill to take her trip to Germany.

COL. ALFRED A. CHANDLER SPEAKS HERE TOMORROW.

Colonel Alfred A. Chandler, principal of the Salvation Army Training College in New York will pay his farewell visit to this city tomorrow. Three large services have been arranged for.

The colonel will preach at the morning service in the Temple Baptist church. In the afternoon at 3:30 o'clock and at 8 o'clock at night special services will be held at the Army hall on East Second street, in connection with the midwinter camp meeting which is now being conducted so successfully. A choir of twenty will render special vocal selections. New additions have been added to the decorations. All are urgently requested to attend these special services.

PLAN GOLDEN JUBILEE

Knights Templar to Observe Fiftieth Anniversary in May.

FEATURES OF CELEBRATION.

Banquet, Parade and Installation on Program Which Will Attract High Masons to Trenton.

Trenton, the headquarters of the Masonic order in the State, will witness the celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the Knights Templars of the State, May 9 and 10, in which Trinity Commandery No. 17, of this city, will take part. The program will include a banquet for the grand commandery parade, in which visiting knights will take part, and a public installation of the grand officers.

The festivities will begin Monday evening, May 9, with a banquet. On Tuesday morning there will be a short business session, after which a parade will take place, in which every commandery in the State is expected to march. During the parade, which will be reviewed by Rev. Henry W. Rugg, of Rhode Island, grand master of the grand encampment, a marching cross of fifteen hundred knights will be formed. At night there will be an installation of the grand officers elected at the morning session.

The banquet Monday evening is expected to be the largest gathering of the governing body ever in New Jersey, and will be presided over by I. Layton Register, of Camden, as toastmaster. Addresses will be by Rev. Mr. Rugg and J. Clarence Conover, of Freehold, most worshipful grand master of Ancient Craft Masonry in this State; Samuel G. Rudcrow, of Camden, most excellent grand high priest of Royal Arch Masons, and the illustrious grand master of Royal and Select Masters, the latter being the governing body of Cryptic Masonry in New Jersey, grand commanders of Knights Templars of New York and Pennsylvania.

Others who will make addresses are former Governor E. C. Stokes, of Olivet Commandery of Millville; Right Eminent Grand Commander Charles A. Mohr, Mayor of West Hoboken; Charles J. Hazard, of Highstown, and I. Layton Register, past grand commander.

For the parade Tuesday, merchants and citizens of Trenton will decorate their places of business and dwellings and all will join in welcoming the visitors. Palestine Commandery, the Trenton organization of Templars, has accepted an invitation to act as a general reception committee on that occasion.

The grand commandery was organized at Burlington, February 14, 1860, by representatives from Hugh de Payen Commandery of Jersey City; St. Bernard of Highstown, and Helena of Burlington. These three commanderies in 1862 chartered Palestine Commandery of Trenton. There are in the State twenty-two commanderies, including Trinit. Commandery, of this city.

ROTH AND CO CLERKS DANCE AT SAENGERBUND.

More than two hundred young people participated in the pleasures of the dance given in Saengerbund hall last night under the auspices of Roth & Company's clerks. It was one of the largest dances of the season and everything passed off according to the program of the committee.

One of the features of the dance was the prize waltzing contest for five dollars in gold. Miss Kathryn Overland was the winner of the woman's prize and William Drake carried off the honor among the men. The judges were D. Muldowney, John Conway, Mrs. Randall, George Egel and Charles Calucci.

The committee in charge was W. L. Randall, Robert Skinner, O. P. Crane, James McCarthy, William Skinner, Lewis Stites, Edward Kraman, Oscar Forristel.

MANY FLORAL TRIBUTES FOR THE LATE DR DOYLE.

The funeral service of Dr. Lawrence D. Doyle was largely attended at St. Mary's church this morning, where a solemn high mass was celebrated by Father Bogan, assisted by Father Sciolla and Father Hogan. At the service was a large representation of Knights of Columbus of this city and Woodbridge. The high esteem in which Dr. Doyle was held was attested by the numerous beautiful floral tributes on the bier.

Interment was made at St. Mary's Cemetery, the bearers being Francis J. Blatz, Esq., William G. DeMeza, Esq., John Madden, John Connolly, James Daly and Mr. Cooper, of Woodbridge.

ICE COVERED SIDEWALKS

Caused Accidents and Broken Limbs — Two Taken to Hospital.

COMPOUND FRACTURE FOR ONE.

Miss Johanna Broze and James McCartney Victims—Colder Weather Coming.

Two accidents resulting in broken bones occurred last night due to hidden ice covered by a light snowfall. Miss Johanna Broze, a cook in the employ of George H. Frost, at 745 Watchung avenue, while on her way to town slipped and fell directly in front of the house, sustaining a compound fracture of the right leg below the knee. Miss Broze was assisted into the house by Mr. Frost, his father and Mrs. Frost. Dr. W. H. Murray attended the woman and this morning she was sent to the hospital for treatment.

The other unfortunate was James W. McCartney, of 629 West Third street. Mr. McCartney was on his way to service in St. Mary's church when he fell on the sidewalk. He was found to be suffering from a fractured ankle. City Physician C. B. Lufburrow, who was summoned, had Mr. McCartney removed to the hospital in the patrol wagon.

Several other falls were recorded, but none of the others resulted seriously. An unknown man fell at the corner of Watchung avenue and West Front street, striking his head against the mail box. He was dazed for a few minutes, but refused to give his name to an inquirer. He said he lived in Scotch Plains.

Caspar Bolsterli, of Watchung avenue, while on his way to the Masonic Hall, last night, slipped on some ice, fell and severely injured his arm. He went to the hall, but the injury gave him such pain that he was obliged to go home. It is not thought that any bones are broken, although the arm is severely sprained.

Other minor accidents are being reported from time to time and all the victims are not humans. A horse fell on North avenue this morning upsetting the sled he was hauling. John Bojansky, the driver, was thrown violently against the curb and received a lacerated head. He went home for treatment.

The weather predictions for today and tomorrow indicate a cold snap and it would be wise for those who are compelled to be out and have to use shanks mare as a means of locomotion to use care wherever they find snow on the walks as the hidden ice is treacherous footing.

P. S. C. TO ABANDON ITS PLANT MARCH 1

The Public Service Corporation has decided to close down its West Second street plant March 1, as the power is now served from the big plant at Metuchen. This will mark the abondonment of an important local industry. It was originally built by the Plainfield Electric Light Company and used by that concern until the Public Service Corporation acquired the property.

During its existence it has been under the management of the several men, including the late William Moore. William McClurg, who remained with the P. S. C. for a time after the change, and more recently by Ralph Bache, of Bound Brook, who went to Colorado.

The P. S. C. has been gradually transferring the mechanical part of the plant to Metuchen, until at present it is not used at all. The trolley current for this division is supplied by both the Metuchen and Cranford plants and is found to work more satisfactory. The company will continue to occupy the property, it affording a good place for storage purpose for electric supplies.

The abandonment of the plant, also means that on March 1 the fire-alarm whistle will go out of business, the company having notified the Common Council to that effect, and other arrangements will have to be made before the first of the month for notifying the call men of the department.

Lecture Was Postponed.

Owing to the storm last night Professor Mitchell, of Columbia University, who was to have lectured at the First Presbyterian church on Comets, did not arrive. The lecture has been postponed to Tuesday evening, March 1.

—Jack Townley, a fireman whose post is at fire headquarters, reported to the police yesterday the theft of his bicycle which was taken from in front of headquarters at about noon yesterday.

FIRE ALARM IS WANTED

Public Service Serves Notice on City That Whistle Must be Abandoned.

MARCH FIRST THE DATE SET.

Church Bell Will Be Used Temporarily—Alarm Only Needed to Summon Call-Men.

The fire and buildings committee of the Common Council, at its meeting last night, received a communication from the Public Service Corporation to the effect that it would shut down its West West Second street plant on March 1, and would not supply steam for blowing the fire whistle after that date. It also called attention to the fact that the company had notified the committee that it must make other arrangements about the whistle and this must be considered as a final notice.

The committee discussed the proposed change, and definite action will be taken at a special meeting of the Common Council on February 18, at which time the new hack ordinance will come up for third reading.

As to the proposed method of giving fire alarms, it has been suggested that tappers be placed in the homes of the call-men, also that a tapper be attached to one of the bells of the city churches to give alarm. If it were not for the fact that the call-men have to be informed of every alarm, the city would do away entirely with the public whistle or bell of any kind. This will eventually be done as the department grows and less call-men are needed.

It was reported that the amended building ordinance is now about complete and the committee is awaiting the return of Corporation Counsel C. A. Marsh so that he can pass on the legal points connected with the ordinance. After this is done the ordinance will be presented to the Common Council for action.

The committee also considered last night the numerous petitions referred to it at the last Council meeting regarding hydrants, fire-alarm boxes, etc., and discussed questions pertaining to a re-arrangement of the fire-alarm ssytem at headquarters and throughout the city.

ARTHUR PECK WEDS MISS JEAN BURNHAM

The wedding of Miss Jean C. Burnham, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Burnham, Jr., of Philadelphia and Arthur Peck, son of Mr. and Mrs. James C. Peck, of Myrtle avenue, North Plainfield, took place at noon yesterday at "Kintore," Berwyn, the country seat of the bride's parents. Rev. William C. Gannett, of Rochester, N. Y., uncle of the bride, performed the ceremony.

The bridal party consisted of Miss Margaret Burnham, sister of the bride, as maid-of-honor, Miss Gladys Peck, sister of the groom, Miss Sidney Lewis, Miss Nathalie Wilson and Miss Charlotte Katherin Gannett, as bridesmaids. The best man was Everett J. Peck, brother of the groom. The ushers were Clarence B. Peck, of Charlestown, W. Va.; John Bonsall, of Morristown; Frederick Weston, of New York; Herbert S. Rogers, of this city; Frederick Roland Horne and Alan de Schwintz of New York, and James C. Sellers, Jr., of Burnham, Pa.

DEATH OF MISS PULLINGER, FOLLOWS THAT OF MOTHER.

Miss Marion E. Pullinger, daughter of the late George B. and Mary A. Pullinger, died yesterday after a five days' illness of pneumonia Miss Pullinger is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Carrie M. Slocum, of Central avenue, and Mrs. W. H. Davis, of Washington, D. C.

The funeral services will be held at the residence of Mrs. Slocum, 502 Central avenue, on Monday afternoon at 2:30 and will be conducted by Rev. Dr. John Sheridan Zelie, pastor of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church.

Miss Pullinger's mother died only on February 2, which makes this a double bereavement to the two surviving sisters, who have the sympathy of a large circle of friends.

Britton Arrested in Newark.

Walter Britton, a brother of Eugene Britton, formerly of Arlington avenue, was arrested in Newark yesterday on suspicion of being the man who a year ago slashed Officer Troy, of the Newark police, with a razor. The description of the man given by Troy of his assailant fits Britton, and he is being held pending a further investigation.

OFFICIALS DISCUSSED GREENBROOK PROBLEM

Mayor Charles J. Fisk and the heads of the various departments held a conference in his office yesterday afternoon, and took up routine matters. Nothing of any great importance engaged the attention of those present, and the session was naturally a short one.

Mr. Fisk stated that as yet he had received no answer to his letter to County Attorney William R. Codington, regarding certain questions about Green brook, but as there was no hurry the latter had probably not given the matter prompt attention.

The city is desirous of ascertaining definitely the dividing lines of the brook, with a view to allowing certain improvements to be made; also to determine the question of responsibility as to bringing about a more sanitary condition of the brook. All of the heads of departments with the exception of Chief Doane, attended yesterday's conference.

TWO YOUTHFUL HOBOS BANISHED FROM TOWN

Two young tramps, Henry Dixon and Thomas Coleman, both claiming Mechanicsville, N. Y., as their home, were picked up yesterday by Patrolman McDonald, who found the two boys asleep in the eastbound station of the railroad. Both young men are about twenty years old and both claimed to be looking for employment. Dixon said he was a boilermaker's helper while Dixon said he was a bell hop and had recently been employed at the Fitchburg House, Fitchburg, Mass.

The youths were fairly well dressed and of clean appearance. They were accused of panhandling on West Front street besides using the station for a bedroom. Judge Runyon allowed them to go on thier promise to get out of town.

MAYOR FISK BUSY PLANNING CONFERENCE

Mayor Charles J. Fisk, who is the head of the legislative committee appointed by Governor J. Franklin Fort, is busily engaged in getting several matters in shape for presentation at Trenton on Tuesday. Mr. Fisk is now chairman of the State organization of Mayors, and on Wednesday he went to Atlantic City, where he held a conference with Mayor Franklin Stoy, of that city. They are both members of the legislative committee appointed by Governor Fort.

Their meeting was for the purpose of preparing suitable municipal legislation for presentation to the Legislature during the present session. The Mayors of the State will hold another conference at Trenton on Friday, February 25, instead of February 18, as originally intended, it having been learned that several officials could not be present on the latter date.

"Sanitary" Garbage Fumes.

Mrs. Frank Kreske and her son Frank, Jr., had to answer a charge brought by Health Officer John O'Brien, of leaving the tops of garbage cans off while driving through the streets, and the added charge of not exhibiting their permit number on the side of the wagon as required by law. The boy explained that it was just an omission due to forgetfulness in regard to the covers and that the wagon which had the permit number on it was being repaired. They will be more careful in the future.

Children of Farway Lands.

This will be the subject of a special stereopticon service at the Congregational church tomorrow evening. Babies, brown babies, yellow and black babies and white babies of many lands will be shown in fine colored pictures, while the talk will tell what they do and what is being done for them. Everyone loves to see children and everyone will be interested.

Presented With a Watch.

Jerusalem Chapter, No. 24, R. A. M., at its communication Thursday night, presented Caspar Bolsterli with a handsome gold watch in appreciation of his many years of faithful service as tyler of the lodge. Mr. Bolsterli has held this position for nearly twenty years. The presentation was a great surprise, and the gift was thoroughly appreciated.

MR. NICHOLS' SUCCESSOR

Some Who are Mentioned to Fill Unexpired Term in Borough Council.

SELECTION FRIDAY NIGHT.

Those Talked of Include Alexander Milne, Rev. Mr. Warner, Murray Burtis, Geo. Rogers and C. A. Lee.

Rev. George A. Warner, one of the most popular residents of the borough, is being mentioned as a possible successor to Charles L. Nichols, whose resignation as a member of the North Plainfield Council was exclusively told in this paper yesterday. The clergyman has taken a deep interest in civic affairs in both borough and city since he became the rector of Holy Cross church, and has frequently been heard before the Board of Trade and other civic bodies who have listened with interest to his instructive talks on municipal matters. The fact that he is a man of the cloth, his many friends argue, should not deter him from accepting such a position if the Council should tender it to him.

Alexander Milne, a contractor, is another mentioned for the place. Mr. Milne has a host of friends and has always displayed a lively interest in public affairs.

Among others whose names have been connected with the vacancy are former Councilman Charles A. Lee, Murray Buttis and George Rogers, all of whom are good men. According to report the borough fathers will select Mr. Nichols successor at the adjourned meeting on Friday night when Mr. Nichols' resignation will be accepted.

ANNOUNCE ENGAGEMENT DURING A RECEPTION

Mr. and Mrs. Michael Rimmer, of Essex street, gave a reception last night to their eldest daughter, Miss Elsie Rimmer, whose birthday anniversary occurred yesterday. Her engagement to John B. Slorah, was also announced. About twenty-five relatives and intimate friends were present.

Mrs. Rimmer and Miss Rimmer received. After congratulations, the company enjoyed parlor games and the singing of popular songs. A collation was served in the dining-room, where a surprise awaited the guests. Without the slightest hint, a large pound cake, attractively iced was brought in. It bore this inscription: "Betrothed—Elsie M. Rimmer to John Brander Slorah." This was followed with best wishes to the couple, and Rev. L. R. Howard offered a toast.

Miss Rimmer is the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Rimmer. She is an active member of Hope chapel, a member of the church choir and interested in all activities of the chapel. Mr. Slorah is the fourth son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Slorah, of Prescott place. He, too, is active in the work at the chapel, a member of the choir, the Men's Club and Wilhelmina Runyon Bible Class. No date has been fixed for the wedding.

LECTURE BY DR. A. E. WINSHIP AT SOMERSET SCHOOL FEB. 16.

Superintendent of Schools Henry M. Maxson, has made arrangements with Dr. A. E. Winship, a lecturer of national reputation, to address the teachers of the schools of this city and North Plainfield in the auditorium of the Somerset School next Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

The subject of the lecture will be "The Schools and Their Critics." Anyone interested will be cordially welcomed to the lecture, whether a teacher or not.

Mr. Winship was the speaker at the High School graduation exercises several years ago and pleased a large audience on that occasion.

LINCOLN'S BIRTHDAY VALUABLE SOUVENIR.

The front page of the New York Herald of Sunday, April 16, 1865, contained the first sad news of the death of Abraham Lincoln and the more accurate and earliest details of the Nation's calamity, reproduced in these columns yesterday by permission of America's foremost journal attracted general interest. It was of great educational value to the young and to those who witnessed the stirring days of the Rebellion was a vivid reminder of the irreparable loss suffered by the nation when it lost the savior of the Union. The page was presented by the Plainfield Trust Company.

FROM FACTORY TO HOME

As a careful buyer you want the best piano, but you only want to pay for what you get. The ordinary piano is manufactured expensively for lack of factory facilities and sufficient capital to buy for cash, and the instruments when manufactured are sold through jobbers and retailers to you. Why should YOU pay all these useless expenses and profits

THE HALLET & DAVIS PLAN

We buy the best materials the markets of the world afford, hiring the best artisans, sparing no expense in thoroughly equipping our factories with the most approved machinery, not only to do the work more accurately but save cost to you.

We sell direct to you through our branch stores and factory distributors. The result is that you buy the best piano in America at any price.

Write to-day for catalog and "Hallet & Davis Pianos and Their Friends."

JOHN JEPSON, BOSTON

INSPECTS STATE SOLDIERS.

U. S. A. Officer Goes Into Detail in Trenton Armory.

Trenton, Feb. 12.—That it is the intention of the War Department to place the militia of the various States on the basis of the regular army standard was shown by the minute inspection made Friday night in the armory of the brigate staff, the regimental staff of the local battalion.

The inspection was by Captain Robert H. Allen, of the United States army, and he questioned every man personally as to his duty and particularly to immediate necessities in aiding the injured. This required considerable time, and it was long past 11 o'clock when he finished his inspection. He was assisted by Colonels Patterson and Condict.

Colonel Nelson Y. Dungan, commander of the Second Regiment, entertained his staff and the inspecting officers at dinner in the Sterling before the inspection at the armory took place. Those at the dinner were Colonel Dungan, Captain Robert H. Allen, Colonel William Libbey, Colonel O. H. Condict, Colonel George L. Forman, Major Horace N. Reading, Major William B. Martin, Major John H. McCullough, Major P. A. V. Van Dorn, Captain John M. Rogers, Captain William E. Pedrick, Captain E. J. Gordon, Captain S. K. Browning, Captain C. D. McMurtry, Captain Charles S. Silvester, Lieutenant E. Y. Breese, Lieutenant T. J. Hurley and Lieutenant S. J. Galpin.

Doctor Gets Big Damages.

Flemington, Feb. 12.—Dr. Fred L. Johnson, of Flemington, who has a suit in the Supreme Court against Gilbert A. Van Doren for $5,000 damages for selling him a horse alleged to be unsafe to drive, won a decision on demurrer yesterday in an opinion filed by Justice Alfred Reed.

KILLED BY TRAIN DURING SNOWFALL.

Blinded by the driving snow, Thos. A. Brennan, 68 years old, gateman at the Carey street, Orange, crossing of the Lackawanna Railroad, was instantly killed by an eastbound passenger train, while shovelling snow from the crossing at 7:30 o'clock last night.

There was only one witness to the fatality, a man who notified the Orthopedic Hospital, a short distance from the railroad, and disappeared. The crew of the train evidently did not see the accident as the engineer did not stop.

It is supposed that Brennan did not notice the approach of the train, which was not on time, because of the snow which was falling fast at that hour, blowing into his eyes as he worked to keep the crossing clean. His body was hurled many feet in the air and he was dead when the ambulance sent from the hospital arrived.

Brennan lived at 14 Joyce street West Orange. He is survived by three daughters and two sons.

Brocade Blouses.

Blouses of brocade are being worn with the high-waisted tailored skirts and long coats to complete the street costume. They are veiled with net and chiffon in the color of the suit and are most attractive. With elaborate costumes blouses of flowered brocade are worn and these are veiled with fine spotted net or rows and rows of fine Valenciennes lace joined with fine gold or silver braid.

RUTGERS COLLEGE ISSUES A NEW CATALOGUE

New Brunswick, Feb. 12.—The Rutgers College catalogue for the year, which has just appeared, is much improved over the previous issues in its arrangement and typography. The list of faculty includes forty-one; other officers, instructors and assistants fourteen.

The requirements for admission have been restated in a clearer form. The requirements are fifteen points for the bachelor of arts, the bachelor of letters and the general bachelor of science courses. For admission to the technical bachelor of science course or the courses in civil, electrical and mechanical engineering, chemistry, clay-working and ceramics, agriculture and biology thirteen points will be accepted for the present.

The statement of the ground to be covered to satisfy the entrance requirement has been greatly simplified and made easier for the prospective student to understand.

Among the new items in the catalogue are the O'Grady prizes in speaking, established by Monsignor O'Grady, of New Brunswick; a first price of $15 and a second prize of $10, to be awarded to the best and second best extemporaneous speakers of the senior class at the annual competition, and the John Oliver Herbert memorial fellowship, established by John W. Herbert, of New York, of the class of 1872, the income to be awarded annually at the close of the college year to a member of the senior class as a result of competitive examination, coupled with regard to excellence of general qualifications and with respect to the college standing of the competitors. The holder of the fellowship is to be appointed for one year of graduate study in the college, pursuing for his major work studies in political science.

In addition to the students in college there are seventy-five students enrolled in the short courses in agriculture, making the total student enrolment 415.

Three alumni associations have been organized during the year, the Rutgers College Alumni Association, of Southern California, with headquarters in Los Angeles; the Rutgers College Alumni Association, of India, and the Rutgers Club, of Cleveland, Ohio.

The following public meetings and lectures have been announced:

February 12—Monsieur R. H. Bargy, professor of romance languages at the Normal College of the City of New York, will deliver a lecture in the fine arts lecture room on "Romanticism in the Victor Hugo Museum."

March 21—Lecture by Charles N. Eliot, LL. D., ex-president of Harvard University, subject, "Ups and Downs of Democracy."

February 21—An address by Baron Dairoku Kikuchi, president of the Imperial University of Kioto, Japan, subject, "The Intellectual and Moral Development of Japan." The baron has been commissioned by the educational authorities of Japan to deposit a memorial wreath upon the grave of David Murray, LL. D., by whom the educational system of Japan was organized. Dr. Murray was professor in Rutgers College when appointed by the Japanese government. After his return from Japan he was for many years a trustee of Rutgers College.

Corporation Notice.

Notice is hereby given that an ordinance entitled "An Ordinance to vacate an unused and unaccepted street on property of John W. Murray and others, on West Eighth Street, between Central Avenue and Division Street, being an extension of New Street," a copy of which is subjoined to this notice, has been introduced before the Common Council, read the second time, and ordered engrossed preparatory to its third reading, and that it is the intention of the Common Council to adopt such ordinance at the regular meeting of the Common Council to be held in the Council Chamber, No. 149 North Avenue, in the City of Plainfield, N. J., at eight o'clock p. m., on Monday, the seventh day of March, A. D. Nineteen Hundred and Ten, at which time and place, prior to the adoption of said ordinance said ordinance will be considered by the Common Council, and all persons interested may be heard before the Common Council with reference to the proposed ordinance.

By order of the Common Council.
JAMES T. MacMURRAY.
City Clerk.

Plainfield, N. J., February 7, 1910.

AN ORDINANCE

To vacate an unused and unaccepted street on property of John W. Murray and others, on West Eighth Street, between Central Avenue and Division Street, being, an extension of New Street.

Whereas, It is alleged, that the hereinafter described unused and unaccepted street, referred to and shown only by parallel lines, on a map made by Thomas B. Stillman, Clark Rogers, Nathan Rogers and Nicholas Rogers, which said map was duly filed in the office of the clerk of Essex County, in the year Eighteen Hundred and Fifty-three, has never been opened to public use, or accepted by the City, although dedicated as a street, and that John W. Murray, Julia M. Van Buren, Mary S. Andrews, Hettie F. Milliken and Foster Milliken, executor of the estate of Samuel Milliken, Jr., deceased, Louise K. Green, Thomas E. H. Curtis and Delia D. Erickson, individually and as executrix of the estate of Eric N. Erickson, deceased, are all the owners of abutting lands on said street, and have applied to the Common Council of said city, to vacate said street, pursuant to Chapter 139 of the Laws of 1897, and have filed with the City Clerk the consents required by said act.

And Whereas, the opening of said street would require the expenditure of a large amount of public funds, and it is to the interest of the city that such street should be vacated:

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. That the unused and unaccepted street referred to and shown only by parallel lines on map by Thomas B. Stillman, Clark Rogers, Nathan Rogers and Nicholas Rogers, and filed in the year 1853, in the County Clerk's office of the County of Essex, situate on West Eighth Street, on properties of John W. Muray, Julia M. Van Buren, Mary S. Andrews, Hettie F. Milliken, and Foster Milliken, executor of the estate of Samuel Milliken, deceased, Thomas E. H. Curtis, Louise K. Green and Delia D. Erickson, individually and as executrix of the estate of Eric N. Erickson, deceased, and lying between Division Street and Central Avenue, being an extension of New Street and thus described: beginning at a point in the southeasterly side line of West Eighth Street, distant along said side line southwesterly two hundred and thirty-seven feet from the southwesterly side line of Central Avenue; thence southeasterly at right angles to West Eighth Street a distance of three hundred and seventy-five feet to property of the estate of Samuel Milliken, deceased; thence with the line of property of Thomas E. H. Curtis south sixty-eight degrees and one-half west fifty-two feet; thence northwesterly perpendicular to West Eighth Street, three hundred and fifty-nine feet to the southeasterly side line of West Eighth Street; thence along said side line of West Eighth Street, northeasterly fifty feet to the beginning, be and the same is hereby vacated, pursuant to the acts of the Legislature in such case made and provided.

By order of the Common Council.
JAMES T. Mac MURRAY.
City Clerk.

Plainfield, N. J., February 7, 1910.

AN ORDINANCE

To Lay Out and Open a Portion of Stelle Avenue.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. That the portion of the street known as Stelle Avenue shown on a map on file in the office of the City Clerk, entitled "Application Map to Lay Out and Open Stelle Avenue from the Easterly side line of Union Street to the Westerly line of property now or formerly owned by George E. Fuller, City of Plainfield, N. J., January, 1910," as already dedicated to the public, be and the same is hereby accepted as a public street of said city.

Corporation Notice.

Notice is hereby given that an ordinance entitled "An Ordinance to Vacate Byron Place," a copy of which is subjoined to this notice, has been introduced before the Common Council, read the second time, and ordered engrossed preparatory to its third reading, and that it is the intention of the Common Council to adopt such ordinance at the regular meeting of the Common Council, to be held in the Council Chamber, No. 149 North Avenue, in the City of Plainfield, N. By order of the Common Council.
JAMES T. MacMURRAY.
City Clerk.

Plainfield, N. J., February 7, 1910.

AN ORDINANCE

To Vacate Byron Place.

Whereas, Byron Place, between East Second Street and Midway, as shown on map entitled "Map of property owned by R. D. Benedict, City of Plainfield, N. J., F. A. Dunham, C. E., August, 1892," filed in the Register's Office in the County of Union, and also shown on "Assessment Maps of the City of Plainfield, Union County, New Jersey, East Section, 1899," on file in the office of the Collector of Taxes, is a dedicated street, but has not been opened to public use since the said street was dedicated to public use, and has never been accepted by the public; and

Whereas, it appears to the Common Council that Lewis V. F. Randolph is the sole owner of all the abutting lands on such street, and has consented in writing to the vacation thereof, by filing such consent, duly acknowledged (as in the case of an acknowledgment to the conveyance of lands) in the office of the City Clerk, and in addition thereto has filed the written consent of the owners of all adjacent premises likely to be affected by the vacation of such street, and has applied to the Common Council to vacate such street; and

Whereas, the opening of such street by the City would involve a large expenditure of public funds, and the opening of such street to public use would be of no public benefit, and in the judgment of the Common Council it is to the interest of the city and of the public that such street should be vacated, as authorized by Chapter CXXXIII of the Laws of 1888, of Chapter 139 of Laws of 1897, or by both such laws.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. That Byron Place, from East Second Street to Midway, as shown on map, the title of which is recited in the first preamble to this Ordinance, be and the same is hereby vacated pursuant to the Acts of the Legislature in such case made and provided.

BROKER STRICKEN; DIES.

Expires in Drug Store After Stroke of Apoplexy.

Elizabeth, Feb. 12.—Jacob F. Wyckoff, 75 years old, was stricken by apoplexy in front of the Elizabethtown gas light offices, 124 Broad street, yesterday. He was carried into a nearby drugstore, where he died without regaining consciousness. Mr. Wyckoff left his home apparently in health yesterday. In front of the gas company's offices he tottered, and before assistance reached him, fell. He was carried into the pharmacy by several men. The body was taken to Engel's morgue.

Mr. Wyckoff was a retired broker and made his home at 1149 East Jersey street with his only daughter, Miss Alice Wyckoff, a teacher in the Prince Street Public School, and she was in the schoolroom when notified of her father's death.

State Masons Entertain.

Trenton, Feb. 12.—The lodges and officers of the fifteenth Masonic district last night gave a reception to the Masonic grand officers of New Jersey in Masonic Temple here. About 1,000 Masons were present. Governor Fort and former Governor Stokes were among the speakers. The address of welcome to the grand lodge officers was delivered by Past Grand Master W. Holt Apgar, of this city, and the response was by Grand Master J. Clarence Conover.

Mrs. John Drake, of Philadelphia, who has been visiting friends here, has returned home.

ROOSEVELT TO RUN AS A DEMOCRAT.

New York, Feb. 12.—Colonel J. Hamilton Lewis, of Chicago, is in the Holland House. Colonel Lewis has been casting Roosevelt's horoscope and says he knows just what that mighty nimrod will do when he gets back.

"After being in the United States about three months," said Colonel Lewis, "and delivering indiscriminate addresses upon subjects that are of other than a partisan nature, gathering, in the meanwhile, the atmosphere that surrounds the administration of President Taft, Colonel Roosevelt will be found announcing that as the spirit of the times demands that the powers and the profits of government shall be distributed directly to the many, and not concentrated in the hands of a few, to be doled out at their pleasure and for their benefit, the issue is not a partisan one between Republicans and Democrats, but of measures which maintain the Republican party in its intended form, or convert it to a dynasty of official favorites or an oligarchy of the financial few.

"Then he will say that as it is known that all the measures he executed when in office were declarations of the Democratic platform, and those he repudiated and denounced were doctrines of the Republican platform, he is back just where he began public life—a Democrat. Then he will be nominated as a candidate for the Presidency on the Democratic ticket.

"He will have two objects: One is that the Democratic sentiment in the community, whether in the Democratic or the Republican party, will be for him upon his record as a Republican President executing Democratic measures, and he will thus occupy the place of a popularly chosen candidate. The other is to accomplish in history what no other man in our government has done—to be the successful President of two antagonistic political parties. He thinks more of adding another notch to his life, and to have this recorded in history than he cares merely to hold the office."

CHINAMAN GIVES POLICE A TUSSLE.

Trenton, Feb. 12.—Well-informed as to American modes, dressed in the latest cut of college clothes, equipped with a choice assortment of up-to-date American profanity, but shy on American police court etiquette, Joe Lee, a Chinese laundryman, cut a sorry figure when Court Officer Hoffman, custodian of the Central Police Court, got through with him yesterday.

Lee was haled to court because he refused to give a customer his week's laundry, after being presented with a Chinese check which showed no defect except a trifling tear in one corner. He abused his customer so strenuously that a policeman was called in and arrested the Chinaman after a struggle, in which the Celestial used a flatiron.

In court yesterday Lee displayed the same spirit when Justice Harris fined him $5 for disorderly conduct, and promptly started in to clean up the courtroom. Court Officer Hoffman tried to lead him to a cell. He struck at the policeman and swore in good American-English. By the time Hoffman and his prisoner reached the cell-room the latter could find no words, profane or otherwise, with which to express his rage. The arm of the law, his up-to-date sartorial outfit was a mess, and his head and body were bruised and sore.

After spending an hour in the cell, Lee begged to be allowed to pay his fine. This privilege was accorded him, and he was warned not to trifle with the police department again.

HOPE ABANDONED FOR MISSING SHIPS.

Elizabeth, Feb. 12.—All hope for the two schooners, long overdue, is given up by the owners, the Heidritter Company, of this city. The schooners are the Anna R. Bishop and the Martha S. Bement, both due from Florida with cargoes of lumber, six weeks ago. It is also thought the crews are lost, as no word whatever from them has been received.

Captain James E. Bowen was in charge of the Anna R. Bishop, and George Ptranich was captain of the Martha S. Bement. Both men are excellent seamen. Their crews of six men were seamen picked up in New York just before making the trip. The names of the men are not known here.

Each of the three-masted schooners was manned by a crew of six men and a captain, and if they had been picked up by passing boats the Heidritter Company certainly would have heard from them.

The two boats, loaded with about 700,000 feet of lumber, were valued at several thousand dollars. They are partially insured in marine insurance companies.

The Martha S. Bement and Anna R. Bishop left Jacksonville, Fla., on December 16 and 23. It requires from eight to ten days to reach lower Elizabeth. From reports received from other boats it is known that both craft ran into a terrific storm somewhere off the Florida coast.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bahr, of Centreville, have been visiting Mr. and Mrs. Alvah Rude, of this city.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

GOLF.

The annual meeting of the Women's Golf Association of Philadelphia, held recently resulted in Mrs. Caleb F. Fox, of the Huntingdon Valley Country Club, being chosen again for president. It was decided to hold the intercity matches for the Griscom cup over the Huntingdon Valley course, the date to be dependent upon the Women's Eastern Golf Association championship tournament.

Brae Burn has been chosen by the executive committee of the Massachusetts Golf Association for the amateur championship meeting of the organization, which will be held June 15 to 18. The disposition of the open tournament and the dates have been left to a committee consisting of G. Herbert Windeler, H. R. Freeman and H. L. Ayer. The Essex County Club and the Wollaston Golf Club have both been mentioned as anxious to hold this attraction.

The Lesley cup matches for Massachusetts, Pennsylvania and Metropolitan teams will be held at Myopia on September 30 and October 1. On the two occasions when the tri-city affairs were held hereabouts the Metropolitan Golf Association chose the Garden City links, while last year the Pennsylvania association provided the links of the Huntingdon Valley Country Club, generally regarded as the best in the Philadelphia district. That Myopia has done its share for the advancement of golf is shown by the fact that it has already been the scene of no less than four national open championship tournaments. The Lesley cup is at present in the custody of the Metropolitan Golf Association, which has won the trophy for the last five years.

A WALKING GERM ARSENAL JAILED.

Summit, Feb. 12.—John Reubens, of this city, was sentenced to twenty days in the county jail in Elizabeth to be fumigated, also disinfected and to have his clothing sterilized in Justice of the Peace Hick's court here yesterday. All this because he refused to go into quarantine after being exposed to scarlet fever.

'Don't you know," said Justice of the Peace Hicks, "that your clothing will carry germs?"

"I do not," replied Reubens.

"Nevertheless and notawithstanding your apparent ironance," resumed Justice of the Peace Hicks, "such are the facts."

"Do you think I am loaded down with germs?" asked Reubens.

"I do," replied the justice of the peace. "In fact, I am sure of it. I would wager that the germs on you are as numerous as pipes in Holland."

"With what am I charged?" asked Reubens. "Is it anything so serious that I will have to go to jail?"

"The specific charge against you," replied Justice of the Peace Hicks, "is breaking your quarantine. I think that I will change the charge to one of carrying concealed weapons."

"But I have not carried anything dangerous," protested Reubens.

"What!" shouted Justice of the Peace Hicks. "Not carried anything dangerous! Great Scott and little fishes, man, you are carrying the most dangerous things I know of! Why, your clothing must be full of scarlet fever germs. Just think of it, every man, woman and child in this city may be stricken with scarlet fever all because of the arsenal of germs you are toting around.

"Is he stricken with the disease?" asked the court.

"I feel better now; think I have recovered," said Reubens.

"Nevertheless, a man loaded down with scarlet fever germs is too dangerous to be at large," ruled Justice of the Peace Hicks. "You will go to the county jail for twenty days to be disinfected."

"Suppose," ventured one of the court attendants, "that he causes an outbreak of scarlet fever in the institution."

"They will take care of that," replied Justice of the Peace Hicks, "and we will take care of Summit."

Reubens walked into the home of a friend in which there was scarlet fever. Reubens, Justice of the Peace Hicks thinks, if given a microscopic examination, would reveal enough scarlet fever germs to start a large-sized epidemic.

Mr. and Mrs. William Schwartz and daughter, Edith, of this city, have been visiting relatives in Somerville.

Miss Laura J. Runyon of Madison avenue, is able to be out again after being detained at home several days by illness.

Miss Anna L. Case, formerly soloist at the First Presbyterian church, will sing at the concert to be given at the Metropolitan House, tomorrow night.

Plainfield Council, No. 294, Jr. O. U. A. M., will meet Monday night, when it is expected several applications for membership will be received.

Plainfield, N. J., February 12, 1910.

The Newark Star deplores the fact that the price of fish is so high just now and vigorously denies that it is due to scarcity of the supply, overlooking the fact that this is the Lenten season when the demand is considerably greater and as a result the price soars.

Some one has discovered still another way to tax the people. The very latest is to be found in the shape of a bill to be introduced in the Legislature providing that men between eighteen and forty-five years of age pay one dollar annually for the support of the National Guard. Next!

According to news reports, Orange is suffering from the same evil which was openly practised in this city before the authorities caused the arrest, conviction and punishment of drivers for New York department stores illegally selling liquor here. It appears, however, that the excise board in that municipality is not so wide-awake, or has some reason for preventing proper action, since no notice has been paid to the licensed dealers there who complain of the law's violations. What Orange needs is a Mayor Fisk.

ARRESTED FOR SELLING CIGARETTES TO MINORS

Mrs. S. Goldstein, who keeps a little notion and grocery store at 522 West Fourth street, was haled before City Judge William N. Runyon this morning to answer a charge of selling cigarettes to boys. William Harrison, a colored boy about thirteen years old, was the smoker to whom other and wiser dealers had refused the weed, but who thought Mrs. Goldstein would furnish the nickle narcotics if she did not know it was against the law. Sure enough, Mrs. Goldstein has only recently opened her little place and was entirely ignorant of the law relating to the sale of tobacco to children.

She told the Judge that only her limited knowledge of the business and the law was responsible for the sale, but that in the future she would be more careful. She was discharged.

Plain Field Notes and Queeries

By Druid

Many feasts are eaten in honour of Abraham Lincoln, and long may it be before feasters lose appetite for this yearly tribute. Yet no famous American so little needs this inducement of table homage. All the world is glad to doff the hat at mention of this great name. If Lincoln had been a soldier, if he had garbed his inborn majesty in the gay plumage of a General or an Admiral there would no doubt be ever so much noiser a display of pompt and martial magnificence, which so electrifies the man in the street and his children. Lincoln was immortal before his martyrdom. His glory is that of the plain man raised to the heights of sublimity by noble thinking, calm bravery, heroic endurance, and the strength which proves true greatness. He is not a holiday god only. His acts are his national monument, his words so wise, so apt in wit that stirs and sticks in the memory, have become a national tradition. Lincoln was above all a fine model of sheer goodness of heart. A truer man never lived. He could never have been a killer of men. He yearned to be their saviour, and met the outrageous fate of other lovers of their brother men. A record such as this does more to ennoble a nation in the eyes of other nations than all the liveried and sworded figures that are put up to swagger on prancing horses for country cousins to gape at. If ever there was a splendid fighter Lincoln was that man, a princely lion-heart towering above a horde of professional heroes, thinking, perhaps, as much of their own fame as of anything else. Lincoln well knew that he faced martyrdom, a more pitiful doom than stray bullets bring in the fury of battle. He faced in the chill of daily duty, a loftier courage than the reckless bravado of the field.

How extremes meet! A train from St. Louis was running to St. Paul when St. Opheim, a passenger, drunk, tried to shoot his wife, and then, insane, pitched himself out of the car window. Sequel not reported. These unsaintly happenings might not seem so peculiar if the "St." were used only for street names. Where meanings are lost symbols and labels are better if adopted to modern ideas. Can any reverent mind read without a shock the schedule and fares of the railway from Joppa to Jerusalem or the trolley cars to Damascus?

When the treaty of peace between Japan and Russia was signed in Portsmouth, N. H., a few years ago, most people felt rapturous over the prospect of lasting peace in the far east. And so proud that so signal an event should have been celebrated under the oegis of the American eagle. Well, it has lasted beautifully so far. It might possibly have lasted till this wornout old world of ours shall be flicked out of existence by some frisky comet's tail, but for certain knocks administered to the peaceful parties. Secretary Knox has ventured to ask a little favor from the two Powers, in return for the magnanimous favor we did for one of them, when we relieved the loser from the painful necessity of paying a just indemnity to the winner. He has begged them kindly to so arrange the settlement of Manchurian affairs that Uncle Sam shall be free to set up his market stand there. Now, it may or may not be good tactics for any ambitious secretary to push our national interests wherever there is a ghost of a chance to get a foot in. This is what we encourage, and reward the successful drummer. Whether it is good diplomacy to pose as friends of both sides in a domestic quarrel, with an eye to business, remains to be seen. These particular reconciled foes are both nettled at the proposal and may any day pick up their quarrel where they left it and give Uncle Sam a taste of their resentment.

So the hotel men of Atlantic City are going to offer $200,000 for a great meet of airships of every shape and kind. This will be a dollar each for all the inventors of things that will fly, from balloons to steam-boiler explosions. There will be furious fights between fleets of aeroplanes bumping matches by balloons, kite-flying wagons, winged inventors trotting out their newest machines, and they will all go up and up, sky high. But will they come down as delightfully as they go up Well—if there is a doubt—that is the grand drawing card in the game. We pay to see water come down at Niagara, who wouldn't pay double to see the sky pilot descend sitting straddle-legged on top of his smashed air-horse?

The N. Y. Times, under the heading "Preachers from Abroad," editorially approves the criticism that underlies "the question whether the race of American preachers is dying out," which was asked in this column last week. It is informed by a religious weekly that it can name ten American preachers who can preach as well as the Englishman whom the Fifth Avenue church tempted with its offer of $20,000 a year. We can recall double that number, probably, of able pulpit men who are even better for that church's practical service than any outsider can be, because they are natives, and possess the temperament and sympathy and adaptability which cannot often be imported. Why do not the capitalists of churches encourage their own people? The truth is that the sectarian competitive spirit narrows religion itself and bars out ideal ministers because not bearing their trade mark. This unwholesome pandering to luxury in the importation of foreign pulpit goods is more damaging to genuine church progress than would be the giving up of professional preaching altogether, and returning to meetings for worship.

CONVICTED GUARDSMAN TAKEN TO STATE PRISON.

Walter Jacobson, the Elizabeth National Guardsman who was sentenced to three years in State prison for shooting his wife on the night of December 26 last, was taken to Trenton this morning by Constable Ramsey, of the Sheriff's office.

Jacobson appeared depressed when he left the county jail. Once upon the train, however, he seemed to regain his spirits and began to converse with Mr. Ramsey. He remarked that the journey he was taking was the furtherest thought from his mind only a few weeks ago. He expressed the hope that his stay in the State prison would not be for long.

NEW HOME OPENS.

Governor Fort Makes Address at Girls' Institution.

Trenton, Feb. 12.—The new administration building of the State Home for Girls in this city, formerly the New Jersey Building at the Jamestown Exposition, was formally dedicated with appropriate exercises yesterday. The principal speakers were Gov. Fort and former Gov. Edward C. Stokes. The invocation was offered by Bishop James A. McFaul and the benediction was pronounced by the Rev. Hamilton Schuyler, of this city. A number of exhibition exercises were given by the girls of the home.

You Don't Need Cash To Get a Gas Range

If you want a gas range or gas water heater in your home we will install one, or both, at once and wait for the money.

Our special offer for February and March is that first payments on gas ranges and water heaters sold during these months, shall not be due until April 1st.

Monthly payments on the balance will be accepted after that date.

Gas ranges and water heaters are inexpensive, economical and convenient. Every householder needs them.

PUBLIC SERVICE GAS COMPANY

AMONG OUR NEIGHBORS

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

Services tomorrow at the Baptist church will be held at the usual hours: Morning preaching, 10:45; adult Bible class at 4 o'clock; B. Y. P. U. meeting, 7:15 in the evening. The adult Bible class has just been organized and all those who desire to join are invited to attend the meeting tomorrow afternoon. Rev. Franklin K. Mathiews will teach the lesson.

Several of the local bowlers are getting a team together and are trying to arrange a match with some of the Plainfield teams. If arrangements are completed the match will be rolled some night next week on Lee's alleys.

The Choral Society met for rehearsal last night in the parlors of the Baptist church. The society sings at the Y. M. C. A. concert to be held Thursday night in the Y. M. C. A. hall, Plainfield.

Lincoln Birthday exercises were held yesterday afternoon at the public school. An interesting program was enjoyed, after which school was dismissed until Monday morning.

Fred Clark, who has been dangerously ill at the home of his uncle in Newark, is able to set up for a short time now each day.

Mr. and Mrs. Gere Paff, former residents here, but now of Westfield, are the parents of a son, born Monday.

The weekly prayer and praise meeting of the Methodist church will be held in the church tonight.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

The recent fair and bazar conducted by the Dunellen A. C., netted the committee nearly $100 profit.

William Hackett has returned from Harrisburg, where he has been visiting relatives.

Miss Elsie Peters has returned from a visit to relatives at Cranford.

Recorder Campbell has recovered from an attack of rheumatism.

Mrs. Wilson Fredericks is entertaining friends from Newark.

Justice VonMinden was in Trenton yesterday on business.

TO REVOLUTIONIZE FISH AND GAME LAWS.

In the report of the joint legislative committee of last year appointed to inquire into the fish and game laws there will be many recommendations for changes to the Legislature, which will receive the report some time next week.

Chief among the recommendations which will be made is one for the establishment of a game farm for the raising, care, and protection of game for the State. The salary of the keeper is fixed at $1,200 annually. It will also be recommended that a chief game warden be established at a salary of $1,800. He is to have two assistants at a salary of $1,200, and two extra wardens at $900 each.

A bill embodying all the recommendations will be drawn later and presented to the Legislature. This will change the gunning and fishing dates in many instances, and completely revolutionize the existing laws.

Talks on "Pilgrim's Progress."

Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, pastor of the First Baptist church, will begin tomorrow night the first of a series of illustrated talks on "Pilgrim's Progress." The topic tomorrow night will be "From Den to Wicket Gate." These talks have been planned with special reference to the Lenten season.

CALL TO ENDEAVORERS SOUNDED IN UNION CO.

Purdy F. Benedict, president of the Union County Christian Endeavor Union, has issued an interesting circular letter to all the county Endeavors, calling on them to put forth greater efforts during the coming year. The Endeavorers are now beginning their thirtieth year of work and Mr. Purdy calls attention to the fact that all over the world Endeavorers are striving to gain new members and new societies, so that when the State convention is held at Atlantic City next year, there will be one million new members and ten thousand new societies.

"Cannot we, in Union county, do our share this year for our Master?" says Mr. Benedict. "A special campaign for new members and new societies is urged. Any information needed in regard to this campaign can be obtained from the chairman of the forward campaign committee, of Union county, W. D. Newton, of Summit, or the secretary, Frederick L. Mintel, of Rahway.

"At this time we must give careful thought to the bill before the State Legislature, which if passed, will legalize the selling of liquor and the playing of baseball on Sunday.

"Rev. Dr. Johnson, the superintendent of Sunday Observance and Christian citizenship of the State Union, will explain this further on Tuesday evening, February 15, at 8 o'clock, in the Central Baptist church, Elizabeth. This will be an important meeting, and we need every Endeavorer's co-operation."

WOODROW WILSON OFF TO BERMUDA

Princeton, Feb. 12.—President Woodrow Wilson, of Princeton University, left today for the Berumdas. President Wilson leaves Princeton for a short vacation every year at the end of the first term. There was considerable surprise when it was learned that President Wilson would not postpone his trip. It was generally believed that in view of the existing friction he would remain in Princeton until the atmosphere was somewhat cleared.

It was said here last night that by the action of the trustees the university has lost beyond all hope of reclamation the Proctor gift of $500,000. It is also said that using the Swan bequest of $300,000 for the same purpose, of a graduate school, is more a matter of doubt than ever, and there are threats of withdrawal of financial support by both the Wilson and West factions.

Supporters of both the president and the dean of the Graduate School admit that one of them is likely to retire; this retirement is looked for within the next six months. So far as President Wilson is concerned, retirement would mean his leaving Princeton altogether. Dean West could relieve the situation by surrendering his deanship and retaining his chair in Latin.

Dean West, it is said, has no idea of surrendering. President Wilson is fighting, not for his place, but for a principal that he has advocated. He has since said that the keeping of the presidency was a matter of indifference to him. He has received offers recently from both the universities of Michigan and Minnesota.

Death of Albert Strong.

Albert H. Strong, a former resident of Fanwood, died at Boston on Friday. He was a brother-in-law of Mrs. F. W. Westcott, of Fanwood, and the body arrived here today for interment. The funeral service will be held Monday afternoon at the home of Dr. Westcott.

Miss Agnes Opdyke.

Miss Agnes Opdyke, daughter of Henry B. Opdyke, died at the residence of her uncle, John M. Whiton yesterday afternoon from nervous prostration from which she had suffered for some time. Arrangements for the funeral have not been made

DRIVER OF OIL TANK THROWN FIFTY FEET

A Standard Oil tank wagon was struck by a freight train at Cranford Junction shortly after noon today, killing the horse and hurling the driver a distance of fifty feet. The man, whose name could not be ascertained, was picked up unconscious and hurried to the hospital on a special train. It is not known how badly injured he is.

The approach to the crossing at Elizabeth avenue was hidden by freight cars standing on the sidings and the driver was unaware of the approach of the train which was going about thirty-five miles an hour.

The operator at the Junction tower could not give the injured man's name. He was unknown to those who sent him on the special to Elizabeth.

RECEPTION TO PASTOR OF GARWOOD CHURCH

The members of the Presbyterian chapel, at Garwood, tendered a reception to their new pastor, Rev. Gordon M. Russell, at the chapel Thursday night. One hundred and fifty persons were present, including Rev. Alexander Russell, of Oyster Bay, father of Mr. Russell; Rev. Dr and Mrs. George Francis Freene, of the First Presbyterian church, Cranford; Mrs. Edward Love and Miss Love, of this city.

The late Rev. Edward Love, of this city, founded the work at Garwood, and was largely instrumental in the building of the handsome and commodious chapel.

Rev. Dr. Green presided at the reception and made a brief address, introducing Rev. Alexander Russell who made a short address, followed by E. B. Horton. During the evening there was a program of vocal and instrumental music and refreshments were served by the women of the chapel.

ACKERMAN IS ACTIVE IN TELEPHONE PROBE

Unusual interest is being shown in the forthcoming Gebhardt 'phone probe, especially as Senator Edmund Wakeless, of Bergen county, second man on the committee of investigation, has been named, under oath, as the purchaser of the Mutual Telephone Company, of Huntington, West Virginia. The franchise and plant of the Mutual passed to the Southern Bell through Wakelee's firm last week.

Senator Ernest R. Ackerman is chairman if the Senate committee in judiciary, and the Gebhardt 'phone resolution is in this committee. It is believed that even if Senator Wakelee should oppose the probe, the other members will favor the investigation.

Senator Acekrman to whose committee the question was referred, has been in conference with Assemblyman Taten, and there will be a joint public hearing in the Senate chamber, Monday afternoon. It is expected that Senator Wakelee will make a statement at that time.

The Senator speaks here at the Board of Trade banquet on Thursday night, March 3.

OKLAHOMA MASONS DRAW COLOR LINE AGAINST N. J.

The Grand Lodge of Free and Accepted Masons of the State of Oklahoma, in annual session at McAlester, Okla., Thursday, by unanimous vote, severed fraternal relationship with the Grand Lodge of New Jersey until such time as the Grand Lodge of New Jersey repudiates its members who are colored men. The Grand Lodge of Mississippi recently severed its fraternal relationship with New Jersey for the same reason.

Monument Plans Approved.

Chairman J. Hervey Doane, of the committee appointed by the Board of Freeholders of Union county, to erect monuments to the deceased soldiers and sailors of the Union in the various cemeteries in the county, has received from Adjutant General Sadler, of Trenton, a letter in which the acts of this committee with their plans and specifications have been approved.

Gov. Fort on the Negro Race.

A meeting for the purpose of showing the work of Tuskeegee Institute in behalf of the negro race was held at Philadelphia Thursday night at the Academy of Music, under the auspices of the Armstrong Association of Philadelphia. Booker T. Washington was the principal speaker. Governor Fort, of New Jersey, spoke in behalf of the negro race in the United States. He talked of the Americanization of the white immigration, and urged the negro to save and acquire property, thus forcing an equal chance in life.

Lydia Chapter, Order of the Eastern Star, held a regular meeting at Masonic Hall Association, last night and conferred degrees on three candidates.

SKIRTS ARE WORN LONG.

There is confusion in the minds of many concerning skirts. There is so much talk about smart gowns being five inches from the floor for evening and nearly six inches for morning, that women wonder if there is any hour in which the long graceful skirt is worn.

The strict decree of fashion is this: Skirts five or six inches form the ground for street wear, skirts that sweep over the floor in a round train for the afternoon, and skirts five inches from the floor for the evening.

This is the decree! Everyone does not have to abide by it, but numbers of women will accept it in part, if not in whole. They may not have every evening gown made short, or every afternoon frock long, but they will assuredly have one of each kind to show they know what is being done in the world of fashion.

Surprise for Miss Johns.

A surprise party engineered by some of her intimate friends was given to Miss Florence Johns, of Duer street last night. Games, music and dancing were enjoyed and at a late hour refreshments were served.

WHEN HOOPSKIRTS WERE WORN

There is ill news in store for the fashionable woman. It is being hinted by the editors of the fashion pages that that horrible structure, the hoopskirt, is certain to come in again, says the Grand Rapids Press. It had been hoped that this steel wire contrivance had gone out for good with the close of the Civil War. Several purity organizations have condemned the directoire and gauze gowns and the styles are drifting back to the beehive effect which makes it necessary for every woman to cover a good half-acre of space.

There are many persons alive still who remember with pangs of regret the hoopskirt. It was a contraption which made the human form divine resemble an old-fashioned ink bottle. When a matron walked down the street she had the sidewalk all to her self, and her husband had to either walk behind or walk in the street. When two fashionable dames met and stopped to discuss the events of the day traffic was impeded and drivers had to go around the block.

There are steel engravings which give a good idea of the fashions of war time. One of them is particularly familiar. It represents a man and woman walking down the street. The woman is prominent in a hoopskirt and a little bonnet about the size of a fruit jar cover with strings which tie under the chin. Over her head she holds a parasol which is almost as large as a silver dollar. On account of th hoopskirt her escort is walking at some distance from her, gracefully twirling his mustache. His Prince Albert coat flares out at the bottom and he wears a silk hat two feet tall. His trousers are so tight that one is kept in a state of constant apprehension for fear of an accident. He also wears long hair and curly brown whiskers.

The question is whether the race must go back fifty years for its styles It is to be hoped not. Better the tube gowns. At least the male public has some room in which to move about.

CRISIS IN ENGLAND.

"The Crisis in England," by Sydney Brooks, in the North American Review, is a comprehensive statement of the present conditions in English politics which all the world is watching. Mr. Brooks concludes his article:

"What will be the upshot of it all? The prime minister on December 2 introduced into the House of Commons a resolution reaffirming in the strongest and clearest terms the financial supremacy of the lower chamber. That resolution strikes the keynote of the campaign. The Liberals can hardly expect to return from the polls with an undiminished majority. If they come back even with a majority independent of the Irish Nationalist vote, it will be a very considerable achivement. I know England too well to prophesy with any definiteness the result of a general election, but I shall be very greatly surprised if, in spite of the many formidable interests they have antagonized, the Liberals do not return to power with a clear mandate to bridle the financial pretensions of the House of Lords. One Liberal minister after another has declared that his party will not again take office without a clear guarantee that what occurred on November 30 shall never be permitted to occur again. There is only one guarantee that will meet the situation, and that is a promise by the king that he will be prepared to create a sufficient number of peers to carry through the House of Lords a bill definitely depriving the upper chamber of the right to reject the financial proposals of the Commons. Sooner than be swamped by 500 new men the House of Lords would agree to anything. But the expedient is a desperate one, so desperate as to be in itself sufficient proof that Great Britain is passing through a peaceable but profound revolution and is entering on the prodigious and fateful task of rebuilding almost from top to bottom her constitutional framework."

AN ORANDIE BAG.

Painting the lily is not more delicate work than the improving of organdie, but women who are artists with the needle have done even this. Fancy work bags have been made of this thinnest of crisp party dress materials, and each blossom has been first outlined with untwisted silk floss.

The prettiest organdie bags are made of a large square; the casing describes a huge circle and is an inch wide bias strip of the material. The four corners from a petal-like heading, each point faced with a piece cut to fit it, and on these turned-over pieces of the organdie appears the tracery of goldcolored floss that is to give the final finish.

New Egg Glasses.

Those who prefer not to eat their morning eggs out of the shell are taking delight in the handsome new silver and crystal eggholders. These are in the shape of wine glasses, the stem and open-work bowl being of silver and the inside tumbler of thin, fine glass. These are considered quite smart to give as wedding presents. They are also admirable to give to an invalid or the leisurely woman who always has her breakfast in her room. A small silver spoon is used with the egg tumbler.

THE METAPHYSICS OF LOVE.

(A Pronounced Mixup).

I would, sweet maid, that I were You,
Or else that You were Me;
For, being so transposed, We Two
As One might then agree.
If I were You I should be kind
And let Me closer come;
If You were I, You would not mind
If You should kiss Me some.
And so again, if You I were,
On Me my choice, would fall;
And thus with You, You would prefer
Yourself above Them All.
Oh, let us change our Dual State
And be of Single Thought,
Or Life to Me will demonstrate The Nothingness of Nought.

—F. Moxon, in Puck.

UNDERWEAR HINTS.

Should one wear wool, cotton, or linen next to the skin? Wool has its fanatics, to whom discarding their flannel or merino vest or drawers would seem like risking their lives. But the opinion of physicians has changed notably in recent years, and now many, if not most of them, favor cotton or linen next the skin.

The reason is that wool absorbs perspiration and retains it; it absorbs it with difficulty at first, but surrenders it to the surrounding air with even greater difficulty Cotton, on the other hand, asks only an opportunity to dry, which it does as rapidly as possible.

The best plan in cold weather is to wear cotton, or linen, if you can afford it, next the skin, with wool outer clothing. The wool excludes moisture and cold while the cotton absorbs the perspiration quickly and dries even more quickly, and this without chilling the body if the latter have an outer covering of wool.

In this climate especially, where houses and offices are generally overheated in winter and where, consequently, the transition from indoors to outdoors is attended by a far greater change in temperature than in milder climates where the houses are not kept so hot as in America, it is better to wear cotton or linen underclothes and to rely upon heavy outer garments to resist the cold of the wintry air.

COWARDICE AND INDOLENCE.

To shrink from the duties which come to us in our common callings, however, dull and wearisome they may be, is not only indolence and cowardice; it is also robbing ourselves of the best means of development in life.

When the busy season comes we are not to conclude that we are sick because fatigued, and ought to go off for a vacation. Nor are we to suppose that we should give up our present work for something easier.

Whatever our work may be, in office or store, or field, or school, we should see to it that we "get the music up to concert pitch" at the beginning.

If we start in too low, we may not get right all the year, and a year's working less effectively than our best will hurt our life forever.

There are considerations which should help us to take up our work earnestly after our holiday season; and not least, we should have the inspiration of gratitude—that we have tasks to perform, and the strength to undertake them which is something to be thankful for. Then, if the past year has been spent in a sensible way and has furnished us with new knowledge and, therefore, new vitality, giving us greater strength for the work before us, we should be eager to undertake our tasks, to start the year afresh—going back with joy to our duties.

A Hatpin Holder.

In one of the well-known little hatpin holders made with a glas tube and ribbon the decoration is a long twist of green ribbon covering the tube and suggesting a thick stem. This is surmounted by a chrysanthemum made of tiny fluted ribbon worked into an immense rosette the size of a real chrysanthemnm and resembling that flower. Bows and loops of green ribbon surround it and suggest leaves. The hatpins are stuck in through the flower, which is based upon a piece of bobbinette covering the top of the tube.

Polishing Furniture.

It is not generally known that wringing out a cloth in hot water, and wiping the furniture before putting on furniture cream, will result in a very high polish and will not finger mark.

THE LIVING LINCOLN.

"It was my pleasure to have known President Lincoln personally," said Alexander McDowell, clerk of the House. "I talked with him on several occasions, in Washington and at the front, and while I know him well I do not flatter myself that he knew me well, for there was only one of him and there were forty millions of me. What struck me above all else was his simplicity and every-day common sense.

"He met all men as equals, not in a patronizing way, but in a way that said as plain as words, 'we are all of one blood, and brothers. He was a great man and he was the only one in all the land that did not know it.

"He always remembered his early struggles and poverty, and with a sympathy born of them was ever ready to give a helping hand to those compelled to travel the road that he had been compelled to travel in his youth and early manhood.

"He was a Christian, not a church member—and did by his actions what so many do by their professions only. His life wos the golden rule in action. He loved and had faith in his fellowman, and stood at all time ready to hold the ladder firm while they ascended and no jealous envy ever entered his mind no matter how high the ascent.

"He was a Republican and a partisan, but above all, a patriot and a lover of his country. We need today partisan Republicans and partisan Democrats, men who believe in their party and the principles of their parties and not so many guerrillas that feed between the lines, now on one side and then on the other.

"In his death the South lost a sincere, honest friend and the nation a patriot."—National Magazine.

IN THE SICK ROOM.

The arrangement of the sick room is very important. People seldom realize the wonderful effect which a patient's environment has on his condition.

Brightness and sunshine must have a decided effect upon the nervous system during recovery from serious illness, although in its acute stages much shadow may have been necessary.

The best outlook for a sick room is a southeasterly one. Much can be done at times by altering the bed in order that the light may not cause glare in eyes easily strained because of weakness and ill health.

Have just a few flowers, very fresh; and always take trouble about their arrangement.

Avoid in your sick rooms all heavy hangings and draperies.

Quiet in the sick room is a matter of primary importance.

Whispering or talking outside the door is quite unforgivable. Never if you can avoid it, awaken a patient, whether with intention or by accident.

The patient is infinitely more dependent on his food than on any medicine. Therefore, one should never spare any effort to provide him with dishes likely to be appetizing. But try not to ask him what he wants or likes. Surprises often stimulate the appetite.

TWO-PIECE SKIRTS.

The prevailing fashion of the day is to have a skirt of two materials harmonizing in tone. There is a pleated or circular lower part and a washerwoman's tunic in any form one desires for the upper part. This may be turned up at the hem and attached to the lower skirt with buttons and braid buttonholes when the material is of rough cloth; or it may be left plain, cut in battlements.

Some of the soft house fabrics are merely twisted into a graceful roll at the joining of the two fabrics, and in other frocks one sees a wide scallop overcast with floss in a button hole stitch.

In walking frocks there is a long knee yoke of plaid serge or cheviot and below this a flounce of narrow pleats of plaid cheviot.

When there is not a straight around yoke, there is a long wide front panel that is shaped up at the sides and rounded at the back.

ANTIQUE BRACELETS.

With long sleeves one might suppose that bracelets would be relegated to the jewel caskets, but not so. Fair woman not to be outwitted, smilingly placed them over her sleeves, and now tries to match the general ornamenatation by different styles of metal bands.

Dull-finished gold or silver seems to form an approved setting for semi-precious stones, and these "antiques" made to order are reasonable enough to admit of a fair-sized collection. The welldressed woman changes her bracelets with her gowns

Egyptian, Russian, Italian and Indian jewelry form the models for these lovely ornaments. They give an appropriate finish to gowns that trace their lines back to the other centuries. They are certainly more artistic than the shiny, plain bands of gold. Their colorful lines are effective additions to day and evening gowns.

Good Facilities.

"They say she will create no end of gossip."

"Well, I guess the jobbers in that commodity will be able to handle her output."—Washington Star.

The Girl From the Effete East

By ARTHUR DENSMORE

Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association

BARRINGTON was completing his first year of practice when Theodore Tuppenheim arrived in Knuckleville. Mr. Tuppenheim was selling stock in the Charitable Gold Mining company at 5 cents per share, price to advance to 10 cents at the end of thirty days. Incidentally he found time to foster in Barrington's bosom the spirit of discontent which ten months' fruitless waiting for clients had engendered. If he were a clever, clean cut young man like Barrington, did Barrington know what he'd do? Move west. He wouldn't fritter away his time in a mossbacked New England hamlet where people looked down on a fellow just because they'd known him all his life and could remember when he was a little shaver and went with patches on his trousers. No, sir. He'd just gather together his earthly possessions and take the first train for Gilt Gulch, Nev. There was the coming town; there lay the opportunity for an able young man to rise. No reason in the world why he should not be in the United States senate within five years. That would be coming some? Well, everybody and everything came some in that country. Why, sir, where the thriving city of Gilt Gulch now stood there had been less than two years since naught but sagebrush and alkali. And now look at it—just look at it! Six thousand inhabitants and more coming by every train! Simply couldn't get houses up fast enough for 'em. Had to camp out in tents. And every blamed one of 'em making money. Why, sir, you couldn't find a bootblack in Gilt Gulch who was worth less than fifty thousand!

This vision of wealth and political prominence was quite too much for Barrington. He adjusted his affairs in Knuckleville, which was no very difficult matter, took tearful leave of numerous relatives and of a certain pretty damsel, who was not yet a relative, but had rashly promised to become one whenever Barrington's income should suffice for the support of two persons, and hied himself to Gilt Gulch, promising to send souvenir postcards from every municipality he passed through on the way.

Now, underneath the lurid exaggeration with which Mr. Theodore Tuppenheim had clothed his narrative of the rise of Gilt Gulch there lay a respectable substratum of truth, and the combination of Barrington's ingenious appearance with certain letters of introduction to persons financially prominent in Gilt Gulch, which Mr. Tuppenheim procured for him, resulted in his speedily establishing a thriving practice. For the most part it was work in connection with the location of mining claims, and, besides numerous fees in cash, Barrington acquired several claims of his own, which he disposed of profitably.

In brief, at the end of a year Barrington had waxed so prosperous as to feel himself warranted in marrying. The Knuckleville Weekly Times announced editorially that it understood that young Mr. Barrington, for whom, its readers would remember, the Times had predicted a brilliant career when he hung out his shingle in Knuckleville, was now one of the leading men in the west, and the other village maidens were openly jealous of Susie Cutler, whose good fortune it was to be to marry a millionaire.

But Susie herself had no illusions. She even refused to permit Barrington to come east for the marriage. Her childhood lessons of thrift and economy had taken deep root in her mind, and she would not, she said, have the price of a round trip railroad ticket thrown away. If Barrington felt that he must spend the money, let him buy a cabinet organ or a secondhand piano for the front parlor. They would be married in their own house at Gilt Gulch and after that take a little wedding trip to Colorado Springs or maybe Denver. Perhaps, being a prudent damsel, Susie desired to have a glance at Gilt Gulch before she committed herself irrevocably. At any rate, matters had been thus arranged, and, the date set for the wedding being but two days away and Susie due to arrive that afternoon, Barrington was in the state of ecstasy appropriate to such circumstances. It was in this moment of supreme happiness that misfortune befell him.

The work Barrington had been doing requires to be performed with great accuracy; otherwise it is not only valueless, but may be the occasion of great loss to the client. Now, it is possible that Barrington possessed genius. People who have that, you know, are apt to be careless as to details. Perhaps it was merely that, being deeply in love, he could not concentrate his mind upon his work. However that may be, Hartford, the attorney whose office was next to Barrington's, had discovered in the course of an investigation of the records that Barrington had filed documents containing serious errors. He spoke to Barrington about it in a perfectly friendly way. Barrington received his kindly admonitions with a contempt which he was at no pains to disguise. Why should he pay heed to the remarks of a man who wore baggy trousers and long hair and played faro, to say nothing of becoming intoxicated now and then? He knew well enough what inspired these critical observations. Hartford was jealous of the prosperity which Barrington had so rapidly achieved. Let him stop cavilling, said the virtuous Barrington to himself, and seek success by leading a sober life, as he did.

Feeling that he had been insulted, Barrington thereafter confined his communications with Hartford to a curt "How are you?" accompanied by a barely perceptible nod when they chanced to meet. It was with a good deal of surprise, therefore, that Hartford, glancing up from his rather dilapidated desk as he heard the door open, perceived Barrington entering his office. One had not to look at Barrington twice to be convinced that he was badly frightened. His eyes, which ordinarily regarded those about him with an air of easy toleration, were wide with terror, and his well chiseled features, customarily wearing an air of placid conceit, were now white and drawn. His manner toward Hartford was no longer supercilious. All his carefully constructed attitude of dignity had vanished.

"You've been in this part of the country longer than I have, Hartford," said he. "I want your advice as a—a friend, you know."

Hartford nodded and withdrew his pipe from his lips.

"Sure," said he succinctly. "What's the row?"

"Why, you see," said Barrington, "it seems that in filing the papers for Jim Busby on that last mining claim of his I made a slight error. I have been doing a large business, you know, Hartford—a very large business—and it was inevitable that I should make a mistake occasionally. It seems that some unscrupulous persons have taken advantage of this purely technical slip and have jumped Busby's claim, and he is very much exercised about it."

"I should think he might be," Hartford observed.

"Yes," repeated Barrington, "he is much exercised and quite unreasonable about it. He came into my office a few moments ago and demanded an explanation. Of course I couldn't tell him anything except that it was just a mistake such as any man might make, and he said I was lying to him. He said I was too smart to make a fool break like that and that I was in with the gang that were trying to do him out of a claim that would have made him rich. I argued with him the best I could, but it didn't budge him. He said he didn't see that it made much difference, anyhow, whether I was a fool or a knave, because either way I hadn't any right to live, and he wound up by saying that he'd just go down to the Jolly Dog and get a few drinks to put him in the right frame of mind and then he'd come back and reduce the membership of the Gilt Gulch bar by one."

It is significant of Hartford's broad and tolerant temperament that he did not remind Barrington that he had previously predicted such a catastrophe as had now befallen. Nevertheless a slight glimmer of amusement stole across his face.

"So you want my advice, do you?" he asked.

"I should appreciate it very much," said Barrington.

"Well, you shall have it," said Hartford laconically, rapping the bowl of his pipe against the heel of his shoe. "If Jim Busby were out gunning for me and I couldn't shoot any better than you can, and I had a comfortable little sum saved, as you have, and there were a pretty girl in New England who didn't know any better than to love me, as she does you, I'd go east on the half past 2 train, and I wouldn't hurry back."

"But the trouble is," Barrington explained, "Susie—Miss Cutler, that is—will be here on the train that gets in at 2:50. The trains pass on the first siding out, you know. The fact is we are to be married day after tomorrow at noon. You'll pardon my omitting to send you an invitation, won't you? It was quite unintentional. I've been so busy"—

"Oh," Hartford broke in, with a deprecatory wave of his arm, "you need not apologize. It's just one of those little mistakes a busy man is bound to make every now and then. I haven't Busby's disposition. I'll forgive you."

Then Hartford looked at his watch and found that it was twenty minutes past 2.

"You'll have to move lively, my boy," he said. "Keep an eye open for Jim, and if the coast is clear take the 2:30. If it isn't, walk over to Sand City and take the next one there."

"But about Susie," Barrington remonstrated.

"Pshaw!" growled Hartford. "That's easy enough. Leave a note for her with the station master, telling her to go back to Colorado Springs and you'll meet her there. If you don't have time to write a note, have the station master tell her you've been called away on a life and death matter and that she's to go to the hotel and wait until you send her word. Don't you worry about the girl. She'll prefer a slightly delayed wedding to an expedited funeral. Hurry up now. You've just about time to make it."

As he slipped down the main street of Gilt Gulch on his way to the station Barrington caught a glimpse of Jim Busby's gaunt profile as he stood at the bar of the Jolly Dog, his back toward the entrance. Barrington's indolent heart rejoiced as he reflected that the ten mile walk to Sand City would now be unnecessary. It was just twenty-eight minutes past 2 when he reached the station. He gave the necessary instructions concerning Susie to the station master and rushed out upon the platform. But the train which made up at Gilt Gulch was not yet ready to depart. A freight car had left the rails, blocking the track. Five, ten, fifteen minutes passed, and still the obstruction remained. Barrington grew uneasy. Jim Busby might at any moment deem that he had imbibed a quantity of liquor commensurate with his contemplated task and begin to search for him. But at the end of twenty minutes, to his great relief, the perspiring train crew succeeded in replacing the derailed car, and the freight train pulled slowly out upon a siding. Even as it did so Barrington caught sight of the 2:50 train as it rounded the curve just beyond the station.

A moment later Susie Cutler, her trim little figure set off by a skilfully tailored gray traveling suit and her face wearing the look of determination befitting a girl who had just completed a journey, nearly across the continent alone, descended to the platform of Gilt Gulch station. Barrington rushed toward her joyfully. Within three steps of her he encountered an obstacle—a very serious obstacle. This was nothing less than the muzzle of a revolver. Behind the revolver stood Mr. James Busby.

"Now, young man," said Mr. Busby, "we'll attend to your little matter, and we won't be long doing it."

Then Busby became suddenly conscious of a voice, evidently feminine, proceeding from some point in his rear and of the light pressure of a hand upon his arm.

"Do you know," said the voice, "it's dreadfully careless of you pointing that thing at anybody so. Why, it might go off."

Turning about, Busby looked into the piquant features of Susie Cutler. He decided unhesitatingly that, notwithstanding some freckles and the tendency of the nose to turn up, it was a rather pleasing face to view.

"So it might," said Busby slowly. "So it might."

"Well, then, stop aiming it at Har—Mr. Barrington," she commanded. "You make me nervous."

"Fact is," said Busby, "I was sort of planning to shoot Mr. Barrington."

He had lowered his weapon and spoke very calmly and deliberately.

"What!" shrieked the girl. "You have the audacity to stand there and tell me you mean to commit a cold blooded murder? Where are the police? A splendid place this must be to live in, where a man goes out to kill another as coolly as he'd eat his breakfast!"

"That's the way with all you folks from out Boston way," grumbled Busby. "You're always getting murder and the administration of justice mixed. I ain't going to murder him. I'm going to execute him. He's done me dirt, and if he ain't killed he'll do somebody else dirt. So for the good of everybody he'd ought to be shot. What do you care anyway? Ain't no relative of yourn, is he?"

"Why, no," she answered in some confusion, "he isn't a relative exactly—that is, he"—

A gleam of comprehension shone in Busby's eyes.

"Come to think of it," said he, "I heard something about his being going to get married. Be you the girl?"

She nodded.

"Yes," she answered simply, "I'm the girl."

"Then," said Busby, "it's clear enough to my mind that in interfering with this execution you're preventing me from doing you a great favor. Howsomever, if you stick to it that you don't want him shot and if you'll take him out of Nevada and keep him out"—

The girl did not wait for him to finish. She transferred her grasp from Busby's arm to that of Barrington, who during the preceding conversation had stood silent, his face white, his limbs trembling, cold sweat beading his forehead.

"Come, Harry," she said imperiously.

Meekly, with bowed head and downcast eyes, Barrington suffered her to lead him aboard the train, which was now, the track being clear, about to move eastward.

Jim Busby sat down upon the edge of the platform and burst into a roar of laughter. Long after the train had disappeared around the curve below the station the station master found him there, his broad shoulders still shaking with merriment.

"Well, you doddering idiot," said the station master, "what's the joke?"

"Oh, ain't he going to get his all right, though?" queried the mirthful Busby. "Did you hear her 'Come, Harry,' him and snake him aboard the train like he'd been a puppy hitched to a string? He got out of being executed, but he's getting a life sentence, and that's a whole lot worse."

Senatorial Repartee.

Once in the senate chamber John J. Ingalls was directing some remarks to Senator Hoar of Massachusetts. The other senator from that state, Mr. Dawes, having come in while Mr. Ingalls was speaking, thought the words were meant for his ear, and so, interrupting, he asked Ingalls if he was directing the remarks at him. The Kansas senator turned slowly around, for Mr. Dawes sat behind him, and then, with delicious intonation, but an instant wit, he said, "I was directing my remarks to the successor of Charles Sumner and not to the successor of Daniel Webster."

The repartee has become traditional, and the utterance was at once placed alongside of that reply of Conkling to Senator Thurman, which is also traditional in the senate chamber.

Conkling was speaking, and Thurman had said, interrupting him, "Does the senator aim his remarks at me; he constantly turns to me?" when Mr. Conkling, with delicious gravity, bowing to Thurman, with whom he was very friendly, said: "When I turn to the senator I turn as the Mussulman turns to Mecca; I turn as I would turn to the common law of England, the world's most copious fount of jurisprudence."

STRAIN TOO GREAT.

Hundreds of Plainfield Readers Find Daily Toil a Burden.

The hustle and worry of business men,
The hard work and stooping of workmen,
The woman's household cares,
Are too great a strain on the kidneys.
Backache, headache, sideache,
Kidney troubles, urinary troubles follow.

A Plainfield citizen tells you how to cure them all.

A. C. Lazzi, 44 Elm place, Plainfield, N. J., says: "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills off and on for five years and from my experience with them, I feel that I cannot give them too much praise. I have to do a great deal of stooping at my work and I think that my kidneys became weakened in this way. I suffered from a dull, grinding pain in my back and also had attacks of rheumatism. Another source of annoyance was irregular passages of the kidney secretions. I finally began using Doan's Kidney Pills procured at Randolph's drug store and I was soon in good health. Since then hard work has brought on one or two attacks of backache but a few doses of Doan's Kidney Pills have never failed to give me instant relief."

ONE DOLLAR, PLEASE FOR THE STATE GUARD

A bill for the benefit of the National Guard, imposing a tax an nearly every male citizen between the ages of eighteen and forty-five years, of $1 a year, on the grounds that they are, under the Federal Constitution, the reserve of the army, will be introduced in the Assembly by Assemblyman Duane E. Minard, of Essex, a major of the First Regiment. The bill was drawn by Major George T. Vickers of the Fourth Regiment, and has been submitted to and approved by the New Jersey National Guard Association.

Under the Federal constitution, Mr. Vickers contends, all able-bodied men between the ages of eighteen and forty-five are members of the militia of the State, the National Guard being the organized branch, those not members of the guard constituting the reserves. It is the duty of the assistant adjutant-general to keep a record of all members of the militia, and his records now show something like 550,000 names on the list. Mr. Vickers also holds that they are subject to the orders of Congress, the Dick law notwithstanding.

It is with the maintenance of the National Guard, however, that Mr. Vickers' bill will have most to do. It will provide for a yearly tax of $1 on every member of the militia, those serving in the National Guard being exempt from payment of the tax. The money thus obtained is to be devoted to the support of the National Guard, the State being relieved of this burden.

The money obtained from this source, Mr. Vickers maintains, should his bill become a law, will be more than ample to meet the expenses of the guard. It will not alone provide for maintenance but will also be enough to pay for repairs and construction of new armories and leave a snug balance for the improvement of military roads, otherwise, the good roads of the State. Provision of course, will be made for the collection of the tax.

Bayonne, Feb. 12.—Unless the steamfitters' strike at the new High School is settled in a few days, an effort will be made to take a corps of workmen from the Constable Hook plants to the school and keep them there until the heating apparatus is in place. The conditions in the schools are bad, owing to the congestion of pupils.

SELLING THE STAMPS THE GUMMY SIDE UP

As a precaution against the spread of disease germs the Plainfield postoffice employes are delivering all postage stamps to purchasers face down on the counter. Postmaster Bird received orders to this effect from Washington on February 4.

Heretofore the clerks have been in the habit of handing the stamps out with the gummy side on the bottom. The new order, according to Mr. Bird, is a bit unpopular with local stamp buyers and numerous kicks and objections have been made.

The measure is taken because of the many complaints from health boards and from individual physicians throughout the country that when the stamps are pushed across the counter with the gummed side down they pick up many germs which are licked off by the persons who put the stamps on envelopes.

A lot of persons moistened their fingers with, their lips before picking up stamps and this the postoffice department say was a direct way of carrying germs to the counters, which in many cases were made of wood and held the germs.

We cannot have the Stillman Tract plotted and ready for development before March 1st. Macadam, cement sidewalks, curbs, etc., these things we regard as elementary. But we want to go beyond that and attract the man or coterie who will build a house or houses appropriate to this location.

On its PREMIER BLOCK we intend to go as far as the art-loving demands of our public permit, in the preservation and enhancement of the natural beauties of the Stillman Tract.

The PREMIER BLOCK we wish to be improved in a manner worthy of its natural advantages. For those who wish to stray from the beaten path, for those who prize individuality, for those who think that the home and home grounds should indicate the personality, not of architect or builder, but of those who live there; for those not content with a width of 60 or 70 feet or a depth of 150 or 175 feet; for the man who wants a tennis court, perchance, or a garden, and especially, FOR THOSE WHO APPRECIATE TREES, we offer for their consideration.

SWAMPED BY DAN CUPID

Postoffice Overwhelmed with Valentines, Tender and Otherwise.

SOME SECTIONS ONE DELIVERY.

Loads of Carriers Equal Those of Christmas Time—Rush Will Be Over Tomorrow.

Postmaster E. H. Bird and his corps of assistants were swamped with little old Dan Cupid's mail this morning and to such an extent did the dainty, and otherwise, missives pour into the local postoffice the carriers were loaded down just about like they were at Christmas time.

While few complaints have been heard about late delivery of mail it is a fact that the carriers were from a half to three-quarters of an hour late in starting on their routes. It is quite likely therefore that some of the outlying routes will have but one delivery today. The carriers are not allowed by Federal law to work more than the alloted eight hours and any mail not delivered by the time the eight hour limit is reached will have to await tomorrow's delivery.

And Cupid is to blame for the whole thing, because the greater bulk of the mail matter is of the kind which illustrates the twin hearts and they come in boxes and huge envelopes and their bulk makes it hard for the carriers to lug along more than just so many pieces and the loads they had to tote this morning would have discouraged a pack horse.

Mr. Bird said that although the greater part of the deluge of mail matter would be in by tonight the postmen would still be carrying heavy loads. The snow and ice, too, contribute in no small measure to the delay in getting around as in some parts of the city the going is not what one would specially desire for a long walk. In the matter of stamp sales nothing has equalled the sale of one cent stamps in this city before. One druggist in the city sold three hundred ones yesterday and it is almost impossible to say with any degree of accuracy how many stamps were sold at the postoffice. Compared with last year there is an increase of large dimensions, but the exact quantity of mail handled will not be known until the end of the month when the accounts are made up. So, then patience is the best word for the postoffice department today and tomorrow.

FUNERAL SERVICES OF MISS AGNES OPDYKE.

The funeral services of Miss Agnes Opdyke, daughter of Henry B. Opdyke and the late Miriam Whiton Opdyke, were held yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock from the home of her uncle, John M. Wilton, on Central avenue, and were largely attended by relatives and friends. Rev. Charles L. Goodrich, pastor of the Congregational church, officiated. The burial will take place today at the convenience of the family.

Miss Opdyke, who was thirty-three years of age and a native of New York, resided on Farragut road, this city, when a girl. She was graduated from Radcliffe College, Class '04. Prior to that time she was registrar at the National Cathedral School, in Washington, and following her graduation she held a similar position at Barnard College, New York city, for four years.

A year ago last spring Miss Opdyke gave up her position in New York to undertake trade school work in Boston under Miss Marshall. A severe attack of nervous prostration compelled her to relinquish her work last November and she gradually failed until the end on Friday night. She was a young woman of strong character, talented and was loved and admired by a host of friends and acquaintances. She is survived by her father and two brothers, Henry Opdyke, of New York city, and Howard Opdyke, of Schuectady, N. Y.

Patriotic Supper.

On Thursday night of this week there will be held a "Patriotic Supper" at the Congregational church from 6:30 to 8 o'clock. There will be after dinner speeches by prominent speakers, among whom will be Alexander Millar, whose topic will be "Patriotism of Foreigners." Special music has also been arranged for the evening. The proceeds of the supper will be applied to the Church Enlargement fund.

To Tell of Mexico.

Mrs. George F. Fisher will read a paper on "Mexico" to the Women's Association of the Congregational church in the church parlors tomorrow afternoon. There will also be fresh news from the field by Mrs. Dunning.

INCENDIARY BLAZE AT SCOTCH PLAINS

Fire destroyed the home of George Frentz on Montague avenue, Scotch Plains, at an early hour this morning. The blaze was probably of an incendiary origin as the family was away, having gone to Catskill, New York, Wednesday of last week.

The fire was first discovered by John Ford, a neighbor, at about 5:15 o'clock. At that time the entire structure was ablaze within and there was no possible opportunity to save any of the household goods. An alarm was turned in but all the firemen could do was save the barn, which was already smoking when they arrived.

Mr. and Mrs. Frentz were preparing to remove to Montana in the spring and Mr. Frentz had taken his family to Catskill where they were to remain until he had packed the household goods and forwarded them west. The House was owned by Mr. Frentz's father A. L. Frentz, and he said this morning that he had a purchaser for the property and expected to sell it as soon as his son moved out.

The loss on both household goods and house is said to be only partly covered by insurance.

MAY USE TRINITY BELL FOR FIRE ALARM SIGNAL

The necessity which compels the fire department to look for some means of notifying the call men of fires after the removal of the steam whistle privilege on March 1, prompted Father Bogan, rector of St. Mary's church, to put the bell of the church at the disposal of the department, but there is an objection to this because of the fact that St Mary's bell rings at certain stated times and there is the possibility of this confusing the signals.

Chief T. O. Doane, in looking over the field, discovered that the bell in Trinity Reformed church tower would be just about the central point in the city and if that could be secured temporarily would answer the purpose to better advantage. With this end in view he consulted some of the church authorities and said that the fire and buildings committee of the Common Council would be responsible for any damage done to the bell while in use by the department. A special meeting of the consistory of Trinity will be called to consider the matter within a few days and from what can be learned favorable action will be taken.

MRS. H. C. COMPTON PASSED AWAY YESTERDAY

Mrs. Emma Durbrow Compton, wife of Halsted C. Compton and daughter of the late Joseph and Mary Preston Durbrow, died yesterday at her home, No. 1014 West Front street. The funeral will be held tomorrow from her late residence at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, services being conducted by Rev. Dr. John A. Chambliss, pastor of the First Baptist church. The interment will be in Hillside cemetery.

Mrs. Compton is survived by three daughters and one son. She came to this city from New York when quite a young girl and was married nearly fifty years ago to Mr. Compton. The family first took up its residence on East Front street, afterwards moving to their present home.

Celebrate Birth of a Son.

There was a large gathering of relatives and friends yesterday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Goldstein, of Cedar street, the borough, the event being in honor of the birth of a son a few days ago in the Goldstein home. Rabbi Rotman, of this city, officiated at the ceremonies. There were fifty guests presents from New York, Newark an this city. An elaborate feast was served. Mr. Goldstein is in charge of the tailoring department of Adelberg's store.

Obsequies of Mrs. Flanders.

The funeral service of Mrs. Margaret Mann Flanders, was conducted at the home of her brother-in-law, Edward Willis, on South avenue on Saturday afternoon. Rev. Morgan Ashley, rectory of St. Stephen's church, officiated. Interment was made in Hazelwood cemetery, Rahway.

Small Kitchen Fire.

A fire in the kitchen of the Misses Dunavan's apartments at 134 Central avenue at 9 o'clock last night created a little excitement in the neighborhood, but only a slight damage resulted.

ANOTHER VACANCY IN BOROUGH FIRE DEPT.

Otto Rupert quit his job as assistant driver in the borough fire department this morning. Rupert's resignation is the second resignation in the department in one week, Lieutenant William Gaub giving up his post last week. Small pay and no off days was the cause of Gaub's resignation. Percy Culver will act in his place until a successor is appointed at the next borough council meeting.

Albert Fritz assumed the position of lieutenant as successor to William Gaub today. Mayor Smalley and Councilman J. J. Stahl, chairman of the fire committee, had a conference in the Council chambers this morning, and officially notified Fritz of his appointment.

ILLUSTRATED ADDRESS ON "PILGRIM'S PROGRESS"

Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, pastor of the First Baptist church, gave the first of a series of illustrated gospel talks in the church last night on Bunyan's "Pilgrim's Progress." They will be continued for three Sunday nights, when he hopes to complete the story. There was a large congregation and all thoroughly enjoyed the first part of this talk, which included the journey of "Pilgrim" from "Den to Wicket Gate."

The pictures were especially good, while the talk by Dr. Chambliss was a delightful one, holding the closest attention of all. There are many people who are familiar with the story and last night's talk only helped to refresh their minds. The lantern was operated by Augustus Searing in a very satisfactory manner.

MISS HILL THE BRIDE OF GEORGE N. GILES

Announcement was made today of the marriage of Miss Iola B. Hill, daughter of Mrs. Charles Hill, of Dunellen, and George N. Giles, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. N. Giles, of West Front street, this city. The ceremony, which took place yesterday at Trenton, was a surprise to the relatives and friends of the couple, who were not given an intimation of the event.

The couple was married by Rev. Alfred Wagg, of Trenton, district superintendent of the Methodist Episcopal church. After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Giles returned to Plainfield and introduced themselves to their relatives and friends, announcing the marriage. They will reside here until spring. Mr. Giles is in the employ of the Taylor Provision Company, of Trenton.

YOUTHFUL BURGLARS ARE LODGED IN JAIL

Abe Penrose and Thomas Vogue, twenty and eighteen years of age respectively, are in the Middlesex county jail, at New Brunswick, charged with robbing Justice Clark Rogers, of New Market, of $100 in cash and bills last week. The pair, it is said, has also confessed to ing the principals in a number of robberies at New Market and Dunellen during the past year.

Penrose returned to New Market on Saturday and surrendered himself to the police authorities. He also furnished the information that resulted in the capture of Vogue at Jersey City this morning.

A. S. Herr, Sr.

A. S. Herr, Sr., of this city, father of Professor A. S. Herr, of the Plainfield Business College, died Saturday night from paralysis with which he had been a sufferer for some time. He was seventy-one years of age and came to this city to live with his son about five years ago. He retired from active business before coming here. His quiet unassuming manner made for him many friends among the older residents of the city. The funeral service will be held here today and the burial will be at Bainbridge, Pa., tomorrow.

James Hervey Morgan.

James Hervey Morgan, son of the late Rev. and Mrs. James Hervey Morgan, formerly of this city, died this morning at St. Luke's Hospital Denver, Col., after a week's illness. He was a resident of this city for several years and had been in Denver since 1888. He is survived by two sisters and a brother, C. B. Morgan, of this city, and another brother, W. D. Morgan, of New York. No arrangements have been made for the funeral.

APPEAL TO BOROUGHITES

Necessity of Signing Petition for Special Election for Sewer System.

MAYOR GIVES THE REASONS.

No Action Can Be Taken at Friday Night's Council Meeting Unless the Taxpayers Get Busy At Once.

Despite the fact that representative men of the borough have labored for months, without compensation, in investigating the sewage disposal question as affecting that municipality and have made an exhaustive and satisfactory report with recommendations, the average taxpayer has not shown the interest in the matter that naturally would be expected. In order to go ahead with the plans, it is necessary, according to law, to get the approval of the voters. Without their consent nothing can be done.

To lose no time, the municipal authorities arranged to have the taxpayers sign the proper form of petition providing for the holding of a special election. These petitions are to be found at the tax collector's office on Somerset street and at the Park Club on Washington avenue.

An explanation of the necessity of prompt action on the part of the boroughites is made in the following letter received from Mayor Smalley today:

Editor, The Daily Press:

There is probably no subject of such present interest to your North Plainfield readers as that of the proposed borough sewage system. For years there has been an almost constant complaint that this improvement has not been attained before.

Through the medium of your paper I desire to express my keen disappointment that a large number of property owners, especially those most in need of sewers, i. e., east of Grove street, have not taken the trouble to walk a few blocks to sign consents awaiting their signatures at the collector's office and at the Park Club. Others have worked for the past year or more upon this much needed improvement and yet most of the property owners have not given ten minutes of their time to merely sign their names and if the plan fails they will have themselves to blame. Unless signatures are given by the fifteenth inst., no action can be taken by the Borough Council on Friday next and I fear those pushing the project will lose interest.

I therefore call upon every owner of property in favor of sewers to sign on Monday, Tuesday or Wednesday at the latest. The collector's office will be open each day until 6:30 and also from 8 p. m. to 9. p. m. The law must be followed to avoid future trouble. Hence this letter.

N. B. SMALLEY,
Mayor.

WOMAN FROM WESTFIELD BANISHED FORM THE CITY.

Mrs Hattie Molliner, who says she has no regular home, will keep clear of Plainfield in the future or spend a term of sixty days in the county jail. The woman was arrested Saturday night while in the company of John Stewart, of 703 West Third street, and William Ryder, of 684 West Third street. The trio were raising a disturbance near the corner of West Front and Somerset strets and a crowd was gathering when Roundsman Higgins and Sergeant John Flynn came along and took them in.

In court this morning Ryder explained to Judge Runyon the cause of the loud talk, telling how he was trying to persuade Stewart not to accompany the woman to Westfield. Judge Runyon suspended the sentence of sixty days over the woman's head and authorized the police to arrest her on sight.

Patrolman on the Job.

Commuters on the 8:30 train at Netherwood this morning witnessed an exciting runaway in which the horse and rig of C. T. Burke, of Ravine road, figured. While carrying Mr. Burke to the station the animal took fright at a piece of flying paper. The animal made a bolt and was about to plough through a crowd of commuters when Patrolman Chas. Anderson grabbed the animal and brought it to a standstill. Mr. Burke was unhurt but the rig was slightly damaged.

To Assist at Recital.

Birney B. Petigrue, baritone soloist at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, a pupil of the Master School of Music, Brooklyn, will assist at a recital to be given at Historical Hall, Brooklyn, Thursday night. Miss Mabel Gertrude Dunning, soprano, also of Brooklyn, will sing.

BOROUGH RECORDER HAS A BUSY DAY

Three cases occupied the attention of Recorder Charles M. Dolliver in the borough court this morning. William Crager, of this city, was fined seven dollars for reckless driving on Grove street last night. Crager was arrested in this city by Patrolman Saffron on a warrant sworn out by Marshal Culver.

William McCarthy, aged eighteen was acting in a disorderly manner on Somerset street last night, and he was placed under arrest by Marshal Charles Keller. McCarthy was fined one dollar.

Alexander Baflack, of East Front street, was arrested for drunkenness on Saturday night by Marshal Keller. He escaped with a suspended sentence.

MINISTER TO SPEAK ON SUNDAY LAW AGITATION

The subject of the address that the Rev. F. W. Johnson, of Camden, will deliver before the local Christian Endeavorers at their mass meeting in Temple Baptist church, Thursday night, will be "Shall the Sunday Law of New Jersey be Repealed?"

The convention chorus will lead the singing and will be directed by William Holmes. The members are requested to be present at 7:45 sharp. Frank Stewart, who had charge of the convention music, is arranging to have the convention hymns repeated at the mass meeting. The union attendance banner now held by the Temple Baptist church society will be awarded to the society having the highest percentage of its active and associate membership present at the meeting.

GERMAN ORGANIZATION ENJOYS A MERRY TIME

Carnival Day was observed on an elaborate scale by the Gesang and Turn Verein yesterday afternoon and evening. More than two hundred members and their families participated in the festivities which continued until an early hour.

Martin Denni, a comedian of New York, made a hit by a series of humorous recitations and monologues. Miss Mary Traynor also won a big round of applause in a comedy sketch. There were also a number of selections by the singing section of the society and by members of the Stirling Singing Society.

During the celebration speeches were made by President Stephen Schleif and Otto Keller. Lawrence Fahn represented "Uncle Sam." The committee in charge was Fred Becker, August Wolf and A. Paroubek.

PAYS A TRIBUTE TO ABRAHAM LINCOLN

Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, pastor of the First Baptist church, delivered an eloquent sermon yesterday morning on the topic, "Lincoln, the Man Who was Not Afraid." The doctor portrayed the real picture of Lincoln, recalling interesting incidents in his life during the Civil War, all tending to show that not once was he afraid of the outcome.

Dr. Chambliss dwelt upon the fact that Lincoln was a man of God, that he was a man of prayer and that he often prayed that the question of slavery might be settled once and for all. He referred to his lovable character, and that despite the clamorings of politicians and critics, he adhered steadfastly to his principles and his plans as outlined when elected to the Presidency.

James Breakey.

James Breakey, passed away last night at the home of his daughter, Mrs. George W. Winans, on Somerset street, at the age of seventy-eight. Mr. Breakey was a lifelong resident of Brooklyn until the death of his wife two years ago, when he came here to make his home with his daughter. He is survived by his daughter, Mrs. Winans, and two sons, Frederick James and William A. Breakey, of Brooklyn. The deceased was a member of Bethesda church, Brooklyn. The funeral service will be conducted Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at his late home and interment will be made at Hillside cemetery.

Giles Discharged.

John G. Giles, of Highland avenue, was discharged in the city court this morning by Judge William N. Runyon, it being his first appearance in court on a charge of drunkenness and disorderly conduct.

ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE'S CAMPAIGNERS PRESENT CAUSE OF LOCAL OPTION HERE

Former Governor Glenn, of North Carolina; Judge Wm. A. Covington, of Georgia, and J. Frank Burke, of New Jersey, Make Able Addresses Before Large Congregations.

In as many churches, before large congregations, yesterday, as many leaders in the temperance cause made strong appeals in favor of the passage of a local option law for New Jersey by the present Legislature. They gave a history of the movement; told of the evils of the liquor traffic; condemned the saloon and championed the right of the people to say whether they wanted prohibition.

A large congregation greeted former Governor Robert B. Glenn at the Crescent Avenue church yesterday morning, when that distinguished southerner, with all the brilliant characteristics of Dixie orators, made a dramatic appeal for the enactment of a State local option law.

Governor Glenn in a portion of his address laid great stress on the fact that New Jersey was one of three States in the Union that had no law on its statute books whereby its voters can vote locally on the liquor question. The other two States whose voters are also muzzled on the question is Nevada and Pennsylvania.

In presenting statistics Governor Glenn declared that New Jersey's criminal record is about the highest in the union, taking into consideration its population. This condition of affairs, he declared, was entirely due to the excessive use of alcoholic beverages.

Conditions in North Carolina before and after the enactment of local option laws were ably presented. "People who favored the saloons before the law was enacted are now united in their support of local option, and under no conditions would the communities vote to license saloons."

"Under the old conditions when the liquor powers were in control factory owners suffered to a big degree. The workmen also were sufferers in loss of wages. When the saloons were open a majority of them would draw their wages, go out and spend their money in the gin mills. It was a rare thing if a factory had more than half its force at work on Monday morning. The factories would not fill until Wednesday. But now, things are different. There are no saloons and the mills and factories are filled on Monday mornings instead of Wednesday mornings under the old regime. The saloons were put out of business and the workmen's wages are now going into the homes and happiness prevails everywhere.

Governor Glenn also flashed a volley of pathos into his address, and while narrating the evil results of the traffic, the effect on the homes, there were numerous wet eyes in the audience. In a dramatic manner he made a comparison.

"Friends of the liquor interests," declared the speaker, "in opposing local option declare that it hurts business. I claim it benefits business and statistics will prove my assertion. On one hand is the drunkard handing over his dime for whiskey in the grasping hand of the saloonkeeper; on the other hand you will see the results—broken-hearted mothers and wives, shoeless and ragged children, homes with bared floors and little furniture, and then the other scene presents the monarch of hell, the devil, standing outside of the fiery entrance to Gehenna, awaiting to receive his subject—the poor drunkard. Friends, I leave it to you, does local option injure business.

"I have not always been a teetotaler," continued Governor Glenn. Like St. Paul I used to take a drink now and then for my stomach's sake and for my infirmities, but my ailments seemed to increase and I quit for good.

"The best men of North Carolina," he said, "had been laid low by too much drinking. Fifty per cent. of the soldiers in the veteran's homes throughout the country were forced to these places because of rum."

At the close of the service a substantial collection was taken to advance the work being carried on by the Anti-Saloon League of New Jersey.

Judge W. A. Covington, of Georgia, addressed a large mass meeting at the First Baptist church in the afternoon. J. Alexander Cairns, secretary of the league, together with Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, pastor of the church, were in charge of the meeting.

In presenting Judge Covington, Mr. Cairns briefly told of the work that the league is doing in New Jersey and has been doing during the sixteen years of its existence. He declared that New Jersey leads in crime per capita, that while during the past years the population has increased at the rate of twelve per cent. the cases of lunacy has increased at the rate of 300 per cent. He paid his respects to Senator Hinchcliffe, and said that he was glad that he was not returned to Trenton.

Mr. Cairns made a strong appeal in behalf of a franchise on the liquor business, and he asked the citizens of the State to stop matching pennies with the saloon men and assert themselves. Judge Covington was then introduced and for over an hour he held the close attention of his audience. If it had not been a Sunday meeting doubtless his remarks would have been received with frequent bursts of applause.

The Judge was inclined to be humorous, and his southern accent had a tendency to entertain his audience. He impressed all with the fact that the saloon is the arch enemy of the church and those things which stand for the best in a community. He declared that he had travelled sufficiently to learn that the "booze" in the north is the same as that formerly dispensed in the south.

The speaker said that history had shown that drink does not increase a man's ability for work, that even in the issuance of a life insurance policy the company now requires that the insured be a temperate man. As for Georgia, which the speaker said is now a "dry" State, the farmers would not go back to the old days, and he believed that if the mules could speak they would vote for a continuance of the abolition of the liquor traffic there, for they are now treated so much better.

Judge Covington said that if one was going to employ a physician, they would preferably get one that does not drink, and an engineer to run a train must be a sober man. He referred to the liquor traffic as the greatest political abuse of the age, and gave several instances to show how politics had become mixed with the traffic. He deplored the fact that any young man with political ambition must be subjected to the domination of the liquor traffic, that he must place his neck in the yoke if he would rise to any position of responsibility.

The speaker declared that Lincoln was a prohibitionist, before he was an abolitionist. He predicted that the liquor traffic would be abolished. He said that he could not understand how a Republican or a Democrat could support the liquor traffic. You put the temptation in the way of men and then the saloonkeeper says, 'I'll get them sooner or later.'

Judge Covington said that he had seen the evil effects of the liquor traffic in its worst form, seen the wealthy and strong oppress the poor and weak to get a few dirty dollars.

"I am not that kind of a man," said the speaker, "for which I thank God. I was born with my face set away from that sort of thing. It is time you served notice that hereafter you will quit spending folks to make money and that you will spend money to make folks. The hallmark of excellence today seems to be the facilities to break up families of boys and girls.

"The mission of the church is not to dispute theological questions, which are not understood, and it makes little difference whether water is put on the head or in the shoes, but I believe that this world is to be saved by the Lord through the works of his church. He wants all men, everywhere, bodies and souls, old age and youth, white and black to work for Him. Unless the church gets busy the devil will get more men than the church. The saloon reaches out and plucks the precious ones from your families. If you are careless and indifferent you are a traitor to your Lord. When you leave this world the only question that will be asked you by God will be 'What did you do and how did you use your power and wealth?' You can do this work and you belong in the van."

At Trinity Reformed church J. Frank Burke, State superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, spoke

"BEE HIVE," New Jersey's Shopping Centre NEWARK

Advance Sale of New Spring Merchandise

Prices quoted that would prove attractive even to large retailers, and on just the character of merchandise that will be in greatest vogue the coming season.

Here is a trade event that will once again prove our leadership supremacy and that will further enchance the prestige and reputation of L. S. Plaut & Co. Every man and woman knows that on almost every commercial and industrial product prices have advanced all along the line—and are in many instances still soaring. And yet, right in the face of higher prices, and just at the threshold of the season, we are offering

Thousands of dollars worth of the most desirable and fashionable Spring Merchandise at remarkably low prices.

Our policy of sharing all profits and benefits accrued through advantageous buying with our customers is responsible for this sale.

Every department in the house is represented. Lack of space does not permit us to enumerate items here, but we can assure you that never before at this period of the year have we offered such extraordinary bargain inducements in new spring merchandise.

All Plainfield-Elizabeth Trolley Cars pass our door. Wagon delivery to Plainfield and vicinity daily. No Branch Stores. Mail Orders Filled.

TROUBLE FOR "MEN'S CHURCH."

Atlantic City, Feb. 14.—As a culmination of a two-year fight waged by conservative members of the fashionable congregation of the Episcopal church of the Ascension, the "Men's Church," which achieved almost international fame through the use of moving pictures, vaudeville and smoking at services to draw men to services, has been officially declared out of business, for a time, at least. The result was reached by the simple method of the Ascension vestry declaring Rev. Sydney Goodman no longer entitled to conduct religious services in this parish.

Announcement of this action was made at midnight Friday night, and was immediately followed by notice that the "Men's Church," at present being conducted in a building on North Ohio avenue, would close at once. Followers of Rev. Mr. Goodman are aroused over the possibility that the famous church may be closed permanently.

NEW TAX BILL O. K.

Attorney-General Wilson has addressed a letter to House Clerk Parker, for the information of the Judiciary Committee, with reference to bill No. 43, proposing to exempt from taxation all personal property up to the value of $500, saying: "I do not think it contravenes in any way the provisions of the State Constitution."

The attorney-general does not go into reasons for his conclusion simply stating that the bill is constitutional. The opinion of the attorney-general will be delivered to Majority Leader Edge, chairman of the Judiciary Committee, tonight. Assemblyman Moore will ask for a hearing on the bill.

SUGGEST SOME CHANGES IN THE STATE GUARD

Trenton, Feb. 14.—United States army officers who have been studying conditions in the National Guard of the various States with a view to recommending desirable and beneficial changes in the regulations of the State militia have reported on a number of matters, with pertinent suggestions.

Captain M. A. Elliott, who has studied conditions in New Jersey, declares that politics should be eliminated from the National Guard.

"The method of obtaining officers by election," he says, "is a poor one. An officer who performs his duties should be secure in his position and in the line for promotion that he may look forward to with certainty, providing he merits it.

Captain Elliott indorses New Jersey's policy of providing armories for the guardsmen as being an attraction for them. He expresses dissatisfaction with instruction camps and asserts that 90 per cent of the men examined by him last year could not repeat correctly guard duty instructions.

Captain Frederick Marsa, who has also studied National Guard conditions in the State, thinks nothing is gained by sending National Guardsmen to work with the big guns at Sandy Hook. It is his opinion that much more can be accomplished if the gun study of militiamen is confined to the smaller guns, at least for a time, or until they show that they have mastered the principles of the subject.

Regular army officers generally express themselves as well pleased with the measure now pending in Congress by which it is intended more generally to teach the young idea how to shoot. This bill permits the distribution of rifles from the Federal stores to associations and schools which have uniformed corps of cadets studying or interested in marksmanship. The organizations accepting rifles from the government will be obliged to give bonds for their return if demanded.

It is figured that the damage and deterioration of the guns thus loaned will be more than offset by the skill and proficiency in marksmanship acquired by young America. It is expected that a large number of schools in New Jersey which have uniformed corps of cadets will avail themselves of the new measure should it become law.

It will apply as well to strictly military schools as to those in which military training is a minor matter.

RAILROAD PENSIONS.

674,259 Employees Are in Line for Retirement.

According to the latest estimates of railroad men, 674,259 railroad employees are in line for pensions. This is 40 per cent. of the total number of men so employed in this country. Of this number 161,559 are employed by the Central Railroad of New Jersey, the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western and the Pennsylvania. The Lackawanna Railroad during the year ending August, 1907, paid to its 217 pensioners $35,023.62.

In the United States there are twenty-one railroads having pension lists, every one of which is supported exclusively by the company. If an engineer earned $150 a month on an average for ten years before the age limit was reached he is retired on $45 monthly. On all but four of the roads, one of which is the New Jersey Central, where the age limit is 65, the fixed age for retirement is 70.

Warns Motorcyclists.

Trenton, Feb. 14.—State Motor Vehicle Commissioner Smith has found it necessary to send out a circular letter explaining to holders of owners' automobile driving licenses what they must do in order to avoid trouble when the display of such licenses is required by inspectors. All owners' license cards must bear the signatures of the holders, and if they are not signed when shown to an inspector, he has no choice but to bring the matter to the attention of the commissioner in this city. Commissioner Smith in his letter points out that much inconvenience can be avoided by signing the licenses as soon as they are issued.

Scalds May Be Fatal.

Paterson, Feb. 14.—Charles Schilling, of 65 West Thirtieth street, while at work Saturday in the abattoir of the Henry Muhs Company, slipped and fell into a vat containing scalding hot water. He was removed to his home in an ambulance of the General Hospital. He may not recover.

Rahway Firemen Celebrate.

Rahway, Feb. 14.—Lincoln Hook and Ladder Company No. 2, of this city, celebrated Lincoln's Birthday with a dinner, after which the company, with Chief of the Fire Department Harry L. Lampthere as guest, attended Waldmann's, Newark.

Farmers to Meet.

The Somerset County Board of Agriculture will meet next Saturday in the Court House, Somerville. A feature of the session will be an address by John H. Barclay, of Cranbury, on "The Apple; How to Grow it and Care for the Tree."

The Good Values of the White Sale Keep Coming Forward

We just MUST keep telling you of the good values of this White Sale. Every day something else out of the ordinary crops out. A visit to the store every day is well worth your while.

White Sales are always interesting events at this store—interest is intensified in this year's event by the agitation of high priced cotton.

The splendid stocks on exhibition and sale marks the culmination of months of careful planning and buying when cotton goods were considerable lower than they are today.

Some of the unusually good values which are to be brought forward for this week's selling are listed here—but—we say again it would be impossible to list ALL our good values in this limited space. Come to the store today—you'll find out as hundreds of others have—"It Pays To Buy At Tepper's."

A Whole Week of Valentines

Wonderful "Shedwater" Foulard and Pongee Silks

Valentine's "Shedwater" Silks are the sensation of the hour. Foulards have always been a much favored silk. They never were more popular than they will be this season—but Foulards that will shed water, Foulards that will look beautiful even in a shower are sure to be immensely more desirable than the ordinary kind, and will find favor with thousands who would not wear the everyday sort.

Valentine's "Shedwater" Foulards do shed water. The silk salesmen will demonstrate this quality to you any time you wish to have it proven. Water runs off just as it does off of a duck's back.

Isn't it great to have a fine fabric like Foulard waterproofed so that it will not spot?

And more wonderful, perhaps, than the Foulards are the "Shedwater" Rough Pongees—who would think it possible to waterproof rough faced silk like Tuscan Pongee? Yet here it is—and it is remarkably cheap.

Valentine's "Shedwater" Silks being the best of the kind obtainable are, as a matter of course, confined exclusively to this house in this section of New Jersey.

We're making a great show of them this week and selling them like this:

Valentine's "Shedwater" Foulards—soft and exquisite in finish, in navy, Copenhagen, green, gray, tan, brown, white and black, black and white, wistaria and rose—all rich colorings, daintiest of designs; are on sale at only .... .79

Valentine's "Shedwater" Tuscans—charming rough pongees, in old blue, wistaria, ashes of rose cedar, natural, golden tan, green, brown and black; silks that are bound to spring into great favor at the popular price of $1.00

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

The Pitman National Bank has received a large deposit of the State's funds.

Caught by a falling 750-pound bale of paper in a mill near Milford, Matthew Manger was seriously injured.

Travel across the Baird avenue bridge in Camden has been suspended until repairs are made to several bad washouts.

Judge W. A. Covington, of Georgia, will lecture in the Pitman Methodist church Wednesday evening on local option.

Seven cows belonging to William Brewer, of Larison's Corner, have been killed by order of the State Tuberculosis Commission.

Kicked by another horse, a horse owned by Jacob Lindaberry, of Frenchtown, was so seriously injured that it had to be killed.

In preparation for the traffic of next summer, the Pennsylvania Railroad is rebuilding much of the roadbed between Beach Haven and the Manahawkin bridge.

At Vineland William De Luca saved the life of Ernest Marcaccia by quickly applying a bandage and calling a doctor when Marcaccio split one foot wide open with an ax.

His wagon struck by a Pennsylvania Railroad train, William Schele, of Riverside, sustained a broken arm while Henry and Charles Sutton, who were riding with him, escaped injury.

His right hand caught by an emery wheel Walter Ressert, eighteen years old, of 426 William street, Camden, took several badly-torn fingers to the Homeopathic Hospital to be dressed.

Former Assemblyman Frank B. Potter has been elected president of the Vineland Firemen's Relief Association for the twenty-seventh time, and W. S. Dungan has been chosen secretary for the twenty-fifth year.

Seven hundred pupils of the Madison Avenue School, Atlantic City, drilled in fire tactics by teachers, marched out to taps of the fire bell when a leaking steam pipe started an alarm of fire that spread throughout the school.

Coroner McGeorge, of Woodstown, practically has decided that John Burk, whose body was found frozen in a pool of water near Oldman's Creek, died of lung and heart diseases. Prosecutor Sinnickson, of Salem, also inclines to that theory, although a formal inquest will be held today. The bruises found on Burk's body probably were caused by the man falling on frozen ground.

George Smith, a small boy from Pennsgrove, was arrested at the Woodbury Station on complaint of his mother, who sent word to Woodbury that her son had stolen her watch. The boy telephoned home that the timepiece would be found in a bureau drawer and he was discharged.

Redmond Williams, a former Philadelphian, died in the Atlantic City jail, where he had been rushed in the city patrol after being found ill on a street. The man is reported to belong to a good Philadelphia family, but he had become addicted to drink.

Pleading guilty in the Camden Criminal Court Friday to the larceny of weights from the Pennsylvania Railroad, Pasquale Lombaro said he was compelled to steal to keep his family from starving. At the prisoner's side were his children in tears, and Judge Jolice suspended sentence.

Angry because Superintendent Burns, of the Gloucester City public schools, recommended that three days' salary be deducted from her compensation for absenting herself without giving notice, Miss Beulah Paschall, a teacher, Friday tendered her resignation. It was accepted. Her successor will be appointed today.

A series of fine musicales will be given in Jersey City under the auspices of the managers of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children.

The government lightship tender broke down while in the breakers off Atlantic City Friday night. The engines stopped, leaving the men in the boat helpless, as they were not able to handle the craft in the high seas. The life savers were called out, and went out in their boat and succeeded in getting the tender inside the harbor.

The engagement of Miss Martha King Hughes, daughter of T. H. Hughes, of Baltimore, and Richard Stockton, of Princeton, was announced Friday night. Mr. Stockton is the son of Edward Stockton, eighth in line from Richard Stockton, signer of the Declaration of Independence. Mr. Stockton graduated from Princeton University last year.

At the next meeting of Passaic City Council, a committee from the fire companies will petition for a paid fire department.

Hot ashes flew into Israel Shapiro's left eye while he was raking a fire in Passaic, and it is feared that he may lose the sight of that optic.

Camp Gerardin, Spanish-American war veterans, of Bayonne, will petition Congress to take steps to raise the battleship Maine in Havana harbor.

Married only a few months, Geo. R. French, of Atlantic City, was sentenced to four months in jail and fined $50 on a charge made by a Collingswood young woman in the Camden Criminal Court Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Luther L. Sheppard, of Brooklyn, spent the week-end with Mr. Sheppard's parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Sheppard, of Somerset place.

COL. CHANDLER GIVES THREE GOSPEL TALKS

Colonel Alfred A. Chandler, who for the past eleven years has been the principal of the Salvation Army Training College in New York, conducted three special services yesterday for the local corps. At the morning service in the Temple Baptist church before a good sized audience the colonel deliver a strong sermon taking for his text Acts, 8:5: "Then Phillip went down to the city of Samaria and preached Christ unto them."

In the afternoon at the mid-winter camp meeting a profitable time was spent, the colonel delivering a Gospel address on the four men who brougrt the sick of the palsy to Christ. At the evening service the army hall was crowded for the final meeting of the day. It was the opinion of regular attendants that the colonel delivered one of the best and strongest sermons ever given at the local corps, taking for his text Samuel 8:18—"And ye shall cry out in that day because of your king which ye shall have chosen you; and the Lord will not hear you in that day." After a review of the circumstances which caused the prophet Samuel to utter the text chosen, he divided his talk under three principal headings: First, their cry unavailing; second, the day a terrible one; third, their king would be a relentless one; their choice a foolish one. After showing the fulfillment of the text, he brought it home to his audience that those who reject Christ are making the same choice and that the result will be even more disastrous. At the close of the service one young man came to the altar and professed Christ as his Saviour, making four for the week.

The new songsters brigade, numbering twenty-four, sang several suitable selections and Martin A. Korff played a violin solo.

On Tuesday evening Captain and Mrs. Hewitt will celebrate their first anniversary in charge of the local corps.

THE FORUM.

Commutation Tickets.

Editor, The Daily Press.

Can you inform me why the Central Railroad of New Jersey charges less for single excursion and family trip tickets between Plainfield and New York, and more for monthly commutation tickets than the Lackawanna does from Morristown. For instance the rate charged by the former, for single trip excursion ticket, North avenue station to New York and return is $1.00; 10 trip family ticket, $4.50; 50 trip, $18, monthly commutation, $7.60; distance 24 miles each way or 48 miles for round trip. The rate on the Lackawanna between Morristown and New York is single excursion ticket, $1.20; 10 trip family ticket, $5.35; 50 trip, $20; monthly commutation, $7.50; 10 cents less than the Central rate from Plainfield, while the distance is 7 miles farther or 14 miles on round trip. Perhaps the Board of Trade might figure the matter out.

Lowest Prices for Standard Goods in Greater New York

Everybody who insists on getting Surety Stamps helps to establish a stamp of definite value worth 2½ per cent. of all that is purchased in these two stores.

Before noon we give double stamps—or a 5 per cent. bonus.

Just a Hint to Salaried People

One of the hardest things that a man finds in starting life is the outlay required to make a home.

If he attempts to establish that new home in a city far away from where he is brought up, he is confronted by a number of very difficult questions: The problem of furnishing a home without having the credit that he might have in his home town, and the largeness of the expenditure, which always seem enormous as an initial outlay.

No organization in the world believes more in helping young men help themselves than this organization. A good many of us have risen from the ranks ourselves; a great many more are going to rise. The O'Neil-Adams Company is now a part of the largest retail organization in the entire world, and opportunities are rampant.

So that we believe in showing any ambitious young man, or any ambitious young woman, if she has to establish bachelor apartments, how to establish themselves in this community in a comfortable home, without the crushing weight of an immediate outlay, which in its size is frequently too great to make with safety all at once.

The Club Plan

is precisely the same plan that is used by men who pay their rent toward the price of a house instead of toward the mere rental of house. In other words, we come together: You choose the household furniture, the upholstery, the carpets and rugs; find out what they cost; talk it over with us, and by an arrangement which is as satisfactory to you as to us we make it possible for you to purchase these things, take them to your home, enjoy them while you are paying for them just as you pay rent toward the purchase of a house.

This would not be a great accommodation to any one if we charged heavy interest on the outstanding sum. But we don't—we charge no interest at all. There is a small club fee which we ask you to pay at the beginning; we ask for good references as to your character, as to your business position; and we arrange with you in such a way that you can pay week by week or month by month a sum convenient to yourself and satisfactory to us.

In the meantime you pay the lowest possible price for each thing you fancy, and you pay no interest.

The man who has grit enough to buy a home and pay for it month by month, instead of paying rent, is the kind of a man we want in our clubs—we are proud to have such men, and if you are that kind, you are most cordially asked to investigate this plan.

Just now we have nearly Fifty Thousand Dollars' worth of the sort of Furniture most young people need to start their homes with, at 10 to 50 per cent. below regular prices—sample Furniture. And Club Members always get the advantage of the reduced prices.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

Albert H. Strong, a former resident of the borough, but for a number of years past has resided at Boston, Mass., died at his home Friday. The funeral servies were held from the home of Dr. and Mrs. F. W. Westcott this afternoon at 2:30. Rev. Franklin K. Mathiews was in charge.

The match snoot at clay bird targets, which was to have been held Saturday afternoon between teams from the Scotch Plains Gun Club and the borough club, was postponed until Washington's Birthday.

Lincoln's Birthday was quietly observed in town, but few of the residents taking a holiday. No special events were scheduled, the only attraction being the theatres.

Captain H. B. Saunders, who is deeply interested in boys' work, gave an interesting address upon Lincoln before the boys of the Y. M. C. A. Saturday morning.

George, the young son of Mr. and Mrs. George MacCauley, of Grand street, is doubly unfortunate, being ill with both the mumps and measles.

Mrs. John Smalley and daughter, of Plainfield, were the guests over Sunday of Mrs. Frederick K. Clark, of Front street.

The weekly meeting of the Epworth League was held last night in the class room of the Methodist church.

Miss Elizabeth Nichol led the weekly meeting of the B. Y. P. U. held last night in the parlors of the church.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

William Sickel's horse became frightened by a Jersey Central train while going toward New Market on Washington avenue yesterday afternoon. The horse bolted badly and pulled the shafts out of position and dashed down the road to New Market. The animal was caught by William Oliver near the Lehigh Valley crossing. Mr. Sickel and his daughter were thrown out of the sleigh, but were uninjured.

The Dunellen A. C. will probably hold a meeting this week to complete preliminary plans for the baseball season. The indications are that a strong aggregation will represent the borough.

Miss Mabel Cole visited her cousin, Mrs. Edna Titsworth, in Philadelphia, Saturday and Sunday.

Editor Carpenter, of The Call, has returned from a business trip to Philadelphia.

Mr. and Mrs. R. P. F. vonMinden entertained friends from out of town yesterday.

Terry Ronayne was visited by relatives from Cranford yesterday.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

Mr. George May and his son, John, sailed Saturday on the White Star liner "Adriatic" for Europe. Mr. May will join his wife, who sailed last December, at Marlborough, England. They will tour the British Isles and afterwards the Continent. They do not expect to return for at least one year.

Local sportsmen find trapping profitable this year as fur has gone up to almost twice the price it has been in former seasons. First-class muskrats bring as high as $1 apiece.

Mr. and Mrs. P. McDonough visited relatives in North Plainfield yesterday.

P. H. S. Entertainment.

The school carried out its new custom on Friday afternoon and had an entertainment in the auditorium. Games were played and Riffert and Doane gave a Dutch sketch, entitled "Nellie, or why do the birds fly south." Their singing was first-class and the jokes very clever. The idea of this Friday afternoon entertainment has proved such a success that it will be carried out on every Friday.

A Lincoln Social.

A Lincoln social was held Saturday evening at the residence of Millard W. Bellis, on Park place. The evening was spent with games, music, etc, after which refreshments were served.

Park Bowlers Victorious.

The Park bowling five won two games out of three from the Newark Bay pin knights in N. J. Bowling League contest at Bayonne on Friday night.

Miss Price Entertained.

Miss Jennie Price entertained a number of friends at a party on Saturday evening. About forty guests were present and an enjoyable time was had.

ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE

for three-quarters of an hour on the subject of destroying the power of evil in New Jersey, which power, he declared, was concentrated in the saloon. Mr. Burke said that it was Christ's purpose to separate man from sin and to destroy sin itself. And it was for this very end that the Son of God was manifested.

Mr. Burke took for a text parts of two verses of the third chapter of the first Epistle of John, and said in part:

"The Son of God was manifested to destroy the source of sin, that sin which for its widespread evil effect on humanity overlaps any other transgression known to the world. The line of crime, which fills our jails, pententiaries and prisons can be traced to the number of licenses issued in each community. If the liquor traffic is not the only tool of the devil to accomplish his ends, what is it? And, if it is not the object of the church to destroy that power what is the church for?

"A certain Mr. Hayes, known as a lobbyist, has proclaimed to the world that the liquor interests will prevent the consummation of the desires of the Anti-Saloon League just as long as they can, but the League, assured of ultimate victory will continue to the end finally to see the long looked for victory perched upon its banners. Anyway the attitude of the liquor men is changing. They know that they are not fighting something that will down easily, they realize that the men engaged in this fight are working night and day, twenty-four hours every day and fifty-two weeks in the year and the results of this fight are manifesting themselves in every State in the union with three exceptions.

"Hayes has said that the churches of the country could put the liquor men out of business if they wanted to, but he questioned their sincereity of purpose. He said there was a loophole somewhere, between the saloon and the home, perhaps, or in the homes of the people, but surely somewhere. We want this loophole discovered and eliminated. Eighteen years ago this might have been true, but it is not so now. The churches instead of working each one for itself are united in one common cause and thus the work is assuming proportions which were not dreamed of in those days. Even the brewer acknowledges that the league is untiring in its efforts, and we have words from their own year book which prove that they feel and recognize the power of those who are working to save the country from utter disaster. 15,000 saloons were voted out of business by the people in 1909. In the Southland, the northwest and middle west the liquor men do not dare to hold their conventions any more. Why? Because the people of those parts of the country wont stand for them.

"Eighteen years ago God wanted a man to take up this work and He found him in the person of Rev. Dr. Russell and in a very strange manner. Dr. Russell had been asked to officiate at a funeral in Chicago, and in accepting the duty found such conditions as led him to resign his pastorate and launch out in a crusade against the evil of liquor. The result of that resolve is the Anti-Saloon League of today, and that power which started the movement which is termed a wave is the continuous power of God gaining in strength until today its far reaching results are visible in the territory I have mentioned to such a degree that jailors who prospered on the number of criminals they had in charge are now asking for salaries. In some counties of the west the prisons are actually empty.

"Seven hundred pulpits in this State today are being filled with workers of this league. The conditions in New Jersey are like this: There is one license for every 214 people. While in ten years the population has increased 12 per cent. there has been an increase of criminals of 300 per cent. Morris Plains asylum has 2,100 patients with accommodations for but 1,600. Nevada, Pennsylvania and New Jersey are the only three States in the union in which the people are not allowed by law to say whether they want the saloon or not. All we ask is a fair deal with the people themselves. If thirty per cent. of the men ask for a special election to determine whether local option may be their portion there ought to be a law which will allow them to express themselves to that extent. We will have that law in this State before long and then will come the other desired ends."

Mr. Burke made a short reference to the divorce evil and attributed it to liquor. He said that during the last decade more than 186,000 divorces had been granted in this country, 95 per cent. of which were directly traceable to the drinking habit.

In referring to the organ of the Anti-Saloon League, he said that "The Issue," now had a circulation of 13,000 in this State, and was increasing with giant strides. Cards for pledges of money for the support of the league were passed among the congregation and many signatures for contributions were received. The church was fairly well filled.

SOME GOWNS SEEN AT MRS. FISKE'S SHOW

Mrs. Flora Annie Steel, the well-known English novelitst, expresses her opinion of dress as the "canker of womanhood which has sapped the sanity of society women," to which A. L. Humphreys replies that "Mrs. Steel is an advocate of frumps. Frumps, like the poor, we always have with us, but fortunately they are in the minority."

No frumps were there in the capacity audience that saw Mrs. Fiske in "Salvation Nell" at the Plainfield theatre Saturday night. The patrons were largely representative of society in this city, as well as nearby towns.

Mrs. T. J. Mumford wore a black gown with vest of white lace and Miss Holly, who accompanied her, was gowned in light blue ninon with cloth of silver facings on the skirt and repeated on the top of the bodice with embroidery in pale blue and white lace.

Mrs. A. W. Connor's gown, entraine, was of soft finish black silk. The high neck bodice was trimmed with duchesse lace and tucked net.

Miss Charlotte Finch's gown was covered with a long cape of white cloth beautifully embroidered.

Mrs. William McIntosh wore a gown of silk tissue, narrow black and white stripe with pipings of lavendar on the skirt and broader bands of it combined with lace on the bodice. Miss Ethel McIntosh wore a simple empire gown of pale blue self-striped gauze trimmed with very little gold braid.

Mrs. E. T. Wilson's gown was of novelty self-striped silk in ashes of violets.

Miss Mabel Hooley wore under a long coat of white fur a petunia chiffon cloth gown weighted with broad bands of black satin.

Mrs. George L. Babcock wore a gown of light blue with a sheen of gold. The bodice was finished with yoke and collar of white lace. Her wrap was of corn colored satin with deep collar of sable.

Mrs. George P. Mellick was gowned in amethyst figured satin.

Mrs. John Bushnell had on a simply made gown of black silk dotted with pale blue.

Mrs. J. L. Watson wore a black satin gown with a touch of rose pink at the lower edge of the square yoke of white, and below the pink a large motif of jet. Miss Watson wore under a full length sealskin coat a lingerie gown of white silk batiste.

Mrs. James Blake was gowned in smoke grey with net yoke and embroidered bands of the same shade.

Mrs. F. S. Martin wore a princess gown of black satin. The front panel of the skirt was embroidered in gold and a little of the gold repeated at the top of the panel below the small yoke.

Mrs. W. L. C. Glenney wore a golden brown messaline satin, entraine, trimmed with cream lace.

Mrs. J. Hartley Mellick's gown was black with touches of pale blue and pink.

Mrs. J. B. Probasco's black gown was tipped by a yoke of cloth of gold embroidered in lilac and finished with tiny folds of lilac satin. Miss Dagma, her sister, wore a gown of old blue French voile.

FOREIGN CHILDREN SEEN IN STEREOPTICON VIEWS

Nothing of greater interest has ever been shown in stereopticon views anywhere than those thrown on the screen at the Congregational church last night. They were photographs of children from parts of the world in which Congregational missionaries are at work and they included the offspring of parents in Mexico, Spain, Austria, Macedonia, Turkey, Greece, Africa, Ceylon, India, the Philippines, China, Japan and other places.

Rev. Mr. Goodrich interested a large audience in his descriptive story of the way in which these children are reached and through the children the parents. The great advancement in the civilization of these foreign people is apparently to come through the efforts of missionaries and their ultimate Christianization will be wrought through the children who take kindly to the western methods of teaching.

Mr. Goodrich said that in India alone there are twenty million more children than the entire population of the United States, but although the task is a large one, eventually they will all come to have a knowledge of the Saviour.

The different types of faces, exhibiting their special characteristics afforded the congregation amusement as well as instruction and some of the illustrations of Christian and non-Christian types showed by comparison the better condition of the former. The stereopticon was operated by Thomas Hylan and was splendidly done.

DATES FROM FEUDAL TIMES

Rod Used in Driving Oxen Is the Original of Present System of Land Measurement.

The origin of the rod, pole or perch as a lineal and superficial measure has been traced to the rod, pole or goad used to urge and direct a team of oxen pulling a plow. So it came about it was used as a convenient and handy land measure in feudal times by the lords in allotting plots of land for agricultural purposes to the villeins and others, says a writer in the Builders' Journal.

One rod wide and 40 long (i. e., one furrow long, deep) built up a quarter of an acre. The furlong, or four poles wide and same depth—i. e., 40 poles, one acre—was a convenient length for a furrow before turning the plow. Of course these lengths somewhat varied in different parts of the country where soils and agriculture varied, but gradually the slight variations grew less and finally the present accepted statutory acre was evolved.

Gunter's chain of 66 feet (ten square chains to the acre) was invented by Rev. Edmund Gunter (1581-1626). He was a professor of astronomy at Gresham college, London, and ingeniously adapted it to facilitate decimal calculations in land measurements. The use of rod in superficial measurements of brick work and lineally in hedges, ditches and fences followed as a convenient existing measure.

PECULIARITIES OF THE EYES

Some Optical Effects Which Are Not Generally Understood—How to Look at Stars.

If one places a pin head up close to the eye and directly in front of it instead of seeing the pin right side up it will appear inverted. Also the head of the pin appears transparent and things may be seen as easily through it as through a sheet of isinglass, the head appearing simply as a large round cloud. If it is placed somewhat closer no pin or head can be seen at all.

If one gets into a very dark room and puts a lighted candle near the side of one eye very pretty and peculiar effects are observed. A tracery, forming a regular network, can be easily detected, and this is merely the shadow thrown by the candle on the retina of the eye of the small capillary blood vessels between the retina and the candle.

If one looks to the side of a dim star in the heavens the star appears a great deal brighter than direct vision makes it appear. This is because the light in the indirect view falls on what is known as the "yellow spot" or point of keenest vision. As this is not put directly behind the front of the eye the side glance is necessary. Some people can see stars that way that they cannot perceive at all on direct vision.—Sunday Magazine of the Pittsburg Dispatch.

Pope as a Witness.

Pope, like Garrick, made but a poor figure in the witness box. He was cited to appear in defense of Bishop Atterbury when that prelate was tried for high treason in the house of lords in 1723. "I never could speak in public," he told Spence afterward, "and I don't believe that, if it was a set thing, I could give an account of any story to 12 friends together, though I could tell it to any three of them with a great deal of pleasure. When I was to appear for the bishop of Rochester in his trial, though I had but ten words to say, and that on a plain point (how the bishop spent his time when I was with him at Bromley), I made two or three blunders in it; and that notwithstanding the first row of lords (which was all I could see) were mostly of my acquantance."

Martin Luther's Room.

The chamber of Martin Luther at Wartburg has fallen into a state of ruin. Admirers who have visited the Ritterhaus of Voburg, where the Elector Frederick the Wise offered asylum to the reformer, have allowed their zeal to exceed their discretion, and, vandal like, have carved their names with their pocket knives on the table, and chipped off bits from the bedstead, so that to restore it would necessitate making it anew.

The same has happened with the plaster on the wall, and the famous ink stain has disappeared completely. It is high time that measures should be taken to make an end of these scandalous depredations. — Jenaer Volksblatt.

Modest Missionaries.

There are many missionaries whom no board of missions is supporting; many who are not the recognized and salaried agents of any of the churches. Whenever to any home the gospel of life and light is brought, whoever the messenger may be, a missionary service has been rendered; and the missionary spirit may be shown as truly by the member of the family who tries to be brave and cheerful under difficulties as by those who carry to China or to India a better code of ethics, a higher order of morality, a more elevated standard of precept and practice.

No Engagement.

"Have you finished enumerating the things you won't do?" inquired Mrs. Housekeep.

The prospective cook admitted that she had.

"Then perhaps you'll specify the things you can't do. Then I can tell if we can get along together."

The prospective cook decided right there that they couldn't.

EVERYTHING IN CANDIES.

HOW DOE SAVED HER FAWN

Instance of Wonderful Maternal Intelligence Told by a French Writer and Traveler.

The following anecdote is related by M. X. Raspail. It is worthy of comparison with the most remarkable of instances of the same kind:

The author one day perceived a doe in full flight before two dogs in the Aigle woods that form a part of the forest of Chantilly. The doe was accompanied by a very young fawn which appeared quite exhausted and ready to drop. The mother, doubtless well aware of this, slackened her pace and presently stopped close to some thick bramble bushes. She remained some time there with lowered head as if awaiting the onset of her pursuers.

Suddenly an idea seemed to strike her, and with a butt of the head she tossed her fawn right into the middle of the thicket. Then first advancing gently as if to make sure it was well hidden, she soon set off by rapid bounds in front of the dogs. The latter barking close upon her heels, she made a sudden bound and thus drew them far from the spot where this incident occurred. The howling of the dogs became fainter and fainter, the valiant animal having doubtless led them two kilometers away into the Canardardiere peat bogs, where the dogs often lose the scent.

In fact later they were seen returning to the village in an exhausted condition, while the intelligent mother doubtless returned to the bushes to find the little fawn she had so cleverly hidden and placed in safety.

RECOGNIZED AS A STATESMAN

Candidate's Scheme at Once Seen to Be the Production of a Master Mind.

"Our end of the town is completely without police protection," said the aldermanic candidate in a lively speech. "Elect me and I promise to have this section of the city literally swarming with police."

The next night he was denounced by the opposition as a four flusher and asked to outline his plan for securing proper protection.

"Ladies and gentlemen," he began at the following meeting. "I was called a bluffer by our friends, the opposition, last night. I now propose to show you how I will make good in my promise. First of all I will start the movement for more police protection by hiring two new cooks. Let every man of family in this audience hire one cook and keep her and we'll need an exclusion act to keep the cops out of our territory!"

Pandemonium broke loose. A new Bolivar had appeared in their midst and at the election his rival was swamped into oblivion.

The Usefulness of "Central."

The telephone subscriber has come to regard "central" as an ever-available bureau of information. The score of the ball game, the latest election returns, the location of the big fire the light from which can be seen on the horizon, and even the exact time, are all points on which the long-suffering operator must be posted.

The other day, according to the Operating Bulletin of the Chicago Telephone Company, a man called up a suburban exchange, and said, despair in his voice:

"My wife has gone out, leaving word for me to cook the spinach for dinner, but I do not know how long to boil it."

The operator switched the subscriber to the supervisor, who had been to cooking-school, and she promptly told the man all he needed to know about the treatment of spinach.

A Ceremony Denied.

A Vienna merchant who had spent the summer vacation at Altenberg, after reaching home sent an oil painting of the Madonna to the authorities of the vacation resort, with the request that it be placed in the springhouse. He asked also that a priest be requested to officiate when the painting was unveiled. Father Steidt of St. Andrew's was selected to carry out the request, but sent word that he would not bless the picture until he had the assurance that the wife of the painter, "and no other woman," had served as model. As it was impossible to secure this statement, the authorities had to dispense with the religious ceremony.

One Part of Meeting.

"Did you ever meet an old friend whom you didn't meet?" was the enigma put up to a Harlemite by a neighbor. The Harlemite never did.

"I did this morning," the neighbor explained. "I was rushing downtown on a subway express. We passed a local, also southbound under somewhat less speed. I was hanging to a strap, and as I gazed into a car of the local that was opposite my car I recognized a man I had known intimately, but had not seen for 15 years. He recognized me at the same moment and there was a mutual salute. Then my train forged ahead of the other and he was lost to sight.

"You see, I met him, yet I didn't meet him."—New York Globe.

Natural Progression.

Mrs. McCall—How about your servant girl? The last time I saw you you complained about her being so very slow.

Mrs. Hiram Offen—Oh, she's progressing.

Mrs. McCall—Indeed?

Mrs. Hiram Offen—Yes; she's getting slower and slower.

CHAPTER I.

The Primitive Norm.

Whether she had fainted or fallen asleep, she did not know, but this one thing she was sure, it had been dark when consciousness left her and it was now broad day, although the light seemed to come to her with a greenish tinge which was quite unfamiliar. The transition between her state of yesterday and that of to-day was as great as if she had been born into morning from the womb of midnight and like a young animal she drank it in blindly with closed eyes. She could hear the thunderous roaring of the breakers crashing upon the barrier reef. Alone—her boat had been wrecked in the darkness of the night before—the sound softened and mellowed by distance came to her in a deep, low accompaniment to the sharper and nearer sounds of the birds singing and the breeze rustling gently through the long leaves of the trees overhead.

The dry sand on which she lay was soft and yielding and made a comfortable bed for her tired body racked with weary days in the constraint and narrowness of a small boat. It was warm, too. She had been drenched when she scrambled on the shore and fell prostrate on the beach, retaining just strength enough and purpose enough to crawl painfully inward to where the tall palms grow before she lapsed in whatsoever way it might have been into oblivion.

Incoherent thoughts raced through her bewildered brain; each one, however, bringing her a little nearer the awakening point of realization. Then there ran through her young body a primal pang which dispelled the tremulous and vague illusions which her fancy had woven about herself as she lay warm and snug and sunny at the foot of the tall trees, and she realized that she was frightfully thirsty, so thirsty that she did not know how hungry she was.

The demand for the material awakened the animal in her. Her thoughts centered instantly; they were at once localized on one supreme desire. Coincidently her eyes unclosed and she sat up blinking in the strong light. The rising sun still low on the horizon smote her full in the eyes and left her for the moment dazed again. She sat leaning upon her hands extended behind her back staring seaward, saying nothing, thinking nothing, until a strange sound to the right of her attracted her attention. It was a sound made by a human voice and yet it was like nothing human that she had ever heard. It was a wordless, languageless ejaculation, but it roused her interest at once despite her material cravings.

She weakly turned her head and there standing erect with folded arms looking down upon her was a man. He was unclothed entirely save for a fantastic girdle of palm leaves about his waist. She stared at him puzzled, amazed, affrighted. He returned her look with an intent curiosity in which there was no suggestion of evil purpose, rather of great incomprehension, an amazing wonderment. There was nothing about him, save the fact that he was there, which should have caused any alarm in her heart, for with a woman's swift mastery of the possibilities of the other sex, she noticed in her vague terror and wonderment that he was remarkably good to look at. Indeed, she thought that she had never seen so splendid a specimen of physical manhood as that before her. In color he was white. Save that he was bronzed by the tropic sun, he was perhaps whiter than she was. His hair, which hung about his head in a wild, matted tangle, not unpicturesque, was golden; his eyes bright blue. Beneath his beard, unkempt but short and curly, she could see his firm, clean-cut lips. His proportions were superb. He was limbed and chested like the Apollo Belvedere. In him grace and strength strove for predominance. He was totally unlike all that she had read of the aborigines of the South seas.

It was the man who broke the silence, as it had been the man who had broken the spell of her slumber. He made that queer little chuckling noise in his throat which sounded familiar enough and yet she had heard it from the lips of no man before. It meant nothing to her except that he who stood before her at least was not dumb, although the noise he made was certainly no articulate speech as she knew speech or could imagine it.

At any rate it was a stimulus to her. She opened her own parched lips and strove to make reply, but her thirst, with a rising terror and nervousness made her dumb and no sound came forth. The man might be preparing to kill her. He could do so, if he willed, she thought, but she must drink or die. If she could not speak, she could make signs. She leaned forward raised her arm, hollowed her hand and dipped as if from a well and made as if to pour it into her lips. Then she stretched out both her hands to him in the attitude of petition. The man stared hard at her. His brow wrinkled. It was such a simple sign that any savage would have comprehended it, she thought, and yet it appeared to her, watching in despair, that it took a long time for the idea to beat into his brain. She could wait no longer. She rose to her knees and stretched out her hands again.

"Water!" she gasped in a hoarse whisper. "Water, or I die!"

The man had started violently at her speech. Giving him no time to recover, she went through the motion again, this time with greater effect, for the man turned and vanished. She sank down on the sand too exhausted to follow him even with her eyes. If he brought the water she would drink it and live; if he did not, she would lie where she was and die. She did not care much, she thought, which would happen. She had so sickened of life before she essayed that open boat, that she believed it was simply an animal craving in her which would make her take the water in case it should be brought her. And yet when he did appear with a cocoanut shell brimming with clear, sparkling liquid, she felt as though the elixir of life had been proffered her.

She seized the shell with both hands which yet so trembled that most of the precious water spilled on her dress as she carried it to her parched lips. This was good in the end, for if that vessel had been the famed Jotuneheim drinking horn, she would have drained it dry ere she set it down. As it was, she got but little; yet that little was enough to set her heart beating once more. Emptying the shell of the last drop—and with that keenness of perception which her long training had intensified and developed, marking the while that it had not been cut clean by any knife or saw or human implement, but was jagged and broken as if from a fall, she dropped it on the sand and looked again toward the man. He held in his hand fruit of some kind, she did not know what it was. It might have been poison. What mattered it? Having drunk she must also eat. It looked edible, it was inviting to the eye and smell, and as she sunk her teeth into it, she found it agreeable to the taste also. He had brought it to her. If he had meant harm, present harm, surely he would not have given the water. She ate it confidently.

As the man saw her partake of what he had given her, he clapped his hands and laughed. She was grateful for that laugh. It was more human than the babbling sounds which he made before.

There was but little of the fruit, just what a child would have brought and this again was good for her, for had there been an abundance, in her need she would have eaten until she had made herself ill. When she had partaken, she rose to her feet. Before doing this she had extended her hand to him as if seeking assistance, but he had simply stared at her uncomprehending and she had been forced to get to her feet unaided. Once standing, she trembled and would have fallen, but that she caught his arm and steadied herself by holding tightly to it. The man started back at her touch. Color came and went in his face; little shudders swept over him; his mouth opened; he looked at her with a singular expression of awe not unmixed with terror in his eyes, for this was the first time in his recollection or what would have been his recollection if his retrospective faculties had been developed, that he had ever felt the touch of a woman's hand, of any human hand upon him.

"Water!" She Gasped in a Hoarse Whisper.

Noticing his peculiar demeanor in the to her, perfectly natural situation, the woman summoning some of the remains of the reserve of force which is in every human body until life is gone, released his arm and stared about her leaning against the trunk of the nearest palm. This time, and for the first time, she took in that expanse of sea, lonely yet beautiful, upon which her eyes were to look so often. Out of the deep and the night she had come. Into what deep and into what day had she arrived?

She turned and surveyed the shore. The beach curved sharply to the right and to the left, the long barrier reef following roughly its contour until the land obscured it on either side. Back of her stretched a grove of palms and back of that rose a hill; its crest bare and crag-like towered above a sea of verdure. Through a chance vista she saw the mass of rock as a mountain peak. On one side high precipitous cliffs ran down close to the shore and shut out the view. Over them water fell to the beach.

Save in the person of the man beside her there was not an evidence of humanity anywhere. No curl of smoke rose above the trees. No distant call of human voices smote the fearful hollow of her ear. The breeze made music in the tall palms and in the thick verdure farther up the hill side, birds sang softly here and there, but there was a tropical stillness to which the great heaving diapason on the distant barriers was a foundation of sound upon which to build a lonely quiet. Human beings there might be, there must be, on that island, if island it were; but if so, they must be abiding on the farther side. She and the man were alone.

Standing on her feet, with a slight renewal of her strength from what she had eaten and drunk, the woman now felt less fear of the man. He had treated her kindly. His aspect was gentle, even amiable. He looked at her wistfully, bending his brows from time to time and ever and again shaking his head, as a great dog looks at the master with whom he would fain speak, whose language he would fain understand, to whom he would fain impart his own ideas if he could.

She stared at him perplexed. She was entirely at loss what to do, until her eyes roving past him detected a dark object on the water line just where the still blueness touched the white sand. The sunlight was reflected from gleams of metal, and thinking that she recognized it, she stepped from the shade of the palms and made her way unsteadily toward it. The man, without a sound, followed closely at her side.

Her vision had been correct, for she drew out of the sand a leather handbag, such as women carry. It had been elaborately fitted with bottles and mirrors and toilet articles. Alas, it was in a sad state of dilapidation now. The bottles were broken, their contents gone. The bag had been lying in the boat when it had been hurled on the barrier in the night and the same storm and tide which had borne her ashore had hurled it also on the sand. But it had come open in the battering and its contents were pitiably ruined. With eager eyes and fingers she examined everything. She found intact a little mirror, a pair of scissors, a little housewife which was not a part of the fittings and she wondered how it failed of being washed away, two combs and a package of hairpins.

She had fought against starvation and thirst and loneliness and despair as she had fought against men and she had not given way. She had set her teeth and locked her hands and endured hardship like the stoutest hearted, most determined soldier in the history of human struggles. But as the realization of this small misfortune burst upon her, she sank down on the sands and put her head in her hands and sobbed. Tears did her good. She had her cry out, utterly unhindered, for the man stood by, shaking his head and staring at her and making those strange little sounds, but offering in no way to molest her.

The water was beautifully clear and she could see on the other side of the barrier the remains of her boat. Perhaps some time, if there were need, she could get to that boat, but for the present all the flotsam and jetsam of her wild and fearful voyage lay in a water-soaked bag full of broken glass and battered silver from which she had rescued a pair of scissors, a mirror, two combs, a housewife full of rusty needles and some hairpins. O vanitas vanitatum!

She was wearing a serviceable dress of blue serge with a sailor's blouse and a short skirt. Putting her precious treasure trove within the loose blouse and carrying the battered bag which she meant to examine more carefully later, she turned and made for the shade of the trees again. For one thing the sun rising rapidly was gaining power and beating down with great force upon her bare head. She had enjoyed the protection of a wonderfully plaited straw hat on her long voyage else she could not have borne the heat, but that, too, was gone.

As she walked inland, she noticed again off to her right that stream of water which dropped over the tall cliff in a slender waterfall a sweet inviting pool at the base before it ran through the sands toward the sea. She made her way thither and at the brink knelt down and took long draughts of it. Eating and drinking evidently went together in the mind of the man, for when she raised her head, she found him standing before her with both hands filled with some of the fruit she had partaken of before and other fruit. She thought she recognized the breadfruit and a species of banana. At any rate, she ate again and having by this time recovered to some extent her mental poise, she ate sparingly and with caution.

Then having satisfied her material needs, she knelt down by the stream and washed her face and hands. How sweet was the freshness of that water to her face burned by the sun and the wind and subjected for a long time to the hard spray of the briny seas. She would have been glad to have taken off her clothing and plunged into the pool, to have washed the salt of days from her tired body, to have had the stimulus and refreshment of its sparkling coolness over her weary limbs. But in the presence of her dog-like attendant this was not yet possible.

Still she could and must arrange her hair. Of all the articles in her dressing bag, she was more fervently thankful at that moment for the combs than anything else, the combs and the little mirror and the hairpins—small things indeed, but human happiness as a rule turns on things so small that the investigator and promotor thereof generally overlook them. And we know not the significance of the little until upon some desert island we are left with only those.

It was still early, about eight o'clock. How was she to pass the day? She must do something. She felt she could not sit idly staring from sea to shore. She must be moving. No business called her; she must invent some. The compelling necessity of a soul not born for idleness was upon her. She would explore the land. That was logically the first thing to be done any way and this was a highly trained woman who thought to live by rule and law albeit her rules were poor ones.

She started inland, the man following after. She had gained confidence in herself with every passing moment. The man who looked at her as a dog she would treat as one. She must have some privacy. She could not always have him trailing at her heels. She turned by a great boulder, pointed to it, laid her hand on the man's shoulder and gently forced him to a sitting position by it. Then she walked away. He stared wistfully after her departing figure, and as she turned around to look at him, he sprang to his feet.

"No, no!" she cried imperatively, making backward threatening motions with her hands, whereat he resumed his sitting position, staring at her until he lost her among the trees.

Presently she turned and came back to him. It was so deathly lonely without him. He leaped to his feet as he saw her coming and clapped his hands as a child might have done, his face breaking out the while into a smile that was both trustful and touching. She felt better since she had him under this control, and together they walked on under the trees.

TO BE CONTINUED.

You are undoubtly aware this is the time, in the Ladies' Tailoring and Fur Business, when all winter orders have been filled, and as it is early for ordering and making of goods for next season, I have decided to give my patrons the advantage of this dull period and offer to make all skirts, suits and other garments from a variety of imported and domestic suiting, SERGES, BROAD CLOTHES and NOVELTIES, at an actual saving to you.

My intention in making this offer is to keep my employes busy during intervening months, and I earnestly hope that all my patrons will avail themselves of this exceptional opportunity to obtain valuable garments at very reasonable price.

Thanking you for past patronage, and awaiting a continuance of same, I beg to remain,

Yours respectfully,

An eight pound son arrived at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Archibald Hacquer in Philadelphia yesterday morning.

Y.M.C.A. QUINTET BEATS THE CRACK HARLEM FIVE

Y. M. C. A.'s basketball five added another victory to its credit on Saturday night, when the locals took into camp the crack Harlem Y. M. C. A. aggregation by the score of 38 to 20. Superior team work counted in favor of Plainfield. The visitors also put up a fast game, but the locals were too speedy for them. The lineups:

Plainfield—Aaholm, Collier, forwards; Linke, centre; Foster, Miner guards.

Harlem—Jameson, Schoff, forwards; Winckler, centre; Klein, Holter, Maeder, guards.

The N. P. H. S. scored a 29 to 24 victory over the Y. M. C. A. "Seconds" in a game which was marked by rough house tactics. The lineup:

Y. M. C. A.—Manley, Fritts, Lidgate, forwards; Hoagland, centre; Naylor, Ulmer, guards.

N. P. H. S.—Conroy, Stine, forwards; C. Smith, centre; Dunning, H. Smith, Becker, guards.

ASBURY PARK OBSERVES SUNDAY CLOSING LAWS

Mayor T. Frank Appleby enforced the old Sunday Blue Laws yesterday at Asbury Park, and there was not a cigar store, drug store, or any of the many Italian fruit stores open for business. All the stores were allowed to do business in the morning, but when the city fire bells rang the noon hour every shop closed and pulled down its curtains. Yesterday afternoon printed placards were put in the windows bearing this inscription: "Closed during the silly season." The cards bear as ornaments a stern looking policeman and, in an upper corner, a couple of sweethearts with the inscription: "What are the wild waves saying?"

And it's all on account of politics, people say, though why nobody knows and the Mayor won't tell. Notices that they must close their shops at noon yesterday and stay closed for the rest of the day were served on druggists, the proprietors of fruit stores, and restaurant men who sell cigars and tobacco. The druggists were allowed to stay open for the sale of drugs only, but the pharmacists got together yesterday morning and determined that such restriction was unjust, and they announced they would not open at all.

The Mayor seems particularly opposed to a Sunday cigar; that is, a Sunday cigar purchased after noon. His instructions to the police were to close all cigar stores, prevent the sale of tobacco and cigars in restaurants after noon, close all the fruit stores after 12 o'clock and prevent the sale of anything but drugs at the pharmacies.

Similar orders were given a week ago, but Thomas J. Winckler, President of the Common Council, told the proprietors the Mayor could not enforce half a law and to keep open. And they did. This angered the Mayor, and he gave orders to the police again Saturday to enforce the closing order. No arrests were made last Sunday.

When the orders went out again yesterday business men decided to let the Mayor have his way and see how his people like it. With the postoffice and stores closed, there is no place in town in the afternoon or evening to purchase stamps and souvenir post cards.

Death of Mrs. Zimmerman.

Mrs. Harry Zimmerman, died on Saturday at her home in Dunellen, after an illness of several months. Mrs. Zimmerman was in her thirty-second year and is the daughter of Paul Kratzel, of that place. She is survived by a husband, father, four brothers, two sisters and a young daughter. The funeral service will be condcted at the home of her father tonight by the Rev. W. A. Knox, pastor of the Dunellen Methodist church. The deceased was a member of the Daughters of Liberty. Interment will be made at Bound Brook tomorrow afternoon.

Sale and Tea Netted $35.

The sale and tea held at the home of Mrs. J. W. Gavett, of Third place, Friday afternoon, under the auspices of the Missionary and Aid Society of Warren chapel, netted about $35 for the chapel deficit fund, carried by the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church. There was a sale of cake and bread, after which tea and coffee were served. Mrs. J. H. Snyder was chairman of the committee in charge.

Charles A. Pomeroy Injured.

Charles A. Pomeroy, of Park place, the borough, has been detained at home for several days with a sprained ankle, the result of a peculiar accident. He was leaning out of the window reaching for something, when his feet slipped on a rug, which lay on a waxed floor, and he went out of the window head first. The injury required the services of a physician.

Funeral of Mrs. Boyd.

The funeral service of Mrs. Margaret Boyd, of 21 Somerset street, was conducted at St. Mary's church this morning by Father Bogan. Interment was made at Calvary cemetery, New York.

SENATOR SMITH'S WIFE DIED SATURDAY NIGHT

Mrs. Katharine Rose Nugent Smith, wife of former United States Senator James Smith, Jr., died on Saturday evening at her home, 14 Washington place, Newark. Mrs. Smith had been ill since February 3 and at the time of her death her husband and daughter, who had been summoned from Chicago, were at the bedside.

Mrs. Smith was born in Newark August 10, 1852, and had lived in Newark all her life. She was married to Mr. Smith on May 13, 1874, by Bishop (afterward Archbishop) Corrigan. She leaves besides her husband six children, two daughters, Elizabeth, the wife of Peter Hauck, Jr., and Mary Rose, and four sons, James 3d, J. Henry, George D., and Joseph L. Smith.

The funeral will take place tomorrow at St. Patrick's cathedral, where a solemn high mass of requiem will be sung at 10:30 o'clock. Right Revs. John J. O'Connor, bishop of the diocese of Newark, and Right Rev. James A. McFaul, bishop of Trenton diocese, will be present. The mass will be celebrated by Monsignor Isaac P. Whelan, rector of the cathedral, assisted by Rev. Thomas J. Kiernan of Passaic, and Rev. John N. Norris, of Deal. The interment will be in the family plot in the cemetery of the Holy Sepulchre.

OUR FRIENDS IN HEAVEN SUBJECT OF HIS SERMON

Rev. John Y. Broek, pastor of Trinity Reformed church, preached the fifth in his series of sermons on "Heaven" last night to a large congregation. The subject was: "Our Friends in Heaven—What Are They Doing?" The text was taken from John 12:26. In part Mr. Broek said:

"When we think of heaven we not only know that God, our Father, Jesus our Saviour, and the angels created as ourselves, will be there, but we are also interested in our friends, those who are bone of our bone and have been redeemed. The number of the redeemed must be very great. The composition and cosmopolitan character of the people is also wonderful. In the society of heaven the elite of the universe are numbered.

"The Bible does not satisfy any curiosity as to how we shall be occupied when we reach heaven, at least not in specific details. Many a one has regretted that Lazarus after he came back to earth told nothing of his experience. Heaven will not be a huge singing school although we are told that the saints are continually before the throne and praise Him night and day. There is good reason to believe that the redeemed will be largely occupied in following out favorite occupations here on earth. Heaven is a place for sanctified people and the chief occupation of sanctified people is to do the will of God. We want a heaven, a service to complete our imperfect service here on earth.

"We will undoubtedly rekindle the friendships which we have here formed. We believe not only in the continuity of life, but in the continuity of love as well. The redeemed are thinking much of the scenes of this earth. I cannot believe that those whom we have loved long have forgotten us, do not think about us, or do not know what we are doing.

"The great joy of heaven will be the constant communion with Christ. We shall see with our very eyes the Man of Sorrows; the nail prints, and the wound in His side; look upon His blessed face; hear His voice; touch His hand, and be forever with the Lord."

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

The twentieth anniversary of the Mary E. Wilson Memorial chapel will be observed on Sunday, February 20. A special program is being prepared for the occasion. F. A. Dattenhofer led the meeting at the chapel last night.

The Sunshine Mission Band of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, will hold its regular meeting in the chapel of the church this afternoon. Leila Hedges will lead and the subject will be "The Religions of Japan."

"Trifles Necessary to Attain Perfection"

Perfection is no Trifle

The many little "Trifles" neccessary in building a Perfect Piano, and which are passed over or neglected in most factories, are carefully considered by the makers of the

Hallet & Davis

From the beginning, from the time the first Hallet & Davis piano was made (1835), up to the present time, its makers (this is the third generation) have taken a pride in their handiwork, the pride of honest workmen; a careful attention to the "trifles," the little things not seen by the purchaser; painstaking examination of every bit of material; minute inspection of every working part.

"Good enough" never has, never will pass muster in the Hallet & Davis Shop. It may be good enough to pass unnoticed, may never be seen or detected, but "good enough" means slighted work, and slighted work has no place in our factory.

"Perfection," or the nearest approach within human possibility, is, and ever has been the goal we strive to attain. Not to make a piano that is "good enough" but to endeavor with all our experience, skill and knowledge of the piano maker's art, honesty of purpose, and all backed by unlimited capital, to make a perfect instrument.

In use today are many Hallet & Davis pianos, 30, 40 and even 50 years old, still giving forth sweet sounds, still responding to the exacting requirements of the musician, living testimonials of the honest workmanship of their makers. No piano can give such service unless there has been strict attention paid to the "trifles" that are passed over by most factories.

A Hallet & Davis in the home is evidence of good judgment and refined taste. It also means, "perfect piano satisfaction."

TRUE TEMPERANCE TALK

"PROHIBITION FOOLISH DREAM."

Whiskey a Drug Not a Drink and Should Be Classed as a Poison Says Journalist.

Arthur Brisbane, editor of the New York Journal and the highest salaried newspaperman in the world, delivered an address before the New Jersey Editorial Association at a luncheon at Trenton yesterday. Much of his interesting and instructive talk was devoted to the liquor problem, his keynote being "Prohibition versus True Temperance." Mr. Brisbane when a boy, was a pupil at the old Jackson school in Fanwood township, and he now owns the site of that school.

In his speech to the Jersey editors Mr. Brisbane said:

"First, I think I shall talk about prohibition as opposed to real temperance.

"Editors of newspapers, coming in contact through their reporters and in their own experience with the drink question, actually know the facts. They have no excuse for leaving uncontradicted the false statements of the advocates of free whisky, which means whisky drunkenness.

"And they have no excuse for leaving uncontradicted the honest and earnest but false and ignorant statements of the prohibitionist who would make men over to suit himself and whose work, unrestricted, results also in whisky drunkenness.

"Briefly, I believe that the producers of light natural wines and light beers, very low in alcoholic strength, are the real workers for temperance.

"And the producers of whisky, gin and other alcoholic poisons are the creators of drunkenness.

"There is as much difference between light beer and whisky as there is between tobacco and opium.

"Admit that beer is a bad thing if you like, and admit that tobacco is a bad thing if you choose, but you must also admit that beer drinking, just as the tobacco smoking of America is better for a race than the opium smoking of China.

"There is as much difference between light wine and gin as there is between coffee and cocaine

"If you should prohibit the use of tobacco in this country you know perfectly well that men's nerves would crave and would have some substitute. By forcing out tobacco you would force in opium, morphine, cocaine or some other harmful drug.

"Absolute experience has proved in every prohibition state that when prohibition drives out the use of the light beers and light wines, that cannot be hidden by the boot-legger, or the 'blind pig' owner, prohibition at the same time forces upon the community the use of whisky and the other highly alcoholic poisons.

"You cannot have prohibition; you can have true temperance. The solution of the problem is to discourage in every way the sale and consumption of whisky, gin, etc., and to encourage the sale, under decent, cheerful conditions as in France and Germany, of the relatively harmless light wines and beers.

"I would put a government tax of $1 a bottle on highly alcoholic spirits and I would put a prohibitive license upon the sale of whisky and the other alcoholic poisons, whether they be sold by the glass over the bar, or by the bottle in the grocery store where brisk 'bottle trade' develops the secret drunkard.

"Let any man who chooses sell light wines and light beers containing seven per cent. or less of alcohol—such drinks do not make drunkards, unless the drunkard finds it easy to shift from beer to whisky. Let light native wines and beers be sold in restaurants, in beer gardens, freely. Let the owners of such places deposit as a guarantee a sufficient sum of money, $1,000 or more, with the authorities; let that sum be forfeited to the detective or other who shall prove the possession on the premises—regardless of its being drunk or sold—of any stimulant containing alcohol in excess of seven per cent. A plan like this could be carried out. It would mean true temperance, the abolition of drunkenness, and it would mean dealing sanely with men as they are.

"Prohibition is the foolish, impossible dream of the well meaning theorist. There are two kinds of prohibitionists; those who have always been teetotalers, and they of course do not understand the subject they are discussing. And there are prohibitionists that have been drunkards, that have reformed, and they all know perfectly well that it is

SPECIAL MEETING FEBY 24.

Mayor and Common Council Invited to Be Present When Municipal Problems Are Discussed.

The executive committee of the Board of Trade met at the office of the president, William Jeffery, on Park avenue, yesterday afternoon at 4:30. The subject of the afternoon's discussion was the special election on the water question. It was decided to hold a special meeting on Thursday night, February 24, on which date a committee will be appointed to take up the matter of personal assessments with a view to having it discontinued. At the same time the water question will be discussed.

A communication was received from Jacob Sachar relative to this question of personal taxes and the letter was read to the committee. Mr. Sachar complans that while some are not taxed enough others are overtaxed and still others are not assessed anything at all on their personalities.

In another letter Mr. Sachar has suggested that the license fee in this city be raised to two thousand dollars, but the members present voted to lay the communication on the table.

Mr. Jeffery's proposition for the establishment of a "board of trade class," in which questions pertinent to the city's welfare may be discussed and encouragement given to take part in the discussions to those who are timid about it, has received the approval of several members of the board and they have written to Mr. Jeffery to that effect.

In the absence of Secretary Herr, President Jeffery acted as secretary of the meeting. The president has addressed a letter to Mayor Fisk in which Mr. Jeffery acknowledges receipt of a letter from the Mayor relative to the two resolutions of the Cuncil pertaining to the water supply for the city, and the authority given the corporation counsel to prepare the necessary reslutions, notices, etc., for the purpose of taking action at the next regular meeting of the Common Council in March. The Mayor and the Common Council are invited to attend the special meeting of the board.

The special meeting of the Board of Trade on February 24 is open only to members of the Board of Trade and Cmmon Council.

Those present at yesterday's meeting besides Mr. Jeffery were Herman Schwed, George M. Christian, F. A. Duttenhofer and J. F. MacDonald.

LOCAL FANS TO DINE 'WEE WILLIE' KEELER

Plans for the banquet to be given in honor of Willie Keeler, the former Plainfield baseball star, now of theNew York American League club, are progressing satisfactorily. The affair will be given at the Iroquois Hotel, Monday night, February 21. A telegram received yesterday from Willie Keeler, followed by a letter which John G. MacLaughlin, chairman of the committee, received today, gave assurance that the crack ball player will be here.

Mr. Keeler says that he will be glad to greet the old fans once more and will consider it an honor to be the guests of his friends here on February 21.

Judge William N. Runyon will be the toastmaster, and among the speakers will be Samuel St. John McCutchen. The committee in charge of the banquet comprise John G. MacLaughlin, chairman; Judge William N. Runyon, George Johnston, George E. Firstbrook, John J. Kenney, V. W. Nash, Jr., and William R. Cass. Tickets may be had from any of the above named persons or at Schreiner's drug store.

MORE EXCISE MEASURES INTRODUCED AT TRENTON

Assemblyman Olwell, of Hudson last night in the House introduced four excise bills that he believed would cure all defects in the traffic and would meet the approval of a majority of the people of the State.

They provide for Sunday sales under restrictions among other things. They are entered as House 241, 242, 243 and 244, and all were referred to the House judiciary committee, of which Colonel Walter E. Edge, of Atlantic City, is chairman.

They provide, in brief, respectively, as follows:

241—Repeals Senator Hillery's "jag law," or act for the prevention of drunkenness, passed last year.

242—Makes it a misdemeanor for anyone under the age of 21 to represent himself as over that age in order to get a drink of liquor.

243—Makes it unlawful for any person holding a license to sell liquors in quantities in less than one quart to serve such liquors to any minor under 21 years of age; first offense, fine of $100; second conviction, fine of $200 and forfeiture of license.

244—Makes it legal for any licensed hotel-keeper to serve liquors in the dining rooms at meals to guests on Sunday.

TO REQUIRE LICENSES FOR ALL MARRIAGES

Assemblyman Kissam last night introduced a bill in the House at Trenton, requiring all persons presenting themselves before any authority to be united in marriage to first present a marriage license secured five days before the date set for the ceremony. The present law requires only non-residents to secure marriage licenses.

The Kissam bill would require residents to secure licenses from the county clerk in the county where the contracting parties reside. The bill further provides that a false statement made in reply to the questions of a clergyman shall constitute a perjury.

Another Essex measure by Mr. Minard would put the land upon which the Montclair Hotel stands back into the limits of the borough of Verona. It will be remembered that the land was originally a part of Verona, set off by legislative enactment before the hotel was built. Verona wants the hotel as a scource of tax revenue.

A VALENTINE SOCIAL AT MISS MARIE NOLAN'S.

Miss Marie Nolan, of Richmond street, was given a surprise valentine party at her home, last night, by a large number of her friends. The affair was arranged by Miss Nolan's mother and Miss Ray Preager. The party met at East Fifth and Richmond streets, and proceeded in a body to the home of Miss Nolan.

The evening was spent playing games of all kinds, and there was also a program of vocal and instrumental music, after which refreshments were served.

The guests were the Misses Hazel Hammel, Helen Powers, Rae Preager, Emma Edmonds, Anna Dalon, Marie Nolan and George Simons, "Hub" Reynolds, Carl Hammond, Harold Gloak, George Muir, Clark Hammel, Frank Hart, Leon Richmond and Frank Weigman, of this city; Miss Maud Winn, Miss Mary Glynn and Charles Passila, of New York; Miss Anna Cox, of Elizabeth; Miss Agnes Schuyler, of Roselle; Frank Sterphone, Stanley Welch and George Estelle, of Westfield.

Funeral of Mrs. Compton.

The funeral of Mrs. Halsted C. Compton, who died on Sunday, was held this afternoon at her late home, 1014 West Front street, at 2 o'clock. Rev. Dr. John A. Chambliss, pastor of the First Baptist church, conducted the service and the interment was in Hillside cemetery. The pallbearers were Warren Randolph, F. C. Langhorne, James Manning, Charles Rocap, George Fountain and George White.

W. Fellowes Morgan to Speak.

W. Fellowes Morgan, of Newark, a prominent churchman and actively engaged in the work of the Episcopal church in this diocese, will speak at the special meeting for men at Grace church tomorrow night at 8 o'clock. These meetings are held every Wednesday evening during Lenten and are especially planned for men, although not exclusively so.

BOROUGH SCHOOL BUDGET

Voters to Be Asked to Approve an Appropriation of $20,000.

IT IS LESS THAN USUAL.

Board Wants for Current Expenses $16,187; Manual Training $1,912, and for Repairs $1,900.

The North Plainfield Board of Education at an adjourned meeting held last night for the purpose of preparing the budget for the coming school year, unanimously decided to submit the following at the annual school meeting on Tuesday, March 15: For current expenses, $16,187.50; repairs, $1,900; manual training, $1,912.50, making a total of $20,000.

This amount is a reduction of $4,625 from last year's budget. The schools next year will cost the borough almost exactly what they did five years ago, the amount of the budget at that time being $19,840

The budgets for the past five years were as follows: 1905-6, $19,840; 1906-7, $21,830; 1907-8, $24,900; 1908-9, $14,200; 1909-10, $24,625; 1910-11, $20,000. The low figure for 1908-9 resulted from the receipt of two portions of the railroad tax.

The board ordered the payment of $2,000 on a note for $3,325, which was authorized by the voters on June 28, 1906, and which is due next year.

MR. CASE NOT ELIGIBLE

Senate Holds Up Governor's Appointment for Somerset Judgeship.

BILL TO CHANGE THE LAW.

Assemblyman to Introduce Measure to Permit His Confirmation—Pope Approved as Prosecutor.

In executive session today, the State Senate, at Trenton, was prevented by law from considering Governor Fort's nomination of Clarence E. Case, of Somerville, to be judge of the Court of Common Pleas of Somerset county. State Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen presented Case's name, in place of the present incumbent, Louis H. Schenck, and the Governor approved of it.

The law, however, requires that to be eligible to the county judgeship, one candidate must have been a counselor for three years. Here the snag was struck for former Congressman Alvah A. Clark's law partner did not fill the requirements in that respect. Consequently, the confirmation by the Senate was held up. It is understood that a remedial measure for Mr. Case's benefit will be introduced by Assemblyman W. W. Smalley. As it is considered a very serious matter to make judges of lawyers who have not held their counselor papers for the brief period of three years it is said to be a question whether Mr. Smalley will have influence enough to get his bill through the Assembly.

The Senate confirmed the Governor's appointment of Frederick A. Pope to be prosecutor of the pleas in Somerset. He succeeds John F. Reger.

Signatures Coming Fast.

The signatures obtained yesterday to the petition for an election on the question of sewers for the Borough of North Plainfield are more than the number secured on all the other days put together. The prospects this morning looked bright for the requisite number of signatures being obtained by tonight.

Death of Josiah Dunham.

Josiah Dunham, of 514 West Third street, died this morning after a short illness. The funeral will be held on Friday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the Shiloh Baptist church, and the services will be conducted by Rev. Mr. Roberts. The interment will be in Hillside cemetery.

MURDERED HUSBAND; COMMITTED SUICIDE

At Rumson, a small village on the Shrewsbury River, near Red Bank, George Truex, a carpenter, was shot and instantly killed by his wife. She then turned the revolver upon herself and wounded herself four times. She died later.

After her death letters were found in which she asked a sister to take care of her children and to see that the property was properly divided.

Yesterday morning Truex got up at 6 o'clock and went to the kitchen to get his breakfast before going to work. Shortly after the couple had gone to the kitchen, Herman, their sixteen-year-old son, was awakened by the report of a pistol. He hurried to the kitchen and got there just as his father cried, "Oh, Herman," and died.

The boy picked up the revolver, which was lying on the floor, and went back to his room to dress, first placing the revolver under the bed clothes. While he was dressing and his back was turned his mother entered the room, took the pistol from its hiding place, and returned to the kitchen, where she shot herself.

Besides the son, Herman, the couple had a daughter, Marion, fifteen years old.

BUILDERS OBJECT TO NEW 'LIABILITY BILL'

L. B. Woolston, Philip Jahn, James Hanson, Ira N. West, John Abbott and C. W. Krause, representing the Master Builders' Association, attended the hearing at Trenton yesterday relative to the Employers' Liability bill, introduced by Senator Harry V. Osborne, of Essex county. There was a large delegation of interested people from all parts of the State.

The Master Builders' Association is opposed to the measure as to a majority of its provisions. They do not believe that Senator Ernest R. Ackerman's bill has had a fair trial and are willing to have that remain in force at present.

However, those present at the hearing yesterday did not have much of an opportunity to speak, as the hearing was taken up almost entirely in arguing the legal phases of the bill. The Plainfield delegation did, however, succeed in entering a protest against the measure.

SURPRISE PARTY GIVEN FOR MISS HELLN MYERS.

A surprise party was tendered to Miss Helen Meyers, of East Sixth street, last night. Games were played and vocal and instrumental music enjoyed. Selections were rendered by Mrs. C. Meyers, Miss Ada Smith and Miss Lavinia Fulmer. Refreshments were served during the evening.

The guests were the Misses Ada Smith, Helen Safferon, Lavinia Fulmer, Gertrude Cashin, Evelyn Cashin, Myrtle Dunn, Blanche Rskham, Bertie VanNest, Marie Hedin, Helen Meyers and Austin Schwer, David Huston, Harold Phifer, Robert Gullberg, Carl Gullberg, Harry Dunn, Victor Crook, Alfred Shrybach, Chris. PARK AVENUE BAPTISTS TO HEAR REV. MR. MAGUIRE.

The Park Avenue Baptist church has secured Rev. G. R. Maguire, of Cleveland, Ohio, to supply the pulpit on Sunday at both services. Mr. Maguire is said to be an eloquent preacher and one who has been successful in building up a large church in Cleveland. He is highly recommended by Rev. Dr. Charles A. Eaton, who, prior to removing to this section, was pastor of the Euclid Avenue Baptist church in Cleveland.

It is said that Mr. Maguire is anxious to live near New York and the Park Avenue Baptist church may have the opportunity of securing him as a pastor.

Will Receive a Male Patient.

The Board of Governors of Muhlenberg Hospital met last night, but little business was transacted. The only matter of importance considered was that of instructing the proper committee to arrange with the Anti-Tuberculosis League of Plainfield and North Plainfield for the admission of a male patient to the tuberculosis camp. All the patients at present are women, but there is a male applicant and it is the wish of the society that he be received at the camp for treatment.

PICK UP RUNAWAY BOY

Ernest Koenig, of New York, Tells the Court a Straightforward Story.

ALLEGED CRUEL TREATMENT.

Will Go Home With His Mother Who He Said Drove Him to Run Away by Undeserved Whippings.

Ernest Koenig, a fourteen year old boy was picked up last night wandering around the streets evidently seeking a place to roost. He was directed to police headquarters by a citizen and there, after considerable questioning, it developed that the youngster had run away from home. He told a story of cruelty suffered at the hands of his mother, who is a widow, and said that whatever went wrong in the house he was blamed for, and he had made up his mind to get away from it all.

Of course, he was honest about it all. He told where he lived, 360 East 72d street, New York, and that he was a pupil of public school No. 158, and that he stood well with his teacher and in fact loved her, because she was kind to him. Furthermore he volunteered the information the he was not the kind who wanted to go west and hunt scalps, but he did want to earn his own living and be independent.

Ernest has two sisters and one brother and no matter what happens to disturb his mother he (Ernest) gets whipped for it. Only Saturday she gave him an awful whipping for absolutely nothing, he says, for it was the two sister who created the rumpus in the house for which he was punished. So just because he could not stand it any longer he made up his mind to escape it all by a journey into the heart of New Jersey. By the same token Ernest is a Jersey boy. He formerly lived at Hackensack and while his father was alive everything was serene, but since the family moved to New York nothing has gone right.

"Two dollars which I took from my mothers' pocketbook is what got me here," said Ernest this morning, "and I am sorry about that, but I don't want to have to stand all the spankings that are handed out in our family."

Judge William N. Runyon, who questioned the lad, got his little tale of woe and then gave some fatherly advice. He told Ernest to see his teacher and the principal of the school and tell them of the terrible trials he was subjected to at home and without doubt they could save him future trouble. The boy promised the judge to do just as he was advised and felt a good deal better after he had separated himself from the story of his wrongs. Ernest's mother will take him home today.

EDITORS DECIDE TO END FREE "BOOSTING"

Members of the New Jersey State Editorial Association in annual session at Trenton yesterday resolved that too much space is being taken up by press agents for theatres, magazines and other affairs of this kind and it was decided that in the future these persons should receive less consideration in the matter of complimentary notices, even where passes and like emoluments accompanied the writeups.

The editors also resolved that the railroad companies ought to resume the old practice of advertising time tables in the newspapers, the consensus of opinion being that such time table advertising was a benefit to the general public. The Legislature will be asked to enact a law compelling the railroads to so advertise their train schedules.

Want Flag on Eagle Rock.

Patriotic organizations of Montclair are interested in the proposal to place a large American flag at the summit of Eagle Rock, in Eagle Rock Park, adjoining Montclair. It is proposed to fly the flag from a steel pole 300 feet in height. The proposal has been placed before the Essex County Park Commission, whose consent is necessary before the plan can be carried out. The flag, if placed on the pole, could be seen by ships entering New York Harbor.

HOLD YOUTHFUL THIEVES

Two Boys Confess at Hearing That They Stole Several Hundred Dollars

CLARK ROGERS THE VICTIM.

Joseph Penrose and Charles Bogue, of New Market, Held for Grand Jury—Spent Stolen Money.

Joseph Penrose and Charles Bogue, the youths who were suspected of having robbed Clark Rogers, of New Market, of sums of money on three different occasions lately, were arraigned before Justice of the Peace William Smith, of Middlesex county, yesterday afternoon and held to await the action of the grand jury.

Both Penrose and Bogue confessed the crime and gave a very vivid account of the good time they had had spending the money. They traveled to Philadelphia, Harrisburg and intermediate points and squandered their ill-gotten gains in riotous living. The checks, amounting to $140, they did not use as that would have added the crime of forgery to the less serious one of grand larceny of which they are accused.

Penrose, who is the elder of the two young men, said that after stealing the first time they found the second venture easier and the third and last time proved their undoing. Mr. Rogers suffered at the hands of the boys to the extent of several hundred dollars, the fruit of three thefts and while he was not positive of the identity of the thieves he was suspicious enough to have done considerable sleuthing on his own hook. Finally his suspicions amounted to certainty and he caused warrants to be issued for the two lads who were arrested yesterday by Constable Pierce, of Dunellen. Penrose is nineteen and Bogue seventeen years old, the latter having a widowed mother who is frantic over her son's predicament. They were taken to New Brunswick this morning.

MISS PULLINGER LAID TO REST IN HILLSIDE CEMETERY.

The funeral of Miss Marion E. Pullinger, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. George B. Pullinger, took place yesterday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from the home of her sister, Mrs. Carrie M. Slocum, 502 Central avenue. The services were conducted by Rev. Dr. John S. Zelie, pastor of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church.

Miss Pullinger's death was a shock to many friends, coming so soon after her mother's demise on February 2. Many beautiful floral tributes were received from friends of the family. The interment was in Hillside cemetery.

LOCAL MEN TO SPEAK AT TRADE BOARD DINNER.

James E. Martine and S. S. Swackhamer have been secured as additional speakers for the annual banquet of the Board of Trade on March 3, with a view to representing the city. Their toasts will be of a local nature and they will follow the other three speakers, William G. McAdoo, State Senator Edmund Wakelee and Assemblyman Mark A. Sullivan.

The tickets for the banquet have been issued and are selling rapidly. The committee in charge, of which Edmund Rushmore is chairman, has about completed all details for the affair.

Keeping Record of Attendance.

A special effort is being made to secure the prompt attendance of worshippers at the First Baptist church, Sunday mornings. The hour is 10:30, and a record of the attendance was kept a week ago Sunday with the following result: "At 10:20 there were 33 persons present. As the organ prelude continued and during the next five minutes, 27 more arrived. During the doxology and the invocation 31 persons entered. While the first hymn was being sung 49 took their seats. The last half of the congregation, 150, was all in attendance by 10:45. Of the above number, about 300, there remained to communion 212 persons."

The Powers' Farm is Sold.

John Powers, of New Market, has sold his farm to George A. Steinmetz, of Perth Amboy, as well as all the contents of the house, farming utensils, etc., and possession was taken last Saturday. Mr. Powers was born on the farm, just sold, which is located on New Brunswick avenue, between New Market and South Plainfield, and has lived there for the past fifty years. His father lived on the same farm several years prior to that. Mr. and Mrs. Powers will make their home with their daughter, Mrs. P. F. Maguire, of 1236 Park avenue.

DR. VANCE SCORED PEARY AS EGOTIST

In a sermon on the topic, "Christ's Glorious Infamy," Rev. Dr. James I. Vance, of the North Reformed church, Newark, took occasion to express his views of Commander Peary Sunday morning at his church, and those opinions were far from flattering for the man to whom is accredited the discovery of the North Pole. Dr. Vance, who is well know here, compared Peary's self-glorifying heroism with the Christian heroism of Frederick Evans, the lad who crawled 600 feet through a crevice in an Indiana coal heap to rescue sixty men imprisoned under it.

"If, as Commander Peary says, the Esquimaux are a race raised to assist him in the discovery of the North Pole, what is going to become of them now?" Dr. Vance asked. He continued: "The egotism and self-glorification of Peary are strikingly illustrated in his magazine articles on the finding of the Pole. In the first instalment the pronoun 'I' occurs 186 times, while 'my' and 'me' are to be found many more times. He continues in the same strain in the second instalment.

"It takes a long stretch of the imagination," went on Dr. Vance, "to conceive missionaries coming back from foreign lands with magazine articles recounting their exploits, ready for the printer. Imagine David Livingston, that interpid explorer, with such a lurid tale as that of Peary."

The minister then compared the brave deed of the little Indiana breaker boy who, at the peril of his own life, crawled beneath thousands of tons of coal ready to fall upon him at any second, in an effort to save about sixty miners. When the deed was done and the lad had carried a pipe safely to the open, he was summoned before Governor Tanner and was asked what he wanted as a reward for his heroism. He replied, Dr. Vance said, "I'd like to learn to read."

"That is the kind of heroism Christianity stands for," declared Dr. Vance. "Maybe some of these days the world will learn what a real hero is when it sees one. Christian heroism is not spectacular or exploited for self-glorification. Sometimes it is unconscious of its own glorious quality. This heroism, too, endured sacrifices and hardships, but they are only incidental, and the true Christian does not use them to create glory for himself."

JOURNALISTIC OPINIONS

No Room for a Sanatarium.

Bishop McFaul undertook to locate a tuberculosis sanitarium for the treatment of patients of all denominations on Benning Mountain in Hopewell Township, Mercer county, just near enough to Trenton to be easily accessible and yet distant enough to give the patients the benefit of fresh air and country life. The site selected is something like that at Glen Gardner, but of somewhat lower elevation. It is an excellent place for a sanitarium.

The community was aroused. The Hopewell Township Committee was called together. A public hearing was given on Bishop McFaul's application and the opposition of the inhabitants was so strong that the committee was about to render an adverse decision when the bishop asked leave to withdraw his application. This was granted, and the proposed sanitarium will not be built until there is a change of sentiment among the people. This may be long delayed, for it will have to be based upon a better understanding of tuberculosis and less apprehension as to the danger of infection from such an institution.

As has already been said, nobody wants a tuberculosis sanitarium in his home city or near his dwelling. Yet there must either be sanitaria where consumptives can be isolated and cured, or else a much larger number of centres of infection in all the homes wherein consumptives may dwell. Summit doesn't want a sanitarium, Lakewood doesn't want a preventorium, Hopewell will not have a tuberculosis hospital. If no place will tolerate them, what is to be done?

The bill introduced in the Legislature by Assemblyman Crosby is in the right line, though it may need a few modifications. It provides that before patients may be segregated and treated for tuberculosis, or any hospital or institution is established for such purpose in New Jersey, the State Board of Health must be applied to for consent, and such consent be given in writing. The Hopewell case makes it evident that the power to authorize the building of a sanitarium or preventorium ought to be lodged with some competent and disinterested authority. The local officials do not dare act against local public sentiment, however prejudiced and unwarranted. The State should have power to decide for others, even as it has the authority to decide upon the location of its own sanitarium.—Newark News.

"Ruth or Womanhood of the Rarest Type—the Secret Disclosed," will be the topic of the third sermon in the series to be delivered by Rev. Ora J. Shoop at Grace M. E. church Sunday night.

$10,000 WORTH OF LACE CURTAINS ON SALE THIS WEEK AT HALF

We have gone thru our immense stock of lace curtains and culled out the odd pair lots in every grade for this big disposal sale. It often happens that some of the prettiest and finest things we have sell down to one, two or three pairs and then cease to sell readily because so many people need more for their purposes. Thus we are compelled to sell these odd pair lots without profit, and in this sale we will lose more than profit, for we are going to cut the prices squarely in two. Most of the curtains involved are of the higher grade, selling regularly at from $10 to $150 a pair. There are a few pairs at prices under $10, some running as low as $3.50; but whatever the former prices the selling

A. P. C. WASH FABRICS

We are continuing this most wonderful Sale of Wash Fabrics. Thousands of people came last week and swept away more than 100,000 yards of these popular dress stuffs.

A. P. C. Wash Fabrics are liked by all classes of people—by those who could pay more if they wished but prefer these fabrics for their very simplicity, and by those who are compelled to be economical, and they are used not only for outdoor dresses for Summertime and morning dresses for home use, but many patterns lend themselves beautifully to Summer draperies, comfortable coverings, pillow covers, lambrequins, etc.

We will continue selling from a very large variety of patterns and colorings this week at the same low price that prevailed last week 6½

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

GOLF.

That more or less mystery exists as to the origin of golf in America has long been admitted. The old apple tree club, as the St. Andrews enthusiasts who gathered to play near Yonkers back in the 80's, were called, is generally recognized as the pioneer in this country, although Charles B. Macdonald sank tomato cans in the prairie near Chicago about 1875. Mr. Macdonald's golf was only of a desultory nature at that time, however, and no attempt was made then toward organization.

On the other hand, it is a question if priority does not belong to the South. From time to time there have been assertions that the game was played at Savannah in the long ago, and as proof of this it is said that there is in the possession of George J. Baldwin, of that city, an invitation, a fac simile of which decorates the living room of the present clubhouse, addressed to Miss Eliza Johnston, to attend a ball to be given at the Golf Club on December 20, 1811. How long that organization existed and when it was formed remain matters of conjecture.

The present Savannah Golf Club was organized in the fall of 1899, and the clubhouse was formally opened in January of the following year. In 1905 the Southern Golf Association selected the club's course for the championship tournament of the association. Tom Hacknell, the professional, is now laying out a new eighteen-hole course, covering a playing length of more than six thousand yards, which will be ready for the club members next winter. According to a visitor who has been over the new links, Savannah will surely receive considerable attention from touring golfers in future.

SOME FAMOUS RELICS MADE LONG JOURNEY

Washington, Feb. 15.—An indictment against Aaron Burr for treason, a bench warrant for his arrest, signed by Judge Marshall, and a subpoena for Thomas Jefferson, president of the United States, issued by the same judge, were filed in the department of justice here yesterday.

The papers will not remain long in Washington. They are a part of the records of the United States circuit court at Richmond, Va., and were loaned by order of Judge Edmund Wa'bill, of the circuit court, to Chief Clerk Field, of the department of justice, for exhibition at the Alaska-Yukon exposition. They have reached Washington on their way back home. The papers are those actually served on Burr and others connected with him in his alleged treasonable plottings at Blennerhassett island in the Ohio river. The writing is legible and generally the papers are well preserved.

John Marshall was sitting as a circuit judge when he signed the bench warrant, and the subpoena for President Jefferson also bears the fine handwriting—a bit shaky, too, of that famous justice. The list of witnesses required by Burr is long, and includes many men well known in the early history of the country.

The verdict of the jury, which is written on the outside of the indictment, is peculiar. It says: "We of the jury finds that Aaron Burr is not (proved to be) guilty under the indictment by any evidence submitted to us. We therefore find him not guilty." The words "proved to be" were interlined and seemed to have been inserted as an after thought.

The papers are kept at Richmond because Burr was tried there by the circuit court, and they are a part of that court's records. It required an order of court before they could be taken away, and Chief Clerk Field was made personally responsible for them.

LECTURES FOR PRINCETON.

Princeton, Feb. 15.—An unusually attractive list of Trask lectures has been arranged for Princeton University students. On Thursday of this week Robert L. Bridgman, of Brooklyn, secretary of the Peary Arctic Club, will talk on "Peary's Progress to the Pole," and will illustrate his lecture with stereopticon views.

William Franklin Willoughby, formerly treasurer and acting Governor to Porto Rico, now assistant director of the census, will speak February 26, on "Taking the Census." On March 5, John Barrett, director of the Pan-American Bureau at Washington, will speak on "South American Development—What It Means to the Young Men of the United States," and on March 17, Edward Balch Barr will give an illustrated lecture on Dr. Grenfell and his work in Labrador. This lecture will be based upon personal experiences with Dr. Grenfell and his work among Labrador fishermen.

BAN ON CIGARETTES.

Boy Smokers to Be Expelled From Schools.

Trenton, Feb. 15. — Boys who smoke cigarettes will be barred from the public schools of Ewing Township. The school board of the township has appointed a committee to select a medical inspector for the schools of the township and will give him strict orders to report any schoolboys who show signs of indulgence in tobacco. Such boys will be promptly expelled.

The school teachers of the township have been endeavoring to break up the cigarette habit among the boys for some time, but have made little progress.

Want to Take Census.

GOVERNOR FAVORS INTER-STATE BRIDGE

Gov. Fort sent to the Legislature last night at Trenton, the report of the New Jersey North River Bridge Commission recommending that the bridge be built from 179th street, New York, to the Jersey shore. He fixes the cost at about $8,000,000, and hopes that New York State will join in the project and make it an inter-State bridge. The commission favors this site because lower down the river the cost would be two or three times as great.

Another message gives the text of two letters, one from Secretary of State Knox urging the New Jersey Legislature to modify the laws against diversion of Jersey water for twenty years to give needed water to the military port at Sandy Hook. The other is a letter from ex-Mayor McClellan complaining of the unneighborly conduct of New Jersey in refusing to allow the Borough of Richmond the use of New Jersey water until the new supply for New York city can be completed. The Governor failed to make any recommendation on either of the letters.

The third message transmitted the report of the State Tuberculosis Commission showing that only 121 patients could be housed at the State Sanitarium at Glen Gardner, whereas 3,749 persons died of the disease last year, with the recommendation that the Legislature appropriate funds for the building of cabins at the sanitarium, $5,000 more for converting a farmhouse in to a hospital there, and that $25,000 be appropriated to the use of the State Board of Health to educate the people to a due regard for preventing consumption.

THE FORUM.

Editor, The Daily Press:

Another paper contained an article yesterday regarding the fire in Scotch Plains which was wrong. I want to state that Samuel McCauley did not ring the fire bell. The fire was discovered by an Italian on Cook avenue and he gave the alarm, and John Ford, who lives next door, rang the bell. The Bucket and Engine Company was the first out.

Respectfully,
MRS. J. W. FORD.

whisky that makes the drunkard, and that if they had never touched anything but light beer or wine, and had never known whiskey, they would not have been drunkards first and prohibitionists afterwards.

"Class whisky in the public mind and in legislation with opium, morphine and cocaine. Whisky, is a drug, not a drink.

"Class the light wines and beers where they belong, mild stimulants, and valuable foods, when taken in moderation.

"Don't curse your State with the hypocrisy of prohibition, the open or secret defiance of law and the substitution of temperate beer drinkers for drunken whisky drinkers.

AMONG OUR NEIGHBORS

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

George Frentz, whose house was burned to the ground early yesterday morning, is expected to arrive from New York State today, where the family have been visiting since Wednesday of last week. The fire still remains a mystery and it is a generally accepted fact that it was of incendiary origin, as no fire was left in the house when the family went away. All that the family saved was the clothes they had with them and Mr. Frentz's carpenter tools, which, fortunately, were not in the house.

Funeral services of Albert H. Strong, who died at his home in Boston Friday, were held from the home of his brother-in-law, Dr. F. W. Westcott, at Fanwood yesterday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. The house was filled with relatives and friends who had known the deceased during the several years he had resided in the borough. Rev. Franklin K. Mathiews, pastor of the Baptist church, had charge of the obsequies. Interment was made in the family plot in the Baptist cemetery.

Miss Hart, of Plainfield, has been engaged by the Board of Education as teacher of the eighth grade in school No. 1. This will relieve Principal S. Dana Townsend of his duties as teacher, his time being devoted entirely to the work of supervising principal of the township schools.

The Young People's Choral Society sing at the Y. M. C. A. orchestra concert to be held tonight in the Y. M. C. A. hall, Plainfield. A number from here will attend.

William Reynolds, Jr., who sprained his ankle by falling on the ice several days ago, is able to return to his position again with the Central Railroad in New York.

Edward Meyer has joined the ranks of the commuters, having taken a position with the Metropolitan Insurance Company in the company's New York office.

Mrs. George MacCauley, who has been seriously ill with pneumonia, is reported as improving slowly.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Weldon, of Grand street, have been entertaining relatives from Rahway.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

Members of the parish have given to the Sacred Heart church here fourteen pictures representing the fourteen stations of the cross. The pictures will be put in position today.

Lenten services will be held in the Catholic church at 7:30 o'clock on Thursday evening. The Rev. Bernard M. Bogan, of Plainfield, will officiate.

David Kellogg, who is spending the winter with his son in Glen Ridge, visited his farm here yesterday.

Stillman Solt and family, who have occupied Edgebrook for the past year, will shortly remove to Weissport, Pa.

Rev. J. J. Allen entertained Mr. and Mrs. Finch, of Newark, and Miss Florence Robertson over Sunday.

Mrs. William Shields visited in Plainfield yesterday.

Mrs. William Reilly was in Plainfield yesterday.

(Additional suburban news on page 2.)

PERSONAL.

Cornelius VanHerwerden, of South avenue, who has been very ill with pneumonia, is now improving.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles W McCutchen, of Rockview avenue, have been spending some weeks in New York.

MissFrances Hand, of Westervelt avenue, the borough, is spending a few days with friends near the "Old Mill," Morristown.

Mrs. Chapman Fisk and Miss Fisk, of West Seventh street, are registered at the Ponce de Leon Hotel, St. Augustine, Florida.

John C. Van Dyke, of East Fifth street, has been discharged from Muhlenberg Hospital, where he was under treatment for many weeks for injuries, the result of a fall.

Miss Josephine Kissam, of Duer street, who has been spending several weeks with her brother at Bordman, N. C., has gone to Miama, Fla., where she expects to enjoy the climate and scenery of Florida.

P. B. Cregar, Jr., the four-year-old son of Dr. and Mrs. P. B. Cregar, of Grant avenue, was admitted to the contagious disease ward at Muhlenberg Hospital, yesterday, suffering from an attack of scarlet fever.

Funeral of Mrs. Zimmerman.

The funeral services of Mrs. Pauline Zimmerman were held at the residence of her father, Paul Kratzel, of Front street, Dunellen, last evening at 8 o'clock. The interment took place this afternoon at 2:30.

WHATSOEVER CIRCLE HAS VALENTINE SOCIAL

The Whatsoever Circle of The King's Daughters, of the Park Avenue Baptist church, gave a valentine social at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Dayton, of East Sixth street, last night. The house was elaborately decorted in keeping with the sentiment of the day. A profusion of hearts and arrows mingled with the soft light of candles lent a charm to the occasion.

Vocal and instrumental music and games combined to make a pleasant time for everyone. Miss Elma Runyon won loud applause for her prescription for mending a "broken heart," while G. W. V. Moy received first honors for "matching hearts." Miss Cora Brokaw and Harry Runyon proved their skill by capturing the honors for shooting with "cupid's dart."

A postoffice from which each guest received a valentine afforded much amusement. Mrs. Wheaton S. Lowry was most charming as the postmistress, with Mrs. Harry C. Runyon as assistant. Refreshments were served during the evening. A silver offering which netted the circle a substantial sum will be devoted to charitable work in this city.

After good night songs with Henry C. Runyon at the piano, the guests departed with many words of appreciation for the circle which had given them such an enjoyable evening. The committee in charge of the social comprised Mrs. Harry C. Runyon, Mrs. Wheaton S. Lowry, Miss Elmira Runyon, Mrs. Louise Laggren, Miss Olive DeLany and Miss Ida Patterson.

FORGOES HIS TRIP ABROAD.

New Glen Ridge School Head Cancels Vacation to Study Position.

H. W. Rockwell, of Oneonta, N. Y., who has been appointed superintendent of the Glen Ridge public schools to suceed Dr. Eugene E. Bouton, resigned, relinquished a proposed trip to Europe for this summer in order that he may give his successor at Oneonta assistance and familiarize himself with the conditions at Glen Ridge before the opening of the school year.

Mr. Rockwell is a graduate of Brown University, class of 1903, and taught in a private school one year. He was principal of Gilbertsville High School one year, and was appointed principal of the Oneonta High School in 1905 and made superintendent the next year.

FRIENDS WELCOME.

The field of friendship is a wide one, and all our neighbors, both near and far, should be candidates for admission there. The appearance of cold esteem, the passing salutation, empty of everything save chill formality, have larger possibilities behind them we are wont to imagine. At any rate, to believe so, honestly and conscientiously, is an indication of an active faith, and is far wholesomer than the suspicions that do their utmost to master us. It is only through this belief that we shall bring ourselves in contract with some of the finest issues of life and come to understand the unities and harmonies of existence. Nevertheless, it is well to bear in mind the important fact that man is not our only friend and neighbor. Neither patience nor investigation is necessary to the discovery that all things about us are capable of inviting neighborliness and dispensing it to those who are wise enough to take advantage of the hospitality that is constantly proffered. The towering trees (though they do not seem to tower so high as they did when we were younger) the humble, creeping vines, the delicate flowers that spring up in a night, casual and ravishing, the whole movement and husa of nature in her vigorous and insistent moods, belong to neighborliness in the most significant and satisfactory sense. It is something of a relief to discover that we need not depend entirely on man for companionship—though beyond all doubt the best of this kind are to be treasured in whatsoever relation or condition they are found.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS.

If you use alcohol lamps, chafing dishes, curling tongs and self-heating irons run by alcohol be sure that you burn the right kind. The pure grain alcohol is costly and the fumes of wood alcohol are poisonous. Get the denatured kind, which costs only about 40 cents a gallon.

In using an alcohol lamp, be sure that it is set upon metal or some non-inflammable substance or your woodwork may be ruined through a bad conflagration. Asbestos plates are excellent for this purpose, or an old marble top table.

In preparing chestnuts for a vegetable, boil in the shells, and remove and peel with great care that they are not broken.

To insure a carefully aired house in winter, see that at least one window in each room is slightly down from the top during the time it is being occupied. The merest fraction of a inch will be enough to let in fresh air without making a draught.

Corporation Counsel and Mrs. C. A. Marsh arrived in New York on "The Avon" this afternoon on their return trip from Cuba and the Bahama Islands.

PROBLEMS BEFORE STATE CHARITIES

Camden, Feb. 15.—Claiming that injustice is frequently done foreigners in the courts and that the time has come for a reorganization of the present system, Antonio Petrone, of Newark, made an address which caused considerable discussion at the session of the New Jersey State Conference of Charities at Camden yesterday.

The evening session was devoted to a discussion on "The Church and Social Service." Among those who made addresses were Prof. Edwin L. Earp, of Drew Seminary; the Very Rev. William J. White, supervisor of charities for the diocese of Brooklyn; Ira E. Lute, secretary of the Camden Y. M. C. A., and Dr. George B. Wright and the Rev. John J. Moment, of Jersey City.

The session will be continued tomorrow morning, when there will be a discussion on "Preventive Work in a Small Community." The program follows:

I. "Some Problems Confronting Small Communities," Miss Adelaide A. Buffington, The Civic Club, Madison. Discussion, "Health Code," Selskar M. Gunn, health officer. Five-minute talks from three towns: Flemington, Mrs. E. B. Allen; Englewood, Mrs. J. Hugh Peters; Madison, Mrs. W. R. Baker.

II. "Town Planning and Housing in Small Communities," Benjamin C. Marsh, executive committee Committee on Congestion, New York. Discussion, "Tenements in Small Communities," Captain Charles J. Allen, secretary New Jersey State Board Tenement House Supervision.

III. "The School and the Community," Mrs. Edwin C. Grice, Philadelphia League of Home and School Associations; "The Mothers' Point of View," Mrs. Robert H. Dodd, of Upper Montclair; "The Teachers' Point of View," Miss Lillie A. Williams, Lambertville; "Leisure Time of Boys and Girls," Miss Sarah B. Askew, organizer, State Library Commission.

In the afternoon there will be discussions on "Handicaps of the Poor," and in the evening the subject will be "Moral Prophylaxis."

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

The Ladies' Aid Society of Hope chapel will meet at the chapel tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

The Lenten prayer-meeting at Hope chapel on Thursday night will be led by G. Stuart Simons. The topic will be "How to Prepare for Service."

Instead of the regular meeting of the Men's Club at Hope chapel, tonight, Rev. L. R. Howard, the pastor, has invited the members to meet at his home Friday night.

The Ladies' Aid Society of Hope chapel with the help of the William N. Runyon Bible class has decided on plans for a Martha Washington supper and entertainment for Tuesday, February 22.

DON'T CROWD GUESTS.

Entertaining when houses are small is a problem that confronts many a hostess. Nor does she always solve it with the happiest results.

Some girls, because they cannot entertain all their friends, never entertain at all. They take all the hospitalities they can get, making excuses of cramped quarters for doing nothing in return.

Others pay off their debts, but care nothing for the manner of payment. They crowd their tiny house until the walls fairly bulge and the temper and clothes of their friends are alike ruined. Nobody has a good time, but the hostess does not bother herself about that.

Still others make the fatal mistake of deciding their receiving hours. They invite all their guests for one day, but at different times. Not only does it seem to push one set of guests out that the rest may be accomodated, but it is sure to create heartburning, especially if the line be drawn on ages or sets.

The one wise course is to give several small affairs and thus get around your friends by degrees. Never invite more than your house will hold comfortably, if you wish to be thought a successful hostess. It is usually safe, however, to include in your list for everything save a dinner or luncheon about a third more than you expect to come, as that is the accepted proportion of regrets in the gay season.

MRS. O. H. P. BELMONT NOT INVITED BY THEM

No invitation has been extended Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont to speak at or even attend the meeting arranged by Mrs. Richard Stevens to consider the formation of a New Jersey branch of the Equal Franchise League. Mrs. Stevens, interviewed at her home, Castle Point, Hoboken, explained that Mrs. Belmont had not been included, because she did not like Mrs. Belmont. She qualified this statement at once by explaining that she did not like the ideas for which Mrs. Belmont stood. Mrs. Stevens further explained that she thought the English suffragettes had gone too far and had adopted methods that she could not countenance. To add to the interest of the interview, Mrs. Stevens explained that it was her husband, rather than she, who was interested specially in the equal franchise movement. However, she asserted her belief that every woman should have a vote, especially in school affairs.

Mrs. Clarence H. Mackay will preside, it is expected, at the meeting to be held at Castle Point. The meeting was to have been held February 10, but was postponed until February 25.

"No, Mrs. Belmont will not be here," said Mrs. Stevens, "for the very simple reason that she has not been asked, nor will she be asked. "Why? I don't like her. No, don't say that. That wouldn't be nice. I mean I don't like her ideas. You know I'm not a suffragist, but my husband is taking a great interest in the movement. You see, he can't be one, so I've taken his place."

"You do not like Mrs. Belmont's ideas on equal suffrage?"

"No, I do not. There are other people whose ideas and methods I cannot approve. I think the suffragists in England have gone altogether too far."

"Don't you like the stand Mrs. Belmont took in the shirtwaist makers' strike?" was the next question.

"Mrs. Alexander took great interest in the shirtwaist makers," was the only reply Mrs. Stevens gave to this. Mrs. Alexander is a member of the Stevens family.

"Don't say Mrs. Belmont will be here," was Mrs. Stevens' final caution, "because she will not. Miss Richards, president of the Essex County Woman's League; Mrs. Harry Campton, of Newark; Mrs. E. V. Sexton, of Orange, and Mrs. Clara Laddy, of Arlington, will make addresses."

THE BUTCHER'S COMPLAINT.

The butcher is cutting a large porterhouse. He raised his heavy cleaver. "Break the bone here, please," said the feminine purchaser, touching the spot indicated with her forefinger. Down came the cleaver. She drew her finger away just in time to escape losing it. The butcher turned pale.

"Just see that," he said. "Half a second more and you'd be short a finger, and it wouldn't be my fault either. Why do all women point at meat, tell me that? They all do, though, it's just as easy to tell the butcher what you want. We have the sharpest tools we can get, and we work fast—have to do it. We can't spend our time watching women's digits, and the wonder of it is that there isn't a little pile of them here every evening when we close.

"Yes. I know we all point. I don't know why I do, but I do. I know it's dangerous," said the purchaser. "That steak will be enough, since I have the chops for tonight, but will you please trim off all this fat?" and she drew a slender forefinger over the porterhouse directly under the uplifted knife.

Tariff Off Foodstuffs.

Cleveland, O., Feb. 15.—That the anti-meat boycott does not get at the root of the real cause of the prevailing high prices of foodstuffs is the opinion of the Cleveland branch of the German-American Alliance, expressed in resolutions adopted at a recent meeting. It was decided to call a massmeeting to start a nation-wide movement to influence Congress to remove the tariff on foodstuffs as the real means of lowering prices, and to enact a law making gambling in foodstuffs a crime, punishable by imprisonment only. The German-American Alliance is taking no part in the anti-meat boycott.

Threading Needles.

There are women who are so sensitive about growing old that they stop sewing in public as soon as they begin to find it hard to thread a needle. But difficulty in threading a needle is not limited to the aged. Here is a hint which will make the task easier. In threading a needle hold the needle firmly between thumb and first finger. The thread is held in the left hand with a short end extending from between tips of first finger and thumb. The knack lies in pressing the two thumb joints hard together, keeping thread taut, when it will be found to go easily into the eye.

Saved a Nickel.

"Have a drink?"

"Thanks, but I belong to an anti-treat club."

"I'm going to have one."

"Then take this ten cents and I'll join you. You can get two drinks for a quarter."—Exchange

MANY WANT STATE JOB.

Host of Candidates Seeking Late Parole Agent's Place.

Trenton, Feb. 15.—The numerous candidates that are springing up to succeed the late Henry K. Straley as parole agent for the State prison, is likely to be considerably reduced when it becomes finally settled that in selecting the man for this office a choice must be made from among the deputy keepers of the prison. The law provides that the appointment shall be made by the principal keeper, subject to confirmation by the Governor.

As the choice is to be made from among the deputy keepers and as the deputy keepers are under civil service regulations, anyone not now a deputy who wishes to become parole agent must pass a civil service examination for the position of deputy keeper before he can become available as a candidate for parole agent.

It is said that Governor Fort favors Assemblyman Benjamin Crosby, of Ocean county, for that place. Mr. Crosby is not a deputy keeper. Principal Keeper George O. Osborne favors the appointment of one of his present deputies to the place, arguing that one of the qualifications for the office of parole agent is acquaintance and familiarity with the persons who have served and who are serving time in this State prison.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

Men with political influence at Gloucester are stirring themselves to get in early for positions at the new immigrant station.

As a result of recent robberies at the Trenton Y. M. C. A., there has been placed in the building a large placard warning members to be on the lookout for thieves.

Slipping on the ice near his home yesterday, Daniel Walkerson, twenty-seven years old, of Eighth and Mt. Vernon streets, Camden, sustained a fracture of his right foot, and was cared for at the Homeopathic Hospital.

Watching his father at work in the yard at his home in Clementon Saturday Parker Hagerman got cold hands and feet, and when the father attempted to carry the boy into the house he slipped on the ice and fell on top of the little fellow. While the father was uninjured the boy sustained a compound fracture of the leg.

The organization recently formed by prominent citizens of Bayonne to assist in the movement for a new postoffice has received letters from Senator John Kean and Representative Eugene F. Kinkead stating that there is not likely to be a public building bill passed by Congress the present term. Despite this the association purposes working for the new building and will send a delegation to Washington to urge Congress to pass a bill for an appropriation of $250,000.

When Manfred Naar gave up his job as a jusice of peace he became a thief-chaser in the employ of the Reading Railway. Incidentally he started a chicken yard in the rear of his home on New High street. The fact that Naar spent most of his time away from home chasing thieves and that he had a fine flock of chickens soon came to the knowledge of the class of undesirable citizens to which he is devoting his time. A few nights ago, while Naar was away thieves made away with seven of his finest fowls. Again last Friday night the looters got several more hens. Naar observed footprints in his chicken yard and believes he can find the feet to fit the prints.

Frank McQuaid, formerly a saloonkeeper, of Gloucester, was locked up at Newark on Sunday on a charge of having attempted to set fire to his home in Jersey avenue near Eighth street. McQuaid, who had been drinking, is alleged to have poured kerosene oil over the woodwork of the house and touched a match to it. The blaze was discovered in time to save the building.

Mrs. Eliza Brown, of Penn's Neck, and Mrs. Ellen Coulter, of Princeton Junction, are in St. Francis' Hospital, Trenton, suffering from injuries and shock, the result of a collision between a carriage in which they were riding and a trolley car of the Trenton and New Brunswick Fast Line, at Grover's Mills, Saturday.

In order to guard the city against a possible water famine, such as was threatened last week when the main on the Hackensack meadows, at Arlington, burst, Mayor John J. Cain, of Bayonne, will this week have a conference with the officers of the New York and New Jersey Water Company, which supplies the city. The Mayor will endeavor to have the company lay an extra main, to be used in cases of emergency.

"YOUNG WIDOWS" HOPE FOR PENSION FAVORS.

Washington, Feb. 15.—The young widows are coming in for their share of Uncle Sam's generosity in the shape of pensions. The present pension law grants annuities only to the widows of soldiers of the Civil War who were married before June 27, 1890. As it is well known many of the old soldiers took helpmates unto themselves after that date, and for the past twenty years Congress has been beseiged in the interest of this multitude. There are now between 20,000 and 25,000 of them, and the pressure has come to be so strong that it looks as if it would not be withstood for a great while.

Indeed, the Senate Committee on Pensions has decided to meet for the purpose of taking up the question and it is considered probable that a favorable report will be made within a comparatively short time. The House Committee also has agreed to consider the subject, and the intimations are that the report from that committee will be favorable.

If the bill should become law, it would add from two millions to four millions of dollars to the pension roll. There is a special provision in the bill requiring that in order to become a beneficiary under its terms any widow must have lived with her soldier-husband for at least three years. This requirement is inserted to protect the veterans from the wiles of any woman who might seek to ally themselves with them only for the purpose of putting themselves in the way of becoming the subjects of Uncle Sam's charitable ministrations.

The bill has the sanction of the Grand Army of the Republic.

The Ready Excuse.

"What are you doing with this sandbag?" demanded the Chicago cop.

"It's part of me equipment, boss," answered the footpad. "Honest, I got an airship anchored around de corner."—Exchange.

CHAPTER II.

Conscious of His Manhood.

High noon and they were back at the landing place and she at least was very tired. Accompanied by the man, who made not the slightest attempt to guide her, after some difficulty she had succeeded in forcing her way through the trees to the top of the hill. Part of the time she had followed the course of the rivulet from which she had drank at the foot of the cliff. She was determined to get to the top, for she must see what was upon the other side. Humanity's supreme desire when facing the hills has always been to see what was on the other side. The stimulus of the unknown was upon her, but it was coupled with a very lively desire begot of stern necessity to know what there was to be known of the land upon which she had been cast up by the sea.

Her view from the hilltop—she did not essay the unclothed and jagged peak; she could make her way around its base and see all that there was to see—was not reassuring. She could detect on the other side of the island no more evidence of life than were presented by that she had first touched upon. In every direction lay the unvexed sea. The day was brilliantly clear; there was not a cloud in the sky. No mist dimmed the translucent purity of the warm air. Nothing broke the far horizon. The island, fair and beautiful, was set alone in a mighty ocean. In so far as she could tell, she and the man were alone upon it. The thought oppressed her. She strove to throw it off. The silence of the man oppressed her as well. She turned to him at last and cried out, the words wrung from her by the horror of the situation.

"Man, man, whence came you? How are you called? What language do you speak? Why are you here?"

The sound of her own voice gave her courage. Waiting for no answer, and indeed she realized that none could come, she stepped to the brow of the hill where the trees happened not to be and raising her voice called and called and called. There were answering echoes from the jagged crag behind her, but when these died away there was silence unbroken save by the queer babbling, chuckling noises of the man.

She looked at him with a sudden sinking of the heart. Had this godlike creature roaming the woods, this faun of the island been denied a brain, articulate speech? Was she doomed to spend the rest of her life alone in this paradise of the Pacific with a harmless madman forever by her side? What a situation was that in which she found herself!

She was a highly specialized product of the greatest of universities. In science and in philosophy she was a master and a doctor. She should have had resources within herself which would enable her to be independent of the outside world, a world in which her experience, self-brought, had been bitter, in which the last few weeks had been one long disillusionment. And yet she was now overwhelmed with craving for companionship, for articulate speech, as if she had never looked into a book or given a thought to the deep things of life. If this man beside her would only do something, say something, be something rather than a silent satellite forever staring in wonder. If she could only solve the mystery of his presence, answer the interrogation that his very existence there alone presented.

Her future, her present, indeed, should have engrossed her mind. What she was to do, how she was to live, the terrible problems in which his presence on the island involved her should have been the objects of her attention; they should have afforded food for thought to the keenest of women. She simply forgot them in her puzzled wonder at him. It would have been much simpler from one point of view if she had found the island uninhabited, and yet since the man was human and alive, in spite of her judgment, her heart was glad that he was there.

She motioned to him to sit down and then she sat in front of him and studied him. He looked as little like a fool as like a knave. She could, indeed, detect no evidence of any intellectual capacity, but she thought, as she studied him keenly, that he possessed unlimited intellectual possibilities. There was a mind back of those bright blue eyes, that broad noble brow, but it seemed to her a mind entirely undeveloped, mind utterly latent. Here was a soul, she thought half in fancy, half in earnest, that was virgin to the world. How wise, how deeply learned she might be she was face to face with this primeval norm.

Could she teach this man anything? He seemed tractable, reverential, deferential now. Knowledge was power. Would it be power with him? Could she open those sealed doors of his mind, what floods would outpour therefrom, of power, of passion? Would she be swept away? It mattered not. She must try. The impulse seized her to begin now. Fixing her dark eyes upon him, she pointed directly at him with her finger.

The Silence of the Man Oppressed Her.

"Man," she said clearly and emphatically.

He was always looking at her. He had scarcely taken his eyes from her since she had seen him in the tall grass by the shore, but at her gesture and word his eyes brightened. There was that little wrinkling of the brow again which she had noticed, outward and visible sign of an inward attempt at comprehension.

"Man!" she said passionately. "Man," she repeated over and over again.

And then the unexpected happened. After innumerable guttural attempts, her unwitting pupil managed to articulate something that bore a distinct resemblance to the clearly cut monosyllable.

"Man!" he said at last.

It was a tremendous step in evolution, almost too great for any untutored human brain, for at once the man before her received a name and the idea of name as well. In that instant, on the heaven kissed hill, he was differentiated from all the rest of creation forever. His consciousness hitherto vague, floating, incoherent, indefinite, was localized, given a habitation and a name. He knew himself in some way to be.

"Man!" he cried, growing more and more confident with every repetition and more and more accurate in catching the very intonation with which she spoke.

"Man!" he cried, laying his hand upon his breast. "Man!"

He leaped to his feet and stretched out his arms. The doors were open a little way. Ideas were beginning to edge their way through the crack.

"Man! Man! Man!" he cried again and again, looking eagerly at her.

She rose in turn and patted him on the shoulder encouragingly as she might a dog. And again the touch, the second touch that she had given him, affected him strangely, so strangely that for a moment she felt the soul within her shrink, but realizing instantly that her domination over him was spiritual and immaterial and that the slightest evidence of timidity would be translated into universal language which even the lowest creation understands and that her dominion would go on the instant, she mastered herself and mastered him. Although she was but a woman whom he might have broken in his hands, she dominated him as the conscious soul ever dominates the unconscious soul.

She essayed no more lessons, but turned and retraced her way to the shore where she had landed, which because she had landed there, she called home. On the way she attempted an experiment. She plucked from a low bush a bright colored fruit of whose quality and characteristics she was ignorant and slowly made as if to convey it to her lips.

She turned to find her companion looking fixedly at her and proffering other fruit which he had quickly gathered. She handed him that she had plucked in exchange. He shook his head, not in negation but rather in bewilderment and threw it from him, and then she understood in some way that the fruit was not good for food. How he had divined it, she could not tell. Some compensating instinct, sharpened by use into a protecting quality, had taught him. She had no such instinct. She had learned to depend upon reason and observation, and these failed her in the presence of this unknown. She was humbled a little in this thought.

She craved meat and salt, having been trained to these things, the artificial diet and stimulant to which she had become accustomed, and her craving was the more insistent because she had been without them all that time in the boat. And yet when she had eaten the fruit that nature had provided in that tropic island, her craving was abated and she was satisfied. She felt that she could soon grow accustomed to such a diet if it were necessary. So musing she passed on under the trees and sat down on the sand again.

The next thing she remembered, she was unclosing her eyes as she had done early in the morning and the man was still watching by her side. She had been so utterly wearied by her strange adventure, by her long wrestling with thirst and starvation in the open boat that before she knew it weariness overcame her. He had watched by her side without molesting her. It was late in the evening now. The problem of the night had to be faced. This time the man took the initiative. He walked along the shore a little way and then looked back at her, and repeated the process once or twice as a dog might have done who was desirous of bringing his master to some appointed place. Understanding she rose and followed him. He led her along the sands now shadowed by the tall palms until they came to the rivulet, where she stopped and drank once more. They passed it, he plunging bodily through its shallows; she leaping from rock to rock until she reached the other bank. He went swiftly around the face of the cliff. As she passed the point she saw that it curved suddenly inward away from the shores into a sort of amphitheater and fair in the center of the face she perceived an opening. He halted there and entered fearlessly, she following.

The cave was roomy and spacious, at least it seemed so in the fading light. In the morning when the sun shone through the opening, it would be flooded with daylight, but now when the sun was sinking behind the hill, it was quite dark. It was dry and clean and apparently empty. The man stood looking at her smiling, at least there was a suggestion of a smile upon his lips. He was nodding his head. She understood that he lived there. The dog had come back to his kennel and had taken this acquaintance there, too.

It would be a good place to pass the night. The night had to be passed somewhere. How, was the problem. She had little fear of any savage animals on the island. There had been no evidence of them observed in her progress; the man himself was testimony to immunity of attack from that source. Had it not been for him, she could have lain down in that cave with quiet confidence and slept without apprehension of molestation, but he complicated the issue.

Twice he had watched by her asleep, but that was in the broad daylight. When darkness came, what then? Her heart was filled with terror. She was suddenly afraid of the dark, a childish fear at which her soul would have mocked in other days and under other conditions. But now she was a prey to vivid apprehension and the night was coming on with the swiftness of the tropics. She was glad that she had slept through the long afternoon. She would endeavor to keep awake during the night. She must turn the dog out of his kennel and occupy that herself. How was she to enforce her will under the circumstances? She could only try.

"Man," she said, pointing to the door, "go!"

The words conveyed nothing, but the gesture meant much. Even to the man association with his kind for one day had effected a revolution in him. He hung undecided, however, before her, while she repeated again and again her injunction. Finally she took him by the shoulder, risking the peculiar emotions that contact seemed to bring to him, and thurst him gently through the entrance outside. Then she went back into the cave farther and waited with a beating heart. She could see him silhouetted against the twilight standing where she had left him. He came toward the door at last and stood in the entrance.

"No, no!" she cried fiercely, praying that the note of terror might be lost in the imperative tones of her voice. "Man, go!"

She stood waiting and he likewise. Mustering her courage at last, she went over to him and thrust him out. Again and again the little drama was played until by and by it became impressed upon the mind of the man that he was to stay out and she was to stay in. He came no more to the entrance. He stood outside, aloof, looking in, although in the growing darkness he could not see her.

It was the second thing he had learned. The first ray of light in his dawning consciousness had illuminated the ego, the personal, the concrete. He was learning now the significance of a verb and an abstract idea was being bred in him and some concept of constraint was entering his being. The first of those long checks that circumstances impose upon freedom in order that civilization may begin to be was then meeting him face to face. He had slept in that cave, she imagined, for years, and suddenly he was thrust out. There was no hardship in that, except the hardship in the necessity for obedience, if hardship that might be. The night was balmy and pleasant; no shelter was needed. It was the fact that he had to go; that he was subject to another will and purpose; that something higher than himself was overruling him which might be hard. It would have been hard for the woman. She thought, however, that the limited comprehension of the man might not enable him to realize it.

He stood a long time on the sand while she watched him. Had she conquered? Had he learned his lesson? Had she laid foundations upon which consciousness of life and its relations might be builded? Would she be free from the terror of molestation, which in spite of herself sought expression in her voice and manner? Would she be permitted to pass the night undisturbed? Was her power over him sufficiently definite to be established and to be of value? Suppose she had not succeeded in mastering him, in dominating him? She shuddered at the probabilities involved. Of all the beasts of the field, the most terrible when he is a beast is man.

She was not a weak woman. She was above the middle height, athletic, splendidly developed, accustomed to the exercises of the gymnasium and the field, but her strength was no match for his. One ray of safety appeared in the fact that she believed him ignorant alike of the extent of his power or of the possibilities of the situation. She wondered what strange thoughts were going on in that latent brain over which by the use of moral force and courage she was striving to establish domination. She rejoiced to find that even in the midst of her anxieties she could think so clearly about the situation.

Did he know his lesson, she wondered. She could only hope. If she only had a weapon, she thought, the weakness of sex might be equalized. There was nothing. Yes, her thought reverted to the womanly pair of scissors. With trembling hand she drew them forth and clenched the little tool of steel tightly. It was a poor dependence but the best she had. And then she drew quietly back into the recesses of the cave and sat down leaning against the wall, her eyes bright with dread, anticipation and curiosity. She watched and waited, resolved if necessary to remain awake the long night through.

Outside the man had stood motionless a long time after the final repulse. The dusk had not yet melted into dark out there and he was easily visible against the sky framed by the opening as a dim picture. She was hardly aware of the intensity with which she watched him and she was greatly surprised when she saw him at last kneel down upon the sands. She saw that the palms of his hands were pressed together in front of him; that his head was bowed, that his attitude was that of prayer! He was saying something. She could hear him without difficulty. She could distinguish no words in the rude succession of sounds that seemed to come from his lips, but her acute and quickened perception seemed to recognize a nearer resemblance to articulate speech than anything she had yet heard from him.

What was he doing? In a flash the woman realized that the man was praying. The realization smote her like a blow, for this woman had long since put away prayer. In her philosophy of life there was no place for God; in her scheme of affairs the Divine was unimminent. And yet alone on that island, in the darkness, despite her attempt to mock away the consciousness, she was relieved at that sight.

"Man!" he said striking his breast again and staring upward toward the heavens. "Man!" he cried as if in his new consciousness he would fain introduce himself to his Maker, the woman thought. "His Maker!" her lips writhed into a bitter smile that was half a sneer.

What would he do next? He rose to his feet and peeped toward the door. She grasped the scissors tighter and held her breath. But he had learned his lesson. With indescribable relief she saw him turn aside and cast himself down upon the sand where he lay motionless. If she had had any faith she would have breathed "Thank God!" As it was, she was very glad.

She watched him a long time, speculating on the questions she had asked him on the hill in the morning; who he was what he was; whence he came; where he had learned that babble of prayer; why he was devoid of speech; what was the God to whom he prayed? She would study those things. The problems fascinated her. The desolation and loneliness of the island might have crushed her. Relieved from her immediate apprehensions the man delighted her. She would investigate him, analyze him, synthesize him, teach him. She would mother him as a woman a child. No such opportunity as was hers had ever presented itself to a human being. Free, as she imagined herself, from inherited prejudices, devoid of old superstitions, crammed with new learning, illuminated with new light, abhorrent of narrow things, she fancied herself well fitted for that strangely maternal and preceptive role in which chance had placed her. She would play upon that mind virgin to her touch, if she might use a woman's word, until it ran in harmony with her own. Alone upon that island, the rest of the world away, she would find occupation, interest, inspiration in that nascent man.

BOWLING.

The bowling by members of the Central Railroad Bowling Association at Campbell's alleys, this city, Monday morning was not up to the usual average, as will be shown by the following averages:

Snyder	173
Lavelle	159
Deshler	156
Vanderhoof	153
Early	143
Meaney	134
Hall	125
Griffin	118

The match between the Poodlers and Dispatchers teams resulted in a tie each winning four games. This will be rolled off next Monday.

Deshler was the "bright and shining light" of the meeting. His 199 graduated him from the novice class.

It was pitiful to watch the Poodlers. They had all kinds of chances to defeat their hated rivals on account of the poor from shown by them, but were not equal to it. "Abe" says they have been doing too much practicing at Elizabeth and Newark and were tired out.

The 232 was in danger but on one occasion, when Lavelle reached 218. He made a good start, but same old story. He had too far to go.

Mike Meaney raised his high mark to 181. His next feat will be to trim the station master.

Miss Edna Swain, of Upper Montclair, has been visiting friends in this city.

WARNS CORPORATIONS TO SUPPLY INFORMATION

That the United States government is in earnest, and that Jersey corporations do not relish giving to the federal government the inside secrets of their business, is apparent by a letter which has been received here from the department at Washington telling Deputy United States Collector of Internal Revenue Spencer to warn the corporations that they are slow and that the government will be after them if they fail to have the returns of the businesses in Washington by the first of the coming month.

Mr. Spencer is directed to remind the corporations, stock companies, etc., that they cannot escape the penal portion of the statute by failure to give the required information so that the income tax on corpratins may be figured and levied. As many corporations have Jersey homes, the failure of so many of them to comply with the federal statute would indicate that there is likely to be a legal contest as to the constitutionality of the new law.

Here in Trenton there are many corporations, many stock companies and many stock firms, associations and insurance companies, and to expose to the federal government the gross incomes and the net earnings is not relished. But the warning sent out to Mr. Spencer is as follows:

"The commissioner of internal revenue calls attention to the provisions of section 38 of the act on August 5, 1909, which requires all corporations, joint stock companies, associations and insurance companies, subject to the special excise tax therein imposed, to render the prescribed return of their gross and net incomes for the calendar year 1909, on or before the first day of March, 1910, and to the penalty imposed by the eighth paragraph of section 38 for neglect or refusal to render such returns, or for rendering a false or fraudulent return. Blank forms for making the required returns will be furnished by the collector of internal revenue.

MAYORS CONSIDERING OPEN-SUNDAY MEASURE.

Important modifications of the bishops law were asked for today at the conference of Mayors in Trenton by Dr. Victor Mravlag, Elizabeth's executive. The principal demand was that saloons be permitted to open on Sundays from 1 p. m. to 9 p. m. upon payment of an additional license fee. The ratio of saloons so privileged will be one to every 500 of population.

Gave a Valentine Party.

Mrs. Mary E. Bolsterli, of Fairview avenue, gave a valentine party at her home, last night. There were about thirty guests and the evening was spent in playing all kinds of games, while a feature was instrumental and vocal music by several of the guests. The decorations were elaborate and carried out the spirit of the occasion. Refreshments were served at a late hour.

Mr. and Mrs. William E. Lowe and their daughter, Miss Margaret Lowe, of New York, formerly of Park avenue, are stopping at St. Augustine.

WOMEN WANT TOO MUCH IN ALIMONY

"I never knew a wife yet who didn't think her husband was a millianaire when it came to a question of alimony!"

The above comment was made by Vice-Chancellor Garrison at Jersey City yesterday in connection with the suit of Frank Hoffman, of Ridgefield Park, who is suing his wife, Frances Smarth Hoffman, of 602 Newark street, Hoboken, for annulment of their marriage on the grounds of fraud.

When the young couple were married in 1908 the husband was 19 years old and the girl bride 16 years old. It was a runaway match, and after the ceremony the couple went to the homes of their respective parents.

The application for alimony was made yesterday by Lawyer William B. Stiles for his wife, and she has filed an answer and petition for maintenance. It is claimed that her husband is half owner of a livery stable and that his income is rated at $75 a week.

William J. Morrison, Jr., counsel for the husband, declared that his client is not half owner of the livery stable in question, but is in reality a mere truck driver, and that when he worked his wages were but $9 a week. At present he is not working and is living with his parents.

The remarks of the vice chancellor above quoted was at this juncture of the proceedings. The court also said that the income of the average husband wonderfully shrinks when he finds himself the subject of an alimony petition.

He awarded the wife $4 a week.

LIVE MOLE LODGED IN A GIRL'S THROAT.

Paterson, Feb. 15.—What is regarded as a live mole was taken from the throat of Miss Katherine Pursell, a young woman residing at 75 Main street, on Saturday. The woman is now confined to her room, where it is said she will recover. Miss Pursell is employed as a silk worker by the firm of Jansen & Pretzel. For the past three weeks she has been annoyed by a pain which began in her stomach. Daily the pain moved upward until suddenly it reached her throat. Shortly before noon, while she was at work, the pain annoyed her so that she was forced to leave her work and sit down.

Dr. Frank F. MacDede was summoned, and after an examination of the woman declared there was some kind of an animal in her throat. The physician forced it out with his hands, and when it had been removed he had the patient taken to her home. It is not known how the animal got in the woman's body. It is believed that she may have swallowed it with water while the animal was in its infancy. Dr. MacDede said this morning this might be so. The heat of the body, he said, would keep it alive.

Will Hold an Easter Mart.

The officers and members of Grace church Sunday-school are planning to hold an Easter mart on April 6 and 7 at the parish house, the proceeds to be for the work of the Anti-Tuberculosis League of Plainfield and North Plainfield. Further details will be announced later.

WOMAN'S AUXILIARY OF Y.M.C.A. IS ACTIVE

At the regular monthly meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Young Men's Christian Association in the parlor of the building yesterday afternoon, Mrs. James E. Kimball, the newly elected president, was in the chair. She gave a brief outline of the work which is planned for the coming weeks and before the regular business was considered an invitation was presented to the women from the committee in charge of the annual dinner to be present at the close of the dinner to hear the address of the evening. Thomas Travis, Ph. D., now of Montclair, will speak on some phases of "The Juvenile Delinquent."

The meeting was devoted almost entirely to the discussion and the report of Mrs. F. J. Hubbard, chairman of the boys' work committee. Since this committee was appointed equipment costing $50 has been added to the boys' rooms and other little articles added to make the place more cheerful and comfortable, such as sofa pillows and rugs, have been placed there.

This committee is in charge of the Ovide Musin lecture-recital, which will be held in the high school auditorium on February 22, for the benefit of the boys work. The program as submitted will consist of a short "Causerie" on the "violin," its ancestors, celebrated instrument makers of Cremona and Brescia. Great players and composers, illustrated by stereopticon views and interspersed by musical selections for violin by Ovide Musin with piano accompaniment by Joseph McIntyre. There will also be a number of other artists to assist in illustrating the work of some of the great composers. Reserved seats may be obtained at Armstrong's drug store after 8 o'clock Thursday morning.

Following is the list of patronesses for the lecture-recital:

Panic in Montclair Postoffice When Small Boy Causes Explosion of Glass Bulb.

There was a panic among two score of women and children in the Montclair postoffice yesterday, where a crowd lined up for the distribution of valentines. Among the number was a well dressed woman who carried a small package in her hand. A boy brushed against the package and a loud explosion followed.

The explosion was so loud that every person in the postoffice thought an infernal machine had been set off. The only calm person in the crowd was the woman who carried the package. When the postoffice employes sought an explanation she said the package contained a large electric light bulb. It was some time before the excitement subsided.

SMITH WANTS INCREASE.

He Asks Assembly to Raise His Salary.

Assistant Secretary of State J. B. R. Smith last night had a bill introduced in the House at Trenton, by Assemblyman Minard, providing for an increase in his own salary as ex-officio commissioner of motor vehicles. He is authorized to appoint sixty instead of twenty special policemen to enforce the law, not more than five policemen to any one county, and the salaries of inspectors of motor vehicles are increased from $3 per day to $1,500 per year. The chief inspector's salary is advanced from $1,500 to $2,500.

PROPOSALS

FOR FURNISHING CRUSHED STONE AND MATERIALS FOR CULVERTS AND CROSSWALKS.

Pursuant to a resolution adopted by the Common Council of the City of Plainfield, at the regular meeting held February 7, 1910, notice is hereby given that the Common Council will meet at the Council Chamber, No. 149 North Avenue, in the City of Plainfield, on Monday, March 7, 1910, at 8 o'clock P. M., at which time and place said Common Council will receive sealed proposals for furnishing crushed stone, and for furnishing materials for culverts and crosswalks as follows:

For crushed stone for the remainder of the year 1910, the bids to state the price per ton of 2,000 pounds, for furnishing the following sizes, namely:

Fine Screenings, ½ inch stone, 1½ inch stone, 2½ inch stone, and Telford stone, in such quantities, and delivered at such times and places in the city as the Street Commissioner may direct.

The approximate quantities of the several kinds of crushed stone, as estimated by the Street Commissioner, are as follows:

Fine Screenings—100 tons.
½ inch Stone—500 tons.
1½ inch Stone—3,000 tons.
2½ inch Stone—200 tons.
Telford Stone—100 tons.

and such estimated quantities may be taken into account in awarding bids.

The above must be of the best quality trap rock, free from soft stone, dirt or other foreign matter, and each bidder shall submit with his bid or bids samples of the crushed stone to be furnished if such bid or bids is or are accepted, and guarantee that the crushed stone to be furnished shall in every instance be equal in quality to the samples submitted with the bid, the Common Council reserving the right to pass on the quality of the crushed stone as well as on the prices bid.

The stone must be weighed on such scales as the Street Commissioner may direct, and a voucher or weigh bill must be delivered with every load to the said Street Commissioner or his authorized representative.

Also for furnishing the following materials for culverts and crosswalks:

Cover stone for culverts not larger than 4 feet by 3 feet by not less than 3½ inches in thickness, per square foot.
Curbing 16 inches by 4 inches, 3 to 6 feet long, per lineal foot.
Curbing 20 inches by 4 inches, 3 to 6 feet long, per lineal foot.
Crosswalk stone 24 inches by not less than 4 inches, 3 to 4½ feet long, Belgian edge, per lineal foot.
Crosswalk stone 30 inches by not less than 4 inches, 3 to 4½ feet long, Belgian edge, per lineal foot.

The approximate quantities of the several kinds of materials for culverts and crosswalks, as estimated by the Street Commissioner, are as follows:

Cover stone—300 square feet.
Curbing, 16 inches—50 lineal feet.
Curbing, 20 inches—300 lineal feet.
Crosswalks, 24 inches—800 lineal feet.
Crosswalks, 30 inches—50 lineal feet.

and such estimated quantities may be taken into account in awarding bids.

All to be of the best hard blue stone, equal in quality and durability to stone from the Hudson River quarries.

No bid for crushed stone will be considered which does not include prices for all five sizes of stone, and all bids must be submitted on forms which can be obtained from the Street Commissioner.

The successful bidder must furnish a Surety Company bond for $1,000, conditioned on the faithful carrying out of all the provisions of the specifications and contract.

Upon receipt of the bids or proposals at the time and place appointed, the Common Council will immediately proceed to unseal the same and publicly announce the contents in the presence of the parties bidding or their agents, provided said parties or their agents choose to be then and there present, and also make proper record of the prices and terms upon the minutes of the Common Council.

The right to reject any or all bids is expressly reserved.

By order of the Common Council.

MUST TAKE EXAMINATION

Local District Court Job Comes Under the Civil Service Law.

SERGENAT-AT-ARMS POSITION.

Judge Newcorn Says the Candidates Must Be Young, Ambitious, Sober and Capable.

The vacancy existing in the local District court has not yet been filled and up to the present time the right man has not appeared to fill the position of sergeant-at-arms left open by the resignation of Justice Hezekiah Hand.

The recent decision rendered by Assistant Attorney General Nelson B. Gaskill, which makes it imperative that the appointee pass the civil service examination will impose the duty on Judge William Newcorn of appointing a man who is qualified in competitive examination to fill the position. Judge Newcorn said this morning that he had no one in view at present, but that when the appointment is made it will be a man who is young, ambitious, sober and capable.

At present the work of the sergeant-at-arms is being divided between two constables in this city, Messrs. Weaver and Manley. The position has possibilities in it of an income for whoever gets the appointment. If followed up to its full opportunities the position will command as much as $100 per month, but it requires punctual and strict attention to the business. There is, therefore, a good opportunity for the right man.

TOLD OF MISSIONARY WORK IN SOUTHWEST

New Mexico, Arizona, Oklahoma and Texas comprised the territory presented for the consideration of the members of the Women's Home Missionary Society of the First Baptist church at their meeting yesterday afternoon in the lecture room. The paper of the day had been assigned to Mrs. Martin A. Zook, who was obliged to relinquish its preparation when she was called West by the illness of her husband. Having returned, however, on her husband's recovery, she supplemented the story of "The New South West," given by Mrs. George Robbins, who read of the rapid growth of the section of the country, the increase in the population of Texas being 100,000 in a single month. She said that mission boards were awake to the situation, realizing that conditions were now stable and no outlay of time or money would bring larger results than their work done now in this rapidly changing section.

Mrs. Zook added an account of the thousands of foreigners employed in the mining and irrigation districts who need religious instruction and said these numbers would be greatly increased on the completion of the Panama Canal. She told also of the need of a vast multitude who frequent the health resorts of the West.

Mrs. Chambliss gave some statistics of the work of the Baptist Home Missionary Society, who claim that three-quarters of the baptisms last year in the United States were west of the Mississippi river.

Mrs. Reuben Knox, the president, led the devotional service that preceded the literary program.

SEWER PETITIONS ARE BEING FREELY SIGNED.

Borough taxpayers who are desirous of affixing their names to the sewer petitions have today and tomorrow to do it. The borough tax office will be open until 9 o'clock tonight for that purpos. Petitions are also in readiness at the Park Club. William J. Buttfield, chairman of the sewer commission, and Mayor N. B. Smalley are highly gratified over the good showing made yesterday.

The sewer commission will meet in the Borough Council chambers tomorrow night for the purpose of putting the petitions in shape to be presented at the Council meeting on Friday night.

Baseball Dance.

The Plainfield Baseball Club has completed arrangements to hold its dance on Easter Monday night in Company K hall. John Martin, chairman of the committee, is hustling to make the affair a success.

Dr. Campbell to Speak.

The Rev. Dr. Campbell will speak at a meeting for young women to be held at the Y. W. C. A. rooms tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock. Dr. Campbell's theme will be "Christ is Mine."

Y. M. C. A. ORCHESTRA PROVIDES CONCERT

The thirty-sixth concert by the Y. M. C. A. orchestra, under the leadership of Martin A. Korff, was held at the association hall last night, and as usual, attracted a large audience. The orchestra was assisted by Percy Mygrant, cornetist, and the Young People's Choral Society, of the Scotch Plains Baptist church, of which William Holmes is the director, and Miss Conger was the accompanist. Mrs. A. B. Price, of Westfield, a pupil of J. E. Skiff, also favored the audience with vocal selections. Mrs. Harry DeMeza being the accompanist. Mr. Mygrant took Mrs. Guy Bender's place on the program, the latter being unable to attend.

The choral society, Mr. Mygrant and Mrs. Price gave numbers in part first and second of the program and were obliged to respond to encore. The work of the orchestra showed improvement, several difficult, as well as popular selections being rendered in a pleasing manner. The program was concluded with a march, "Daughters of the American Revolution." Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring, of the orchestra, made a few remarks during the intermission, in which he made an appeal for a liberal offering.

HIGH SCHOOL PUPILS AS YOUNG THESPIANS

The senior English classes at the Plainfield High School presented two scenes from "Macbeth" at the high school this morning. The first was the "banquet scene," Harry Van Zandt taking the part of "Macbeth," and Miss Kathryn Moynihan was "Lady Macbeth." Those at the feast were Russell Miller, John Kenney, Arthur Johnson, Miss Van Winkle, Miss Gray. William Bullock and Clifford Vail were servants to "Macbeth."

The second part was the "witch scene." The witches were Miss Barbara Fleming, Miss Louise Andrews, Miss Katherine Phillips and Miss Meta Pennock. Osgood Sewall took the part of "Macbeth" with great success. He was dressed in Scottish kilts and delivered his lines well. The scene, a grewsome one, was realistic.

Within the next week the classes will present "Julius Caesar."

FURNITURE TO BE SOLD FOR CREDITORS' BENEFIT

From reliable sources it has been ascertained that the household furniture which was once the property of Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Bache, will be sold at public auction next week to satisfy the claims of creditors of the pair.

Lawyer Martin B. Stutsman made an offer to settle the outstanding claims against Bache and his wife for fifty cents on the dollar and some of the creditors were wise enough to accept the offer and glad to get the money, but others whose claims were larger refused to compromise on this basis, with the result that the goods will have to be sold to satisfy them.

According to Mr. Stutsman, the claims not yet paid together with the costs of suit and other incidentals amount now to about $1,000. The goods have been appraised as worth $1,700. What may be realized from the forced sale of the furniture can only be conjectured, but it is hardly likely that anything like $1,700 will be realized for claimants.

Mrs. Joseph Randolph Surprised.

Mrs. Joseph Randolph, of West Second street, was agreeably surprised last night by about twenty-five members and friends of Mizpan Lodge, United Order Odd Ladies. The evening was spent playing games, after which refreshments were served. Mrs. Henry Frazee and Mrs. Dodge arranged the affair.

Supreme Court Opens.

The February term of the Supreme Court opened yesterday at Trenton with an unusually long list of cases to be disposed of. In the Main Court there are 76 cases for argument, and in the Main Branch, 126 cases. Several local lawyers were in attendance yesterday.

MAYORS ARE NOT UNITED

Executives of Municipalities Much Divided on the Excise Problem.

SOME WANT "OPEN-SUNDAY."

General Conference of the House of Mayors to Be Held at Trenton on March 4 to Consider Suggestions.

That the Mayors of New Jersey, who recently met at Trenton with Governor Fort for a discussion of municipal problems, are far from being a unit in favor of more liberal excise laws, particularly in the matter of the sale of intoxicants on Sunday, was manifested at Trenton yesterday at a meeting of the Legislative Committee of Conference.

The executives of the seaside resorts and of the larger cities in the upper end of the State are demanding an "open Sunday" law of the present Legislature. They say it is impossible to enforce the Bishops' law, and that the latter enactment is making hypocrites in all parts of the State. This view is not shared by other Mayors, who feel that the State is not yet ready for an "open Sunday."

Noah Gutter, of Newark, submitted a draft of a bill designed to give cities power to regulate the liquor traffic. This would enable the municipalities so desiring the right to permit the sale of liquor on Sunday and also permit Sunday sports. This draft is considered to be a little broad for the committee, and it is not likely that it will be included in the final report and draft of a new liquor law.

There will be a general conference of Mayors on March 4, at which time the committee will make its report.

It was decided to refer to Assistant Attorney General Nelson B. Gaskill the questions calling for a uniform ssytem of municipal accounts. A bill providing for the appointment of all city officials, except Mayor and members of Common Council, and a bill for a municipal debt limit are also considered.

The debt limit proposal has been approved by the committee, and it is now expected that the features of the Commission on Municipal Government report made in 1908 will be approved and drafted into a bill for the Legislature. The committee favors House bill No. 155, now in the Legislature, on the question of home rule of cities.

State Auditor William E. Drake attended the conference and outlined to the Mayors different systems of municipal accounts, giving the merits of each. When Mr Drake had retired the committee discussed in detail the various proposals which he had laid before them, some of which will be embodied in a bill to be prepared.

There were present Mayor Charles J. Fisk, of this city; Mayor Mohn, of West Hoboken; Mayor Mravlag, of Elizabeth, and William J. Vance, representing Mayor Haussling, of Newark.

OPENS A STUDIO.

Miss Mathilde L. Bruguiere, Voice Builder.

Miss Mathilde L. Bruguiere, voice builder and repertoire in French, English, German, Italian and Spanish, has opened a studio at 148 East Front street. She is a graduate from the Royal Conservatory of Dresden, a pupil of A. Orgeni, of the methods Lamberti and Vierdot.

The New York World in speaking of Miss Bruguiere, has this to say: "As members of the Metropolitan Opera Company, Suzanne Adams, Fouchon Thompson and Mathilde Bruguiere form a trio of American girls whose operatic future is bright. Miss Bruguiere's voice is a falcon of rich quality and great range. It has been well trained. Her last teacher was Victor Capoul. In concert work her merits have received expert commendations."

McCullough Stops Runaway.

A horse belonging to Charles Heckel, a Rahway huckster, took fright at a passing auto on East Front street this morning and ran away. The animal started near Watchung avenue and continued to Sanford, where it was stopped by William McCullough. The vehicle was considerably battered, but Heckel escaped injury.

Arrested for Desertion.

Peter Peterson was arrested by Marshal Keller on a warrant issued by Justice Snape on complaint of Overseer of the Poor Fred Becker. The warrant charges Peterson with desertion and non-support.

—The Welwishie Club of Westfield will give an entertainment at the Ebenezer Baptist church, this city, on Thursday evening for the benefit of the church.

PETER FLYNN, SR. DEAD AT AGE OF EIGHTY-NINE

Peter Flynn, Sr., aged eighty-nine, one of the oldest and best known citizens of this city, passed away early today. Death was due to the infirmities of age. The funeral services will be held on Friday morning at 8:30 o'clock at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Margaret McCusker, on Berckman street, and at St. Mary's church at 9 o'clock.

Mr. Flynn was a native of Ireland and had been a resident of this city for about half a century. He was a stanch Democrat and during his younger years he was an active exponent of the temperance cause. He was a charter member of St. Mary's T. A. B. Society, and for many years he was sextion of St. Mary's church.

In addition to being survived by Mrs. McCusker, he was also the father of Mrs. Maria Gardner, of Watchung avenue, and one son, Peter Flynn, Jr., who is also a resident of this city.

CIRCUS MASCOT MAKES STAGE DEBUT HERE

Miss Nita Johnson, the tardy pupil in Viola Faust's "Ten Noisy Kids" act at Proctor's will always remember her engagement at Plainfield, because it marks the beginning of her career as an actress. Her debut was at the Monday matinee and she begins her second stand at the Bijou in Perth Amboy tomorrow.

Although but seventeen years of age, Miss Johnson knows a good many theatrical and circus people through her parents, both of whom were with Barnum and Bailey's circus. Her father is "Spader" Johnson, whose "spade dance" will be remembered by the older followers of minstrel men. He wiped off the burnt cork to become managing clown for the Barnum and Bailey show, where his wife was an equestrienne. Mrs. Johnson did a seven bar jump on the circus tan bark and put her horse through various dancing steps.

Born while her parents were with the circus, Miss Johnson, whose home is in Brooklyn, grew up as a veritable "Polly of the Circus," the pet and mascot of the show people, and when she was five years old she went on the European tour of the circus with her parents. She is booked for twenty-two weeks with the "Noisy Kids" and will go west, where she may meet her father, who is in Chicago now with his "automobile and mule" act in vaudeville.

The little singing dancer is enthusiastic about the stage and is happy because her act is being featured at the local playhouse. She aspires to go into musical comedy.

ENDEAVORERS TO HEAR REV. DR. F. W. JOHNSON

Arrangements have been completed for the mass meeting to be held at the Temple Baptist church tomorrow night, under the auspices of the local Christian Endeavor Union. The program will open with a song service at 8 o'clock, continuing for fifteen minutes.

Then will follow the report of the audit committee, the final report of the convention committee, dismissal of committee and disposal of surplus from the State convention. From 8:30 to 8:45 there will be a roll call of societies, presentation of attendance banners and announcements.

The feature of the evening will be the address by Rev. Dr. F. W. Johnson, of Washington, Warren county, on the subject of "Shall the Sunday Law of New Jersey be Repealed?" Dr. Dr. Johnson is a forceful and eloquent speaker and a man of strong character. He is superintendent of the Christian Citizenship and Sabbath Observance Department of the New Jersey Christian Endeavor Union and president of the Lord's Day Alliance.

The music will be in charge of William Holmes, director, and W. L. Conger, organist, and a special program of convention hymns has been arranged. The convention hymnal "Jubilant Praise" will be used.

To Form Choral Society.

A choral society will be formed in the Whittier School, Dunellen tomorrow night by Professor Mullen. At the preliminary meeting sixteen names were enrolled. It is expected that a membership mark of fifty will be reached.

—Rockdale creamery, Rockdale print and Elgin creamery butter; also strictly fresh laid eggs are attractive specials at Neuman Brothers. These products are the best to be found in the market.

PYTHIAN KNIGHTS MEET

Local Lodges Have a Candidate for a Grand Lodge Office.

BIG GATHERING AT TRENTON.

Disposition of Charity Fund to Be Decided—Over Three Hundred Delegates in Attendance.

Bertholde J. Schreiner, a candidate for grand outer guard; V. W. Nash, Jr., Morgan Turton, A. D. Pope, Frank Putnam and Jeremiah VanWinkle are among the delegates for mthe local lodges, nights of Pythias, attending the annual session of the Grand Lodge of New Jersey, which opened in Masonic Hall, Trenton, this morning. There were between 300 and 400 representatives of the subordinate lodges throughout the State present when the session opened.

The contest for grand outer guard today promises to develop a hot fight, as the candidates have many supporters throughout the State. The rest of the officers were elected by vote of the subordinate lodges. A. Lewis Drucker, of Elizabeth, is the new grand chancellor.

One of the principal matters to be considered at this session will be the Pythian Charity Fund. A number of members are in favor of establishing a home somewhat on the order of the Masonic Home at Burlington and the Odd Fellows' Home in this city. Contribution to the fund is voluntary on the part of the lodges.

Tonight at the conclusion of the day's session a competitive drill is scheduled with a half-dozen teams from various parts of the State as contestants. The prize is a trophy donated by Grand Chancellor Henry A. Heinrichs, of Paterson, who will preside at today's session.

The State Grand Lodge of Pythian Sisters will convene in Pythian Hall, Broad and Lafayette streets, Trenton, today and tomorrow.

UNION B. AND L. ASS'N HOLDS ANNUAL ELECTION.

The Union Building and Loan Association held its annual meeting Monday night and elected these directors: A. D. Edgar, W. E. Benjamin, B. F. Tallamy, David M. Runyon; auditors, C. B. Vail, Harvey R. Thorn and A. H. Vanderhoef. The board organized as follows:

President, Dr. M. B. Long; vice-president, Eugene M. Laing; secretary, J. V. E. Vanderhoef; treasurer Morris C. Van Arsdale; counsel, Nelson Runyon and Charles M. Dolliver.

The secretary's report showed that the association is in an excellent financial condition. One of the series that has been running for eleven years will mature next month. Several applications for loans were received and approved.

PROMINENT FANS TO BE AT KEELER BANQUET.

Ball fans who are counting on attending the Billy Keeler banquet to be held at the Iroquois Hotel on Monday night, should not lose sight of the fact that the tickets are going at a merry clip. Bogert Conklin, a former player on the old West Ends of Somerville, will head a delegation from that town, and Charley Denman and a party of fans from Westfield, will also be on hand. In addition to tickets being on sale by members of the committee they can also be purchased at Hotel Iroquois and at Schreiner's pharmacy.

The committee will arrange the final details for the celebration at a meeting at the Iroquois at 8 o'clock on Friday night. A full attendance is desired at this session.

Surprise for Kathryn Clarke.

Among the enjoyable valentine parties was one given to Kathryn Clarke, of 905 West Front street which was in the nature of a surprise to her. The house was attractively decorated with flags. In the games played first honors were awarded to Grace Flynn and second to Emily Compton, while Kathryn Stevens received third prize and Erma G. Dobbins fourth. Among those present were Emily Compton, Mary Flynn, Helen Dunn, Ruth Buxton, Marjorie Fitch, Kathryn Stevens, Kathryn Clarke, Grace Flynn, Harriet Morgan, Edith Lawrie, Erma G. Dobbins and Marjorie Fitch. Each child received a favor as a reminder of the occasion.

Anna Imbibed Too Freely.

Anna McGlynn, a borough domestic, imbibed too freely of liquor yesterday and was found in a helpless condition yesterday afternoon on Rockview avenue. At a hearing in the borough police court last night Recorder Dolliver suspended sentence.

SPEAKERS' CONTEST AT THE HIGH SCHOOL

The Alumni Association of the Plainfield High School will hold its annual meeting in the high school auditorium Monday night. An event of unusual interest will be a speaking contest for which the association offers prizes of $20 in gold. The list of speakers will be announced soon.

A member of the association has this to say about the lack of interest on the part of former graduates: "It is a source of great regret that so few of the alumni have joined the association. The total enrollment is only one hundred, almost one-eighth of the number who have taken their diplomas in the school. When we realize that any graduate of the school who pays only one dollar a year is eligible for membership, we must accuse the other seven hundred either of gross neglect or what is worse, utter indifference.

"Alumni, if the high school has been of any value to you in your preparation for the work of life show your appreciation to it by joining the association, whose object is to further the interests of the school. The dues may be sent to Franklin S. Smith, 470 Washington street, New York city."

SPECIAL CONFERENCE AT PARK AVE. BAPTIST CHURCH

There will be a special meeting at the Park Avenue Baptist church, tonight, when a conference will be held relative to calling a pastor to succeed Rev. A. E. Finn. The meeting is called for the object of talking over important details regarding the calling of a pastor and to consider especially the possibility of securing Rev. G. R. Maguire, of Cleveland, Ohio, for that position.

Mr. Maguire has been highly recommended by Rev. Dr. Charles A. Eaton, who is now pastor of the Madison Avenue Baptist church, New York, and who knew Mr. Maguire when he was in Cleveland. He has given the highest endorsement of his work. Mr. Maguire is anxious to locate nearer New York, and for this reason it is possible that he may come to Plainfield. He is now pastor of a church with a membership of between seven and eight hundred.

BOARD OF TRADE AND THE HACK ORDINANCE

President William Jeffery, of the Board of Trade, has addressed letters to both Mayor Fisk and City Clerk MacMurray in relation to the proposed new hack ordinance. Mr. Jeffery expresses the hope that the ordinance has not passed the point where an amendment or clause cannot be inserted in favor of the hackmen so that the double fare charge may date from 11 o'clock at night instead of midnight.

Mr. Jeffery argues that from information obtained from authentic sources very few people come to Plainfield on the 10:30 train, averaging about eight persons and of these hardly more than three use hacks to reach their homes. He further says that the hackmen ought to be given preference over these two or three persons because they are subjected to the high prices of living just as are the other people of the city.

Mr. Jeffery feels that in this instance the Board of Trade should be represented at the special meeting of the Common Council on next Saturday night in order that the question may be debated. He also wants to know whether it is not in order for objections to be entered before the third reading of the ordinance.

COLLIER VS. DE BRIGARD REOPENED AT TRENTON.

The appeal from the decision of the District court rendered some time ago in the case of Asa Collier against Arthur De Brigard, came up in the Supreme court at Trenton yesterday. Counsellor J. Henry Crane, who represented Asa Collier, made a strong and effective argument for a reversal of the verdict.

F. J. Blatz, representing Mr. De Brigard, asked permission to submit a brief in his client's behalf which was granted by the court. The case involves an amount approximating $70 for alleged wages and money loaned by Collier to De Brigard.

Funeral of Henry Lewis.

The funeral service of Henry Lewis was conducted at his late home on Manning avenue yesterday afternoon, the Rev. Mr. Bailey officiating. Interment was made in North Plainfield cemetery.

HELD AS A SHOPLIFTER

Miss Lena Kelly, a Nurse, is Arrested in New York for Theft.

STOUTLY DENIES THE CHARGE.

Magistrate O'Connor Holds Former Plainfield Woman in $300 Bail for Trial.

A young trained nurse was arraigned in the New York night court before Magistrate O'Connor last night, charged by the detective of a Sixth avenue department store with having stolen $6.93 worth of merchandise from the store.

The case against the girl hinged on the fact that the stolen articles had been found in the muff she carried, and she protested steadfistly that the muff was not hers, but one she had picked up by mistake from a counter in which she had left her own. Magistrate O'Connor seemed inclined to believe the girl, but the detective was so insistent that the Magistrate held the prisoner in $300 bail for trial in Special Sessions.

Lena Kelly was the name given by the girl, who said she was staying at 315 East Fifteenth street, New York. Dr. George W. Endicott, of this city, was in court, and when the girl was held in bail he rose and said he wanted to go on her bond. He said that he had known her for years, and was convinced of her honesty; that she had been graduated from Muhlenberg Hospital where he is a house physician.

Dr. Endicott could not provide New York real estate, and the Magistrate told him regretfully that he could not qualify as a bondsman. The physician told Miss Kelly not to lose heart, and hurried from the court saying he would return with a bondsman.

EXPERTS EXPLAINED IMPURITIES OF DRUGS

The quarterly meeting of the Union County Druggists' Association was held at the Y. M. C. A. building, yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock. After a business session of a routine nature, during which reports were received and the association reaffirmed its affiliation with the National Druggists' Association, an adjournment was taken to "The Homestead," on Washington avenue, where Mrs. Henry Johnson served dinner.

The association had for its guests Dr. W. P. Andrews and George W. Butler, of New York. They gave highly instructive talks on the impurities of drugs, and presented samples that were shown at the National Druggists' Association convention in Louisville. An informal discussion followed the talks.

In connection with the dinner and addresses there was a social time. The officers of the association are President J. G. Smith, of Rahway; vice-president, W. R. Richart, of Elizabeth; treasurer, L. P. Langheinz, of Elizabeth.

MISS ETHEL M. HUDSON GIVES A HEART PARTY.

A heart party was given last night to a number of friends by Miss Ethel M. Hudson at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Hudson, of Somerset street. Six tables were in use, the play was spirited and highest honors were awarded to Miss Marjorie Hart, Miss Maude Emmons, Dr. S. A. Aldrich and Edward Kuentestler, at the conclusion of the play.

The rooms were attractively decorated with hundreds of paper hearts, suspended from streamers from the ceiling. Red and white were the prevailing colors, used in the reception hall, parlor, library and dining room.

Yesterday being Miss Hudson's birthday anniversary, she received the congratulations of her guests and a number of beautiful presents from relatives and intimate friends. Miss Hudson was assisted in receiving by her mother, Mrs. W. J. Hudson, Mrs. E. B. Soverign, Mrs. Charles Nash, and Miss Arline Terry, who is spending the week here as Miss Hudson's guest.

At a late hour refreshments were served, covers being laid for twenty-eight. The affair was conducted about midnight andall agreed that Miss Hudson had proved herself a charming hostess.

The Good Values of the White Sale Keep Coming Forward

We just MUST keep telling you of the good values of this White Sale. Every day something else out of the ordinary crops out. A visit to the store every day is well wor h your while.

White Sales are always interesting events at this store—interest is intensified in this year's event by the agitation of high priced cotton.

The splendid stocks on exhibition and sale marks the culmination of months of careful planning and buying when cotton goods were considerable lower than they are today.

Some of the unusually good values which are to be brought forward for this week's selling are listed here—but—we say again it would be impossible to list ALL our good values in this limited space. Come to the store today—you'll find out as hundreds of others have—"It Pays To Buy At Tepper's."

New Baby Carriages
Great Showing of 1910 Styles

We boldly claim to show more styles of baby carriages than any store in the United States, and we speak advisedly, for nowhere else is so much space given to baby carriages—nowhere else does the field seem so prolific, for it seems that the people from miles around Newark come here for baby carriages—due, perhaps, to habit formed by the mothers of long ago, for this store has been selling baby carriages nigh on to fifty years.

Bloch Baby Carriages, English Perambulators, Pullman Sleepers and Go-Carts.

Over fifty different styles ready for you, more coming every day—but the collection now is sufficient to satisfy almost every whim and wish.

Carriages, Perambulators and Go-Carts of reed and wood, finished in natural colors, oak, blue, green, maroon and white enamel.

SUED FOR WIFE-THEFT BY BOUND BROOK MAN

William C. Van Doren, superintendent of the fire alarm system at Bound Brook, has begun a suit in the New York city courts to recover $50,000 damages from Stephen R. Ryan, a wealthy resident of Watertown, N. Y., for the alienation of Mrs. Van Doren's affections.

Ryan recently was successful in an application to compel Van Doren to give security for costs on the ground that he was not a resident of New York. The bond was to be given within five days, but Mr. Van Doren's mother died in the meantime, and he did not file the bond until the time allowed by the court had expired. When he did so counsel for Ryan refused to accept it, and Van Doren was compelled to apply to Judge Platzek to compel the defendant to accept the security tendered. Judge Platzek granted the motion.

Mrs. Van Doren is said to be about twenty-five years old and the mother of a year-old baby. Ryan is said to be prominent in Watertown and is sixty years old.

Van Doren's lawyer said Mrs. Van Doren was a Watertown girl and that she first met Ryan when she was on a visit to her people. Ryan, the lawyer said, met her in a public park when she was wheeling the baby in a carriage and stopped to admire the child.

Soon after he began writing letters to Mrs. Van Doren, and finally she left Bound Brook, after she had returned to her husband and went back to Watertown.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

The chapel deficit fund being raised by the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church has now reached $1,700.

W. Fellowes Morgan, of Newark, will speak at a special Lenten meeting for men at Grace church tonight at 8 o'clock.

The Women's Home Missionary Society of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church will meet Friday afternoon for sewing.

The Brotherhood of the First M. E. church will meet Friday night, February 25, and President Nelson A. Miller desires a full attendance.

In the last issue of the weekly bulletin at the First Baptist church there was a published list of the male members, showing a total of 288.

The regular communion service will be held at the First M. E. church, Sunday, March 6, at which time the individual service will be used for the first time.

The Ladies' Aid Society and the William N. Runyon Bible class, of Hope chapel, will give a Martha Washington supper at the chapel Tuesday night, February 22.

Miss May Randolph, superintendent, has prepared an interesting program for the meeting of the Junior Epworth League at the First M. E. church, Friday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock.

The Missionary and Aid Society of Warren chapel will meet Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock, and all members are urged to bring in their missionary envelopes for February and March and see that dues are paid to the end of the year. All money must be turned over to the home mission board not later than February 25, it being decided to close the accounts a month earlier than usual.

OBLIGED TO CLOSE SALOON FOR A MONTH.

Trenton, Feb. 16.—Because he is charged with having violated the law regarding the drawing of window screens, Kasmire Papsizki, of 801 Lamberton street, had to suspend business in his saloon yesterday and must keep the place closed at least a month. When his application for a renewal of license came up last night the commissioners decided to postpone action on it a month, so that the alleged violation of the law could be more thoroughly investigated.

Another unusual matter coming before the board was a report that a new concern, the Enterprise Bottling Company, proposed conducting business here without obtaining a city license. It is understood that the company intends to sell beer in quantities in excess of five gallons, relying on the United States law for authority.

The city grants retail licenses which prohibit the sale of more than one quart at a time, and wholesale licenses which permit sales ranging from one quart to five gallons. Sales in excess of five gallons are authorized only by the federal government, and by a law under which the business of breweries is conducted.

The contention has been advanced that any concern having government authority can sell beer in quantities greater than five gallons without taking out a city license.

Miss Sarah Smith, of Newark, who has been visiting friends here for several days, has returned home.

Grace Vail, the young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward E. Vail, of Elmwood place, has about recovered from an attack of scarlet fever.

Plainfield, N. J., February 16, 1910.

THE VAIN MR. PEARY.

The promotors of Robert E. Peary's lecture tour find themselves disappointed that the Congress of the United States does not help to advertise their venture, since the House of Representatives has turned down the proposition to make the explorer a rear admiral of the Navy. While Peary deserves great credit for having actually reached the North Pole after years of perseverance his public conduct since he discovered the top of the earth has generally been considered as discreditable to himself and to the Nation. He is chock full of vanity and his talk and writings have become most wearisome.

Captain R. S. Osbon, secretary of the Arctic Club of America, in congratulating the House subcommittee in voting down the proposition to create him a rear admiral sized him up in this language:

"To have given this selfish egotist, this braggart, the rank of rear admiral would have been a foul blot on the records of Congress and an insult to the navy of the United States."

Among the hundreds of others who have publically called attention to the explorer's vanity, the utterance of Rev. Dr. Vance, of Newark, is to the point. "The egotism and self-glorification of Peary," said the clergyman on Sunday, "are strikingly illustrated in his magazine articles on the finding of the Pole. In the first installment the pronoun 'I' occurs 186 times, while 'my' and 'me' are to be found many more times. He continues in the same strain in the second installment."

THE FORUM.

Thanks!

Editor, The Daily Press:

I have been watching every day for some comment on "Plain Field Notes and Queries by Druid," but much to my surprise not any has appeared. I want to be the first to congraulate you upon being able to secure such interesting tid-bits for your Saturday's issue, and for one sincerely hope Druid will keep up the good work. I may not be able to say a hearty amen to everything I read there but I do say the notes and queries are intensely interesting, and I recognize the force and power of the writer.

GETS A YEAR IN JAIL FOR THEFT OF $7.50.

Eugene Britton, of this city, who was found guilty of stealing $7.50 from a woman's muff in a Plainfield store about two months ago, was sentenced by Judge E. S. Atwater this morning in the Union county court to one year in State prison.

Britton's counsel made a strong plea for leniency, but Judge Atwater said that it was useless, as Britton had already served time in the Rahway Reformatory and in his opinion there were no extenuating circumstances.

Judge Newcorn at Elizabeth.

Judge William Newcorn will be in attendance at the session of the county court at Elizabeth tomorrow morning, and will not try any cases in the District court. Only landlord and tenant cases will be considered and judgment given upon non-appearance.

Tourists Nearing Home.

Former Mayor and Mrs. James F. Buckle, who have been making a trip around the world, will be in Chicago by the end of the week and are expected to reach this city about the middle of next week.

Tickets for the Concert.

Tickets for the Ovid Musin concert which will be given in the High School auditorium on Tuesday night February 22, will be placed on sale at Armtsrong's pharmacy tomorrow morning at 8 o'clock.

"Trying-Out" Speakers.

The "trying-out" of aspirants for the prize-speaking to be conducted at the Plainfield High School, Monday night at the annual meeting of the alumni association, will be held this afternoon.

—The Sesame Club will meet tomorrow morning at the residence of Mrs. Duncan W. Taylor 455 West Seventh street.

—Ralph Miller and family, of Grant avenue, removed to their former home in Wisconsin today. Mr. and Mrs Miller resided here for three years, Mr. Miller being a draughtsman in the employ of the Pond Tool and Machine Works.

"Trifles Necessary to Attain Perfection"

Perfection is no Trifle

The many little "Trifles" neccessary in building a Perfect Piano, and which are passed over or neglected in most factories, are carefully considered by the makers of the

Hallet & Davis

From the beginning, from the time the first Hallet & Davis piano was made (1835), up to the present time, its makers (this is the third generation) have taken a pride in their handiwork, the pride of honest workmen; a careful attention to the "trifles," the little things not seen by the purchaser; painstaking examination of every bit of material; minute inspection of every working part.

"Good enough" never has, never will pass muster in the Hallet & Davis Shop. It may be good enough to pass unnoticed, may never be seen or detected, but "good enough" means slighted work, and slighted work has no place in our factory.

"Perfection," or the nearest approach within human possibility, is, and ever has been the goal we strive to attain. Not to make a piano that is "good enough" but to endeavor with all our experience, skill and knowledge of the piano maker's art, honesty of purpose, and all backed by unlimited capital, to make a perfect instrument.

In use today are many Hallet & Davis pianos, 30, 40 and even 50 years old, still giving forth sweet sounds, still responding to the exacting requirements of the musician, living testimonials of the honest workmanship of their makers. No piano can give such service unless there has been strict attention paid to the "trifles" that are passed over by most factories.

A Hallet & Davis in the home is evidence of good judgment and refined taste. It also means, "perfect piano satisfaction."

NEW YORK ANTLERS SURPRISE LOCAL FIVE

New York Elks' pin knights visited town last night and scampered back to Gotham with three victories dangling to their horns. It was a surprise all round. The local optimists were figuring on a triple victory, but for some unexplainable reason the wind blew the other way. The victors took to the local alleys like ducks to water, and now everybody is talking about it. C. Stout and John Cose are still trying to dope out the fall-down of Plainfield.

Up to last night the New Yorkers had an average of 805 pins, but when they ganged Campbell's drives their average soared to 893 and they swept everything before them.

The first game went New York's way 908 to 848; in the second they won by a score of 874 to 866 in a closer battle while the captured the final brush, 899 to 886. The scores:

Plainfield.
Kiely	494	133	159
Laing	160	176	155
Stout	168	157	179

PARK BOWLERS MAKE IT THREE STRAIGHT

The Park Club five took three games from Cranford in the Central Journal Bowling League series on the Park alleys, last night, and the local bowlers showed that they were in fine form. They took the first game by a score of 896 to 823, the second by a score of 911 to 784, and the third by a score of 908 to 732. The Parks had their eyes on the pins throughout the match and not once was there any danger of their being defeated.

Mulford was high man for the Parks, putting up 215 in the second game, while Lyman was a close second with a tally of 212 in the third game, and in the second he put up a double century. Daniel also rolled well, rolling a 194 in the first game. This score was duplicated by Barlow in the second game. The other scores were uniformly good.

Cram was high man for Cranford with a 193 in the second game, while Cox rolled a 188 in the first game. Outside of these scores Cranford's work was rather ordinary. The summary:

Park Club.
Barlow	172	194	200
Lyman	184	200	212

CONROY SUES BERG; REFEREE APPOINTED BY JUDGE VAIL.

The case of E. J. Conroy vs. Henry Berg, a hatter, of Orange, will come up tomorrow in Elizabeth before William D. Wolfskiel, the referee appointed by Judge Vail some time ago. Conroy, who has been sued twice on different processes, one for ejectment and the other a chancery case, both of which have been won by Conroy, now sues Berg for an accounting in the case of the Somerset Nurseries, which Conroy still occupies in spite of the efforts to oust him.

Mr. Conroy's suit is for $2,500, which he claims is due him for repairs to the property. This is a Supreme Court case, and when it came up on the regular calendar Judge Vail made the order of reference. Robert Newton Crane is Conroy's counsel, while Riker and Riker, of Newark, represent Berg. The exhibits and papers in the various suits which will all be sued in the hearing tomorrow would fill a compartment in a good sized safe.

Axel Benson.

Axel Benson, aged twenty-nine years, a Swede, residing at Westfield, was taken to Muhlenberg Hospital at 11 o'clock last night suffering from acute Brights Disease, and he died there at 6 o'clock this morning. Benson was engaged in business at Westfield as a barber. He is survived by a wife.

Y. M. C. A. Officers to Meet.

Secretary Herbert E. Parker, of the local Y. M. C. A., will attend a meeting of the salaried officers of the different Y. M. C. A.'s in the State at Newark on Friday morning. The speaker will be Dr. Thomas M. Valliet dean of New York University.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

The local corps of the Salvation Army will conduct the service at the Westfield Baptist church tonight.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Temple Baptist church will meet tomorrow afternoon with Mrs. George Rabin, on East Sixth street, near Central street.

A joint meeting of the W. C. T. U. and the colored branch of that organization will be held in the union rooms on Madison avenue, tomorrow afternoon at 2:30. There will be special music and refreshments.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the German Reformed church will meet tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock at Mrs. Philip Giese's, 48 Westervelt avenue, corner Manning avenue.

Rev. Cortland Mallery, rector of the Church of the Heavenly Rest, will give the special Lenten talk tomorrow night at the Bound Brook Episcopal church, of which Rev. A. S Phelps is rector.

"What Baptists Believe About the Church and Its Ordinances" will be the subject of the prayer-meeting at the Temple Baptist church tonight. This will be the last of the series on "What Baptists Believe."

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

The Plainfield Auto Bus Company has discontinued the sale of school tickets to pupils going to the Plainfield schools. The company had agreed to carry the pupils at reduced rates but they will have to pay full fare from now on.

The pupils of the Oak Tree school will give a dance and entertainment in the school-house on February 21. The proceeds will be for the piano fund.

Last Monday was pay day for employes of the Lehigh Valley Railroad.

New Market to Have Team.

Joe Harkins, son of John Harkins, the former pitcher, is making plans to give New Market fans a fast ball team next season. Harkins is a second baseman and before removing from New Brunswick to New Market played on a number of crack teams in that vicinity. Harkins will have in his line-up New Market and Dunellen players.

Turning Posts Placed Today.

Two turning posts are being placed by the traffic squad today, one at the corner of North avenue and Park, and the other at Park avenue and Front street. These posts are to notify drivers of vehicles of all descriptions to keep to the right under all circumstances. A rigid adherence to this rule will be exacted from everybody.

Master Crane Improving.

Robert Newton Crane, Jr., of the New Madison, who has been ill with a severe attack of influenza, has recovered sufficiently to sit up again.

Robert Trewin, of Somerset street, is unable to attend to business owing to an attack of rheumatism.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph O. Osgood, of Myrtle avenue, left yesterday for Cuba on a pleasure trip. They will be absent several weeks.

H. B. Sutphen, of 119 East Fifth street, left yesterday for the Pacific coast, where he goes for a five weeks' trip in the interest of the Prudential Insurance Company.

Councilman and Mrs. William L. Smalley, Jr., and son, Ralph, of the borough, have returned from Asheville, N. C., where they have been spending the past ten days.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

Millville Lodge, Knights of Pythias, will celebrate its forty-sixth anniversary on Friday evening.

Falling on ice while coming from church, Mrs. George Bloom, of Frenchtown, broke a wrist.

About 100 friends and relatives yesterday helped Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Van Hise, of Cassville, celebrate the thirty-fifth anniversary of their wedding.

Harry Kreemer, eighty-four years old, a retired engineer of the Pennsylvania Railroad, was found dead in bed at his Trenton home Monday. He had been a sufferer from heart trouble.

In addition to falling a distance of fifteen feet at the Rogers works, Paterson, Monday, and dropping helpless on the floor, Frank Greenhalgh, of 264 Grand street, that city, was also struck by a three-inch pipe and pinned to the floor. As a result he is a patient at the General Hospital with several broken ribs.

The Ocean county freeholders yesterday awarded two contracts for rebuilding the State automobile road between Lakewood and Point Pleasant. The portion between Lakewood and Burrsville will be surfaced with stone and portion from Burrsville to Point Pleasant will be resurfaced with gravel, at a total cost of $17,471.22.

Many Mt. Holly residents are a trifle uneasy over the official report of Health Inspector H. Parsons that the dog shot last Wednesday after it had bitten other dogs, was a victim of rabies. As a result the Township Committee has ordered killed all unmuzzled dogs running at large, giving all persons the right to do the killing.

Because she refused to leave her husband, Roy West, as, she said, he had requested, Mrs. Ella West, in the Camden police court, Monday stated that he struck her in the jaw, with the remark: "Go home to your mamma until I send for you." West was committed to jail in default of $300 bail, on a charge of assault and battery.

In the full glare of an arc light a burglar pried open a second-floor front window in the home of William Hess, 818 East State street, Trenton, between 8 and 10 o'clock Sunday night, ransacked the house and made his escape without leaving the slightest clew. The thief apparently was after money, for he left a quantity of valuable silverware untouched.

Georgie Gaskill, the seventeen-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Gaskill, of Clayton, who was reported to the police departments of South Jersey to have disapepared from her home ten days ago, was located by City Marshal Charles Biggs on the Robinson farm, three miles from Millville, yesterday. She was taken into custody by the officer, who remanded her to her parents.

Vice-Chancellor Leaming in Camden yesterday granted a decree of divorce to Mathias Richman from Catherine K. Richman. There was no defense offered nor was the defendant present in court. Richman testified that he was sixty years old, and was married to Catherine K. Rogers on December 25, 1885. He is a marine engineer in the employ of the River and Harbor Improvement Company.

Circuit Court Judge Endicott and a jury in the Camden Circuit Court Monday began the hearing of testimony in the suit of Mrs. Anna Reisman and Minnie Reisman, mother and daughter, against the Public Service Corporation and H. D. Le Cato on action to recover damages for alleged injuries received on July 4, 1905, at Woodlyne Park, by reason of being struck by a skyrocket at a fireworks display. The mother was struck on the hand and the daughter was hit on the foot with the stick from the rocket.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

Theatregoers of Plainfield will soon enjoy the only artistic novelty of an unusually dull theatrical season in the first appearance in this city of Ruth St. Denis, the New Jersey girl, whose repertoire of Hindoo dances have proved the sensation of London, Paris, Berlin, Vienna, New York, Chicago, Boston and Philadelphia. Miss St. Denis, the original exponent of terpsichorean interpretation of Oriental religions and customs, has appeared by special invitation before King Edward, Kaiser Wilhelm and other European rulers, and for the past three years her strikingly weird series of esoteric dances have been the artistic rage of continental capitals.

Proctor's Big Bill.

Viola Faust's ten noisy school kids are headliners at Proctor's theatre this week. There is the smart boy, the fresh boy, the boy who makes trouble and then there's the teacher's pet, the girl who knows it all. It is a good big act and is making a hit. Western & Gerard, a clever pair, are doing a pianologue, and entertain with witty stories. Young & LaBell, acrobats and contortionists, are among the best in their line, while Dick Merryman, a classy monologue artist, makes everybody laugh. The films d'art are high-class.

Heinz's Sauer Kraut

The Island of Regeneration

By Cyrus Townsend Brady

Illustrations by Ray Walters

(Copyright, 1909 by W. G. Chapman.)
(Copyright in Great Britain.)

He lay so still and so quiet that presently she arose and tiptoed softly to the entrance where unseen she could look down upon him. The moon rose back of the hill. Although he was in the shadow, there was still refraction sufficient to enable her to see his face. He was asleep. The quiet, dreamless, unvexed sleep of a healthy animal, she thought. Their positions were reversed. He had watched her before when she was off guard and asleep with what dim, dumb, inchoate effort it might be to comprehend her. Now it was her turn. He took no disfavor in her mind after her inspection. He was a bold, splendid piece of . . . what?—Clay. She would put a soul in him, her soul. Her soul was the only thing she knew. She forgot, or if she remembered it, disdained the ancient concept that before the dust of the earth became alive it had to be permeated with the breath not merely of man or woman, but of God.

She came back at last and sought her corner, disposed her limbs to rest and kept through silent hours her lonely vigil. So long as he slept she was safe. When he awakened, what then? So long as his mind slept, his soul slept, his consciousness slept, she was safe, but when they, too, awakened, when whatsoever light there might be that dawns in personality dispelled the night of idle dreams in which he lived, what would happen then?

Instinctively she shrank from the thought of the future. She was as one who had a potent talisman in her hand and feared to put it to the touch. So the fisherman in the Arabian tale, if he had known the contents of the corked bottle thrown up from the sea, might have hesitated ere he drew the stopper and released the prisoned spirit. She must watch, she must wait, she must be on her guard. She forgot that when she had called him "Man" and laid her hand upon his shoulder she had begun an evolution which no human power could stop.

Never had the hours seemed so long and so strange to her. Nothing happened. Even the capacity to think gives out in the strongest mind, the acutest brain, temporarily or otherwise. She was very tired; the silence was oppressive; the rusty scissers fell from her hand and at last she slipped down upon the sand and drifted away into that slumber, that suspension of consciousness in which for the moment she was even as the man.

The upper edge of the sun was just springing from the sea when its level rays woke her. She opened her eyes to find the man standing in the opening.

CHAPTER III.

The Word of the Book.

This awakening was not as had been that of yesterday. She prided herself on being in full possession of her faculties at once and she arose instantly and stepped out upon the sand. The man gave way to her respectfully as she passed through the entrance. The mind is brightest in the early morning after sleep. She would give him another concept before the uses of the day impaired his receptivity. She had differentiated him from the rest of creation when she taught him that he was a man. She would show him now that his was a divided empire by declaring herself a woman. She laid her hand upon her own breast and said clearly:

"Woman!" giving the first syllable the long "o" and definitely accenting the second. She pointed to him and repeated "Man;" to herself and repeated "Woman." Patiently over and over again she said the word until by and by he could say it, too.

The baby begins his language with monosyllabic sounds which mean little and yet which have been identified with the mother. It was fitting that this man who was as a child and yet as a man should begin with something deeper than infantile babble.

Man and woman!—she drove these two ideas into his consciousness before she ceased her task. If his idea of man was at first infinite, she gave him the concept of limitations immediately following.

He was avid for instruction. Once he had learned the words, he babbled them "man, woman, man, woman," until the iteration was almost maddening.

While she washed her face and hands at the stream he plunged into a brimming pool fed by the brook ere it descended to the sea. She noticed that he could swim like a fish itself, naturally, instinctively, in an untrained way of course, without the fancy strokes in which she had been taught, but brilliantly and well, nevertheless. She would have given the world for a dip, but it was not to be, not yet, that is.

Then they breakfasted and she tried to teach him "No" and "Yes" and the meaning thereof. She intended to make a circuit of the island later, but there was no hurry. She began to realize that time was nothing to her or to him, and so she idled under the trees, setting him tasks as the picking of fruit and then stopping him with "No" and encouraging him with "Yes" until he had some idea of those words also. It was a relief to her to get them firmly fixed in his mind, for they provided him with alternatives to the man and woman words on which he harped.

After a while they started around the island. It was perhaps six or eight miles in circumference. There was a sand beach everywhere, except in one place where the rocks came sheer down to the shore. From what she could tell by an inspection of the surface there was an under-water entrance to some cave in the rocks which some day might be worth exploring.

On the other side of the island from the cave, which was already denominated home in her mind, she came across the remains of a ship's boat deep bedded in the sand. The boat had been perhaps wrecked and broken on the barrier reef, or possibly it had sailed through the entrance near at hand—the only opening in the encircling guard of splintered rock which she had seen—and had been hurled upon the beach where it had lain through years until buried in the shifting sand. Only the gunwales of the boat and the stem and the stern were exposed. She had no idea as to what its condition was, but she promised that so soon as she could she would make shift at something for a shovel and dig it out. She gazed at it for a long time wondering if it were an explanation of the presence of the solitary inhabitant of the island, but nothing was to be gained by wonderment and speculation.

TO BE CONTINUED.

HAPPY RESULTS

Have Made Many Plainfield Residents Enthusiastic.

No wonder scores of Plainfield citizens grow enthusiastic. It is enough to make anyone happy to find relief after years of suffering. Public statements like the following are but truthful representations of the daily work done in Plainfield by Doan's Kidney Pills.

Mrs. J. C. Manchester, 120 Lafayette place, Plainfield, N. J., says: "I was a sufferer from kidney and bladder trouble for a long time. I doctored a great deal but failed to find a cure until I saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised and made up my mind to give them a trial. Good results followed their use and my kidneys were soon restored to a normal condition. I believe my cure is a permanent one and I will always give Doan's Kidney Pills my endorsement when an opportunity occurs."

PATENTED

Why Don't You Economize on Coal?

The hungry furnace and the coal man are a hard combination to beat, but the

BOYNTON Square Fire-Pot FURNACE

PATENTED

is the friend of the man who takes care of the fire. The square fire-pot prevents the clogging of clinkers around the sides of the fire. That means all fire—more heat per unit of space. The square pot gives a greater surface for combustion and heat radiation and actually takes less coal for a good fire. And then there's the Boynton special flue for carrying away the dust. You don't sift ashes all over the house when you shake down the BOYNTON.

Talk it over with the BOYNTON dealer in your town.

There are BOYNTON heating plants of all kinds. Ask about our Round or Sectional Boilers for Steam or Hot Water. Also Ranges.

SCHREINER MET DEFEAT

Hoboken Man Elected Outer Guard of the Pythian Grand Lodge.

THE ANNUAL REPORTS READ.

Finances Are in Good Shape—Recommendations and Resolutions—The Pythian Home Proposition.

The principal business of last night's session of the New Jersey Knights of Pythias Grand Lodge at Trenton was the election of a grand outer guard, the only office which was contested on the floor of the convention, the other officers being elected by vote of the subordinate lodges.

There were nearly a dozen candidates, including B. J. Schreiner, of this city. Charles Linden, of Hoboken, won out on the sixth ballot, his nearest competitor being B. H. Applegate, of Vineland. The complete list of officers follow:

Grand chancellor, A. Lewis Drucker Elizabeth; grand vice-chancellor Harry C. Keeler, Newark; grand prelate, William D. Quick, Somerville; grand keeper of records and seals, Elmer E. Margerum, Trenton; grand master of exchequer, John Patrick, Rutherford; grand master-of-arms, Samuel A. Dobbins, Mount Holly; grand inner guard, George H. Hill, Morristown.

The newly-elected officers were installed this morning, when the anniversary of the order was observed. The competitive schedule for last night was declared off, owing to the pressure of other business, particularly the election of grand outer guard.

Yesterday's session was taken up with the reception of reports of the grand lodge officers. The resolution introduced by Millville Lodge to change the age limit of admission of candidates to the order from 21 to 18 years, was defeated.

Grand Chancellor H. J. Heinrichs presented his annual report and made these recommendations: That the fund now on deposit in the Second National Bank of Paterson, as the proceeds of the voluntary donations of the members of the lodges where the Pythian charity altar has been presented, shall remain there and be known as the Pythian Home Fund of the Grand Lodge of New Jersey.

That the grand lodge create a Pythian Home committee for the purpose of increasing the home fund; said committee to be appointed for three, two and one year terms and at the expiration of that time the terms shall all be three years until the Pythian Home is an actual fact.

The grand chancellor also recommended that at least four special sessions of the Grand Lodge be held in four sections of New Jersey, as the members have great difficulty in attending the Grand Lodge at Trenton; these special sessions to be for the purpose of conferring the Grand Lodge rank on eligible past chancellors.

The report of Grand Keeper of Records and Seals Elmer E. Margerum showed the total assets to be $428,292.23, a net increase over the previous year of $12,121.42. The total receipts for the year were $9,041.55; expenditures, $5,856.87, leaving a balance on hand of $3,184.68.

At the annual session of the State Grand Lodge of Pythian Sisters, last night, Theresa Morgan, of South River, was elected grand chief.

WITNESSES GET COLD FEET IN COW CASE.

Owing to the fact that no complaints have been issued for the alleged cruelty to a cow, over which a hue and cry were made a week ago, the case did not come up for a hearing in the city court this morning. Various rumors were floating about the court room concerning this case, the most persistent of which was that the S. P. C. A. had no case or that the members, or some of them, were victims of cold feet.

Mrs. Van Hoesen, the special agent, was on hand ready to do her share toward prosecuting the case, but in the absence of formal complaints nothing could be done.

Raided a Refrigerator.

A thief or thieves made a raid on the refrigerator on the back porch of the residence of F. W. Frost, 1011 Madison avenue, last night and cleaned it out of its contents. Mr. Frost reported the theft to police headquarters at 10 o'clock last night, and incidentally remarked that this was the second time the thing had happened. The refrigerator was well stocked.

PANIC ON BLUE LINE FLYER

Trailing Rim Under Firebox Explodes Setting Fire to Coach.

GOING SIXTY MILES AN HOUR.

Dunellen Fire Department Extinguishes Blaze—Delays Train for Half an Hour.

Passengers on the Royal Blue Line express while speeding through Dunellen on its way to Washington a little after 5 o'clock Tuesday afternoon were thrown into a panic by the bursting of the trailing rim under the firebox of the first coach. The car caught fire and the train was brought to an abrupt standstill at Taylor's crossing.

A hurried fire alarm resulted in the arrival of Defender Fire Company on the scene and after twenty minutes work the firemen extinguished the flames by two applications of chemicals. The car sustained only a slight damage but it was uncoupled and another coach put into commission. In all the train was delayed half an hour.

The accident occurred as the train was passing the signal tower near Washington avenue at a mile-a-minute clip. The breaking of the rim disconnected the gas line which caused the escaping gas to ignite and blaze at a furious clip.

When the rim snapped the passengers were under the impression that the train had run off the track. Several men and women were hurled from their seats before the train was brought to a standstill at Taylor's crossing, but after the excitement had cooled it was discovered that everybody was apparently suffering from fear instead of hurts.

Railroad men who were on the scene universally agreed that the train and passengers played in great luck as the mishap presented an opening for a wreck and great loss of life.

REV. MR. MOONEY'S PLACE FOR ANOTHER

The congregation of the South Orange M. E. church, of which Rev. George Mooney, formerly of this city, is pastor, has extened a call to Rev. Perry H. Murdick, now of Woodbridge, and will try to secure his appointment to that church at the coming session of the Newark Conference. So far as known this is the first instance of a call being extended in the conference to a new charge.

Mr. Murdick's first charge in the conference was Epworth church, Elizabeth, 1903-05. He was then pastor of the M. E. church at Mendham, '06-'07, going from there to Woodbridge, where he is now located.

Mr. Mooney, who was formerly pastor of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church, has had a longer career in the conference, as follows: 1894-'95, Northwest Nebraska Conference, missionary to Lander, Wyoming; '96, Newark Conference, Hilton, half-year; '96-'99, Caldwell; 1900-'03, Mendham; '04-'05, Plainfield, Monroe Avenue; '06-'10, South Orange. It has not been learned whether Mr. Mooney has received a call to another charge or not, but as he is one of the strongest men in the conference, he will doubtless be appointed to an important charge.

LITTLE JEROME LEARY OBSERVES BIRTHDAY.

Jerome Leary, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Leary, was eight years old yesterday and in honor of the event Mrs. Leary entertained him and a party of playmates at a party. The affair was very enjoyable for the young folks and a rollicking time ensued. Games were played and the party terminated with a repast, the feature of which was a huge birthday cake which was illuminated with eight candles.

PENROSE A TOUGH YOUTH

According to Records of His Criminal Career — Many Robberies Charged.

BOASTFUL OF HIS CRIMES.

Believed to Have Robbed Justice Clark Rogers in Revenge for Prosecution for Stealing Melons.

Middlesex county police authorities, since the arrest and release on bail of Joseph Penrose, aged nineteen, and Charles Bogue, aged sixteen, of New Market, entertain the opinion that Penrose is one of the most remarkable youthful criminals they have ever handled. Penrose's father went on the bonds for both boys at $500 each after they made a confession and entered a plea of guilty of robbing Justice Clark T. Rogers of $83 in cash and about $150 in checks on February 8.

A detective from the New Brunswick police department visited New Market yesterday for the purpose of looking up the records of both boys. Before leaving the village he discovered that Penrose has been known as "the bad boy of New Market" for several years. In the evidence the official collected it is readily seen that the boy has a mania for robbing people, and it is the general belief that he has been the leader of a gang which has terrorized New Market and Dunellen in holdups and robberies for the past two years. It is understood that another pal of Penrose, who left New Market several weeks ago, will be taken into custody in a few days.

That young Penrose has a most remarkable criminal record for one of his age is borne out by his recent operations in which Clark Rogers was his chief victim. In the three successful raids he made on Rogers, it is alleged, he stole a total of $783.96 in cash and checks.

Penrose in his operations displayed a good deal of shrewdness. He generally selected for the time of his raids nights on which church meetings and sociables were being held or at a time when the families were not at home. By following this method he was generally successful. It is the opinion of the police that he planned and carried out the robberies at Lewis D. Walker's, the home of the Rev. George H. Gardner. He is also charged with breaking into Jenner's grocery store on two occasions in addition to numerous holdups and petty thefts. He also stole a quantity of tools and appliances from the automobile of Isaac Line recently.

Last September he was fined $25 by Justice Rogers for stealing melons on Charles McDermott's place. It is because of this fine, that it is the belief that his operations were conducted against Rogers as a method of securing revenge.

Gossip in New Market says that Penrose had a habit of visiting barrooms and other public places and boasting of the big sums of money he carried. On one occasion while "blowing" a crowd in a barroom he made a bet of one dollar that he had more money in his possession than the whole crowd. Penrose showed fifty dollars in greenbacks and won his bet.

Penrose was in Plainfield yesterday. It appears that he fails to realize the seriousness of his crimes and appears to take delight in relating his series of robberies with an air of bravado to all he meets.

RECEPTION IN HONOR OF JAMES F. BUCKLE.

In honor of former Mayor James F. Buckle, who is expected home next week, the Get-Together Club will give a reception at its rooms at the Hotel Waldorf on Saturday night, February 26. The former mayor and his wife, who have been making a trip around the world since Oct. 15, are expected to reach home about Wednesday.

When Mr. Buckle was about to depart for his trip, the Get-Together Club gave a banquet in his honor at which he was presented with a handsome collection of articles useful to the tourist. He was one of the organizers of the club and is one of its most popular members.

Charles J. Fury President.

Charles J. Fury, formerly of the borough, now proprietor of the Hotel Sterling, Elizabeth, was elected president of the New Jersey Hotel and Inn and Tavern Keepers' Association at a meeting held at the Hotel Sterling, Tuesday. Mr. Fury appointed this legislative committee: Joseph Atkinson, of Freehold, chairman; W. D. Acton, of Pennsville, and J. H. Willett, of Westfield. Counsel has been directed to prepare an amendment to the local option bill, to provide a method of reimbursing hotel men who lose their licenses throught the operation of local option laws.

TWO WIFE DESERTERS IN THE BOROUGH COURT

Peter S. Peterson, who was arrested on the charge of wife desertion on a warrant sworn out by Overseer of the Poor Fred Becker, appeared before Justice Snape last night, who placed the prisoner under $300 bond to pay his wife eight dollars a week. Peterson failed to get a bondsman and the chances are that he will be lodged in the county jail at Somerville.

The case is a particularly sad one. It developed at the hearing that Peterson had not contributed to his wife's support since last August, when he deserted her. On Sunday, Mrs. Peterson gave birth to a child.

Another case of wife desertion is also before Justice Snape. On a warrant sworn out by Overseer Becker, Ross Smith, colored, was placed under arrest this morning. Smith's case will be tried tonight.

RAHWAY THINKS WELL OF BOROUGH SCHOOLS

Rahway public school authorities are getting some live tips by the methods employed in the borough High School. Last week two principals of the public schools in that city visited Superintendent H. C. Krebs and yesterday there were four more visitations from the same school.

The visitors were the Misses Marion Page, Helen Smith, Emma Kinter and Emma White. The quartet of instructors spent all of yesterday examining the work of the kindergarten and first grades of the Somerset and Watchung schools.

In addition to the Rahway visitors, Miss Caroline M. Moorhouse, a teacher in the Somerville schools visited the third grade.

PARK AVE. CONGREGATION TALK OF A NEW PASTOR

The members of the Park Avenue Baptist church held a special meeting last night, for the purpose of arousing interest in the plan to call a pastor to succeed Rev. A. E. Finn. The meeting was not held with the idea of calling a pastor or deciding on any one candidate but simply to arouse united interest in the work being done by the pulpit committee.

Some of the members are of the opinion that a pastor should be secured at once, while others prefer to wait and deliberate further before making a choice. No decision was reached last night, but all showed an interest in the announcement that Rev. G. R. Maguire, of Cleveland, would occupy the pulpit on Sunday, morning and night. As previously stated, he has been highly recommended by Rev. Dr. Charles A. Eaton, now of the Madison Avenue Baptist church, New York.

ORATORICAL CONTEST AT LOCAL HIGH SCHOOL

From a list of about fifteen boys and girls, four of each have been selected to take part in the prize-speaking contest to be conducted by the Alumni Association, of the Plainfield High School, at its reunion at the high school, Monday night. Those selected last night, after the "tryout" were the Misses Alice E. Mehl, Arline Brown, Frances K. P. Newell, Mary Pauline Gates and Frank Cullin, J. Wilbur Tovell, Edward Hanrahan and Roy E. Titsworth.

The judges for the contest comprise Samuel St. John McCutchen, of the State Board of Education; Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie, of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, and Miss Emelyn B. Hartridge, of the Hartridge School. Twenty dollars in gold will be offered as prizes to the winners.

The committee on program and arrangements for Monday nights' affair comprises Charles P. Morse, chairman; Theodore Gavett, Ralph B. Titsworth, Miss Anna L. Runyon and Miss Inez Tolles. The nominating committee comprises Champlain L. Riley, Dr. Norman H. Probasco and Miss F. Lena Bass.

To Give Colonial Party.

A Colonial party, at which a dramatic tableaux will be a feature, will be given by the Young Woman's Christian Association on the night of Washington's Birthday by the "R. R. P. S." of the North Plainfield High School. The proceeds will be given toward the Silver Day fund.

ROYAL COUNCIL GROWS

Sr. O. U. A. M. Body Here is Congratulated by Order's National Councilor

INITIATE MANY CANDIDATES.

Degree Team of a Newark Council Participates—A Committee On By-Laws Appointed.

Royal Council, No. 77, Sr. O. U. A. M., held its second meeting in Junior hall last night and the enthusiasm was marked. Councillor J. O. Randall was in the chair and all the officers of the new lodge were present. Councillor Randall appointed the following committee on by-laws: Dr. J. Hervey Buchanan, T. E. Curran, Jr., Fred Soper, Sr., P. H. Bennett and J. G. Bicknell.

James E. Church, the recording secretary, announced the receipt of a check from the State Council for $40 as a fee for the institution of the new lodge through Charles Keiderling. Mr. Church then presented the check to the council in behalf of himself and Mr. Keiderling, and the presentation was received with cheers and a rising vote of thanks.

The degree team of General Sedgwick Council, No. 22, of Newark, with degree master O. O. Bittle at its head, then performed the three degrees on twenty-nine candidates, bringing the total membership up to eighty-six. Forty-seven whose names are on the charter list will probably be initiated at the next meeting. The degree team from Newark received a rising vote of thanks for their evening's work.

National Councillor Samuel A. Charles, of Hoboken, who is a member of Star Council, No. 49, of that city, made an address in which he congratulated warmly on the auspicious circumstances under which the new lodge is entering on its career. He applauded the efforts which the members are putting forth to build up and maintain the interest in the organization, and he presented the new lodge with a pair of gavels.

After the final business of the evening was finished the entertainment committee served refreshments and the company dispersed with the feeling that Royal No. 77 is going to be a power among fraternal organizations in this city.

Off to Sunny Climes.

Clarence Mundy and John C. Abbott will say farewell to Plainfield blizzardic conditions on Saturday, when they will sail to the Bermuda Islands. They will also visit the West Indies and New Orleans before returning home.

CONSTRUCTION STOPPED

Sigmund Frucht's New Garage on Park Ave. Fails to Meet Requirements.

INSPECTOR T. O. DOANE ACTS.

Frozen Concrete and Building Blocks Must Be Replaced by Standard Material Authorities Say.

Work on the new garage which is being built at 417 Park avenue by Sigmund Fructt was stopped this morning after an ispection by Building Inspector T. O. Doane. Mr. Doane found that the blocks which were being used for the foundations of the new building were not up to the standard and he forced the builders to quit. The new blocks will not be ready for a week or ten days so the building will not progress much during the interval.

Chief Doane stopped the work yesterday when he found the top of the concrete piers frozen, some an inch others only half an inch and still others four inches deep. The builder threatened to quit, the owner threatened the Chief with a law suit and there was something doing right away. But our inspector of buildings was not to be bluffed. Work stopped.

It is said that the walls of this new building will not have to bear any strain of weight as the floors will be supported by steel girders set on concrete foundations and it was these very foundations which caused the trouble yesterday. Through a mistake the wall blocks which were supplied by Councilman W. W. Wilson, were not what they should have been owing to the fact that workmen delivered the wrong material to the builder. These blocks on close examination seem to lack cohesion; they crumble when pressed under foot or in the fingers.

Several citizens who passed the place where the structure is going up this morning, stopped to watch the proceedings and incidentally broke off small pieces of the blocks. They were astonished to find that they resembled sand, water and mud mixed together, but this is accounted for by the fact that they were not properly cured before delivery.

There is no doubt that Inspector Doane will see to it that none but first class material goes into the building or the building won't be finished. Councilman Tolles and R. G. Bush were interested spectators of the examination conducted by Chief Doane this morning. The property on which the garage is being built formerly belonged to Dr. M. O. Long.

MAYORS FISK AND SMALLEY EXPRESS THEIR VIEWS ON P. B. A.'S SELF-DENIAL PLAN TO AID HOSPITAL

In response to a request from the Plainfield Patrolmen's Association the mayors of the city and borough, respectively, have communicated their opinions regarding the P. B. A.'s plan to conduct a week of self-denial for the hospital's benefit. The organization has purchased $150 worth of prizes to be awarded in the contest in the schools.

Here is Mayor Fisk's letter:

"I beg to assure you that your offer to take charge of the collection of funds for Muhlenberg Hospital through the instrumentality of a proposed week of self-denial, meets with my heartiest approval, and I wish you great success in the undertaking.

"As I understand your plans, you propose to ask all the citizens of Plainfield and North Plainfield, including the school children, to practice individual self-denial during the week commencing the fourth day of March next, and to contribute the moneys thus saved during this period to the hospital.

"Your generous offer to reward, out of your own treasury, the classes in the various schools, contributing the largest amounts, will naturally encourage a friendly rivalry, which should result in materially aiding the hospital's finances.

"May I suggest, however, that no mention be made as to the amount of any individual subscription. The best charity is that which proceeds from a generous heart and asks no special recognition, and the contribution of him who gives his mite cheerfully deserves fully as much approval and will be just as welcome as will the larger offerings.

"Trusting that the work in which you are about to engage will bring you the greatest satisfaction which service in behalf of others so richly merits, I beg to remain, with assurances of my warm regard.

—I sell fish for cash, therefore my prices are the most popular. Robert T. Skinner, City Market fish stand 2 17 2

Here is Mayor Smalley's letter:

"After carefully considering your offer to take charge of the collection of funds for Muhlenberg Hospital, by reason of a week of self-denial, during which period you propose to ask all the citizens of Plainfield and North Plainfield, including the school children, to practice individual self-denial, commencing on the fourth day of March, next, and to contribute the money thus saved during said week to the hospital, and your offer to reward, out of your treasury the classes in the various schools, contributing the largest amounts, which naturally will produce rivalry among the school children, I have this to say: that while your proposition seems praiseworthy and laudable, yet I feel that it does not come within the prerogative of my office to recommend that part of your proposition in reference to the school children of the various school engaging in a contest for reward. It seems to me that such a contest would naturally detract the minds of the school children from their studies, and therefore should be passed upon by the Boards of Education for their judgment.

"Eliminating the school children feature from your proposition I most heartily recommend to the good citizens of Plainfield and North Plainfield to contribute as largely as their ability to give will permit toward the maintenance and support of our hospital. At the same time, if you remit direct to the hospital treasurer the money that you propose offering as a reward to the classes of the various schools, the desired result might be achieved as well as through the medium of the school children."

NEW JERSEY SCHOOLS BEST

So Said Doctor A. E. Winship in Lecture to 150 School Teachers Yesterday.

NEED NOT FEAR CRITICISM.

Critics of the Public Schools Have Nothing on Which to Base Their Utterances.

"The schools of the State of New Jersey are the best in this country and I can leave the criticism of the educational methods employed in those who know about schools," is what Dr. A. E. Winship told the 150 teachers who gathered in Somerset School yesterday afternoon.

Dr. Winship is the editor of The Educational Review, published in effete Boston, therefore the feather for the cap of New Jersey's educational institutions emanates from an unquestionably high source.

The Dr. has been visiting and becoming familiar with public schools all over the United States for the past twenty-five years, and spoke from a knowledge gained by experience. For an hour he amused, interested and encouraged his audience. He was introduced by Professor Krebs and at once launched into his subject.

Dr. Winship said that no one ought to think that he was trying to make them believe that the schools are as good as they ought to be, for they are not. But, then, there is nothing perfect in this world but death. Times come when crises appear, a panic ensues when confidence is shaken as well in school life as in the financial world, but those who are doing their best to educate the youth of the land need never fear criticism, because that usually comes from those whose familiarity with the subject is altogether questionable. He cited several instances, some of them humorous to a degree, in which he proved conclusively that a fellow ought never to criticse anything unless he has facts upon which to base an argument.

A railroad man who has no children to send to school, or who never visited a school except to attend it as a boy, has no more right to criticize public school systems than a teacher has to call the railroad to account for unavoidable delays. "But," he said, "criticism is in the air and we all enjoy it when it's on the other fellow. The other day I heard a man say that the discovery of the North Pole was going to cost the taxpayers $5,000,000, because all the school books would have to be changed. He had told this to others and they had not questioned him. I asked if he thought it would change the spelling book, the arithmetic and the grammar, and after a moment's thought he replied, 'you're making a fool of me!' No, I replied, you did that yourself."

Dr. Winship referred to William Allen White's article in the American Magazine of last August (another criticism) and said that although Mr. White's statements were made with all good intention and founded on statistics, the statistics themselves were wrong. Mr. White, in the article referred to, stated that one-half of all the money paid out in this country for school buildings was wasted; there were, he said, 24,000,000 children of school age and only 12,000,000 attended. The trouble with Mr. White's argument was that he got the school ages mixed, and the difference in the ages accounted for the difference in the number of pupils.

The lecturer proved to the satisfaction of everybody that the schools of today are far superior to those of a quarter of a century past, they are just as far ahead now as an automobile is in advance of a wheelbarrow for pleasure. He told about the hue and cry made by the Cleveland, Ohio, newspapers because mental arithmetic was not taught, as they thought, in a practical way. These calamity howlers were soon quieted by a few special efforts made by the superintendent of schools in that city. He referred also to the compulsory education laws, the great improvements in the south and west. Told how the pupils of a school in Page county, Iowa, won prizes after terms at agricultural colleges; gave readings from some schoolbooks of the middle of the last century including "geography" by Harriet Beecher Stowe, which to the educated mind of today seemed pathetic; and ended his lecture by advising the teachers to remember that they can afford to ignore the criticisms of the so-called critics, as their work is upon a plane highly removed from the former systems of education.

The doctor's concluding words were heartily applauded and many of the teachers took the opportunity of shaking hands with the eminent educator.

Bruguier's Antiseptic FRENCH TOOTH POWDER

Save Your Teeth

Write For This Interesting Little Booklet "The Preservation of the Teeth"

Even though it is a deliberate attempt to convince you of the merits of this unique and effective French preparation, it is very much worth while writing for.

It explains just how and why this French tooth powder is so effective in removing the tartar from the teeth, purifying the mouth and making the teeth pearly white.

In addition to this, it contains some interesting facts about the teeth and the proper way to clean and care for them. Shall we send it to you?

ASK FORT TO HELP IN WHITE SLAVE WAR

An appeal to Governor Fort for aid in effecting the enactment of laws that will prevent the so-called "white slave" people from carrying on operations in New Jersey has been made by the suffragists of this State. It is the first move in the war upon this menace declared at the last meeting of the executive committee of the New Jersey Women's Suffrage Association.

The letter, which is signed by Mrs. Louisa E. Hector, of Arlington, chairman of the legislative committee of the association, sets forth resolutions citing the result of investigations into the existence and form of the menace.

The letter sent the Governor follows:

"The legislative committee of the New Jersey Women's Suffrage Association respectfully ask your assistance in the passage of a law covering the following resolutions adopted unanimously by the association at a meeting on January 28:

"'Whereas, The treaty ratified by the United States Senate March 1, 1905, provided for the universal action of the powers toward the repression of the white slave traffic, has been declared by Daniel J. Keefe, commissioner general of immigration, to be "practically worthless," and,

"'Whereas, The said commissioner general, in his report transmitted to President Taft, has stated that an agent of the Immigration Bureau has visited England, Austria, Belgium, France, Germany, Russia and Roumania, and as a result of his investigations has arrived at the conclusion that there is no such thing as an international "white slave" organization, and that he found the large cities infested with women of "immoral tendencies" living in poverty and squalor, eager to embrace the opportunity of coming to this country, and thus becoming a menace to the moral welfare of the community; and,

"'Whereas, Recent investigations have disclosed that in certain large cities of the United States there are secret organizations fostering a similar condition of evil in our own country through the white slave traffic.

"'Resolved, That the Women's Suffrage Association of New Jersey most respectfully asks your assistance in passing a law sufficiently drastic to deal with the aforesaid conditions in prohibiting the white slave traffic in the State of New Jersey.'"

At the meeting of the Suffragists' executive committee it was declared that if New York was successful in driving out this element a migration to this State would follow. This apprehension resulted in the decision to take immediate action.

SILZER'S MEASURE TO REVIVE CANALS.

Senator George S. Silzer, of Middlesex, Tuesday afternoon introduced a bill in the State Senate at Trenton to force the Pennsylvania Railroad to operate the Delaware and Raritan Canal as a bonafide waterway. His measure would accomplish this result by giving the present State Railroad Commission authority over all canals, docks and other canal property in the State. The commission's jurisdiction, Mr. Silzer believes, would end the suppression by leasing railroad companies of both the Delaware and Raritan and the Morris Canal.

The Senate committee created under Senator Silzer's resolution of last year to investigate conditions in connection with the Delaware and Raritan will resume its inquisition at New Brunswick at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning. Senators Silzer, William J. Bradley and Harry Leavitt comprise the committee. They will sit at the Middlesex County Court House.

TOO MANY BLOCKADES ON JERSEY CENTRAL.

The Elizabeth City Council decided at its session Tuesday to bring action against the Central Railroad Company of New Jersey for violating a city ordinance in blocking street crossings by long delays of its freight trains. Recently there was a half hour blockade because of a broken coupling pin on one of the cars. Complaint was made, and tonight's action resulted.

A city ordinance in Elizabeth provides that the blockading of streets by railroads be not for a period of more than five minutes. Councilmen, in speeches, criticised the railroad officials for their negligence.

Dead After Three Attempts.

After failing on two occasions to end her life, Mrs. James Donohue, thirty-three years old, of No. 818 Communipaw avenue, Jersey City, committed suicide Tuesday night by inhaling gas. Her previous attempts were on February 3 and 5. Her husband, after each of these unsuccessful attempts secured commitments of his wife to the county jail for examination as to her sanity, but served neither of them. Mrs. Donohue was found dead in bed by her father-in-law. She is survived by her husband and two daughters.

The Good Values of the White Sale Keep Coming Forward

We just MUST keep telling you of the good values of this White Sale. Every day something else out of the ordinary crops out. A visit to the store every day is well worth your while.

White Sales are always interesting events at this store—interest is intensified in this year's event by the agitation of high priced cotton.

The splendid stocks on exhibition and sale marks the culmination of months of careful planning and buying when cotton goods were considerable lower than they are today.

Some of the unusually good values which are to be brought forward for this week's selling are listed here—but—we say again it would be impossible to list ALL our good values in this limited space. Come to the store today—you'll find out as hundreds of others have—"It Pays To Buy At Tepper's."

The Silks for a Rainy Day

Are These Valentine "Shedwaters"

One need not fear being caught in a shower if they are wearing a foulard or pongee dress of the Valentine "Shedwater" variety, for raindrops will not spot the Valentine Foulards, but will run off like water off of a duck's back. Silks with this most remarkable quality should appeal to every woman economically inclined, for in the Valentine "Shedwater" Silks we secured, not only this spot-proof feature, but charming patterns and beautiful colorings as well. The silks measure up to any other good grade in every way, yet they are as modestly priced as commonplace silks.

The show and sale of Valentine "Shedwater" Foulards and Pongees continues thruout this week. The selling has been most liberal and we expect the remaining days of the week to be equally good.

STATE NEWS BRIEFS.

The small son of Horace Ewan, of North Millville, ate several strychnine tablets, and but for the prompt action of a physician would have died.

Hugh Marlow, a farm hand, who works at Richfield Park, was treated at the General Hospital, Paterson, Tuesday, for an injury he received while carrying a plank. Two of his ribs were broken.

It is reported that the authorities of the State Epileptic Village, at Skillman, have about gotten control of the outbreak of diphtheria in the institution. Six cases developed, and two of these have since been discharged as cured.

The Trenton Conference of the Association of History Teachers of the Middle States and Maryland will be held in Trenton next Saturday. The principal address will be by United States Circuit Judge W. M Lanning.

Assistant Tax Receiver J. Fred Newton, of Camden, is seriously ill as a result of hemorrhages. He was walking along Federal street near Third when he suddenly fell to the pavement. He was assisted to a drug store, where restoratives were applied, after which he was taken home. Mr. Newton has been in ill health for some time.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

GOLF.

It is rumored that when the spring season gets under way in this vicinity several of the local committees prolific in ideas intend to spring new forms of competition on the unsuspecting members. This will be unpleasant news for the disciples of the old school as well as those who the longer they play the more satisfied they become with the old order of things.

So far as novelty goes, last season saw not a few. A nearby club introduced a long driving handicap contest, the odds being given in yards and deducted from the aggregate of each player's three drives. It is said to have furnished an amusing entertainment, and on this account alone may be suggested to the club committees that seek variety in their schedules. Handicap approaching and putting competitions are frequent and serve the same end. Once each season, too, many clubs hold an obstacle putting competition, in which many puzzling but not impossible puts have to be made to pass the odd hazards that guard each hole. Once a year certain clubs arrange a cross-country competition by mixing up the order of holes for the day. The play will require a journey from the first tee to the sixth green, the sixth tee to the ninth green, from the ninth tee back to the first green, and so on.

A variation is the kicker's handicap. In this the committee selects a certain net score and seals it up. Each player handicaps himself, and the net score nearest to that in the envelope wins. Equally entertaining from its uncertainties is the select competition handicap. The conditions are that only the scores on, say, twelve of the eighteen holes will count for the prize, and only the committee knows the reserved holes. It is stroke play naturally, and the contestants are as much at sea as though blindfolded, each hoping that the good holes he makes are to count and the poor ones among those cancelled. A variant tried for the Mamlok prize at the Fox Hills Golf Club last fall was at match play against bogie, with the bogie raised but kept secret until the cards were posted on certain holes.

DEMAND FOR $367,000 FOR ARMY MEDICINES.

Washington, Feb. 17.—To replace medicine and hospital supplies destroyed by fire in the army medical supply depot in New York city ten days ago, the Secretary of War yesterday submitted to the House a recommendation for a deficiency appropriation of $367,000.

The surgeon-general of the army reported that the balance of the appropriation for the present fiscal year is insufficient to meet this extraordinary loss "without dangerously encroaching on the reserves which every prudent government must maintain in anticipation of military emergencies, such as the recent intervention in Cuba, requiring the immediate issue of large quantities of equipment."

Boy Caught Stealing Chickens.

Elizabeth, Feb. 17.—James and Thomas Critchley, aged sixteen and seventeen respectively, were caught Tuesday in Linden Township stealing chickens. A number of robberies of poultry have been committed in that township recently, and it is believed the prisoners are the offenders. They were arraigned before Judge Mahon and held in $200 bail to await the grand jury's action. The stolen fowls were found hidden under a mattress at their home, 764 Grier avenue.

LOCAL OPTION LEADER ASKS FOR FAIR SHOW.

J. Frank Burke, secretary of the New Jersey Anti-Saloon League, which is backing the Ridgway local option bill, and G. Howland Munroe, counsel for the league, were at the State House at Trenton Tuesday opposing the proposition to have a hearing on all the liquor bills jointly. The hearing is set for February 28.

Secretary Burke declared that a hearing on all the open Sunday measures and the local option bill at the same time would confuse the issue and work against the local option proposition.

"We want the hearings separate," he declared, "then we can wage a clear-cut fight for the local option bill and against the measures to permit liquor-selling on Sunday."

Engine Kills Yardmaster.

George Davis, for more than thirty five years in the employ of the Central Railroad of New Jersey, was killed by a drill engine of that company in the yards at Communipaw Tuesday. Davis, who was assistant yardmaster, was walking up the tracks, near Washington street, and stepped out of the way of a train coming toward him directly in the path of a drill engine which was moving rapidly toward him. He was dead before an ambulance could be summoned.

FORMER COUNCILMAN T. W. POWELL IS DEAD

Thomas Wilfred Powell, a former borough councilman, died at his home at 23 Duer street last night of a cancerous affection. Mr. Powell was 63 years of age and a native of Burlington, this State. From 1888 to 1900 he resided on Grandview avenue and since that time he has also been a resident of New York and Westfield. Mr. Powell was a retired business man and renewed his resident in the borough last fall.

In 1897 he was elected a member of the Borough Council in which body he served one term. He was a member of the I. O. O. F. and Knights Templar, of Meriden, Conn., in which city he also resided for a time. The funeral service and interment will take place at Burlington on Saturday.

Surviving him are a wife and two children, Dr. Grace R. Powell, of the borough, and Charles D. Powell, of Dubois, Pa. The latter is secretary of the Dubois Y. M. C. A.

JOURNALISTIC OPINIONS

No Smoking in Church.

Atlantic City has lost one of its attractions. "The Men's Church" is to be closed. Perhaps it will be recalled that this was a special service from which women were barred and at which the men were permitted to smoke, sip soft drinks, take off their coats in the summer time and make themselves comfortable. In addition to the regular services several "attractions' were occasionally added.

This venture, which was under charge of a young, zealous assistant rector, was not altogether a failure. The services were moderately well attended, but the results were not wholly satisfactory and the congregation and the church officers were divided on the question of giving it moral and financial support. Finally the vestry and wardens notified the assistant that the church ritual could not be used at his services. The bishop concurred in this action and this broke up the "Men's Church" scheme.

The end of this particular experiment has not come sooner than was predicted. When begun it attracted wide attention and caused mixed comment, but the prevailing sentiment was that if vaudeville and smokers had become necessary to the successful work of the church, the latter had fallen far from its original strength and purpose.—Newark News.

The Telephone Investigation.

Frank I. Sommer's argument before the municipal corporation committee of the Assembly yesterday for a legislative investigation of the telephone monopoly in this State that has established extravagant rates for its service was a masterly presentation from the viewpoint of a lawyer, as well as of a citizen. Mr. Sommer showed that through telephone lines have by law unlimited powers as to routes and location, which legal power local telephone companies lack, placing them at the mercy of the through companies. This discrimination in itself is calculated to promote monopoly. Companies upon which are conferred this exceptional right are in duty bound to be decently fair to the public. The New York Telegraph and Telephone Company is unfair, oppressive and dishonest in its charges. It is in the power of the Legislature to regulate these charges, and it is also the Legislature's duty to the people. All that is now asked is an investigation to ascertain the facts. The attorney-general certifies that his office is not equipped with the facilities for an investgation and would need an extra appropriation for the purpose. The difficulty thus raised can be easily surmounted. It would be extraordinary indeed if an inquiry necessary for the public welfare should be abandoned on the plea that the legal department of the State did not have the means to prosecute it or aid it. The Legislature can attend to that.—Newark Star.

Could You Stand It?

The following is a list of questions in general history submitted to the children in the ninth grade of a public school in an adjacent State. The schools there are very much like those in our own State, in fact, ours are a trifle "better," if anything. The children who were expected to answer them were between the ages of thirteen and fifteen. The most of them failed, it is true, but there were some who actually passed the examination. Here are the questions:

1. Discuss the antiquity of man.
2. Give an account in detail of the early forms of writing
3. Give a detailed account of the Aryan race.
4. Give a brief history of the Assyrians.
5. Give an account of science among the Egyptians.
6. Discuss commerce among the Phoenicians.
7. Where did the Phoenicians establish colonies? And why?
8. Discuss the important customs of the Babylonians.
9. How does science establish the location of the home of the first parents?
10. Give a description of Egypt, the condition of the soil, etc.

It would be interesting to see what a tangle nine mature men out of ten would make in attempting to give reasonably intelligent responses to these questions. It might not be altogether uninteresting to note what the pupils in the high schools, the preparatory schools, the academies, and even the students in the lower classes of some of the colleges would make out of these topics if suddenly thrown at them in an examination under civil service rules.

And what, it might be added, is the practical use of such information to children between thirteen and fifteen, even admitting the importance of a general knowledge of history? Couldn't the pupils' mental energies be utilized to better purpose? In other subjects than history it also seems, from some examination papers, that perplexing puzzles rather than practical problems are given to the pupils, as though the object was to test the child's mental endurance to the utmost, to make the strain as tense as possible without actually touching the snapping point.

Modern teaching is full of such examples, not all quite so severe, and it is little wonder that parents are astounded at the mysterious learning of their off-spring, that the children are confused by so much miscellaneous information, and that the family physicians are condemning a ssytem which results in so many nervous breakdowns, which cultivates the memory rather than the understanding, and which neglects that physical development absolutely necessary to a healthy, successful life. Most of the children subjected to these questions failed, which was to their credit. It showed that they were real, live children, not animated immature absorbents of unrelated and impractical information.—Newark Evening News.

Y. M. C. A. SPORTS.

The Y. M. C. A. basketball team will journey to Orange on Saturday night to battle with the State champions. The locals won when the champions appeared here several weeks ago and Manager Listman is confident of turning the trick as the Plainfield five has been extremely fortunate on the Orange court in past years.

The running long dive and running high kick are the contests that will be decided in the Y. M. C. A. championships tonight.

Tomorrow afternoon at the Y. M. C. A. Leals and N. P. H. S. basketball fives will meet in an Interscholastic League contest.

FUR ORNAMENTS.

Fur is creeping into many of our evening schemes, and although Paris has dinned in in our ears, the women of America have been deliberate in their acceptaince of this lovely fashion. Sable and mink are used in narrow stripes, broad bands and tiny motifs. The brown shades of these furs are particularly well adapted to give contrast to pale yellow and pinks.

With the dull blues and violet tints chinchilla is lovely. Its gray harmonizes with these colors in a way dear to the artistic heart, and its softness admits of a variety of treatment.

No matter what the fur, it is cleverly wrought in inserting forms to decorate the dress. Perhaps the most novel and pleasing form is the tiny flat bow of fur, caught in the centre by a peweled buckle or ornament.

Simple Fervor.

"What I long to hear," said the man with a Prince Albert coat and a turndown collar, "is some of the fervid eloquence that used to echo through the halls of legislation."

"Well," rejoined Senator Sorghum, "you ought to drop into the cloakroom some day and hear us statesmen discussing the weather."—Washington Star.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

Plainfield is to have its first glimpse of Miss Ruth St. Denis and her world famous Hindoo dances at the Plainfield theatre next week, when she will appear matinee and evening only on Tuesday, Washington's Birthday. Miss St. Denis is now giving her repertoire in Washington, where as in New York, Chicago, Boston and Philadelphia, she has duplicated the triumphs of her past four seasons in the European capitals.

That favorite pair of musical comedy experts Ward and Vokes, will bring their second edition of "The Promoters" to the Plainfield theatre next Wednesday, and it is promised that this year's offering will be fully up to the standard of last season when the reunion of Ward and Vokes proved such a happy and financial success. Musical comedy, of the Ward and Vokes brand is always a welcome source of amusement here.

HOW "SHOW ME" STARTED.

Colonel John Martin at Chicago, has taken issue with ex-Governor Joseph W. Folk, of Missouri, and has defended the slogan "Show me" as indicative of the spirit of his native State. He even went farther, and modestly confessed having invented the phrase. At a meeting of the executive committee of the Missouri Society at Chicago, Colonel Martin said:

"I was in New York many years ago with friends, many of them Democratic politicians, and we got to telling stories, each man bragging about the glories of his native State. I scoffed at their yarns, and said: 'I'm from Missouri. You've got to show me.' The expression was taken up and has become famous."

Gov. Fort's Foot Less Painful.

The condition of Gov. J. Franklin Fort of New Jersey is improved according to a buletin issued yesterday by the attending physician. Gov. Fort is at the Edgemere, East Orange, and it was feared that blood poisoning might develop from scratches on the Governor's foot made in the bath recently. The bulletin said that the extent of the inflammation had contracted, and that the probabilities were that a small abscess would develop. He had had some fever, but this had subsided. The Governor said he felt much better, the buletin said. Gov. Fort's private secretary, Leslie R. Fort, gave out a statement in which he said the Governor would be forced to rest for the remainder of the week.

DUNELLENITES WOULD LIKE CONSOLIDATION

Property owners of Dunellen and New Market are beginning to agitate for consolidation with a view of getting more improvements and a bigger return for their taxes and the matter is likely to be an important factor in the elections next fell.

At the present time a majority of the citizens of Dunellen, and some in New Market, between Centre street and the Lehigh Valley tracks, are in favor of the annexation of that section of New Market to Dunellen. On the other hand a number of prominent property holders of New Market do not entertain the belief that the village would reap any benefits if consolidated with Dunellen.

John Y. Rupel, a substantial citizen of New Market, however, comes out with a brand new suggestion. He advocates the consolidation of Dunellen and New Market with Plainfield. In an interview with a Daily Press reporter yesterday Mr. Rupel said:

"I am confident if New Market, South Plainfield and Dunellen could be joined with Plainfield it would result in the development of thousands of acres of land in Piscataway township and result in great good to all municipalities.

"Under present conditions we are not getting value for the money paid in taxes. All we can show is our schools and they cannot be classed with Plainfield. We are getting no police protection and very little fire protection. By being a part of Plainfield we would enjoy all these benefits. We are sorely in need of police protection but I do not believe we will ever get it under the present system.

"It would do New Market no good to hitch up to Dunellen, what we would like Plainfield to do, is to take New Market in, regardless of the ideas of Dunellen."

TYPHOID FEVER IN THE REFORMATORY.

Typhoid fever has broken out in the New Jersey State Reformatory at Rahway, two cases having developed in the institution within the past few days. The superintendent, the Rev. Dr. Frank Moore, is at a loss to understand the real cause of the disease, but proposes to make a full investigation at once.

When Dr. Moore was asked if he had any suspicion that the drinking water supplied to the institution had anything to do with it, said that it might possibly be that the disease emanated from that source, but that at the present time he was not prepared to say positively that such is the cause.

The water supplied at the institution is from what is known as a dead end, it being the end of the main in that direction, and it is supposed that if there were any disease germs in the water at all they would probably be found at such a terminal.

Superintendent Moore has hopes that in the near future the institution will be able to have a water supply of its own. This, he thinks, will be realized when the State fully understands its needs. He also hopes that before a great while that the grounds will be enclosed by a stone wall, which will take the place of the present high board fence.

Dr. Moore says that it may take three or four years more to fully carry out the plans which he has laid out, but that when they are completed the reformatory will be a model institution in every sense of the word.

Somerset Council, No. 109, Jr. O. U. A. M., will meet tomorrow night in regular session.

Franklin Council, No. 41, Jr. O. U. A. M., will meet tonight and receive several applications for membership.

HE DIES IN THE CITY WHICH HE HAD NAMED

Alfred Speer, a lifelong resident of Passaic, who was prominently identified with the city's early history, died there yesterday in his 87th year.

Mr. Speer was born in Belleville, November 2, 1822. He was apprenticed to a cabinetmaker in Newark, and began business in Passaic when a young man. He is a descendant of the Speer and Kingsland families, who were among the early settlers in New Jersey. From cabinetmaking he turned to invention, and later to winemaking, becoming the first extensive producer of American wines.

His greatest invention was a travelling sidewalk, the first practical device for rapid transit in New York. His device, of which he had a working model, was favorably received, and had the support of Peter Cooper, Horace Greeley and others. An act authorizing its use in Manhattan passed two successive Legislatures, those of 1873 and 1874, but was each time vetoed by Governor John A. Dix.

After the defeat of his project Mr. Speer turned his attention to his wine business, which he carried on successfully until his death. He was founder and editor of Passaic's first newspaper, the Weekly Item, which he continued to publish until a few years ago. It is to Mr. Speer that Passaic owes its name. The settlement was originally known as Acquackenonk, but the name was unwieldly, and when the town began to grow it gave much trouble to men in business who had goods shipped to them. Mr. Speer suggested the name Passaic, and took the matter up with the postoffice department at Washington. To complete his work he painted a huge sign bearing the name "Passaic," which he nailed late one night to the Erie Railroad station.

Mr. Speer leaves seven children. They are: Miss Althea Speer, William Henry Speer, Morgan Speer, Alfred W. Speer, of Passaic; Wesley Speer and Sidney Sylvester Speer, of New York, and Irving Speer, of Iowa.

WIFE WILL CONTEST HUSBAND'S DIVORCE CASE.

Paterson, Feb. 17.—Dramatic incidents occurred in Vice-Chancellor Stevenson's court Tuesday in the trial of the suit for divorce begun by Emil Hubschmidt, of 143 North Fifth street, against Rose Christina Hubschmidt, of 38 Canal street. Ten minutes after Hubschmidt took the stand, in the belief there would be no defense, the courtroom door was opened and Mrs. Hubschmidt appeared. She swept through the room to the bar and informed the vice-chancellor she was the wife of the man on the stand.

"I am going to defend this suit," she said, excitedly. She was told to calm herself.

When she had done so she said she had counsel. There was scurrying about the corridor and Mickel, a lawyer, appeared. He said he had been retained to defend the suit. He asked for an adjournment so he might amend the answer. Carroll, the husband's attorney, objected. He said he had no idea there was to be a defense and did not wish to be taken unaware by counsel on the other side.

Vice-Chancellor Stevenson said if the case was an ordinary one he would permit the amendment, but in this instance it was too serious. He would see to it that no advantage was taken. Counsel were ordered to proceed.

Hubschmidt told of his discovery of misconduct on the part of his wife. The misconduct was followed by criminal charges to which the wife and her companion pleaded not guilty. Judge Scott suspended sentence.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Miller and son, Walter Miller, of Grant avenue, left yesterday for Madison, Wisconsin. Mr. Miller is a draughtsman and expects to assume the position that is being held open for him when he reaches Madison.

STUDIO MEN'S CASE UP TO GRAND JURY.

The Union County Grand Jury was briefly informed yesterday by Judge Atwater of the court's reason for calling it together again. The judge stated that Lawrence Taylor, thirty-four years old, and Henry Druehl, twenty-four years old, both of Elizabeth, had been arrested on a charge that they were conducting an artist's studio and photograph gallery in Broad street, Elizabeth, into which place, it is alleged, girls were enticed and drugged. It was the grand jury's duty, it was explained, to fully investigate all the circumstances, and if it found that crime had been committed it should indict both men who are now held in $2,500 bail each.

BARS TEETH IN DIVORCE SUIT.

Court Holds Display of Molars is No Proof Husband Knocked Them From Wife's Mouth.

Vice-Chancellor Emery in Newark yesterday decided that two teeth brought to court as evidence in a suit for divorce would not constitute proof that they had been knocked from the mouth of Mrs. Vinia Ella Wendelboe by her husband, as she testified. Her counsel, Charles M. Myers, therefore decided not to offer them in evidence.

Mrs. Wendelboe is being sued on the ground of desertion by her husband, Dr. Lars Thomas Wendelboe. She testified to various acts of alleged cruelty and said that within a comparatively short time after their marriage her husband declined to permit her to know anything about his business or to have charge of his house, his mother taking her place in that capacity.

CHANGES EXCISE ORDINANCE.

Elizabeth Board to Complete Its New Regulations.

The Excise Commission met Tuesday night and made minor changes in the excise ordinance. Owing to the delay thus far occasioned, the commissioners took steps last night to complete the ordinance.

Ewald Broeker, whom the commissioners desire to take cut a special wholesaler's license because of the nature of his business, was present, but nothing was done regarding his case.

Posts Improve Traffic.

Traffic conditions at the two points where indicating posts have been placed, Park avenue and North and Front and Park avenue, have been improved greatly by the innovation.

Mrs. C. W. Smith, of Randolph road, is entertaining her sister, Miss Cora Jones, of Summitville, N. Y. She will remain here for several weeks.

ALLEGED MURDERER IS HUNTED BY POLICE

Not a clue has been found as to the whereabouts of William Seyler, who forsook his wife and two children at Atlantic City last Saturday week, and who is now wanted on a charge of having murdered Jane Adams, a shopgirl, and throwing her body into the ocean from Young's Pier, Atlantic City, on Friday night, February 4. Two arrests were made in Philadelphia and one in Camden yesterday, but none of the suspects proved to be the man wanted. Seyler's brother Cris is also missing.

The police learned yesterday that a younger brother of Seyler was industrious and had quite a sum of money saved, and with a view to ascertaining whether or not he had let his brothers have it before they disappeared, the young man was taken to police headquarters and quizzed for several hours. But it developed that he had not given his brothers his savings and knew nothing whatever concerning their whereabouts.

The police are mystified as to the reason for young Orvis Seyler leaving the city, for as they have understood it, he had nothing to do with the case except that Jane Adams went out in company with him and Alice Adams, her sister. He is illiterate, and detectives believe that William had made him believe in some way he would be held accountable for Jane's death.

WINDOW CLEANER HIT HIM.

Six-Footer the Buffer for a Man Falling from a High Ledge.

John Kauffman, a widow cleaner, fell from the fifth story of the business building, 46 Warren street, Tuesday afternoon, and if he survives his injuries it will because his fall was broken by an Orange miner, a husky six-footer.

Kauffman lost his hold and shot down head foremost. James Girdwood, the miner, happened to be passing the building. Kauffman's head struck Girdwood's shoulder a glancing blow, knocking him down. Kauffman struck the sidewalk with considerable force and both his arms and ankles were fractured. He also sustained possible internal injuries, but was conscious when removed to the Hudson Street Hospital.

Girdwood picked himself up, seemingly unhurt. When asked if he wished the attendance of a physician he remarked, "None of that," and walked quietly away. Kauffman's home is at 36 East Twelfth street.

ANGLERS RESCUED AT SEA.

Two Who Were Given Up for Dead Carried to Jamaica.

Joy reigns in the families of Joseph Driscoll and William Andrews at Atlantic City, for instead of the two young men being drowned during the northeast storm of last Thursday and Friday, as was believed, it has been learned through a cable from Bowden, Jamaica, that they were picked up by a fruit steamer many miles out at sea and taken to the islands.

Driscoll and Andrews left Atlantic City last Thursday afternoon in an open launch for the Fishing Banks. They could not have been at the banks more than two hours before the storm broke, and there was no possibility of their making home in their frail boat. They must have run before the gale and have been blown nearly 100 miles out to sea before they were picked up.

FORT MAKES TAFT GLAD.

Governor Fort Tuesday received a letter from President Taft commending his stand on the income tax. The President's letter follows:

"I am very strongly in favor of the passage of the income tax law, and I sincerely hope that New Jersey will be one of those states to vote for it. I am glad that you took the stand you did."

Judge Defines Bishops' Law.

"Ill arranged, complicated and ungrammatical" is the way Judge Scott referred to the Bishops' law Tuesday at Trenton, when the indictments against thirty-two saloonkeepers charged with violating the screen section of the law came up for trial. The leading attorneys in the cases are former Senator Wood McKee and former Assemblyman Henry Marelli, both of whom were members of the Legislature that passed the law, Mr. McKee voting for it and Mrs. Marelli against it. Judge Scott, when counsel moved to quash the indictments, said he believed that some of the contentions were meritorious, but he would defer giving a decision until February 28.

Mother Was the "Kidnapper."

What was supposed to have been a kidnapping in Jersey City was cleared up Tuesday afternoon. Hannah Scribner, eight years old, started for school on Monday and failed to return to the home of her aunt, Mrs. Rose Grant, of No. 274 Sixth street, who had had charge of her for several months. The police were informed and have been working on the case. The child, it has since been learned, was taken away by her mother, who lives at No. 733 Third avenue, Brooklyn. The mother was ill in October last, and Mrs. Grant took the child with the expectation of keeping her.

THE MAINE BLOWN UP TWELVE YEARS AGO

Tuesday was the twelfth anniversary of the destruction of the United States battleship Maine in the harbor of Havana, an epoch-making event for Cuba, Spain and this country. This disaster, which cost the lives of 266 American seamen, precipitated the Spanish-American War.

It has never been proved conclusively that the Maine was sunk by the explosion of a submarine mine, the result of a Spanish conspiracy, but as public opinion blamed the Spaniards for the deed the war pressure was irrestible. In fact, "Remember the Maine" became the rallying cry of many an American soldier in the subsequent months.

A great many people now believe that the destruction of the Maine was caused by some other reason than Spanish bitterness, and it is not improbable that the present Congress may take some action looking toward the raising of the ill-fated battleship from the mud of Havana harbor. One plausible theory advanced is that the battleship was blown up by Cuban Insurgents in order to embroil the United States with Spain—a condition which actually followed the disaster.

CHANGES COLOR OF PLANTS.

Washington, Feb. 17.—With a chemical formula which he asserts will turn the blossoms of a white rose bush or the staple of the cotton plant jet black, Dennis Tapley, a rheumatic cripple of Savannah, Ga., is in the national capital seeking to have his process patented. He claims that if he can but secure the patent his discovery, which is the result of fifteen years of study and experiment, will be worth $500,000 to him. A proposition to take it over for that price, he says, has been made him.

Tapley came to Washington with a letter that gave him the indorsement of Colonel A. R. Lawton, a prominent lawyer of Savannah. Congressman Edwards, who represents the district in which Savannah is located, is doing what he can to aid Tapley in securing his patent.

Tapley is perhaps thirty-five years of age, and for about twenty years has been a cripple and almost helpless. He has earned a livelihood by stamping key rings with the names of purchasers. Several years ago he announced in Savannah that he had discovered a means of changing the color of the blossoms of growing plants, and in the mean time has been perfecting this process. He says it consists simply in feeding the chemical mixture to the plants as though watering them.

Patrolman Held in $2,500 Bail.

Patrolman Harry Harms, of Jersey City, was arraigned before Judge Queen in the Second Criminal Court, that city, Tuesday, on a charge of manslaughter. He waived examination and was held for the grand jury. Harms was later released on $2,500 bail before County Judges Blair and Carey. The officer is charged with causing the death of Charles Hopkins, it being alleged that he felled Hopkins with a blow of his club and fractured his skull. Harms says that Hopkins slipped on the ice and fell.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning Feb. 20, 1910.

Topic.—Intemperance and other sins of the body.—Rom. viii. 1-14. Comment by Rev. Sherman H. Doyle, D. D.

In this famous paragraph from the book of Romans the Apostle Paul draws a vivid contrast between the spiritually minded and the carnally minded. Through Christ the spiritually minded have been made righteous and walk not after the sins of the flesh or body, but walk after the Spirit. On the other hand, the carnally minded or those who have not accepted Christ and are still devoted to the sins of the body have no spiritual life or power and are dead in trespasses and in sins. Their condition is most deplorable. They think only of evil and destroy body, mind and soul by indulging in the sins of the body. All who follow this kind of lives in any form or forms should arouse themselves, realize their danger and give up sinful lives for spiritual ones. No man since Christ's death need "walk in the flesh," but may and should "walk in the spirit." "If ye live after the flesh ye shall die [spiritually and eternally], but if ye through the Spirit do mortify the deeds of the body ye shall live." Which shall it be—a spiritual life and eternal salvation or a carnal life and eternal death? Each one must decide this question for himself, and may the Lord help us to decide aright.

The sins of the body are numerous. Back of them, of course, is a sinful mind. Evil thoughts, evil imaginations, produce evil lives, and they themselves are evil. "As a man thinketh in his heart so is he," and Christ makes a man free from bodily sins by transforming his mind and renewing his will.

Some of the sins of the body are:

1. Intemperance, especially intemperance in the use of alcoholic drinks. No sin of the body has been more universal and destructive than that of intemperance. It has destroyed millions and has ruined and wrecked countless homes and even been a principal factor in the destruction of nations. Against it decidedly the young need to be warned. No drunkard ever intended to become one. He intended to be temperate in his use of drink. But some things are dangerous to tamper with, and strong drink is one of them. The only safe way is to avoid it altogether. Let the young men especially be warned today, for as never before the business world demands sober men to conduct its affairs. The boy of today who learns to drink faces a sure failure in this world as well as the loss of spiritual and eternal life.

2. Gluttony is a sin of the body. Constant overeating is most harmful and injurious to physical health and mental activity and spiritual life. The expressions "gluttonous" and "winebibbers" are several times united in the Scriptures, and warnings against both are enjoined. The man who is a glutton overworks his digestive organs and not only injures them, but other vital organs of the body, especially the heart. The health of thousands is impaired and their lives made miserable by intemperance in eating too much and in eating that which is harmful rather than helpful. Too much care cannot be exercised over our diet. Indigestion, dyspepsia and heart weakness are mainly the result of overeating or carelessness in what is eaten. Rich foods and especially rich candies should be sparingly partaken of, if at all. Eating without complete mastication of food should be absolutely avoided. Take time to eat, eat what agrees with you, but never too much, regardless of what it may be. The great danger here is that the evil effects are not immediately apparent, but they are no less serious because their full fruit is not produced until years may have passed. The body is the temple of the Holy Ghost and should therefore, as well as for health and long life, be faithfully cared for.

3. Impurity is a sin of the body. The vilest of sins is impurity in thought, word and action. The pure in heart shall see God, but the impure shall not stand before Him. He is perfect holiness and cannot suffer impurity in His sight. Impure thoughts and imaginations, vileness of speech in ordinary conversation or in the telling of filthy stories and impurity of life are abhorrent to Him. Moreover, nothing so much as impurity pollutes the human body and mind. Its secret practice in thought or deed makes the body a sepulcher of death. Nothing drags manhood and womanhood to lower depths. The temptations to it are numberless, and the young should summon every grace of God and every strength of will to keep their thoughts and words and lives pure. No virtue surpasses it, and no other carnal sin so utterly debases and debauches mankind.

On to Honolulu in 1915.

It is a long look ahead to 1915, but that look has been taken by Christian Endeavorers of Honolulu, and they have already sent an invitation that the all American Endeavor convention of 1915 should be held in their beautiful city. Not only are the Endeavorers very earnest in this matter, but the Hawaii promotion committee already seconds their invitation most heartily. "We hope indeed," writes the secretary to Dr. Clark, "that this may be brought about and at this time wish to tender you our services in any way they may be utilized to help carry out such a plan. Hawaii never disappoints. Yours for Hawaii in 1915."

The Island of Regeneration

A little stream she noticed trickled from under a thick covert across the sand toward the sea. She turned and idly walked away from the beach, following the stream. The man, who had stood with her watching the boat, did not for a moment notice her, but so soon as he discovered her direction, ran after her and without offering to touch her barred the way with extended arms.

"No, no!" he cried, his first real spontaneous use of the word.

She stopped, reflected, waved the man aside and went on. There was something in the coppice that he feared. She had not known that he possessed the faculty. Her curiosity was too strong to be denied. She must see what it was. She quickened her pace as if to shake him off, but he easily kept by her side plaintively ejaculating his monosyllabic negative. It was evident that he knew the meaning of the word, she was glad to see.

When she reached the undergrowth of the coppice, she hesitated in apprehension of she knew not what, but summoning her courage parted the reeds and peered in them. She shrank back with a sudden cry of horror, for at her feet, the vegetation springing through in every direction, lay a skeleton, a human skeleton. It lay athwart her path and at the feet was a smaller skeleton which she judged to be that of a dog. With instinctive repugnance she released the rushes and turned hastily away.

"Yes, yes," said the man by her side with an expression of unusual relief on his face which she could scarcely fail to notice.

She knew that she could not thus evade her duties or shrink from her problems. She had marked the gleam of metal amid the bones. She knew that she would have to come back and examine those last remainders of human presence, other than their own, upon the island, but she could not do it just then.

There was nothing else that she discovered on her tour about her prison until she returned to the cave. It was afternoon by this time and she determined to employ some of her hours in a more careful inspection of it. Realizing that the lesson of the night before if re-enforced and maintained would stand her in good stead, she made the man remain outside while she went within. Her hope was to establish in his mind a custom of avoidance of that recess which should develop into a fixed habit, else she could not be free. She could always secure a few moments respite from his presence, at least she had done so heretofore, but she did not dare to try how he would sustain longer absences, hence the necessity for establishing herself in the cave as a harbor of refuge, a sanctuary.

At first glance there was nothing within the little apartment, washed out ages ago from the hard stone by what action of water she could well imagine, but as she scrutinized it closely she noticed in a recess a part where the rock wall cropped out in a sort of low shelf. On the shelf—wonder of wonders!—lay a book. Next to humanity, a book, she thought, would be the most precious sharer of her solitude.

It was a small, leather-bound volume. Dust in the form of tiny particles of sand lay thick upon it. The cave was sheltered from the prevailing winds else it might have been buried, but under the circumstances it might have lain there for ages and in that dry, pure air have suffered no deterioration or decay.

Crusoe was petrified when he saw the footprint in the sand. The woman was not less startled or less amazed when she saw the book on the rock. With a little cry of delight she stepped toward it, bent down, lifted it up, handling it carefully in spite of nervous exultation, shook the dust from it, and opened it. She instantly let it fall from her hands with a look of disappointment and disgust. One glance was enough. The book was the Bible. She had no interest in the Bible, a collection of ancient genealogies and time-worn fables, myths for the credulous and impossible lengends, mixed up with poetry whose inspiration was trivial and history whose details were false. For this woman, who had forgotten how to pray and who had abolished God, had little use for the Book of Books. Rather any other printed page, she had thought bitterly, than that one.

She had acted upon impulse, not in her disdain for the Bible and that for which it stood—that was grounded upon reason and philosophy, she fondly believed—but in her action in casting it from her. It had no more than rolled upon the sand at her feet when, with swift reconsideration, she stooped and lifted it again. It had occurred to her that there might be writing therein and that the writing might give her a clew to the mystery of the man. She knew that births and deaths were frequently entered upon the blank leaves interposed between the Old and New Testaments. Unfamiliar though she was with the contents of the book, she easily found the place and eagerly looked at the leaves. Alas, they were blank. She turned to the fly leaves at the beginning of the book. There was a name written there and in a woman's hand.

"John Revell Charnock," she read.

Below was a date 25 years before the moment of her landing.

John Revell Charnock. It was a strange name, English in part, with a suggestion of France in the middle name. It meant nothing to her. Was this John Revell Charnock who stood outside looking at her? If so, who was John Revell Charnock? The problem was not greatly elucidated. There was no evidence that the book belonged to the man or the man to the book, or even that the one appertained remotely to the other. There was a certain likelihood, however, that they had come to the island together.

She had been sure that the man was a white man. She had thought that he looked like an American, an Englishman, an Anglo-Saxon, and the longer she looked at him with the Bible in her hand the more sure she became.

She had been disappointed that the book had turned out to be the Bible, but at least it would serve one useful purpose. By it, without the laborious effort involved in making letters upon the sand, she might teach the man before her to read. She wished she had a worthier volume from her point of view through which to introduce him to the world's literature, but she would do the best she could with that. It was pitiful, as she saw it, that with a nascent soul to work with, she should be compelled to enlighten it through the medium of time-worn superstition.

Below the shelf, not quite buried in the sand, there was a small metal box. She knelt down, scraped the sand away and presently uncovered it. It appeared to be of silver. It was of such a size that she could clasp it easily in her hand. She opened it not without some difficulty and found within it—nothing! Well, not exactly nothing, but certainly that for which she could see little value. There were several hard pieces of stone of a reddish color chipped and shaped in curious fashion. She turned the box over and examined it on all sides. There were initials upon it, a monogram. She rubbed it clean with her hands and studied it carefully—"J. R. C." The book and the box had belonged to the same person, John Revell Charnock.

She laid the box aside and searched the cave further. There was absolutely nothing else to be seen. Disappointed vaguely, although she had expected nothing and had gotten more, indeed, than she might have imagined if she had thought about it, she laid the book and box down upon the ledge and went out again. She walked along the sands until she came to the place where she had landed the day before. The tide was low. She could see the wreck of her boat, partly on the barrier reef and partly in the water. It would have been no trick for her to swim to it in the stillness, yet she hesitated to attempt it. Certainly weighted down by all her clothing it was a matter of difficulty and inconvenience. If it were not for the man by her side! She tried to think of some way to restrain him, keep him away, but nothing occurred to her. Invention was paralyzed by the situation in which she found herself.

Desperately bidding him stay where he was, she went back to the cave. She was face to face with a crisis which had to be met. Indeed, the question of clothes was becoming a very serious one with her and she knew she should have to decide upon some course of action immediately.

For the present, she took off her garments, hoping and praying in a shiver of dread and anxiety, that he would remain where she had left him, which indeed proved the fact. She laid aside all that she had worn except the blouse and skirt, including her sadly worn shoes and stockings. Thus lightly clad she came out on the sand again. He did not notice any change in her condition. As a matter of fact she gave him no time, for she flashed across the sand at full speed and plunged boldly into the smiling water of the lagoon. He followed her instantly and swam by her side with scarcely any exertion whatever.

It was not long before she reached the barrier reef. It stood up a foot or two above the water now, the tide being low, and she clambered upon it. The sharp rocks cut her naked and tender feet, unused to such exertions and unfitted to such demands, but she persevered. The boat had been beaten to pieces. It had been forced over the reef by the hurl of the sea. The stern had been wedged in between some projecting rocks. The rest of it had been torn away and had fallen into the lagoon. There was no wind, the sea was unruffled. She could see as if through a glass the wrecked remains of the boat. There was nothing in it except the battered motor, useless for days before she landed, since her supply of gasoline had been exhausted. Everything else had been washed out of it and carried into the deeper recesses of the lagoon where they were inaccessible to the human vision.

Stop! Under what remained of a piece of thwart she caught a little gleam of metal. Calculating the distance nicely, she plunged in and dove. Keeping her eyes open she easily found the piece of metal, dislodged it from the place where it had fallen and came to the surface with it. It was a sailor's sheath knife with a bit of lanyard fastened to it. She had had a fancy to wear it in her sailor's blouse and she had missed it since she had come ashore.

But there was nothing else in the boat, not a thing; nothing on the barrier reef. She tried to pull the stern away where it had been wedged, but found that impossible. She tugged at it valiantly, but could not move it. In despair she turned to the man who had watched silently as usual and pointed. He seemed to understand, for he came and with great effort lifted the torn part of the boat from the rocks and laid it down at her feet. She threw it into the water, where, of course, as it was wood, it floated easily. Then, with a nod to him she plunged in and together they guided it to the shore, he taking his cue from her action.

She had a fancy to test his strength and she managed to convey to him by signs, mainly by trying herself in vain to pull it apart, what she wished him to do. The impossible to her was child's play to him, and in a moment the several pieces of the boat which made up the stern were scattered on the beach. There was one straight piece which went across the stern of the boat and made a little box for the coxswain to sit in, which would do for a shovel. It was too wide, but she broke it against a big stone and was possessed of what she wanted. The ends were rough and serrated and unfit for her hands, but these she smoothed by the aid of her knife. She sharpened the other end and soon had a rude semblance of a shovel. She intended to use that on the boat on the sand the next day.

Finished with this, she looked at the man and sighed in despair. Could she ever get rid of him? Instantly there flashed into her mind that which she had before overlooked as of no moment. A long, heavy boat rope, the boat's painter, she had noticed when she dove lay floating by the side of the boat from which it had not been severed. An idea came to her. Dropping the shovel and followed by her satellite, she plunged in once more and again swam to the boat. Wasting no time, she dove as before, found the rope and having previously opened her knife, cut it quickly and came to the surface gasping.

There were perhaps 10 or 12 feet of it. It was a stout piece of rope, of unusual quality, as had been everything on board the yacht. The very best of stuff had gone into it and she did not believe any man on earth could break it. She had amused herself on the cruise by learning the rudiments of seamanship and she could tie knots like any sailor. This little accomplishment was to stand her in good stead. She wrapped the rope around her neck, plunged in the lagoon for the third time, and swam once more to the shore.

She led the way up the sands to the palm grove. Then she tied the rope around the man's neck, not in a slip noose, of course, but in a hard circle, and quickly made a running bowline around the nearest tree. He had not made the slightest resistance. He had no idea evidently of what she was doing or the purport of her motions. Then she turned and went away from him quickly. He started for her at once and was nearly jerked from his feet by the tautening of the rope. It was a new situation for him, yet his hands instinctively went to his throat and he strove to tear away the noose, putting forth such a prodigious amount of strength that she stood in horror lest he should part the lashing. But it was made of stout stuff and he had no purchase; although he pulled until the sweat stood out on his forehead from the violence of his efforts, they were of no avail. She had not dared to interfere or to say a word, but when she saw his efforts slacken, she pointed to the sands to indicate to him that he was to sit down, and then she went away conscious that while the rope held she was free. She was conscious of another thing, too, and that was that he was learning a sad and bitter lesson of physical restraint to which he had never before been subject.

She had rejoiced in his companionship, of course. It had given her something to do, her mind something to work upon, and would do more in the future, but she never enjoyed a moment's freedom more. She ran to the little amphitheater formed by the cliffs where the cave was and throwing aside her blouse and skirt, she luxuriated in a bath in the fresh, cool, delightful waters of the pool at the base of the fall. There was a certain amount of apprehension, for, of course, he might break his tether at any time, but she was sufficiently confident not to let this take away the pleasure she felt in the bath of fresh water after the long experience with the salt seas. If she had had a cake of soap she would have been completely happy.

She had much to do and she could not linger. For one thing, she had to face the problems of clothes. She had absolutely nothing when she landed except what she wore. Besides the usual underwear these consisted of her blue serge blouse and skirt—a short skirt at that—and a silk petticoat. She left the blouse and skirt outside on the rocks where they would soon dry in the sun. They had been wetted so often that there was no possibility of their shrinking further. Then she took stock of the rest. With needles and thread, of which she possessed some store in the housewife which had been saved from her bag, she thought she could make shift to manufacture three or four garments, open at the neck, without sleeves and with skirts that came to the knee, garments just sufficient for modesty. There was no other need for clothes, so far as that went, in that balmy island.

Naturally she shrank from this, but unless she resorted to this expedient her clothes would wear out all at once. Indeed, they were in none too good a condition as it was, and when they were worn out she would have nothing. She would not have hesitated a moment had it not been for the man, but man or not, the decision in her mind was one to which she must come.

Unlike most overeducated women, she was still expert with her needle, and as her garments were to be of the simplest she had not much difficulty in making over her silk skirt in the way she fancied. Belted in at the waist, it would do. She would use the rope that bound the man for that purpose, keeping it always about her. She had, of course, but one pair of stockings and one pair of light canvas boating shoes, which were almost cut to pieces. She would have to go barefoot.

Putting her blue serge dress and the rest of her clothing carefully away, inculding her shoes and stockings, she stepped out on the sands, bare armed, bare footed, a gleaming figure like to an Olympian goddess. She was a woman naturally dark in complexion, and while the sun would probably burn her cruelly and burn her young flesh, never exposed to its intensity, darker, she would not grow red or blister. She was thankful for that with unconscious femininity. At any rate, she must get used to going out in the sun without a hat, too. People, natives who were born and lived in this latitude, did become accustomed to such things, she knew, so undoubtedly could she.

With these thoughts, she stepped around the headland and walked across the beach toward the palm tree where she could see in the fading light of the afternoon her prisoner was still tied.

Modesty is a negative term. That which is indecent exposure in a ballroom is the height of convention on a sea shore. Certainly this man had no concept of such a quality. He had not noticed before when she had come out barefoot to swim to the barrier reef, and yet somehow she fancied as he stared at her approaching that this time he marked the difference. And a slow, fiery blush flamed over her from her bare feet to her bare head, extended along her bare arms. She stopped under the persuasion of impulse to turn and go back to the cave and resume her clothing, at least so long as it might last. But she was a woman of strong will. She reasoned that all the emotions to which she was subject were in her own bosom; that the man before her neither knew nor cared as to the things which vexed her. So she went on.

She had in her hand the sailor's knife, with the blade open. She could not tell exactly in what mood her prisoner might be. Indeed, she approached him with a certain terror, accounted for partly by the situation and partly by the fact that in making this change in her garments she had, as it were, cut herself off from civilization and brought herself in some degree at least nearer his physical level. But she could not leave him there all night. Summoning her courage, therefore, and with a bold front before him, she advanced to the tree and untied the rope from the trunk and untied it from his neck as well. He stood silent, unresisting through it all, a rather pitiful figure she thought at first, until he was freed from the degrading halter.

BOUND BROOK DEFEATED BY LOCAL HIGH SCHOOL

The P. H. S. basketball team defeated the Bound Brook five at Bound Brook, yesterday afternoon, the final score being 46 to 18. Both teams played exceptionally clean basketball and few fouls were called. The Plainfield boys started the game by scoring and kept it up throughout the contest, and at the end of the first half the score was 28 to 14 in their favor.

In the last half the Bound Brook five did better work, but did not have time enough to win out. Morris, Doane and Overton did the best work for Plainfield, while Gillespie was the star player for Bound Brook. A feature of the game was a shot from one end of the floor to the basket at the other end, made by Morris with one hand. The line-up:

P. H. S.—Forwards, Morris, Manley; centre, Lidgate; guards, Doane, Overton, Woodhull.

JUNIORS DEFEAT FRESHMEN IN A FAST BASKETBALL GAME.

The juniors beat the freshmen in as fast game of basketball at the Plainfield High School, yesterday afternoon. The final score was 43 to 33. There was good playing on both sides. Smith and Thompson distinguished themselves for the juniors and Ricketts for the freshmen. The lineup:

Juniors — Forwards, Smith, Thompson; centre, Harris, guards, Carr, Wilson, Banks.

Time of halves, 20 minutes; referee, Bostwick.

BOWLING.

The Park Club bowling five will entertain the Jersey City club, leaders in the tournament, on the local alleys tomorrow night. The Parks are in second place and if they win three games tomorrow night they will take the lead.

GRACE CHURCH CHOIR TO SING A CANTATA.

On Friday evening at 8 o'clock, the choir of Grace Episcopal church will sing Maunder's "Olivet to Calvary." This cantata has been in preparation for the past two months and will afford an opportunity to lovers of good church music to hear one of Maunder's most comprehensive works.

The soloists will be William Tallamy, tenor; Birney B. Pettigrew, of the choir of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, baritone, while William Stobbe, of Philadelphia, will play the tympani. The cantata is given under the direction of S. Frederick Smith, organist and choirmaster of the church.

FORFEITS $5,000 IF HE IS DRUNK WITHIN YEAR.

Paterson, Feb. 17.—Should William Carlock, of 50 Wayne avenue, get drunk within the next year, his brother Ralph, who lives at 6 Lake street, will have to forfeit to this city the sum of $5,000.

William Carlock, a member of the firm of Carlock & Sons, plumbers, of 12 West street, was brought before Recorder James F. Carroll in police court yesterday morning on a charge of drunkenness, which complaint was preferred by Reserve Officer Irving Cook. The defendant told the court he was willing to quit drinking, and was asked by the recorder if he could get some one to sign an agreement whereby the city would receive $5,000 if he broke his pledge and got drunk.

Ralph Carlock said he would sign for his brother, and the agreement was signed by him. Sentence was then suspended on the defendant.

WILL TAKE CHARGE OF ITALIAN MISSION

At a congregational meeting of the First Presbyterian church, last night, called for the purpose, it was decided to take charge of the Italian Mission on East Third street, and in the future be responsible for that work. Heretofore, the Christian Endeavor Societies of the city have been conducting the work, which was started by them, but as it grew, the Endeavorers decided that it was too much for them to handle without more support.

During the past few months the mission work has been considered by the Plainfield Ministers' Association, as well as the different churches with a view to some one church taking it up and being responsible for it. At one time it was thought that one or all of the Methodist churches of the city would assume the responsibility.

It was finally brought to the attention of the First Presbyterian church, through the Rev. Lewis Bond, who has been personally interested in this work, and it was decided last night to take charge of the mission which is now in a prosperous condition.

Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring, pastor, presided at the meeting and after the action was taken appointed a ways and means committee comprising F. A. Duttenhofer, chairman: R. B. Hill, J. H. Manning, Fred Dickerson, Joseph C. Allen and William J Hamilton.

CIVIL WAR VETERAN JOINS THE GREAT ARMY

Weon Fisher, a veteran of the Civil War, ager 72 years, died at his home on Linden avenue last night of diabetic convulsions. Mr. Fisher had been enjoying fair health until Sunday when he was taken ill. He rallied after his first attack and was able to take breakfast with the family on Monday morning but he was seized later in the day.

Mr. Fisher was 72 years of age and was a native of Bucks county Pa. When a young man he removed to Copper Hill, Hunterdon county, where he followed agricultural pursuits for about sixty years. About seven years ago he retired and removed to the borough last June.

During the war of the rebellion Mr. Fisher served as a member of the hospital corps of the 31st New Jersey Volunteers. While in the army he became acquainted with the late Fred Wenzel, of this city, and the friendship was continued until the latter's death a few months ago. Mr. Fisher was a member of Lambert Boeman Post, G. A. R., of Flemington.

He is survived by a wife, two nieces, Miss Ida Hartpence and Mrs. Lemuel Pope, and a nephew, Forrester Hartpence, of this city. The funeral service will be held Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock and will be conducted by the Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson, pastor of the First Methodist church.

WOODHULL AND MARTIN IN DRY GOODS BUSINESS

Floyd T. Woodhull and Edson C. Martin, formerly conducting a dry goods business on East Front street, under the firm name of Woodhull & Martin, but who retired from this business a couple of years ago, have decided to re-engage in the dry goods business again and will open a store at 118 Broad street, Elizabeth. The firm has purchased from Frederick B. Bassett his business at the above address and extensive improvements are planned which will be completed during the summer months.

This sale is the first development in connection with the reconstruction and extension by the Kean estate of the building at 118 Broad street, which is to be transformed into a metropolitan office and store structure to take in the driveway adjoining the Bassett store on the north and the site of the present Sauer shoe store.

Woodhull & Martin will occupy the present Bassett store section while the new building is in course of construction and at its completion they will use the entire ground floor and both floors and the basement of the two-story rear extension which is to carry the building back to a depth of 150 feet. It is estimated that the firm will have 13,500 feet of floor space in its new store.

The new building will have a number of features new to store patrons in Elizabeth, among them being elevators, and the whole structure is designed to prove a striking addition to Elizabeth's uptown business district.

The firm of Woodhull & Martin conducted a dry goods business at Morristown, previous to locating in this city. When the firm came here it purchased the business formerly owned by Seely Edsall and which was then located in the Babcock building. It remained there until the fire which destroyed a large part of the building. Then the firm purchased a plot of ground on East Front street and erected a modern structure which is known as the Woodhull & Martin building.

The firm two years ago sold out to a stock company, which continued the business under the firm name of the Woodhull & Martin Company. Both Mr. Woodhull and Mr. Martin have been successful in their business ventures, having acquired considerable real estate in the city and vicinity; also erecting a building for apartments and store adjoining their business block on East Front street.

NURSE HAS SUITOR ARRESTED.

Attendant at Glen Gardner Sanatorium Charged with Threatening to Shoot Girl Unless She Wed.

Charged with threatening to shoot Miss Pauline Mezie, twenty-two years old, a nurse in the State Sanatorium at Glen Gardner, unless she consented to marry him, James Hallen, twenty-one years old, an attendant at the same institution, was arrested in the Central Railroad of New Jersey station in Jersey City yesterday

When Hallen was arraigned in the First Criminal Court Miss Mezie said he had been annoying her with proposals of marriage for some time and charged that he followed her to Jersey City and New York yesterday. She said that when she repulsed him in the railroad station he refused to leave her and threatened violence.

Hallen said he went to New York to buy a ring which he intended to present to Miss Mezie. He was held for further examination on charges of carrying a concealed weapon and disorderly conduct.

RUM PLENTIFUL IN ASBURY.

So a Wife Testifies and Says It Has Ruined Her Husband.

Mrs. Ida L. Haggerty, who keeps a boarding house at Asbury Park, created a sensation in the Court of Chancery at Trenton yesterday in the suit against her husband, Thomas H. Haggerty, for support. She said that the reason he did not support her was that he was drunk five out of seven days of the week.

"I thought there was no rum sold in Asbury Park," said the Vice-Chancellor.

"You are wrong, Chancellor," said the woman. "There is plenty of it sold there in the drug stores, and anybody can get too much for him at any time."

Mr. Haggerty has brought a cross bill, alleging desertion, which the wife denies, saying there is only one thing keeping them apart.—Asbury Park rum.

THINK SUNDAY BALL WILL BE LEGALIZED

Before going home for the week at Trenton last night Assemblyman Walter T. Edge, of Atlantic, Republican leader and chairman of the Judiciary Committee, announced that the Alwell Sunday baseball bill would be reported from committee on Monday night. Another bill which has been the cause of many hearings—the McCran measure prohibiting the diversion of subterranean water—will also be reported favorably on Monday night.

Mr. Edge feels confident that the Sunday baseball bill will pass the House, as it is one of the measures that are demanded by Atlantic, as well as Hudson. Mr. Alwell, the introducer of the bill, counts on the votes of the twelve Assemblymen from Hudson, the eleven from Essex, five from Passaic, two from Middlesex and one from Atlantic— just a majority in the House. The Sunday baseball bill passed the Assembly last year, but it failed in the Senate. It is not a mandatory measure, simply amending the crimes act so that the members of a common council in any municipality may pass an ordinance legalizing the playing of baseball on Sunday.

Many important hearings are on the calendar for the next fortnight among them that on utilities bills next Monday, open Sunday and local option bills the following Monday, and on the Tuesday after on the James cold storage bill. Prosecutor Garven, of Hudson, will be one of the speakers at the latter hearing, he being one of those who are anxious to have it pass. The following are the public hearings so far arranged:

Monday, February 21—Joint hearing on public utilities bills introduced in the Senate and House, at 2 p. m. At 3 p. m., Assembly Committee on Health on Assemblyman Sullivan's bills to authorize a new insane asylum for Hudson county; to provide for a State board to license optometrists; to permit the managers of county hospitals to have full control of their appropriations.

Monday, February 28—Senate Judiciary Committee hearing on open Sunday and local option bills, at 2 p. m. Assembly Committee on Labor and Industries hearing on the Alwell bill to prohibit employment of children under sixteen years at night.

Tuesday, March 1—Hearing on Morris Canal abandonment bill, at 2:30 p. m. James cold storage bill hearing at 3 p. m.

Johnson—Armbruster.

The wedding occurred at Trenton yesterday of Paul Garfield Johnson, of Firleigh Hall, New Providence and Miss Sadie Armbruster, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Armbruster, of Gillette. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. J. Morgan Read, president of Pennington Seminary. The members of the bridal party were the guests in Trenton of Dr. Willis Fletcher Johnson, president of the State Civil Service Commission, who is an uncle of the bridegroom.

CHAMPIONS SUNDAY LAW

Rev. Dr. F. W. Johnson Tells of Efforts for Sabbath Observance.

DECRIES THE OLWELL BILL.

Washington, N. J., Preacher Explains How Legislature's Committee Acted at Hearing.

"I was never more humiliated in my life than when attending the hearing on the Olwell bill at Trenton, last Monday, said Rev. Dr. F. W. Johnson, of Washington, at the Christian Endeavor mass meeting at the Temple Baptist church, last night. "With several other clergymen of the State, I appeared before four youthful members of the Legislative committee who had the hearing in charge, and throughout the discussion they sat with their feet up on a table, smoking cigarettes, far from being dignified."

Dr. Johnson held the close attention of more than one hundred Endeavorers of the local union as he told of the latest efforts on the part of certain people to desecrate the Sabbath. He said that no matter what action the legislators might take, the Sunday law is a divine law which cannot be repealed. He then quoted Blackstone to the effect that that which is contrary to divine law is not law.

The speaker then referred to the Olwell bill, which is designed to permit baseball on Sunday in this State, and of the hearing at Trenton on Monday when he and other clergymen appeared before the legislative committee. He said that advocates of the bill argued that it would mean the closing of the saloon on Sunday in this State, while in his opinion the real purpose would be to permit the baseball managements of New York and Pennsylvania to make a baseball ground of New Jersey.

Dr. Johnson spoke of the encroachment of the liquor interests on the Sabbath, especially in Hudson and Atlantic counties, and quoted the Scriptures to prove that man needs on day in seven for rest and that a State or nation that disregards the Sabbath with impugnity will not endure very long.

Dr. Johnson is superintendent of the department of Good Citizenship and Sabbath Observance of the New Jersey Christian Endeavor Union, and he with other Endeavorers, is leading a movement to prevent Sabbath desecration in New Jersey. He has addressed a circular letter to all Endeavorers in the State, calling upon them to use their influence to preserve the Sabbath. Dr. Johnson's remarks aroused the greatest enthusiasm among the Endeavorers and all pledged themselves to work harder than ever for the maintenance of a Christian Sabbath.

Clarence L. LaRue, as president of the local union, was in charge of the mass meeting, and the song service was in charge of William Holmes, followed with a prayer by Rev. J. W. Musson.

During the business session which followed, Theodore Martin, chairman of the audit committee, presented his report, which was accepted and the same course was taken with the report of the State convention committee, presented by Charles F. Windham, the secretary. This showed that the committee held twenty-two meetings, after its organization on October 19, 1908. It reported that 662 delegates attended the State gathering in this city.

The total receipts in connection with the convention amounted to $797.70 and the expenditures $722.62, leaving a balance of $75.08. It was voted to appropriate $25 to the United Society of Christian Endeavor, and give $5 to the work of the Lord's Day Alliance. The balance will be kept in the treasury for the present.

Then followed the roll call of the societies. The Temple Baptist church society again received the attendance banner, having thirty-six members, the largest number of any society, present. The Warren chapel society was second with only two per cent. difference in attendance. All of the societies in the union with the exception of New Market were represented. The meeting closed with the benediction by Rev. J. M. Musson.

New Soprano Soloist.

Miss DeCant, of Ossining, N. Y., one of several candidates for the position of soprano soloist at the First Presbyterian church, will succeed Miss Grant, the present soloist, on April 1. She sang at the local church two weeks ago and made a favorable impression.

PYTHIANS DEMAND ACTION

Call Upon Legislature to Remedy Existing Conditions of Commitments.

GRAND CHANCELLOR'S IDEA.

Declares Present Laws Do Not Sufficiently Protect Rights of Individuals—Committees Named.

The Grand Lodge Knights of Pythias in annual session yesterday, passed a resolution unanimously, calling upon the Legislature to take steps at once to remedy existing conditions relative to the commitment of persons to insane hospitals in New Jersey. It was declared that the present laws do not sufficiently protect the constitutional right of individuals in this regard.

John Ulrich, of this city, a past grand chancellor of the organization, brought the matter to the attention of the lodge. He declared that commitments to asylums are made largely on ex-parte opinions and without due process of law. He pointed out that members of the Knights of Pythias, bound together by ties of friendship, charity and benevolence, are subject to the loss of their constitutional rights in this way. He urged it to be the duty of the order for the protection of its members, as well as for the benefit of the entire State to urge the changing of such conditions.

The matter will be brought to the attention of the Legislature by a committee of Pythians to be appointed for the purpose.

The chief business of the concluding day's session was the installation of the newly-elected officers and addresses by prominent members of the order. The officers were installed by Acting Supreme Chancellor Frank Shanley, of Jersey City, assisted by John Ulrich; DeWitt C. Cobb, supreme grand prelate, of Bridgeton; W. E. Hitchcock, William B. Trenchard, of Bridgeton, and William Cowgill, of Paulsboro.

HE DEFENDS THE LORDS

Oliver H. G. Leigh, English Journalist, on British Upper House.

FAMOUS MEN ARE MEMBERS.

An Institution Much Misunderstood In This Country the Subject of His Discourse.

Oliver H. G. Leigh, journalist and reviewer, of international reputation, lectured before the pupils of the High Schol this morning having for his subject the House of Lords, a topic which has been much misunderstood. Mr. Leigh injected a quantity of humor into his talk and the lecture was received with plaudits for the speaker.

Mr. Leigh's main line of talk was to satisfy the hearers that the House of Lords exists as a house of second thoughts, the Commons being the initiative and always liable to be impetous and possibly unfair, so that the law of nature of taking second thought took the shape of an institution a parallel to our Senate and Supreme Court. It is the Supreme Court of Appeal of England and as such must qualify itself by including in its members those who represent every calling, professional and otherwise, which makes it a house of experts on every question liable to come up in the Supreme Court.

Coming to the personnel of the House, which numbers some six hundred men Mr. Leigh showed how it is continually renovated. He then gave sketches of many of the members whose fame is world wide and who have been called to the House of Lords, first as a reward for their services in literature, science, art, industries and invention, and in fact, almost every branch of knowledge. Second, because the House of Lords desires to honor itself by including men eminent in all departments of life.

Among the examples he mentioned Lord Kelvin, a poor young man, tutor in Glasgow University, whose discoveries and inventions in perfecting the mariners' compass, telegraphy, etc., take the lead of all other inventions in preventing shipwreck and in advancing human progress. The inventor of listerine was called to the House of Lords as was the inventor of antiseptic surgery. A man who is the son of a lord and who will be in the House of Lords some day, spent a fortune or two in inventing the steam turbine, which has revolutionized the motive power of steamships—C. A. Parsons (Earl of Ross).

Lord Montague, of Beaulieu, a close friend of King Edward VII, was the first man to champion the auto motor against its enemies. He edits "The Car," and is an all around expert. Lord Raleigh is one of the foremost mathematicians and physicists. He has recently discovered a new element in the air called argon. He also was a great dairy farmer and milk producer. Others equally prominent in this great house were named and their usefulness to humanity shown. All of which goes to prove that some conceptions of the ancient body are faulty, and those who heard the lecture were glad to have been enlightened.

MINISTER TO SPEAK AT Y. M. C. A. BOYS DINNER.

Rev. George A. Warner, rector of Holy Cross parish, will be the speaker at the dinner this evening which will be given by the members of the senior boys' class of the Young Men's Christian Association.

This is a new class in the association. It was organized at the beginning of the season and has held out so well that the fellows have decided to celebrate and to have a more thorough organization.

Following Dr. Warner's remarks officers will be elected. Mrs. Herbert E. Parker has been appointed chairman of the committee which will serve the dinner.

Celebrated Tenth Birthday.

Miss Edith Gray Mundy celebrated her tenth birthday yesterday by giving a party to some of her many young friends at her home on Orchard place. Twenty of the little folks enjoyed the hospitality of Miss Edith and from 3 to 5 o'clock in the afternoon they had a jolly time playing games. All joined in wishing the little Miss many happy returns of the day. Among those present were Bertha Laird, Elsie Zett, Harriet Williams, Virginia Buckley, Jeanetta Anderson, Norman Abbott, Alfred Zett, Craig Holter, William Laird, Alden Gray, Lewis Gray, Leonard Higgins, Leonard Mundy, Wesley Mundy and John Anderson.

POET'S DAUGHTER TO LECTURE FOR CHARITY

Miss May Morris, of London, daughter of William Morris, renowned as poet, artist and craftsman, will give an illustrated lecture on Monday, February 28, at the Hartridge School, on "Pageantry and the Masque." She was her father's only pupil in design and methods of work, which were unique. Miss Morris is a well known popular lecturer in England, and though frequently invited to lecture in the United States, has never consented until this season.

Everywhere she has been received with such success and enthusiasm that she decided to give an additional season. Plainfielders consider themselves fortunate in being able to secure this noted woman. The proceeds of the lecture will be given to the Anti-Tuberculosis League of Plainfield and North Plainfield. The time and place of holding the lecture will be announced soon. These are the patronnesses:

Mrs. E. R. Ackerman, Mrs. A. H. Atterbury, Mrs. E. T. Barrows, Mrs. C. E. Brooks, Mrs. E. H. Booth, Mrs. Josiah Browne, Mrs. G. A. Beaton, Mrs. Allan Cowperthwaite, Mrs. W. A. Conner, Mrs. J. M. MR. AND MRS. GILES BADE FAREWELL TO THE FARM

Mr. and Mrs. B. DeWitt Giles, of New Market, entertained about one hundred of their friends last night. The affair was a "farewell" to the farm, on which Mr. Giles was born and raised, and has lived all his life. Last fall Mr. Giles sold the land and will vacate the tract on February 28 and thereafter he will live a retired life in a new house recently erected at New Market. The farm was formerly owned by Randall Giles, Mr. Giles' father, and is considered one of the most valuable tracts in Piscataway township.

During the evening piano selections were rendered by the Misses Edith Giles and Iva Dayton; vocal selections by Mrs. Parker Marsh and Miss Loranthia Nelson, and readings by Mrs. Clark. One of the chief features of the gathering was the bounteous repast which the guests enjoyed during the festivities.

SMITH KISSED WIFE AND WAS SET FREE

Ross Smith, won his freedom in Justice Snape's court yesterday by kissing his wife before the magistrate, and promising to abide with his helpmeet in peace in the future. Ross was arrested for non-support, but the evidence presented showed that there was fault on both sides of the house.

"Now I want both to listen to me carefully," said Justice Snape as he adjusted his eyeglasses. "Married life is too short in all lives for disagreements. I can see no reason why the both of you shouldn't be happy in the future."

"Ross, you are willing to provide for your wife?" quetied the justice.

"Yes," replied Ross.

"Well, let me see you kiss and makeup."

There were three loud smacks and Judge Snape pronounced the benediction, "Go and live in peace."

TALKED ON PATRIOTISM

Congregational Church Men Spoke Entertainingly at a Supper.

FOR BLDG. FUND'S BENEFIT.

Joseph E. Morse, E. L. Suffern, James W. MacClymont and Alexander Millar Made Addresses.

Stormy weather failed to prevent a large attendance at the dinner served at the Congregational church last night under the auspices of the Women's Association. Some two hundred and fifty dinners were served to hungry people and some fine speeches afterwards served to aid digestion. The room was handseomely decorated with draped American flags, the music was of a patriotic nature as were the speeches, and the supper was aptly named.

Rev. Mr. Goodrich introduced the speakers and said that the spirit of loyalty and patriotism was shown by the splendid attendance at the supper and augured well for the future enlargement of the church for the benefit of which the supper was held. Joseph E. Morse, a veteran of the Civil War, was the first speaker, and told of some of the motives which actuated the youth of the land in the beginning of the struggle between the North and South. He told of the organization known as the "Wideawakes," who when mustered into the service were quickly removed from the "awkard squads" because of their superior ability in drills. A good many of the young men enlisted for the excitement, but back of this was the love of country which is true patriotism. But, he said, the women, the mothers were the true patriots of that time. They were the ones to keep brave hearts and murmurless lips when their sons left for the front. He also told how his brother, while still under sixteen years of age and lacking in height managed to pass the examinations by stuffing a big pair of boots with cotton to raise him up to five feet four.

E. L. Suffern told in an amusing way the experiences of the young men who enlisted in the navy, and James W. McClymont gave an exhortation to the young men as to their political duties. Alexander Millar spoke briefly on the "Patriotism of the Foreigner," and expressed regret that he was not eligible to membership in the noblest organization in the country—the G. A. R. He said that nine of the signers of the Declaration of Independence were foreigners, and laid claim to some of our most eminent warriors, scholars and jurists as Scotchmen, among whom he included John Paul Jones, Sam Houston, Stonewall Jackson and U. S. Grant. Mr. Millar's first impression of the flag was received at a small Vermont village and he has gone on loving it increasingly ever since. All the speakers were applauded to the echo.

A trio composed of M. C. VanArsdale, W. G. Smith and Harry Blimm rendered some patriotic selections. The committee having the supper in charge was composed of Mrs. J. V. Beekman, chairman; Mrs. F. A. Weeks, Mrs. C. R. Rice, Mrs. T. W. VanAlstyne, Mrs. Dr. Hubbard, Miss Jessie McIntosh, Mrs. T. E. Rhoads and Mrs. Thomas Hylan.

Pastor Goodrich after telling of the objects of the church enlargement fund which is to provide more room for the activities of the growing church, said that while no subscriptions had actually been taken tentative amounts had been mentioned as being possibilities equalling slightly over eight thousand dollars for the new work. No definite plans for the improvement have been presented to the membership, but it is within the bound of possibilities that the work may be concluded this summer.

Scrapped for His Pay.

Frank Pazotti, a fruit dealer in the new city market, did not like the dilatory tactics of his "hired man," John Goff, of Netherwood, this morning and urged him to get a move on. John resented the jacking up and quit the job on the spot demanding his wages forthwith. Not receiving the money as quickly as he wanted it Goff, it is said, tried the effect on a broom handle on his boss. After a scrimmage in which neither man was hurt, Goff received his pay and went hunting for another job.

Fined for Passing Posters.

Henry Gildersleeve and Goodwin Lawrence, two boys, were arrested by Chief Weiss this morning for passing advertising posters in the borough. As this is a violation of a borough ordinance Recorder Dolliver fined each boy one dollar. The boys were distributing advertising matter for the Plainfield Outfitting Company.

SLEPT FORTY-EIGHT HRS.

Suffering with the Grip, Macintyre Takes a Long, Long Nap.

INTERESTS THE MEDICAL MEN.

Young Man Afflicted With Sleeping Sickness Is All Right After His Strange Experience.

Russell Macintyre, son of Mr. and Mrs. Philip B. Macintyre, of West Seventh street, who has been ill with the grip for the past week or so, developed a peculiar condition this week which has aroused considerable interest among the medical men. He was afflicted with what might be called a sleeping sickness, and in the opinion of the physicians it is only one of the many strange features of the troublesome disease.

Mr. Macintyre was confined to his bed by the illness and on Wednesday noon he fell into a sleep from which he did not awake until this morning. Yesterday afternoon he got out of bed and walked about his room, apparently sound asleep, but was under the watchful eye of his mother constantly. Although recovering from the grip, Mr. Macintyre is still in a weakened condition. He was able to go to work today. He is unable to account for his long sleep, and while he was in that condition for the best part of two days, he says that it seemed to him that he had only been asleep one night.

The young man was attended by Dr. P. B. Cregar while detained at home and can give no other explanation for the long sleep except that it is just another strange feature of the disease with which young Macintyre was afflicted.

SUFFERED A STROKE AND DIED IN AN HOUR

Mrs. James F. Brown, who for the past eight years has been a resident of this city, died suddenly at 11 o'clock last night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac R. Giles, 32 Fairview avenue, where she lived with her only niece, Mrs. Thomas Cuming. She was in her usual good health yesterday and during the early part of last evening. Just as she was about to retire at 10 o'clock she was stricken with apoplexy and died within an hour.

Mrs. Brown, whose maiden name was Miss Amelia A. Runyon, was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dunham Runyon, of Stelton, near which place she was born sixty-seven years ago. She was married to Rev. Dr. James F. Brown, who for many years was a prominent Baptist clergyman. He held several important pastorates in this State, and was pastor of the Stelton Baptist church, succeeding Dr. Searles. His first charge after his marriage was at Tunkannock, Pa. He was also pastor of the Baptist church at Mullica Hill, this State.

Mrs. Brown was a faithful and devoted member of the First Baptist church and personally interested in all its activities. She was a regular attendant at the church services and the meetings of the home and foreign missionary societies. Of her means she was a liberal contributor.

She was a woman of culture, education and a delightful conversationalist, and had a host of friends who admired her for her many excellent qualities.

The funeral service will be held from the residence, 32 Fairview avenue, Monday afternoon at 1 o'clock and the burial will be in the Baptist cemetery at Stelton about 3:30 o'clock.

KEEN CONTESTS IN Y. M. C. A. BOYS' EVENTS.

The contests in the Boys' Senior events at the Y. M. C. A. afforded some rare sport. William Coyle was the winner of the eight pound shot putting event and Franklin Newell and C. Ostrom tied for first place in the 220 yard potato race. The summaries:

Shot put, 8 pounds—Won by William Coyle, 37 feet, 3 inches; Franklin Newell, second; William Peacock, third.

220 yard potato race—Franklin Newell and C. Ostrom tied for first place, 53 seconds; F. O. Dunning second.

More Signatures Wanted.

More signatures are needed on the borough sewerage petitions and property owners, who have not signed can do so tonight at the office of Tax Collector Brown and the Park Club. A petition will also be ready at the Borough Council chambers. The Council will hold its monthly meeting tonight.

BUSTER BROWN PRANKS

Chubby Charter Birch Has a Lot of Fun with Local Merchants.

HE OWNS UP IN COURT.

Even the Judge Has to Laugh When John Hummell's Experience Is Told—His Father Will Use the "Birch."

On last Sunday Charter W. Birch, a thirteen year old boy, of Fairview avenue, had a lot of fun reading a comic sheet of a New York newspaper which told a story in pictures of the time when Buster Brown's parents installed a telephone in their home.

While at home alone yesterday afternoon Charter decided that he would emulate the example of Buster Brown. He selected John Hummell, who conducts a milk store, corner Linden avenue and Duer street as his victim. For fifteen minutes he burned the telephone wires giving orders for merchandise and articles from local merchants to be delivered to Mr. Hummell.

According to young Birch's story to Mayor N. B. Smalley, who acted as chief magistrate in the borough court this morning it took him just fifteen minutes in handing out the orders but it put Mr. Hummell in a peck of trouble for about three hours in refusing to accept the goods. This is the list of merchants who were fooled and inconvenienced by Birch and the list of goods delivered to Mr. Hummell.

Woodhull & Martin Company, large quantity of dry goods and stockings; R. W. Barnes, a quantity of nuts and oranges; Wadleigh & Goodenough Co., a wagon load of coal and wood; Roth & Co., a twelve pound turkey and fixin's ready for the oven; J. A. Smith & Brother, a quantity of groceries; Debele & Stahl, ten quarts of ice cream.

A representative of the Public Service Corporation also called on Mr. Hummell to take out the gas meter, and Wilson Fredericks, agent of the U. S. Express Company, sent a wagon to get a load of boxes for shipment.

After each consignment was received Mr. Hummell would ring up police headquarters. Chief Weiss got on the alert and this morning he traced the act of mischief to young Birch.

In court the boy admitted his guilt to his counsel, Judge William A. Coddington, and Chief Weiss and to Mayor Smalley, who acted as recorder in the absence of Mr. Dolliver. The Mayor reprimanded the boy and allowed him to go unpunished, but warned him that for any additional misconduct on his part he would be obliged to stand punished.

"Your name is Birch," said the Mayor.

"Yes," answered the youth.

"Well I think you should be birched by a good birch whip and if your father would let me I would take you back in the cells and do the trick.

FUNERAL SERVICES OF MRS. GEORGE WELLBROCK.

The funeral services of Mrs. George Wellbrock were held at her late home, 936 West Fourth street, at 2:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon, and were largely attended especially by young people, with whom Mrs. Wellbrock was popular. Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, pastor of the First Baptist church, officiated, and he paid deserving tribute to the admirable character of the young woman.

There was a large and beautiful display of floral tributes from relatives and friends. The burial was in Hillside Cemetery and the pallbearers were George Wilson, William Firstbrook, Robert and William Skinner, William VanSickle and Elias Harris, the last named of Cranford.

William Rose.

William Rose, a resident of the borough for many years, died at the home of his son, Peter Rose, 57 Belmont avenue, yesterday afternoon. Mr. Rose was seventy-five years of age and is survived by seven children. The funeral service will be held from his late home Sunday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock.

Miss Martin's Birthday.

A birthday party in honor of her seventeenth year was given to Miss Maude A. Martin at the home of her parents, 710 South avenue, last night. The hours were pleasantly spent in games and vocal and instrumental music. Miss Martin received many presents.

The Men's Club of Hope chapel will meet tonight at the home of the pastor, Rev. L. R. Howard, 446 West Fifth street.

The women of the First M. E. church are planning to begin the renovation and improvement of Vincent chapel, early this summer. A new carpet will be laid and the chapel otherwise improved.

Miss Kendall will lead the devotional exercises at the weekly meeting of the Plainfield Graded Union of Sunday-school Teachers at the Y. W. C. A., Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock. Mrs. George Ballentyne will tell a story for the beginners, Mrs. J. M. Tier will teach the lesson for the primary department and Mrs. Edward Baker will teach the lesson for the juniors.

Was Noted Draughtsman.

The funeral services of Daniel Van Wagenen, who died in Bloomfield on Monday, were held in that city last evening and were attended by several residents from here including James E. Martine, a cousin of the deceased. Mr. Van Wagenen was the draughtsman and superintendent of construction for Captain John Eraceson, the builder of the "cheese-box" monitor, which defeated the Merrimac, of the Confederate navy.

Saturday the Last Day of the White Sale

We just MUST keep telling you of the good values of this White Sale. Every day something else out of the ordinary crops out. A visit to the store every day is well worth your while.

White Sales are always interesting events at this store—interest is intensified in this year's event by the agitation of high priced cotton.

The splendid stocks on exhibition and sale marks the culmination of months of careful planning and buying when cotton goods were considerable lower than they are today.

Some of the unusually good values which are to be brought forward for this week's selling are listed here—but—we say again it would be impossible to list ALL our good values in this limited space. Come to the store today—you'll find out as hundreds of others have—"It Pays To Buy At Tepper's."

OF MASTER PIANO BUILDERS.

Mathushek & Son Pianos are not turned out in lots of a dozen or more.

Each Mathushek & Son Piano is a separate, distinct and individual creation.

On it has been concentrated the skill and experience gathered in more than a half century of piano-building. The time taken, the skill engaged, the quality of materials employed in the production of a Mathushek & Son, make each instrument an artistic masterpiece—a piano that will be cherished and appreciated for a lifetime. It is the only really artistic piano selling at a moderate price.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

GOLF.

According to W. D. Vanderpool, secretary of the Metropolitan Golf Association, that body will soon hold an executive committee meeting to decide on plans for the coming season. In the opinion of many, too much time has already been lost, and the new handicap committee will have to work hard to get its list compiled as early as last year. Furthermore, the clubs that have applied for the amateur championship tournament of the association have been kept in unnecessary suspense. Morris County, Midland, Montclair and Fox Hills would all like to know one way or another whether they are going to get the attraction. It is safe to say that the organization obtaining the tournament will work especially hard on that account during March, April and May in an endeavor to get its course in the best possible condition, and for that reason an early decision by the committee is desired.

The same uncertainty exists with regard to the naming of links for the championship tournament of the New Jersey State Golf Association. The Country Club of Atlantic City made the only bona fide offer at the annual meeting in New York, but whether Atlantic City is the choice or not the club by the sea intends to go along improving its course. Apropos of this is part of a conversation overheard between two golfers:

"Have you ever played golf at Atlantic City?" asked a devotee of the game of a friend the other day.

"Oh, yes; I had several rounds there about five years ago," was the reply.

"Then you haven't really played golf at Atlantic City. You only thought you had," continued the first speaker.

This rather startling statement soon drew forth explanations relative to the changes, frequent and varied, that have worked such wonders within a twelvemonth on this South Jersey course. In the old days a common expression among visitors was that the most troublesome hazard on the Atlantic City links was the wind, but that saying is as out of place now as the solid gutty ball.

There is, of course, an advantage in being able to start right, but unfortunately Atlantic City, like many of the other courses in this country laid out a decade or more ago, has had to pass through the process of evolution, which practically began with the introduction of the rubber cored ball. These clubs, after starting in the wrong way, have been sufficiently wide awake to see what was needed, and in some instances really wonderful transformations have resulted.

The golf course at Atlantic City is probably one of the best in this part of the country, and the constant aim of the authorities is to improve it and make it ideal.

Furthermore, since the construction of courses, both inland and seaside, has become a business and a science, the treatment of the soil and the selection of seed has been studied to such an extent that what formerly took years to accomplish can now be done in a few months. Latterly the authorities at Atlantic City have devoted their energies toward making the course a better test of the game. This work has consisted in the digging o new traps, and either the removal or partial removal of certain old cross bunkers, relics of bygone times. Further treatment of the soil will come later.

When once determined to reconstruct their course the officials of the Country Club of Atlantic City went about it in the right way, and, incidentally, determined to make haste slowly. Herbert Barker, professional of the Garden City Golf Club, was sent for and the former Yorkshire amateur spent three days on the Northfield links. All of the suggested changes have not as yet been carried out, but fully three-quarters of the work has been completed.

There are few courses on this side of the Atlantic so generally visited as this one. Among the millions of pleasure seekers at this famous resort are, of course, many golfers, and as a general thing they find it impossible to refrain from visiting the links. Scarcely a week goes by without seeing persons of prominence from distant parts playing round.

Karl Keffer, the professional golf champion of Canada, has been engaged by the Jekyl Island Club, which has recently laid out a new course on its beautiful grounds at Jekyl Island, Georgia. It is understood that Keffer was recommended to the club by Walter J. Travis.

THE DAILY PRESS.

Plainfield, N. J., February 18, 1910.

VETERAN CONSTABLE IS 67 YEARS OLD

Robert L. Pierce, New Market's veteran constable, observed his sixty-seventh birthday yesterday by entertaining a few relatives at supper. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Nelson B. Giles, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert L. Pierce, H. C. Pierce and family, of New Bunswick, and Mrs. C. C. Pierce, of Brooklyn. During the day and evening Mr. Pierce was the recipient of numerous congratulations.

Mr. Pierce is one of the best known constables in New Jersey having served in the Middlesex county court since 1869. Mr. Pierce is of New York State stock, being a native of Claverack, Columbia county. His father, Abraham Pierce, was born at the corner of Cortland street and Broadway and lived to be 79 years of age.

In addition to having a remarkable court record Constable Pierce also enjoys a glorious record made in the Civil War, in which his services was marked by extreme bravery. When the Rebellion broke out he enlisted in the 56th New York Volunters and was color bearer for General Sedgwick.

Constable Pierce while fighting for the Union smelled the smoke and heard the bullets whistle in twenty-two battles. During three and a half years of service he was twice shot while carrying the colors. That he was in the thick of the hardest fights is gleaned from the records of his regiment, as there were only sixty-five survivors at the end of the war out of 1,200 who enlisted.

After the war Mr. Pierce removed to New Market and in 1869 he married Miss Mary Dunn, who is still living. At the time of his marriage the latter's father, David C. Dunn, was a member of the New Jersey Legislature.

ATHLETE FRACTURES HIS COLLARBONE IN DIVE

Chauncey Murphey, one of the star athletes of the Y. M. C. A. squad, fractured his collarbone while he smashed a record in the running long diving contest at the Y. M. C. A. last night. Murphey stead of hitting the mat came in contact with the floor with heavy force and many of the onlookers declare that the athlete had a miraculous escape from breaking his neck.

Immediately after the accident Murphey was taken to the office of Dr. Albert Pittis on East Front street and later to his home. Dr. Pittis diagonized the injury not to be serious but Murphey will be unable to resume competition in athletics for some months.

In making the dive Murphey posted a mark of 14 feet 4 inches, wiping out the record of 12 feet 3½ inches made by Carl Steiner last year. In last night's contest Fritts was second, followed by Vail, Bergman and Sampson.

Murphey tops the list in the championships with a total of 712 points and John Fritts is second with 591 points. Murphey was looked upon as the probable winner of the title but it is likely that the accident will present an opportunity for Fritts to jump in the lead.

A PAST CHANCELLOR'S JEWEL FOR ROTHBERG

Unity Lodge, No. 102, Knights of Pythias, at its meeting last night, received one candidate, and received the reports of the Grand Lodge representatives, James D. Anderson and J. H. VanWinkle, who told of the doings at the annual session held at Trenton, Wednesday and Thursday.

In the good and welfare, Past Chancellor Horace J. Martin, Sr., presented Chancellor Commander Samuel Rothberg with a handsome past chancellors' jewel, in accordance with a custom of the lodge for twenty-seven years. Mr. Martin said some complimentary things about Mr. Rothberg, and the latter expressed his appreciation for the suitable gift. The entertainment committee was empowered to make arrangements for celebrating the twenty-seventh anniversary of Unity Lodge, which occurs on March 17.

PRIEST PAYS TRIBUTE TO PETER FLYNN SR.

Father Bogan, as celebrant of the solemn requiem mass at the funeral service of Peter Flynn, Sr., in St. Mary's church, paid an eloquent tribute to the dead man. Mr. Flynn, Father Bogan declared, was a typical Christian. He referred to the fact that when the deceased came to Plainfield sixty years ago there was no Catholic church here. Mr. Flynn, he said, displayed his devoutness to the faith and to the church by regularly attending services on Sundays at Stoney Hill, Elizabeth and New Brunswick, which were the nearest places to Plainfield that Catholic churches were established at that time. Assisting Father Bogan in the mass were Fathers Sciolla and Hogan.

There were many beautiful floral tributes on the bier and a large number of friends in attendance at the service. Interment was made at St. Mary's cemetery, the bearers being Edward Lynch, Clarence Waldron, Patrick McDonough, Michael Callahan, Joseph McCue and Michael O'Keefe.

Injured by Ball on Walk.

A. C. LaBoyteaux, of Fairview avenue, while on the way to the patriotic dinner at the Congregational church last night, slipped and fell on the icy sidewalk on Park avenue and sustained a serious shaking up with bruises on his arm and hip. This morning Mrs. LaBoyteaux said her husband was much improved although still suffering from the shock.

Dr. H. H. Lowrie, of Park avenue, is entertaining his daughter, Mrs. Julian S. Dean and her children, Lowrie J. and Katherine, of Wilmette, suburb of Chicago. They will remain here for several weeks.

FIRE WHISTLE TO BE ON SPICER FACTORY

The new fire whistle will be erected on the plant of the Spicer Universal Joint Company's factory on West Third street and Madison avenue. Chief Doane announced today that it will take several weeks to make the transfer of the gong from the electric light station to its new place.

Some time ago the P. S. C. notified the fire committee that the whistle must be removed from the electric light station by March 1 and since that time the committeemen have been engaged in trying to secure a desirable location.

Application was made to the Consistory of Trinity Reformed church for the use of its bell until arrangements could be made, but since securing the Spicer Company's factory the Trinity church plans have been abandoned. The Spicer plant, it is understood, will be the permanent location of the alarm.

NO FIRE APPARATUS IN EAST END HOUSE.

There has been no fire apparatus at house No. 4, on South avenue, near Belvidere ave., since yesterday morning. This condition is due to the fact that the combination chemical and hose wagon stationed there is being overhauled by the manufacturers at a local garage. New brakes are being placed on the wagon, which has not yet been accepted by the city.

Fire Chief Doane said this afternoon that if the repairs were not made by nightfall, he would put another combination at house No. 4 temporarily.

—Leggett's Demulcent Cream of Witch Hazel, a most excellent toilet preparation, is now on sale by all of the Plainfield druggists.

BOARD OF TRADE CLASS HAS BIG ATTENDANCE

The Board of Trade class held its first meeting last night at the Plainfield Business College, and despite the stormy night, the attendance exceeded expectations. William Jeffery, president of the board and organizer of the class, outlined the plans of the class.

"Future meetings will be open not only to the members of the Board of Trade, but to their friends," said Mr. Jeffery. "Mothers of young men will indeed be proud to have their sons belong to such an organization," in fact, he hoped that the ladies themselves would attend as often as possible. "Nothing elevates the tone of a public meeting so much as the presence of women," he said, "and nothing would elevate municipal government so much as the women voting, and the preponderance of moral courage is now with the women."

The proposed special election in the matter of the water interest in the city, was discussed freely and voting on the proposition at the general election was favored for several reasons. It would save unnecessary expense, a larger vote could be secured and there would be ample time to conduct a campaign of education.

Annual Inspection Co. K.

The annual inspection of Co. K will take place Monday night at the armory on West Front street, under the direction of Captain Allen, U. S. A. The members will wear olive drab uniforms, tan shoes, blanket roll, haversack and tin cup.

Last Assessment Due.

Tax Collector William R. Townsend will on Monday advertise the list of delinquents relative the last sewer assessment, the date for the sale having been fixed for March 27.

PATRONS TO PETITION JERSEY CENTRAL ROAD

Patrons of the road residing in the Netherwood section tomorrow will circulate among the people in the East End a petition asking the Jersey Central roadroad to keep its station there open and lighted at nights and also to place lights along the walks on the company's property leading from the station building to the street.

Since attention was called to the condition in this paper nearly two months ago, the company has given orders to the station agent there to leave the door of the building unlocked, but nothing has been done about lights in the station or along the walks. The policeman on the beat has been given a key to the station by the railroad company, with a request that he lock up the place at midnight.

The object of the petition is to urge the company to keep the station building not only open but lighted and to provide light along its walks leading thereto.

THE FORUM.

Editor, The Daily Press:

Referring to the printing of the letter of Mayor Newton B. Smalley in your issue of this afternoon in which the acts of the Patrolmen's Benevolent Association are not entirely approved by him, I beg to say that we do not think that Mayor Smalley at the time of writing his letter was fully aware of the facts in the case.

It has always been the custom of a few contribute to the support of the hospital every year and it was the purpose of our organization to make it possible for every family in the city and borough to contribute their mites to help the hospital. Now, with this object in view the scheme was evolved, and it has been approved of by the Board of Education, of this city and the borough school authorities as well as the principals of all the private institutions of learning.

We submit that the introduction of an envelope into the homes of every family represented in the schools is a surer method of reaching those who have had no opportunity heretofore to lend their aid in the worthy object. Aside from this we think that no time will be lost by pupils of the schools nor will their attention be drawn away from their lessons. The awarding of a cup will only stimulate the actual self denial of the pupils.

Trusting you will give this letter space in your paper.

CHARLES A. FLYNN.
Chairman of Committee.

Mrs. Lawrence Benner, of Jefferson avenue, is confined to her home with the grip.

Plan Martha Washington Supper.

The Ladies' Aid Society of Hope chapel has completed all arrangements for the Martha Washington supper to be served on Washington's Birthday night. The W. N. Runyon Bible Class Association is assisting. An entertainment to include vocal and instrumental selections and a comedy sketch to be given by Clyde Doane and Jack Rifferts will be features.

An Ink Famine.

The pupils of the New Market schools are in a sad plight because of a famine in ink. The recent cold snap froze the entire supply of the writing fluid in stock at the school and now the pupils have been using lead and slate pencils.

HOME BURNED, LIVES IN CHICKEN HOUSE.

Mrs. Evelyn Wentworth Murray, who formerly lived in a palatial residence on the Raritan River, near Somerville, now resides in a building originally constructed for a chicken house near the site of her once handsome home. Mrs. Murray's change of residence has not been brought about by any marked depreciation in her wealth, which is reported to be considerable, but by an unfortunate series of fires during the past four years, which have totally destroyed four fine houses and left her nothing but a chicken house to live in on her estate. The place was formerly the homestead farm of the late Frederick Frelinghuysen, Secretary of State under President Arthur's administratin.

Mrs. Murray was burned out for the third time Monday night, when a fire of unknown origin destroyed her bungalow and one remaining vacant house. Mrs. Murray could get in her big touring car and ride to Somerville and find comfortable quarters at a hotel, or she could find shelter in the home of her neighbor, James S. Duke, whose magnificent summer home is now occupied only by servants, but she prefers to lodge in a small building which she formerly erected as a chicken house. She is determined not to desert the place, which she says she loves, as long as there is a building left on it.

Mrs. Murray is a prominent member of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, and has frequently figured in the courts of New York as complainant against brutal teamsters. Mrs. Murray has a number of animals left on her place which have escaped the fires. These animals she will not intrust to servants in instances of distress like the present. She has declared her intention of remaining on the farm with her pets until the normal condition of the place is restored.

WIFE DIDN'T LIKE NAME OF PERKINS.

Jersey City, Feb. 18.—Her dislike for the name Perkins appears to have been the principal reason for Mrs. Edith B. Perkins' unwillingness to live with her husband, George F. Perkins, of 78 Boyd avenue, this city. Chancellor Pitney has granted a divorce to Mr. Perkins on the ground of desertion.

Mr. Perkins testified that his wife said she didn't like the name Perkins because it was not pretty, and that when he met her by appointment in Beason avenue to take up a reconcilliation she struck him with a whip.

GIRL OF 18 PLAINTIFF IN BREACH OF PROMISE CASE.

In the Union County Circuit Court at Elizabeth yesterday morning before Judge Vail and a jury, a breach of promise suit for $10,000 damages was tried. The plaintiff was Margaret Unger, eighteen years old, and the defendant was Anton Weber, both residents of Elizabeth.

The plaintiff, in her declaration, said that after promising to marry her on June 27, 1908, Weber failed to do so, and three months go married another girl.

She was awarded a verdict of $500 by the jury late yesterday afternoon.

PERSON TAX CONDEMNED.

New York, Feb. 18.—"In spite of the futility and weakness of the personal property tax in this city its cruelty is sometimes heartbreaking. I have seen $320 taken from an income of $1,000, the sole support of a widow and orphan. Such things ought not to be permitted for a day in a so-called civilized city."

Lawson Purdy, president of the Tax Board, thus referred to the personal property tax law of this State, in speaking last night at the annual dinner of the Real Estate Board of Brokers of this city. Mr. Purdy and William J. Gaynor, the Mayor, have recently joined hands in advocating a public discussion of the subject with a view to drafting legislation to abolish the personal property tax law.

VETOES POLICE ITEM.

New Brunswick, Feb. 18.—Mayor John J. Morrison has approved of the city budget, with the exception of the item to provide for ten new policemen. He thinks an increase of five sufficient for one year.

He has notified Common Council that inspectors on improvements should be named and paid by the city engineer, whose commissions should be increased to cover this expense.

John F. Coleman, John S. Manley and Samuel Boice have applied for positions on the police force, but no appointments have been made.

Burglars Busy Near Rahway.

Rahway, Feb. 18.—Several burglaries were committed in the vicinity of Bloodgoods, in Clark Township, Wednesday night. Among the owners of residences entered are the following: George Holland, where a gold watch chain and suit of clothes were taken; Dill Shartz, a gold ring; Fritz Grube, a pair of shoes, $1.40 and silver comb and brush; Charles Thompson, Parker Humston and Mrs. Hattie Schwindinger. Entrance in most all cases was through the windows. No one heard the intruders at work.

THE DIRECTOIRE BAG.

The reticules, smart leather bags, immense purses, have made way for the Directoire bag. This is now used as it was in the days of its pristine golry for all social occasions after the noon hour.

They are most convenient. More so than the bag of leather, because they have not its stiffness, its unwieldly bulk. It is more ornamental than those of hide, and it harmonizes with the costume in an artistic way.

It has taken the place of the chain bag of silver and gold, though, of course, women who own these hundred dollar luxuries will not give them up, though they will add the Directorie bag to their costume in the evening when a metal bag is out of place.

One fashionable form is made of beaded silk with the metal clasps at top and deep fringe at the bottom. This has a silken cord to go over the arm. Simpler ones are made of old brocade with silk fringe and a gathered top with silk cord.

Black velvet ones for afternoon are heavily embroidered in jet and edged with jet fringe; others are of allover jet lined with cloth-of-gold or silver.

There are alluring ones for debutantes made of gold galloon and cloth of gold profusely trimmed with satin roses in Watteau tints. This has a gathered beading and a double silken cord. Others of cloth-of-silver with a huge brilliant rose with outspread leaves as its ornament.

Extra smart ones are made of etoffe acienne, which has been revived from medioeval times. This is a heavy brocade with gold and silver thrreads woven through it. It is heavily trimmed with rusty gold medallions or the bees of Napoleon or the empire wreath, with one's initial in the middle.

These Directoire bags can be made at home. If one wishes them mounted to a rim of metal at the top, it is quite easy and not too expensive to have it done. This is more in keeping with the Directoire style, but the method of the Moyen-Age still prevails; this has the gathered top confined with the silken cords which end in tassels of silk or bullion.

Fringe is on oll of them. It may be the heavy godl kind that one expectsto find in Italian palaces, or the soft silken kind that is always with us. Colored crysals, pearls and rhinestones are strung on silk thread and used in profusion.

The usefulness of these bags comes in the fact that they may be carried when leather bags or metal ones would not be appropriate. One takes them to the play, to the restaurant dinner or supper, to the opera and out to dinner and card parties.

The darker ones of ancient brocade, cloth-of-silver, jet and velvet, are carried to the matinee, to a luncheon. At none of these places is a leather handbag, approprite, and greatn umbers of women cannot afford the gold and silver ones, therefore these lesser-priced, but most ornamental ones, fill the need.

In Former Times.

King Solomon, he handed down
Some very fine decrees.
But he held sway before the day
Of technicalities.

They hadn't got hair-splitting then
So absolutely pat.
One might condense some common sense
And let it go at that.
—Washington Herald.

SEPARATE WAIST OFFENSE.

The habit of the separate waist nevre raelly becomes an offense except when we cut ourselves directly in half by wearing a blouse and a skirt of divers colors.

Now, this beloved little garment may be odd in one sense of the word, but not so odd as to stand forth a thing apart from the skirt and having no bearing whatever on the costume. It may so readily be brought into harmony by the merest wearing of the skirt-colored tie and belt that there would seem little excuse for neglect of this detail of style. This is absolutely necessary even for the persistent wearer of the old blouse.

Not because fashion demands these little touches, but because they are the reasonable means by which we improve our appearance, are they suggested so persistently to women, whose right and privilege and duty it is to look their truly best. We do not love unlovely women, and the first touch of carelessness leads too readily down a very easy road to homeliness and loneliness.

To the little blouse again, and this time as a part of the whole. Edge the jabot with colored scallops if you like to embroider, or else sew a row of colored bias percale down the edge of each broad tuck of the linen shirtwaist. Or, again, cover a trio of white ivory button molds the size of a nickel with striped linen to tone in with the skirt color, and look up a tie to match the buttons.

If you once grasp the idea—and I'm sure you have it now—there are some dozen or more ways of avoiding the separate blouse offense besides the easiest, the wearing of a colored crepe tie.

DAINTY SANDWICHES.

Fetching little sandwiches for a card party refreshment or supper can be made in the following way: Cut slices from a mill loaf, trim them and (using a sharp knife) cut them into the shape of cards. Butter each slice thinly on one side and spread half the number of slices thinly with any tinned fish paste, say anchovy. The paste should have been previously mixed with whipped cream.

Have on hand some heart and diamond shapes stamped from pickled cherries and truffles with small tin cutters. Now put the slices together to form the sandwiches, one having the paste, of course, with the one that has the butter alone. Decorate them to represent spot cards by pressing on the little shapes with cool apple jelly to make the garnish adhere.

The diamonds and hearts should be cut from the pickled cherries and the black suits from the truffles. Do not pile the sandwiches up, as this might destroy the decoration, but spread out on a large bread plate and replenish the latter from time to time.

The Changing Styles.

"Then you don't recognize me?"
"Madam, your face is familiar."
"Well, I can't blame you. I must admit my hair and my figure have undergone some alterations since we met at the seashore a year ago."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Still Superlative.

"Marriage hasn't altered her love a bit."
"Hasn't, eh?"
"No. She used to say he danced divinely. Now she uses that term to describe the way he splits the wood."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

STUDIO MEN BELIEVED TO HAVE BEEN INDICTED.

The Union County Grand Jury, in session until 5:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, finished its investigation of the case of Lawrence Taylor and Harry Druchl, young men of Elizabeth, who are accused of conducting an art studio in that city for immoral purposes. It is declared on excellent authority that true bills were found by the grand inquest against both men, who are now prisoners in the county jail. As a corroboration of this the grand jury ordered that Elizabeth Cullen, aged nineteen, single, and Lillian Grey, aged eighteen, married, be committed to the county jail as witnesses for the State when the case comes to trial.

Both young women testified during the afternoon before the grand jury and were then taken to Elizabeth police headquarters and detained there until the grand jury finished its work when prosecutor Swift at 7:30 o'clock Wednesday night had them lodged in jail. They belong in Elizabethport. Mrs. Grey does not live with her husband. The grand jury adjourned until next Monday morning, when it will report its findings to Judge Atwater, who waited in the courtroom until 5 o'clock expecting a report would be made to him yesterday.

HEAVY RIBBON WORK.

Besides the popular rococo work, or ribbon embroidery, which we are positively absorbing from the French and making very much our own, there is a heavier embossed work. This, too, is ribbon embroidery, but more raised from its background.

When rich cloth-of-gold, brocaded, has been used for the most elaborate of opera bags, artists have worked out upon its surface in high relief the original design woven upon the fabric.

They have, for instance, built upon the leaf already there a richer leaf of gold-colored ribbon, and over the gold rose of the design, brocaded into its surface, they have embroidered petals of ribbons to complete a blossom or bud raised in relief a half inch from its background. This was done in two shades of purple and with a corded ribbon which was at least an inch wide. It was puckered into the likeness of petals.

Study of such work in modern fancy pieces or in old museums may assist those who make a business of it today. The ribbon petals are manipulated as were the colored crepe flowers of other days.

The Farmer.

He used to wear his pantaloons
Inside his muddy boots;
He used to sing outlandish tunes
And dress in misfit suits;
He used to rise at half-past four
And milk the hoe and plow;
He doesn't do so any more,
He's counting money now.

The callouses upon his hands
Were softened long ago;
For employees prepare his lands
For nature's fertile show.
There is no sorrow in his eye,
Nor anger on his brow.
Things are not as in days gone by,
He's counting money now.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

Miss Ruth St. Denis, who will make her first appearance in Plainfield next Tuesday afternoon and evening, is the first dancer to sustain alone the entire program in a first class theatre in this country and her immense success in New York, Chicago, Boston and Philadelphia at this time is significant of the widening interest in Oriental subjects. Quite unlike any other entertainment offered to Americans in recent years is Miss St. Denis' remarkable series of East India dances.

Lucy Daly will again be found scintillating through Ward and Ward & Vokes in "The Promoters," At Plainfield Theatre Next Wednesday.

Vokes big second edition of "The Promoters" in the role of the lady detective. Ward and Vokes will be seen at the Plainfield theatre next Wednesday. Miss Daly has the gift of being able to sing a topical song with distinct meaning and this year in a new song called "Betsey Bolivar" she will delve into the topics of the day hereabouts. Sixty people are announced in this musical melange of "Percy and Haroldism."

BIG TIMBER, THIS.

John Cole and his son, Charles Cole, claim to have felled the largest tree ever cut in the vicinity of Port Murray section. It was grown on the Hunterdon county side of the Musconetcong Creek, and contained over four thousand feet of lumber.

The tree was forty-six feet tall and measured four feet six inches across the butt. Eleven ties were cut from the limbs. John Cole and Lorenzo Smith also claim to have taken the biggest log to the mill ever drawn in that section. It had lain in a swamp and a number of team drivers had refused to haul it. The log was twelve and one-half feet long and made more than twelve hundred feet of lumber.

The two men were six hours in loading the log and getting it to the mill. Four horses were required to draw the log and the sleds stuck in the mud several times.

Overzealous.

"That speaker tried to be accurate."

"Yes," answered Senator Sorghum. "He really overexerts himself. After saying 'there is little more to be said on this subject' he will talk for an hour to prove it."—Washington Star.

Rare Owl Caught in Church Tower.

Elizabeth, Feb. 18.—A very large brownish gray owl, a rare and splendid specimen of its kind, was caught in the lofty tower of St. John's Episcopal church on Broad street, here, by the sexton yesterday. The bird was nearly starved and quite weak and had evidently been roosting in the tower for some weeks. It will be placed on exhibition when it has fully regained its normal condition. The severe weather is supposed to have driven it into the tower.

Suicide Had Brother in Belmar.

New York, Feb. 18.—An elderly woman known as Mme. Ezekiel, a professional fortune teller, was found dead from gas in her room at 231 Ralph street, Brooklyn, yesterday. She had connected a rubber tube with a gas jet. The other end of the tube was attached to her mouth. It was said by neighbors that the woman had a brother living in Belmar, N. J.

REFUGE FOR HOMELESS MOVES TO UNIONVILLE

The Self Masters' Association, which had been located for about eighteen months on the Rahway river bank, in lower Rahway, is moving to Unionville, near Elizabeth. The property recently purchased at Rahway will be left on the hands of Broker Crawford, who, it is understood, was the financial backer of the enterprise and in whose name the property stands. Mr. and Mrs. Crawford will continue to reside there.

The objects of the association, as outlined by the president, Andress S. Floyd, were to establish a refuge for homeless boys and men, which Mr. Floyd calls his "family."

Up to yesterday the "family" was located on a nine-acre tract. The institution is supported by voluntary contributions and sale of articles manufactured at the home. Mr. Floyd also adds to the income by giving lectures on "My Family of Prodigal Sons."

The trustees are given as William A. Clark, of North Plainfield; Alexander C. Litterst, of the Metuchen National Bank, and Charles J. Fisk, of Plainfield.

The cause of the removal from Rahway is alleged to be the gift to the home of a $30,000 farm at Union by C. H. Ingersoll. The farm contains fifty acres of land, which Mr. Floyd will put into use at once for raising everything a farm can produce. Mrs. Jennie Matthews, of Newark, will go with Mr. Floyd, as will also the secretary, Miss Lillian Blanche Kline, as matron.

Rev. E. J. Craft, formerly of Bridgeport, an uncle of Miss Kline, is to be the house chaplain according to present plans.

It is proposed to establish half a dozen of these homes. Howard Colby a magazine writer, expects to locate there with the "family," it is reported.

Frank Smith is one of the largest supporters of the affair, according to Miss Kline. At the new place, it is proposed to open a tea room, with dairy products, for autoists. C. H. Ingersoll and Howard C. Colby are on the advisory board. The directors' list shows names as follows: Rev. Ernest Judson, of Bridgeport, Conn.; Elston M. French, Plainfield; Mrs. George H. Campbell, Plainfield; Mrs. J. V. D. Field, Bound Brook; S. R. Farrington, Perth Amboy.

IS A HEN A BIRD, BEATS "HOW OLD IS ANN" QUERY.

Washington, Feb. 18.—The greatest question since "How old is Ann?" was sprung on the United States Government by a New York man yesterday. His simple question upset the Treasury Department and has $4,000,000 worth of government clerks gasping for breath. Here is the question:

"Is a hen a bird?"

It reached the office of Secretary MacVeagh first. It came from an egg importer. He set forth in his letter that eggs are dutiable under the Payne tariff law at five cents a dozen, and that birds' eggs are on the free list. Now he wants to know if a hen is a bird.

Was Competent to Make Will.

Hackensack, Feb. 18.—Efforts of the widow and children of Theodore W. Kennedy, of this city to prove that he was incompetent to make a will, failed in the Orphans' Court here Wednesday, and Judge Demarest ordered Surrogate Hester to probate the will. The testator cut off his widow and children with $1 each. The estate is not extensive. The contestants, however, objected to the opening clause, in which the testator stated that his wife and children had turned him out of his home. Mr. Kennedy enjoyed the distinction of having spent an hour with President Lincoln at the White House when he sought a commission as a regular army officer.

Escaped Captor but Was Rearrested.

Elizabeth, Feb. 18.—While a constable was bringing Albert Critchley, a youth of Elizabeth, to the county jail on a sheriff's capiaus, Tuesday afternoon, on a charge of participating in the theft of five game chickens and a game rooster, in Linden, the prisoner, taking advantage of the officer stooping to tie a shoe lace, made a bold dash for liberty and got away. He was captured yesterday and taken before Justice Harold Depue, of Linden, who paroled him in the custody of his mother for a hearing this evening. He claims to be innocent of the charge.

Women Want "Shoppers' Tickets."

Rutherford, Feb. 18.—The Rutherford Town Improvement Association, a woman's organization, began Wednesday the circulation of petitions addressed to the Erie Railroad Company asking that the shoppers' tickets be restored. They were withdrawn some time ago. The petition asks that tickets be issued at thirty cents round trip instead of forty cents to New York, and that they be good between the hours of 10 a. m. and 3 p. m. every day, Sunday excepted.

Miss Agnes Fitzgerald, of the borough, who has been detained at home for several days with a heavy cold, has recovered.

Miss Mary McKenna, of Grove street, has returned to St. Elizabeth College, Madison, after spending several days at her home.

M'LAUGHLIN'S LIVE TIP ON THE KEELER BANQUET.

Sporting Editor W. P. McLaughlin, of the New York World, in his column of "Live Tips," had the following comment on the Willie Keeler baseball banquet:

"Willie Keeler, who admits that he was formerly a native of Plainfield, N. J., is to be banqueted in that burgh next Monday night at the Iroquois Hotel. Willie was a member of the old Crescents back in '91 and '92 when that team went through the other Jersey teams like the devil went through Athlone—and that was going some. Sorry I can't accept the invitation to go over. I'm afraid to be in Jersey after dark. But there will be a big gathering there all right for Willie made lots of friends.

FRATERNAL LEAGUE COMES TO A CLOSE

The Fraternal Tourney competition was completed last night when the Ponies and Raritans rolled off for third and fourth prizes, the latter winning out.

The representatives of Miantonomo Tribe of Red Men captured the championship with a record of fourteen victories and four defeats, with the Knights of Columbus second and Raritan and the Ponies next in order.

First average prize went to Johnny Campbell with a mark of 196.10, with Frank Blatz second and Charley Matthews third.

The Knights of Columbus, with an even 1,000 mark, captured high team score prize, while "Loofe" Menzenbach carried off high individual score for the tourney with a mark of 258.

The standing and individual averages follow:

This firm being in the process of reorganization must dispose at once of all goods on hand. New members with new ideas in the near future will bring much added capital that will make us THE LARGEST OUTFITTERS in Union, Somerset and Essex Counties. Before the advent of these new members every dollar's worth of goods on hand must be turned into cash to satisfy the retiring members. To do this we are forced to sacrifice our entire stock regardless of cost.

Save Money by Walking Up One Flight.

Being situated up the first floor—without show windows to display our merchandise, we have naturally got to make inducements to you to have you walk up one flight of stairs. These inducements have been made and you will find that this Reorganization Sale will be the Greatest Opportunity of a lifetime—greater than has been presented to you before.

This firm has always been noted as carrying only the Higher Class of Merchandise, and never before in our history have we held so called Bargain Sales—which makes this opportunity so much greater, as never before or again will such High-class Merchandise be placed on sale at prices so low which make competition impossible.

The Island of Regeneration

Then she waited in intense and eager curiosity as to what he should do next. The iron in his situation had eaten into his soul. He had been mastered by force. He could not understand it. He did not love the mastery. Still, without the knowledge of his own powers, there occurred to him no way to resent the ignominy to which he had been subjected. He turned and walked away from her. She stood amazed, staring after him. It was the first time he had withdrawn himself from her presence. Where was he going? Was this a declaration of war? Was there to be enmity between them? In vague terror, moved by a sudden impulse again, she called him.

"Man!" she said.

He stopped, hesitated, looked back, turned and went on again. He was deeply hurt. She could not see him go. It was unthinkable that he should go. He was dangerous away from her. By her side she could control him.

"Man!" she called again.

But this time he did not heed. An idea sprang to her brain, working quickly under the pressure. She lifted up her voice, for he was far from her now and plodding steadily, doggedly toward the trees.

"John!" she cried. "John Revell Charnock!"

And at that sound the man stopped. He turned and looked at her again.

"John!" she repeated. "John!"

She approached him. As she did so and when she could get near enough to him, she observed that wrinkling of the brow, that look of amazement, which she had noticed before. It was as if some latent memory, some recollection of the past, were struggling against the obscurity of years, as if something were endeavoring to thrust itself through a sea of oblivion and forgetfulness that overwhelmed his mind; as if she were a voice which brought back things he could neither understand nor utter, and yet which meant something to him.

"John!" she cried again, coming nearer to him.

She thrust out her hand; she touched him. Again she noticed that strange emotion consequent upon her touch. She laid her hand upon his shoulder. There was amity, confidence, reassurance. She patted him as she might a dog.

"John!" she said, and then she turned away and walked toward the shore.

Obediently he followed her. She thrust the knife between her waist and the rope which she had rapidly twisted about her middle and walked on in triumph. If he had learned something, so had she. Some one else had called this man John in days gone by. The sound was not unfamiliar to him. He answered to his name. That was he, John Revell Charnock! She felt as if she were entering upon the solution of the mystery of his presence. Perhaps the morrow would tell. She would examine that boat and those decaying evidences of humanity on the farther shore.

She felt elated that night ere she went to sleep in the cave. The clew to the mystery she fancied was in her hand. She had such occupation before her as she had never hoped to come upon in a desert island, at least. The rope added to her security. By piling stones before the entrance to the cave and reinforcing them with the boards from the wreck of the boat and some fallen tree branches on the shore, she made a sort of a barrier to it, not a barrier that would have kept out of the cave any one who desired to enter, but one which would have to be removed before one could enter. And she so arranged matters, tying the end of the rope to her wrist, that any attempt to remove it would immediately waken her. That night she slept secure and unmolested.

CHAPTER IV.

Lesson and Labor.

The task to which she set herself in the morning would have been an impossible one to many women, and indeed it was a hard one to her. The buried boat lay in the sand some rods distant from the nearest tree. There was absolutely no shelter from the fierce heat of the tropic sun. She was not yet fully accumstomed to it, and indeed perhaps she never would be able to endure it without some sort of a head covering. She improvised a bonnet from the leaf of a low springing palm tree, which, with her remaining handkerchief, she tied about her head. And then with her watchful friend by her side she descended the beach to the boat and began to dig.

It was hard and very tedious work. With the flat make-shift shovel in the shape of the rough piece of board it was almost impossible to lift the sand. Yet she attacked the task resolutely and persevered sturdily for a long time until the sweat beaded her forehead, her back ached, her hands, unused to manual toil of any kind, were almost blistered. She realized at last that she would have to give it over.

She wondered as she ceased her labors whether the constant observation which the man had subjected her to would enable him to continue the work. As an experiment she handed him the shovel, stepped out of the excavation she had made and pointed toward it. He understood instantly. She was surprised at the unusual quickness of his apprehension, for he set to work with a right good will and in a minute the sand was flying. She noticed half in envy how much more progress he made than she could effect. What was labor for her was play for him, and yet after a little space he stopped, threw down the shovel and looked at her.

She had got in the habit of speaking to him as if he understood, so she pointed to the shovel again, exclaiming:

"Pick it up and go on."

Printing and Developing

At Doane's 115 Park Ave.

Plainfield in .... The Olden Days.

Re-printed from The Weekly Constitutionalist

June 29, 1871.

Among our many old school mates who have sought their fortunes in the far West we note with pleasure the name of John H. Ayres, who now holds the office of city clerk at Quincy, Ill. We learn it is his intention to visit the east shortly, when we hope to receive a call from him. You will hardly know the old place, "Johnny."

Parties desirous of enjoying good music for picnics, excursions, etc., will do well to consult Mr. Samuel D. Frazee, whose card appears in another column. "Sam" is a host in himself and he always furnishes the best of music.

The Junior Editor returns his thanks to Messrs. T——r, L——t, and A. and D. R——n, for a serenade on Tuesday evening (or rather Wednesday morning). The music was fine and duly appreciated by all who were fortunate enough to hear it. Do so some more.

July 6, 1871.

There was an old woman
Who lived in a shoe,
She had nine small children,
And what did she do,
To Shotwell's she went
And there she did find,
Hats and caps that fit the whole nine

Mr. L. L. Compton, the confectioner, contemplates erecting a four-story brick building on the site of his present building, on Front street, which will be moved away to make room for the new edifice.

Accident—A young son of Werner Heidloff, in company with another lad, while passing by a piece of woods, in the rear of French's Mills, on the Washington Valley road, was shot in the leg, just below the knee, by some sportsman, who as soon as he saw what he had done, ran away. Some thirty large shot entered the leg and have not all been extracted yet. He was attended by Dr. Sutphen.

LITERARY

The dozen articles in Recreation for this month are illustrated by over a hundred photographs taken especially for the purpose. One of the most striking of these is a full page half-tone of a four-horse logging team coming down a precipitous mountain road in front of a load of giant spruce logs. This is one of the nineteen photographs used to illustrate Leonard Dewitt Sherman's, "Logging in the White Mountains," an article of unusual interest dealing with life at a lumber camp at which 5,000,000 feet of spruce are cut yearly.

Among the well-known writers who contribute short fiction to The Red Book Magazine for February, are noted the names of Edward Hungerford, Mary Imlay Taylor, George Hyde Preston, Alden Arthur Knipe, Hulbert Footner, James O. Curwood, Edith Rickert, Clara E. Laughlin and Susan Glaspell.

Everybody's Magazine, as its readers know, is in no sense a partisan publication. But partisanship is not involved in the Insurgent movement. Representative government is at stake. For this controlling reason Everybody's does indorse, without qualification, the noble stand taken by the Insurgents of the Senate and the House. These men have risen above party. They have faithfully and courageously represented the people at large in Congress.

The February issue of Physical Culture, in addition to a number of interesting contributions, contains not a few notable articles from the pen of its editor, Bernarr Macfadden. Among the latter a series of exercises for "Straightening Round Shoulders" with a supplement in colors, is particularly worthy of mention.

Commander Robert E. Peary gives in the February number of Hampton's Magazine his own solution to a riddle that has puzzled explorers and scientists for the past few centuries. That ridde is the origin of the Eskimos. The Commander in this second installment of his wonderfully interesting story of the Discovery of the North Pole, reveals the importance of well-trained Eskimos in polar travel, and he incidentally gives a remarkable sketch of the Greenland tribe that he himself employed.

"The insurgent movement is not a mere hasty revolt within a single party; it is in reality wider than either party, and it is disrupting both," writes Ray Stannard Baker in the February American Magazine under the title, "Is the Republican Party Breaking Up?" His article is the most lucid comment on the congressional fight that has yet been written. In the course of it, he tells just what the Insurgent movement is, how deep it goes and what are the true reasons for it.

Women Dislike Dust

It ruins everything in the house to have a continual shower of flour-like ashes sifted about. Moreover, it multiplies the work of keeping a house clean. When you shake the open the damper of the special dust flue and all the dust goes up the chimney. The clean-burning square fire-pot is another reason why you should select a BOYNTON. Let our dealer in your town explain our coal and labor saving device and give you facts about economy of coal consumption.

There are BOYNTON heating plants of all kinds. Ask about our Round or Sectional Boilers for Steam or Hot Water. Also Ranges.

HOW FAT WOMEN CAN REDUCE THEIR WAISTS

Fat shows a preference for the abdomen, chin, ankles, hips, etc.—the quiet spots—just the places where it can show the most, or worst. What is to be done—exercise and diet—are they the only alternative? On the contrary, they seldom do the work.

A better plan for reducing the fat is to use the Marmola Prescription Tablet. One of these after meals and at bedtime will produce the requisite reduction without bother, delay or harm. In a few weeks you can be losing a pound of fat a day. It will drop off, as it were; disappear as quietly as it came; remove uniformly without causing even a suspicion of a wrinkle or distress. Meanwhile, eat and act as usual; deny yourself nothing. It is not required, if Marmola Tablets are used.

Get off two inches of waist line before the month's end. It can be done—certainly, cheaply, safely. The Marmola Tablet is noninjurious (it being made after the famous fashionable formula—½ oz. Marmola, ½ oz. Fl. Ex. Cascara Aromatic, 3¼ oz. Peppermint Water), and it costs only seventy-five cents, the large case, of any druggist, or direct from Marmola Co., 988 Farmer Bldg., Detroit, Mich.

KEELER DINNER PLANS

Big Time Expected at "Wee Willie's" Banquet on Monday Night.

SOUVENIRS FOR OCCASION.

Guest of Honor Started His Brilliant Baseball Career as Member of the Old Crescents.

"Keeler to the bat!" That will be the opening command of "Umpire" Arthur Irwin, the veteran baseball player and manager, and now scout for the New York Americans, when the lid is taken off at the banquet to be given "Wee Willie" Keeler at Hotel Iroquois on Monday night.

Keeler is a magic word to local fans and the loyal "bugs" of the early 90's when the Crescents were gaining laurels on the diamond are going to be on hand to greet the diamond warrior who is known wherever a base-hit is made.

The committee at its final meeting last night completed details for the affair and all is now ready for the sound of Proprietor's Leary's dinner bell. Mr. Leary promised the committee to "do his prettiest" and there is never any arguments over statements made by Mr. Leary.

Among those who will occupy a seat around the festive board is Justice of the Peace Thomas Snape, of North Plainfield, who in the early '70's was probably as big a star as Keeler. Judge Snape bought his ticket yesterday and he made the request that he be permitted to occupy a seat alongside of "Wee Willie." His request was granted.

It was while filling the position of third base for the Olympics of Paterson and the Flyaways of New York when Judge Snape won his laurels on the diamond. The Judge must have been speedy in those days as the fans of Paterson dubbed him as "Wizard" Snape. At any rate the records of those days is evidence that the judge delivered the goods. He will be one of the speakers at the banquet and will tell how they played ball in the pioneer days of the sport.

While playing ball Judge Snape toured New York State and New England with the Flyaways. He played with and against such stars of the diamond as "Pop" Anson, Mike Kelly, "The King," Red McCormick, Gus Fizler, Big Jim McCormick, A. G. Spalding, Charley Hankinson, George Esterbrook and a host of others.

When the National League organized in 1876 Judge Snape was eagerly sought by several managers, but owing to parental objections he did not enter fast company and contented himself by playing with the strong independent teams of the metropolis. In comparing the game played in those days with the article of ball played now the judge said today.

"This is the age of big gloves, the players have a better chance to stop balls and the game is faster in all departments. It is a scientific sport In the old days only the catcher and first basemen wore gloves, and a part of the time I played there were no gloves or masks in vogue."

Appropriate souvenirs will be distributed at the banquet as the compliments of A. J. Reach & Co., the Philadelphia sporting goods dealers Another feature will be the presentation to Mr. Keeler a silver loving cup.

Applications are still being made for tickets. The committee has decided to keep a limited number on sale up to Monday afternoon at Schreiner's pharmacy and at Hotel

GRACE EPISCOPAL CHOIR RENDERED A CANTATA

The cantata sung by the male choir of Grace Episcopal church last night was one of the most impressive musical services ever presented to a Plainfield congregation. The solemnity of the dramatic portions of the music was pronounced and at times the big audience was moved to tears as the journey of the Saviour was depicted in melody. This was particularly so with the rendition of the baritone solos sung so effectively by B. B. Pettigrew, and the tenor recitative by William Tallamy.

The work on the tympani by William Stobbe, of Philadelphia, aided materially in the interpretation of Maunder's beautiful work. Masters Arthur Raymond, soprano and Raymond Manley, contralto also led their respective parts splendidly. The chorus work of the entire choir was a revelation to those who had never heard it sing before. S. Frederick Smith, the organist, received many congratulatory words at the conclusion of the service

WASHINGTON, N. J., HAS NELSON ESTATE HEIR.

Washington, N. J., Feb. 19.—Not to be outdone by the rest of the United States, this section has a claimant for the large estate said to have been left by George D. Nelson, who died some days ago in Springfield, Mass. She is Mrs. Mazie Lairna Jefferson Nelson, who is employed in the family of George Beam, on the Scranton farm, above Brass Castle. She says that her father was a brother of Joseph Jefferson, the actor, and that she and Nelson ran away from Greenville, Conn., when she was fourteen and he twenty-four. After many vicissitudes, she says, he deserted her. She has a ring bearing their initials and a letter written to her by her husband asking for money. The marriage certificate, she says, her husband kept. Nearly all her letters and papers were burned in a fire in the railroad station some years ago.

She has engaged counsel to look after her interests. Mrs. Nelson is now about forty-five years old.

IMPORTED EGGS CHEAPER; EXPORTED BEEF CHEAPER.

New York, Feb. 19.—Paraffine-coated eggs from Europe, nearly a million of which were imported this week, were placed on sale today by hundreds of New York retailers at three to eight cents a dozen less than the price of American cold storage eggs.

At the same time there came the announcement from market men that American beef exported by way of New York to London is selling there at three cents to five cents a pound cheaper than the price asked here. The wholesale beef prices, according to this statement, were as follows: London, American frozen beer, per pound, 8¼ to 9 cents; New York, American frozen beef, per pound, 11½ to 14 cents.

Brutal Cop Suspended.

Harold Serrell, of Myrtle avenue, complaining of an act of brutality by a mounted policeman in New York in attacking a driver named John Ruth, in New York on Thursday, whose truck bumped into the officer's horse, caused the policeman to be brought to Mayor Gaynor's office in New York yesterday by Acting Commissioner Bugher. The policeman was suspended and ordered on trial.

HACK ORDINANCE PASSED

Amendment to Follow at Meeting of Feb. 24—Double Fare from 11 o'Clock.

COMMITTEE OF HACKMEN GLAD.

Fifty Cents for One Passenger and Twenty-five Cents for Each Additional One Carried.

The amended hack ordinance was passed on third and final reading at a special meeting of the Common Council, last night, but not until the laws and ordinance committee practically agreed to offer an amendment at the next meeting, February 24, changing two important features.

One of these features is that the hour for charging a double fare be made 11 instead of 12 o'clock, as proposed, and the other is that for carrying passengers from within to points without the city, a charge of fifty cents shall be made for one passenger and twenty-five cents for each additional passenger. According to the amended ordinance a charge of fifty cents is made for a passenger and awenty-five cents "for additional passengers," which might mean one or more.

These matters were taken up with the committee prior to the meeting by President William Jeffery, of the Board of Trade, and John Lynch, William Callahan and Henry Hanson, representing the hackmen. The committee extended every courtesy to Mr. Jeffery and the hackmen and agreed to offer an amendment at the next meeting making the desired changes.

In other respects the hackmen are well satisfied with the ordinance. Among the important provisions are that the hackmen are required to place their licensed number conspicuously on the lamps on their carriages, to be not less than one inch and a half in height, and every licensed person shall wear a badge with the license number while engaged in the business. The badges are to be furnished by the city.

Each hackman must also display a card or plate in his carriage bearing the license number, also the rates of fare and other necessary information.

The boundaries meaning "within the city limits" are extended to include Woodland, Evergreen, Hillside avenues, in the East End; Randolph road on the south and Grant avenue in the West End. This was a bone of contention among the hackmen, but they were willing to waive this feature, provided the other changes were made.

Names Committees.

The executive committee of the Dunellen Board of Trade met at the home of the secretary, F. D. Baerman, of Mountainview avenue, on Thursday night and the following committees were appointed: Membership, Newton Apgar, J. W. Gangloff, Fred Haynes, N. S. Nicholaysen, J. B. Eick, Alden Wilmont and A. S. Coriell, Jr.; real estate—John R. Campbell, Dr. T. H. Platt, Charles A. Coriell, Sr., W. H. R. Hardingham, Isaac J. Stites and Harry Cook; civic—Dr. T. J. Hogan, Edward Maurer, A. H. Burdick, L. W. Schneider and Edward Pennock; manufacture and industry—Edward Maurer, John P. Fenner, Walter Runyon; railroad and transportation—W. S. Frederick, George W. Day and A. J. Hamley; advertising and publicity—Former Mayor Harry Swackhamer, John Federman and W. P. Deering.

Missionary Tea.

Under the auspices of the Women's Foreign Missionary Society of the First M. E. church, a missionary tea was held yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. H. E. Baright, on Watchung avenue. Her mother, Mrs. William R. Benham, was the hostess. Miss Helen Carlton, of Elizabeth, gave a talk on the various McAll mission stations in Paris. A sufficient sum of money was raised to fill out the pledge of the society for the support of a Bible woman in India, which has been undertaken by the women.

Charged With Assault.

Cornelius Webley, a colored youth, with an unsavory record, was arraigned this morning on a charge of simple assault before Judge William Runyon in the city court. Mabel Gray, of West Third street, also colored, was the complainant. Judge Runyon put the case over for one week in order that both parties may have their witnesses on hand.

MUNICIPAL OWNERSHIP

James E. Martine Airs His Views at Meeting of Dutch Arms.

PUBLIC SHOULD OWN WATER.

Public Conveniences and Necessities Should Belong to the Public, He Says.

The speaker at the meeting of the Dutch Arms, the men's club of Trinity Reformed church, last night, was James E. Martine, whose topic included three sub-divisions—Municipal Ownership, State Control and Conservation of National Resources. In his opening sentence Mr Martine declared that the closer the relations between the church and politics became, the closer the people would come to a realization of the ideal for which they are striving. Meaning that with the co-operation of the intellects of the men who can guide a municipality in a spiritual way would be helpful in guiding the spiritually inclined in a political way so that the ends of justice to the people at large would be better conserved.

The congestion in our cities, he said, requires sanitation, safety and a control of the utilities and without these there is no chance for any care for the future of the nation to be taken. The greatest problem of the day is that of monopoly All our utilities are in the grasp of a few men. Private monopoly is detrimental to mankind and I urge you young men to face the issue squarely and do your honest duty to get back for the people that which God gave them.

"If you would but devote the two or three hours which conscience demands of you for a proper attention to your primaries, you would not at this moment be under the grinding heel of the private monopolies which are crushing out your material life. The legislatures of the country are today thronged with the lobbyists, whose sole object is to see that the monopolists do not lose a single opportunity to gain their nefarious ends. In order to be run in the interests of the public the utilities should be owned by the public. Are not the utilities of Plainfield in the hands of the politicians' Should not the water we drink belong to us because it is a gift from the God we worship? Of course, yest is the answer to both questions, but how are we to acquire the right to say so and get what belongs to us? There is but one answer and that is take them away from the monopolists through legislation, and in order to get this legislation we must elect honest men to work and represent us, and in order to get these honest men we must all of us have a hand in the politics of our cities and towns.

"You say that a politician is an unclean thing. But that is not so. Politics are clean until some scoundrel besmirches them. You can all help in this work. Plainfield must have its municipal water plant because the Hon. John Kean needs no more money now. What he has added to his patrimony by squeezing it out of the people should keep him very well for the remainder of his life.

"The greatest efforts are constantly being made to divert the God-given waters of this State to another, and the lobbyists at Trenton are moving heaven and earth to encompass this end. These things should not be and you know it as well as I do. Rahway has its own water plant as has Madison, and their way is good enough for us to copy. They have the necessary system that makes it possible for their sinking funds to care for the purchase price as well as the maintenance of their plants. What is to hinder Plainfield from profiting in the same way? If the furnishing of water to the city of Plainfield pays the water company why won't it pay Plainfield to furnish its own supply? These are pertinent questions and are asked of you to set you thinking so that when the time arrives you can arise and with intelligence make your demands known intelligently.

"The corporations own the newspapers of the city either financially or by influence or favor, but they cannot permanently claim them. The time will come and within the next twenty years when all this will be changed, and perhaps you and I will wonder how it all came about when it really was an easy matter to remedy when we knew how. It is our bounden duty now to teach the value of maintaining, holding and owning the water supply of our community."

Mr. Martine gave the very curious and brief history of the People's Gas Company, which found it impossible to oust the octupus known as the P. S. C. He indulged his audience in a historical reminiscence, which

NO ACTION ON SEWERS

Mayor Smalley Tells Council Matter Will Come Up in March.

WHY THE SEWERS ARE NEEDED

Will Enhance Value of Property and Will Boom Building, He Declares to Borough Fathers.

The sewer matter did not come up for discussion at the special meeting of the Borough Council last night except in a few informal remarks by Mayor Newton B. Smalley. The mayor stated that the required number of signatures to the petitions had not been secured, but that he was confident that everything would be in readiness to proceed at the regular March meeting of the Council.

"Some citizens have refrained from signing the petitions," said the Mayor, "under the fear that there will be an increase in the tax rate. It is true that the taxes will be slightly increased and that also applies whether a sewerage system is established or not. Lack of sewers will bring about other conditions which will have a tendency to boost the taxes.

"With sewers," continued the Mayor, "building conditions will be greatly improved. Instead of small houses being erected, which is now the general rule, home seekers will build larger and more attractive dwellings than are now going up. Sewers are bound to enhance the value of property in the borough and will also be an inducement for a boom in building."

It was expected that a successor to Councilman Charles L. Nichols, resigned, would be elected but no action was taken on this matter. Mr. Nichols' resignation was read, accepted with regret, and placed on file. His successor will probably be chosen at the March meeting

The resignations of Lieutenant William Gaub and Otto Rupert, of the fire department, were also received. The appointment of Alfred C. Fritz, as Gaub's successor by Mayor Smalley was also confirmed.

A letter was received from Colonel E. W. Hine, of the Public Service Corporation, informing the Council that the tracks would be put in better condition on upper Somerset street.

On the recommendation of Councilman J. J. Stahl, N. J. Sopus was granted a permit to erect a barn on Somerset street.

Boys' Y. M. C. A. Banquet.

The first banquet of the Senior Boys' class of the Y. M. C. A. which was held in the parlors of the association last night was a big success. C. William Bingeman was toastmaster and addresses were made by the Rev. George A. Warner and Herbert E. Parker. After the dinner the members elected the following officers: President, John W. Zerega; vice-president, Henry V. Kinney; secretary and treasurer, Cedric Ostrom.

Gift of Gold Watch.

The members of the Plainfield Association Football Club held an entertainment and presentation at its club rooms last night. James Jamieson was in charge. Samuel Sutton at the piano and John Mitchell on the violin, were features. A gold watch was presented by Fred Cross, vice-president, to Bernard Eglinton. The gift was from the members. Refreshments were served.

Brightside Circles' Affair.

The members of Brightside Circle, King's Daughters gave an entertainment last night at the home of Mrs. C. Frank French on Washington avenue. Miss Helen Mellick, Lester Mellic and Everitt Banks gave a short play, entitled "Advertising for a Servant." There were duets by Elmer and Lawrence French. Games were played and refreshments were served.

Death of Mrs. Hartlein.

Mrs. Catharine Hertlein, mother of Mrs. Henry A. Bergen, of 967 Arlington avenue, died in New York city yesterday. The funeral will be held from Mrs. Bergen's home tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock, the services being conducted by Rev. J. O. McKelvey, pastor of Warren chapel. The interment will be in Hillside cemetery.

Disappearance of Girl.

Cleo Lascoe, the eighteen-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Morris Lascoe, of Fanwood Township, disappeared from her home yesterday morning, following an argument with her father.

—E. E. Parvin gave an interesting talk to the members of his Bible class at Warren chapel last night.

JOHN MARTIN DEAD AFTER A LONG ILLNESS

John Martin, who has been ill of paralysis for the past four and a half years, died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Henry P. Seader, 102 Manning avenue, North Plainfield, at 6 o'clock this morning. The funeral services will be held on Monday morning at 11 o'clock and will be conducted by Rev. John Y. Broek. The interment will be in Somerville at the convenience of the family.

Mr. Martin is survived by five sons and four daughters, Geo. Martin, of Dunellen, Louis Martin, of Grant avenue; John Martin, of West Third street; Theodore J. Martin, of Chatham street, in the borough, and Joseph Martin, of Poughkeepsie. Mrs. Peter Seader, of Race street, Mrs. Louis Stites, of Lincoln place; Mrs. Henry P. Seader, and Miss Mary Martin, of West Sixth street. Mr. Martin was born in New York city and lived in Raritan for twenty years, and in this city for twelve years. He was a boilermaker by trade.

WILL INSTALL FIRE WHISTLE ON SPICER FACTORY

The Common Council at a special meeting, last night, accepted the offer of the Spicer Manufacturing Company, to locate and maintain the fire alarm whistle on its factory on Madison avenue. This action was taken after the proposition was made in a communciation to the Council by the Spicer company. The cost to the city will be $515 a year, and in addition it will have to stand the expense of erecting a tower at the Spicer plant for the whistle and removing the whistle to its new location. The city will also have to assume all responsibility, the company alone agreeing to furnish steam for blowing the alarm.

After the communication was received from the Spicer company, Mr. Taylor, of the fire and building committee, moved that it be referred with power, which was done. The committee was then empowered to go ahead and make a contract and have the corporation counsel prepare the necessary papers in the matter. It will cost between $250 and $300 to properly install the whistle.

Mr. Taylor said by way of explanation that his committee had received bids from the Gamewell Fire Alarm Company for installing a tapper on a local church bell; also tappers in the homes of the call-men, and had concluded that the offer of the Spicer Company was the most advantageous.

COMPLAINT AGAINST THIS FOOTBALL CLUB.

Richard Gilbert, who occupies apartments in the building with the Plainfield Association Football Club, was a complainant against the club in the city court this morning. Mr. Gilbert declared that the late hours and boisterous conduct of the members constituted the greatest nuisance he has ever heard of and his life is being made miserable.

Mr. Gilbert says that rest at night is impossible and that during a recent illness he would have committed suicide from the pain he suffered from tortured nerves had the had the means at hand to kill himself with. Judge Runyon, who heard the complaint, said he would have the matter investigated and would try to have the nuisance abated

Funeral of Miss Leonard.

The funeral service of Miss Sarah Leonard, who died at the home of Mrs. Caroline J. Ohl, on Wednesday, were held this morning at the undertaking parlors of A. M. Runyon & Son at 11 o'clock, and were conducted by Rev. J. M. Musson, pastor of the Temple Baptist church. The interment was in Hillside cemetery.

Engagement Announced.

The engagement is announced of Ida M. Lawrence, daughter of Mrs. C. G. Lawrence, of Saltcoats, Scotland, to William Ruddy, formerly of Greenwich, Conn. For several years Miss Lawrence and Mr. Ruddy have been residing in this city.

Liquor Dealers Meet Committee

The Councilmanic license committee met all the liquor dealers at the Mayor's office last night for a conference and the dealers were given to understand that they will be expected to strictly adhere to the provisions of the law.

To Honor Washington.

The pupils of the borough school will observe the birthday of George Washington at a patriotic service to be held Monday morning at which the Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring will speak.

FATHER SCHANDEL DEAD

Oldest Priest in Trenton Diocese Passed Away This Morning.

FOR FIFTY YEARS A PRIEST.

During His Eventful Career He Built Many Churches—Bishop to Officiate at Solemn Requiem Mass.

Father John Schandel, the oldest Catholic priest in the Trenton diocese, and known as the "church builder," for his zealous labors for his church and faith, passed away at his home on Manning Avenue early today from infirmities incidental to old age. He was in his eighty-second year.

Surrounding his beside when the Angel of Death relieved the venerable clergyman of his sufferings were the Rev. William H. Miller, rector of St. Joseph's church and the Sisters from the Convent.

Father Schandel had been in feeble health since his retirement from active duties at Stony Hill and ten days ago a turn for the worse took place. His last public appearance was on the occasion of the celebration of the Golden Jubilee given in his honor by the prelates and priests of the Trenton Diocese at St. Joseph's church on July 22, 1909.

The funeral arrangements are being made by Father Miller, who notified all the priests in the diocese of Father Schandel's death this morning by telegraph. The mass will be held at St. Joseph's church on Wednesday morning at 10:30 o'clock and will be in charge of Bishop McFaul, of Trenton.

Father Schandel and Dean McNulty, of Paterson, shared the distinction of being the only two Catholic priests in the State, who had seen more than fifty years of active service in the church. Father Miller in speaking on the death of the priest this morning said:

"Father Schandel is a martyr to duty. The church and the community at large loses a noble character."

Father Schandel was born in the town of Rinbruch, Luxemburg, Germany, November 28, 1828. He came to America in 1848 and settled in New York and was educated at St. Francis Xavier's College, and at the College and Seminary of St. Vincent, Penn., and was ordained to the priesthood by Bishop Bayley in St. Patrick's Cathedral, Newark, July 22, 1859.

In August of the same year he was appointed assistant to Father Beaudevin, pastor of St. John's church, Paterson, and was directed to look after the Germans who were settling in large numbers in that city and the surrounding country.

Father Schandel purchased property in 1886 and erected a church for the exclusive use of the German Catholics in the same year, and dedicated it to the Glory of God under the invocation of St. Boniface. While at Paterson he had charge of the churches at Lodi, Macopin, Ringwood and Passaic. The latter place became an independent parish in 1868, and he was appointed the first resident pastor.

Father Schandel built the church of St. Nicholas and remained at Passaic until September 1872, when he went to Raritan. His stay at the latter place was only for four Sundays, when he was transferred to Carlstadt, which he had attended as a Mission from Passaic, and there he also built a church and had charge of Lodi until May, 1876, when he was sent as an assistant to St. Pius' church, East Newark.

From East Newark Father Schandel went to the German church at Rahway in August, 1877 and remained in charge until March, 1878, when he was sent to Stony Hill. For twenty-six years he labored in that parish until compelled by old age to resign the pastorate on October 1, 1904.

Workman Seeks $15,000.

New Brunswick, Feb. 19.—Philip Patterson has brought suit for $15,000 damages against the Michelin Tire Company at Milltown. Last June, while at work at their plant, his right hand was caught in the machinery and he lost his thumb. He has since been unable to use the hand.

Mt. Holly Would Be a City.

Mt. Holly, Feb. 19.—Renewed effort is to be made to have this town incorporated as a city. A city form of government would make possible an excise commission and might result in "dry" ordinances being enacted.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

The Brotherhood of the First M. E. church will hold an important meeting in Vincent chapel, Friday night, February 25.

Rev. Royal A. Stout, pastor, will preach at the Netherwood Reformed church, tomorrow morning and night. The morning topic will be "An Error in Judgment," and in the evening, "Our Acceptable Sacrifice."

No Contract With Public Service.

Hackensack, Feb. 19.—The committee appointed at the last meeting of the Westwood Borough Council to investigate as to the status of the borough's agreement with the Public Service Corporation in connection with its street lighting system, have found that no contract exists between the municipality and the corporation. The committee, which consists of Councilmen Bomm, Huff and Fitzgerald, are now investigating as to the feasibility of the establishment of a municipal lighting plant, similar to the one at Park Ridge. It is generally conceded that definite action will be taken at the next meeting.

Trinity Commandery, No. 17, K. T., will hold a regular conclave Monday night.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

Dr. Cornelius W. Larison, of Ringoes, is critically ill with paralysis.

George Vanentine, tollgate keeper at North Woodbury, has received news of the death by electricity of his son Jeremiah, at Bakersville, Cal.

The apeparance of king crabs on the beach at Ocean City has surprised the residents, who say it is unusual for them to be seen on the ocean front.

Mrs. Edward Warner, of Clarkesboro, has received word of the death of her son Edward, at San Mateo, Cal. The body will be brought home for burial.

William D. Smith, of Woodbury, in the past two weeks has lost by death his daughter, Mrs. Harry Doughten, of Westville; his cousin and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Munyan, of Camden.

The safe containing documents of the Swedesboro Council is locked and the combination has been lost. The maker of the same has been communicated with to send a man to open it.

Sea gulls are more than usually numerous off Cape May. For many years they have been free from molestation in that section, fishermen and sporting men generally uniting to protect them.

Rev. A. C. Struthers, pastor of the First Methodist Protestant church, Millville, has designated Sunday evening, March 6, as "Railroad Men's Night," and will arrange railroad signals to illustrate a special sermon.

The marble and brick work of the lower front of the residence of George Spelt, of 429 Penn street, Camden, was smeared with green paint, presumably by boys, early yesterday morning. The police are investigating.

While he was working at the plant of the East Jersey Pipe Works, Paterson, yesterday, Thomas F. Smith had one of his hands badly cut by a buzzsaw. It was necessary to amputate one finger, and it is feared he may lose his hand.

The report of County Clerk Edward L. Sturgess, of Gloucester county, submitted to the Board of Freeholders yesterday, showed that the receipts of the office, under the salary system, the past year had been $19,190.81, with $1,265.24 profits to the county.

Gloucester county made a move Thursday to free roads in the county, when the freeholders appointed a committee to confer with the owners of toll roads as to purchase prices. Freeholder Munyan stated that Gloucester county had more toll roads than all the other counties of the State together.

Deeply penitent, David Lewis, who Tuesday night, at Camden, took laudanum with suicidal intent and then asked a policeman for his revolver, with which to complete the job, was taken to the police headquarters Thursday evening on leaving Cooper Hospital. On the promise of relatives to be responsible for his future actions he was turned over to their care.

Commissioners Rogers and Hughes Thursday, accompanied by the government architect and William J. Thompson, made a thorough inspection of the property selected by the government for the new immigration station at Gloucester City, and selected the offices in the building now on the grounds for the officials and also mapped out plans for the buildings to be erected.

Circuit Judge Endicott, in Camden, Thursday allowed a non-suit in the action for damages brought by Mrs. Annie Reisman and daughter Minnie against the Public Service Corporation and H. D. Le Cato, manager, for injuries sustained by being hit by a skyrocket at Woodlynne Park on July 4, 1905. The court held that the responsibility rested on those having charge of the fireworks display.

William J. Thompson, treasurer of the Gloucester Ferry Company Thursday stated that the company has prepared plans and specifications for the construction of a new two-story steel ferry-house at the foot of South street, Philadelphia, that will cost about $50,000. The contract will soon be awarded and the work started as soon as possible. When finished, passengers will be able to leave the boats by the second deck.

As the auctioneer at the Steinsnyder horse sale, in Vineland, Thursday said "Gone at $167.50," the horse on which the bid was made leaped into the air, and, falling over backward, died immediately. Charles Griffith, a colored man, who had the halter strap wrapped around his hand and the animal's nose, was jerked into the air so hard that Dr. Cunningham had to attend his injuries. The horse was either choked to death by the strap or broke its neck in the fall.

Bernard Houghey, a driver, of Jefferson, five miles below Woodbury, was run over by a wagon in which he was hauling wood for B. W. Warrington, near Mickleton, and was killed. It is supposed he fell from the wagon, the wheels passing over and crushing his head. Not returning late last night, his family went in search and his team was found in a nearby field and not far off the body was discovered. Houghey was sixty-five years old and leaves a widow and three children.

Saturday the Last Day of the White Sale

We just MUST keep telling you of the good values of this White Sale. Every day something else out of the ordinary crops out. A visit to the store every day is well wor h your while.

White Sales are always interesting events at this store—interest is intensified in this year's event by the agitation of high priced cotton.

The splendid stocks on exhibition and sale marks the culmination of months of careful planning and buying when cotton goods were considerable lower than they are today.

Some of the unusually good values which are to be brought forward for this week's selling are listed here—but—we say again it would be impossible to list ALL our good values in this limited space. Come to the store today—you'll find out as hundreds of others have—"It Pays To Buy At Tepper's."

Corporation Notice.

Notice is hereby given that an ordinance entitled "An Ordinance to vacate an unused and unaccepted street on property of John W. Murray and others, on West Eighth Street, between Central Avenue and Division Street, being an extension of New Street," a copy of which is subjoined to this notice, has been introduced before the Common Council, read the second time, and ordered engrossed preparatory to its third reading, and that it is the intention of the Common Council to adopt such ordinance at the regular meeting of the Common Council to be held in the Council Chamber, No. 149 North Avenue, in the City of Plainfield, N. J., at eight o'clock p. m., on Monday, the seventh day of March, A. D. Nineteen Hundred and Ten, at which time and place, prior to the adoption of said ordinance said ordinance will be considered by the Common Council, and all persons interested may be heard before the Common Council with reference to the proposed ordinance.

By order of the Common Council.

JAMES T. MacMURRAY, City Clerk.

Plainfield, N. J., February 7, 1910.

AN ORDINANCE

To vacate an unused and unaccepted street on property of John W. Murray and others, on West Eighth Street, between Central Avenue and Division Street, being an extension of New Street.

Whereas, It is alleged, that the hereinafter described unused and unaccepted street, referred to and shown only by parallel lines, on a map made by Thomas B. Stillman, Clark Rogers, Nathan Rogers and Nicholas Rogers, which said map was duly filed in the office of the clerk of Essex County, in the year Eighteen Hundred and Fifty-three, has never been opened to public use, or accepted by the City, although dedicated as a street, and that John W. Murray, Julia M. Van Buren, Mary S. Andrews, Hettie F. Milliken and Foster Milliken, executor of the estate of Samuel Milliken, Jr., deceased, Louise K. Green, Thomas E. H. Curtis and Delia D. Erickson, individually and as executrix of the estate of Eric N. Erickson, deceased, are all the owners of abutting lands on said street, and have applied to the Common Council of said city, to vacate said street, pursuant to Chapter 139 of the Laws of 1897, and have filed with the City Clerk the consents required by said act.

And Whereas, the opening of said street would require the expenditure of a large amount of public funds and it is to the interest of the city that such street should be vacated.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council do enact as follows:

Section 1. That the unused and unaccepted street referred to and shown only by parallel lines on map made by Thomas B. Stillman, Clark Rogers, Nathan Rogers and Nicholas Rogers, and filed in the year 1853, in the County Clerk's office of the County of Essex, situate on West Eighth Street, on properties of John W. Muray, Julia M. Van Buren, Mary S. Andrews, Hettie F. Milliken, and Foster Milliken, executor of the estate of Samuel Milliken, deceased, Thomas E. H. Curtis, Louise K. Green and Delia D. Erickson, individually and as executrix of the estate of Eric N. Erickson, deceased, and lying between Division Street and Central Avenue, being an extension of New Street and thus described: beginning at a point in the southeasterly side line of West Eighth Street, distant along said side line southwesterly two hundred and thirty-seven feet from the southwesterly side line of Central Avenue; thence southeasterly at right angles to West Eighth Street a distance of three hundred and seventy-five feet to property of the estate of Samuel Milliken, deceased; thence with the line of property of Thomas E. H. Curtis south sixty-eight degrees and one-half west fifty-two feet; thence northwesterly perpendicular to West Eighth Street, three hundred and fifty-nine feet to the southeasterly side line of West Eighth Street; thence along said side line of West Eighth Street, northeasterly fifty feet to the beginning, be and the same is hereby vacated, pursuant to the acts of the Legislature in such case made and provided.

By order of the Common Council.

JAMES T. Mac MURRAY, City Clerk.

Plainfield, N. J., February 7, 1910.

AN ORDINANCE

To Lay Out and Open a Portion of Stelle Avenue.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. That the portion of the street known as Stelle Avenue shown on a map filed in the office of the City Clerk, February 7, 1910, entitled "Application Map to Lay Out and Open Stelle Avenue from the Easterly side line of Union Street to the Westerly line of property now or formerly owned by George E. Fuller, City of Plainfield, N. J., January, 1910," as already dedicated to the public, be and the same is hereby accepted as a public street of said city.

AN ORDINANCE

To Vacate Byron Place.

Whereas, Byron Place, between East Second Street and Midway, as shown on map entitled "Map of property owned by R. D. Benedict, City of Plainfield, N. J., F. A. Dunham, C. E., August, 1892," filed in the Register's Office in the County of Union, and also shown on "Assessment Maps of the City of Plainfield, Union County, New Jersey, East Section, 1899," on file in the office of the Collector of Taxes, is a dedicated street, but has not been opened to public use since the said street was dedicated to public use, and has never been accepted by the public; and

Whereas, it appears to the Common Council that Lewis V. F. Randolph is the sole owner of all the abutting lands on such street, and has consented in writing to the vacation thereof, by filing such consent, duly acknowledged (as in the case of an acknowledgment to the conveyance of lands) in the office of the City Clerk, and in addition thereto has filed the written consent of the owners of all adjacent premises likely to be affected by the vacation of such street, and has applied to the Common Council to vacate such street; and

Whereas, the opening of such street by the City would involve a large expenditure of public funds, and the opening of such street to public use would be of no public benefit, and in the judgment of the Common Council it is to the interest of the city and of the public that such street should be vacated, as authorized by Chapter CXXXIII of the Laws of 1888, or Chapter 139 of Laws of 1897, or by both such laws.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. That Byron Place, from East Second Street to Midway, as shown on map, the title of which is recited in the first preamble to this Ordinance, be and the same is hereby vacated pursuant to the Acts of the Legislature in such case made and provided.

WIFE, ALONE FIVE YEARS, CANNOT GET DIVORCE.

Trenton, Feb. 19.—Although William Wood has been missing for five years, Judge Frederick W. Gnichtel as special master, has reported to the Court of Chancery that desertion has not been proven, and recommends that Mrs. Wood's suit for divorce on those grounds be dismissed. The law requires that desertion must be shown to be wilful for two years before a divorce can be granted.

The Woods were married on July 25, 1905, and lived happily until the following September 16, when the husband dropped completely out of sight, although there had not been the slightest domestic trouble. Mrs. Wood has used every effort in her power to locate him.

Judge Gnichtel has been obliged to report that so far as the evidence taken before him shows, the desertion has not been "wilful, continued and obstinate," the sole grounds on which the divorce is asked. Mrs. Wood supported herself by working in a pottery until recently, when worry over her husband's disappearance and the death of her mother unbalanced her mind, and she has been taken to the State Hospital for the Insane.

Judge Gnichtel believes the laws should be amended so that a petitioner cannot get a divorce from a missing defendant, whose whereabouts is unknown, until an absence of seven years is proved. Many lawyers of the State agree with Judge Gnichtel's idea in this respect and will aid him in getting the proposed bill through the Legislature.

In discussing the matter Judge Gnichtel pointed out that the present laws requiring wilful desertion for two years are just, as far as they go, because even though a husband might disappear for two years he might then return, and in case he found his wife married again there would be endless complications. The judge believes that seven years' absence, with no tidings from a missing husband, ought to be sufficient justification for giving the wife a separation.

P. O. DEPT. TO TRY TO FIND JOBS FOR NEEDY.

Washington, Feb. 19.—A new solution of the problem of the unemployed has been offered. Representative Garner (Rep., Pa.) has introduced a bill in the House providing for the appointment of an information labor officer in the Postoffice Department. The bill further provides for the employment of an information clerk in every one of the 70,000 odd postoffices in the country. These men are to compile a list of the unemployed in the neighborhood of their offices and also a list of employers looking for employes. The jobless men are then to be introduced to the menless jobs and vice versa, and in a very short time there ought to be no one out of work in the United States, the author of the bill believes.

Senator Lewis Stops Runaway.

Burlington, Feb. 19.—While waiting for a train Thursday State Senator Griffith W. Lewis became the hero in a runaway accident. An excited woman was alone in a farm wagon, when the horse became unmanageable and ran away. Senator Lewis made a short sprint, and, seizing the horse by the bridle, brought it to a standstill. The team belonged to a Jacksonville farmer named Ritter.

Plain Field Notes and Queeries

By Druid

As Mayor of New York Judge Gaynor is both winning and earning the hearty goodwill of all good citizens including those who feared that his impulses might be more than a match for his judgment. He has screwed a bristly broom on the end of his sceptre and wields it with the vigor of an old-time schoolmaster birching his boys. His uncommon common sense is rivalled by courage unprecedented in the office he is thus far adorning. Nothing is more sensible than his attitude towards the inglorius fate that has overtaken the Fourth of July in its evil days.

Being asked whether or not the police are to stop the retail sale of fireworks between June 10 and July 10, the Mayor frankly confesses, "I am as fond of firecrackers now as when I was a boy, nevertheless, if the damage they cause outweighs the pleasure they give I suppose the order should stand. Let us submit the matter to public sentiment, for, as a rule, that ought to govern." Well, sharing this admirable sentiment as I, for one, do, I hope to be pardoned for presuming to raise an insignificent voice on the angelic side, if we have it, of the great public, against the devilish noisy side taken by the small boy and his abettors.

* * * *

The glorious Fourth is not by any means the only institution that began in a spirit of pure and noble enthusiasm, but survives in a carnival of riot, meaningless noise, and childish sham war. If we men and women are bidden to commemorate the victory over the oppressor by giving our children spectacular displays that shall impress them anew with patriotic pride in the heroic deeds of the stalwart men of old, I would hail it as a return to the spirit of the original glorious Fourth. We would instantly rise to the true dignity of our opportunity. Our intelligence, and not our inborn proneness to fits of foolery, would then control the celebration of a great national event and make it intelligent as well as entertaining and safe to life and limb.

* * *

We pride ourselves on being humane, on having exquisite taste, on our genteel horror of vulgar things and ways. Yet even the best of us, even the ideal Mayor of Gotham the Blest, quiver at the knees, wag our all-the-year-round muscular brains into batter pudding on one of the Dog Days beloved of lunatics, and ignominiously surrender our reason and humaneness at the hold-up command of infantry in arms! At their decree we pull down not simply the official signboards forbidding wagon drivers, peddlers and other shockingly common persons to make noises near hospitals, but we work ourselves up into a blend of crazy Indian war dance and whiskeyfied Coney Island Mohawk spree that we may join our darling little angels in shooting dynamite craps to hurry up to heaven our helpless sick and pain-racked neighbors!

* * *

What think the saintly Fathers of our childish caricature of their sublime avhievement? We can almost see their sickened smile of contempt, and hear the cutting comments that lash the air into furious billows as they pace the shades of the Elysium we yearly do our worst to blow into the hot end of purgatory. "Has it come to this? We made an uphill war to win for our people a peace so lasting that our posterity would forever loathe every din and smoke puff that might recall the horrors of wholesale bloodshed—but see! Are they our descendants down below there? Have our people gone back to barbarism, or is it only temporary lunacy?"

* * *

Sweet it is for the wisest of us to play the fool to our hearts content, at the right time, in the right place, in a harmless way. Long live April the First, and may it never again be celebrated on July the Fourth. For there is no need of the change. Happily, children are with us in each of the four seasons. They, poor dears, feel the heat of July as much as we do, but the consequences of doubling it on the one day don't always show until too late for us to recall the cause. To heap artificial heat on nature's heat is an impudent insult to the Sun. He is too much of a gentleman, an artist, and a sensible Good Fellow, to splutter his genial rays on us through Chinese pipes that deafen and stink. Look up at him through the dirty smoke and see how he blushes to think that we—who fancy ourselves the smartest he smiles on—can't even do him and the Fathers, and ourselves, the honour to make our own fireworks, but buy them from the heathren Chinese because they come cheap! Cheap and nasty go together, and this is the incense we send up to those we profess to worship!

No. This will never do. But we won't dream of dropping the observance. There is another glorius Day, which the Sun politely invites us to substitute for the Roasting Fourth. He offers to hide his glowing face behind the veil of cloud, or the cooling screen of snow, on our national Thanksgiving Day. A day that encourages the making of fires and the firing of fireworks. November's chills restore Reason to her throne. Youngsters will be all the merrier for having fireworks in the snow. Mothers will be happier because the gentle innocents will be safer, and fathers will be gladdened patriots because the fewer hours will consume less cash. By all means, Judge Mayor, save their flare up and their fingers, eyes and noses for the impy boys; they'll enjoy it tenfold in November. But spare us, Good Lord of Gotham, spare us thy suffering creatures, the undeserved pains, horrors and ridiculousness of a midsummer day's madness.

Charged with having taken on a second husband without the formality of a divorce, Mrs. Sarah McCloskey was arrested at her home, 806 Chelten avenue, Camden, and was committed by Justice of the Peace Symington, of Gloucester, Thursday. The charge was made by James McCloskey, who said he found his wife living with Ford Wood, who claimed to be her husband. Both exhibited certificates of marriage, but madame said she was only the "common law wife of Wood."

"Trifles Necessary to Attain Perfection."

Perfection is no Trifle

The many little "Trifles" neccessary in building a Perfect Piano, and which are passed over or neglected in most factories, are carefully considered by the makers of the

Hallet & Davis

From the beginning, from the time the first Hallet & Davis piano was made (1835), up to the present time, its makers (this is the third generation) have taken a pride in their handiwork, the pride of honest workmen, a careful attention to the "trifles," the little things not seen by the purchaser; painstaking examination of every bit of material; minute inspection of every working part.

"Good enough" never has, never will pass muster in the Hallet & Davis Shop. It may be good enough to pass unnoticed, may never be seen or detected, but "good enough" means slighted work, and slighted work has no place in our factory.

"Perfection," or the nearest approach within human possibility, is, and ever has been the goal we strive to attain. Not to make a piano that is "good enough" but to endeavor with all our experience, skill and knowledge of the piano maker's art, honesty of purpose, and all backed by unlimited capital, to make a perfect instrument.

In use today are many Hallet & Davis pianos, 30, 40 and even 50 years old, still giving forth sweet sounds, still responding to the exacting requirements of the musician, living testimonials of the honest workmanship of their makers. No piano can give such service unless there has been strict attention paid to the "trifles" that are passed over by most factories.

A Hallet & Davis in the home is evidence of good judgment and refined taste. It also means, "perfect piano satisfaction."

TRADE BOARD HEAD FOR EQUAL SUFFRAGE

In the course of his remarks at the Board of Trade class meeting on Thursday night, President William Jeffery said that he "hoped that the men's clubs of the various churches of the city would find it convenient to attend the class meetings and join in the discussion; that so far as present opportunity affords, is would be wise for the class to consider taking up for discussion the entire political structure; becoming familiar with the requirements of each office and the workings of the various departments of the city. The subject of taxation should be done into thoroughly, also city improvements. A better understanding of the municipal government could not fail to result other than in a keener appreciation of those who work for the city without receiving compensation and the necessity of inducing level-headed business men to enter municipal politics; all of which would bring about the re-establishment of civic honor, which now seems to be so far away from American municipal government, that one can hardly see it.

"The women's entry into municipal government would bring this about quicker than anything else. It does not worry me about the women voting for county, State and Federal officers, because the whole structure of American government rests upon municipalities or should so rest, and the present tendency, particularly in the State of New Jersey, of commission government, a-la George III. is royalistic, un-American, foolish and unnecessary; when the American people get so that they cannot run their municipalities without having the Mayor and officials superintended by the governor and commissions, they better get down to real business and send over to England and have King Edward send over a real Royal commission. The Snivel Service Commission for municipalities like Plainfield, is grotesque, humorous and not to be taken at all seriously."

Mr. Jeffery announced that the following men had joined the class: Alexander Gilbert, A. J. Gavett, J. W. Gavett, Harry C. Van Emburgh, F. A. Dunham, J. Hervey Doane, A. E. Williams, E. B. Davis, Dr. A. F. Van Horn, W. G. Debele, John Manley, Frank Linke, Gustave Meisner, Jeremiah Van Winkle, Jacob Sachar, Harry Feinberg, George M Christian, J. Fred MacDonald, J. V. Vanderhoef, F. A. Duttenhofer, A. S. Herr, Herman Schwed, Thad Doane, Jr., A. C. Pleydel, William Berrell, F. E. Bodin, S. J. Place, Frank C. Shaffer, Dr. H. V. Hubbard and Hugh B. Sweeney.

UNABLE TO WORK, HE HAD NO USE FOR LIFE.

Glen Gardner, Feb. 19.—From self-inflicted wounds, Arthur Bodine, forty years old, died in the Hunt house in the lower part of town, Thursday night. He lived with his widowed mother. He had been acting strangely since Sunday When his mother went to the cellar Thursday she found him lying in a pool of blood in the coal bin, with an ugly wound in his neck. Nearby lay his cap and glasses, and under his body was found a knife with which the wound had been made. The woman's screams brought the neighbors and the man was carried to his room and Dr. Edgar Hunt was summoned. It was found that Bodine had plunged the long blade into his neck with his left hand, severing the windpipe and was slowly bleeding to death.

The Bodines came here from Elizabeth nearly a year ago, when Mrs. Bodine rented a few rooms in Mrs. Hunt's "long house." Her son spent most of the summer in Texas, where, it is said, he owns land. He arrived here recently. He was unmarried, and always appeared to be of a jovial disposition. He was a molder by trade, but his physician had advised him not to work at his trade on account of his health. A short time ago he told a neighbor that he had 165 acres of land in Texas, all clear, and $300 in a bank in Buffalo. To others he said he was out of money and must get work soon.

Mrs. Bodine came from Scotland, and said she intended to return to her old home with her family soon. Mother and son were very much devoted to each other. He has one brother in Elizabeth and a sister on Long Island.

ECHO OF THE JAMESTOWN FAIR.

Elizabeth, Feb. 19.—A civil suit, which is the outcome of the Jamestown Exposition, was begun Thursday afternoon in the Union County Circuit Court before Judge Vail and a jury. The plaintiff is Michael Umstader, of New York, while the defendant is Miss Mabel Madison Watson, of Elizabeth, daughter of the late Professor J. Madison Watson. The suit is one on contract.

The Jamestown Hotel was destroyed by fire during the progress of the exposition. It was conducted by a firm known as Theodosia M. Beacham & Co., of New York. The plaintiff claims to have lost heavily by the fire and wants $2,800 from Miss Watson, who he alleges was a silent partner in the enterprise. This the defendant denies.

caused a shout of laughter of two or three minutes duration and finally urged the men, the younger ones in particular to remember that they are freemen and entitled to a voice in the disposition of their franchises and to be above a mere vascillating atom on the face of the broad land.

In speaking of the conservation of our forests, coal lands and other resources he referred particularly to the great find of coal lands in Alaska, which tow big companies are worrying the Federal government to give then an interest in. These resources belong to the men, women and children of the land and not to the one-eighth of the plutocrats who own seven-eighths of the entire wealth of the country.

Mr. Martine was cheered at the end of his speech and recived the approval of his audience by a rising vote of thanks.

Mr. Martine interjected a suggestion in a pause in his discourse, taking the subject of a new name for the West End school. Why not call it the efferson, he asked. Thomas Jefferson was the first to inaugurate the system of public school teaching, and it was he who besides becoming the father of the Declaration of Independence, was also the father of our schools.

He also declared that the lawyers of the State, with a few exceptions, were subsidized by the corporations, as is proven by the craven acts of Robert McCarter, who while a legislator, defended the people and the State in preventing the lobbyists from killing the Batchellor bill, which prevents any body of men or corporation from shipping or taking water, either surface or subterranean from New Jersey to another State, and who immediately after became the most insistent pleader before the Legislature for just this infernal scheme.

At the business meeting, which followed a ten minutes devotional meeting led by Fred E. Smith, the committees for the ensuing year were named, as follows:

Entertainment, Charles M. Dolliver, chairman; J. C. Field, H. C. Van Emburgh, E. F. Sheppard and W. A. Woodruff. Vestibule, W. F. Williams, J. E. Dunn, B. F. Coriell, Edward Honeyman and Charles Beiter. Refreshment, Henry P. Seader, Russell Doeringer, Charles Doeringer, Sidney Frazer, C. Rittenhouse and C. F. Mehlenbeck. Devotional J. L. Dolliver, Rev. Dr. E. G. Read and F. E. Smith. Visitation, A. H. Willett, M. G. Mantz, A. Swalm and George W. Saums.

Not a Candidate.

Alexander Milne announced today that he is not a candidate to succeed C. L. Nichols, as councilman in the borough, whose resignation as a members of that body was accepted last night with regret.

P. H. S. Entertainment.

The weekly entertainment held at the Plainfield High School, yesterday afternoon, consisted of four members presented by Miss Helen Woolley, Wilbur Toxell, Mr. Bruce and Osgood Sewall.

Congressman to Speak.

Congressman William W. Cocks of Long Island, has accepted an invitation to speak at the Board of Trade banquet provided he is not too busy at Washington.

Ministers Join Juniors.

Fourteen candidates were initiated at the meeting of Somerset Council, No. 102, Jr. O. U. A. M., last night, including Rev. Ora J. Shoop and Rev. Charles S. Kemble.

Mrs. Mary J. Abercrombie.

Mrs. Mary J. Abercrombie, wife of Bolling G. Abercrombie aged forty years, formerly of this city, died this morning at her home in Westfield.

Special Lenten Preacher.

Rev. James MacClintock, of Grace church, Elizabeth, will be special Lenten preacher at the Church of the Holy Cross tomorrow.

The Young People's Society of the Church of the Heavenly Rest, met at the parish house Thursday night, Mrs. Juan A. Babcock being in charge. Four new members were received, making a total of thirty. The next meeting will be held on April 19.

GOLF.

Official notification has been sent to the various clubs of the special interpretations of the rules of golf as passed by the executive committe of the United States Golf Association. The new constitution as amended at the recent annual meeting in New York has also been published in circular form and is being distributed. The interpretations on rules are as follows:

General Rule No. 11—If a ball lie on or within a club's length of a drain cover, water pipe or hydrant it may be lifted and dropped without penalty as near as possible to the place where it lay, but not nearer the hole—as near as possible shall mean—within a club's length. If it be impossible for want of space or other cause for a player to drop the ball in conformity with this interpretation he shall place the ball as nearly as possible within the limits laid down in this interpretation, but not nearer the hole.

General Rule No. 12—A molehill or mole track may be removed from the fair green in any way which will not unnecessarily interfere with the surface of the green.

General Rule—No. 15—A player may take a practice swing or swings after the ball is in play, more than a club's length from the ball.

General Rule No. 23.—If it is doubtful that a ball be out of bounds, the player who played it is not entitled to presume that it is out of bounds until he has made a search of five minutes for it. Meanwhile, his opponent may make a search of five minutes for the ball within bounds, and if the ball is not found within that time the player who struck the ball shall be given the benefit of the doubt and the ball shall be considered out of bounds.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

Theatregoers of Plainfield will enjoy the only artistic novelty of an unusually dull theatrical season in the first appearance in this city on Washington's Birthday of Ruth St. Denis, the young American dancer, presenting a repertoire of Hindoo dances that have proved the sensation of London, Paris, Berlin, Vienna, New York, Chicago and Boston. Miss St. Denis, the original exponent of terpsichorean interpretation of Oriental religions and customs, has appeared by special invitation before King Edward, Kaiser Wilhelm and other European rulers.

JEWELS.

Every winter fashion leans toward a new vogue in pendants. One year it was the old Italian pattern, with scroll-like devices that satisfied, but this season it's the round shape. A beautiful ornament, intended to be slung upon a short neckchain, shows a serpent coiled within a circle.

The whole design is expressed in enamel of wonderful colors. The serpent in its wisdom is supposed to bring its wearer good luck.

But the vogue for round ornaments does not end there. An old-fashioned locket, bright with new-fashioned Russian enamel wrought upon both sides, has a secret spring in the rim which, when pressed, divulges a place inside for a photograph or little gage d'armour.

Surely the sentimental mid-Victorian spirit has come back, and with it that taste for aromas which makes yet a third locket interesting, a pretty trinket with a tiny grille at the back, behind which a wad saturated with concentrated essence is found. No sweeter way of scenting a frock can there be than this of the odorous gems.

The more expensive round lockets are set in lattices or in a solid mass of precious stones, such as diamonds, emeralds and rubies, with pearls to give softness to the scheme.

The fancy for round ornaments extends to brooches. A circle of bright green enamel is broken by a bow of diamonds and pearls, with ends that fall gracefully over the enamel, and that are completed by pear-shaped pearls.

THE TACTFUL WOMAN.

A woman of tact is the one who feels that the story told to hurt our feelings is essentially bad form and inconsiderate of the feelings of others.

A woman of tact is the woman who is courteous to old people, who laughs with the young and who makes herself agreeable to all women in all conditions of life.

A woman of tact is the one who makes her good-morning a pleasant greeting, her visit a bright spot in the day, and her good-bye a hope that she may come again.

A woman of tact is one who does not gauge people by their clothes or their riches, but who condemns bad manners.

A woman of tact is one who is courteous under all circumstances and in every condition in which she may be placed.

A woman of tact is one whose love for humanity is second only in her life's devotion, and whose watchword is unselfishness.

THE DRAPED TOGA.

There has come about a fashion of wearing an immensely long and wide draped garment over one's smart afternoon frock. It is of the color of the gown and is edged with a wide band of fur or a deep fringe.

It is thrown around the body somewhat a a toreador throws on his scarf, only in a more classic fashion. It creeps down over the right hip, goes across the chest ,over the left shoulder, across the back and is caught with a buckle at the right hip.

When gracefully done it is exceedingly pretty on a slender figure. It may be of chiffon or gauze. It must be soft and it is prettier when sheer.

On motion of Freeholder Doane received and placed on file.

The Director appointed the Committee on Jail Inspection to attend the meeting.

From the Fidelity Trust Company:

Asking the privilege to quote charges for the examination and guarantee of titles for new armory site.

On motion of Freeholder Krouse received and placed on file.

February 3, 1910.

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union.

Gentlemen—I have the honor to inform you that a notice has been served on me by the State Military Board of the State of New Jersey constituting the Armory Commission of which the following is a true copy.

To Nathan R. Leavitt, Esquire, Collector of the County of Union:

Please take notice that the headquarters of the Second Battalion, Second Regiment Infantry, National Guard of the State of New Jersey, is now established in the City of Elizabeth, in the county of Union and State of New Jersey; that the State Military Board of the State of New Jersey, the same constituting the Armory Commission, has contracted with Augustus B. Whitehead, Marcus F. Whitehead and Sarah L. Whitehead, his wife, Athalia Olmstead, Emma Stearns, John O. Stearns, Augusta S. Florance and Samuel S. Moore, for the purchase of a tract of land in the City of Elizabeth in the county of Union and State of New Jersey, described as follows:

Beginning at a point formed by the intersection of the northerly line of Magnolia avenue and westerly line of Walnut street; thence running westerly along Magnolia avenue, two hundred and thirty feet, more or less to the line of land of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company; thence along their line northeasterly three hundred and eighty-three and twenty-five hundredths feet to a point; thence easterly at right angles to land of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company and, parallel with the first course two hundred and thirty feet, more or less, to the westerly line of Walnut street; thence running southerly along the westerly line of Walnut street three hundred and sixty-five and five-tenths feet to the point or place of beginning; for the purpose of an armory, with suitable accommodations for such headquarters and a drill shed for the companies of said battalion; and that the amount required for the purchase of said land, and the costs and expenses of acquiring said title or titles, and the grading, filling, excavating, draining, paving and fencing of said lands and the interior completion and also the equipping and furnishing of said armory, drill rooms, company rooms and storerooms, is the sum of twenty-five thousands dollars, which amount the said commission will require for the purpose aforesaid.

Dated February 2, 1910.

The State Military Board of the State of New Jersey, constituting the Armory Commission, by

DENNIS F. COLLINS,
Commanding Second Brigade, N. G. N. J.

NELSON Y. DUNGAN,
Colonel Second Regiment Inf., N. G. N. J.

The act under which this notice is served on me provides that the Board of Chosen Freeholders shall set apart for the use of said commission out of any moneys in the county treasury the amount stated in said notice or notices as required by said commission, not to exceed, however, the sum of twenty-five thousand dollars for each entire parcel of land thus acquired for armory purposes as aforesaid; in case said Board of Chosen Freeholders shall not have money enough on hand to meet such appropriation or appropriations, then it shall be the duty of such board to issue bonds in an amount sufficient to meet such appropriation or appropriations at a rate of interest not exceeding four per centum per annum, payable in not more than fifteen years from the date of issue thereof.

Beg to inform the board that there is not sufficient money in the county treasury, considering its present obligations to pay the said sum of twenty-five thousand dollars out of the county treasury, I therefore advise that the board authorize the issuing of bonds for said sum.

N. R. LEAVITT,
County Collector.

On motion of Freeholder Wilbur received and placed on file.

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders.

Gentlemen—Applications for monuments to mark the graves of the following named soldiers and sailors having been made to your committee, and the same have been investigated and approved by the Supervisor, we recommend the requests be granted.

Charles W. Waterbury, C. First N. J. M., and U. S. Navy; Evergreen Cemetery, Elizabeth, 1842-1910.

Samuel Garthwaite, C. Fourteenth N. J. Vols.; Evergreen Cemetery, Elizabeth, 1833-1909.

William Kuhl, K, Seventh N. Y. Vols., Hillside Park Cemetery, Plainfield, 1827-1905.

Respectfully submitted,

J. H. DOANE,
JOSEPH PERRY,
WILLIAM RANDOLPH,
Committee on Soldiers' Monuments.

On motion of Freeholder Gruener received and placed on file.

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders.

Gentlemen—Your committee to which was referred the matter of unpaid bills submitted from laborers on Edgar road, report that they have met with Mr. Winans, the contractor, the County Attorney and Engineer.

Mr. Winans claims that money was paid by him to W. D. Cassoni, the sub-contractor, and that he also notified the men to look to him for the money. Mr. Cassoni did not pay the men but left for his home in Allentown.

Your committee was advised by the County Attorney not to recognize the bills as the county was not responsible.

Respectfully submitted,
E. K. ADAMS.
H. KROUSE.
S. P. T. WILBUR.
P. MEISEL,
Committee.

On motion of Freeholder Smith received and placed on file.

Board of Chosen Freeholders of Union County.

Gentlemen—Your auditor respectfully reports:

I have examined the books and vouchers of the Surrogate, Sheriff, Registrar and County Clerk and find the same correct.

The net receipts are:

Surrogate	$1,087.30
Sheriff	1,023.01
Registrar	1,625.09
County Clerk	397.13

Which amount has been turned over to the County Collector.

Respectfully,
P. KING,
Auditor.

On motion of Freeholder Jensen received and placed on file.

Report of Committee on North Avenue Bridge, Cranford, N. J.

In carrying out the plans of building this bridge it seems to your committee desirable to alter the plans in so far as the fence is concerned, and to substitute for the fence planned for the structure another type of fencing which will be more ornate and also more substantial.

Your committee is of the opinion that as this bridge is almost in the heart of the village of Cranford, the situation requires a fence design of first-class appearance.

Your committee would therefore recommend and here offers this resolution to that effect:

Resolved, That the committee on this bridge be authorized to have placed on this bridge another type of railing, according to plans submitted by contractor, the additional cost of the work to be not more than $300.

Respectfully submitted,
E. K. ADAMS,
P. H. MEISEL,
C. A. SMITH,
W. J. THOMPSON,
WILLIAM H. GARRISON,
Committee.

Freeholder Meisel moved that the report be received and recommendation adopted, which was so ordered without dissent.

By Committee n Jail Inspection.

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders of Union County.

Gentlemen—Your committee on Jail Inspection would respectfully report that it has inspected the jail, also the books of the Warden.

Total number of prisoners in custody, January 1	72
In custody February 1	69

JOSEPH PERRY,
J. H. DOANE,
Committee.

On motion of Freeholder Doane received and placed on file.

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders of Union County.

Gentlemen—Whereas, the Government of the United States having authorized the issuance, on application, and without cost, of headstones of the following description, to mark the graves of soldiers, sailors and marines who served in the army or navy of the United States during the war or insurrection, (including the Revolution), whether regular or volunteer, and whether they died in the service or since their muster out or discharge therefrom; therefore be it

Resolved, That the Committee on Soldiers Monuments be authorized to make application to the Quartermaster-General, U. S. Army, for such stones as General J. Madison Drake, hereby charged with the duty of locating the graves and furnishing the inscription, as ascertained to be necessary, said stones to be delivered free of expense to the county at the nearest railroad station, and that the same be erected at the graves of the dead heroes.

Your committee respectively adds for the information of the board that the graves of the soldiers of the War of 1812, and those of the Mexican War, of which there are a considerable number in our cemeteries, are unmarked. If this loving task to our heroic defenders is ever to be done, no more fitting time than the present can be chosen.

The only expense to the county attending this matter will be for the erection of the aforesaid stones.

J. H. DOANE,
JOSEPH PERRY,
W. H. RANDOLPH,
E. K. ADAMS,
C. J. JENSEN,
Committee

Freeholder Perry moved that the report be received and adopted. It was so ordered without dissent.

By Freeholder Doane.

Resolved, That a committee of five be appointed to confer with a committee of the Somerset County Freeholders and investigate the necessity and probable cost of a bridge over Green Brook on Albert street, Plainfield, and report at a future meeting of this board. Freeholder Randolph moved the adoption of the resolution and on roll call it was unanimously adopted.

The Director appointed as the said committee Freeholders Doane, Wilbur, Gruener, Perry and Swain.

By Freeholder Adams.

Resolved, That a committee of three be appointed to examine the old bridge in Normandie place and Sixth street, Cranford, N. J., and to report at subsequent meeting of this board as to the advisibility of reconstructing the same, to the proper grade of the street, together with the probable cost of the work.

Freeholder Thompson moved the adoption of the resolution, which on roll call was unanimously adopted.

The Director appointed as the said committee Freeholders Adams, Jensen and Crane.

By Freeholder Wilbur.

Whereas, the members of the Military Board of the State of New Jersey constitute a commission under and by virtue of the provision of an act entitled "An act to provide for the purchase of sites for and the erection and equipment of armories in cities of the first and second class, and making appropriations therefor and to provide for the taking of real estate for such sites by commission in case the same cannot be purchased by agreement," approved March 23, 1888, and the several supplements and amendments thereto, have caused to be served upon the County Collector of the County of Union a notice in writing stating that lands suitable for an armory of the National Guard of the State of New Jersey, to be located in the City of Elizabeth, County of Union, having been contracted for, and the County Collector of Union County having notified the board of the action of said commission; and

Whereas, the Board of Chosen Freeholders of this county has not moneys enough on hand to meet the appropriation required to be made under and by virtue of the provision of the act heretofore referred to, to wit, the sum of $25,000 (twenty-five thousand dollars); therefore be it

Resolved, That the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union do hereby authorize and direct bonds of the county to the extent and amount of $25,000 to be issued; said bonds to be designated as "Armory Bonds," that said bonds shall be for the sum of $25 000 and the amount of $1,000 each payable in fifteen years from the date thereof, with interest at the rate of four per cent. per annum, payable semi-annually, principal and interest payable at the National State Bank at Elizabeth, N. J.; that said bonds shall be signed by the Director of the Board of Freeholders of the County of Union, and the County Collector of said county, and sealed with the seal of this board, properly numbered and the registry kept by this board, and that said bonds be coupon zonds, said coupons to be signed by the Director of the board, and to be numbered to correspond to the several bonds to which they shall be severally attached; provided, however, that the fac-simile signature of said Director may be engraved or lithographed on said coupon, in lieu of actual signature; and be it further

Resolved That the Director of the board and the County Collector be and are hereby authorized to cause said bonds to be prepared, printed and executed; and be it further

Resolved, That in accordance with the provision of said act said bonds are to be sold at public or private sale, for an amount not less than par value thereof, and that the proceeds of the sale of said bonds shall be retained by the County Collector and be by him paid out upon the written requisition of the aforesaid commission in accordance with the provision of said act.

Freeholder Smith moved the adoption of the resolution and on roll call it was unimously adopted.

By Freeholder Krouse.

Resolved, That the bill of James C. Parks for $819.93 for new State Aid Roads be paid when properly audited by the committee and approved by County Engineer Bauer.

Freeholder Krouse moved the adoption of the resolution and on roll call it was unanimously adopted.

By Freeholder Garrison.

Whereas, it has been certified to the Board of Freeholders of Union county, New Jersey, that a suitable plot of ground has been secured at the intersection of Magnolia avenue and Walnut street, in the City of Elizabeth, by the committee representing the State Military Board as the State Armory Commission, and

Whereas this board has appropriated the sum of $25,000 for the acquirement of such site and the furnishing and equipment of the proposed armory when built, as provided by statute; therefore be it

Resolved, That we respectfully petition the honorable representatives from this county in the State Legislature to do all in their power to secure a sufficient appropriation to provide for the speedy erection of a suitable building for armory purposes on the site herein before mentioned, and be it further

Resolved, That the clerk of the board forward to Senator Ackerman and Assemblymen Pierce, Thompson and Schwartz a certified copy of this resolution.

On motion of Freeholder Krouse the resolution was adopted without dissent.

By Freeholder Gruener.

Resolved, That a committee of three be appointed to examine the Monroe street bridge, Rahway, N. J., and report at a subsequent meeting as to the advisability of replacing the present old wooden flooring with a permanent concrete one, together with the probable cost of the work.

On motion of Freeholder Randolph the resolution was adopted without dissent.

The Director appointed as the said committee Freeholders Gruener, Martin and Robison.

By Freeholder Krouse.

Resolved, That the County Collector be hereby authoribed to pay the money appropriated to hospitals as follows:

Elizabeth General Hospital	$8,000
Alexian Hospital	3,000
St. Elizabeth Hospital	3,750
Muhlenberg Hospital	2,000

Her meaning was obvious to him if her language was not. It equally was evident to her that he had no desire whatever to proceed with his task, but he was still under the constraint of her superior personality and presently he did as she bade him. It amused her to reflect that to all the other lessons, so remarkable as almost to make his brain reel and whirl, he was now learning the lesson of toil. If she could only keep pace with these great abstract concepts she was putting into his being by giving him some mental realization of them, so that the spiritual development would keep pace with the practical, she would be thoroughly satisfied with her educational processes.

She mused on the problem as he labored silently and vigorously. He stopped once or twice, but she kept him to it, a feat vastly greater than she realized, until the interior of the boat, which was a small ship's boat, a dinghy, had been entirely cleared out. She had watched carefully every spadeful of sand which had been tossed over the buried gunwales and now she searched eagerly the boat itself. Her inspection revealed nothing. There were lockers at either end. These she opened, finding nothing therein but mouldering remains of cloth, bags of some sort which she surmised might have contained ship's bread, and a little barrel or keg, which had probably carried water for the voyagers.

The boat appeared to be in an excellent state of preservation. There were even a pair of oars lying on the thwarts. If she could have dug it out of the sand entirely, she fancied she could have launched it and used it. But such a task was utterly beyond her. Besides there would have been no gain in having the boat afloat. She would not dare to take it out beyond the barrier reef and there was nothing to row for in the lagoon.

She easily broke the rotting lines with which the oars were secured and took them out. They would be useful perhaps in some way. And then after a long look at the boat and with a feeling that her labor had been mainly wasted, she was about to turn away when the thought struck her that sometimes boats carried the names of the ships to which they belonged on their bows or across their sterns. She had recourse to the shovel once more, and after some deliberation essayed the stern of the boat.

It was not so hard to shovel the sand away from it and here she did make a discovery, for although the letters had been almost obliterated by the action of the sand, she could still make them out. After some study she decided that the name of the boat, or of the ship to which it had belonged, had been Nansemond of Norfolk, Virginia. That was the net result of the hard labors of a long morning. It told her something, but not much. Assuming that the man with her was John Revell Charnock and assuming that he had come to the island in the past on that boat, it indicated that he was at least an American and a Virginian. It identified him, if her suppositions were correct, and whether there was warrant for them or not, instinctively and naturally she concluded that she was correct.

Admitting all this, however, it gave her no clew from which to build a history. The testimony of the boat was interesting, that was all. Her first thought was to leave it where it was, but her second thought was better. With the aid of the stout piece of board which had served her for a shovel, she hammered away at the stern piece until she broke it off. She saw now that the boat must have lain there in the sand for many years, for the wood was brittle and the fastenings largely destroyed, for the stern piece came easily away. She laid it aside for a moment intending to preserve it with the Bible. Heaven knows what dream of future usefulness in the way of evidence establishing identity these might be, entered her mind.

Then she threw herself down under the trees and rested. She had left her watch, her precious watch, back in the cave with the book. She did not dare to carry it around with her. She had no way of carrying it in the thin, single garment which she wore, but she judged from the height of the sun that it must be noon time. They made their meal off the fruits of the island, this time with a rich and juicy cocoanut added, which the man got for her at her suggestion in the sign language at which she was becoming expert, by climbing with wonderful agility, ape-like agility almost, one of the tall cocoanut palms with which the island abounded. There were fruits of various sorts in great plenty on the island and she was becoming accustomed to the diet by degrees.

She passed the noon hour in trying to add to the mental equipment of her companion. He could say a number of words now and had some idea of their meaning, although he had not yet attempted to frame sentences nor had she yet tried to teach him so to do. It was pleasant under the shade of the trees. She found herself marveling at times as to the contentment that possessed her, a product of the age suddenly plunged into the Eden-like existence which her forebears might have enjoyed ten thousand years before.

The hours ran on until the declining sun and the coolness that came with the late afternoon warned her that if she were to continue her explorations she must be about it immediately. So she rose and nerved herself to her task went toward the coppice where lay the ghastly remains of what had been a human being. Forcing herself to the duty with her knife she carefully cut away the rushes, being particular not to disturb the bones of the skeletons. As before she did all this in the face of a vigorous remonstrance from the man. In some way, she could not tell how, the place was horrible to him. He would never have come near it evidently of his own will, and although the power of memory in him was but latent, the impression that had been produced upon him by what she found there at some period in his life was strong enough to make him avoid it forever.

AN ORDINANCE

Providing for the Licensing and Regulating of Peddlers, Hawkers, Cartmen, and the Owners and Drivers of Vehicles used for hire; and Concerning Street Traffic Regulations.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. That the Mayor of said City is hereby authorized to grant licenses under his hand and the seal of the city to so many and to such persons as he shall think proper, of good moral character, and otherwise qualified according to the provisions of this ordinance, and to incorporated companies, to carry on, wholly or in part, within the limits of the city, the business of peddler, hawker or cartman, to drive or keep for use for hire a hack, omnibus, stage, truck, motor vehicle or other vehicle for the transportation of passengers, baggage or merchandise, according to the provisions of this ordinance; and the City Clerk shall keep a detailed record of all licenses so granted.

Sec. 2. That every application for any such license shall be in writing, signed by the applicant, stating his place of residence, and the purpose for which such license is asked. Every applicant for a peddler's or hawker's license shall specify whether he proposes to conduct his business with a horse and wagon or with a handcart or on foot without wheeled vehicle. Every applicant for driver's license shall endorse on his application the names of three reputable citizens to whom reference is made as to the character of the applicant. Every applicant for a license for a motor vehicle shall set forth in his application that his motor vehicle has seating capacity for at least four passengers, and that he has equipped his said motor vehicle with a taxameter of standard make affixed to the front axle of said motor vehicle and so constructed and adjusted as to indicate automatically on the dial of said taxameter the charges for distance in accordance with the charges fixed by this ordinance. Every applicant under this ordinance for a license of any kind shall definitely agree in his said application to conform to and abide by the regulations prescribed or to be prescribed hereafter by the Board of Police of the City of Plainfield with the approval of the Mayor, to regulate traffic upon the public streets and with respect to the standing and movement of vehicles at or near the several railroad stations and other places of public assemblage or crowded vehicular traffic.

Sec. 3. That no person or corporation shall pursue, or in any manner carry on, as owner or as agent for another, within the limits of said city, the business of peddler or hawker without being first licensed therefor, according to the provisions of this ordinance, under a penalty of ten dollars for each and every offense, provided that nothing herein contained shall prevent farmers and gardeners from selling the products of the farms owned or occupied by them, or milkmen from carrying on their business in said city without a license under this ordinance.

Sec. 4. That no person or corporation shall drive, keep or use for hire or wages, or cause to be driven, kept or used for hire or wages any cart, truck, hack, omnibus, stage, motor vehicle or other vehicle for the transportation of passengers, baggage or merchandise of any kind, wholly or in part within the limits of said city, without being first licensed therefor, according to the provisions of this ordinance, under penalty of ten dollars for each and every offense, (provided that none of the requirements contained in this section shall apply to owners or drivers of any livery stable vehicles, other than those vehicles kept by them for the use of passengers solicited at the railway stations or elsewhere within the city limits. One license and only one shall be required for each cart, truck, hack, omnibus, stage, motor vehicle or other vehicle, but for each driver other than the owner of such licensed cart, truck, hack, omnibus, stage, motor vehicle or other vehicle, a separate license shall be required.

Sec. 5. That each license granted under the provisions of this ordinance shall expire on the first day of March next following the granting of the same, and shall state the object for which it is given, the name of the person or corporation licensed, the number of the license, and the date of its expiration, and shall be signed by the Mayor and attested by the City Clerk and countersigned by the Chief of Police.

Sec. 6. That for licenses under this ordinance the fees to be paid shall be as follows:

For license as aforesaid:

(a) To the owner in case of a hack, omnibus or stage with one horse $5.00
(b) To the owner in case of a hack, omnibus or stage with two horses $7.50
(c) To the owner in case of an expressman with one horse and wagon $5.00
(d) To the owner in case of an expressman with two horses and wagon $7.50
(e) To the owner in case of a truckman with one horse and wagon. $5.00
(f) To the owner in case of a truckman with two horses and wagon $7.50
(g) To the owner in case of a cartman with one horse and wagon. $5.00
(h) To the owner in case of a curtman with two horses and wagon $7.50
(i) To the owner in case of a motor vehicle, as defined in Chapter 113 of the Laws of New Jersey for the year 1906..... $10.00
(j) To the driver in case of a separate driver's license additional to the owner's license..... $1.00
(k) To the owner in case of a peddler with one horse and wagon. $25.00
(l) To the owner in case of a peddler with hand-cart..... $20.00
(m) To the owner in case of a peddler on foot without wheeled vehicle $15.00

A duly licensed expressman, truckman or cartman may have one assistant for each licensed wagon. A duly licensed peddler with horse and wagon may have one assistant and only one.

In each instance the license fee shall be paid to the City Clerk prior to the issuing of the license, and shall be paid by the City Clerk to the City Treasurer for the use of the city. In addition to the fee for license herein-above specified, every person or corporation licensed shall prior to receiving his or its license pay to the City Clerk the City Clerk's fee of fifty cents for issuing the license.

Also in addition in each case $1.00 to be deposited with the Chief of Police for badge, said $1.00 to be returned on return of badge.

Sec. 7. That no person licensed under this ordinance nor any person in the employ of any person or corporation licensed under this ordinance, shall stand or remain upon any sidewalk or in any street or any other public place in this city, for the purpose of soliciting custom or selling or exposing for sale any wares or merchandise longer than ten minutes at any one time, if requested to move from any such place by any officer of the city, or by the owner or occupant of any premises in front of or opposite which any such person may then be as aforesaid; but upon such request to move, such person so requested shall move with the vehicle, goods, wares and merchandise in his charge to a point at least 250 feet distant from the point from which he may be requested to move before stopping for the purpose of soliciting custom; and at no time shall any person or corporation licensed under this ordinance, or any person in the employ of such licensed person or corporation, solicit custom in such way as to obstruct travel or cause annoyance or damage to any person, or solicit custom or proclaim merchandise for sale in a loud or boisterous manner; and at all times any person licensed under this ordinance, or any one in the employ of any person or corporation licensed under this ordinance, shall move from any point in any public place or street at which such person may be awaiting or soliciting custom or selling or exposing for sale any wares and merchandise, when requested so to do by any police officer of the city. And any and every person who or corporation which shall violate any of the provisions of this section shall, on conviction, be punished by a fine not exceeding twenty dollars. Provided, that nothing in this section shall be construed to prevent the licensed hackmen, expressmen or truckmen from standing with their vehicles on North Avenue for a longer time then ten minutes subject to the other provisions of this ordinance.

Sec. 8. That every person or corporation so licensed with respect to any hack, omnibus, stage, motor vehicle or other vehicle for the transportation of passengers must have a lamp on both sides of each vehicle which must be lighted from one hour after sunset to one hour before sunrise and shall as soon as licensed, cause the number of his or its license to be permanently and conspicuously placed or painted in figures, not less than one inch and a half in height, upon the outside of the lamps on both sides of each vehicle for which said license shall have been granted, and every person so licensed, and the driver of every such vehicle shall wear in a conspicuous place upon his person while engaged in the business for which the license shall have been granted, so as to be easily seen, a badge to be furnished by the city, with the corresponding number thereon, and shall also place and keep fastened within his vehicle in a conspicuous place to be designated by the Chief of Police, a card or plate to be furnished by the city, with the words, "Hack License," and the number of the license and the year for which it was issued and also a card or plate to be furnished by the city specifying the rates of fare and other regulations.

Every expressman, truckman and cartman, as soon as he or it receives a license shall fasten permanently on each side of his or its wagon a plate to be furnished by the city with the words, "Licensed Expressman," "Licensed Truckman," or "Licensed Cartman," as the case may be, with the number of the license and the year and date for which issued, and every such license and every driver therefor shall also wear a badge, which will be furnished by the city, on which the number of the license is plainly displayed. All cartmen licensed for the collection of ashes and other waste material shall provide themselves with wagons or carts to be approved by the Street Commissioner and shall sign an agreement to transport and dump and must transport and dump all such material in places designated or to be designated by the Street Commissioner. Any violation of any of the foregoing provisions of this section shall not only subject the party licensed and the driver to the penalty hereinafter provided, but for the second offense, to a revocation of the license.

Every peddler with horse and wagon shall as soon as licensed place on each side of his or its wagon a plate to be furnished by the city giving the number of his or its license and the year for which licensed, and every such person, and every person acting on behalf of a corporation so licensed, shall wear on his person in a conspicuous place, a badge to be furnished by the city with the corresponding number. If the wagon or badge is loaned, hired or allowed to be used by any other person than the person lawfully entitled, that shall constitute an offense under this section, and in addition to the penalty hereinafter provided, shall subject the owner to a revocation of the license.

Every person licensed as a peddler with hand-cart or on foot without wheeled vehicle, and every person acting on behalf of a corporation so licensed, shall wear on his person in a conspicuous place a badge, to be furnished by the city, with the number of the license, and if this badge is loaned or hired or allowed to be used by any other person than the person lawfully entitled to wear it, that shall constitute an offense under this section, and in addition to the penalty hereinafter provided, shall subject the owner to a revocation of the license. Every person or corporation violating any of the provisions of this section of the ordinance, shall, on conviction thereof, be punished by a fine not exceeding twenty dollars for each offense.

Sec. 9. That any license granted under this ordinance may be suspended or revoked by the Mayor or City Judge upon proof to the satisfaction of either that such licensed person, or in case of a corporation, any person acting on its behalf, has been guilty of fraud with respect to making charges against any passenger or passengers, or that the owner or driver of any motor vehicle has practiced fraud with respect to the recording by his taxameter of the distance traveled, or the charges for distance, or has violated any other city ordinance, or without justifiable cause has been disrespectful toward any passenger or toward any person seeking to become a passenger; provided that no license shall be so suspended or revoked without reasonable opportunity first afforded to the licensed person or corporation to be heard on his or its own behalf; and every person or corporation who or which shall during the suspension or after the revocation of his or its license, carry on the business for which such license was granted, shall, on conviction, be punished by a fine not exceeding twenty dollars for each offense.

Sec. 10. That any person or corporation licensed under this ordinance to use for hire or wages any hack, omnibus, stage, motor vehicle or other vehicle for the carriage of passengers, may charge therefor the following rates, but no more, that is to say:

(a) As to all vehicles except "motor vehicles" as defined in chaper 113 of the Laws of New Jersey for the year 1906, for the carriage of any passenger or passengers from any point within to any point within that part of the city included within the following boundaries; that is to say: beginning at a point where the northeasterly side line of Johnston Avenue produced would intersect Green Brook; thence along said line and the northeasterly side line of Johnston Avenue to North Avenue; thence in the same course in a direct line to the northwesterly side line of South Avenue; thence along said side line of South Avenue to the easterly side line of Woodland Avenue, produced; thence along said line and the easterly line of Woodland Avenue to the southerly side line of Martine Avenue; thence along said side line of Martine Avenue to the easterly side line of Hillside Avenue; thence along said side line of Hillside Avenue to the southerly side line of Randolph Road; thence along said side line of Randolph Road to the southwesterly side line of Plainfield Avenue; thence in a straight line to the intersection of the southwesterly side line of Spooner Avenue with the southeasterly side line of West Eighth Street; thence along said side line of West Eighth Street to the southwesterly side line of Grant Avenue; thence along said side line of Grant Avenue to the southwesterly side line of West End Avenue to the northwesterly city line in Green Brook; thence following the northwesterly city line to the intersection of said city line with the northeasterly side line of Johnston Avenue, produced, the point and place of beginning; twenty-five cents for one passenger carried and fifty cents for two or three passengers carried from the same point to the same destination at the same time and from any point within to any point without the aforesaid limits the further sum of twenty-five cents for one, two or three passengers, in additioon to the sum above provided; provided, however that after twelve o'clock at night until five o'clock in the morning, the charges may be double the said fares; and whenever any such hack, omnibus, stage or other vehicle shall be engaged by the hour the person licensed to use for hire or wages any such hack, omnibus, stage or other vehicle may charge one dollar for the first hour and seventy-five cents for each additional hour.

(b) As to all "motor vehicles" as defined in Chapter 113 of the Laws of New Jersey for the year 1906: For any number of passengers from one to four inclusive, for the first half mile or fraction thereof, thirty cents, for each quarter mile thereafter, ten cents; for each six minutes waiting, ten cents; and for ordering such motor vehicle within one mile and a half from any stand or station to the point ordered at which the passenger or passengers enter said motor vehicle, no charge shall be made; and for ordering such motor vehicle more than a mile and a half from any stand or station to the point at which the passenger or passengers enter said motor vehicle, a charge may be made at the rate of twenty cents for each mile or fraction thereof in excess of one mile and a half; provided that children under ten years of age shall not be counted as passengers if accompanied by older persons.

(c) That any person licensed under this ordinance as Expressman may charge for the delivery of each trunk, bag or other piece of baggage the following rates but no more, that is to say: from any point within to any point within the boundaries described in paragraph (a), twenty-five cents and from any point within to any point without said boundaries, fifty cents.

That every person or corporation licensed as aforesaid and the driver of every hack, omnibus, stage, motor vehicle or other vehicle for the carriage of passengers or baggage who shall demand for any service mentioned in this section more than the amount or rate fixed herein for such service shall, on conviction thereof, be punished by a fine not exceeding twenty dollars for the first offense, and by a fine not exceeding twenty dollars and a forfeiture of the license which may have been issued, for any offense subsequent to the first.

Sec. 11. That the first applicant to any person or corporation licensed to drive, keep or use for hire or wages any hack, omnibus, stage, motor vehicle or other vehicle for the transportation of passengers wholly or in part within the limits of the City of Plainfield, shall be entitled to conveyance to any point that that said applicant may desire to reach within the city limits, and any refusal on the part of the driver or owner of such licensed vehicle to comply with the request shall render liable said owner or driver to a fine not exceeding twenty dollars for the first offense, and twenty dollars for a second offense, and twenty dollars and the revocation of the license for a third offense.

Sec. 12. No owner or driver of any hack, omnibus, stage, motor vehicle or other vehicle shall, for the purpose of securing custom, occupy with his vehicle any portion of the street in front of any railroad station or any place of public assemblage or entertainment in such a manner as to obstruct public travel. It shall not be lawful at or near the said railroad stations or at or near any place of public assemblage or entertainment for the owner or driver of or any person connected with any such vehicle or any person acting for or in the interest of the owner or driver of any such vehicle, to proceed beyond the curb line for the purpose of soliciting or securing custom, and it shall not be lawful for any such aforesaid person to solicit custom in a noisy, persistent or offensive manner. Any person or corporation violating any of the provisions of this section shall, on conviction thereof, be punished by a fine not exceeding twenty dollars for each offense.

Sec. 13. The Board of Police of the City of Plainfield, with the approval of the Mayor, is hereby authorized to prescribe and promulgate from time to time reasonable regulations, not inconsistent herewith, with respect both to licensed and unlicensed vehicles, to regulate street traffic generally, and particularly to regulate the standing and movement of vehicles at or near the several railroad stations and other places of public assemblage or crowded vehicular traffic. It shall be the duty of all owners and drivers of vehicles to comply with such regulations, and any person who or corporation which shall fail to comply with any of such regulations shall be deemed guilty of violating this section, and, on conviction thereof, shall be subject to a fine not exceeding twenty dollars for each offense. The intention of the Common Council is that this section shall be deemed to be separable from the other sections of this ordinance, and not essential to the validity of said other sections.

Sec. 14. That if any section of this ordinance shall for any reason be held to be unconstitutional or invalid, it shall not affect the other provisions of this ordinance.

Sec. 15. That the Ordinance entitled "An Ordinance to provide for the licensing and regulation of peddlers, hawkers, cartmen, motor vehicle, hack, omnibus, stage and truck owners and drivers," approved March 14, 1882; and ordinances amendatory thereof and supplemental thereto; and the ordinance entitled "An Ordinance to regulate the standing of hacks, stages, etc.," approved December 16, 1874, and ordinances amendatory thereof and supplemental thereto; and all other ordinances and parts of ordinances inconsistent herewith, be and the same are hereby repealed, and all ordinances and parts of ordinances which were repealed or abrogated by any ordinance hereby repealed shall continue to be so repealed and shall be deemed abrogated.

Adopted by the Common Council, Feb. 18, 1910; approved by the Mayor, Feb. 18, 1910.

JERSEY CITY ELKS WALLOP PLAINFIELD

Wanted—A rabbit's foot or hoodoo exterminator, with or without wings—Harry Van Emburgh, captain of the Elks' Bowling team.

Plainfield Elks are in a rut. Six times have Captain Van Emburgh's men tasted defeat this week and knocked all championship chances in the air. The Jersey City five visited Campbell's drives last night and trounced the local Antlers in three straight games.

There is only one side to the story. The locals smashed the pins in punk style. There were pinochle splits and all sorts of splits, blows, breaks and misses. These mishaps accompanied by the groans of Chief Rooter John Cose, who tried in vain to carry the locals through the hoodoo cloud were the chief features of the disaster.

The visitors from Skeeterville did not have to exert themselves in the initial clash and they won handily by the score of 868 to 813; in the second battle they did big things and snowed the locals under by a score of 955 to 880; in the final game the Van Emburgh aggregation lost its bearings and put up only a feeble resistance and totaled a paltry 799 to Jersey City's 859.

Eddie Laing carried off the high and booby honors for Plainfield. His star performance was 222 and the other 118. The scores:

PARK CLUB BOWLERS TAKE THREE STRAIGHT

The Park Club bowling team is making an excellent record in the Central Journal Bowling League tournament this season, and by taking three straight games from the Jersey City Club, last night, on the local alleys, have a good chance to land in first place. The Parks have won thirteen of the last fifteen games rolled.

The Parks had on their bowling togs last night, being determined to win all three games. They took the first by a score of 925 to 854, the second by a score of 889 to 855 and the third by a score of 935 to 866.

Mulford, the veteran, was high man for the local team, putting up a 217 in the third game, while Lond was a close second with 214 in the second game. Lyman was there with the goods in the second game, rolling 205, while Ball was in good form, as was shown by his 202 score in the first game. There was some good work in the third game, when Barlow put up a 193 and Lyman a 190. Long's 182 also helped materially to take this game.

Packer, of Jersey City, was high man for his team, putting up a 210 in the second game, with Miller second with a 192 in the third. The other scores were only average ones and not calculated to win championships. The scores:

TO CALL HIM AS PASTOR

Park Avenue Congregation Want Rev. Mr. Maguire for Their Minister.

MAKES MARKED IMPRESSION.

Expected That the Trustees Will Issue a Formal Call This Week —Preached Here Twice Yesterday.

Rev. G. R. Maguire, of Cleveland, Ohio, who was invited to preach at the Park Avenue Baptist church, yesterday morning and evening as a candidate, made a most favorable impression, and undoubtedly a call will be extended to him this week to become the pastor of the church to succeed Rev. A. E. Finn. Both services were largely attended by worshippers and all were agreed as to th wisdom of giving Mr. Maguire a call.

In the morning Mr. Maguire preached on the subject of "Faith," and in the evening his theme was "Unselfishness," as exemplified in Christ and the two thieves on the Cross. He pictured Christ as death to sin. Both sermons were practical, straight Gospel talks and in the evening he held the undivided attention of his large congregation for nearly an hour and a quarter.

Mr. Maguire has been offered large sums of money to go on the lecture platform, but he says that he wants to preach the Gospel and will not leave the ministry. He desires to locate near New York and provided a call is extended to him, he will doubtless accept it. He has been highly recommened by Rev. Dr. Charles A. Eaton, formerly of Cleveland. Mr. Maguire now has a church with a membership of nearly nine hundred and preaches every Sunday night to a congregation of over one thousand people. He preaches without notes and is a forceful spsaker.

"FANS" WILL HONOR WM. KEELER TONIGHT

Captain "Wee Willie" Keeler, of the New York Americans, will be the biggest man in town tonight, when he will be the guest at a banquet to be given in his honor at Hotel Iroquois. Billy has always batted around the .300 mark, but tonight he will register a percentage of 1,000 by making a hit every time he steps to the plate—or looks on over it.

That the affair is going to be one of the biggest festive board occasions in local history is cocksure. Judge William N. Runyon is going to be the toastmaster. The judge has been seasoning his bat for the past two weeks, and it is certain that he will land a few timely wallops against the fence. Judge Runyon will have some valuable assistance in the speaking line as Samuel St. John McCutchen, Mayor Newton B. Smalley, Councilman L. B. Woolston, Andrew E. Kenney and John A. Gaffney will be on the speaking line.

Then there is the "heavy artillery" from Newark, which includes Arthur Irwin, the "Peerless Scout," of the New York Americans; Joseph P. Norton, sporting editor of the Newark Evening News. The latter paper will also be represented by former Assemblyman Joseph Gunn, its "bike" expert; Frank Higgins, telegraph editor; William "Song" Bedell, news editor, and Charles Smith and William Huber, of the sporting staff. Sporting Editor Eddie Duffy, of the Newark Evening Star, is also going to be present.

One of the features of the banquet will be the singing. "Billy" Bedell, of Newark, has composed a number of songs for the occasion, and the music will be directed by Judge Runyon and Johnny Campbell, king of the local bowling world.

Word was received from Keeler by the committee this morning that he will arrive in town at 7 o'clock.

Eagles' Anniversary.

Freedom Castle, Knights of the Golden Eagle, is making elaborate preparations for its anniversary celebration, which will be held at the Park Club on Wednesday night. The committee in charge is Caspar Waglow, J. O. Randall, Charles Overbaugh, R. H. Barnard and L. A. Hummer, Jr.

BRIGHT YOUNG MAN DIES

Harold Lawrence Mulford is a Victim of Pleuro-pneumonia.

WON HONORS IN SCHOOL.

Bishop David H. Greer to Officiate at Funeral—Pawling School Masters and Students to Attend the Services.

One of the bravest losing fights ever put up was that in which Harold Lawrence Mulford succumbed to the grim destroyer, yesterday morning at 6:30. Pleuro-pneumonia was the cause of death. Young Mr. Mulford was the son of Mrs. Charles Alexander Pomeroy, 110 Park place. His father was the late S. P. Mulford, and he was born in New York city January 30, 1891, where he resided with his parents until eight years ago, when he came to Plainfield.

Mr. Mulford received his preparatory schooling at Leal's School, afterwards going to St. Paul's School at Garden City, L. I. Here he remained for three years graduating with the highest honors in his class and having won many medals and other prizes for efficiency in his studies. After leaving St. Paul's Harold went to Pawling School, Pawling, N. Y., where he repeated his successes, winning approbation with his splendid application to study and ranking high in all of the various branches of the school work including athletics. Here again he displayed his remarkable ability as a student, capturing prize after prize and finally the gold medal at the end of the last school year.

Young Mr. Mulford's remarkable versatility in composition had marked him as a coming genius in a literary way and his kindly and genial companionship was much sought after by his fellow students. He has been complimented for his ability by no less a personage than DeLancy Nicoll, former District Attorney of New York city, whom he met on board the Lusitania, on the way home from Europe last summer. The young man had traveled extensively and had a knowledge possessed but by few boys of his years.

The funeral will be held on Wednesday afternoon from his late home at 2:30 in the afternoon. Headmaster Dr. Ganade, of Pawling School, accompanied by the entire faculty and student body will attend the services which will be conducted by Bishop David H. Greer, of New York city. The bearers will be selected from among his former school companions.

CRAIG A. MARSH WINS A BIG LEGAL VICTORY

Somerville has just had a legal skirmish with the Somerville Water Company, in which the latter was worsted. The concern started to lay a big water main through the borough and the police force under the direction of the mayor stopped the work and arrested the workmen. The concern began suit in Chancery for injunction, claiming that it had a charter right to lay the main. The borough retained Craig A. Marsh as special counsel to assist the borough counsel, James L. Griggs.

Alvah A. Clark and Clarence E. Case, as counsel for the Water Company, moved for a preliminary injunction to restrain the borough from interfering with the laying of the main. The argument was heard by Vice-Chancellor Walker. Besides oral argument at Trenton, two voluminous briefs on both sides were subsequently submitted, and the vice-chancellor held the case under consideration until Saturday, when he announced his conclusions in favor of the borough. He denied the preliminary injunction on two of the points made and authorities cited for the borough, his memorandum opinion concluding as follows:

"In this case the water company claims the unrestricted right to make the improvements mentioned without the consent of the borough and in spite of its resistence. Upon this preliminary inquiry I am unwilling to say that that right exists, but, on the contrary I rather incline to the opinion that the company's rights in the premises are subject to the municipality's reasonable control of its streets and highways by way of police regulation. The question of complainant's righ here involved is at least one of doubt and the rule is settled that where the complainant's right is doubtful a preliminary injunction may not be issued. I am therefore constrained to the conclusion that the prayer for a preliminary injunction must be denied."

MRS. J. E. TRACY IS DEAD

Former Plainfielder Passes Away in New York, Aged Seventy Years.

OF DISTINGUISHED ANCESTRY.

Her Mother a Sister of William M. Evarts—Funeral Services Here Tomorrow Afternoon.

Mrs. J. Evarts Tracy, formerly of this city, died on Saturday at her home, 612 West 132d street, New York, in her seventyfirst year, from a general breakdown in health. She is survived by her husband, J. Evarts Tracy, three sons and five daughters. The sons are: Howard C. and Evarts, of this city, and William E., of Telluride, Colorado. The daughters, Misses Emily B. and Edith H., of New York city; Mary E., of Yokohama, Japan, now at home on a vacation from her missionary work; Mrs. Melvin Mix, of Muncie, Indiana, and Dr. Margaret Tracy, a professor in the Women's Medical College, of Philadelphia, Pa.

The funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 o'clock at the residence of Howard C. Tracy, 1331 Prospect avenue, and will be conducted by Rev. Dr. John Sheridan Zelie and Rev. Dr. K. P. Ketcham. The interment will be in Hillside cemetery. The pall bearers will be Charles F. Abbott, L. N. Lovell, John M. Whiton, Samuel Huntington, W. L. C. Glenny and George H. Goddard.

Mrs. Tracy was born at Roxbury, Mass., in 1839, and was the daughter of Rev. Dr. David Green. Her mother was Mary Evarts, a sister of William H. Evarts, the great statesman. She came to Plainfield in 1874 and lived here until two years ago, when she removed to New York. Mrs. Tracy was a member of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, and was prominently identified with every enterprise in the city conducted in the interests of humanity. She was a member of the women's auxiliary board of Muhlenberg Hospital, the Monday Afternoon Club and other associations.

YOUNG WOMAN DIES ON WAY TO CHURCH

Miss Cora Marion Coyle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Coyle of Waynewood Park, died suddenly in the home of Randolph Marsh, 310 Plainfield avenue, of heart trouble, following an attack of faintness which seized her as she was passing the Marsh home. Miss Coyle was in company with her sister on the way to attend the 9:30 mass in St. Mary's church when stricken. Father B. M. Bogan, who had just started his sermon, was summoned from his pulpit, but the young woman was beyond human aid when he arrived on the sad scene.

Dr. Marcus Clawson, closely followed by City Physician C. F. Lufburrow, could do nothing to restore to consciousness the young woman, as she expired five minutes after being laid on the lounge in the Marsh house. Miss Coyle was apparently in the best of health when she left her home for the church and had just reached the corner of Plainfield avenue and Fourth street when she was seized. She was in her twenty-fifth year.

She is survived besides her parents by three sisters, Mrs. Percival Martin, Jeane and Sadie Coyle, and two brothers, Charles and William, all of this city. The funeral will be held tomorrow morning at 9:30 from St. Mary's church and the interment will be in St. Mary's cemetery.

Miss Coyle enjoyed the friendship of a large number of friends in this city who were greatly shocked and grieved to learn of her untimely demise.

A sad circumstance connected with the death of Miss Coyle came in the nature of telegram to Mr. Coyle yesterday after the death of his daughter. Mr. Coyle on arriving at his home found a telegram announcing the death of his sister, Mrs. Mary Maloney, at Easton, Pa. Mrs. Maloney had been ill for some time.

Will Give a Colonial Party.

Rehearsals for the Colonial party to be given at the Y. W. C. A., tomorrow night, have been progressing satisfactorily. "The Heroines of the Revolution" will appear in costume, each one introducing herself with a few appropriate words. Refreshments will be served. An invitation is extended to all young women.

BOLD DAYLIGHT ROBBERY

Daring Thief Stole $500 from Dunellen Express Office Saturday Afternoon.

A bold daylight robbery, in which $500 in bills was taken from the U. S. Express Company's office at Dunellen, was successfully executed on Saturday afternoon. The thief left no clue as to his identity but the company's detectives are working on the case. It appears to be the general impression that the robbery was perpetrated by a person who was acquainted with the office.

The money was old bills which had been received by the Dunellen bank to forward to Washington for the exchange of new bills. Councilman George Huff, the Dunellen agent of the company, received the money and placed it in the usual style of envelope and left it in a book on his desk.

Mr. Huff had occasion to step out of the office on business for a few minutes. Constable Robert L. Pierce was there at the time Mr. Huff left, but he knew nothing of the latter leaving the money on his desk. Mr. Pierce left the office before Mr. Huff's return without locking the door. The two men were out of the office about fifteen minutes and it was during that space of time that the money was stolen.

Discovery was made by Mr. Huff when he returned to the office. The envelope was taken from the book, the money extracted, and the envelope left on the window. Mr. Huff immediately notified the headquarters of the company at Philadelphia

HELD FOR GRAND JURY ON ASSAULT CHARGE

Alfred Turman, a colored man, who was wanted by the local police on a charge of assault and battery committed on February 4, on Max Morris, of 419 John street, was captured on Saturday at Bloomfield by Detective Sergeant John Flynn, and arraigned this morning before Judge William Runyon. Turman demanded an immediate hearing and after listening to both sides of the alleged assault Judge Runyon held Turman in the sum of $500 to await the action of the grand jury.

This is not the first time that Turman has been accused of assault, he having severely beaten John Ord, a bell boy at Truell Hall, on June 9 last. For this offense he was arrested and the hearing of the case was postponed in order to allow both complainant and defendant to bring their witnesses. Turman immediately made himself scarce and the case was never tried. The assault on Morris resulted through the running away of a horse he was driving on West Fourth street on February 4.

Turman stopped the horse and, according to his own story, prevented it running down a woman and child, who were crossing Plainfield avenue. He asked Morris for a quarter for this brave act, but Morris did not have the money. Then Turman did the only thing that occurred to him to do, and slugged Morris on the jaw breaking the bone.

MISS FLORENCE NEIGHBOUR NOW MRS. WILLIAM SMITH.

Miss Florence Neighbour, of East Second street, on Saturday night became the bride of William Smith, of New York. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. C. L. Goodrich, pastor of the Congregational church, at the latter's home. Miss Eva Atkinson was bridesmaid and Edward Koechlein best man.

The bridegroom is the owner of a restaurant business at Brockton, Mass., and Mr. and Mrs. Smith will take up their residence in that city. Following the ceremony a reception and wedding supper was held at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. John Neighbour, on East Second street.

Wedding Anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. Bertram C. Firstbrook, of 312 Liberty street, observed the third anniversary of their wedding on Saturday night by entertaining about twenty-five friends. The decorations were red and white and Mr. and Mrs. Firstbrook were the recipient of numerous presents and congratulations.

BRONZE STATUE OF COTTON THREAD KING CAST BY HINMAN, TO BE PLACED IN NEWARK CEMETERY

The statue recently cast by the Hinman Bronze Works is a life size image of the late P. V. Clark, of Newark, the pioneer in the manufacture of cotton thread in this country whose huge plant is in Newark. It being the first piece of statuary ever cast in this city brings the fact to the notice of the country that such work can be successfully done here. The statue measures five feet three inches in height and represents Mr. Clark seated in his favorite armchair with a closed book in his left hand and a look of meditation on his face.

The casting itself was absolutely flawless when removed from the moulds and the work is so finely done that even the special markings of the sculptor are plainly noticed showing the faithfulness to detail which the founders have followed.

When set up in the family plot in Fairmount cemetery in Newark the statue will rest upon a base of red Missouri granite in two sections—the bottom being 5 feet 4 inches by 6 feet 4 inches; and the upper slab 3 feet 5 inches by 4 feet 8 inches, and three feet high. The entire base is highly polished and bears the simple inscription "P. V. Clark." The design of the statue was executed by John Harrigan from a photograph and the pedestal is from the works of L. L. Manning & Son of West Front street.

Another fine piece of work just completed by the Hinman establishment is the door for the Leeds' mausoleum at Woodlawn cemetery, New York. This door weighs 1,100 pounds and is from a design by John Russell Pope, the well-known architest of New York.

EVENTS SCHEDULED HERE FOR HOLIDAY

Washingtons Birthday, tomorrow, will be generally observed here as a legal holiday. A majority of the merchants will close their stores for the day, the others will close for a half day. There will be plenty in the amusement line to entertain all who wish to remain in the city.

At the Plainfield theatre, afternoon and evening, Ruth St. Denis will appear in her world-famous Hindoo dances, with a fine supporting company. At Proctor's theatre there will be an especially strong bill of vaudeville and films d'art. The show will run continuously from 11 o'clock in the morning until 11 o'clock at night.

The Men's Club of the First Presbyterian church, will give a banquet in the evening at 7 o'clock, with Rev. Dr. F. C. Iglehardt, of New York, as the chief speaker.

Among the events in the musical line, there will be a lecture-recital at the Plainfield High School by Ovide Musin, the famous violinist, under the auspices of the boys' department of the Y. M. C. A.

The Ladies' Aid Society of Hope chapel will give a Martha Washington supper at the chapel in the evening, and a social will be held at the Monroe Avenue M. E. church.

The regular holiday hours will be observed at the postoffice, with one morning delivery, and at the public library and reading room.

Alumni Meeting Tonight.

The annual meeting of the Plainfield High School Alumni Association will be held at the high school tonight, and promises to be well attneded. Much interest has been aroused by the announcement of the prize-speaking contest. Dancing and refreshments will follow the speaking. Any alumnus who has neglected to pay his dues will be admitted upon the payment of the same to the treasurer, who will be in attendance.

RETURN FROM TOUR AROUND THE WORLD

Mr. and Mrs. James F. Buckle, who have been enjoying a round-the-world trip, arrived home about 10 o'clock last night, feeling well and full of praise concerning their wonderful journey. They returned by the way of San Francisco, stopping off in Montana, to visit their son, who is on a ranch there.

Mr. Buckle has grown very stout since he left Plainfield several months ago, and he says that the trip did him lots of good. While he and Mrs. Buckle were greatly interested in all that they saw, they both agree that there is no place like Plainfield after all and are glad to get home.

Saturday evening the Get-Together Club will give Mr. Buckle a reception.

Church Sale a Success.

Under the auspices of the altar chapter of the Women's Guild of the Church of the Holy Cross, a successful sale of home-made bread and cake was held at the parish house, Saturday. Miss Ida Davis was chairman of the committee in charge. The women were so much encouraged that they have decided to hold a similar sale every Saturday morning at 11 o'clock for the present.

Men's Club Banquet.

The Men's Club of the First Presbyterian church will hold a banquet at the church tomorrow night at 7 o'clock. Rev. F. C. Iglehardt, of New York, will be the speaker and his son, F. C. Iglehardt, Jr., who formerly sang in the church choir, will render several solos, accompanied by Clifford A. Braider.

Will Address the Children.

Rev. George A. Warner, rector of the Church of the Holy Cross, will speak at the children's service to be held in Christ church, Elizabeth, tomorrow afternoon at 4:30 o'clock. Next Wednesday night Mr. Warner will preach at Cranford.

DR. LONG PASSES AWAY

Prominent Physician Succumbs to Heart Disease, Aged Sixty Years.

WAS HOSPITAL STAFF'S DEAN.

A Resident Here for Thirty-five Years—Funeral Services on Wednesday Morning.

Dr. Monroe Budd Long, the dean of the staff at Muhlenberg Hospital, and one of the oldest physicians in the city, died at 5:30 o'clock last night at his home on Park avenue, from heart trouble. He suffered his first attack a week ago yesterday, and he had several other attacks during the week. Early yesterday afternoon he had another spell, but appeared to feel much better afterward. About 5:30 he was taken with a sinking spell and passed away suddenly and peacefully.

Dr. Long was born at Martinsville, Somerset county, December 16, 1849, and spent his boyhood days at home on a farm. When a young man he took up the study of medicine and surgery at Dr. Fred Cornell's Institute at Somerville. He then completed a course of study at the College of Physicians and Surgeons in New York. He came to Plainfield in 1875 and associated himself in the practice of medicine and surgery with Dr. John C. Sutphen, who was one of the best known physicians in the State.

Following the death of Dr. Sutphen, Dr. Long continued his practice as well as that of his own and with great success. He was the first physician in Plainfield to perform successfully an operation for appendicitis, and during his long career he performed many notable surgical operations. He was frequently called to various parts of the State to perform delicate surgical work.

Dr. Long rendered invaluable services to Muhlenberg Hospital. He not only selected the site for the institution, but was constantly giving his services, day and night, to relieving the sick, and he was frequently called in consultation by other physicians and surgeons.

Outside of his profession, Dr. Long was not a public man. He was not identified with any lodges, aside from the fact that he was one of the oldest members of the Union County Medical Society, the Plainfield Medical Society and the American Medical Association. Ever since its organization eleven years ago, he was president of the Union Building and Loan Association.

He was married, December 27, 1877, to Miss Clara S. Goodman, of Newark. She and five children survive as follows: Miss Clara G. Long, Walter L. Long Miss Augusta L. Long, Miss Edna D. Long and Monroe H. Long.

The funeral service will be held from the late residence, 819 Park avenue, Wednesday morning at 11 o'clock.

FASHIONABLE WOMEN IMITATE MISS ST. DENIS.

So fascinating is this remarkable movement, of which Miss Ruth St. Denis is the creator, that the fashionable circles of New York, Chicago and Boston have taken to it as a fad, and wherever one goes in these cities he is sure to find some debutante or society matron practicing the "Gesture a la St. Denis." It has even been adopted in the ultra-elite hand-shake. Instead of the awkward thrusting forth of the hand, with the fingers stiffened and the wrist and elbow making a straight line, the followers of the St. Denis gesture extend their hands in a succession of gracefully modulated positions which are well illustrated in the accompaning pictures.

Miss St. Denis and her company will be seen at the New Plainfield theatre tomorrow afternoon and night.

Three Dollars or Ten Days.

Aaron Reed, of 10 Fritz place, North Plainfield, was sentenced to pay a fine of three dollars or spend ten days in jail by City Judge William N. Runyon this morning for being helplessly drunk on West Front street near New street on Saturday afternoon. Reed acknowledged having been arrested before for a similar offense in the borough, but had always escaped with a suspended sentence. Judge Runyon thought ti was time to break that record.

Funeral of Mrs. Abercrombie.

The funeral of Mrs. B. G. Abercrombie will be held from the late home, 118 North Euclid avenue, Westfield, tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock. The burial will be in Fairview cemetery.

Will He Survive the Trust?

That is frequently a serious question which you should always ask yourself when selecting the Executor or Trustee for your Estate.

Will the mature and experienced person whom you have in mind outlive the requirements of the Trusteeship?

Does the younger man, who will probably do so, indicate that he will possess the ability and experience?

FIDELITY TRUST CO.,
NEWARK, N. J.,

as Trustee or Executor for your estate, possesses both—with the certainty of outliving the longest Trust.

ONE of the LARGEST retail stores in New York City—in fact, anywhere in this country—regularly employs a large corps of chiropodists to care for the feet of its salesmen.

We know that a whole lot of benefit and comfort is thus assured, but we believe nine-tenths of all foot trouble could be prevented by the adoption of our method of shoe-fitting.

AMONG OUR NEIGHBORS

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

A large congregation was present at the baptismal service conducted in the First Baptist church. Nine candidates were immersed during the evening, the ceremony being conducted impressively by the Rev. Henry N. Jordan and George H. Gardner. There was also a special musical program by the choir.

Mr. and Mrs. Paxson Van Artsdale announce the marriage of their daughter Laura to Dexter Wright Reamer, which was solemnized in Brooklyn on February 14. Miss Van Artsdale taught school at Long Branch for several years.

In the Methodist church the pastor, Rev. W. A. Knox, advocated the passage of a local option law. In his remarks Mr. Knox also vigorously opposed the proposed legislation legalizing Sunday ball games.

Following the prayer meeting in the First Baptist church on Wednesday night a business meeting of the Sunday school will be held.

Washington Birthday suppers will be served in the Presbyterian, First Baptist and Methodist churches tomorrow night.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

Rev. Mr. Hollingshead, of the Methodist church, started a week of special services last night. The attendance was large and the interest manifested was encouraging to Mr. Hollingshead. Services will be held every night this week at the usual hour.

Washington's Birthday, tomorrow, will be generally observed here as a holiday, the schools will close and the stores will only be open for a part of the day.

The local gun club and the borough gun club hold a match shoot tomorrow afternoon on the local grounds near Green Brook.

The members of the Epworth League held an interesting meeting last night in the class rooms of the Methodist church.

Miss Otto Peterson, of Newark, was the guest over Sunday of her mother, Mrs. Benjamin Clark, of Prospect place.

The weekly meeting of the B. Y. P. U. was held last night in the parlors of the church.

Mrs. Wm. Deegan, of Front street, has been entertaining friends from out of town.

Mrs. William Trayno of Mountain avenue, is quite ill with pneumonia.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

Frank Kellogg, who run the local mill here at the time it was burned, will remove from Metuchen with his family to 1310 Park avenue, to make their home with Mrs. Randolph, who is Mrs. Kellogg's mother.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Brandingham, who went west a year ago to live on a government reservation, are not so charmed with their new home as anticipated and may return here in the near future.

Rev. Joseph Allen filled the Baptist pulpit both morning and evening yesterday. Special selections in vocal music in the evening and Christian Endeavor was held at 6:45.

The coal storage bin, which is said to be the largest in the world, is now full to its utmost capacity, and a gang of thirty men were recently laid off to await moving orders.

The Middlesex Water Company has connected water with their mains in five houses along Brookside avenue. Electricity is also being installed.

George Pace, Sr., who recently suffered a severe injury to his leg, is now able to move around the house on crutches.

The improvements on the mill dam cost over $400, the concrete work alone costing more that half that amount.

Joseph Bahassick, of Maple avenue, has moved to the house on Front street recently vacated by David Bigley.

Miss Susan Manning, who has been quite ill and confined to her room for the past week, is able to go down stairs.

Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Steengraph have returned to their home after a short visit with friends in New York.

Miss Alice Sisby has been confined to the house with a severe cold.

Mrs. Harris, of Dunellen, visited friends here yesterday.

"An Evening with Old-Time Songs" will be enjoyed at the Watchung School tonight at 8 o'clock.

The Men's Club of Hope chapel met Friday night at the home of Rev. and Mrs. L. R. Howard, on West Fifth street. A short business session was followed by a social hour. William Doig was elected to membership.

The Christian Endeavor Society of Warren chapel will hold an entertainment and social at the chapel tonight. The price of admission will be a pair of rubbers, mated or unmated. Each woman will provide a lunch-box for two and the boxes will be distributed in a novel way.

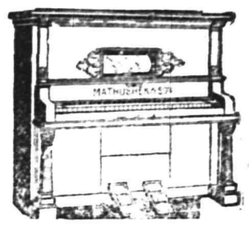
A MASTER-PIECE



OF MASTER PIANO BUILDERS.

Mathushek & Son Pianos are not turned out in lots of a dozen or more.

Each Mathushek & Son Piano is a separate, distinct and individual creation.

On it has been concentrated the skill and experience gathered in more than a half century of piano-building. The time taken, the skill engaged, the quality of materials employed in the production of a Mathushek & Son, make each instrument an artistic masterpiece—a piano that will be cherished and appreciated for a lifetime. It is the only really artistic piano selling at a moderate price.

Beautiful, illustrated catalogue on request.

Mrs. Stephen C. Van Hoesen, the special agent of the S. P. C. A., is very ill at her home in Fanwood. Mrs. Van Hoesen has been suffering from the grip and tonsilitis due to a cold caught while investigating a recent cruelty case.

Prizes on Exhibition.

The cups and banner which are offered by the Patrolmen's Benevolent Association as trophies for the children of the schools for collecting or contributing in self-denial week money for the support of the hospital, are on exhibition at a clothing store on Front street. There are seventeen silver cups in all and the banner will be a handsome reminder of the efforts made. A box will be placed in the East bound station of the railroad for the purpose of receiving contributions from the commuters.

May Sue Dunellen.

Nathan Guyre, of Dunellen, is confined to his home as a result of injuries received by falling on an icy sidewalk some time ago. James Guyre, his son, in a letter to Mayor Sanford intimates that unless the borough will pay his father's doctor's bills he will bring suit to compel payment. Young Guyre takes the stand that the borough authorities were responsible for the bad condition of the sidewalks during the spell of bad weather.

Plainfield Council, No. 294, Jr. O. U. A. M., will hold a meeting this evening.

—The Hebrew Ladies' Benevolent Association will give a masquerade dance this evening at the Plainfield Dancing Academy.

CAUSE OF ECZEMA EXPLAINED.

After years of debate medical authorities are now agreed that Eczema and other skin diseases are not seated in the blood, but are caused by myraids of microscopic animals gnawing the flesh just below the epidermis. The patient is perfectly healthy, it is only the skin that is diseased.

Hence, scientists are now agreed that you must cure the skin through the skin. The medicine must be in liquid form in order to penetrate properly. And we can say with confidence that we have the true remedy for Eczema in our store.

The instant you wash with this soothing liquid you will find the itch relieved. We positively assure you of this. Will you try a bottle (at only 25c), on our recommendation? Ask for D. D. D. Prescription.

CHILDREN IN HEAVEN SUBJECT OF SERMON

Rev. John Y. Broek, pastor of Trinity Reformed church, preached the sixth in the series of sermons on Heaven last night and had for his topic "The Little Children in Heaven." The subject presented many academic questions and, like others, Pastor Broek finally left the actual solution of some of them to "Him who doeth all things well."

The question of whether children remain as children when they are taken away in their infancy and whether they go to the city of many mansions is of great importance and future interest to many anxious parents, he said, but it seems impossible that all those little ones who die in infancy should not be saved. It has been estimated that one-half of the population of Heaven will be made up of those who die before they have reached the age of discretion, because one-half of all those who die are taken away in their infancy.

Children belong to God. The faith of the parents will be a safe conduct for their sons and daughters as the Bible teaches us, but what of the children of unbelievers? I believe that all children who have not arrived at the age of discretion will enjoy the many mansions above. Does not Christ tell his disciples when asked who shall be the greatest in the Kingdom of Heaven, that if they wish to even enter there they must become as little children?

Many people raise the question of the unbaptized child. Has he a chance to enter the pearly gates? I cannot believe that they are lost if they die unbaptised. The thief on the cross was not baptised, yet Jesus said to him, "today thou shalt be with me in Paradise. Peter received the Holy Ghost before he was baptised. Paul was not baptised when he was regenerated. That ought to answer the question.

As to whether our children will recognize us when we go to the heavenly place, I believe that notwithstanding the faces may change through the ravages of time we will be recognized and welcomed as though he had never been separated. What the limit of our maturity is and the probability of growth there we must leave to Him who doeth all things well for we know as Christ said, "A little child shall lead them."

Y. W. C. A. BULLETIN.

Dr. B. Van Hedges will deliver a lecture on tuberculosis at the Y. W. C. A. rooms on Thursday night. All women are invited to be in attendance.

The Y. W. C. A. basketball team will visit Trenton tomorrow and play the Y. W. C. A. five of that city.

Owing to the holiday falling tomorrow there will be no classes on that day.

R. G. Bush in Chicago.

R. G. Bush, of East Fifth street, and whose artificial stone plant is on South avenue, has left for Chicago to attend the third annual exhibit of the Cement Product Exhibition Company, and the sixth annual convention of the National of the National Association of Cement Users, where cement engineers and experts from all parts of the country meet to exchange ideas and discuss concrete as applied to different lines of construction.

Funeral Mrs. J. F. Brown.

The funeral services of Mrs. James F. Brown were held this afternoon at 1 o'clock from the late home on Fairview avenue, and were largely attended by friends and neighbors. Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, pastor of the First Baptist church, officiated. The burial was at Stelton at 3:30 o'clock.

County Bar Association Dinner.

The annual dinner of the Union County Bar Association was held at the Hotel Brevoort, Firth avenue and Eighth street, New York. James C. Connolly, of Elizabeth, president of the association, was toastmaster. Among the speakers was S. S. Swackhamer, whose toast was 'Influence."

Washington's Birthday Social.

A Washington's Birthday sociable will be held at the Netherwood Reformed church tomorrow night. The committee in charge has arranged a program which should prove interesting.

Grand Jury Recalled.

The Union County Grand Jury was recalled today to consider the case of two Elizabeth photographers, charged with taking obscene pictures. Both men were indicted.

OBSERVANCE IN SCHOOLS

Washington Birthday Exercises Held by City and Borough Pupils.

PATRIOTIC SONGS RENDERED.

Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring Addressed North Plainfield School—Readings from Washington Were a Feature.

Washington's Birthday was marked by celebrations in all of the schools today. The exercises consisted principally of the rendition of patriotic songs in the grammar grades, while programs were presented in the lower grades. At the exercises at the High School there were patriotic readings by the Misses Bessie Alpaugh, Meta Pennock and Elsie Ball.

At the Irving School an elaborate program of patriotic music was rendered by the pupils. There were recitations by Kathryn Stevens, Howard Leek, Marjorie Dufford, Ruth Buxton, Caroline Randolph and Caroline Dorman. An essay was read by May Laramour and Cornelius Fitzpatrick read an original story on the "Boyhood of Washington."

At the chapel exercises at Franklin School, Miss Bullock made an address to the pupils and Miss Florence Neilson read a paper on Washington. A feature was a salute to the flag by the pupils. Appropriate music also marked the celebration.

The singing and class exercises principally marked the observance of the day at the Lincoln, Bryant, Washington and Stillman Schools.

The pupils at St. Mary's parochial school this afternoon listened to an address by Father Bogan.

George Washington's Birthday was observed by appropriate exercises in the borough school this morning. The pupils of the high and grammar grades listened to an address by the Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, while the primary grades presented a patriotic program of songs and recitations.

The primary department program follows:

Singing, "America;" recitations, "February," Leslie Boyer; "How Things Seem," Walter Conover; "In February," Roswell Ewart; song, George Washington, four boys 3A grade; recitations, "A Busy Worker," Hugh Straub; "Red, White and Blue," Ellsworth Runyon; "Guess," Francis Cannon; "Our Flag," Dorothy Riley; "The Flag," Ralph Taylor; "The Stars," Gertrude Rittenhouse; harmonica solo, Lloyd Snell; flag exercise, seven pupils 2A grade; recitations by Marjorie Lindsley, Lelia Olden, Edward Clay, Margaret Smith, Howard Willett, Hamilton Shoop. There were also exercises by pupils in the 2A and 3A grades.

ANNIVERSARY SERVICE HELD AT WILSON CHAPEL

The twentieth anniversary of the dedication of the Mary E. Wilson Memorial chapel, was held at the chapel at Watchung, yesterday afternoon, when there were appropriate addresses and special music by George and William Spier. The opening exercises comprised the Scripture lesson, a hymn, prayer by Rev. John Y. Broek of Trinity Reformed church, selections by a chorus.

Then followed interesting remarks by E. S. Ackor, superintendent of the Sunday-school; E. L. Bonny, Miss Nettie Beeching and A. H. Wilson, all of whom have been connected with the work at the chapel for many years.

The address of the afternoon was by Rev. John Y. Broek, of Trinity Reformed church. He congratulated the members of the chapel upon their achievements during the past twenty years and spoke words of encouragement for the future. His remarks were much enjoyed.

The chapel was dedicated February 22, 1890. The late Col John F. Wilson, kindly added to the building fund raised by the Watchung Sunday School Association. The chapel was named in memory of his wife, Mary E. Wilson, "The Mary E. Wilson Memorial Chapel." Most of the labor done on the chapel was by volunteers. The stone was carted from the mountains. Before the chapel was erected services were held in the old school-house.

Special services were held at the chapel last night, when there were brief addresss by several workrs. There was also special music.

Secretary to Commission.

THE VIOLIN IS LIKE MAN SAYS REV. C. L. GOODRICH

Rev. Charles L. Goodrich, pastor of the Congregational church took an unusual topic for his sermon yesterday morning, using the symbol of the making of a violin as the somparative means for illustrating man's character building. He took for his text Ephesians 2:10: "Ye are complete in Him."

In part Pastor Goodrich said: "I count the violin the most human of musical instruments. Somewhat as God, after creating many varieties of animate beings created man, who could express more fully God's own spirit. So man, after inventing many varieties of musical instruments made the violin. The history of the violin and its construction is full of interest. It involves names that are secure in fame—Amati, Stradivarius and others. The volin did not become complete in a day nor a decade. It was many years before the instrument was brought to its final form. No good violin can be made in a year or in ten years. Its wood must be mature and the seasoning process of the materials from which it is made must be selected with great care and be left entirely to nature's own processes.

Young people require the same careful treatment. They are often impatient for results; they wish to get the desired results before the necessary preliminaries of work and growth. In the forming of character and in gaining skill in the crafts or the getting of an education time is the necessary element. Nature will not be hurried. One may work with nature, but you cannot take a short cut to perfection in anything. The violin makers of the Cremona school selected the best curly maple and the white pine from the mountain districts for their violins, and these woods were selected with great care from trees which grew on the south side of the forest and the wood from the side exposed to the south, or the side most exposed to the sun. And the result was the finest of sound. How suggestive is it all! Not any chance piece of wood was used, only that which gave the best results.

What must go into the making of the complete man? Something of the grandeur of the mountains. Something of the sturdiness of the forests, something of the freedom of the hills and the warmth of the pure sunshine. Some strength to struggle.

The master workmen of old could take an instrument whose tone was poor and reconstruct it so that it would produce beautiful tones. God has taken men and made them over so that they were like new men. It may be that some of us feel that we are not rendering to God the music of devout and holy lives He desires; that the influence from our lives is not one glad sweet strain to the praise of God. I am thankful to believe that God can remake us.

Nature cannot make a violin alone. She can grow the material, but man must fashion the instrument. So with all reverence I will say God could not make a complete man alone. The person himself must have a share in the process. God cannot make a good character in a person. He cannot make a good Christian out of anyone. Not by Himself. The person has to do his part.

The violin is only complete when it is ready to take up into the hands and be played upon. Man's life and Christian character are not complete until he has begun to do something for Christ and man does not love the Christian character until he has begun to use it for someone else. It is impossible for man to be a complete Christian until he uses the developed, perfected character for others. No man's character, no man's life, nor his usefulness can be perfected, can be what he ought to desire it to be until it is given up into the hands of the great Master. Only thus may we hope to fulfill the purpose of our Maker.

CHURCH MISSION BAND WILL GIVE TWO LITTLE PLAYLETS.

The Sunshine Mission Band, of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, will give two little plays on Friday afternoon and evening of this week at 3 and 8 o'clock in the chapel of the church. One of the plays was written by John Jay Chapman and is called "The Lost Prince," and the other is the old favorite of all children, "The Sleeping Beauty," dramatized by Mrs. Hugh Bell.

It will be the first appearance on any stage of many of the actors and a treat is promised the audience. There will be home-made candy for sale. The proceeds will go to the work of the band in supporting mission stations in Syria, China and the Philippines.

Plainfielder Injured in New York.

Charles Shults, of this city, an employe of Scott's Press Works, was severely injured Saturday night, while a passenger on the rear platform of a surface car in Union Square, New York. Another car bumped into the car on which he was standing, and threw him a distance of fifteen feet. He was unconscious for a half hour, but finally succeeded in reaching home. His right leg is severely injured.

PISCATAWAY TOWNSHIP MEN GUESTS OF W. A. CODDINGTON.

Judge William A. Coddington, counsel for Piscataway township, gave a banquet at Brantingham's clubhouse in South Plainfield Saturday night to "past and present Piscataway township officeholders" in celebration of the tenth anniversary of the judge's tenure of office.

Fourteen guests besides the Judge sat down to a sumptuous repast. Post prandial eloquence was let loose and most of the guests took part. Mayor Newton B. Smalley, of North Plainfield, Councilman Herbert Buxton, Herbert H. Bonn and Harry C. Van Emburgh, all had complimentary things to say of the Judge.

DR. CHAMBLISS CONTINUES ILLUSTRATED GOSPEL TALKS.

Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, pastor of the First Baptist church, continued his talks on "Pilgrim's Progress," illustrated, at the church last night, and despite the stormy weather, there was a large congregation present. The lecture extended from Wicket Gate to Obstruction Hill, and was full of interest for all.

Next Sunday night the talk will take the audience from Obstruction Hill to Vanity Fair. The pictures were fine and the exposition by Dr. Chambliss was greatly enjoyed.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

D. Harry Chandler, a Vineland manufacturer, left yesterday on a month's trip to Panama.

Cancer of the stomach caused the death yesterday of George Hayday in his home in Somers' Point.

The Hebrew Ladies' Aid Society of Trenton is planning for the establishment of a home for aged women of the race.

Samuel W. Hope, aged ninety years, died yesterday at his home in Wall street, Trenton. He had been ill for some time.

John Lyons was kicked in the face by a horse and severely injured at the livery stable of Walter G. Stanton, at Swedesboro.

Returning from Jobstown, where he had delivered a load of pork, Dennis McCarthy, of Moorestown, was thrown from the wagon, breaking one hip.

Arrangements are being made for the organization of a county branch of the New Jersey State Association of Justices and Constables in Camden this week.

Patrolman William O'Conner, of the Sixth Precinct, Jersey City, slipped on the ice on the sidewalk in front of 587 Palisade avenue Saturday and broke the ligaments of his left leg. O'Conner was admitted to Christ Hospital.

Smoke issuing from the home of William J. Provost, a mariner, forty-nine years old, at 1229 Du Pont street, Camden, attracted the attention of Thomas Allen Friday, and forcing a front door he found the kitchen and the garments of Provost ablaze. After saving Provost from being roasted, Allen called out the fire department and then sent the mariner to Cooper Hospital, where it was found that he was badly burned all over the body.

As the Pennsylvania Railroad train which left the Camden terminal for Trenton Friday afternoon at 2:18 was approaching Palmyra a handplate on one side of the boiler of the locomotive, between the driving wheels, blew off, enveloping the cab in blinding clouds of steam. Despite their danger, Engineer Willard Raley and Fireman Hill stuck to their posts until the train had been stopped, then found that there was enough steam left in the boiler to run the train to a siding at West Palmyra, when it was taken for the rest of the trip half an hour later by another engine summoned from Camden.

THE FORUM.

Likes Druid's Column.

Editor, The Daily Press:

I wish to give hearty endorsement to the letter of "H." in your paper a few days ago as to the high merits of "Druid's" weekly column. It is indeed an excellent feature and one that is thoroughly enjoyable. I, for one, read carefully every Saturday what he has to say.

ALPHA.

Favors P. B. A. Undertaking.

Editor, The Daily Press:

It is to be hoped that the request of the P. B. A. will be heartily carried out. A double benefit would result to each giver if the piece of each cigar smoked or glass of drink of whatever grade be added to the Hospital fund. Then it is to be hoped that the liquor dealers themselves will add to this fund by giving one half of their receipts for that week.

MRS. C.

Commends Mayor Smalley.

Editor, The Daily Press:

I wish to commend most strongly the stand taken by Mayor Smalley, of the borough, on the question of soliciting contributions from the school children. The offering of prizes for the collection of money is reprehensible in itself, no matter how worthy the object, as it tends to inculcate a money standard of worth in what is the most democratic part of our country, the public school. The children will get more than enough of that standard thrust on them later in life, but spare them now.

Moreover, from a purely legal standpoint, it is not right to use the public schools as a collection agency nor as a means of enriching any private enterprise. The public schools are supported by public taxation for a certain specified object. Teachers are employed to carry out that object. It is neither fair to them nor to the public which pays them that they should be required to assist in the enterprise mentioned. They have all their time fully occupied with their school duties, as well as have the children.

I think it is a great mistake to allow the schools to be used for any purpose as contemplated and one fraught with grave possibilities as a precedent.

Annual Meeting Mission Society.

The Women's Foreign Missionary Society of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, has issued invitations to the annual meeting to be held Tuesday afternoon, March 8, at 3:30. At that time Miss Emily T. Minor, of Ratnagiri, India, will make an address. Tea will be served in the church parlor at the close of the meeting.

The BOYNTON

Square Fire-Pot

PATENTED

FURNACE

reverses the usual order of furnace facts. It requires the least amount of fuel and the least amount of care. In return it gives the biggest, hottest fire you ever knew; a clean, clinkerless fire. It burns all the coal and when you shake it all the dust goes up the chimney. BOYNTON furnaces are clean. They give the maximum of heat for a minimum of expense. We will gladly give you the name of the nearest BOYNTON dealer, so that you may investigate.

There are BOYNTON heating plants of all kinds. Ask about our Round or Sectional Boilers for Steam or Hot Water. Also Ranges.

PROPOSALS

FOR FURNISHING CRUSHED STONE AND MATERIALS FOR CULVERTS AND CROSSWALKS.

Pursuant to a resolution adopted by the Common Council of the City of Plainfield, at the regular meeting held February 7, 1910, notice is hereby given that the Common Council will meet at the Council Chamber, No. 149 North Avenue, in the City of Plainfield, on Monday, March 7, 1910, at 8 o'clock P. M., at which time and place said Common Council will receive sealed proposals for furnishing crushed stone, and for furnishing materials for culverts and crosswalks as follows:

For crushed stone for the remainder of the year 1910, the bids to state the price per ton of 2,000 pounds, for furnishing the following sizes, namely:

Fine Screenings, ½ inch stone, 1½ inch stone, 2½ inch stone, and Telford stone, in such quantities, and delivered at such times and places in the city as the Street Commissioner may direct.

The approximate quantities of the several kinds of crushed stone, as estimated by the Street Commissioner, are as follows:

Fine Screenings—100 tons.
½ inch Stone—500 tons.
1½ inch Stone—3,000 tons.
2½ inch Stone—200 tons.
Telford Stone—100 tons.

and such estimated quantities may be taken into account in awarding bids.

The above must be of the best quality trap rock, free from soft stone, dirt or other foreign matter, and each bidder shall submit with his bid or bids samples of the crushed stone to be furnished if such bid or bids is or are accepted, and guarantee that the crushed stone to be furnished shall in every instance be equal in quality to the samples submitted with the bid, the Common Council reserving the right to pass on the quality of the crushed stone as well as on the prices bid.

The stone must be weighed on such scales as the Street Commissioner may direct, and a voucher or weigh bill must be delivered with every load to the said Street Commissioner or his authorized representative.

Also for furnishing the following materials for culverts and crosswalks:

Cover stone for culverts not larger than 4 feet by 3 feet by not less than 3½ inches in thickness, per square foot.

Curbing 16 inches by 4 inches, 3 to 6 feet long, per lineal foot.

Curbing 20 inches by 4 inches, 3 to 6 feet long, per lineal foot.

Crosswalk stone 24 inches by not less than 4 inches, 3 to 4½ feet long, Belgian edge, per lineal foot.

Crosswalk stone 30 inches by not less than 4 inches, 3 to 4½ feet long, Belgian edge, per lineal foot.

The approximate quantities of the several kinds of materials for culverts and crosswalks, as estimated by the Street Commissioner, are as follows:

Cover stone—300 square feet.
Curbing, 16 inches—50 lineal feet.
Curbing, 20 inches—300 lineal feet.
Crosswalks, 24 inches—800 lineal feet.
Crosswalks, 30 inches—50 lineal feet.

and such estimated quantities may be taken into account in awarding bids.

All to be of the best hard blue stone, equal in quality and durability to stone from the Hudson River quarries.

No bid for crushed stone will be considered which does not include prices for all five sizes of stone, and all bids must be submitted on forms which can be obtained from the Street Commissioner.

The successful bidder must furnish a Surety Company bond for $1,000, conditioned on the faithful carrying out of all the provisions of the specifications and contract.

Upon receipt of the bids or proposals at the time and place appointed, the Common Council will immediately proceed to unseal the same and publicly announce the contents in the presence of the parties bidding or their agents, provided said parties or their agents choose to be then and there present, and also make proper record of the prices and terms upon the minutes of the Common Council.

The right to reject any or all bids is expressly reserved.

By order of the Common Council.

JAMES T. MacMURRAY,
City Clerk.

TRADE BOARD CLASS TO HOLD BIG MEETING.

The Board of Trade class, recently organized by President William Jeffery, will hold its next meeting on Tuesday, March 1, at 8 o'clock in the class room of the Plainfield Business College, 171 East Front street. There are 300 seats and desks in this large room and President Jeffery says he expects to have them all occupied.

There will be delegations from the Borough of Dunellen, townships of North Plainfield, Warren and New Providence and Piscataway and Fanwood Boroughs, and of course, Plainfield and North Plainfield will be ably represented by members of the Board of Trade. It will be a sort of gathering of the clans. The women have also been invited.

"The Rich Man in Hell," and "Lazarus in Abraham's Bosom," will be the topics of the meeting to be held in Reform Hall, tomorrow afternoon, at 3 o'clock, under the direction of Evangelist R. H. Hirch, of Brooklyn.

The Island of Regeneration

By Cyrus Townsend Brady

(Copyright, 1909, by W. G. Chapman.)
(Copyright in Great Britain.)

She did not ask him for assistance, indeed, she would not have trusted him with the knife under any circumstances, and he made no attempt to keep close to her. He stood on the outskirts of the coppice in a great state of excitement, uttering without sequence or reason such words as she had taught him. To him, in this instance, she gave no heed.

Presently she had completely uncovered the two skeletons. She had studied anatomy, but was not a specialist in that department of human learning. She thought that the skeleton before her was that of a woman. She measured its length with a piece of tall grass and compared it with her own. They were both of a size. The soil in which the bones lay was soft and porous. Every vestige of clothing had long since rotted away and disappeared with the flesh it covered. If the person whose bones lay there had worn any article of gold or silver, which, being rustless would have survived the long exposure, they were probably buried in the earth beneath the bones. She would attend to that later.

Then she looked toward the bones at the feet of the human remains and decided instantly that they were the bones of a dog. Across the vertebrae lay a piece of metal. She picked it up, recognizing it instantly as a plate which had probably belonged to a dog collar. There was an inscription on it which she did not take the trouble at the moment to read. Slipping it into the bosom of her tunic and making sure that the confining rope would keep it from falling out, she stooped down and gathered the bones of the human being up in her arms, repulsive as the task was, and carried them down to the boat on the beach. She laid them in the bottom of the boat carefully and then moved by a sudden impulse, she went back and gathered up those of the dog which she put in the boat also. It was an easy matter to tumble a few spadefuls of sand over the bones. Then she left them in that rude Viking sepulture, knowing that time would soon refill the empty dinghy and the bones would be safely buried unless some other investigator should uncover them.

The man had assisted her in no way in this process, but his excitement was very great. While she stood looking down at the little heap of sand which covered all that remained of this forlorn and forgotten visitor to this island, wondering if the fate of that trespasser upon these silent shores would some day be hers, the man suddenly dropped on his knees as she had seen him do on her first night on the island. He put his hands together and began that mumbled jargon which she had not been able to understand, but which had seemed to her more like language than anything to which he had given vent. She was surprised beyond measure, yet she listened with every faculty on the alert if possible to comprehend what he had been saying, and presently a familiar sound or two flashed into her mind that he was making use of a prayer which she herself had used in childhood; that, absurd, fantastic, impossible though the conclusion was, he was saying the childish petition, "Now I lay me down to sleep!"

The first impulse of the woman was to laugh. The next impulse was to take off the palm leaf hat and stand with bowed head and clasped hands. What marvelous miracle was this that throughout the years which she could no longer doubt this man had been alone on the island, there had survived the one childish habit of prayer and that the one vestige of language which had remained to him was the language of petition. She did not believe in it, of course. It was absurd to her, but it was none the less wonderful. It filled her with a certain awe. It was as if some power had maintained a hold upon the consciousness of this man in this way.

"Now I lay me down to sleep!" How long it had been since she had said that? She believed nothing, she cared for nothing, but the woman hid her face in her hands for a moment. She clenched her teeth and forced out of her mind that which at that moment was striving for birth. She was to teach this man everything. She was to make him know life and history. She was to bring him in touch with all the glories of to-day and she recognized in that hour, although she did not and could not admit it, that perhaps he might teach her something as well, something that she had not known or something that she had forgotten, without the knowledge of which all her science was a vain, a foolish, a futile thing.

The little prayer was ended. The man rose to his feet. She took her spade and went back to the place where the bodies had lain and there began carefully to scrape away the earth, examining scrupulously every shovelful ere she threw it aside. In one place where the hand had lain she remembered, her labors were rewarded. She came across two rings, a diamond and a plain circlet of gold. These she placed in her tunic with the collar and continued her digging.

It was growing late and growing dark, but she left no square inch of ground unexplored. She found nothing else. The rings belonged to a woman evidently. Her surmise in that particular was right. There were no other metal parts of her apparel left. The nails in her shoes, the steel of her corset had rusted away and lef no sign. There was nothing remaining but the two little baubles pressing against her own warm flesh.

So intent had she been that the sun had gone down before she ceased and upon the island there descended that quick and sudden night of the tropics. The wind had risen, the old ocean was thundering on the barrier reef and a heavy sea breeze was shrieking through the trees. The sky on the horizon was overclouded and the clouds were rising rapidly. There would be a storm, which was developing with tropic rapidity. Quickly she retraced her steps along the sand toward the cave on the other side, the man following.

They had progressed not more than half way when the storm burst upon them. Peals of thunder and flashes of lightning filled the air. It was such a display of the Titanic forces of nature as might have appalled the stoutest heart. It filled the woman with a vague terror. She noticed with satisfaction that the man was entirely unmoved by the terrific demonstrations of nature. By the flashes of lightning as they stumbled along in the otherwise total blackness she could see his face serene. In a moment of apprehension she caught his hand with her own and clung to it tightly. It was the unconscious appeal of the physical weaker to the physical stronger. Her hand had clasped the hands of her fellow creatures many times. Never before had his palm met the palm of human being, much less a woman's. She could feel that tremor run through him, but by instinct, as it were, he met her hand clasp with his own, and together they made their way to the cave.

They had scarcely reached it when the rain burst upon them. The heavens were opened, the floods descended, they beat upon the sands in fury. She could not drive him out there in that flood for the night. She motioned him to come within the entrance of the cave which was sheltered from the wind and which was dry and still. She made him lie down near the entrance and then, withdrawing herself into a recess at the side, she disposed of the oars, which she had carried home on her shoulders, in front of her from wall to wall and lashing them with the rope to her person made another feeble barrier, but which would yet give the alarm to her and waken her if it were moved. And presently she went to sleep. She was too tired even to speculate on her discoveries or to piece them together; that would be occupation for the morning.

"Trifles Necessary to Attain Perfection."

Perfection is no Trifle

The many little "Trifles" neccessary in building a Perfect Piano, and which are passed over or neglected in most factories, are carefully considered by the makers of the

Hallet & Davis

From the beginning, from the time the first Hallet & Davis piano was made (1835), up to the present time, its makers (this is the third generation) have taken a pride in their handiwork, the pride of honest workmen; a careful attention to the "trifles," the little things not seen by the purchaser; painstaking examination of every bit of material; minute inspection of every working part.

"Good enough" never has, never will pass muster in the Hallet & Davis Shop. It may be good enough to pass unnoticed, may never be seen or detected, but "good enough" means slighted work, and slighted work has no place in our factory.

"Perfection," or the nearest approach within human possibility, is, and ever has been the goal we strive to attain. Not to make a piano that is "good enough" but to endeavor with all our experience, skill and knowledge of the piano maker's art, honesty of purpose, and all backed by unlimited capital, to make a perfect instrument.

In use today are many Hallet & Davis pianos, 30, 40 and even 50 years old, still giving forth sweet sounds, still responding to the exacting requirements of the musician, living testimonials of the honest workmanship of their makers. No piano can give such service unless there has been strict attention paid to the "trifles" that are passed over by most factories.

A Hallet & Davis in the home is evidence of good judgment and refined taste. It also means, "perfect piano satisfaction."

Broke Neck in Fall.

Edmund Dungan, nine years old, son of Colonel Nelson Y. Dungan, of Somerville, fell from the hayloft in his father's barn and was instantly killed yesterday morning about 11 o'clock. Young Dungan had been playing in the barn part of the morning and later went to the house for his overshoes. After a while Col. Dungan wanted to see the boy and went to the barn in search of him. He found the lad lying unconscious on the floor of the barn. County Physician W. H. Long was summoned and found the boy had died with a broken neck. No inquest was held.

Preached a Temperance Sermon.

Rev. Edwin Shaw, pastor of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, preached a strong sermon Sabbath morning relative to the anti-saloon campaign. His text was "For the people had a mind to work." A full account of the discourse will be published Wednesday.

LOCAL Y.M.C.A. FIVE LOSE TO ORANGE TEAM

Plainfield Y. M. C. A.'s speedy basketball team encountered defeat at the hands of the Orange Y. M. C. A. State champions, at the latter place on Saturday night. The locals were snowed under by a score of 44 to 13.

From the very outset the Orangeites held the upper hand. The Plainfielders were outplayed at every angle of the game. At the close of the first half the score was 28 to 4 in favor of Orange. When the whistle announced the beginning of the second half Orange started off with a rapid-fire succession of baskets, which, try as they would the local players could not stop.

The lineup was as follows:

Orange.		Plainfield.
Gibbons	left forward	Collier
Barker	right guard	Gavett
Lee	centre	Linke
Knapp	right forward	Aalholm, Miner
Shorter	left guard	Foster

Goals from field—Gibbons, 4; Knapp, 4; Lee, 4; Barker, 3; Shorter, 4; Aalholm, Linke, 2; Collier, Miner, 2. Goals from foul line—Knapp, 6; Collier. Referee, Ernest P. Patten, Orange Y. M. C. A.; time of halves, 20 minutes and 15 minutes.

BASKETBALL.

The P. H. S. girls' basketball team will play the East Orange High School girls' team at the latter place tomorrow afternoon.

A new basketball team organized here, called the Meccas, played the Rahway Y. M. C. A. second team Saturday, and was defeated by a score of 39 to 30. Many fouls were called on Plainfield while the Rahway boys played a fine game.

P. H. S. Baseball Schedule.

Manager Runyon of the Plainfield High School baseball team announced the following schedule of games today: April 2, Somerville, here; April 6, Cranford, here; April 9, Boy's High of Brooklyn, here; April 13, Hasbrouck, here; April 16, Morris High, here; April 18, Westfield, here; April 20, Roselle, here; April 23, Poly Prey, here; April 26, Montclair at Montclair; April 27 open; April 30, New Brunswick, here; May 2, Battin High, here; May 3, Newark, at Newark; May 5, N. P. H. S., May 7, Easton, here; May 11, Kingsley, at Essex Fells; May 14, Somerville, at Somerville; May 16, Manhattan College, here; May 18, Rutgers Prep, at New Brunswick; May 21, Bayonne, here; May 23, Westfield, here; May 25, Reading Academy, here; May 27, Seniors vs. Faculty; May 28, Adelphi, at Brooklyn; June 1, open; June 4, Jersey City, here; June 6, Reading Academy, here; June 8, N. P. H. S.; June 11, open.

P. H. S. Team Defeated.

The Plainfield High School basketball team was defeated Saturday afternoon by the Kingsley School team at Essex Falls by a score of 47 to 38. It was a fast clean game, but the Plainfield boys found their opponents too strong for them.

William Rose's Funeral.

The funeral service of William Rose was conducted at his late home on Belmont avenue yesterday afternoon in the presence of a large gathering of friends. Rev. George Bowers, of Warrenville, officiated. Interment was made in the North Plainfield cemetery, the bearers being three sons, Peter, August and Fred, and Henry Alberts.

Borough Police Court.

Recorder Dolliver transacted business amounting to eight dollars in the borough police court this morning. Frank Moncton was fined three dollars and Frank Kaeding was lined five dollars. Both men were arrested Saturday night for drunkenness and disorderly conduct.

German Masquerade Tonight.

All arrangements have been completed for the twenty-first annual masquarade ball of the Gesang and Turn Verein which will take place in the society's hall tonight. The committee expects a number of visitors from out of town German societies to be present.

Ovide Musin to Play Here.

Ovide Musin, the famous Belgian violinist, will give a lecture-recital at the Plainfield High School, tomorrow night, under the auspices of the Boys' Department of the Y. M. C. A. Joseph McIntyre, of this city, will be the accompanist.

Chicken Coop Burned.

A chicken coop in the rear of Fred H. Firstbrook's grocery at 312 Liberty street was destroyed by fire yesterday afternoon. The fire department was called out and the damage was $50.

Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Tilney and family, of Central avenue, are registered at The Chalfonte, Atlantic City.

Carman Emmons, of Steiner place, who has been ill for some weeks, has been removed to Muhlenberg Hospital for treatment.

The Samples of Arts & Crafts Furniture

Made by Stickley Brothers, of Grand Rapids,

At 25 to 50 Per Cent. Less Than Regular Prices.

Adams Building—Third and Fourth Floors.

All of this furniture can be bought on the Club Plan, by which we mean that the furniture in this sale can be bought for 25 to 50 per cent. less than regular prices; that you can arrange to pay for it just as many men and women arrange to pay for the house they buy—a satisfactory payment at the beginning, and then something each week or month, while you are using the furniture.

Stickley Brothers, of Grand Rapids, make what is known as the finest Arts and Crafts Furniture in the United States. It is fashioned very much on the lines of the early English or Tudor furniture; simply constructed of fumed oak—oak that has been fumed until it takes on a rich, nut-brown shade.

Of some of these samples we shall have only one or two of a kind, of others there will be a great many more. For instance, you will find:

BANQUET OF MEN'S CLUB

Rev. Dr. Iglehart Speaks at First Presbyterian Church Dinner.

F. O. DUNNING TOASTMASTER.

Washington and Lincoln the Theme of Chief Speaker—Seventy Attended the Banquet.

Comparing Washington and Lincoln, two great heroes of their time, Rev. Dr. F. C. Iglehart, of New York, former pastor of the Central M. E. church, Newark, as well as other large churches throughout the country, made an interesting address last night at the banquet given by the Men's Club of the First Presbyterian church. It was "ladies' night," and the first time that the club has entertained the women at a similar affair. There were about seventy guests.

An excellent dinner was served, young men of the church acting as waiters. Just prior to the address of the evening F. C. Iglehart, Jr., formerly baritone of the church choir, sang two numbers, accompanied by Clifford A. Braider on the piano. Mr. Iglehart was given a hearty reception.

Dr. Iglehart, who is now at the head of the Anti-Saloon League work of New York State, as well as a writer of note, is an earnest and convincing speaker, and his remarks last night were full of patriotism, as he portrayed the characteristics of Washington and Lincoln, an appropriate subject for the day.

Dr. Iglehart remarked that while Washington had been dead about ten years when Lincoln was born and that the two heroes were dissimilar in many ways, especially their environment, there were many things about the two men that were similar.

By way of contrast he said that Washington's father left a rich estate while Lincoln was a poor boy and a poor man. He said that at the time of Washington's inaugural he was considered one of the richest men in the country. He wore silk stockings, fine linen, etc., while Lincoln wore the cheapest clothing and had a hard struggle to get along. Until a man he wore deer skin clothes, was ill at ease in polite society, while Washington represented the other extreme. In the opinion of the speaker Washington and Lincoln were typical of the good and great of the country.

"Both were farmers," said Dr. Iglehart, "hayseeds, if you chose. Both were officers in the army and fought the Indians and both were elected twice to the Presidency of the United States. There is no doubt but that Lincoln studied Washington's life and emulated him to a large extent. Almost every great man has had a good mother. Washington's mother was a beautiful and good woman, and he was always loyal to his mother. The same can be said of Lincoln. We know that when his mother died he walked a distance of fifty miles to get a minister to preach a funeral sermon, and the latter could not do so until a year later, owing to the distance and other duties.

"Garfield kissed his mother on the day of his inauguration, saying to her, 'Mother you have brought me to this.' McKinley showed the same affection for his mother, while Lincoln said 'all that I am I owe to my mother.' The mothers of America have made our commonwealth."

Dr. Iglehart then spoke briefly concerning the prophetic instinct as exemplified in both Washington and Lincoln, showing how in their youth they seemed to feel and know that some day they would lead the nation. He referred to the strong Christian character of the men, and gave unmistakable evidence that both were strong believers in God and served Him.

The speaker also related several interesting stories about Lincoln, showing what a strong man he was. He quoted Judge Davis, of Illinois, to show that it was Lincoln who first suggested his candidacy for the Presidency, and how the leaders of his party conducted his campaign successfully defeating Seward. He also referred to Lincoln's pure wit, which was lacking in Washington.

At the close of his remarks, Dr. Iglehart was greeted with hearty applause.

F. O. Dunning, as president of the club, presided. He was assisted by Dr. N. W. Currie and Clifford A. Braider in arranging the affair. The young men who acted as waiters were Preston, Arthur and William Dunning, Alvah Dunham, Stryker Hoagland and Wilton Smith. A vote of thanks was given to them for their excellent services.

FINE LECTURE—RECITAL

Ovide Musin Entertains and Interests a Large Audience in P.H.S. Auditorium.

TRIUMPH FOR MR. M'INTYRE.

Miss Florence Austin Also Wins Plaudits for Splendid Playing—History of Violin Shown.

At the beginning of his very interesting and instructive lecture-recital in the High School auditorium last night Ovide Musin, the Belgian virtuoso quoted a fable in which the point was shown to be that the true artist will make it his ambition to excel in one thing, be the master of one single profession or art. He also told his large audience that there were several schools in which the art of violin playing was taught, but that there were only two kinds of players, those who play well and those who do not.

The program was made up of selections from the best masters and interest added by the stereopticon views of the men who have made the world look up to them as wonders with the most human musical instrument of all including Paganini and Ole Bull. The history of the making of the violin, its creation one string first and following on through the various stages of its development, were portrayed in the splendid views. The school at Cremona with its production of the Stradivarius and other sweet toned instruments kept the audience enthralled.

No criticism is warranted here of the music actually played, but a few words concerning those who took part will not be out of place. Mr. McIntyre, who accompanied Mr. Musin, received the unequivocal praise of the violinist himself. Mr. McIntyre's work was in keeping with the high standard he has always maintained and he was particularly brilliant in some of the most difficult passages.

Miss Florence Austin, one of Mr. Musin's pupils, added much to the evening's enjoyment, being especially delightful in the duet with Mr. Musin, the last number on the program, the duette for two violins by Godard. Four of Miss Austin's pupils, Misses Deutscher and Tillinghast and Messrs. Silverman and Kahn delighted the audience with several selections from Leonard, Kreutzer and Fiorello.

Without doubt this recital, with its enchanting music and its educational features will long be remembered by those who were fortunate to have heard it. It was given under the patronage of seventy-two women and under the auspices of the Boys' Work Committee and the Women's Auxiliary of the Y. M. C. A.

G. O. P. CO. COMMITTEE MAKES RECOMMENDATION.

The Union County Republican Committee on Monday night unanimously recommended to Governor Fort the re-appointment of Ralph L. Morrow, of this city, as one of the two Republican members of the County Board of Elections, and S. Rusling Ryno, of Rahway, formerly clerk of the Board of Freeholders, as clerk of the election board. The board is bi-partisan.

J. E. Warner, of Cranford; Herbert Buxton, of this city and W. H. Randolph, of Rahway, were appointed a committee to draft resolutions on the death of Former Assemblyman Hall, of Cranford.

The Union County Republican Committee in an effort to secure a new armory for the Elizabeth militiamen, has adopted resolutions calling upon Senator Ernest R. Ackerman and Assemblymen Pierce, Schwartz and Thompson to urge an appropriation at the present session of the Legislature.

MANAGER SANDERSON GIVES UP GOOD "TIP."

The following communication was received today from Manager Sanderson of the Plainfield theatre:

A few weeks since I presented at the Plainfield theatre a musical comedy that did not receive very great support, being unknown to our community. The limited number who attended were well pleased and many have assured me that if that company would return the show could be largely patronized. My assurance of the excellence of that company was manifest to all who attended.

Tonight I will offer another musical comedy show that is unknown to the community, the Ward and Vokes company, in the "Promoters." This entertainment has been on the road for ten years and is one of the most successful. I am willing to endorse them as worthy of liberal patronage, feeling sure that everybody will be pleased with their efforts.

AGED PRIEST'S FUNERAL

Bishop and Thirty Priests Attend Father Schandel's Obsequies.

MASS AT ST. JOSEPH'S CHURCH.

Dean Cody Preaches the Sermon—Great Crowd at Service—Interment at St. Mary's Cemetery.

St. Joseph's church was thronged this morning when the funeral service of the Rev. John Schandel, the venerable priest who died on Saturday, was conducted. The hour set for the celebration of the solemn high mass was 10:30 o'clock but the edifice was filled by 9:30 o'clock. So large was the crowd of mourners that hundreds were unable to gain admittance and were compelled to stand out doors during the service. Among those were thirty priests of the Trenton and Newark dioceses.

Bishop McFaul was in charge of the obsequies. Father Duckgeishel, of Newark, was the celebrant of the mass, while Father Quinn, of Newark, a Redemptionist, acted as deacon; Father Schwartz, of Stony Hill, was sub-deacon, and Rev. Dr. Griffin, of Trenton, was master of ceremonies. The deacons of honor were Monsignor Kievlitz and Father Lyons, both of Freehold. Fathers Lewis and Polycarp, of St. Benedictine's Abbey, of Newark, chanted the mass.

Dean Cody, of Newark, who preached the sermon, spoke eloquently of the dead priest, praising Father Schandel for the many sacrifices he had made in his work for the church.

Presiding at the organ was Mrs. Harry G. DeMeza and the music was directed by James Bailey, the choirmaster. A trio rendered impressively "God Will Judge the Nations."

Following the celebration of the mass the throng outside of the church was given an opportunity of viewing the dead priest as he laid in a solid oak casket in his vestments.

Interment was made in St. Mary's cemetery this afternoon. The bearers were J. B. Eller, Charles Eller, Caspar Fuchs, Thomas Oexner, Edward Oexner and Edward Debby, of Stony Hill, all former parishioners of Father Schandel.

CAPT. ALLEN INSPECTS THE LOCAL MILITARY

With only one man absent, Co. K held its annual inspection Monday night at the armory on West Front street, and it was agreed that it was the best in its history. The absentee was Philip Meisner, and papers for court martial proceedings were prepared yesterday. Nothing but a physician's certificate of illness is accepted as an excuse for absence on this occasion, and it is said that Mr. Meisner was not ill. The penalty in such cases is quite apt to be severe.

Captain Allen, of the 29th Infantry, U. S. A., located at Governors Island, inspected the company assisted by Col. R. H. Patterson, of Elizabeth, and the guardsmen never showed up better. There were fifty-five men present. The boys were complimented by Major W. B. Martin, former captain of the company, although the company will not know its rating until the regular report is made. This was the State and U. S. A. inspection.

After the inspection arrangements were completed for the company's trip to Trenton on Saturday, when the entire Second Regiment will be reviewed by Brigadier General Murray and staff. The company will hold a business meeting Monday night to complete arrangements for the fair in March.

MRS. TRACY LAID TO REST IN HILLSIDE CEMETERY.

The funeral of the late Mrs. J. Evarts Tracy was held yesterday afternoon, the services being held at the home of her son, Howard C. Tracy, 1331 Prospect avenue, and conducted by Rev. Dr. John S. Zelie, pastor of the Crescent Avenue church, and Rev. Dr. K. P. Ketcham, former pastor of the First Presbyterian church.

The funeral was attended by a large company of friends of the family both from this city and out of town and the floral tributes were many and beautiful. The interment was in Hillside cemetery and the bearers were Charles F. Abbott, L. N. Lovell, John M. Whiton, Samuel Huntington, W. L. C. Glenny and George H. Goddard.

HEBREW WOMEN HOLD ANNUAL MASQUE BALL

The Hebrew Ladies' Benevolent Society gave their second annual masque ball at the Plainfield Dancing Academy on Monday night and realized a considerable sum for the charities which they support. About one hundred couples attended and the costumes were grotesque, elaborate, historical and original. Prizes were offered for these and were won by the following: J. Trupin, for a costume representing a Russian prisoner captured the first prize, while the Misses Esther Wolfe and Rose Rosenson carried off the second prize as the Gold Dust twins. The third prize fell to Miss Sadie Leichtentritt for her highly comical costume of the "Teddy Bear Girl."

The judges of the affair were Mr. and Mrs. Emanuel Kapelsohn, Mr. and Mrs. Simon Miroch and Marcus Silbert. The committee were Mrs. K. Rothberg, Mrs. L. Steigman, Mrs. A. Victorson, Mrs. M. Cohen, Mrs. M. Lipkin and Mrs. F. Miller. Refreshments were served.

REV. MR. SHAW'S VIEWS ON LOCAL OPTION BILL.

Rev. Edwin Shaw, pastor of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, spoke concerning the anti-saloon campaign Sabbath morning, taking for his text, "For the people had a mind to work," Neh. 4:6. He considered and presented the following propositions:

"Drunkenness is a bad thing, a harmful thing and therefore an immoral thing for he who drinks and usually a harmful thing for his family, friends and associates

"The institution known as the saloon is the chief source of drunkenness and of the other evils which almost always accompany it.

"The organization known as the Anti-Saloon League is the most powerful and efficient foe of the saloon at the present time.

"The great majority of workers and leaders in the league are united in the belief that for the State of New Jersey the most practical, the most effective and therefore the best method of work at the present time would be the enactment of a local option law.

"The league has prepared such a measure and it has been introduced in the Legislature.

"If the people of the State have a mind to work this bill may become a law."

The pastor suggested ways and means in which the people could work. At the close of the service the congregation by rising vote approved the Gebhardt-Ridgeway Local Option bill and expressed the hope it would become a law.

SUSPENDS SENTENCE ON FOUR WAYFARERS.

Four tramps, three from Bayonne and one from Elizabeth, were corralled Monday midnight riding on a Central Railroad freight going through this city. The hoboes were riding in a box car which they had boarded while the train was standing in the yards at Elizabeth. As it could not be proved that anything had been taken from the car nor that the men had broken the seal in order to get in, Judge William N. Runyon suspended sentence this morning on all four. They were James O'Leary of 138 Avenue E; Neil Toland and Charles Gallagher, of 41 Andrews street, all of Bayonne, and Thomas H. Dean, of 128 First street, Elizabeth.

Somerset County Bill.

Assemblyman W. W. Smalley, of Somerset county, has introduced a bill in the Legislature repealing Chapter 104 of the laws of 1885 relating to the requisite number of years which a lawyer must serve as a counselor before he may become eligible for the position of Judge of the County Court. The law now reads that five years practice as counselor are necessary. Recently Governor Fort appointed Clarence E. Case to be judge of the Somerset county court, but objections were filed because Mr. Case was not eligible according to law, having served but three years. The bill is intended to obviate the necessity of the five years' service.

Prof. Hamilton to Speak.

The Equal Suffrage League of Plainfield will hold its next regular meeting at the home of Miss Mary Willard, 954 West Seventh street, on Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The program will be of unusual interest. Professor Edward J. Hamilton, D. D., formerly of Washington State University, will make an address on "Education and the Ballot." Members are privileged to bring their friends.

Willie Keeler Released.

Fans who were present at the Keeler banquet were surprised when they read in the New York newspapers this morning that Willie had been unconditionally released by the New York Americans.

COUNIHAN'S HIPPODROME

Plainfielder Leases New York Ball Park for Amusement Shows.

MARK L. STONE HIS PARTNER.

Also Leases Madison Square Garden Roof for the Same Purpose—Engaging His Talent Abroad.

William J. Counihan, owner of the Plainfield theatre of this city and the Majestic theatre, of Perth Amboy, has entered into an agreement with Frank Farrell, president of the New York American League baseball club whereby the great ball park will be transformed into an immense stadium. Mr. Counihan's partner in the enterprise is Mark L. Stone and they promise to present one of the greatest out-door amusement parks ever placed before the public.

The ground entrances and grandstands will be brilliantly illuminated at night and while performances will not be given on days when baseball is being played, it will be open every evening during the season from about May 1. Madison Square Garden has been contracted for by Cunnihan & Stone where a similar show will be inaugurated at about the same time that the ball park is opened.

The purpose of the new company is to provide everything worth while in novelties and features in out door amusements, including every new thing that Europe has produced. John D. Tippitt, manager of the park circuit, sailed for Europe today in the interests of Counihan & Stone to secure the latest thrillers hippodrome acts and novelties. It is purposed to open the new enterprise on Decoration Day simultaneously with the Garden and the firm has every encouragement to enter the field of popular forms of amusement at prices which the people can afford to pay.

Mr. Counihan leased the two theatres, the Plainfield and Majestic, to F. F. Proctor, Sr., and Harry S. Sanderson about six months ago, and since that time has been engaged in perfecting the plans for this hippodrome.

HOPE CHAPEL SUPPER AND ENTERTAINMENT

Under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society and the William N. Runyon Bible class association, of Hope chapel, a Martha Washington supper was given at the chapel, last night. More than one hundred and fifty people patronized the affair. The decorations consisted of red and white bunting and numerous American flags.

The William N. Runyon class Association had a special table, covers being laid for thirty members and guests. The guests were Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie, Rev. and Mrs. L. R. Howard, G. Herbert Condict, John Leal and Judge William N. Runyon. The class and others present had the pleasure of listening to an address by Dr. Zelie on "Throwing up the Position."

Judge Runyon was persuaded to go to the piano and he rendered a number of Scotch ballads in the "Runyonesqueu" way. In addition to the supper there was a sale of aprons, fancy needlework, candy and cake. Those in charge were:

Aprons, Mrs. Thomas Hendry, Mrs. James Herron, Mrs. William Gray and Mrs. Samuel Cratsley; cake, Mrs. W. S. Terry and Mrs. Charles Vincent; candies, Mrs. Laura Hangliter and Miss Mary N. Mortimer; needlework, Mrs. Charles Hughes and Mrs. W. H. Cook; in the kitchen Mrs. Robert Hangliteh was in charge, assisted by Mrs. Orra Eckert, Mrs. James Penny, Mrs. Charles Graves, Mrs. William Jones, Mrs. Fred J. Wharton and Mrs. James Herron. These were the waitresses:

Mrs. F. A. Weber, Mrs. George Leighs, Mrs. Walter Bradford, Mrs. James Penny, Mrs. Gertrude Rittenhouse, Mrs. Charles Hughes, Mrs. M. W. Clark Mrs. Samuel Cratsley, Mrs. David Gordon and Mrs. Harry Keen. Mrs. Donald McInnis was in charge of ice cream tickets. Financially and socially the affair was a great success, and it will be made an annual event.

A House Party.

Miss Emeline Alpaugh, of East Sixth street, gave a house party over the holiday having twelve guests nearly all of whom were from out of town. The entertainment included a theatre party yesterday and a George Washington dinner on Monday night.

WON PRIZES AS ORATORS

Miss Mary P. Gates and Edward Hanrahan P. H. S.'s Best Speakers.

ALUMNI HELD THE CONTEST.

William C. Hubbard Re-elected President of Association—Dance Follows Entertainment.

Miss Mary Pauline Gates a member of the freshman class, and Edward Hanrahan, a sophomore, won the honors in the prize speaking contest for pupils of the Plainfield High School at the annual meeting of the Alumni Association held in the auditorium last night. Each received a ten dollar gold piece. Four boys and four girls took part in the contest, which was the feature of the association meeting. The judges were Samuel St. John McCutchen, Rev. Dr. John Sheridan Zelie and Miss Emelyn Hartridge, and the awards were made by Dr. Zelie.

Miss Gates' selection was "At the Box Office," and her rendition showed careful study and a thorough appreciation of the subject which was humerous. Mr. Hanrahan gave "Anthony's Funeral Oration," and he entered well into the spirit of the classic speech. Miss Alice E. Mehl gave "Cy Pringle's Detective Experience," Miss Arline Brown, "The Higher Culture in Dixie;" Miss Frances K. P. Newell, "The Swan Song;" Frank Cullen, "The Victor of Merango;" J. Wilbur Tovell, "The True Greatness of a Nation;" and Roy E. Titsworth, "The Black Horse and His Rider." Each won merited applause from the large gathering of school alumni.

William C. Hubbard, '84, presided at the meeting, and the reports of Franklin S. Smith, '80, the secretary-treasurer, and heads of the various committees showed the organization to be a flourishing one. A fund of $100 has been tendered from the association treasury to a young alumnus for the partial defrayment of college expenses. The annual election resulted in the choice of the same officers: Mr. Hubbard as president, Charles B. Morse, '95, as vice-president, and Mr. Smith as secretary-treasurer. A large executive committee was named. Miss Margaret Leggett, 1910, was chosen as alumni editor for The Oracle, the school paper, and a complete alumni department will be a feature of future issues. Copies of a special alumni number of the school paper were at the school last night.

Following the business session, during which plans for co-operation with the undergraduates and educational aid for alumni were discussed, came informal dancing, which continued until 1 o'clock. Music was by Suhr's orchestra. A feature was the serving of supper in the gymnasium. Benjamin Evans catered and the arrangements caused much favorable comment. The committee in charge of the affair was headed by Charles B. Morse, and included Miss Anna L. Runyon, '05; Miss Inez Tolles, '05; Ralph B. Titsworth, '93; and Theodore O. Gavett, '05.

CIVIL WAR VETERANS SURPRISE A COMRADE.

I. L. McVoy, of 305 East Second street, was surprised on Monday night upon his return from the meeting of the G. A. R. to find the house filled with friends and relatives who had come to help him celebrate his sixty-third birthday. The rooms were handsomely decorated in pink and a bouquet of sixty-three pink carnations, Mr. McVoy's favorite flower, decorated the table.

When the G. A. R. men marched in in a body the surprise was complete. There were thirty of Mr. McVoy's comrades in line and they made the evening a pleasant one for their host. The surprise was engineered by Mrs. McVoy and was complete. The evening was spent in music and singing of patriotic songs, in which the whole company of sixty people joined heartily. Mr. McVoy received several handsome presents. Guests were present from New York, Newark, Jersey City, Westfild and Brooklyn. Those who assisted Mrs. McVoy in receiving were Mrs. Arthur McVoy, Miss Marion Porter, of New York, Mrs. William Addis and Mrs. John Folk.

Ball a Big Success.

The twenty-first annual masquerade ball of the Gesang and Turn Verein on Monday night was largely attended and a big success. The committee in charge was Fred Becker, Jacob Fass, Harry Dreier, John Schropp, John Alter, Herman Klinsman, Jr., George Schlereth.

Grant Boos' Party.

Grant Boos, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Boos, of Grant avenue, entertained a number of his chums at a Washington's Birthday party last night. Twenty guests were present.

FANS DINED "WEE WILLIE"

A Silver Loving Cup Was Presented by Local Admirers to Keeler.

JUDGE RUNYON TOASTMASTER.

Samuel St. John McCutchen, Arthur Irwin and Many Others Respond to Toasts—Songs a Feature.

"Wee Willie" Keeler was toasted and lauded to the skies at the banquet given in his honor at Hotel Iroquois on Monday night. The dinner was a big success for Keeler is the magnet fr all of the fans of the old Crescent days. "Wee Willie" received a big ovation as he stepped to the plate in the midst of the festivities and was presented with a silver loving cup by City Judge William N. Runyon, who acted as toastmaster.

The guest of honor never had a reputation as a dinner speaker, but he accepted the gift in well chosen words and at the close of his remarks he was obliged to face another volley of cheers. Keeler told the fans that it was in this city that he signed his first contract for Tom Keller. Willie also confessed that the occasion was the first banquet at which he was ever a guest of honor.

The dining room was elaborately decorated for the occasion In addition to a profusion of national flags and bunting, the side walls were adorned with the Y. M. C. A. and Clinton Avenue Baseball championship pennants. The walls were also adorned with bats knotted with red ribbons.

With Judge Runyon as toastmaster the other speakers were Samuel St. John McCutchen, George O. Stevens, Bogert Conklin, A. E. Kenney, John J. Kenney, Joseph F. Norton, sporting editor of the Newark Evening News, Arthur Irwin, scout of the New York Americans, John A. Gaffney and Walter L. Hatfield.

Among the guests was Billy Lee, of Scotch Plains, who covered third base for the old Y. M. C. A. Crescents. Willie Deegan, also of Scotch Plains, who formerly pitched for Plainfield, was also present. John Harkins, Somerville's old pitching star, was also there.

Mr. McCutchen, a former Crescent player, and also a former captain of Yale, in his address gave an interesting talk in which he referred to the game as played under the old rules. Mr. McCutchen declared that the fielding in the pioneer days of the sprt he believed was as fast as now played. He said that the game has advanced because of the advantages in new rules and player's equipments such as glves and masks. He thought that the greatest difference, in comparisn with his days on the diamond, lies in the base running. It was freer when he played, and the present day game does not show as well in this department.

Mr. McCutchen also described the old time rule which only permitted a pitcher to serve the ball from the waist. He remembered seeing one pitcher with his fingers badly scraped because of constant contact with the ground. This style of pitching, he believed, was almost as effective as the pitching nowadays. Mr. McCutchen also related the experiences of the Yale nine when curve pitching came in vogue.

Arthur Irwin in his address paid a high tribute to Keeler. He praised "Wee Willie" as one of the fairest and best ball players who donned a uniform.

A distinctive feature of the banquet was the musical prgram, which consisted of topical songs written by William Bedell, of Newark. The singing was in charge of Johnny Campbell.

Souvenirs in the form of miniature balls and mitts, the gift of A. J. Reach & Company, Philadelphia, were distributed.

The committee in charge of the affair was George Johnson, John G. McLaughlin, George E. Firstbrook, John J. Kenney, William Cass, Ernest Dorflinger and V. W. Nash, Jr.

Two verses of a song which made a hit are as follows:

"Judge Runyon thought he had a right to mingle with the Saints
"He said 'I've helped the honest folks and taken the complaints;'
"But Peter said, 'You can't come in, because Id have you know
"You sent so many folks to jail, you'd better go below."

"'Oh, here's another,' Peter cried, as Sam McCutchen came,
"'He looks t me as if he used to know about the game.'
"'I guess I do,' old Sam replied, 'Let Irwin drp his tail.
"A hundred years ago I used to play the game for Yale.'"

WILL FORCE CLUBS TO TAKE LICENSES

Notices have been sent by the Hoboken Board of Excise Commissioners of Hoboken to all clubs or social and fraternal organizations informing them that if they expect to sell liquors hereafter they must appear before the board and take out licenses, for which a fee will be required.

Under the law, according to Corporation Counsel John J. Fallon, of Hoboken, the board has the right to compel each club selling selling liquors within its establishment to take out a license covering the traffic. Violations of the law in this respect can be punished by the commission.

Many clubs will be unable to stand the expense of a license fee, and will have to discontinue the sale of liquors on their premises. Any found guilty of any breach in this regard will be dealt with severely.

The commission is determined to regulate the liquor trade in Hoboken to the best interests of the city, and it is expected at the next meeting of the Excise Board that many clubs will tender applications for the licenses required.

JUDGE ORDERS HIMSELF COMMITTED TO JAIL.

Jersey City, Feb. 23.—According to the order delivered by the clerk of Judge Carey's court to the keeper of the jail, Saturday, Judge Carey was seeking to have himself incarcerated. The order read:

Receive into your custody the body of Ida Goldstein as a witness. Do not discharge her without an order from Judge Carey who is hereby committed to your jail by order of the court on the above charge.

Ida Goldstein, seventeen years old, was arrested about ten days ago, on complaint of her brother, who claimed she was held as a white slave by Mrs. D. Lorenzo of West Hoboken. The woman was arrested and the Goldstein girl held as a witness, the order reading "until February 17."

At the expiration of that date her brother tried to get her out of jail, and his counsel, Joseph Newman, applied to Judge Carey for an order. Judge Carey was afraid there was a conspiracy to spirit away the girl to prevent her testifying, and he directed the jailkeeper be notified to hold the girl, the result being the note as described. Newman thereupon applied to Justice Swayze, and at a hearing held Saturday afternoon at 5 o'clock, Justice Swayze sent for the Goldstein girl and asked her if she wished to leave the jail. She expressed a desire to go and her bail was fixed at $500. The bond was furnished by Anton Spitznagel.

HOW GEORGE WASHINGTON DID SET CREEK AFIRE.

Princeton, Feb. 23.—The latest edition of the letters of Paine which has been acquired by the library of Princeton University shows George Washington in something else be sides military or cherry tree accomplishments. According to Paine, George Washington was a physicist.

It happened in this wise: In 1783, when the Continental Congress was sitting in Nassau Hall, the first building erected on the college campus, George Washington had his headquarters at Rocky Hill, a few miles away. It was just after Congress had finished thanking George for his services in the Revolution that the renowned general heard from the country folk a story about "setting the river on fire." The "river" referred to was only a creek, but Washington was struck with the idea of even setting a creek on fire so he determined to investigate.

General Lincoln and Thomas Paine were his companions in trying the experiment. Two theories in explanation of the phenomenon were advanced. One was that on disturbing the bottom of the creek some bituminous matter rose to the surface which could be ignited, and the other opinion, that held by Washington, was that a quantity of inflammable air was released which ascended through the water and burned at the surface.

The experiment was made in the evening. Paine, Lincoln and Washington, with an aide-de-camp and several soldiers, boarded a scow near the mill dam at Rocky Hill. Washington stationed himself at one end of the scow with a roll of cartridge paper, which he ignited and held over the water, about two or three inches from the surface, while the soldiers disturbed the bottom of the river with poles. Paine made observations from the other end of the scow to prove his own theory of the rise of bituminous matter. When the mud at the bottom, however, was disturbed, the air bubbles rose quickly and the fire "was seen to take from Washington's light and descend to the surface of the water, which blazed." This was demonstrative evidence that what was called "setting the river on fire" was really setting on fire the inflammable air that arose from the mud, which theory Washington held.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

GOLF.

The amateur championship tournament of the Metropolitan Golf Association will be held over the links of the Morris County Golf Club on May 25 to 28. This was settled at a meeting of the executive committee of the association held in New York last week. The dates selected are in accordance with a time honored custom of this body. Although Morris county has been the scene of national tournaments for both men and women, this will be the first time the course near Morristown has been favored for the men's metropolitan. Other clubs that put in an application for this attraction were the Fox Hills Golf Club, the Montclair Golf Club and the Midland Golf Club.

The metropolitan handicap committee this year consists of J. E. Erickson, chairman; F. J. Phillips and James E. Turner. A Fourth member will be selected later. It is said that the codification committee, consisting of Walter J. Travis, chairman; Leighton Calkins and Max Behr, will have its report ready about the middle of March.

The Women's Metropolitan Golf Association has officially decided upon May 31 and following days for its annual championship tournament, which will be held over the links of the Montclair Golf Club. A glance at the calendar shows this to be a happy selection in that for once it does not clash with the men's metropolitan meeting. The fly in the ointment, however, is that the present choice on the part of the women means a conflict with the New Jersey State Golf Association's annual gathering, though only for part of the week.

An active spring season has been decided upon by the energetic committee now in charge of the Women's Metropolitan Golf Association, additional proof being that three one-day tournaments have already been planned. There one-day gatherings, open only to metropolitan women, will be held at the Richmond County Country Club, the Plainfield Country Club and the Greenwich Country Club.

Something new in women's metropolitan circles will be attempted this year in the way of an official handicap list. It will serve as an aid to clubs holding special one-day or invitation tournaments and it will also prove of assistance to the Eastern body The women's metropolitan list has not been compiled as yet, but it will probably be ready by the end of the month or early in March.

There is some uncertainty with regard to the dates for the championship tournament of the Women's Eastern Golf Association and the tri-city matches for the Griscom trophy. The course of the Huntingdon Valley Country Club will be the scene of action for both events, which are held in conjunction, and Monday and Tuesday, June 6 and 7, have been mentioned by the Women's Golf Association of Philadelphia as satisfactory to that oganization. An official of the metropolitan body said last night that this was not in accordance with the wishes of the players around New York, and she believed the Boston women would feel the same way. The objection to the dates mentioned is that the program now calls for the Eastern championship to precede the team matches, as in this way everybody gets a chance to practice over the course, and incidentally, get in better condition for the tri-city contests.

MISTAKEN FOR ROOSTERS, MINORCAS PROVE WORTH.

Branchville, Feb. 23.—Seven black Minorca pullets, that Thomas Erb, a hotel-keeper of this place, purchased for roosters from William Walton last fall, are now giving more than their share to the egg supply of the community. Three of these fowls lay double-yolked eggs regularly two days in three.

The feats of the Erb chickens have been repeated for a fortnight past. It was this that enabled the flock to save their necks, for their owner, a former Newarker, had bought them from Walton for the expressed purpose of fattening them up for chicken dinners. Week before last Henry C. Duryea who feeds the brood, announced that they were in a fit condition, and a chicken dinner was planned for the next day. Three of the fattest fowls were picked out to be executed the following morning. That night, when Duryea went to feed them he discovered an egg in the coop.

A watch was kept to find out which was the profitable member of the flock. The next day there were two eggs, to the confusion of Duryea. Then a double-yoked egg was found, and ever since Duryea has been finding them. He has discovered that three of the pullets are producing these.

Duryea prepares the food for them in private and is confident that he can break the egg-producing record of the community, both as to number and size.

DEFECTIVE PROCEEDINGS SAVES HIM HIS LICENSE.

Trenton, Feb. 23.—The Supreme Court in an opinion by Justice Parker set aside Monday the action of the Elizabeth Board of Excise Commissioners in revoking the license of Thomas Sawicki, who was accused of violating the "bishops' law" by selling liquor on Sunday. The court dismissed most of the grounds urged on behalf of Sawicki, but held that the proceedings were defective, because judgment was entered without notice of hearing being given to the owner of the premises.

Strangely enough, this ground was not relied upon in the reasons urged on behalf of Sawicki, but the court nevertheless felt constrained to consider it in justice to the party whose rights were prejudiced by the judgment without notice of hearing. In his syllabus, Justice Parker said:

"In a complaint before a licensing board for violation of the law relating to the sale of intoxicating liquors great precision is not necessary. It is sufficient if the charge can be clearly made out from the complaint. The conviction of violation of the liquor law mentioned in section 3 of the supplement approved April 12, 1906, is not necessarily a conviction before a court of law, but may legally be a conviction by the judgment of the licensing body.

"In proceedings for forfeiture of a license to sell liquor as authorized by said section it is essential to the validity of the judgment that a copy of the complaint and order to show cause be served upon the owner of the premises, as well as upon the licensee, and in default of such service on said owner a forfeiture cannot stand even as against the licensee. If proceedings be summary in character the record must contain a statement of the substance of the evidence given, that a reviewing court may be enabled to judge of its sufficiency."

LEGISLATURE LIKELY TO ADJOURN APRIL 8.

Trenton, Feb. 23.—While no formal date as been agreed upon, it is safe to assume that the Legislature of 1910 will formally adjourn on April 8 next. That will mean a thirteen-week session, just a trifle longer than the average, but about the duration considered necessary during the last decade or so.

The first real inclination that anything like final adjournment is in sight comes with the active work of the joint Appropriation Committee. This body worked long after adjournment last night and has been working since it organized two weeks ago before and after its sessions.

While Chairman Bradley and his colleagues are as usual inclined to be as economical as possible they fear that it will be necessary to exceed the comptroller's estimate published recently. The sum of $1,200,844.08 will, they believe, cover the supplemental bill, but they differ as to whether the estimated demand of $5,140,952.79 will reach the limit of the annual appropriation bill for the current year.

VERDICT SET ASIDE; NEW TRIAL ORDERED.

Trenton, Feb. 23.—Upon the ground that a verdict of $8,000 recovered by Tammy Baker against the Public Service Railway Company was excessive, the Supreme Court, in an opinion by Justice Swayze, Monday set aside the verdict and ordered a new trial.

Tammy Baker was a six-year-old girl who lost a leg by being run over by a trolley car.

The court sustained the action of the trial court in taking from the jury the question of contributory negligence, holding that where a child is under seven years of age there is a presumption that it is not guilty of such negligence and in absence of proof to the contrary there is no reason why the question should be considered by the jury. In commenting upon the amount of the verdict Justice Swayze pointed out that the parents are legally liable for the support of the child until she attains the age of twenty-one, and are entitled to her earnings. Their loss is the subject of another action and cannot be included in the damages awarded the child.

"In theory of law," continued Justice Swayze, "the amount received by the plaintiff will be invested by her guardians for her benefit until she attains her majority. With interest at four per cent. the accumulations would add several thousand dollars to the amount she receives, and upon this total she will receive interest during her natural life at her death.

"There is nothing in the case to show that these considerations were brought to the attention of the jury. Whether the verdict would have been as large if they had been presented we cannot know, but the amount is such that we think justice requires that there should be a new trial."

SUPREME COURT HEARS ARGUMENT TO DISBAR.

Trenton, Feb. 23.—Just before adjourning for the term Monday afternoon, the second branch of the Supreme court heard argument upon the return of the rule requiring former Assemblyman Herman A. Berg, of Hudson county, to show cause why he should not be disbarred. Mr. Berg was charged with having illegally retained $500, which was included in a loan of $3,000 made by Mrs. Annie M. Finkenzeller to Martha A. Kirk.

The case against Mr. Berg was presented by Frank P. McDermott, as prosecutor appointed by the court. It appeared from the proofs that on September 28, 1908, Mr. Berg received from Mrs. Finkenzeller $3,000, to be secured on the Kirk property. Mr. Berg charged and received for his services in procuring the loan $150. He paid over to Mr. and Mrs. Kirk, $2,350, making, with the fee charged, $2,500. For the balance he gave the Kirks a receipt for $90 to cover the interest for six months on the loan, a note for $110 and a note for $300.

The $90 interest was not paid to the mortgagees and the notes of $110 and $300 were not paid in whole or part. A few days after the note for $300 Mr. Berg gave a check for $300 to Mr. Kirk and the check went to protest. Efforts were made by Mr. and Mrs. Kirk to collect the balance of $500, but they were unsuccessful. Mr. McDermott submitted that these facts showed the unlawful retention by Mr. Berg of $500, that this constituted unprofessional conduct and that he should be deprived of his license to practice law. Mr. Berg was represented by ex-Senator William D. Edwards.

AGAINST OPEN SUNDAY.

Trenton, Feb. 23.—That they attempt to secularize the Sabbath is still unpopular in New Jersey was made apparent when the session of the Senate opened Monday night. The first business in order was the receipt of petitions, and they were presented by the majority and minority leaders. Senator Ackerman for the Republicans had protests against open Sunday bills from the First Presbyterian church and Epworth League of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church of Plainfield. Senator Gebhardt for the Democrats had similar protests and also communications favoring local option from the Presbyterian church of Elwood the M. E. church of Mt. Salem and the First M. E. church of Flemington.

The Hunterdon Senator also submitted a petition from the Woman's Kalmia Club of Lambertville urging the enactment of Senate 113, which provides for the erection and maintenance of a reformatory for women now committed to penal institutions.

FUNERAL TOMORROW OF METUCHEN'S FORMER MAYOR.

Metuchen, Feb. 23.—The funeral will be held tomorrow afternoon of Richard H. Wilson, former Mayor of Metuchen and former chairman of the Republican county committee, who died suddenly Monday of heart failure. He had been in ill health for some time, and this led to his retirement from politics, in which he had been actively engaged for several years.

Mr. Wilson was born in Jersey City and had lived in Boston and Millville prior to his coming to Metuchen. He had lived here thirty-three years. In 1901 he was made one of the trustees of the Rahway Reformatory, and at the time of his death was president of the board. He was elected Mayor of Metuchen in 1908, filling the unexpired term of Jesse Jackson, who died while in office. He was chairman of the Republican county committee for six years, retiring in favor of John Pfeiffer, of Perth Amboy, last January.

Mr. Wilson was also president of the Metuchen Building and Loan Association. Mr. and Mrs. Wilson celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary last December. The widow survives him.

Gold Plated His Stomach.

Paterson, Feb. 23.—Two-year-old James Grish, of 116 River street, in the absence of his mother Monday lifted an ounce bottle of gold-plated mixture to his lips, and in a trice the mixture was gurgling down his throat. In a few moments Jimmie looked better inside than he felt. At the height of his misery his mother came home. An empty bottle and the gilded corner of his mouth told the tale. Seizing her boy in her arms she ran to St. Joseph's Hospital and turned her boy over to Dr. Briody. The latter used a stomach pump and the boy was relieved.

MISSISSIPPI MASONS STRONG ON COLOR LINE.

Columbus, Miss., Feb. 23.—An attempt to enact legislation affiliating the Masonic grand lodges of Mississippi and New Jersey was defeated here last week, the Mississippi Grand Lodge holding the view that as long as New Jersey recognizes a black lodge in Newark affiliation is impossible.

Movement to Convert Jews.

Paterson, Feb. 23.—The movement for the establishment of a mission for the conversion of Jews to Christianity, which was started some time ago by members of the evangelical churches of this city, was indorsed at a meeting of the Paterson Ministerial Union, at the Young Men's Christian Association, Monday afternoon, the indorsement being in the form of a motion to the effect that the churches represented in the union give their personal and financial support to the movement. The meeting was well attended, over a score of churches being represented.

AMONG OUR NEIGHBORS

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

Many of the friends and former parishioners of the late Father Schandel attended his funeral services which were held from St. Joseph's church this morning. Father Schandel ministered to the wants of St. Mary's parish at Stony Hill for about 30 years, and was beloved by not only his own parishioners, but by those of all creeds.

Appropriate Washington Birthday exercises were held at the public school Monday afternoon. A pleasing program of patriotic songs and recitations were enjoyed after which school was dismissed for the holiday.

On account of the bad weather yesterday the clay bird shoot, which was to have been held between the team from the borough gun club and the Greenbrook team, was postponed indefinitely.

The special meetings being held every night this week at the Methodist church, are being well attended, and the interest manifested is encouraging to the pastor, Rev. Mr. Hollingshead.

The heavy rain Monday night made walking on the sidewalks almost impossible, as the water could not run off on account of the ice and the gutters not being opened.

"Billy" Lee, of the old Crescent team, attended the dinner given by the Plainfield fans to his old team mate "Willie" Keeler, at the Hotel Iroquois.

Mrs. Benjamin Clark, who has been quite ill at her home on Prospect avenue, with the grip, is reported as improving slowly.

Miss Evelyn Buckley, of Front street, spent yesterday with Miss Leora Henry, of Liberty street, Plainfield.

The majority of the residents honored Washington's Birthday yesterday by taking a holiday.

(Additional suburban news on page 2.)

MISS SARAH THAYER NOW MRS. SUTPHEN.

Miss Sarah Elma Thayer, daughter of the late Charles T. Thayer, of Watchung avenue, was married yesterday to John Calvin Sutphen, son of the late John C. Sutphen, M. D., a former mayor of this city. The ceremony was performed at the Brick church, New York, and was witnessed by members of both families.

The bride is well known in Plainfield. Until a few years ago he resided on Watchung avenue but of late she made her home in New York. She was a Sunday-school teacher at Hope chapel for several years.

Miss Coyle's Funeral.

The funeral service of Miss Cora Coyle, who died suddenly while on her way to church on Sunday morning, was held yesterday morning at St. Mary's church, where a requiem mass was celebrated by Father Bogan. Interment was made in St. Mary's cemetery the bearers being Joseph Dwyer, Harvey Moynihan, Maurice Brokaw, Clarence Brokaw, John Logan and M. T. Moynihan.

Will Inspect New School.

The new public schoolhouse at Oak Tree will be thrown open for general inspection Friday night. It is a three-story brick building, steam heated, illuminated with electric lights and up-to-date in every respect. Dancing and refreshments will be features. A nominal admission fee will be charged and the proceeds will be for the piano fund.

Mrs. Christopher Stoeckle.

Mrs. Christopher Stoeckle died this morning at the home of her niece, Miss Florence Schmidt, on Summit avenue, after a month's illness. She was about sixty years of age and is survived by a husband. The funeral service will be held at St. Joseph's church on Friday morning.

Gets Her Final Decree.

Mrs. Hannah Yerkes Flanders, of Grove street, has obtained a final decree of absolute divorce with alimony and costs against her husband, William N. Flanders. Announcement of the decision of the court was made today by Craig A. Marsh, counsel for Mrs. Flanders.

Flag Presentation.

A patriotic entertainment and flag presentation took place at the Watchung public school on Monday night. The speakers were Justice George T. Hughes and Francis E. Bodin, the latter accepting a flag presented by the pupils to the school board.

Lecture on Birds and Animals.

G. O. Shields, an authority on the subject, will lecture at the Plainfield High School, at 12:30 o'clock tomorrow on "The Preservation of Birds and Animals."

A Basketball Game.

The sophomores defeated the seniors of the Plainfield High School in the class championship basketball game, Monday afternoon by a score of 34 to 31.

THREE BASKETBALL GAMES AT THE Y.M.C.A. "GYM"

Plainfield boys finished third in the athletic contests which were decided at Paterson yesterday. Paterson was the winner with 44 points; Passaic second with 29½ points; Plainfield third with 20½ points, and Madison fourth, fifteen points.

The local athletes who competed in the games were D. Ketcham, J. McNamee, G. Linke, McDonough, George Service, H. Moulton, T. Thickstun, E. Ryder, J. Pergen, D. McNamee, D. Denney, Leland Shaw, T Champlin and C. Moraller.

BIRTHDAY SOCIAL AT NETHERWOOD CHURCH.

A birthday social was held in the Netherwood Reformed church last night at which an attendance was a hundred or more. The church was decorated with flags and bunting and Martha and George Washington received the guests at the door. Later the couple revealed themselves as Miss Baud Berry and A. H. Stevenson.

A tableaux in costume was given in which eleven young people took characters as follows: Beggar, S. O. Rush; school-girl, Mrs. Gertrude Berry; Toboggan girl, Miss Anna Smith; actress, Miss Florence Disbrow; college girl, Miss Helen Guttridge; skating girl, Miss Iona Woods; summer girl, Miss Maude Disbrow; riding girl Miss Sadie Johnson; society woman, Mrs. Barwise; widow, Miss Lillian York, and the bride, Mrs. S. R. Rush.

There were piano duets by Mrs. S. O. Rush and Miss Maude Barry and piano solos by Miss Lillian York. E. Smith sang some patriotic songs and a prize was taken from a cherry tree for Clarence Berry. The committee were the Misses Iona Wood, Florence and Maud Disbrow.

THOS. JEFFERSON NAME OF NEW SCHOOL BUILDING.

At the meeting of the Board of Education on Monday night, the name for the new Dunellen avenue school was decided upon and is to be the one suggested by James E. Martine at the meeting of the Dutch Arms of Trinity Reformed church last Friday night—Thomas Jefferson.

Contracts were awarded for the installation of a clock system similar to that employed in the High School and for a system of ventilation of the most approved type.

WOMEN WITH HATCHETS; NOT CARRIE NATIONS.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the First Baptist church at New Market, conducted a successful Washington's Birthday supper last night. The members of the society were attired in Colonial gowns and carried hatchets. The tables were prettily decorated the adornment including minature cherry trees.

Members of the Cheerful Workers acted as waitresses. They were the Misses Virginia Vail, Hannah Nelson, Hazel Piddington and Edwiena Reusch.

Velvet in the Hair.

Women who can wear a hat band around the head, and the majority of them can, are substituting this for the hevay coil of hair worn under the hat. The ribbon is for evening, and makes the coiffure quite brilliant. It carries out the color scheme of the gown. The pastel shades, which are commonly considered suitable for the hair, are rarely used. Instead one sees plum purple, royal blue, Burgundy red, plum black, jade green and sapphire. Satin and velvet ribbons are used, also tulle. The Oriental style of using this ribbon is to finish it above the ears with gemmed cabochons.

Surprised P. H. Laturette.

A surprise party was given to P. H. Latourette at his home on East Fifth street, Monday night. There were about thirty friends present. There was euchre, instrumental and vocal music, after which refreshments were served. At the conclusion of the euchre the following received honors: Mrs. O. P. Crane, Mrs. W. N. Tier, Corra Ryno and John Kriney.

Basketball Games.

Two basketball contests were played in the Sunday School Athletic League at the Y. M. C. A. yesterday. Crescent Avenue defeated Grace P. E. by the score of 34 to 12 and the First Baptist five was victorious over the First Presbyterians by the score of 35 to 15. The Hope chapel team failed to appear and for feited to the Congregational quintet.

Plainfield in .... The Olden Days.

Re-printed from The Weekly Constitutionalist

August 3, 1871.

A number of members and friends of the First Baptist church of Plainfield enjoyed a day of unalloyed pleasure on Thursday last, at the Washington Rock House. Dinner was served to a party of 70 persons, in a manner highly satisfactory to all present. We regard this method of picnicing a decided advantage over the old style, where the ladies are called upon to bring the supplies on the grounds, thereby making an absolute toil of what is intended to be a time devoted to enjoyment and pleasures.

We learn that our esteemed friend Charles H. Andrews, for several years employed by Mr. Schefflin, will shortly open a first-class Clothing Emporium in one of the new stores in Marsh's Block. Mr. A. has had considerable experience in the business, and having advantages whereby he buys his goods low, will be able to compete with New York and Newark prices. He is determined that the trade shall be kept in Plainfield, if good work at low prices will do it. He will open the 15th of August.

While our police force were patrolling their different beats on Saturday evening last, which calls them to the outskirts of the city, some of our town boys thought they would have a little fun, and the consequence was several French roofed heads were administered at the corner of Front and Somerset streets. Query? Can two policeman be expected to guard every point of the city.

The Grand Organ Concert to be held in the M. E. church, tomorrow (Thursday) evening, promises to excel anything in that line heretofore given in this city. The talent engaged is of the highest order. Read the advertisement on our first page.

August 10, 1871.

Our worthy and esteemed friend Jacob R. Van Winkle has some specimens of stuffed birds and animals in his show window on Front street. For instance, may be seen a grey squirrel with a hawk's head, also a black rabbit with a large horn sticking out from the top of his head. Mr. V. understands thoroughly the art of bird and animal stuffing, and all orders left with him will receive prompt attention.

The corner stone of the new edifice of the Plainfield Presbyterian church (commonly known as the Second Presbyterian church) at the junction of Broadway, Crescent avenue and Seventh street, will be laid Thursday afternoon 17th inst.

Lawyer John H. Van Winkle, of this city, recently had cause to search the records in regard to a will made by an old resident of this place some forty years ago, the three witnesses of whom are yet living in Plainfield.

Mr. Wm. Dunn has traded his property corner of Second and Peace streets, to the Central Railroad Co. for a house and lot on Fifth street, and $5,000 "to boot."

Rev. Mr. Smith, of the Reformed church, Second street, delivered an able sermon on the "Westfield" disaster on Sunday evening last.

We learn that Mr. Lawrence Ackerman contemplates shortly to erect a foru-story brick building on the corner of North avenue and Cherry streets, the lower floor to be two handsome stores, fronting on North avenue. This building when completed will be a decided ornament to this section of the city.

The "Junior" of this firm moved into his new house on Monday last, in North Plainfield. That an editor should own a house is singular, but it is a fact.

August 17, 1871

The old bell taken from the Central Reformed church on Second street, to make room for a new one, has been given by the church authorities to the new Presbyterian church building at Dunellen. We were in hopes that our Fire Commissioners would purchase it, erect a tower and use it for a fire alarm.

The Baptist church at Scotch Plains was crowded last Sunday evening to listen to the remarks of Rev. Mr. Buchanan.

Mr. Augustus Frazee (the expressman) has in his possession a copy of The Sun, published in New York in 1833, the size of it is 12x18, and is a curiosity.

A Grand Organ Concert will be given in the Central Reformed church, Second street, Thursday evening, August 31st. The celebrated artist, Miss Clara Louise Kellogg, has been secured for the occasion. Other eminent artists will also appear. It will undoubtedly be the finest concert ever before given in Plainfield.

MissEdith Palmer gave a dance at her home in Fanwood, Monday night. There were guests from Plainfield, Westfield and Newark.

Resolution of Condolence.

With sorrow the Medical Board of Muhlenberg Hospital and the Plainfield Clinical Society is called upon to chronicle the death of one of its original members, Dr. Norman B. Long, who has served the hospital and this community in a faithful and conscientious manner for three decades.

We, his professional associates, desire to place on record our feeling of sadness that by an overruling Providence the bond of union which has been cherished in our hearts for so many years has been severed by the hand of Death.

We would express our heartfelt sympathy to his widow and children who have been so suddenly bereft of a companion and father.

Resolved, That we attend the funeral services in a body and that a copy of this memorial be sent to the family of the deceased and to the daily papers.

TELLS THE BANKS TO REDUCE THE INTEREST

Filing the annual report of the State Department of Banking and Insurance, of which he is the head, Commissioner Vivian M. Lewis sounds a note of warning to the New Jersey financial institutions, telling them to beware of too vigorous competition in the matter of interest on deposits, lest they are finally led to offer a rate that will be so high as to affect their stability.

In this connection he says:

"The allowance by banks and trust companies in certain sections of the State of unduly high rates of interest on deposits is a practice that needs reforming. The present maximum rate of interest of four per cent. is excessive and places too heavy a burden upon the earnings of the institutions generally and if maintained will tend to lessen their stability.

"The situation has been brought about by competition among the institutions for accounts, and it devolves upon their managers to apply the remedy before serious trouble arises. They should get together and take concerted action to reduce the rate in their common interest."

In his report for the last year Commissioner Lewis shows that the aggregate resources of the 313 financial institutions of New Jersey amounted to $585,837,205 at the close of last year, an increase of $59,141,785 over the year previous, and that the number of depositors in the savings banks and trust companies alone increased 45,797 in the same time. The aggregate deposits of the institutions at the close of the year were $439,225,131, or an increase of $48,925,085 over the preceding year.

The figures of the report cover twenty-six savings banks, eighty trust companies and twenty State banks coming under the jurisdiction of the State Department and 187 national banks.

The increase in the resources of the State institutions was $36,974,796, which is nearly twelve per cent., and there was a gain in deposits of $32,164,421, or thirteen per cent. The capital stock has been increased to the extent of $534,300.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

Elbert H. Harris, of Allenhurst, has begun suit in the Court of Chancery for divorce, charging desertion, which his wife denies.

At Millville, William Pierce was arrested and charged with neglecting to send his son to school. He will be tried by Mayor Smith.

Over 2,000 papers, drawings and manual training models were exhibited in the rooms of the New Egypt public school Monday, the work of the pupils.

The Presbytery of New Brunswick, in special session at Trenton, dismissed Rev. William A. Campbell, of the Second Presbyterian church of Princeton to the Presbytery of Chilicothe, O. He has accepted the call to Washington Court House, O.

Enoch Steelman, of Millville, who was recently released from an asylum, attempted to murder his brother, former Assemblyman Jesse S. Steelman, Sunday night. After a struggle he was disarmed and was recommitted to the county asylum yesterday afternoon.

When her dress caught fire from a stove yesterday, Elvira P. Lang, sixteen years old, of 209 King street, Gloucester City, was so badly burned all over the body that there was little hope for her recovery at Cooper Hospital, Camden yesterday. The girl was alone in the house at the time and ran screaming into the street. While several men in the neighborhood were extinguishing the flames the girl's mother returned and collapsed at the sight.

Burglars, supposed to be members of a crowd of yeggmen, made their fourth successful raid on the combined postoffice and express office at Linwood, a small mainland town, Sunday night, and looted the safe. After blowing open the strong box with nitro-glycerin the marauders secured $46 in cash and escaped before their visit was discovered. The other three robberies of the office have been made within the past six months and determined efforts will be made to catch the thieves.

Pemberton Carlisle, of Glassboro, was seriously and perhaps fatally injured yesterday afternoon while working on the West Jersey and Seashore Railroad, at Fifty-fifth street. The young man, who is assistant foreman of bridge constructors, was assisting in pulling pilling when the engine started suddenly and his head came in contact with the end of a log. He was taken to Vineland, where it was learned that his skull is fractured. Carlisle is thirty-two years of age and has a wife and two children.

Washington Camp, Patriotic Order Sons of America, has changed its meeting nights to the second and fourth Tuesdays in the month.

The Women's Relief Corps will hold a regular meeting Friday night and enjoy a special program arranged by the good and welfare committee.

FAIR EXCHANGE.

A New Back for an Old One—How It Is Done in Plainfield.

The back aches at times with a dull, indescribable feeling, making you weary and restless; piercing pains shoot across the region of the kidneys and again the loins are so lame to stoop is agony. No use to rub or apply a plaster to the back in this condition. You cannot reach the cauhe. Exchange the bad back for a new and stronger one. Follow the example of this Plainfield citizen:

Albert Naylor, 519 East Second street, Plainfield, N. J., says: "Several years ago I was afflicted with a dull ache in the small of my back and sharp pains darted through me when I stooped or lifted. I was told that Doan's Kidney Pills were a sure cure for such troubles and procuring a supply at Randolph's Pharmacy, I began their use. Two boxes of this remedy fixed me up in good shape and I have often recommended it since to other persons suffering as I did."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

This is the Square Pot of the

BOYNTON FURNACE

that saves fuel and dollars and will heat the whole of a house. In every great engine and under every big boiler you'll find a square fire box. Ever noticed it? Well—we have adapted that principle to our furnaces. A square pot gives a clean, hot, clinkerless fire without waste of fuel. It requires the least attention and responds instantly. BOYNTON furnaces only have square fire-pots. It is our patent. There are other improvements. A square ash pit that improves the draft and makes removal of ashes easier. A pure air supply—for health's sake. A dust flue that saves the rooms above.

JOURNALISTIC OPINIONS

'Squire Collins Idea.

The sensible suggestion made before the Union County Board of Agriculture by Farmer-Editor Collins, of Westfield, and subsequently approved by the New Jersey State Board of Agriculture, is attracting attention far and wide. It was, in substance, that all property not specifically opened to gunners by printed or verbal permission shall be legally considered closed, and hunters going thereon be subject to action for trespass. The New York State Fish and Game Commission is thinking over the matter and may yet have something to say about it. New York, by the way, offers a suggestion in return. In the last report of its commission the statement is made that there is no valid reason why the statutes should not favor the propagation and sale of any kind of game. For the purchase of game thousands of dollars are sent abroad every year that might as well go to the farmers. The small farmers as well as the big ones in foreign countries make money out of the game they raise. Massachusetts is trying the scheme with prospects of success, and there is no reason why New Jersey farmers may not turn an honest dollar in the same way. It would help to restock the State with game, at the same time.—Newark News.

"P. B. A." Benevolence.

The State Patrolman's Benevolent Association has another of its benevolent schemes before the Legislature. The legislative committee of the "system" that has such a strangle hold on police departments in this section of the State, has induced Assemblyman Housel, of Mercer county, to introduce a bill whose passage would add largely to the tax rate in Newark. Just why a Trenton man should father such a scheme, in which his home town is not interested, is not known, but it may be accounted for by the fact that lawmakers from this section consider it dangerous for them to be known as furthering a plan such as that proposed. The bill provides that cities where the present police pension act is in force shall borrow or appropriate enough money to cover all pensions required during the remainder of the current fiscal year for policemen or matrons, and shall thereafter put in the annual tax levy a sum equal to four per cent. of the total salaries paid to the police force to be used and kept exclusively as a fund for the payment of police pensions. The passage of this bill would mean an outlay of $30,000 annually to Newark alone right now, with constant increase each year.

The pension fund is now principally supported by the one per cent. levy on patrolmen's salaries, which is deducted each month from the salary checks. Inasmuch as about $750,000 is expended in salaries, this means about $7,500 a year for the fund. Then all fines imposed against officers for derelictions are included. These are not so much now as heretofore. The money deducted from salaries for any cause, such as sickness, absence or otherwise, is another item for the fund. All money received from the sale of special policemen's badges and commissions, amounting to about $900 a year, is another, as is the money received from the sale of permits for revolvers and parades. Likewise any donations that are made, from outside admirers for meritorious work go into the fund. It costs now about $1,500 a month to pay pensions, and after March 1, when four more men are to be pensioned, the cost will be increased to about $1,800 a month. The receipts for the fund amount annually to but $9,000 or $10,000. This, of course, means a big shortage, which is paid out of a past surplus accummulated by the fund trustees. At present this surplus amounts to $40,000 and is invested in city bonds. March 1 it will have to be reduced to $38,000 and each year will get smaller and smaller as the department enlarges and the pensions increase.

The Housel bill is intended to prevent this fund from being further decreased, and to prevent at at the expense of the taxpayers. The "P. B. A." is so benevolent that it desires a very large pension fund in order that the pensioning of its members may be carried on more rapidly than is the case at present. The members are not willing to pay any more than they do to maintain this fund for their own benefit, but they are entirely willing to have the general taxpayers bear the extra burden.—Newark Evening News.

CHAPTER V.

The Voices of the Past.

It rained hard during most of the night. The woman slept lightly and whenever she woke she could hear outside of her sanctuary the roar of the storm. The man, as usual, slept the long hours through as undisturbed by the commotion as a child. It was apparent to her that he had absolutely no fear. Whether this was due to ignorance or temperament she could not say. Was fear, after all, under the conditions in which his life had been lived, a purely artificial quality, or was it natural and inherent? He had avoidances, abhorrences, antipathies, as the skeletons in the coppice which she had buried. Was that avoidance fear or was it something else? Was it instinct or did it arise from recollection? She rather fancied the last. If so, it was evident that the man had been on the island a long time. It would have taken years for the metal that must have been about that woman's person to rust away, for the steel clasps of the dog's collar entirely to disappear.

Upon that faint memory that he cherished, upon that prayer that he prayed, she could build the foundation of his education. She had been so successful in training him and in restraining him, in influencing him and swaying him so far that she had abundant confidence in her ability to do so to the end. It was quite evident that life would be easily supported under the conditions in which it must be lived on that island. She need have no physical concern as to her material well being or comfort, and here was mental education and stimulus which made her for the time being forget the rest of the world.

Indeed, she thought bitterly, as she lay awake during the long watches of the night, that the rest of the world was nothing to her and that she hated it. She, therefore, not only was becoming resigned to her situation, but was rejoicing in it. She would teach this man all she knew. She would teach him to think, to reflect, to reason. She would teach him to talk. Since she had a book, albeit a sorry one, she would teach him to read.

The rain fell more softly now. Her eyes drooped.

She slept again only to wake and muse once more. She could have slept better had he been outside. How could he lie there in the complete and steeping insensibility of slumber? Her hand fell against her breast. There was the treasure trove of her existence the day before. What would they tell her? She could scarcely wait until morning to look. So she woke and slept and woke and slept until the day broke.

It was bright and sunshiny out, although there were ominous clouds all about the western horizon. It was probable that the rainy season was at hand, if not upon them. She regretted that she had not given more time to the study of nature, to the fauna and flora of the South seas, to the conditions of wind and weather under which life was lived there. Much philosophy would she gladly have parted with for such practical information. She had to piece her ideas of affairs out from scraps and tags of knowledge, unclassified, incoherent; from vague recollections of childhood stories and romances; from carelessly scanned collections of voyages, books of travel and adventure. The result was unsatisfactory. In some particulars the instinctive man before her was her master. At the things which went to make up physical comfort and well being in a state of absolute nature he certainly surpassed her.

She was thankful when she walked abroad that she had the shelter of the cave, for everything was drenched from the terrific downpour. If it was the beginning of the wet season she knew that the rains would soon come again. Still she luxuriated in what freedom she had. Without removing her single garment she plunged into the lagoon for a refreshing bath. The man followed her and swam about her moving slowly, with less skill than she, but as easily as a porpoise plunges about the bow of a progressing ship.

Refreshed, she came back to the mouth of the cave and brought thence for a careful inspection all her worldly possessions, save the little heap of clothing which she had carefully piled upon the jutting shelf in the shadow of the cave for time of need. She ranged them on the sands before her. There was the Bible and the little silver box which she had found in the cave. She examined more critically its contents, wondering what they might be, and finally there came into her mind recognition that they were flint and steel. When she wished, she could make a fire. She was happy for the moment in the knowledge and then the uselessness of the power came across her curiously. What did she want of fire? There was nothing to cook. Its warmth was unnecessary. Still she was glad to have the ancient flame kindlers and she laid them aside carefully in the box, not knowing when they might be useful, under what circumstances invaluable. At least she might regard them as apparatus which would be helpful in the curriculum through which she meant her savage pupil should pass.

Then there was her watch which she guarded as the apple of her eye. It was an American watch of the very best make, and although it had gone with her through the waters such was the workmanship of the case that it had taken no harm. It was ticking away bravely, marking time. She thought that for her time had stopped, and yet she was glad, indeed, for the almost human sound it made when she laid it lovingly against her cheek.

There were the hairpins, also, for which she was most grateful. They enabled her to keep her hair in order. She had a wealth of glorious hair, black as the midnight sky. With the aid of the mirror and of the comb, which also was a priceless treasure, she arranged it carefully according to the mode which best became her. Sometimes when she had finished her toilet, she shot a glance at the watchful man, a human, natural instinctive glance, but she was able to detect no change in his mental attitude, which was that of such complete and entire adoration, mingled with timidity and hesitation, that no transient change apparently was able to modify it. He looked upon her as he might have looked upon a god, she thought, had he known what a god was and had there been such a thing to look at.

There was also the pair of scissors, together with the little housewife with needles and thread. Mirror, hairpins, scissors, sewing materials, comb—woman's gear and the Bible, a woman's book, she reflected with a certain bitterness, unconscious of the truth of her thought—a book for children, old women, and women-led men! Well, that philosophy upon which she prided herself must come to her assistance now and she could not afford to disdain the volume which was all that the world of many books offered to her for her purpose, because she did not believe in it. The truth was in her and she could tell him what it was despite the assertion of the printed pages.

In the leather bag there was absolutely nothing except broken glass and scratched bottle tops of silver and the bag itself was ruined. She separated the pieces of metal and the metal fittings of the bag, which were also of silver, and filling the rotting leather with sand she presently sank it in the lagoon.

Last of all she examined what she had brought from the other shore of the island the night before. The silver was tarnished, but by rubbing it in the sand she soon brightened it. It was heavily engraved and she had no difficulty in making out the words: "John Revell Charnock—His Dog." After that was a date "July 22, 1875." John Revell Charnock then would be 21 years old, assuming that this was he and that the dog had been given him when he was born. It was more probable, however, that he was from three to five years old before he became the owner of a dog, which would make him about 25.

The man before her looked younger to her scrutiny than that. Care and trouble had passed him by. With nothing to vex him he might have been any age. He would probably look just as he was for 20 years or more. Still fancifully adjusting external relations to internal relations, which, after all, she realized was the secret of life according to her favorite philosopher, she concluded that the man was 25, three years older than she at that moment, a proper difference in their ages for . . . Her face flamed. She scarcely knew why, and she turned to an inspection of the rings.

The first was a diamond, a solitaire, of rare beauty, she judged. Although she was not especially expert in such matters, she deemed it must be of great value. There was no inscription of any sort within the narrow hoop of gold, although she searched keenly the inner surface. The diamond was curiously set. There was an exquisite tracery of a little coat of arms on either side of the setting, done in miniature but with a skill to marvel at, too small even for her brilliant vision to decipher in detail.

The other she recognized with a sneer as one of those fetters of convention, a wedding ring. It was a heavier hoop of gold much engraved within. She washed it in the stream and rubbed it in the sand until she could make it out. "J. R. C.," she read, "to M. P. T." There was a date after, September 10, 1869, and then these cabalistic words, "II. Cor. 12:15," which she presently divined to be a reference to some text in the Bible, fit source from which to select the "posy of a ring," agreeable to those who submit to such ancient follies as the well-named bonds of matrimony.

She reached for the Bible and with unfamiliar fingers searched through it until she found the place; "I will very gladly spend and be spent for you; though the more abundantly I love you, the less I be loved." The beauty of the phrase caught her fancy. She read with a strange new interest the chapter in which these words were shrined. The touch of human passion came to her across the long years and with the ring sparkling in her own white hand she embodied its tradition in personality and the woman who had been so loved stood before her. Her eyes fell again upon the man and the dream was broken.

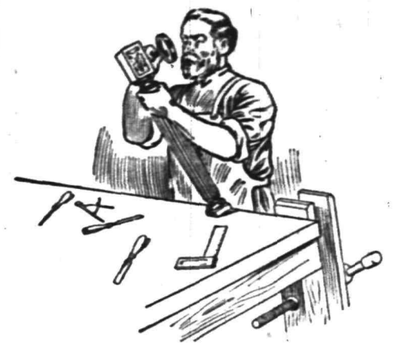
"Trifles Necessary to Attain Perfection."



Perfection is no Trifle

The many little "Trifles" neccessary in building a Perfect Piano, and which are passed over or neglected in most factories, are carefully considered by the makers of the

Hallet & Davis

From the beginning, from the time the first Hallet & Davis piano was made (1835), up to the present time, its makers (this is the third generation) have taken a pride in their handiwork, the pride of honest workmen; a careful attention to the "trifles," the little things not seen by the purchaser; painstaking examination of every bit of material; minute inspection of every working part.

"Good enough" never has, never will pass muster in the Hallet & Davis Shop. It may be good enough to pass unnoticed, may never be seen or detected, but "good enough" means slighted work, and slighted work has no place in our factory.

"Perfection," or the nearest approach within human possibility, is, and ever has been the goal we strive to attain. Not to make a piano that is "good enough" but to endeavor with all our experience, skill and knowledge of the piano maker's art, honesty of purpose, and all backed by unlimited capital, to make a perfect instrument.

In use today are many Hallet & Davis pianos, 30, 40 and even 50 years old, still giving forth sweet sounds, still responding to the exacting requirements of the musician, living testimonials of the honest workmanship of their makers. No piano can give such service unless there has been strict attention paid to the "trifles" that are passed over by most factories.

A Hallet & Davis in the home is evidence of good judgment and refined taste. It also means, "perfect piano satisfaction."

MARTHA WASHINGTON SOCIAL AT VINCENT CHAPEL.

The girls of the First Methodist church entertained the boys last night at a colonial party and supper, about fifty young people sitting down to a splendid collation. After the repast games and singing took up the balance of the evening.

At the long table to which the young people sat down several speeches were made under the careful espionage of Colin Edgar, who was the toastmaster. The girls were costumed prettily in Martha Washington fashion and served the dinner in a manner equal to any other high class affair.

Those who responded to toasts were Mabelle Koch, Frances Rittenhouse, Myra Stebbins and Hannah Bingaman. Dr. Anderson, the pastor, responded in a happy and humorous way to Miss Koch's toast to "Our Pastor."

REVOLUTION'S HEROES PICTURED BY PUPILS.

"Heorines of the Revolution" was the title of a playlet which was cleverly presented by the North Plainfield High School Girl's Club in the rooms of the Young Woman's Christian Association last night. All of the girls were attired in Colonial costumes. A feature of the play was the minuet dance by Louise Layton, Marjorie Ackor and Louis Diman.

Participating in the play were Helen George, Marjorie Hart Nettie Steiner, Edith Schenck, Ruth Weinberger, Bessie Conroy, Henrietta Englehart, Mabel Townley and Ida Englehart.

MARTHA WASHINGTON SOCIAL A SUCCESS.

Under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church, a Martha Washington social and entertainment was held at the church last night. Mrs. Ira VanArsdale, Mrs. John Lant, Mrs. Robert Lee, Mrs. William Thompson and Mrs. William Stine composed the committee. Miss Minnie Gunzelman, MissAnna Lee, Miss Clara Lee, and Miss Heaume assisted. There were piano and violin solos by Miss Violetta Staples and soprano solos by Mrs. Edward D. Young.

A feature was a large and handsomely iced cake, bearing the date "1910" which was presented by Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Seiler. Refreshments were served after the entertainment.

FUNERAL SERVICES OF MRS. B. G. ABERCROMBIE.

The funeral service of Mrs. B. G. Abercrombie was held yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock from her late home, 118 North Euclid avenue, Westfield. The home was filled with sorrowing friends and relatives. The mother and the infant son were buried together. There were many beautiful flowers.

Rev. Dr. W. I. Steans, pastor of the Presbyterian church, Westfield, officiated at the service, and two selections were sung, both favorites of Mrs. Abercrombie, "Abide With Me," and "Lead Kindly Light." The burial was in Fairview Cemetery, Westfield.

Stepfather Furnishes Bond.

Peter Peterson, who was in the borough lockup all of last week, awaiting a bondsman was released yesterday. Peterson, who was arrested for failure to support his wife, was originally held under $300 bail to pay his wife eight dollars a week. The case was reopened by Justice Snape yesterday and the bond was reduced to $100 and the weekly stipend from eight dollars to five. Peterson's stepfather, Charles Mathisen, of Perth Amboy, furnished the bond.

Y. M. C. A. Meets Defeat.

WARD AND VOKES TONIGHT AT PLAINFIELD THEATRE.

That Ward and Vokes have lost none of their cunning when it comes to providing an entertainment of worth in the musical comedy line, will be demonstrated when this duo of comedians present their big musical jollity "The Promoters," at the Plainfield theatre tonight. Their reunion last year is said to have been a decided success, and the style of entertainment provided in "The Promoters" hit a popular chord, as Ward and Vokes' offerings have ever done. Their organization for this season is one of sixty people and it is promised that everything will be absolutely new from the musical program to the costume and scenic display. The company in support of Ward and Vokes presents Lucy Daly, as the Lady Detective, Lew Kelley as "Professor Dope," Charles "Sabby Chapman," as the "Fagged out" hotel porter, Eddie Judge as "Casey the Dog," and John Manly as the "Bell boy." Others in the cast of principals are Mae Kilcoyne, Gilbertie Learcok, Richard Earry and Josie Daly. It is promised that the pretty girl contingent is an important adjunct of the big company. The Ward and Vokes Ladies' Band will be found a very enjoyable feature of the musical program; it is composed entirely of young ladies who have no part in the regular chorus work. Their portion of the program consists of several selections, and is one of the most novel and expensive features ever attempted in musical comedy.

A Sale That All Are Talking About.

The great reorganization sale of the Plainfield Outfitting Co., corner Front and Somerset street, has set all Union, Somerset and Essex counties talking. New members, who will shortly be admitted to the firm, compell the retiring members to take merchandise as their share. Not wishing to be handicapped by any unseasonable apparel, the departing members will naturally to turn their shares into cash therefore there is a reason why this sale is the opportunity of a lifetime. Walk up one flight of stairs and you will find high class, dependable merchandise sold so low that competition is claimed to be an impossibility. One thing is sure, bargains are to be had at the Plainfield Outfitting Co. corner Front and Somerset streets, at the big reorganization sale now on. **

OBSEQUIES OF DR. M. B. LONG HELD THIS MORNING.

The funeral services of Dr. Monroe Budd Long, one of the oldest physicians in the city and the dean of Muhlenberg Hospital staff, were held at 11 o'clock this morning from the late home on Park avenue. There was a large attendance of relatives and friends, while the American Medical Association, the Union County Medical Society and the Plainfield Medical Society, of which Dr. Long was an honored member, were largely represented.

The services were conducted by Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie, pastor of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, of which Dr. Long was an attendant. There were many beautiful floral tributes from the different medical societies as well as from relatives and friends.

The burial was in Hillside Cemetery and the following physicians who were associated with Dr. Long for a number of years were pall bearers: Drs. W. C. Boone, T. H. Tomlinson, E. W. Hedges, B. VanD. Hedges, W. H. Murray, J. H. Carman, Norman H. Probasco, J. Hervey Buchanan and T. S. Davis

FUNERAL OF JOHN F. MARTIN.

The funeral of John F. Martin took place on Monday morning from the residence of his son-in-law, Henry P Seader, 102 Manning avenue, North Plainfield, at 11 o'clock. The services were conducted by Rev. John Y. Broek, pastor of Trinity Reformed church. The interment was in Somerville.

The bearers were the five sons, George, Joseph, John, Theodor and Louis, and his son-in-law, Henry P. Seader. Pastor Broek accompanied the widow and the sons to the grave at Somerville. Many beautiful floral emblems were received from friends and relatives of the family.

Salamagundi Party.

William Debele and John Schneck entertained a number of friends at a Salamagundi party in Debele hall on Monday night. Dancing and games afforded considerable merriment to the guests.

MR. BRISBANE TO SPEAK

Journalist Will Respond to a Toast at Board of Trade's Banquet.

AS WILL WILLIAM G. M'ADOO.

Mark Sullivan, William W. Cocks, James E. Martine and S. S. Swackhamer, Too—Mayor to Be Toastmaster.

Arthur Brisbane, the highest salaried journalist in the world, whose income is three times that of the President of the United States, will be the chief speaker at the Board of Trade banquet on Thursday night, March 3. As editor and president of the New York Evening Journal, his congregation of readers is the largest addressed by any single individual in the world outside of that spoken to daily by the editor of the Paris Matin.

Mr. Brisbane is no stranger to Plainfield. He is a graduate of the famous Hand School, which was the seat of education in this vicinity in the olden days. It is located just outside of the city limits in Fanwood township and it was but recently that Mr. Brisbane purchased the property so proud was he of its historic value. So the journalist is a taxpayer in Union county and thus can rightly address the trade board banqueters as "fellow citizens."

Among the other speakers will be Representative William W. Cocks. He hails from the bailwick of the greatest living American, Theodore Roosevelt, inasmuch as he represents that congressional district in Long Island of which Oyster Bay is a part. William G. McAdoo the man who came out of the west to build the great underground arteries connecting New York, the world's business centre, with Gotham's chief bedroom, New Jersey, will also respond to a toast. Still another speaker will be Assemblyman Mark A. Sullivan, of Hudson county, who knows as much about the ways and wiles of the Jersey politician as any man in the State.

James E. Martine, "the farmer-orator of New Jersey," the best loved man in a community which is solidly opposed to his political principles and the vanquished, but undaunted hero of forty years' political campaigns, together with former Assemblyman Samuel S. Swackhamer, who can also file a just claim as a public speaker, will be in the contest when it comes to applause winners. Mayor Charles J. Fisk will be the toastmaster, and he is a good one for such occasions at all times and in all places.

One word more—It's worth a hundred dollars to hear these men, but to discourage the "high price" tendency of the times, you can buy your ticket, entitling you to a good seat, a fine dinner and all the other privileges, for the sum of five dollars. Edmund Rushmore, the chairman of the committee, says "Step right this way, gentlemen, and get your tickets while they last."

MUNICIPAL AFFAIRS DISCUSSED BY THEM.

The executive committee of the Board of Trade, including President William Jeffery, held a conference with the public affairs committee of the Common Council last night for the purpose of discussing matters to be brought up at the Board of Trade meeting tonight.

Most of the time was taken up talking about sanitary sewerage improvements, and there will be a general discussion of that subject tonight. Mayor Fisk dropped into the meeting for a few minutes, but did not take part in the discussion.

PROTEST MADE AGAINST FIRE ALARM SYSTEM.

The Councilmanic fire and buildings committee met in Mayor Fisk's office last night to discuss departmental matters; also questions pertaining to the change of the fire-alarm whistle from the electric light station to the Spicer Manufacturing Company's plant. A protest was received from several citizens against the further maintenance of such a whistle, purely on the grounds of it being a nuisance.

At present the committee cannot see its way clear to abolish the whistle.

Grace M. E. Fair.

A fair and bazaar will be held tonight and tomorrow night at Grace M. E. church, under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society. It will be representative of the seven days of the week, each booth represetning a different day. An entertainment will be given each night under the direction of Miss Mary G. Steiner, and the program will be changed each night.

MISS MARY N. MEAD DEAD

Sister of Mrs. A. D. Shepard Succumbs to Pneumonia at Hampton, Va.

MRS. J. D. MILLER'S AUNT.

Another Sister Is Mrs. William Dean Howells—She Was Interested in Hampton Institute.

Notice of the death at Hampton, Va., of Miss Mary Noyes Mead was received in this city this morning. She died after a three weeks' illness of pneumonia at the home of Dr. Frissell, the head of Hampton Institute Hampton, Va. Miss Mead was greatly interested in the work of the institute and had given her services gratuitously for the greater part of each year for many years to the work of the great educational institution.

Miss Mead was well acquainted with the founder of the institute, General W. H. Armstrong, and her work continued there after his death much to her time being devoted to the library. She is survived by two sisters, Mrs. A. D. Shepard, of "The Gables," Fanwood, wife of one of the officers of the American Bank Note Co., and Mrs. William Dean Howells, the celebrated novelist and magazine writer.

The arrangements for the funeral services have not yet been made, but they will take place on Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the home of her niece, Mrs. John Doull Miller, 222 East Ninth street. Notice of the services will be given later.

The news of Miss Mead's death came so suddenly that it carried with it a shock to all who have known of her splendid work and who were her intimate personal friends. She will be missed greatly by those who have received at her hands the help upward to which so many of the deserving are strangers.

FUNERAL SERVICES OF HAROLD L. MULFORD

The funeral of Harold L. Mulford, the young son of Mrs. Charles A. Pomeroy, took place yesterday afternoon at the family residence on Park place, the borough, at 2:30 o'clock, conducted by Rev. Dr. Meldrum, chaplain of the Pawling School, of which young Mr. Mulford was one of the brightest students. Dr. Meldrum was assisted by Rev. George A. Warner, rector of the Church of the Holy Cross. The interment was in Hillside cemetery.

The funeral was attended by the entire student body from Pawling School including the head master, Dr. F. L. Gamage and Mrs. Gamage. Other members of the faculty present were J. Elliott, R. J Bunten, Dr. H. M. Snyder and Mrs. Henderson. The floral tributes in loving memory of the dead youth were numerous and beautiful; among the most notable pieces being a cross from the school made of orchids and foliage; another from the sixth form, the graduating class, made of white roses and lillies of the valley intertwined with the class colors, gold and black. From the masters of the school was a huge bouquet of red rosebuds and white lilacs.

Among the relatives and friends from out-of-town who attended were Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Field, of Hempstead, L. I., Mr. and Mrs. Louis Smith, H. S. Rowell, Mrs. Stevenson Brigham, Mrs. Charles Brockway, Mrs. Frank Hutchinson and Mr. and Mrs. Barden, all of New York city.

Rt. Rev. Dr. David H Greer, bishop of New York, who was to have conducted the services was unable to be present owing to illness and in his place Rev. Dr. Meldrum spoke feelingly of the life of the young man. Dr. Meldrum told of the high purposes and splendid character of the youth who had been taken away and urged the other young present to emulate him in their life's ambitions.

The pall bearers were selected from among Mr. Mulford's fellow students of the Pawling School and were A. L. Bunnell, R. C. Simpson, E. T. Steadman, R. P. Staats, W. B. Turner and A. G. Deming.

Mrs. David Weaver Injured.

While engaged in hanging up clothes in the rear of her home, yesterday noon, Mrs. David Weaver slipped on a piece of ice, fell and dislocated her right shoulder. With the assistance of members of the family, Mrs. Weaver reached the house and a physician was summoned. Later in the day the dislocated bone was set by Drs. P. J. Zeglio and J. Hervey Buchanan. Today she is reported as resting comfortably.

KIRKNER NOT JEFFERSON

Movement on Foot to Ask Board of Education to Change Decision.

NEW SCHOOL BUILDING TITLE.

Knights Templar Take the Initiative in Having Jacob Kirkner's Services Suitably Recognized.

Believing that the services of the late Jacob Kirkner on behalf of public education in this city during a service of two decades as a member of the Board of Education should be suitably recognized, Trinity Commandery, Knights Templar, will petition the board to change its decision in naming the new Darrow avenue school for Thomas Jefferson. This action was decided upon at a conclave on Monday night, it being the purpose then to ask the board to so honor the memory of Mr Kirkner. Unknown to the knights and the public in general, the board at a private meeting at the same time had bestowed the name of Jefferson on the school and the action was as much of a surprise to the public as was that when the board quietly selected a successor to fill the unexpired term of a member who recently resigned, not even the mayor knowing then that such action was contemplated.

In the course of a few days, the knights will distribute petitions for signatures and according to report then will have no difficulty in obtaining general approval of their suggestion. The name of Thomas Jefferson, it is said by some of the friends of Mr. Kirkner, has no special significance, while that of the latter has a real value here, for it appropriately recognizes the invaluable services of a late veteran member of the Board of Education. The public school system and its upbuilding was his hobby and a good share of the credit for the high standard of the local schools is freely given him.

Mr. Kirkner was a past grand commander of the Knights' Templar of New Jersey, and was a citizen of great civic virtue.

It is reported that the Board has already sent to the architect the name of Jefferson as the title to be placed on the stone over the front entrance to the Darrow avenue schoo.

FANWOOD REALTY DEAL INVOLVED OVER $150,000

The Lockwood Company, which has been interested in Westfield real estate for several years, has purchased all the Central New Jersey Land Improvement Company's holdings in Fanwood, as well as all the available property between the borough and Graceland. The deal was made a few days ago and the papers have been passed. While the consideration is not definitely known, it is said to be more than $150,000.

The company intends laying out streets and cutting the tracts up into building lots. The property will be restricted. The work of grading will be started early this spring and a big building boom is expected as all of the property is desirable and within easy access of the railroad stations. The company has erected a number of dwellings in and near Westfield and has been instrumental in developing large tracts of land.

DEATH OF JONATHAN B. SMITH, FATHER OF MRS. VANDERHOEF

Jonathan B. Smith, father of Mrs. G. R. Vanderhoef, died yesterday morning at the Vanderhoef home, 915 West Front street, in his seventy-eighth year. Mr. Smith came from Newark and had lived in this city for the past fifteen years and for the past twelve years he was a regular communicant at Trinity Reformed church.

The funeral services will be held on Friday afternoon at 3:30 at the residence, 915 West Front street, and the interment will be at the convenience of the family on Saturday morning. The services will be conducted by Rev. John Y. Broek, pastor of Trinity Reformed church.

Mr. Smith is survived by three daughters, Mrs. G. R. Vanderhoef, and Miss Harriet Smith, of this city, and Mrs. Lyons of Newark.

—Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Morse, of Union street, will remove Tuesday, March 1, to Springfield, Mass., where they will take up their residence. Mr. Morse will operate in the real estate business in and near Springfield.

DEATH OF SEELY EDSALL

Retired Dry Goods Merchant Passes Away at Bloomfield Home.

AGED SEVENTY-TWO YEARS.

He Conducted a Store Here for Many Years—A Deeply Religious Man—Funeral Saturday Afternoon.

Seely Edsall, one of Plainfield's pioneer dry goods merchants, died at his home in Bloomfield, last night, following a long illness. For many years he was prominently identified with the business interests of this city, and was a successful merchant.

Mr. Edsall was born in Sussex county, February 10, 1838. He went to Newark in 1863 and engaged in the dry gods business. In 1870 he purchased the business of a Mr. Baldwin and established a wholesale dry good and notion business on Market street, Newark. A little later he started a retail branch store in the Conklin building and part of what was known as the White store on West Front street, this city, and at an expense of several thousand dollars built an extension of two floors.

Later, when the Babcock building was constructed he leased two stores and opened the first department store in Plainfield. In this effort he was very successful. A few years afterward, owing to poor health, he sold his business to Woodhull & Martin, who have since been factors in the business life of Plainfield. Mr. Edsall since that time lived a retired life. He was a member of the Park Avenue Baptist church, and particularly active in church and missionary work. He frequently conducted gospel meetings in the city and vicinity.

He is survived by a wife, who was Miss H. Adelaide Ball, of Newark, to whom he was married in 1867; also a son, J. Linn Edsall, a granddaughter, Gladys, and grandson, Howard.

The funeral services will be held from the late home, 117 Washington street, Bloomfield, Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. The burial will be on Sunday at the convenience of the family in Hillside Cemetery, this city.

SUNDAY SCHOOL CHILDREN TO PRESENT PLAYLETS

"The Sleeping Beauty," and "The Lost Prince," two playlets, will be presented at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church tomorrow afternoon and evening by the Sunshine Mission Band of the church. The afternoon performance will be given at 3 o'clock and in the evening at 8 o'clock.

These young folks will present "The Sleeping Beauty:" Leila Hedges, Marion MacClymont, Augusta Burke, Louise Patterson, Dorothy Lyon, Eleanor Iredell, Elizabeth Brown, Margaret Miller, Elizabeth Browne, Pauline Sandford, Mildred Miller, Elizabeth Burke, Elinor Bucklin.

This will be the cast for "The Lost Prince:" Ellen Hovey, Janet Van Vliet, Janet Fox, Jennie Van Zandt, Helen Patterson, Marjorie Bird, Eleanor Brown, Louise Patterson, Marion Van Zandt, Mildred Miller and Pauline Sandford.

There will be a sale of home-made candy and the proceeds will be for the foreign missionary work of the band.

Democrats to Meet.

There will be a meeting of the Democratic Club at the club rooms on Saturday night, at which those who come will be entertained at a smokefest and some refreshments, to say nothing of some good oratory. James E. Martine will entertain with a speech on a special subject and Samuel S. Swackhamer will also have something to say. Every Democrat in the city and neighborhood is invited to attend.

Mayor Meets P. S. C. Officials.

Mayor Charles J. Fisk made an appointment with officials of the Public Service Corporation for a conference in his office this afternoon. The appointment was made at the request of the company officials who expressed a desire to talk over certain matters pertaining to its business in Plainfield.

A Bride at Fourteen.

Miss Frances Bruno, aged fourteen, and Victor Bucossi, aged twenty-six, both of the borough, were married on Saturday night by Father Miller, of St. Jospeh's church. The bride is a granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Bruno, of Somerset street.

M'CARTHY INCORRIGIBLE

Son Defies Father, Threatening to Kill Him Because He Was Spanked.

HAD ROCKS FOR TOMBSTONE.

Prefers Nighthawking to Parental Discipline—Will Be Given Hearing Tomorrow.

William McCarthy, a youth of eighteen, who has given the police and his parents considerable trouble during the past two years, is held a prisoner at police headquarters having been remanded this morning by Judge William N. Runyon until tomorrow.

Young McCarthy has recently fought and been whipped by his father for attempting to assault him and after spending the night away from home on Tuesday returned with the avowed intention of killing his parent. Mr. McCarthy reported his son's latest threats and unfilial conduct to the police with the result that he will be dealt with according to the finding of the court when the case comes up tomorrow.

Rev. Father Bogan has interested himself in the case and it was on his suggestion that the case was postponed until tomorrow morning. According to the police young McCarthy is a bad egg and he ought to be placed under some practical restraint.

On Monday night he stayed out of the house all night and when questioned by his father as to where he had been William promptly replied that it was none of his father's business. At this point Mr. McCarthy thought that a little administering of some form of punishment was in order and forthwith gave the insolent youth a good spanking.

Yesterday morning after another night's absence young McCarthy approached the home of his parents with evil in his eye. Carrying under his arms several large rocks he went to the door and challenged his father to come out and meet instant death. The purpose for which the rocks were intended was, to quote the youth, "for your tombstone," meaning his father. Mrs. McCarthy persuaded her husband not to go out at that time as she was afraid of injury to Mr. McCarthy, who is an honest, hard working man. Instead the police were notified with the results stated above.

SHIELDS TELLS PUPILS THE VALUE OF BIRDS

G. O. Shields, president of the League of American Sportsmen, founder and publisher of Recreation, now Shields' Magazine, addressed the pupils of the Plainfield High High School this afternoon on the subject of "The Economic Value of Birds to the People and Country at Large." The lecture was illustrated with, perhaps, the finest collection of colored slides of wild animals, in this country.

Mr. Shields is conducting a vigorous campaign against the indiscriminate slaughter of birds, and he said today that the killing of these birds is costing the farmers of this country billions of dollars a year. He made a strong plea for the preservation of birds as well as animals, and related numerous incidents about bird life that are sure to arouse a deep interest among the young people.

This evening Mr. Shields will give a lecture on the same topic at the Scotch Plains Baptist church. Children will be admitted free, while a nominal admission fee will be charged for adults.

TEMPLE BAPTISTS PLAN FOR 2 WEEKS' MEETING.

Arrangements have been completed for a series of special meetings to be held at the Temple Baptist church beginning Tuesday, March 1 and continuing for two weeks. Rev. L. J. Westfall and Rev. Charles E. Lewis, wife and daughter, of Wilmington, Del., will assist the pastor, Rev. John W. Musson, in conducting the meetings.

Preparatory prayer meetings are now being held. The meeting tonight will be led by Frank Stewart and Friday and Monday night will be in charge of Edward Baker, Jr., and C. J. Utzinger, respectively.

Entertained Thimble Club.

Mrs. Arthur McVoy, of West Fourth street, entertained the Thimble Club, yesterday afternoon. The members spent an enjoyable afternoon, during which refreshments were served.

OLD CITIZEN PASSES AWAY

John Becker Sr., of North Plainfield, Dies After Ten Weeks' Illness.

WAS A NATIVE OF BAVARIA.

Held in High Esteem for His Sterling Character and Generosity—Was Father of Mrs. N. B. Smalley.

John Becker, aged 85 years, one of the oldest residents of the borough, died at his home 62 Watchung avenue, this morning from acute indigestion. He had been ill for ten weeks with stomach trouble. Prior to that time he enjoyed good health and was able to be about as usual.

Mr. Becker was a native of Kaiserlautern, Rhineflauz, Bavaria. He came to this country when a young man, and later removed to Plainfield, where for many years he conducted a large woodyard. He gave up business about twelve years ago and since lived in retirement. His wife died about nine years ago.

Mr. Becker amassed a competence in the manufacture of barrel hoops and was known for his bigness of heart. He came to Plainfield about sixty years ago and at once became a friend to all with whom he came in contact. At one time he served a term on the North Plainfield Town Committee, where his services were marked with distinguished clear headedness and success. He will be mourned by a great number of people who will always remember him for his kindly disposition and sterling character.

Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. Newton B. Smalley, of the borough, and Mrs. Henry Eggerding, of Arlington avenue, and two sons, Fred and John Becker, of the borough. The former is overseer of the poor in the borough. There are also eleven grandchildren and one great-grandchild. The funeral services will be held from the home of the son, John Becker, on Watchung avenue, and the time will be announced later.

FREEDOM CASTLE'S NINTH ANNIVERSARY

Freedom Castle, Knights of the Golden Eagle, celebrated its ninth anniversary at the Park Club last night which was attended by nearly one thousand people. Dancing and a fine entertainment were features of the evening. Grand State Chief Horace J. Martin welcomed the guests in a speech full of happy thoughts and Past Supreme Chief John C. McKenney, of Philadelphia, addressed the gathering in the interests of the order.

Louis Hummer's orchestra furnished music for the dancing, while Dr. J. Hervey Buchanan played the accompaniments for Haley and Bond, the musical entertainers as well as for Sir Knight E. D. Young and Mrs. Young, who favored the audience with duets.

Past Supreme Chief McKenney spoke at length of the order's accomplishments in the past nine years and made the value of affiliation with the order plain to those who have not yet joined. He referred to the name of this city as being a misnomer; it is too plain. It really ought to have been called something like Buchanan, for instance, which is a synonim for everything which is worth while. His speech was received with applause.

The officers of Freedom Castle will go to Trenton tonight to help Trenton brothers celebrate their anniversary. Many members of the Philadelphia Castle were present last night as was also Grand Chief Ferris, of Asbury Park.

Mrs. Stoeckle's Funeral Tomorrow.

The funeral of Mrs. Catherine Stoeckle, wife of Christopher Stoeckle, who died yesterday, will be held at the residence of her nieces, the Misses Florence and Christine Schmidt, 34 Summit avenue, North Plainfield, tomorrow. The funeral will leave the house at 8:30 in the morning and at 9 o'clock a solemn high mass of requiem will be offered in St. Joseph's church. The interment will be in St. Mary's cemetery.

Ride Bikes on Sidewalks.

Owing to the growing practice of boys using the sidewalks on which to ride their bicycles the police are rounding them up as fast as they are caught at it. The practice must be stopped and every effort will be made to that end. Boys caught riding on the walks will be subjected to a fine on conviction for the offense. Louis Kopp, a boy in the employ of John Storms, a butcher, of Liberty street, was allowed to go this morning with a warning.

CALL NOTED PREACHER

Park Avenue Baptists Want Rev. Mr. Maguire for Their Pastor.

MEANS A LARGE SACRIFICE.

His Salary Here Less Than a Third of What He Now Receives—Believe That He Will Accept.

Rev. Gabriel Reid Maguire, who preached at the Park Avenue Baptist church last Sunday, upon invitation of the pulpit committee, was extended a unanimous call to the pastorate at an enthusiastic and largely attended meeting of members of the church last night

This action was anticipated following Mr. Maguire's presence here on Sunday, and there was such a unanimity of opinion regarding him that it was thought best not to lose any time. After last night's meeting a telegram was sent to Mr. Maguire informing him of the action taken and extending a call. An answer is expected soon.

Mr. Maguire, who is a native of Ireland, and about forty years of age, was first brought to the attention of the members of the Park Avenue Baptist church by Rev. Dr. Charles A. Eaton, who knew him when he was pastor of the Euclid Avenue Baptist church in Cleveland. It was largely on this recommendation that Mr. Maguire was invited to preach here last Sunday. He made such a favorable impression that it was practically decided that day to extend a call, He was heard by large congregations and everyone was favorably impressed.

Prior to the business meeting of the church last night, there was a brief season of prayer in charge of Deacon Charles F. Dayton. Then followed the business meeting, Deacon David M. Runyon presiding. The purpose was stated and the congregation lost no time in formulating a call to Mr. Maguire. It was the most enthusiastic meeting held in a long time and everyone seemed pleased with the outcome and the prospect that Mr. Maguire would accept the call.

Mr. Maguire began his preparation for the ministry abroad and obtained his theological training at Knox College, Toronto, Can. He was a classmate of Rev. Dr. William Patterson, who has been pastor of the Bethany Presbyterian church, of Philadelphia. For six years Mr. Maguire was a missionary in the Congo. While there he got the jungle fever, which necessitated his return to this country. He then accepted a call to the Calvary Baptist church in Cleveland, O., where he has been for twelve years. When he entered upon his duties there the membrship was small, but it has since increased to between 800 and 900. He preaches to a congregation of more than a thousand people every Sunday.

During his present pastorate it was found necessary to build a large addition to the church to accommodate the increasing membership.

Mr. Maguire is not only a powerful and magnetic preacher, but he is also a good pastor. He has refused an offer of $7,000 a year to go on the lecture platform, believing that he was called to preach the Gospel. He desires to locate near New York, and for this reason has expressed a willingness to come to Plainfield. He recently received a call to a large church in Cincinnati, but prefers to come east.

While in the city on Sunday, Mr. Maguire had a little opportunity to see the town and was favorably impressed. He is a married man and has a daughter.

Becker Placed Under Fine.

Aaron Becker, of Somerset street, created such a rumpus at his home on Tuesday night that the neighbors complained to the police department. Becker it was charged, was beating his wife, and Chief Weiss went to his home and placed him under arrest. In court this morning Becker declared that the quarrel was the result of money matters. Recorder Dolliver inflicted a fine of $25 on Becker and suspended sentence.

Mrs. Kenyon Injured.

Mrs. Rachel Kenyon, of East Second street, fell on Somerset street yesterday while alighting from a carriage and sustained severe bruises about the body. She was taken to Champlin's pharmacy and Dr. A. H. Dundon was summoned and attended to her injuries.

Take the Post-Office Out of Politics

In attempting to charge up the deficit in his Department against the magazines the Postmaster-General has done the country a genuine, even if an unintentional, service. He has drawn attention to the necessity for a thorough reorganization of the Postal Department. He has emphasized the importance of taking the Post-Office out of politics for all time.

The Fifty-ninth Congress authorized an investigation of postal affairs, and a joint commission, headed by Senator Penrose and Representative Overstreet, made a thorough investigation of the whole subject. As a result, the Overstreet bill, which contains many excellent recommendations, was presented. It is not from guesswork that we have concluded that the Department is in need of radical reorganization, but from the official reports of this Joint Congressional Postal Commission and of the disinterested accountants hired by it to investigate the business methods of the Department. We quote from these reports, remembering that the findings and criticisms are not ours, but those of a Congressional Commission and its authorized agents. First read these recommendations from the preliminary report of the Joint Postal Commission, in this week's number of

Then read these extracts from the report of the public accountants employed by the Joint Commission:

> "The service has grown from small beginnings over a long period of years, hampered by restrictive laws which may have been necessary in the past and may even now be considered necessary to some extent for a Government department, but which would render it practically impossible for any private business to survive.
>
> "The general absence of any efficient methods of accounting has been brought to light by the inquiry carried out by the Joint Commission on second-class mail matter. This report was referred to Congress on January 30, 1907, and our investigation has confirmed the impression gathered from the study of it, that the whole of these methods are crude in the extreme and such as no private business concern or corporation could follow without the certainty of loss, if not of financial disaster."

There are half-a-dozen more of these extracts on the Editorial page of this week's issue of THE SATURDAY EVENING POST.

In the Joint Postal Commission's report of 1907 we find:

> "As an indication of the views at present entertained it is proper to say that the commission is profoundly impressed with the wisdom of the accountant's report in recommending the following:
> "That the actual direction of the business of the Post-Office Department and postal service be committed to an officer with necessary assistants to be appointed by the President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, for long terms, so as to insure the continuity of efficient service, and that the Postmaster-General, as a member of the Cabinet, be chargeable only with general supervisory control and the determination of questions of policy."

We ask Congress to give us a Director of Posts—as recommended by the Joint Congressional Committee of 1907, an officer who shall be non-political, and whose term of service shall not be subject to political changes, and who shall conduct the workings of the Post-Office Department with the efficiency, economy and businesslike methods which distinguish high-class American business enterprise.

The New DRESS FABRICS Make Their Initial Bow Wednesday.

Our Dress Goods Department is bidding for your patronage—stocks have been carefully selected and with discrimination. We have assembled ONLY the most desirable weaves, colors and designs. You'll find fabrics assembled you may choose from in confidence, for they are the season's most stylish materials.

If you're planning Spring clothes it's best to start their making now—too, with Easter only a few short weeks away, one can't begin preparations for Easter clothes too early.

There is economy in making early purchases. Through our associated interests we placed liberal orders, in consequence we secured many favorable price concessions. The advantages we thus gain, are passed on to you in our lowered prices. Aside from the savings you affect by purchasing at Tepper's, you have choice from the largest and most complete dress goods stock in Plainfield.

A New Departure—Wednesday Bargain Day

You know what a bargain day means at Tepper's. We put out a list of the wanted goods marked away under price. This WEDNESDAY BARGAIN DAY will be unusual, because the bargains will be greater and will not be advertised in the papers. We will simply mention as a reminder to you that WEDNESDAY IS BARGAIN DAY HERE. A list of the goods on sale will be found on a Bulletin Board at the front door entrance. The bargains will surprise and delight you. They will be put out on WEDNESDAY ONLY. Bring your shopping list with you on Wednesday. Look through the Bargain Bulletin, and you will find some of your needs at a handsome saving.

Oil Paintings Were Never So Cheap

As In This Eleventh Annual Picture Sale

We have sold thousands of pictures the past two days, and will sell thousands more tomorrow and Saturday because the people of Newark have never been treated to such a feast of art and values as has been laid before them in this sale. Notwithstanding the large sales of pictures of the more popular sort great interest has been manifested in the division devoted to oil paintings, for here is assembled a large collection of paintings than any Newark store has ever held, and they are priced to the wonderment of all who see them. Is it any wonder that we are selling paintings so rapidly?

Clever artists have produced most effective marines and landscapes, many with figures, beautifully colored—many of them real gems, and all of them set in elaborate gold frames in shadow boxes, making them fit ornaments for any home; pictures that you can prize and be proud of; pictures that will lend tone to any home in which they are hung or to any office or public place; yet they are priced on a par with the most ordinary sorts of pictures.

When you see these paintings you will surely be tempted to buy more than one of them.

Oil Paintings, valued at $5, selling here at $2.50, will be priced $1.98.
Oil Paintings, valued at $10, selling here at $5, will be priced $3.98.
Oil Paintings, valued at $15, selling here at $10, will be priced $5.00.
Oil Paintings, valued at $20, selling here at $10, will be priced $7.50.
Oil Paintings, valued at $25, selling here at $15, will be priced $10.
Oil Paintings, valued at $35, selling here at $20, will be priced $12.50.
Oil Paintings, valued at $45, selling here at $25, will be priced $15.

MAKES AN ATTACK ON THIS LOBBYIST.

Trenton, Feb. 24.—One of the bills called up for passage in the House yesterday was by Mr. Miller, of Essex, and provides for the incorporation of Belleville as a town. The Osborne bill in the Senate would permit the annexation of Belleville to Newark.

Francis Hendricks, of Belleville, has succeeded in defeating the annexation scheme for several years by his lobbying tactics, and yesterday he appeared in the House to beat the Miller bill. He took a seat beside Mr. Bowden, of Essex, after he had previously importuned other legislators to vote against the act. He smiled serenely while Mr. Miller attacked him personally in speaking for the bill.

"This man Hendricks" said Mr. Miller, "is worth two or three millions. He comes here lobbying, maintains an open bar in the State House. He has spent his money to defeat legislation of this kind. His workings are underhanded. His influence is felt in more ways than one. He sees his friends all over the State and they bring pressure to bear on you. I have been so approached."

Mr. Miller would have continued his criticisms, but Mr. Pierce, of Union, interrupted him to ask if there was any opposition.

Mr. Scharff, of Bergen, felt called upon to answer Mr. Miller and praise Hendricks. He said: "I've enjoyed this hospitality down here."

Mr. Minard, of Essex, said he and his associates were for the Miller bill and against the Osborne measure.

There was more discussion, after which the bill was passed by 31 to 17.

Horse Took Trestle.

Elizabeth, Feb. 24.—In a collision between an automobile and a wagon on North Broad street, Elizabeth late Tuesday afternoon, the horse broke out of its harness and ran away. The animal dashed along that thoroughfare, and near Lyons Farms followed the car tracks on the trestle over the Lehigh Valley Railroad tracks. When about half way across the animal's legs slipped between the ties, and it was so badly injured it had to be killed. The horse was owned by the New Jersey Tobacco Company, of Arlington street, Newark. George Helben, of 22 Longworth street, that city, was the driver of the wagon.

Efforts are being made by the residents of Maple Shade and Maple Heights to secue a five-cent trolley fare from Camden.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

GOLF.

In view of the many belligerent and warlike utterances that have from time to time emanated from the pen of Crafts W. Higgins, an article in the current number of his publication, "The Golfers' Magazine," entitled "A Plea for Peace," will come as a surprise for the average follower of the game East and West. This welcome February valentine will also strengthen the position of those who have all along insisted that Mr. Higgins has not been trying to stir up an "insurrection." Anyhow, his editorial in part is as follows:

Now that the golf atmosphere has been cleared through the definite action of the United States Golf Association it seems a time fitting and proper for an analysis of the situation as we now have it. Putting aside any opinions we may entertain as to why such action on the part of the United States Golf Association was taken or the reason for such action on its part, we have as an established fact that action was taken in a way to substantially improve the former conditions and to make of the United States Golf Association a much improved body in that by its new and broader form it is possible of being a more nearly representative national governing body than it ever has been before.

I think on the whole that we of the West have occasion to congratulate ourselves on the notable victory won in New York. While perhaps we may not have gained everything for which we contended, still I think we have secured all that we could reasonably have hoped to get. It has also been a moral victory of far-reaching importance—the "closed" door has been opened wide and permanently.

The golf public has heard so much of this political discussion during the last few years that I believe it now deserves and should have a time of more peace and quiet along these lines. Then if such changes cannot be worked as are necessary to keep the West on an equality with the expanded conditions, that is the time to take them up in a more forcible way, such as was adopted by the Western Golf Association to secure concessions recently granted.

TRAFFIC REGULATIONS CHANGED JUST A WEE BIT.

The new police traffic regulations are being enforced today on the east bound side of the railroad station. There will be but one exit for vehicles hereafter—on the Fourth street side of the station. The approaches to the station will be by way of Park avenue on the West side and Sycamore street on the south side. All carriages and automobiles will have to make the turn at the triangle south of the station and leave by way of Fourth street.

These rules are made in order to prevent accidents which are likely to occur when entrance and exit are made from the same place, not alone to vehicles but to pedestrians who are sometimes in danger of being run down.

JOHN HERRON ELECTED BOYS' CLUB PRESIDENT.

The Junior Boys' Club of Hope chapel held an enthusiastic meeting at the chapel last night, over twenty members being present. Charles G. August is the leader of the club at present and the prospects for a large increase in membership are good. Five new names were added to the roll last night.

These officers were elected for the year: President, John Herron; vice-president, Guy Snyder; secretary, Thomas Herron; treasurer, George Leighs; leader, Charles G. August. Meetings are held every Wednesday night. All boys, members of the Sunday school, twelve years of age and older, are eligible for membership.

Will Give One-Act Drama.

"The Heart of a King," a one-act drama written by A. Russell Weekes and dramatized by Nelson Ramsey, will be presented at the Plainfield High School auditorium tomorrow afternoon, as the Friday afternoon entertainment. The story is said to be full of interest, taking one into the real life of a certain ruler. Everitt Smith will take the leading role, that of prince, while Nelson Ramsey will be a captive, and Osgood will be private secretary to the prince.

SECOND REGIMENT REVIEW SATURDAY.

Saturday will be a real military day in Trenton, commencing early in the afternoon and ending late in the night with a review by General Wanser and his staff.

The occasion is the annual review of the Second Regiment, and the soldiers will arrive in town about 2 o'clock and march to the armory, where there will be a regimental drill. This will be under command of Lieutenant Colonel George L. Forman, who will act in the absence of Colonel Nelson Y. Dungan, who has been relieved of duty on account of the sudden death of his son last Sunday.

Following the drill the guardsmen will inject some fun into the day by having a baseball game in the armory. Two companies will oppose in this game.

While this game is in progress there will be a school for the officers in the squad room, conducted by Lieutenant Townsed Whelan, of the Twenty-ninth Infantry, United States army, who has been instructing the officers of the regiment.

Mess call will be sounded at 6:15, and the guardsmen will assemble and march to a restaurant to be designated and have supper. The officers will dine at the Hotel Sterling.

At 8:30 the review will take place. The men will wear the olive drab uniform of light marching order. The admission to this will be by ticket, but none but guardsmen will be admitted to the armory in the afternoon.

GOVERNOR AT DESK AT TRENTON YESTERDAY.

Governor Fort was able to come to the State House, Trenton, yesterday or the first time since he was threatened with blood poisoning nearly two weeks ago. He found plenty of work to do, but left early to go to Newark, where he delivered an address to the Board of Trade there.

The Governor in order to catch up with his work will come to the State House today, and will then announce the commission called for by the Assembly concurrent resolution to send a delegation to Washington to confer with Secretary of Agriculture Wilson on the order of the Food and Drug Bureau against floating oysters. The hearing is set for March 2.

One of the tricks of the trade in the oyster industry is to take the oysters from all water and place them in fresh water, which has a fattening tendency. This the Pure Food Commission of the United States has ordered stopped, because of the danger of placing the oyster in contaminated waters.

ROADS BILL DEFEATED.

Minard Measure, Fixing Assessments, Hits Snag.

Trenton, Feb. 24.—Assemblyman Minard's bill to give the Montclair Town Council authority to improve streets and highways with telford or macadam pavement, struck a snag in the House yesterday.

It was favored by the Essex freeholders for improving outlying thoroughfares in the western part of Montclair. The bill was beaten, 18 to 33, but Mr. Minard changed his vote to the negative before the result was announced, so that he might move reconsideration later.

The Minard bill would allow the assessment of a whole community to pay for street improvements that the opponents of the bill said should be assessed only on land immediately benefited.

It was charged that the bill would benefit land companies.

Mr. Minard moved reconsideration of his paving bill and then moved to lay that motion on the table. Both motions were lost and House 142 was finally beaten.

HEARINGS ARE FIXED FOR RAILROAD BILLS.

Trenton, Feb. 24.—The Senate committee on railroads and canals yesterday announced dates for two public hearings. The first takes place next Monday evening at 6:30 o'clock. The bill under discussion will be Senate No. 21. This measure, introduced by Mr. Silzer, requires railroad companies to pay wages bi-weekly.

The other hearing will be on the merits or demerits of Senate bill No. 32, and the date fixed for it is Wednesday, March 2, at 2 o'clock. This bill was presented by Mr. Leavitt, and limits the liability of common carriers on account of loss or excess baggage carried for commercial travelers to the excess rate paid by the owner.

A NATION OF BRIDGE BUILDERS.

Suspension bridges, although not so rigid as cantilevers, can be built longer, and, although their own weight and all the loads they carry are supported by the great cables, they require heavy trusses to stiffen the floor. Three suspension bridges across East River in New York are by far the largest and heavest in the world. The Brooklyn Bridge, with its beautiful stone towers and graceful sweeping curves, has a span of 1,595 feet, and carries two railroads and two trolley tracks, two roadways, and a wide promenade. The Williamsburg Bridge, built a few years ago, has steel towers 335 feet high with a 1,600-foot span, supporting six tracks, two roadways, and two sidewalks on its double decks. It weighs about 16,000,000 pounds, exclusive of its long steel approaches, which brought up the cost to about $19,000,000.

The limits of the present resources have not yet been reached in the length and height of the spans. Few important structures are likely to be required in locations involving greater heights than those already encountered, but longer spans may be justified, although the cost increases out of all proportion to the length. Cantilevers, suspension bridges and ordinary spans can be made possibly a quarter or a half longer than the present maximum, at a price, and even these wide limits may be exceeded if a satisfactory metal or alloy can be manufactured of greatly increasd lightness and strength to replace the structural steel now used. At present the limits are practically fixed by the maximum dimensions of members that can be shipped from the bridge shops through bridges and tunnels.—Harper's Weekly.

GRACEFUL TABLE DECORATION.

Every hostess who has tried to arrange flowers and fruits together in a common centrepiece knows how difficult it is to get an artistic effect. Very welcome, therefore, will be one of the new Dresden dishes of openwork border that is especially created to fill this need.

It has a deep bowl-like surface, sometimes round, more often oval to hold the fruit, and at the four corners are small vase-like receptacles quite wide at the top and narrowing into the main bowl at the bottom for holding flowers.

Artistic flower effects can be had in this way. One that was very lovely had green and purple grapes with the small vases filled with violets. At another time oranges, bananas and pears were used for the fruits, while the yellow tones were deepened by French marigolds in the flower-holders.

When one does not wish to use flowers the vases can be filled with bunches of grapes or nuts.

At Proctor's Theatre.

The new show at Proctor's introduces a novelty, the "Bullet Proof Lady." This act will create a sensation. Ruth Macauley and Jack Morrisey in the rip-roaring farce, "The Lunatics." Sam Morris, the German comedian, with a barrel of funny talk on tap, keeps the big crowd in constant merriment for nearly twenty minutes. His jokes are new, easily digested and all are a sure cure for that pessimistic feeling. Copeland and Phillips, colored, song and dance artists, are entertainers that make good.

STRANGE PROVISIONS IN PATERSON MAN'S WILL

Many strange provisions are made in the will of John W. Winters, of Paterson, which was offered for probate at Paterson yesterday. Mr. Winters died last week of tumor. He lived at 75 Hamburg avenue, and his estate is valued at between $25,000 and $30,000.

The most interesting thing about his will is that he leaves equal shares to the Spiritualist church and to the Presbyterian church, in which he received his early training. The First Society of Spiritualists in Paterson is the organization of that faith which is remembered, and the Oakridge Presbyterian church, at Clinton, to which his family belonged, is the one of that denomination receiving benefits.

Another item of his will, showing his leaning for the Spiritualistic church, is that providing for a bequest of $400 for the nurse who attended him, and who also attended his wife during their numerous illnesses. Of that amount left to her she must spend $25 in the investigation of spiritualism.

Nothing is left to the three surviving brothers, and the only relative besides his widow who benefits by his bequests is his niece, to whom he leaves $500, which she shall receive upon the death of his widow, and which she shall have for her own use.

Among the strange provisions in the will are the following.

That four urns be erected at the corners of his burial plot; that they be kept well painted, and during the summer be kept filled with choice flowers. The urns not to cost more than $30.

That the family graves shall have open tops, in which the flowers shall be deposited.

That one-half of his estate, after the death of his wife, shall go to the Oak Ridge Presbyterian church, and the other half to the Spiritualistic congregation of this city.

That the money going to the Spiritualists' society shall be used for the erection of an edifice which shall be called "The John Winters' Memorial Temple of Truth," or some such name.

That half of the money left to the Oakridge Presbyterian church shall be used for the erection of a new wood or brick building, and the other half invested, and what is left shall be used to maintain the cemetery connected with the church.

That a corner-stone be placed in the Oakridge church, when a new one is built, on the corner nearest to Mr. Winters' burial place, and that on it shall be inscribed the name of the donor.

That the amounts donated to the maintenance of the cemetery be inscribed on his tombstone, together with his occupation, and the disease from which he died.

That his widow shall enjoy the use of the income from the estate as long as she remains a widow.

DAMROSCH 25 YEARS MUSICAL CONDUCTOR.

In March Walter Damrosch will celebrate the twenty-fifth anniversary of his debut as a conductor. Walter Damrosch was barely twenty-two years old when with the aduacity of youth, he made known his intention to fill all the concert engagements his father's sudden death had left unfilled. Success was the reward of his daring and ever since Walter Damrosch has been closely connected with all that is highest and best in the musical life of the country.

The vicissitudes of one famous orchestra with which he was once connected and the rise and fall of many conductors who have endeavored to share with him the supremacy in the musical field have only served to emphasize the wonderful hold Walter Damrosch gained and has retained on the American public.

HOBOKEN'S MAYOR IS OUT ON BAIL NOW.

Mayor Geo. Gonzales, of Hoboken, was held in $1,000 bail yesterday afternoon by Judges Blair and Carey in the Hudson County Court of General Sessions for a further hearing in the proceedings for alleged contempt of court that have been begun against him. The hearing yesterday was on a rule to show cause why Mayor Gonzales should not be adjudged in contempt of court and why a body execution should not be issued against him. The Court decided that a writ of attachment should issue and it was served on the defendant in court. Frederick Eberhardt, of counsel for Mayor Gonzales went on his bond.

Judge James Clark, clerk of the Grand Jury, was the only witness called. He related statements attributed to Mr. Gonzales when the latter was called before the Grand Jury to testify concerning the case of Frederick Steigleiter, one time building inspector of Hoboken, who is accused of not turning over to the city certain fees. It is charged that Mr. Gonzales refused to give any information because, it is said, he believed the Grand Jury intended to whitewash the allegations against Steigleiter. After hearing Judge Clark's testimony the Court directed that bail be taken for a further hearing on Friday.

Meanwhile the Prosecutor of the Pleas will prepare written interrogatories which Mayor Gonzales will be called upon to answer orally in court.

Mayor Gonzales was represented by counsel of the "new idea" faction. Merritt Lane, who has fought all of the Hudson county "new idea" faction's big politico-legal battles during the last four years, appeared for Mr. Gonzales yesterday, and besides Mr. Eberhardt, as counsel, there was George L. Record, formerly Corporation Counsel of Jersey City and the present leader of the "new idea" in Hudson county.

MAY SOON ESTABLISH A RED MEN'S HOME.

A home for New Jersey Red Men will be established, if the plans of the past sachems prevail at the great council being held at Trenton. The sachems will bring the matter before the great council, and all the pressure they can bring to bear will be placed behind the proposition to establish a home.

Other important matters will come before the council. There is a full board of great chiefs to be elected, and the election of four representatives to the Great Council of the United States will precipitate a lively time. There are a dozen candidates in the field.

Today's session is being devoted almost entirely to the reading of reports, which show that the Great Council is in good condition.

The officers of the Great Council: Great sachem, Harry J. Rathbone, Trenton; great senior sagamore, John Thompson, Asbury Park; great junior sagamore John B. Wright Camden; great keeper of wampum, William J. Smythe, Long Branch; great keeper of records, Daniel M. Stevens, Camden; great sannap, Charles B. Curry, Camden; great mishinewa, Harold T. Mlinn, great guard of the wigwam, Charles T. Grace; great guard of the forest, Robert A. Lincoln, Gloucester city.

Harry J. Rathbone will be elected great prophet, and John Thompson will be advanced to great sachem. John B. Wright will be elected grand senior sagamore without opposition. There will likely be two or three candidates for great junior sagamore, but Charles B. Curry, a past sachem of Dakota tribe of Camden, will in all probability be elected to the office.

ROYAL ARCANUM COUNCILS TO ENTERTAIN WOMEN.

Under the auspices of Plainfield Council, No. 711; Greenbrook Council, Royal Arcanum, of this city; Bound Brook Council, of Bound Brook, and Bridgewater Council, Royal Arcanum, of Somerville, a "Royal Arcanum Ladies' Night" will be given by the committee on state of the order at the Y. M. C. A. hall, this city, Monday night, February 28, at 8 o'clock.

The affair will be in charge of the Past Regents Association of Union and Middlesex counties. The committee comprises C. Davis, Hubert N. Holder, Herman Moosbrugger, G. H. L. Morton and Charles Beyer, Jr.

ELIZABETH BOARD IS CALLED FLIM FLAM.

Before a crowd of three hundred politicians city officials and other citizens that occupied every available seat and all the standing room in the Elizabeth Council Chamber, Excise Commmissioner Peter M. Kling last night declared that the new Board of Excise, which recently raised the license fee to $500 and ordered all saloons to close at midnight, was a "flim flam and a farce."

This declaration followed the refusal of the members of the Board to vote against the granting of licenses to four saloon-keepers whom Commissioner Kling asserted he had found doing business when he made a personal tour of inspection in the downtown section of the city last Sunday. He stood out against his colleagues and scored them vigorously.

"This Board is only fooling," Mr. Kling said. "We are a lot of cowards. This thing of violating the law has been going on for twenty years, and it's about time we put a stop to it. I say the Board is a flim-flam, a farce and a laughing stock."

TRAIN VICTIM SEEKS $10,000.

Mrs. Bautsch, of Roselle, Says She Was Permanently Injured.

Alleging that a fall from the rear platform of a Central Railroad train at Roselle has resulted in permanent injuries, Mrs. Gussie Bautsch, of Roselle, filed suit yesterday against the Central Railroad Company for $10,000 damages. Her husband brought suit for $5,000. The papers were filed in the Circuit Court by Samuel Kalisch, Jr.

The petition alleges that Mrs. Bautsch was a passenger on the 9 o'clock train from Jersey City to Roselle. When the train had reached Roselle she started to alight. At that moment the train gave a sudden lurch, she alleges, throwing her to the platform. The accident occurred June 2, 1908.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

Cranberry growers in the vicinity of Medford and Shamong are holding a large portion of their crops for better prices.

It was stated at the Board of Health office in Camden yesterday that merchants who persist in violating an ordinance relative to exposing foodstuffs are to be prosecuted.

Owing to an outbreak of diphtheria in two nearby houses, the public school at Vincentown has been closed by the Board of Health until there is no danger of a sperad of the disease.

A man looking for coal on a dump in the southern section of Camden found part of a human foot. Coroner Litchfield gave it as his opinion that it might have been left along the railroad tracks after an accident.

The banks of the fish pond of John C. McClure, of Williamstown, are strewn with black bass, supposed to have been killed when the pond was frozen solid. The largest bass found weighed seven pounds.

After a tour of inspection in President McCrea's private car, Superintendent Weirman and other officials of the Amboy division of the Pennsylvania Railroad ordered new stations built at Brown's-Mills-in-the-Pines and at Pine Beach.

Deputy Game and Fish Warden William Bray, of Haddonfield, has under his care near that place a fine covey of quail, which he has been feeding with wheat since before Christmas. The feeding will continue until settled weather arrives.

Just when the Reliance Gun Club of Mantua had anticipated a big day's sport yesterday in a fox chase that has been postponed several times on account of snow, the fox "turned up its toes" and the affair has been postponed again until another can be secured.

The 200 oystermen who will go to Washington next week to protest against the order to prevent "floating" of oysters will present a strong case to the Board of Food and Drug Inspection. Walter H. Bacon, attorney for the Maurice River Cove Oyster Association, will accompany them.

Arrested on suspicion of being implicated in several small robberies throughout Camden, George Heisler, Philip Saunders and Walter Reed, youths, are being held pending an investigation. They claim to be homeless. They were found wandering the streets at 3 o'clock in the morning.

Procuring a gallon of whiskey to brighten his depressed spirits and then locking himself in his home, Edward Letts, of Columbus, Monday made his second attempt at suicide by cutting his throat with a penknife. He was found by neighbors almost lifeless, but heroic means to check the flow of blood saved his life.

Mayor Ellis was last night tendered a testimonial reception and banquet by the Camden Republican Club at the clubhouse on Cooper street. It proved an interesting event and when the Mayor was mentioned for another term there was great enthusiasm. County Clerk Patterson presided, and Assistant State Comptroller Doughten was toastmaster.

At the Washington's Birthday celebration by Patriotic Order Sons of America of Millville last evening delegates from Bridgeton, Newport, Greenwich, Cedarville, Delmont and elsewhere were present. Addresses were delivered by State President W. L. Wilson, of Gloucester, and State Master of Forms Charles Blackman, of Atlantic City.

The high cost of meats, with consequent demand for sea food, has sent the price of codfish at Atlantic City soaring during the past few days. Tons of the fine winter fish are caught near that city and have formed a cheap cold-weather food for local residents, but the outside demand has caused shipment of nearly the entire catch to Philadelphia and New York.

Testimony in the proceedings instituted by Freeholder Alfred W. Lofland, of Evesham Township, to oust Freeholder Joseph L. Hilton, of Chester Township, from his position as county supervisor of roads, will be heard before Judge Horner, sitting as a Supreme Court commissioner, at Mt. Holly Monday next. Lofland claims that Hilton cannot legally serve in the dual capacity.

The development of five cases of typhoid fever in Mt. Holly since January 1, with no direct cause assigned for the condition which has caused alarm among residents, has brought to light that nothing has yet been done by the Board of Freeholders regarding the condition of the sewage system at the county insane asylum at New Lisbon, which is located along the branch of the Rancocas Creek, from which Mt. Holly draws its water supply.

"Buck" Price, a young Woodbury negro, got on a rampage Monday afternoon, went home flourishing a revolver and declaring he would kill the whole family. He began by firing at his younger sister, a bullet striking her leg. Price's heart evidently failed him at this juncture, and he escaped, jumping on a trolley car. Between here and Washington Park he repented and gave himself up to Constable Keegan, who brought him to jail.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning Feb. 27, 1910.

Topic.—Christ winning our nation.—Luke x, 1-17. Comment by Rev. Sherman H. Doyle, D. D.

In this paragraph selected for our study Luke describes the sending out of seventy disciples, who, two by two, were to precede Christ into the towns and cities into which He was to follow. On two other occasions Christ had sent forth the twelve, but this is not one of these occasions, for Luke records both events. This was an increased number and probably went before Christ into the places He was to enter on His last journey from Galilee to Jerusalem. The twelve were the official apostles and accompanied the Saviour. The seventy were selected disciples. They remind us of the laymen's missionary movement of today, in which thousands of men who are not ordained to the ministry have joined themselves together to make a gigantic effort to win the world for Christ. These seventy men were therefore to go before Christ to teach of Him and to prepare the way for His coming. Through their efforts many would receive Christ before He came, and in the hearts of others the seed would be planted and made ready to accept the Christ when He himself should appear. This work was not to be done on foreign fields, but among the Jews, and was therefore home missions, and if we follow the injunctions here laid down it will result in Christ winning our nation.

Christ should win our nation. To win it He needs but to be presented to the people throughout our land in the proper way. He Himself says, "I, if I be lifted up, will draw all men unto Me," and again, "As Moses lifted up the serpent in the wilderness, even so must the Son of Man be lifted up that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish, but have eternal life." It is the duty of American Christians to uphold Christ before the nation and He will win it unto Him. This duty rests upon us in our local Christian work. In the vicinity of all our churches there are many whom Christ has not won. Let us follow the example of the seventy and, going out two by two for co-operation and sympathy, hold Him up before those about us. In addition to this personal work at home, we should send missionaries in whatever way possible throughout every part of the land where Christ has not been lifted up.

Christ can win our nation. If He be properly presented to the people the hearts of the vast majority will be won by Him. There is no greater attractive power or personality in the world than Jesus Christ, and if some are not attracted to Him the fault lies in them and not in Him. A magnet attracts steel, but not lead, but the magnet is the same in each case. The difference is in the lead. The cross of Christ is related to men in the same way. It attracts all men equally, and while some respond and others do not the difference is not in the attractiveness of the cross, but in the hearts of those attracted and of those repelled. It is ours to uplift the cross. With the acceptance or rejection of it we have nothing to do. That responsibility rests upon those who bear.

The responsibility of our nation in its relation to Christ is great. It is so because of its great opportunity. Throughout our land for years the gospel's joyful sound has been heard. If heard and not heeded we shall be like the cities which Christ condemned for failure to take advantage of their opportunities. May Christ win our nation in all its relations. May our homes be Christian homes, our business conducted upon a basis of honesty and uprightness, our social life be clean and pure. The relation between employer and employed has its foundation on the principles taught by Christ, and may every official position from that of the president down to the humblest officeholder in the land be so conducted as to receive the approval of Him who is King of kings and Lord of lords.

BIBLE READINGS.

Isa. xxxv, 1-10; xl, 1-3; lii, 1-7; Mal. iv, 5, 6; Matt. x, 1-8; xxviii, 19, 20; Acts i, 1-8; Mark i, 1-3; John iv, 25-30, 39-42; Rom. x, 14, 15; I Cor. iii, 5-11; II Cor. v, 11-20; Phil. iii, 1-12; Rev. xi, 15-19.

No Longer an Apology Needed.

Rev. W. W. Rogers in his farewell address at Sydney as president of the New South Wales union, speaking on Christian Endeavor's progress, said:

"Christian Endeavor has no longer to apologize for itself or to justify its existence as an innovation. It remains for us to maintain that justification which we have won by loyalty to the first principles. Christian Endeavor had a hard battle to enter some churches. It has not yet entered some. There was a negro in one of the southern states of America named Rastus, who wanted to enter the church and asked permission of the pastor. He said, 'I think you had better go home and pray about it for a fortnight.' At the end of that time the negro returned, but he did not look very happy, and the pastor said, 'Well, Rastus, what does the Lord say about it?' Rastus answered: 'The Lord said: "Well, it ain't no use your trying to enter that church. I have been trying to enter it twenty years myself and have not got in, so what chance have you?"' And when I see Christian Endeavor kept outside and churches shut their doors to it I wonder whether the Lord has got in yet. At any rate, I know this, of course—churches that have not Christian Endeavor societies are not necessarily unevangelistic, but standing in the forefront of the evangelistic churches in our city are those that nurture and welcome Christian Endeavor enterprise."

Plainfield in .... The Olden Days.

Re-printed from The Weekly Constitutionalist

August 24, 1871.

"Protection Steam Fire Engine Co., No. 5," of New Brunswick, N. J., will be the guests of "Gazelle, No. 1," of this city, on the occasion of the annual parade of the Fire Department of Plainfield, October 5th. Look out for a grand parade.

Encouraging to the firmen after getting out of a comfortable bed to attend a false alarm of fire:—"You fools, there is no fire! What are you running for?"

Strangers visiting this city to look at property say:—You can't be very energetic people to allow such a depot as that with its surroundings, to remain in your midst."

August 31.

We are indebted to our friend E. Holmes (Central Express Agent), for a fine large watermelon, raised on his own farm. It was delicious, and the same kind and flavor may be produced at his place of business, corner of Front and Somerset, every day, fresh from the vines.

Attention is called to the notice of the re-opening of "Plainfield College for Young Women." This institution is one of the best in the State. Parents and guardians will do well to patronize it.

September 7.

From the New York World, of Tuesday last, we learn of the death of Rev. Charles M. Fox, D. D., at Chicago, on Monday last. Dr. Fox it will be remembered, was a long time a resident of this city and pastor of Grace church. His death was caused by a malignant carbuncle.

The Plainfield Public School opened its new session on Monday last, with a fair and liberal attendance of pupils.

CHICAGO HAS A RIVAL FOR HARVARD PRODIGY.

Chicago, Feb. 24.—Taking his place in the same rank with learned scientists, Fenton B. Turck, the seven-year-old son of Dr. Fenton B. Turck, of the Post-Graduate Medical School of Chicago, last night exhibited bacteria mounted by him on slides and adjusted by him under compound microscopes at the Microscopical Soiree, given at the Chicago Academy of Sciences.

According to scientists here, Master Turck has an excellent claim to be classed with the mathematical prodigy, the son of Professor Sidis, of Harvard.

"Practically all of his work has been research and a considerable portion of it has been original," said Dr. Turck. "I don't think he is a prodigy, but he has displayed a genius for research for two years."

TO THE AMERICAN BOY.

There is no chance for the American boy today. This is the complaint of scores of boys who write to me. The trouble with these boys is that they have not yet opened their eyes to the opportunities around them. No chance in the land where nobody is held down by caste?

No chance in a land of opportunity where the greatest resources in the world are a perpetual stimulus to endeavor?

No chance in the country where log cabin boys and poor boys from the farm go to the White House?

N chance in a country with thousands of libraries, tens of thousands of schools (free night schools, free educational lectures)?

No chance where even poor boys from the slums become our legislators and where the poorest become our merchant princes, our great bankers and financiers?

No chance where thousands of poor boys start in business for themselves without capital?

No chance where so many business houses and institutions are built up by men with no opportunity except their own energy and integrity?

No chance where brakemen and even section hands become railroad presidents?

No chance where office boys become proprietors?

No chance in a land which has proved that you can not keep an energetic boy back after you have once given him the alphabet?

No chance. This has ever been the excuse of weak men. The American boy with no chance? He does not exist.—Success.

She pieced together now all that she had of him, smiling as she did so at the thought of certain strange stories she had read wherein men of marvelous deductive powers had brought to solution problems which appeared as impossible of detection as this presented to her.

John Revell Charnock, evidently the father of the man of the island, had married one M. P. T. on the 10th of September, 1869. Perhaps within a year afterward this John Revell Charnock, assuming him, as was likely, to have borne his father's name, was born. The best English stock in the colony were Massachusetts and Virginia. The stern piece of the boat borne the name of a Virginia river and of a Virginia town. The man before her was a Virginian, therefore. Say he was born in 1871, it would make him 25 years old, in accordance with her first guess. The father and mother, possibly ruined by the results of the civil war, had embarked on some vessel to seek a fortune in a new land. Something had happened to the ship and the woman, the little boy and the dog had landed in some way upon these shores alone after some horrible voyage, perhaps like that she had passed through. The boy must have been five or six years old, else he would have died being deserted. The woman had, indeed, died, and the dog with her, and left the lad alone. Alone he had been for a score of years on that island. What watchful Providence? . . . Stop! She believed in no Providence. What strange mysterious fate kept him from the fate of the other two, had preserved him alone . . . for her?

So she wove a history out of her treasure trove for this man, a history which at least satisfied her and which the more she reasoned about it and the more she tested it, seemed absolutely adequate and entirely correct. Well, she had opportunity now and she was glad. She faced the future calmly, recognizing her chance and her work and set about with systematic method, order and persistence to teach this man what it was to be a human being, to give him, as rapidly as she might communicate it and as he might receive it, all the learning she possessed, to compensate him with no further delay for those 25 years of silence.

Was it for this she had been trained and educated at great cost of time and money and effort? That she being a woman should give it all to this one man without money and without price?

CHAPTER VI.

The Baseless Fabric.

True philosphy is ascetic. It may best be practiced under conditions in which the material is in abeyance. It exalts the spiritual. It is distinguished by indifference to environment. There is nothing so fatal to its profession as extravagance. Frugality is to the philosopher what modesty is to a woman—the essential thing without which it and she cease to be.

The atmosphere into which Katherine Brenton was suddenly plunged by her bold step was the very antithesis of these requirements. It was unhealthy, and like unhealthy airs it bred disaster. She had been trained to independence of conditions, to disregard of circumstances, as well as to disdain of restraint; but there was that within her surroundings which, from her first experience of them, she felt instinctively to be vitiating, which tended to deprave, which precluded the exercise of clear, uninfluenced mentality. Especially in her case was this true since the luxury with which she had been surrounded appealed so subtly to the preponderant, and it must be admitted, immortal feminine in her composition. Sex distinction, sex difference was the one thing against which she fought. Sex equality was the supreme good to be desired in her scheme of right relationships between the individual and the universe. While she rebelled against her sex, yet she rejoiced in it. Glad was she sometimes on that very account that to her was given the opportunity to prove her superiority to the limitations, disabilities and man-made trammels of womankind.

Born of two fanatics on the same subject, whose insanity was modified and mollified by brilliancy of intellect in every other field of investigation and experiment, Katherine Brenton had been trained to the hour for her profession, for the exploitation of her principles. The greatest of universities pointed to her with peculiar pride as one of the children of the free; free from everything in thought and determined to be free from everything in action. Much was expected from her and the world was not disappointed at the first result of her mental labor. There were certain old-fashioned people who deplored the perversion of so much talent and even genius to the defense of error, but these did not count. The world bought her book in thousands, read it avidly the last woman of the end of the age on the sex problem. Cleverly disguising her philosophy in the form of fiction, with one bound she had leaped to the fore front of all the writers struggling for recognition. Publishers sought her. Magazines pursued her. Another book took shape in her mind.

Singularly enough her education and the erratic bent of her mind had left her primarily quite unspoiled. She was the product not merely of her age, her environment, her parents, but of a long generation of people to whom her thoughts would have been as abhorrent as her person was agreeable. The unconscious Christianity which surrounds the world and especially the world of woman kept her pure and sweet and lovable—these in spite of, not because of, her perverse and perverted philosophy. Though she defied convention in its spirit, she was naturally subject to it in its exercise. For instance, to her the marriage bond was, indeed, a bond, the marriage vow a confession of weakness—on the part of the woman, at least—and the marriage relation an acknowledgement of inferiority—again on the part of the woman. She would have none of these things in her life. Yet, as she thought, she had given her heart to a man—alas, the submission to the eternal law!—and although their relationship was sanctioned by nothing but their affection, it was to her as pure and as holy a thing as if the contract had been witnessed and blest by a thousand priests. What was it to him? She counted without the other sex. Many other women unfortunately have done the same.

Not content with the writing of books, her intense devotion to her cause, coupled with her unflagging energy, had found vent upon the lecture platform. The curious crowded to her feet at once, so bold, so radical, so beautiful and so innocent. One of her first converts had been the only son of a multi-millionaire, bygone bonanza king of the Pacific slope. His conversion was not so much an effort of pure reason as of primal passion, although that fact was in no wise apparent to her. She would find that out later. This modern Hypatia, skilled in the learning of the schools, burning with exhaustless zeal, permeated with fiery energy, was yet as innocent in some ways as any of her humbler sisters. As that good Book which she disdained in the newer illuminations which had come to her, might have said of her, she was in the world but not of it.

Unconsciously she fulfilled many injunctions of him who had she but known it was the greatest of philosophers. Naturally she kept herself unspotted from the world. Yet when the young man who had engaged her affections proposed to her that they should put her theories in practice, after some hesitation she had acceded to his proposition. It was a species of self-immolation not far from heroism that made her consent. Indeed, she did not realize how heroic it was. With no other ceremony than a clasp of the hand and an unspoken, wordless promise of trust, devotion, single-hearted alliance, publicly and before God and man, without a thought for the one and with no full realization of the thoughts of the other—at least on her part—they had gone away together, hand in hand; he and she together, in love like any other pair since Eve mated with Adam in the dawn of the world's first morning.

Yet there has never been an Eden of which man has known without its serpent. In the cabin of that gorgeous yacht, Sathanas reared his head. The first week or so of the adventure had been filled with idyllic happiness, happiness so great that it was strong enough to quiet certain low, still, small voices of conscience which the woman rightly ascribed to a strange atavism of ancient prejudice to which her philosophy was as yet unequal.

However, such conditions did not long persist. Her disciple was inclined, presently she found to her sorrow, to take a somewhat lower view of the situation than suited her own high-souled views. The ardor of her devotee cooled as his passion increased. Shut up in the narrow confines of a ship—great and splendid though this yacht was beyond imagination—little characteristics heretofore unsuspected developed in the mere man. The course of true love was not so smooth as the summer seas over which they sailed. The air in which they lived was ruffled by flurries in which experience would have found presage for coming deeper storm. The image that had feet of clay sought for similar earthly alloy in the companion image which was made of pure gold all through, and finding it not, resented it desperately. The convert having gained his desire, weakened in his principles. There was no relaxation in his devotion, in his tenderness, in anything outward and visible, but the high philosophy which had made the joint effort almost a self-sacrifice of demonstration was slowly vanishing from one heart while the other clung the more tenaciously to it.

It was the old, old story. In a little the catspaw developed into the tempest. When it appeared it came with surprising swiftness. The woman found that in neither abstract thought nor mental speculation was there any protection for her. There might be no God in heaven, but there was a conscience in her breast. Finally she broke away from the man so far as she could do so when they were both in the same ship of which he was lord and master. She would have nothing more to do with him save that which common decency and the bare civilities of life demanded of her. Denied the privileges upon which he had counted, the man grew savage and showed the cloven foot. The disagreement became a quarrel. The quarrel ran through several phases. Ashamed of himself he had recanted at first. Then he had sworn again allegiance to the specious philisophy which she now realized he had only professed, consciously or unconsciously, that he might possess her. But she was not deceived. There was no truth in his words; his asseverations carried no conviction to her soul. Again he stormed and raged; once more he apologized and appealed, but the periods of calm grew shorter and the periods of storm grew longer and more vehement. The woman alone was steadfast. She was overwhelmed with shame, the horror of the situation was rising upon her.

She began to realize how helpless she was. Under the inspiration of a belief, which was as honest as it was mistaken, she had put herself in the power of this man. Even if she were ashore, there would be no one to whom she could appeal, and here on the ship she was helpless. Lingering remains of better things had kept him from the last resort of the tyrant—force!—but how long these would be operative in restraint she could not tell. She fancied not for long. What should she do then?

She saw the end coming when in his anger he resorted to drink, to drink which exploded the last vestige of his philosophy, however he had professed it. She was frightened beyond measure when she realized the depths to which he had sunk and to which, in spite of herself, he had dragged her. What further descent was before her? She did not even yet abandon that philosophy which had served her so ill. She clung to that with the more tenacious pride because of its very weakness, but she loathed mankind. On that yacht he summed up for her the whole human race, and she hated him and it. To what sorry pass had a few weeks' practical experience reduced her!

She had begged and pleaded with him to alter the yacht's course, but he had sworn he would go farther south into those unknown seas and keep her there until she crawled to his feet. So the long hours dragged on. The inevitable rupture drew nearer. At last it came. In its details it was horrible, but there was in it a great relief after all.

CHAPTER VII.

The Joy of Freedom.

One night at dinner she had fled from him. He had been drinking more heavily than usual and was in an ugly mood. His handsome face was flushed, a savage frown overspread his brow. He had risen during the meal and with a coarse endearment had attempted to lay hands upon her—at last! She had broken away and darted into the nearest cabin, which happened to be his own. She had closed the door and turned the key against him before he realized what she was about. She stood within the little room, panting, enraged, fearful, yet ready to defend her all and almost glad the crisis had arrived. She could hear his drunken laugh outside the door.

"Why, you little fool!" he cried, "do you think I can't break that lock down in a moment? The ship's mine, every man on it's mine. I pay 'em. They do my bidding. I have you where I want you and I can have you when I please, now—or later."

Was it true? Could she appeal to the men? But what could she say? Although the world knew there was no binding tie between them, to the officers and men of the yacht she was his wife. They would not interfere. And if she declared the truth, she would put herself beyond the pale of their sympathies. Being merely stupid men, with conventional ideas about propriety, in that event they would be less apt to interfere than ever. It was true she could do nothing. She sank down on a hassock, clenching her hands.

As she sat, her eyes fell on a chest of drawers screwed against the bulkhead. The top contained various toilet articles of silver. Among them was a picture, the picture of a woman. It was not her picture. Moved by what impulse she did not stop to analyze, she rose and picked it up. The face she looked at was ineffably vulgar and common. Across the bottom was written in a scrawly unformed hand, "Your devoted wife." There was a date several years before that hour. Your devoted wife! She had been in that stateroom before; she had never seen that picture. He had only brought it out since the rupture between them.

And so while entering into this relationship with her, in compliance with principles and ideas which she at least regarded as sacred and holy, he had not been a free man! There was another woman to whom he had been bound. Oh, not by the marriage tie that she disdained, but by the honor which was supposed to exist among thieves and which certainly should exist among philosophers. And such a woman! A cold fury filled her mind as she looked at the picture. The last completing touch had been given. To contempt and pity for him was added hatred. The combination transformed her. Instead of avoiding, she would seek him.

He was still in the cabin. She could hear him muttering thickly to himself. Impulsively she stepped to the door, turned the key in the lock, threw it open and entered the brilliantly lighted luxurious cabin. He had dismissed the attendants some time since with orders not to reappear unless he summoned them, and they were alone. There was no likelihood of any interruption whatsoever. The man, who was leaning back in his chair, bent forward when she opened the door. He laughed viciously. If she had reflected, she would have marveled at the change that a few weeks had wrought in one whom she had hitherto deemed worthy of her affection, but she had eyes and thought for nothing except the business in hand.

"So you've come out, have you?" he stammered triumphantly. "Come of your own free will! You've found out, have you, that I am master and you are coming to heel?"

He whistled to her derisively, whistled as if to a dog!

"Who is this?" asked the woman in a voice carefully suppressed, yet which shook with wrath.

She held the photograph in its heavy silver frame up before him.

"That's my wife," he said equably, with no surprise or consternation. "We haven't lived together for some years," he went on with drunken good nature, "or I'd take you back to San Francisco and introduce you to her."

"Your wife!" exclaimed the woman in that same low, tense voice. "Then what am I?"

"My mistress," said the man, bluntly, throwing the last shred of concealment and decency to the winds, "and a damned obstreperous one at that," he went on.

Now, the woman believed in no Providence, but a trick got from her ancestry wrung the words from her lips.

"My God! My God!" she whispered.

"You haven't any," sneered the man. "You told me so yourself." He laughed. "And I believed you. I would have believed anything to get you."

Well, there was no God the woman realized, but she would be her own god. Her body shrank together a little, her hands clenched. The feline was uppermost. She could have sprung upon him, but she waited, waited for she knew not what.

"Whom the gods destroy," ran the ancient phrase, "they first make mad."

He rushed to his doom with blind folly.

"You needn't be jealous of her, my dear," he mumbled on. "I used to think I loved her and we were married, damned foolishness, as you might say. She can't hold a candle to you, if you are a little touched," he tapped his forehead impudently—"in the upper story."

And this man, this degraded thing, regarded her as a mad woman. There might be no God, but there was a devil and he stood before her. There might be no heaven, but there was a hell and she was in it.

"On second thoughts," he rambled on, "I couldn't introduce you to her. You aren't respectable and she is."

He stopped and poured himself another drink.

"Respectable!" he laughed. "To hell with respectability. We know a better thing that that! 'Soul to soul, heart to heart, the union of equals without the trammels of conventional bonds for weaker beings.' Yes, that's what you said."

And she recognized with horror that he was quoting her own words.

"But it doesn't go, you see. It's all very well in theory, but it doesn't work out in practice. The world's got some ideas of its own. It's been holding 'em for a good many thousands of years and you can't change 'em. You belong to me now. To hell with your equality! You are nothing more nor less than my property, and mark you," he reached out a trembling finger and shook it at her, "your salvation is with me. If I cast you off, you go into the gutter."

She wondered vaguely how much more of this she could stand and live.

"But don't be afraid," he went on with a drunken attempt at reassurance, "you are too fine and too handsome, even if you are cracked, for that—yet. I'm glad to see you've come to your senses."

WATCHUNGS DROP A PAIR TO ELIZABETH

Elizabeth bowlers took two out of three games from the Watchungs in the N. J. B. A. tourney on Campbell's alleys last night. The visitors were triumphant in the first two contests and in the final contest the locals won by a score of 948 to 931. The locals performed in an in-and-out style. The bright spots on the score card showed Nash registered a 211 mark, Matthews 231 and Radin 201. The scores:

ELIZABETH BOWLERS DEFEATED BY PARKS

The Park Club five continued its winning pace in the Central Journal Bowling League tournament, last night, when it took three games from the Elizabeth Club on the local alleys. The result is that the Parks are crowding Jersey City closely for first position, with the chances in favor of the locals.

The Parks were in fine form last night taking the first game by a score of 838 to 809, the second by a score of 895 to 731, while they rolled a total of 920 to 907 for their opponents in the third game.

Daniel was the high man for the Parks, putting up a score of 212 in the first game and then one of 237 in the third. It was the latter score that was a big factor in the 920 total in the third game. He was the only local man that rolled a double century and over, but his mates all put up good average scores, the kind that win championships.

Corbett, of Elizabeth, gave Daniel a hard rub for high score honors.

PARK CLUB FIGHTS FOR BOWLING CHAMPIONSHIP

The Park Club bowling team is putting up a great fight for first place in the Central Journal Bowling League, and are only led by the Jersel City Club by a narrow margin. The Parks have won 16 games and lost 11, giving them an average of 867 while their high score is 952. The Jersey City boys have won 18 games and lost 9, having an average of 854 and a high score of 955. The standing of the teams for the week ending February 12 follows:

	W.	L.	Av.	H.S.
Jersey City	18	9	854	955
Park Club	16	11	867	952
Newark Bay	16	11	863	977

Elizabeth	11	16	840	964
Cranford	11	16	802	932
Roselle	11	16	796	910

Mulford, the veteran of the Park Club, holds the highest individual average, 184.7. Long is in seventh place with 175, followed by Bail with 174.4 and Barlow is in twelfth place with an average of 173.5. Cran, of Jersey City, has the highest individual score, 258, while the Newark Bay team holds the high score, 977, for the team.

Montclair Bowlers Win.

The Montclair Athletic Club has won the bowling championship in the series with the Glen Ridge Club, the Commonwealth Club and the Montclair Club. Councilman Charles Ames, of the Glen Ridge Club, won both of the individual prizes in the league.

NO NEW TROLLEY CARS

Public Service Railway Officials Say Rolling Stock is All Right Here.

TO MAKE SOME CHANGES.

Corporation's Representatives "Joshed" When It is Found that the Cars Are Really Clean and Schedule Maintained.

Vice-President Roberts, General Manager E. S. Hine, Assistant General Counsel Gilmour and District Superintendent Gettings, of the Public Service Corporation, came to this city yesterday afternoon by appointment and held a conference with Mayor Charles J. Fisk, President William Jeffery, of the Board of Trade; Mayor Newton B. Smalley of the borough; Councilman F. E. Mygatt chairman of the Public Affairs Committee, and Health Officer Leon R. Thurlow. During the afternoon the party made a tour of inspection over the city trolley lines and various improvements were suggested.

After the trip the party returned to the Mayor's office and an outline suggested by Mr. Fisk and corrected by Mr. Roberts, showing what had been done during the day and what the company would be willing to do, was drafted.

The company would not agree to equip the local lines with new cars, claiming that those in use are twenty-five per cent. better than those operated in New York city, but they did agree to equip the cars with new motors, keep them clean and early in the spring make all necessary repairs to the roadbed in the city.

While making the trip about the city and borough the party found the trolley cars unusually clean for they had been fixed up in anticipation of the inspection. There were no delays at turnouts, which often occur in the regular order of business because word had been sent on in advance that the officials would be on hand. A good suggestion was made by Mr. Jeffery for an improvement of the local service, that is installing a "Y" at Watchung avenue and Fourth street. This would permit the operation of the Fourth street cars to the Netherwood section and the Arlington avenue line cars into North Plainfield as at present and there would be no trouble in making close connections at Watchung avenue and Fourth street.

The idea was well received by Mr. Roberts, who remarked that it was strange that the plan had not been thought of before.

When the men return to Mayor Fisk's office, the latter "jollied" the Public Service officials about having the local cars in "apple pie order" for their visit here, but they denied this accusation. Mr. Jeffery also remarked that "everything worked pretty well and the cars looked unusually clean," which caused a hearty laugh.

This is the statement drafted by Mayor Fisk and Mr. Roberts, copies of which were distributed among those present:

"Mr. Roberts says that after inspection, he considers the cars in Plainfield good enough for any community, better than twenty-five per cent. in a great many other places.

"That on certain cars, reported by Mr. Thurlow, he has ordered new gears and that these cars are as good as the company have of this size, that they will make it a point to keep the gears in good order but cannot agree to replace them with any other cars. That in regard to the roadbed on West Fourth street, on Woodland avenue on the Netherwood branch, and certain other places that, as soon as the weather permits and the ground has settled after the frost is out of it, they find out of condition and will put it in satisfactory condition. That if the Council see fit to grant their application for a curve and track change at East Fourth street and Watchung avenue, that this will facilitate very much the running of cars and they will arrange their schedule so as to make a transfer station at that point, which they feel will give much more satisfactory service. In case this change is made, the Arlington avenue line will run from the cemetery to the mountain and the Netherwood line to Monroe avenue and West Seventh street."

Chauffeur Warned.

August Barfuss, a chauffeur, was reprimanded in the city court this morning for driving his car around the corners of this city at a speed exceeding the limit. Mr. Barfuss promised to be more careful in the future and was allowed to go without paying a fine.

HEALTH BOARD HEAD TALKS ON TUBERCULOSIS

Dr. B. VanD. Hedges, president of the Board of Health, gave an interesting talk at the Y. W. C. A. last night, on the subject of "Tuberculosis." There were about thirty young women present. The doctor described tuberculosis, from the first to the hopeless stages and urged upon all the importance of keeping well and not allowing the germs to even get a start in the system.

Dr. Hedges gave a detailed account of what is being done here to fight against tuberculosis through the Anti-Tuberculosis League of Plainfield and North Plainfield, describing the camp located near the hospital. He also gave a brief account of what is being done in New Jersey as well as in New York, to prevent a spread of the disease.

CHOOSE A SUNDAY FOR SERMON ON PHTHISIS

In many of Plainfield's churches Sunday, April 24, sermons will be preached on the subject of tuberculosis. Arrangements to make this a national movement and to have similar services in every one of the country's 215,000 churches on that day have been started by the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis. The Plainfield Anti-Tuberculosis Society is making every effort to have the day a success locally.

The national organization announced today that ministers wishing to prepare themselves fully for the day may secure literature bearing on the subject by applying to its headquarters, 105 East Twenty-second street, New York. The plan, as outlined, is to have one Sunday each year set aside for this subject. Labor unions, fraternal orders, charity organizations and anti-tuberculosis organizations will be asked to aid in the effort.

GRACE M. E. BAZAAR AND ENTERTAINMENT

The bazaar and entertainment held at Grace M. E. church, last night, under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society, was successful and largely attended. The affair will be continued tonight with an entire change of program.

The entertainment is in charge of Miss Mary G. Steiner and Mrs. Anna Most. The program last night comprised a monologue, entitled "Expecting Company," by Clarence Steiner and a sketch, entitled "A Pair of Lunatics," given by Miss Florence Nicholls and Ben. Schuck. Both the monologue and the sketch were exceedingly funny and the audience was convulsed with laughter.

The program this evening will comprise piano duets by Miss Helen George and Russell Conroy; "A Topsy Turvey Drill," by nine young people; a monologue, 'Taking an Elevator," by Miss Jennie Nelson, an illustrated ballad, "Old Robin Gray," sung by Miss Stella Kline and acted by Miss Edith Major, Miss Florence Nicholls, David Smalley, Ben. Schuck and Clarence Steiner. The entertainment will be concluded with a sketch, "A Chafing Dish Tragedy," by Miss Nettie Steiner, Miss Clara Runyon, Miss Bessie Conroy and Percy Daley.

The bazaar represents the seven days of the week, each one of the seven booths being typical of each day. The booths are attractively decorated and are in charge of the members of the Ladies' Aid Society. Liberal patronage was given last night and a larger attendance is expected tonight. The proceeds from the affair will be used for work being carried on by the society. The young people have gone to a great deal of trouble in arranging the entertainment and the success shows that it is appreciated.

Concert on April 7.

A concert will be given at the Hartridge auditorium on Thursday night, April 7, at 8:15. The proceeds will go to St. Stephen's church. Prominent New York and Plainfield artists will appear on this occasion, particulars of which will be made at a later date.

Rev. Elory Bowers to Preach.

Rev. Elory G. Bowers, curate at Grace church, will preach at the Church of the Heavenly Rest on Sunday night at 7:30 o'clock, and at the same time, Rev. Cortlandt H. Mallery, rector of the latter church, will preach at St. Luke's church, Roselle.

WAYWARD YOUTH IS HELD

Wm. McCarty, Lodged in Jail, to Await Action of the Grand Jury.

THREATENED FATHER'S LIFE.

Depraved Young Man Also Cursed His Own Mother—Lad Tale Told in City Court.

William McCarty, the unnatural son of William J. McCarty, the mason, who was remanded yesterday morning for a further hearing today, was held in $200 for the action of the Grand Jury by City Judge Runyon this morning. In the meantime while he is sojourning in the county jail at Elizabeth, some means will be sought which will have a greater corrective influence than association with criminals in a penal institution.

William J. McCarty, the boy's father, told the story of the attempted assault in court this morning in a simple but effective way. He said that two years ago the boy ran away from home and became an inmate of an institution in Allegnany county, N. Y., assuming an alias in order to evade his father who was seeking him. After his father found him and ascertained how he had been sent there he was inclined to let him stay, but afterwards changed his mind and brought him home.

The attempts to make the home influence change the character of the boy apparently had no good results, for at the very first opportunity the boy resumed his wild career, culminating in the attempt on his father on Wednesday morning. Mr. McCarty told with much feeling how the mother had done everything possible for the boy, how she talked with him and tried to persuade the lad that his future would be brighter and better if he would only be good; how necessary it was to seek honorable employment and seek to it, but all these admonitions rather than encourage the boy to do better appeared to make him more wayward.

Young McCarty was arrested in North Plainfield two weeks ago for using profane and abusive language on the streets of the borough, and he was fined a dollar for this offense, yet he returned to his home more than ever inclined to break up the pleasant relations of the other members of the family, so that finally it became unbearable. He was refused money by his mother to spend in dissipation and he cursed her. He was whipped by his father, whom he threatened with death. A criminal complaint was therefore sworn out by the father this morning.

DR. BUCHANAN SPEAKS TO KNIGHTS AT TRENTON.

Past Grand Chief Dr. J. Hervey Buchanan, of this city, was the chief speaker at a "ladies' night" affair given by Mercer Castle, No. 23, Knights of the Golden Eagle, in Masonic Hall, Trenton, last night. Nearly one thousand members of the order and their friends were present. Dr. Buchanan's topic was "The Knights of the Golden Eagle."

The degree staff of Mercer Castle gave the Crusaders' Drill, members going through the evolutions perfectly. Afterward a minstrel performance was given by the Trent Minstrel Company, and it was a big hit.

Juniors to Give Entertainment.

The Junior Christian Endeavor Society of Trinity Reformed church will give an entertainment in the lecture room of the church tonight, entitled "Mistress Mary's Contrary Reception.' The nominal admission fee will also include ice cream and postal cards bearing the photographs of Rev. Dr. Cornelius Senenck, pastor-emeritus; Rev. John Y. Broek, pastor, and Dr. Paul Wilberforce Harrison, the missionary, will be offered for sale.

N. P. H. S. SECOND TEAM DEFEATED A. P. H. S. FIVE.

The North Plainfield High School second team defeated the freshmen team of the Plainfield High School yesterday afternoon by the score of 28 to 19. Bailey played the star game for the borough, while Ricketts held his end up for the freshmen. The lineup:

N. P. H. S.—Forwards, Walker, Taylor; center, Bailey, guards, Townley, Bailey.

P. H. S. Freshmen—forwards, Bellows, Ricketts; centre, Sharpe; guards, Nash, Carty.

Goals, Ricketts, 4; Sharpe, 1; Nash, 2; Walker, 2; Taylor, 1; Bailey, 2; Carty, 1; fouls, Ricketts, 3; Walker, 12.

FAVOR SPECIAL ELECTION

Board of Trade Wants Taxpayers to Vote on Municipal Ownership.

MR. MYGATT'S DISSERTATION.

The Councilmanic Public Affairs' Committee Chairman Give Some Facts and Figures on Water Supply Profits.

The special meeting of the Board of Trade called for last night by President Jeffery was attended by about forty citizens who are anxious to know what is going to be done about the city water supply, and who expected great developments from a Councilmanic committee, which was slated to attend. Owing to the fact that Councilman Mygatt was not on hand when the meeting opened and had not appeared at 10.30, Mr. Jeffery appointed Thad. Doane, Jr., Christian and William Place as a committee of three to adjourn to the meeting of the Common Council and bring F. E. Mygatt back with them. This they did.

In the meantime President Jeffery entertained those present with a few terse remarks telling what the board had already accomplished in the way of waking up things. He paid a high compliment to the very efficient police force of the city including its head. He said he believed the city had as good if not better police officers as any city in the country. He also made complimentary remarks about the men who engaged in looking after the welfare of the city in other departments. They are doing their full duty and have no cause to be ashamed of their work.

A communication from John O'Brien, the health officer, was read in which he responded to the accusation of Donald McGuinness that the scavenger business in the city has become a monopoly. Mr. O'Brien says the city would welcome an increase of men of this class provided they had the right equipment for prosecuting their work. This cannot be done without proper equipment, but there are those who do not understand this.

The communications of Jacob Sachar, which were submitted at the meeting of the board's executive committee last week, were read and laid on the table. Mr. Sachar proposed that the personal tax be removed or equalized. Mr. Jeffery will appoint a committee to investigate this matter which will have for its head Arthur C. Pleydell, secretary of the New York Tax Reform Association. The other members to be appointed will be named later.

Mr. Mygatt brought to the notice of the members present tentative figures relating to the cost of a municipal water plant and submitted them as follows. Purchase of distributing plant, $400,000; cost of new pumping station, $100,000; new reservoir on Watchung hills and land to protect it, $500,000 This cost would have the following charges: Interest on $1,000,000 at 4½ per cent, $45,000 per annum; sinking fund to pay for plant in fifty years, $20,000; maintenance and expenses $35,000; total $100,000 The probable income from this plant would be 3,000 houses at $20 each per annum, $60,000; North Plainfield contribution from water rates, $25,000; from stores, factories, etc., $15,000; total income, $100,000, which would show a possible profit of $500 per year for the city. Of course, as these figures are merely approximated they are not to be taken as actually worked out. Regarding the election which would be necessary it would not bind the people in any way and is merely to find out what the people want and it will be merely exercising the privilege granted by the law of 1876. There will be no attempt at bonding the city, but something ought to be done before the expiration of the present contract in 1912.

Mrs. Stoeckle's Funeral.

The funeral of Mrs. Catharine Stoeckle took place this morning from the home of her nieces, the Misses Florence and Christine Schmidt, of Summit avenue, at 8:30 and at St. Joseph's church at 9 o'clock. The interment was in St. Mary's cemetery and the bearers were R. A. Boyce, George Richter, Lewis Van Dyke, J. A. Blatz, William Krause and William Beiter.

Lost Ten Dollar Note.

A poor woman lost a ten dollar bill this morning between Second street and Park avenue and Scheurer's store on West Front street, and she appeals to this paper to so notify the finder.

The Board of Trustees of the Church of the Heavenly Rest will meet Tuesday night.

RENEW LIQUOR LICENSES

In Many Instances the Common Council's Vote is Not Unanimous.

SOME REMONSTRANCES FILED.

Various Reasons Given by City Fathers for Voting Against Renewals—No New Applications this Year.

All of the twelve applicants were granted liquor licenses at the special meeting of the Common Council, last night, but not without protest against some of them. Two petitions in protest, signed by a number of citizens, urged the city fathers not to grant Gottlieb J. Weinman's application, on the ground that he had not been a resident of the city or county one year, and the other signed by the same people asked that the applications of Christian Gloekner, Ellsworth C. Westcott and A. D. Findlay be refused on the grounds that the liquor business at those places are not conducive to the best interests of the city.

As to the protest against Mr. Weinman's application, Chairman Clay, of the license committee, explained that the section of the Bishops' Law cited, affecting the length of residence, had been repealed and only affected first-class counties.

Still one other protest addressed to "Taxpayers" and signed "A Taxpayer," suggested that the standing of each signer to each application be examined to ascertain whether all are bona-fide taxpayers He felt sure that a number of non-taxpayers, who own no real estate, would be found. Mr. Clay explained that this had been attended to and the signers complied with the law.

Councilmen Mygatt, Taylor and Holt voted against the application of Jerome W. Leary to sell liquor, and Messrs. Mygatt and Taylor voted against the application to keep an inn and tavern. There were eight votes in favor, however, and the application was granted. Those voting in the affirmative were Councilmen G. S. Clay, W. W. Wilson, C. C. Randolph, Herbert Buxton, Frank DeW. Randolph, W. L. Gloak and President Tolles.

As to Christian Gloekner's application, Councilman Gloak moved that it be granted, at the request of Mr. Clay. The latter then stated that while he had nothing whatever against the applicant, on general principles, he was opposed to a corner saloon, which affords a good place for loafers to congregate and he would therefore vote against the application. Mr. Holt joined him in the vote, while there were eight votes in favor.

Councilman Holt alone voted against the application of Alexander D. Findlay, and it is understood that he did so because the applicant had violated the law during the past year in not removing his screens during hours prescribed by law.

Before the applications were taken up, Mr. Clay offered a resolution which was adopted, putting the Common Council on record as refusing to increase the number of licensed places in the city. With the exception noted above, Mr. Clay moved that the different applications be granted and except in the case of a few applications as stated, they were all granted without a dissenting vote. Quite in contrast to former years, there was only a handful of people in the lobby. These applicants received a license:

THE WEATHER.

Fair tonight and Saturday; rising temperature Saturday; moderate to brisk north and northwest winds, becoming variable.

Maximum, 29; minimum, 12.

Misuse of Commutation Tickets.

The practice of loaning and hiring Central Railroad commutation and fifty-trip tickets, when discovered last summer, resulted in the issuance by the Court of Chancery, of an injunction restraining this practice. That injunction applies not only to the defendants in the suit instituted by the railroad company, but to all persons in the State of New Jersey engaging in such practice. The Central Railroad has given notice that all persons violating this injunction will be proceeded against according to law. ***

Washington's Birthday Social.

The Girls' Club of the Congregational church will hold a Washington's Birthday Social at the church tonight. There will be games, music and refreshments. Alfred Everett, of the borough, will decorate the parlors in an appropriate manner.

CUSTOM MAKES LAW WITH CITY'S FATHERS

The application of Joseph S. Meyers for a license to conduct a lunch wagon at East Second street and Park avenue, was taken up at the Common Council meeting last night, and was granted, upon the payment of the fee, $25. In a brief discussion which followed it was learned that neither Mayor Fisk nor the Common Council have a right to grant this license, although it has been done for eighteen years. Mayor Fisk imparted this information, quoting Corporation Counsel Marsh.

However, Chariman Clay of the license committee, said that inasmuch as Mr. Meyers had had a license for eighteen years, he saw no harm in giving it to him for another year. This was done.

HENRY HAURAND WINS AGAIN ON AN APPEAL

Henry Haurand, through is counsel Francis J. Blatz, has won a decided victory in the action brought against him by Mrs. Josephine Mason, of Jersey City, an heir of the Elizabeth Schorb estate, who sought to recover double rent for the lease of the premises on East Front street, now occupied by E. C. Westcott.

Judge Parker, of the Supreme Court, on Monday, gave his decision sustaining the non-suit granted by Judge Vail at Elizabeth, last May, and dismissed the rule to show cause, on the ground that the notice given was defective.

When this case was tried before Judge Vail, he granted a non-suit on the grounds that the notice served by the complainant on the defendant, claiming double rent, was defective. Mrs. Mason then took the case to the Supreme Court on a rule to show cause, and it was argued in June. Judge Parker's decision was given on Monday. It will mean a saving to Mr. Haurand of about $2,000.

BOROUGH'S TEACHING STAFF IS CRIPPLED

A most unusual condition confronted Superintendent H. C. Krebs at the Somerset Street School today when five of the teachers reported absent. Three of them, Misses Montague, Bauersachs and Hudson, are ill, while Miss Dwight has been called to Anderson's settlement, Pa., owing to the serious illness of her mother. Miss Dodd is away attending the funeral of her aunt.

Mr. Krebs was equal to the emergency, however, having succeeded in obtaining the services of Miss Johnson, who lives at Craig place and Duer street, in the borough, and Miss Van Fleet, of Jackson avenue, these two together with the teachers who substitute, made up the vacancies so that the sessions were not interrupted greatly. Twelve per cent. of the teaching staff absent is a serious handicap for any school, but fortunately the remedy was at hand.

RECORDER IS LENIENT WITH NEGRO CULPRITS.

Laura and Mary Smith, colored, of Rock avenue, were up before Borough Recorder C. M. Dolliver this morning on a charge of assault preferred by Mrs. Martin Miller, a neighbor and a white woman. Mrs. Martin's little daughter, thirteen years old, while on her way home from a store yesterday afternoon with an armful of bundles, was set upon and beaten by the two colored girls, whose ages are 20 and 18 respectively, and when the little Miller girl ran away abandoning her bundles the two older girls set a dog upon her.

Recorder Dolliver imposed a fine of $1 on Laura Smith and suspended sentence in the case of Mary. There has been some ill feeling between the two families for some time and yesterday's attack was the result. It will probably not occur again or Laura and Mary will face a more serious charge.

Frank Vanderhoff in City Market.

Frank R. Vanderhoff, who has been in the employ of Fred Endress, the butcher, and more recently the Endress Company, for many years, resigned his position there today and next week he will open a butcher stall at No. 9 and 10 in the City Market. Mr. Vanderhoff was foreman at the Endress market and has had a wide experience in the meat business. Announcement of the opening day will be made in the advertising columns of The Daily Press.

OUR JUVENILE DELINQUENTS

Dr. Thomas Travis, of Montclair, Noted Criminologist Defines Various Types.

AT LOCAL Y. M. C. A. BANQUET.

President Kimball Tells of Association's Progress—Other Interesting Statistics.

The annual banquet of the Young Men's Christian Association, held last night in the association hall brought out a big representation of solid citizens, there being in all about one hundred and twenty sitting around the five tables when Rev. Dr. Anderson asked a blessing. The dinner was up to the usual high standard of these events.

The feature of the evening, however, was the address given by Thomas Travis, Ph. D., of Montclair, author of "The Young Malefactor," which at present is engaging the attention of the criminologists of the country. Dr. Travis took up the question of juvenile criminals in their order according as they are looked upon by students of the class and arranged them thus: The moral criminal, who violates civic law, but who is called "the salt of the earth;" and the non or immoral criminal who commits crime because of indifference or cupidity. All are divided into eight classes as follows: The criminal by accident, the criminal by acquired habit, the one whose impulse is unresisting, the neurotic, the toxic, the insane, the professional and the instinctive. All these exist and the psychosis of the various tendencies is hard to determine.

The "criminal by accident" was described graphically as for example the young girl who in purchasing goods in a big store, after obtaining what she wants is told to go to the desk and pay her bill. There is a crowd. She suddenly finds herself on the sidewalk with the goods and money both. Suddenly there comes to her the knowledge that here is an easy means of getting something for nothing and she tries it again. Maybe she is not caught until she has successfully evaded the store detectives a number of times. Then, caught, begins her career downward toward that shadowland from which there is practically no escape and she becomes an inhabitant of that shadowland and her chances of reformation are remote.

The "criminal by unresisting impulse" was next considered. He is the man who bears the reputation of being a "good fellow," but who is afflicted with a temper. He becomes transformed by circumstances. He even commits murder on the impulse of the moment, as for instance when his young wife tells him how she has been insulted. She sees the man who has committed this offense passing on the other side of the street and tells her husband. He jumps up, grabs a revolver and kills the fellow and perhaps goes to prison for twenty years. His lack of self-control is a fatal weakness. But he is not beyond redemption, although he may emerge from his confinement a hardened criminal, worse than he was when he was sent there.

Then comes the neurotic criminal. Although not insane his mind is not balanced. His brains are not altogether clear as to his purposes. He is highly strung. The victim of what is called veiled epilepsy never remembers what he has done in one of his fits. Nowadays, though, the man who is a millionaire has a brain storm but the poor fellow thus afflicted commits wanton murder.

Of the toxic criminal there are two kinds, drunkards and drug victims. The drunk usually confesses his offenses and his crimes, but the drug fiend is the most monumental liar known to the profession of medicine. And the sending of a drunkard to jail never cured him nor ever will. Mr. Travis cited one case in which a woman had been arrested 165 times and instead of applying the correct method of curing her each time she was sentenced the same old way. Dr. Travis asked his audience what they would do if having a sick brother the doctor came around at each return of the illness and administered the same pill what they would do with that doctor. "Of course," he said, "you would feel like telling that physician to swap himself for a 'yaller" dog and then drown the dog." But we are not administering justice in our courts here in New Jersey, we are dealing out the law and 90 out of every hundred administrators of our laws are afraid to do anything except what is prescribed by the lengths of red tape.

The insane criminal, the doctor said, are in our jails because no one knows of their condition. At least one per cent. of the inmates of our

That Postal Deficit

The Joint Postal Commission in 1907 reported as follows:

"It appears too obvious to require argument that the most efficient service can never be expected as long as the direction of the business is, as at present, intrusted to a Postmaster-General and certain assistants selected without special reference to experience and qualifications and subject to frequent change. Before the Postmaster-General and his assistants can become reasonably familiar with the operations of the service they are replaced by others, who, in turn, are called upon to resign before they can, in the nature of things, become qualified by knowledge and experience to perform their allotted tasks. Under such a system a large railroad, commercial or industrial business would inevitably go into bankruptcy, and the Post-Office Department has averted that fate only because the United States Treasury has been available to meet deficiencies."

The public accountants' report said:

"The work of the Department and its development is hindered all along the line by slavish adherence to old methods and to precedents created in previous years, and many reforms which might otherwise be instituted are hindered—if not entirely prevented—by appeals to the decisions of the Comptroller, made, perhaps, many years ago under entirely different conditions. Then, again, the conservatism of Government officials is a generally admitted fact. There is no inducement to employees to suggest improvements in the service for the reason that if these improvements result in greater efficiency or economy of administration they will receive little credit; and, on the other hand, if new methods are not successful they will be charged with the whole blame."

In view of these official statements by those whom Congress authorized to investigate the Post-Office, we submit that the Postmaster-General's attempt to wipe out the deficit in his Department by raising the postage on your magazines, instead of by devoting his energies to securing legislation that will place the service on a sound, efficient and economical basis, is unwise and unbusinesslike. The nature of his recommendations, and the attempt to exempt newspapers from any increase, are final grounds for a divorce of this great business department from politics.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

C. O. Shields gave an interesting lecture at the Baptist church last night upon birds and their value to us. Mr. Shields is an able talker and one well acquainted with his subject. The lecture was well attended. W. I. Mygrant, of the borough, leader of the 23rd Regiment band, rendered several pleasing cornet solos, which were enjoyed by all.

The local bowling team ,who were defeated two out of three games by the Saengerbund team of Plainfield, in the match rolled last week, are not satisfied and another match will be rolled in the near future.

The basketball team of the Baptist church plays the team of the Presbyterian church tonight in the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium, Plainfield. The local team leads in the race in the Sunday School League.

This has been one of the old-fashioned winters the older residents have talked of in the past. Strange to say there has been more sickness during the winter than in a number of years past.

The rectory being built by the parish of St. Mary's church, Stony Hill, is about completed and will be ready for occupancy in the early spring.

Mr. and Mrs. George Harper, of Front street, have been entertaining friends from Brooklyn.

Andrew Bozak has returned from a visit at his home at Bernardsville.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

The regular monthly meeting of the Piscataway township teachers will be held this afternoon at 2:15 in the New Market school house. On account of this the local school will have but one session today.

R. B. Manning is improving his home by wiring it for electric lights. The work is in charge of Frank Randolph, of this place.

Mrs. William Reilley has returned home after a visit with friends in Plainfield.

Edward McDonough is suffering from a severe attack of grip.

Repairs are being made on the home of William Hamilton.

J. Ten Eyck was in Plainfield yesterday on business.

RARITAN.

Eleanor B. Lindsley died at her home near here on Tuesday from tuberculosis. The funeral will be held this afternoon from the house.

Mrs. A. N. Dunster entertained on Tuesday Misses Hazel Dunster and Mary Anderson, of Somerville.

The Misses Madeline and Mary Burns are enjoying an outing with Brooklyn relatives.

Miss Alethea Conners is entertaining her cousin, Miss Carrie Fisher, of Pennsylvania.

Mrs. James G. Hanna is entertaining Mrs. R. H. Gambling and son, of Somerville.

The Misses Cora and Myrtle Lane have just returned from a visit in Trenton.

Miss Eleanor Graham has returned from a two months' visit in Virginia.

Mrs. Louise Morton, of New York, is visiting her cousin, Mrs. Jennie Leis.

Miss Belle Conboy has as her guest Miss Loretta Brynes, of New York.

George Lane entertained Roscoe Le Mott, of Stanton, over Sunday.

Beaded Tulle Sleeves.

One of the fancies of the moment is to have partly loose straight sleeves of beaded tulle. These are put in evening gowns for balls, dinners or opera. It is not necessary that the trimming should be used anywhere else on the gown. The tulle is white, black or colored, and the beads are metal or crystal. The white crystals are very popular, and those lined with gold are at the height of style.

Slow to Praise.

"That young fellow, although the son of a millionaire, works in his father's shops and carries his dinner in a tin bucket. Deserves credit, eh?"

"Mebbe so. Tell me before I enthuse to much, whether he carries terrapin for lunch or just plain corned beef."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

New Jersey's Greatest Mail Order Organization.

We are justly proud of our mail order system. We feel that it is one of the strongest links in the chain of this great store's success. We want you to use it—test it thoroughly and allow us to demonstrate its many splendid advantages. The Bamberger mail order system is not the result of a day, but the culmination of years of painstaking effort. In fact, this branch of our business is so perfectly organized that you may shop as quickly by mail as in person. There are no delays—no errors—satisfaction is snugly packed with each parcel we send out. If you are not a patron (which is highly improbable) send in a trial order and you'll quickly realize the truth of the foregoing statements.

SOME HOUSEHOLD DANGERS.

Never fill an oil lamp while it is alight. It is quite easy for the vapor to catch fire and set the spirit or oil ablaze,and an exposion will most likely follow. Always turn the lamp out before refilling it.

After filling a lamp, be careful to wipe the outside dry, for any trickle of oil on the sides might easly catch fire.

Don't allow the oil to stand in the lamp very long. If it is not burned it should be thrown away. It gathers impurities and increases the risk of an explosion. For the same reason always keep the kerosene can well corked.

Be careful when you light a fire in the kitchen that there is plenty of water in the boiler. Otherwise, Kwhen the cold water rushes into the hot boiler it is likely to crack it.

Don't put clothes round the fire to dry and then go to bed and leave them. A spark might easily fly out of the fire and set them alight. Never leave a wod fire unguarded.

Don'ttry to make a fire draw by holding a newspaper in front of it. It it doesn't set fire to the mantlepelce or to your own clothes, it may fly up the chimney and result in a fire.

If you use a gas stove, never leave it with anything that might boil over. It is quite possible for soup or milk boiling over to put out the gas flame and the escaping gas will fill the room, and should some one come in with a light, an explosion must follow.

Troublesome Erudition.

"So you think education can become a disadvantage?"

"Yes," answered Mr. Biggins; I'm always having trouble because I inadvertently use words the stenographer can't spell."—Washington Evening Star.

POPULAR PICTURES
In the Big Picture Store

There has been little if any abatement in the interest attaching to this Eleventh Annual Picture Sale of ours. It is the greatest sale of pictures Newark has ever known—great in the variety of pictures on sale—greatest in the character of pictures offered—greatest and most remarkable because of the low prices prevailing.

We anticipate a very big day tomorrow, when hundreds will come who could not get here earlier. It will be a big day for popular pictures, yet we expect to sell many oil paintings, for oil paintings were never sold so cheaply.

It should be remembered that our best specialty lines of popular-priced pictures are being sold at lower prices than ever during this sale.

Second Floor.

We have all along made a feature of pictures of various kinds, most of them in gold frames, worth $3.98 to $5, at $2.50, and this great line is to be offered during this annual sale at only $1.98

Another specialty line is the big $1 pictures valued up to $2.49—pictures that sell at that price in almost every picture store—and tho wonderfully cheap at $1 we cut the price for this special occasion to ..... .87

"Lady With the Fan"—One of our most conspicuous specialties and is a fitting mate to the ever popular "Duchess of Devonshire." These pictures, in beautiful colors, with rich old French finish gold frames, valued at $2, will be offered in this sale at..... $1.00

The larger size, valued at $5, featured by us at $2.50, will be sold, during this annual event, at only $2.19.

$23.50 Dinner Sets for$ 10

Economical people will pick up their ears when they hear of this dinner set offer, and hundreds will come a-running for these splendid sets of fine English Porcelain in nine of the prettiest imported patterns we could find abroad, neatly decorated in pink, blue, green and gray, the sets including this splendid variety of pieces:

1 dozen Dinner Plates.
1 dozen Cups and Saucers.
1 dozen Soup Plates.
1 dozen Bread and Butter Plates.
2 Covered Dishes.
1 Open Dish.
1 dozen Fruits
3 Meat Dishes.
1 Bowl.
1 dozen Pie Plates.
1 Gravy Boat.
1 Pickle Dish.
1 Cream.
1 Sugar.

These dinner sets are well worth the standard selling price, $23.50, yet tomorrow (one day only) we are going to permit you to pick any of the decorations you like, a full 100-piece set, and ask you to pay us only..... $10

$3.50 Douglas Make $2.59

We are constantly receiving new additions to our collection of Douglas shoes, famed the world over as the best popular priced shoes made for men.

The shoes we sell are the factory rejects—the pairs that do not pass muster with the critical inspectors—shoes with trifling faults that you will perhaps not discover, and that only an expert could pick out. In appearance and in service these shoes are as good as any that come from the factory, and by buying these you can save close to $1 a pair—paying us, instead of $3.50, only $2.59

ODDS AND ENDS.

The president of Des Moines College is endeavoring to stop spooning among the students.

Mrs. Frederick W. Packard, a leader in Chicago's Anti-Cruelty Society, has set out to "tag" every abused horse in the business section of the city. She has had printed a lot of small tags reading "Please Fix These Blinders," "Please Ease This Collar," and so on. When she sees a horse that needs attention she affixes a tag to the bridle and goes on to the next victim.

Charles Saddlewauser, a farmer of Mendon, Mich., tripped on a stone in his back yard recently and fell across a pumpkin in such a manner that his neck was instantly broken.

When George Osborn, a jeweler of New Haven, Conn., took apart an old clock, brought to him to be repaired, he found a green wad of $150 tucked in the back of it.

The Hebrew Standard remarks that two blazing signs in Broadway, New York, call attention to a condition. One of these bear the words, "The Man Who Owns Broadway," while on the next corner another sign equally flaring shows the word, "Israel."

An Indiana Mayor gave the children of his town three tons of candy.

A Jersey City magistrate permits convicted crap-shooters to pay their fines in weekly installments.

A Massachusetts man worth $10,000,000 is discovered to have hidden it all but $500,000 from taxation.

King Edward was recently awarded four first prizes for his exhibits at the Smithfield cattle show. His majesty is a tenant farmer, not a landlord, and pays a large sum every year in rent and taxes for his holdings.

CHRISTENING THE BABY.

A country clergyman relatives the following incident as being absolutely founded on fact:

Having arrived (says he) at that point in the baptismal service where the infant's name is conferred, I said:

"Name this child."

"Original Story," said the sponsor-nurse.

"What do you say," I asked in surrpise?

"Original Story," she repeated in clear deliberate tones.

"It's a very odd name, isn't it? Are you sure that you want him called by the name of Original Story?" I queried.

"Original Stor—that's right," she declared.

"It it a family name?" I persisted.

"Named after his uncle, sir," explained the woman in charge, getting red in the face.

And so as Original Story I chirstened that unoffending little fellow. It was some weeks after this event that I made the acquaintance of the said uncel—a farm laborer in another village—whose name was Reginald Story.—London Telegraph.

A Modern Explanation.

"So, you lost your money gambling in stocks," said the severe friend.

"No. I merely took a flyer when something was wrong with the steering gear."—Washington Evening Star.

What. Fur?

"Just a word my dear."

"Yes"

"Can't I interest you in votes for women?"

"Not until after I get my winter furs."—Kansas City Journal.

"When a Senator retires from official life applications are usually made for the desk he occupied."

"And can another member file an application for his anecdotes?"

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

GOLF.

It is understood that the intercity golf matches for the Griscom trophy between teams of women players from New York, Philadelphia and Boston will be decided this year over the links of the Huntingdon Valley Country Club, Philadelphia, between June 1 and 15. The Women's Golf Association, of Philadelphia, whose turn it is to have this attraction, wishes to avoid a clash in dates with the annual championship tournament of the Women's Metropolitan Golf Association, but the chances are that the local body bill follow custom and run off its tournament the latter part of May. The Huntingdon Valley course is the longest, and at the same time the most trying, in the Philadelphia district. Consequently, the women will have to be at their best in order to get around in low figures.

The annual championship tournament of the Philadelphia women's organization will be held at the Philadelphia Cricket Club on May 23 and the following days. Provided it can be arranged, the Wilmington Country Club will attempt to hold an invitation tournament for women about this time. The plan most favored now is to hold it immediately after the Eastern championship and the tricity matches.

Ill health has compelled Miss Louisa A. Wells, of Boston, to give up temporarily her duties as secretary of the Eastern Golf Association, and Miss Margaret Curtis has been named as her successor pro tem. The Eastern tournament this year will consist of seventy-two holes of medal play, thirty-six holes each day. This will be the first time in the history of the organization that seventy-two holes have been attempted. Mrs. Wheeler, formerly Miss Mary Adams, is the title holder. An addition to the metropolitan forces will be Mrs. Fowler, formerly Miss Mabel Higgins.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

The Boys' Club of Hope chapel will hold a regular meeting at the chapel tonight at 7:30.

The regular communion service will be held at Trinity Reformed church, Sunday, March 7.

An interdenominational missionary prayer meeting will be held at the First Presbyterian church this afternoon at 3 o'clock.

The Epworth League of the First M. E. church will hold a business meeting and social in Vincent chapel, Friday night, March 4.

The Brotherhood of the First M. E. church will hold an important meeting in Vincent chapel this evening. President Nelson A. Miller will be in charge.

Rev. C. S. Kemble, pastor of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church, spoke at the special Lenten service at Hope chapel last night on the subject of "Christ's Temptation and Ours."

The sewing meeting of the Women's Home Missionary Society of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church will be held this afternoon from 2 to 5 o'clock in the chapel.

Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson will preach at the First M. E. church Sunday morning on the theme, "The Sacrament of the Lord's Supper," and on the following Sunday the regular communion service will be held RECTOR SAYS HIS WIFE LOVES ANOTHER MAN.

Jersey City, 25.—"You asked me once, if you remember correctly, whether I cared for some one else. I said then, 'no,' but there was. I told you 'no' that time because it was all off for me in that quarter. Since then I have learned different and there is absolutely no hope for you whatsoever."

This is the letter, according to his statement, that Ellen Cordelia Adams, of St. Louis, left for her husband, Rev. Crozier Graham Adams, of Eatontown, who is now suing her for divorce in the Court of Chancery. The first hearing was held Wednesday afternoon before Special Master in Chancery Charles E. Hendrickson, Jr., in this city.

Adams is the son of Rev. Dr. C. Graham Adams, rector of the Episcopal church at Eatontown. The couple were married May 8, 1905. Later that year the husband took the church in Lima, O., and then had a call to a church at Owatona, Minn. The call was accepted, and the rector said that his wife went to join her mother in St. Louis. When the husband reached St. Louis on his way to his new church his wife refused to join him, and her father handed him a letter. It was in this letter that the husband said that his wife told him there was another one. The rector then declined the call and came east and took up his home with his parents at Eatontown.

HEAVENLY REST MEN'S CLUB GROWING RAPIDLY

The Men's Club of the Church of the Heavenly Rest, held a large and enthusiastic meeting at the parish house, last night, more than fifty members being present. The club now numbers more than one hundred and is growing rapidly. Juan A. Babcock, president of the organization, presided at the meeting.

An appropriation was made toward a fund for the erection of a new curtain for the stage, affording better facilities for entertainments; also for a telephone to be installed in the home of the rector, Rev. Cortlandt H. Mallery. Arrangements were also made for the illustrated lecture by Emerson E. Parvin on March 10.

The question of a revision of the bylaws was discussed and the president appointed a committee consisting of Joel Pennington, Juan A. Babcock, William Ochiltree, William Klempsey and Rev. Cortlandt H. Mallery to revise the bylaws, which are now inadequate for the needs of the club.

After the business the members were entertained for an hour with selections on the mandolin and guitar.

Complaint Against Ticket Agent.

Editor, The Daily Press:

Because the boy ticket agent at the Netherwood station this morning did not set the signal properly to stop the east-bound passenger train due there at 10:58 a. m., the engineer did not stop his train and a number of patrons of the road were compelled to take a trolley car to the Plainfield station to catch a later train much to their annoyance and waste of time. Is this the way for a railroad to accommodate its patrons?

MILK AND WATER BATH.

Branchville, Feb. 25.—Gabriel Crone, a driver of one of the milk routes for the Borden Condensed Milk Company, from Swartswood, took an involuntary bath in milk and water Wednesday. With a sled-load of thirty cans of milk picked up at the Swartswood station of the company, his rig capsized near the farm of Thomas McDanolds. Crone was thrown head first in the icy waters along the road and he got most of the 150 quarts of milk that was spilled over him.

The accident happened as he was entering the road again after driving through a field to avoid a snowbank.

RAHWAY NEEDS $1,000.

Rahway, Feb. 25.—The Rahway Civic Commission will meet with the special Common Council committee to devise plans to raise funds with which to carry on the commission's work.

The Council committee consists of Charles W. Bostwick, David Armstrong and David H. Trembly. There being no available money that Council can give the commission, the work of the conference will be largely that of suggesting means by which sufficient funds can be raised and report the same to Council.

One of the most feasible spoken of is that of having a dinner, this to be given in the auditorium, and having a prominent speaker as one of the attractions. This meets the approval of a number of business men. To make the work of the commission a success, $1,000 is needed. The commission's treasury at the present time contains $42, and the members have been compelled to go down into their pockets to pay current expenses. The commission will also endeavor to have Senator John Kean, Congressman Fowler and others use their influence toward having the government erect a postoffice building here. The commissioners have been stimulated into activity by the suggestions of a government postoffice inspector, who, during the past few days, has been a visitor in Rahway, with the object of improving the present postoffice accommodations. The lease of the postoffice building expires in July next.

WORK FOR GIRLS.

There is apparently no valid objection to the use of money as an inducement for the young girl to learn the duties of housekeeping, for she certainly receives all too little instruction in business matters. Many report that they have found it quite as advisable to pay their girls as their boys for the performance of home tasks.

Another thing for the successful domestic discipline of the adolescent girl is to control judiciously her social affairs. At the beginning of womanhood she naturally inclines to run about among her associates more than is good for character building. If this disposition be freely indulged the ability to direct her home life is lost.

It is not uncommon for farm homes, even well-supported ones, to require too much of their growing daughters. During the cropping season the work is driven on with a rush and all available help is often brought into service. While comparatively few farmers actually require their daughters to labor in the field, not infrequently the latter are compelled to learn to do much heavy outside choring in addition to sustaining the burdens of the household. As a result of this bad treatment, the country girl oftens presents a tired, bedraggled appearance at an age when she ought to be fresh and buoyant with the vigor natural to young life.

THE WHIFFLETIT.

Seating himself at a restaurant table, a Chicago man said, according to the Cleveland Leader.

"Waiter, what kind of fish have you?"

"Oh," said the waiter, "all kinds—whitefish, bluefish, graylings, sea bass, weakfish, perch—"

"Pshaw," yawned the customer, "cut that out, I'm tired of those common fishes. Ain't you got some new kind of fish; some kind I never ate before?"

"Well," said the waiter, "the whiffletits is very fine this morning."

"What in thunder is a whiffletit?"

"Why, don't a fish sharp like you know what a whiffletit is? Common enough here. You see, the whiffletit lives only in circular lakes. You go out and find a circular lake and hire a boat. Then you row out all alone to the middle of the lake, about a mile or so, and anchor. Then you take an augur and bore a hole in the water and bait it by putting a piece of cheese on the edge of the hole. The whiffletit comes up to get the cheese, eats it, and it makes him swell up so that he can't get back down the hole."

"Well," said the customer, breathless, "what then?"

"Why," replied the waiter, as he filled a glass of water, "you lean over the side of the boat and laugh the whiffletit to death. Want a few?"

DULL LIFE FOR WOMEN.

To the onlooker the life of the average Portuguese woman is dull—deadly dull. She cannot throw herself into housekeeping as a German would, because Portuguese housekeeping is such a very simple affair it could not possibly occupy much time or thought. Moreover, it is not in her nature to become a really good housefrau.

Books are often sealed for her. Less than an onlooker in life, the world's happiness can hardly be supposed to absorb her interest. Of society, save for the visits of a few relatives she has none.

There are two things which save her life from deadly monotony, her religion and the balcony. In almost every house in Portugual there is one room which is set apart as a chapel, and here, before the altar, the Portuguese woman daily spends some hours in prayer and meditation.

About the balcony a whole book might be written. To lean over it the women arrange their hair and dress themselves just as elaborately as though to pay a visit. Hours a day they waste in this manner, until finally their shoulders become bowed with much leaning. Dull, indeed, would be the life of the Portuguese woman but for the balcony.

Taunts Led to Suicide.

Elizabeth, Feb. 25.—Taunted by companions in the shuttle department of the Singer sewing machine factory, where he was formerly employed as foreman, for alleged unfair treatment, Joseph Graff, a saloon-keeper, about thirty years old, killed himself Wednesday. He walked to the rear of his saloon at East Jersey and Division street, and shot himself in the mouth. He died a few minutes later at the Alexian Brothers' Hospital, near by.

prisons are insane, yet they are herded with those who are not so afflicted. The professional criminal is a criminal for what he can get out of his calling. His profession of repentance is but a cloak to get sympathy and his good conduct is but a veneer to get his sentence lessened by good behavfour. Dr. Travis told a good story of one Hetzel, a professional who managed to fool him into giving away five dollars, but the doctor got it back after much persuasion and threats of dire punishment. In connection with this class the speaker said the only way to cure the habitual criminal was to make his road so hard for him to travel that he would be forced to reform.

Of the instinctive criminal Dr. Travis had much to say and incidentally he tore to shreds the theory of Professor Lombroso, of Italy, in so far as his deductions relate to American criminals. He said that Lombroso's deductions are perhaps accurate in their relation to Italians from Sicily, but they are erroneous when used as a basis for comparison with the American criminal. The cosmopolitan character of our citizens precludes the possible adoption of any certain rule. No more than two per cent. of the criminals in this country are abnormal at birth, yet it costs the axpayers of he country $600,000,000 per annum, and there are 23,000 juveniles among the 250,000 prisoners in our jails and penitentiaries. Ninety-eight per cent. of these juveniles could be utterly saved if the correct methods were used. We are looking now for an automatic machine to take care of the making of good citizens while we keep on in our mad rush for money. No one knows what time, pain and money are being expended every year under antiquated methods of caring for the social outcast. If they were used in the broad humanitarian way the young boy and girl can be brought to be the highest type of American citizenship.

President James E. Kimball of the association in a short address told succinctly what the association had done during the past year. He said that there were now 662 men and boy members. 522 men and 140 boys. 17,500 of them had made use of the gymnasium and baths during the year. 4,400 had attended religious meetings and there was an average of 175 using the building during each day of the year. The boys' club, which is composed of street boys has a membership of forty and there was an average attendance during the year of 325 per month. There are seventy-nine men and boys enrolled in Bible classes and 55 men enrolled in educational clubs and classes. The budget for the past year amounted to $10,900, of which members gave $3,630; other contributions, $3,445. The balance was made up of rents and other incidental sources. The budget for the year 1910-11 will reach a total of $11,100.

Directors for a term of three years were elected to succeed themselves as follows: James E. Kimball, G. M. Rittenhause, H. O. Newman J. G. McLoughlin and R. H. Radford. John H. Doane was elected for one year to fill the unexpired term of C. F. Drayton, resigned.

Nine women took advantage of the open gallery of the hall to listen to Dr. Travis' address and joined heartily in the applause which followed.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

The concert going public is regularly informed of the colossal fees some of the opera stars receive and therefore while knowing that the opera is expensive, is apt to consider that everything which is not opera—orchestral music, for instance—can be "produced" at a very small expense. Do you know that the yearly salary list of an orchestra such as Walter Damrosch is bringing to this city, Wednesday, March 2, amounts to about $100,000 a year. Salaries are not the only item, however, which have to be paid for. Office expenses, advertising and railroad expenses cut deeply into the receipts of the concerts, and $40,000 a year is a conservative estimate of the expense entailed by such necessary details. Another large item is the purchase of music. Orchestral scores are very expensive, and some—some selections of Strauss for instance—cost as much as $100 apiece. And when we think that Walter Damrosch has been foremost in the production of interesting novelties in America, and produced for the first time nearly all of Brahms' and Tschaikowsys's symphonies, as well as many of the Wagnerian operas, we can realize what an expense in time, money, thought and effort, each number of a concert program represents.

Dentists' Banquet.

Matters of interest to their profession were discussed last night by the members of the Union County Dental Society, which held its first annual banquet in the Elks' home at Elizabeth. There were dentists in attendance from all parts of the county, twenty-five in all being present. At the conclusion of the banquet there were addresses and an informal program.

MEADOWVIEW YALE WINS MORE PRIZES

At the twenty-sixth annual dog show of the New England Kennel Club held at Mechanics Building, Boston, Mass., this week, the Meadowview Kennels' New York winner, Meadowview Yale, owned by A. G. Hooley, of North Plainfield, was first in the open class, first winner. The animal also won the Dwight cup for the best American bred setter and the Daniels special prize for the best English setter in the show.

The New England Kennel Club show is second only to the New York show, the ribbons and prizes being competed for keenly by all the principal breeders in America and Canada, and the honors won by the Plainfield dog are of special interest and pride to the owner.

HER BAGGAGE GONE; RAILROAD MUST PAY

The Supreme Court has sustained the judgment of the Elizabeth District Court in awarding to the plaintiff a verdict, in the case of Miss Margaret Larned, of Elizabeth, against the New Jersey Centrol Railroad Company.

Miss Larned alleged that she checked a suit case to Elizabeth from New York. Then she decided to wait in New York until evening before returning. She arrived in Elizabeth too late that evening to get her baggage. The suit case was not to be found when she called for it on the following morning.

When the District Court awarded to Miss Larned a verdict for the value of the suit case and contents the railroad company appealed.

G. O. SHIELDS' LECTURE INTERESTS THE PUPILS

G. O. Shields in his lecture at the Plainfield High School, yesterday afternoon, on "The Economic Value of Birds to People," told how the country is rapidly going to ruin owing to the scarcity of birds. He said that the Texas cotton growers are paying a billion dollars a year to fight cotton insect, known as the boll weevil, and in the end the consumer in buying the cotton pays an enormous sum in consequence.

The speaker said that thirty years ago there were plenty of birds in Texas, but they had been killed off so fast that there could hardly be found one hundred prairie chickens in that State. He claimed that if the birds were there the farmers would not be compelled to buy poison to kill off the insects and cotton would be cheaper.

"Scientists have figured," said Mr. Shields, "that if all the birds were destroyed in this country the people would be unable to live on account of insects. The Government has sent experts to Texas to find some means of destroying the insect, but after two years they gave it up, saying the only means of getting rid of the insect was to bring the birds back.

"The insect is not only staying in Texas, but is steadily spreading in five other States. In the course of their examination men have collected birds and examined their stomachs and have found them full of insects, which they have eaten."

Mr. Shields then discussed the farmers nearer home. He said that the men in the Middle Atlantic States were spending between $14,000,000 and $15,000,000 a year fighting the potato bug with paris green. In the apple States $1,000,000 is spent annually in spraying the trees. He spoke of the great scarcity of pigeons which thirty years ago were here in abundance.

The speaker said that the Government is now offering from $500 to $1,000 for information concerning a pair of wild pigeons nesting here. He went on to tell how the would-be-gentlemen go South every year and kill the birds for sport; also many foreigners coming over here spend their Sundays in killing birds. Mr. Shields ended his lecture by telling the girls that it was a crime against God to wear feathers in their hats.

WEDDING NEWS TEN MONTHS AFTER WEDDING.

Elizabeth, Feb. 25.—Friends of William J. Cox, secretary of the Elizabeth Board of Fire Commissioners, were surprised Wednesday to learn of his marriage ten months ago to Miss Mabel E. Henning, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Henning, of Bangor, Pa.

The wedding took place April 19 in the chapel of Mt. Carmel at Bangor. Mr. Ralph Henning, a cousin of the bride, was best man, and Miss Ruth Speidel, of Bangor, was bridesmaid. The agreement of the bridal party to keep the marriage a secret for one year was broken recently when announcement of it was made to the parents of the bride and bridegroom. The couple will reside in Jefferson avenue, this city

TRENTON COUPLE CAME TO THIS CITY TO MARRY

Announcement was made today that Miss Janet Field Curtis, daughter of Charles P. Curtis, of Trentor, and Samuel Roy Heath, son of Samuel B. Heath, a lumber merchant, of Trenton, were quietly married at the First Baptist church Wednesday afternoon at 5 o'clock. Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, the pastor, performed the ceremony.

The couple was attended by Miss Curtis, sister of the bride, as bridesmaid, and Charles Green, of Trenton, as best man. The bride was handsomely gowned in a traveling suit, and carried bride roses, while the bridesmaid carried a bouquet of lilies-of-the-valley.

Both the bride and groom are prominent in Trenton. The latter is a cousin of Rev. Dr. J. C. Buchanan, of Duer street. It was the desire of the couple that Dr. Buchanan officiate, but when they reached here, he was found to be too ill to leave his house. Arrangements were then made to have Dr. Chambliss perform the ceremony. The newly-wedded couple left the city on a honeymoon immediately after the cermony, while the best man and bridesmaid returned to Trenton.

FAVOR STATE HOME FOR THE RED MEN

Four hundred members of the Independent Order of Red Men from all parts of the State are at Trenton attending the annual State convention or Great Council fire. They will remain in session until tonight.

The principal business yesterday was the presentation of reports, especially the report of the committee which has been investigating the proposal for the establishment of a home for aged members of the order. The committee advises the building of such an institution on a modest scale, preferably on a large farm. It also urges that some provision be made so that the wives of members may not be separated from them when they enter the home. The committee opposes the establishment of an "old men's fund," as has been suggested, believing that this would work a hardship on the subordinate tribes. The "old men's fund" is not considered in the same light as the orphans' funds now maintained.

The report of the Great Sachem Harry J. Rathbone showed that there are 26,510 members of the order in the State. He urges an effort to make it 27,000 this year. The eighty-fourth subordinate tribes gained 904 new members last year and lost 571, by death or otherwise, leaving a net gain of 333.

These officers were elected: Great Prophet, Harry J. Rathbone, Trenton; Great Sachem, John Thompson, Mayor of Avon; Senior Sagamore, J. B. Wright, Camden; Junior Sagamore, Charles M. Curry, Camden; Keeper of Records, Daniel M. Stevens, Camden; Keeper of Wampum, William J. Smythe, Jr., Long Branch; Representatives to the Great Council of the United States, Harry J. Rathbone, Trenton; Jacob F. Stetser, Gloucester City; Frank P. Jackson, Camden, and Joseph M. Snyder Washington.

AUTO COMPANY RECEIVER IS STATE ASSEMBLYMAN

Assemblyman Lloyd Thompson, of Westfield, has been appointed receiver for the W. H. Quackenbush Company, an automobile and bicycle concern of Westfield. In a bill filed by Paul Q. Oliver, as counsel for Walter J. Lee, a stockholder, it was recited that the company was without funds to pay a judgment of $109.73, obtained by the Standard Oil Company, December 30 last, or to pay other debts. It was also stated that at a meeting of stockholders January 19 it was announced by William H. Quackenbush, general manager for the concern, that unless all creditors would agree to an extension for one year the company would have to quit. In that event the assets would suffice to pay only about forty or fifty cents on the dollar. The liabilities are said to amount to $3,700.

The company was incorporated June 21, 1909, with an authorized capital of $20,000. The incorporators were William H. Lisbert, Charles Crickenberger and James Cosgrove, Jr., all of Westfield, and each of whom subscribed for thirty-five shares of a par value of $10 each.

Peter's Pence Totals $13,700.

Due to the special appeal made by Bishop O'Connor, the annual Peter's pence collection this year in the Newark's diocese is the largest received in a number of years. The contributions, amounting to $13,700, will be sent to the Pope, where it will be used for the support of the Vatican and foreign missions. St. Mary's church, of this city, contributed $161.40 toward the grand total.

The Plainfield High School girls' basketball team will play the South Orange High School girls' team at the local gymnasium tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 o'clock.

Miss Annie Wurgler, of Webster place, is detained at home with an attack of the grip.

TELEPHONE CO. CALLED MOST COLOSSAL ROBBER

"The two Bell Telephone Companies operating lines in North and South Jersey represent a combined capital of $23,000,000 for property in this State, and there is not a dollar of water in the stock; furthermore, this money capitalization represents moneys which have come in over the counter of the companies and been paid out for the finest equipment in the world," said A. N. Bethel, President of the New York Telephone Company yesterday to the members of the Joint Legislative Committee at Trenton which is hearing the resolution of Senator Gebhardt, Hunterdon county, Democrat, charging that the company has by combination been able to charge an exhorbitant rate. Senator Gebhardt wants the Attorney General to investigate these charges.

Mr. Bethel said further that the telephone companies in this State are taxed on their franchises well as the tangible and personal property, and that the value of the franchises was not carried as an asset on the books by way of capitalization.

On the other hand, Senator Gebhardt characterized "the Bell Telephone Company as the most colossol robber of the age," and asserted that it had more water in its stock than any other company in existence.

BREACH OF PROMISE SUIT.

Lena Pollack, a hat trimmer, who lives with her parents at 22 Boyd street, Newark, was plaintiff in an action for breach of promise against Charles Lend, an elevator operator in the Scheuer building, on trial before Judge Heisley, in the Supreme Court Circuit Wednesday. Miss Pollack testified that she was introduced to Lend by Lena Abert, a friend, in November, 1906, and that from that time he courted her and made an engagement to marry her soon after they became acquainted.

Lend's attention ceased in November, 1908, Miss Pollack declared, and he has since then refused to marry her. Through her counsel, William Greenfield, she is suing to recover $10,000 in damages.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

The Farmers Telephone Company has succeeded in entering Columbus.

State Banking Commissioner Vivian M. Lewis will be Memorial Day orator at Woodbury.

Oliver Cox, of New Egypt, has succeeded in putting in running order a clock 298 years old, made in Whitechapel, London.

Millard Koch, twenty-two years old, a druggist, of Elmer, died Wednesday in Hahnemann Hospital, Philadelphia, following an operation.

The small daughter of Emerick Kriestick, of Millville, swallowed a safety pin, and physicians had considerable difficulty in removing it.

Charles Pennington, colored, of Glassboro, is in the Gloucester County Jail, charged with dragging his wife downstairs and badly injuring her back.

Farmer Joseph Moore, near Woodbury, fell on the ice two weeks ago. He has complained of pain in his arm, and yesterday discovered that it was broken.

C. C. Pearson, a Woodbury butcher, purchased twenty-one live chickens for his customers, and while the fowls were waiting to be killed they laid eleven eggs in three hours.

A new bridge, of either iron or concrete, will be built over the stream at Rancocas Park, on the Camden-Mt. Holly pike by the Burlington County Board of Freeholders.

The grammar and primary departments of the Woodstown Public School were closed Wednesday for two weeks, there being eighty cases of measles and mumps in the schools.

Belva Lockwood will deliver an address in the Woodstown Opera House next Sunday evening on "Arbitration the Christian, and War the Heathen Method of Settling Difficulties."

Victor, the nine-year-old son of Louis Diaoli, Vineland, fell from the hay mow Wednesday and broke his leg in two places. The boy was so frightened that he ran a fourth of a mile before collapsing with pain.

Albert F. Meschter, a chemist at the Gibbstown Powder Works, and residing in Woodbury, had one of his legs badly crushed at the plant Wednesday. He was taken to a Philadelphia hospital, where, it is said, he is likely to lose the limb.

George C. Norris, of Hightstown, a constable assigned to duty in Mercer Court, was stricken with appendicitis during the session of court and collapsed Wednesday. County Clerk Robbins, who is a physician, ministered to him and he was sent home.

For throwing ash boxes in the street L. R. Cremer, thirty-three years old, and W. E. Danis, twenty-eight years old, were Wednesday sentenced to twenty days in the Camden jail by Recorder Stackhouse. They were caught throwing a meat rack in the street by Policeman Kiker.

C. B. Dilkes, one of the workmen injured in the falling of a wall of the new Culver School building at Millville, has instituted suit in the Supreme Court, through former Judge Westcott, of Camden, for $10,000 damages against Contractor Joseph Steelman, of Bridgeton.

From awful burns sustained when her dress caught fire at her home in Gloucester Monday, Elvira Lang, seventeen years old, died in Cooper Hospital, Camden, Wednesday. At the bedside at the time of death was the girl's mother, who had to be led away to prevent collapse.

Mrs. Margaret Piper, of Paterson, was swindled by a stranger who called at the woman's boarding-house a few days ago to secure board. The man engaged a room for four days at the rate of $1 per day. He tendered the woman what purported to be a $10 note. She gave him in return $5. Later she discovered that the note was painted to resemble a $10 bill, and when a closer examination was made she discovered that it was only a $1 bill. The matter was reported to the police Wednesday.

Although Mrs. Harlarius Grober, of 15 Holsman street, Paterson, attempted to kindle a fire with a $20 gold certificate in a moment of inadvertence, the experiment will not prove as expensive as she first thought, for her husband, through a lawyer, has received word from the Treasury Department in Washington that the money will be redeemed.

FROCKS FOR DEBUTANTES.

Rumor has it that in Paris the fashionable dance frock, which has proved even more acceptable and convenient than was anticipated, will grow shorter as the season advances. While this rage for the sensibly abbreviated skirt has not extended to the reception gown nor the at-home frock, it has penetrated in among such stuffs as rose petals and rainbows are made of. No material, no matter how diaphanous, need be reserved for the long reception gown; short frocks demand all the elegance of the season.

The debutante's dresses are more beautiful than ever. Silver has touched her white frock and rested there so persistently that the combination has almost become a uniform. The typical debutante of the season is, in many of her gowns, a veritable ice maiden from the Andersen fairy tales.

White satin, pure and simple, has declined in favor; it is now draped with the inevitable silver gauze, and again the same moonlight effect is produced by silver tulle over crepe meteore.

On another elaboration in frosty co'oring (if coloring it may be called) there are white satin ribbon rosebuds with silver centres on bodice and tunic. The sleeves are composed of cords of silver strung with little ribbon roses, and like cords depending form the girdle are heavily tasseled with the rses.

On the white mousseline or ninon of the debutante there appears at times an edge of swan's down or white fur in place of the dark fur band on the heavy moire of the older woman.

Countless white and silver effects are to be gained, such as the iridescent dewdrop pressed into the chiffon fabric. Tiny sequins of silver run along the satin hem which borders the tunic; and again a satin cuirass glittering with silver and then veiled with white mousseline to bring again the youthful simplicity—to conceal an excess of riches.

Although elabrate to a degree, these gowns were short and they retained the crushed girdle of the proverbial youthful model, and a certain simplicity of design marked them as distinctly suited to the young. In almost every instance the short frock of the season has reverted to the fuller skirt, somewhat gathered across the back and around the hips, but smooth across the front breadth.

Perfectly Harmless.

The youngster of patrician blood
Enjoys his play,
So let him soil his hands with mud
Or even clay.

He seeks no common, low-priced ground;
He doesn't roam.
He only plays with mud around
His handsome home.

And mud worth ninety plunks a foot
Will injure none.
No parent should a damper put
On proper fun.
—Louisville Courier-Journal.

He Didn't Like the Shipment.

There seemed to be just enough cannibals left to supply the humorous demand.

Note the dawning of the commercial instinct in the following communication from King Mwbana Nishi of the upper Congo.

"Your tender of young missionary duly reached us. Also the missionary. We regret to say that it proved a combination of both tender and tough. Very truly yours, Mwbana."

HAVANA AS IT IS TODAY

The most astonishing impression as you drive through the town is of its spotless cleanliness; not even Rome is cleaner, while Paris is far behind, writes a Havana correspondent of the New York Evening Post. The native, if you remark about it, will say, "Ah yes! Havana is clean since the Americans came," and you are not quite sure if he means it as a delicate bit of flattery or is genuinely appreciative of the fact. One woman said to me, however, "But it isn't as pretty at it was." Another astonishing thing is the large number of beggars or of persons deformed and maimed selling things as excuse for asking charity.

When the cab turns into Obispo street or O'Reilly, you lose these pathetic sights, and forget them, as the wheels roll over the splendid wood pavement past the glittering shops, small as in Paris, and, like them, offering a small array of very choice things.

Although these two principal streets are wider than many others, they are so narrow that you are sure the New York woman who has brought with her the atest thing in hats, will need the entre sidewalk to herself when she comes along for surely these footways were only made for mantilla-wearing women.

The suburbs of Havana have born the old world and the new world air. Reviewed in order of importance and development, the first to notice is Vedado, meaning reservation, probably named from having been held as a pleasure place, a deer park or restricted district in the old days. It lies to the west of the city along the gulf, of which an extended view may be had by residents on the clazada, as the Spanish highways are called, while huses built on the hills back of the turnpike have a fine view of the shore as well as the sea and of the bay to the eastward, with the walls of Morro Castle for a background.

This section has, within eight years, seen a phenomenal rise in value; a lot that, during the first intervention, was offered to an American here for $400, sold this season for 5$0,000, it being in what is now the most fashionable district where very beautiful homes are being erected.

The "Americanization" that has been said to have been made in architecture, consists in having put veranads along the fronts or sides of houses where an unscreened entrance or corridor of Spanish fashion or the Italian pergola style was formerly followed. The interiors of these new houses have also a few American conveniences, such as sanitary plumbing, hallways to connect rooms that formerly opened only upon the inner courts or patios, gas stoves or coal ranges in place of the native fugon (charcoal brassier), and more windows to the outside than are usual in the Latin's idea of a house.

In other respects the customs of the country are carried out in the new buildings that, to a new arrival, would look as foreign, though not so old, as any other house. Parquets of tiles or marble are the only sensible floors for this climate, where, on a midwinter day, the windows must be open for comfort, and in summer insects must be kept at bay, as they could not be so well from wood floors.

Of course, the much traveled and cultured Cubans have houses very similar to those of people of their class in any land, but the above is the average, and is seen daily as one passes open doors and windows.

In the suburb of Jesus del Monte, an American company bought, ten years ago, the deserted farms of Cubans too poor to hold them, and of Spaniards who were leaving the island. This district has now become one of the most beautiful of the resident sections. One property secured for $16,000 has been cut up into lots, of which a third only had been sld when the investor had trebled the price paid for the farm. A small building lot sells here for $300. One house just built in the so-called American style, as above described, cost, with the lot, $23,000.

Some of the finest old Cuban homes are at Jesus del Monte. The Yznaga place, the childhood home of Consuelo, Duchess of Manchester, and the residence still of her relatives, is here. Grand dames whose titles are marquesa, condesa, duchesa, are the residents of the place.

New Umbrella Tops.

One of the big shops show distinctly new and clever inventions in umbrella tops. There is a flattened round gold top which opens with a tiny spring to disclose a fascinating little vanity box with mirror framed in the gold top, crystal-lined hollow for powder and a tiny puff. The lid of the box is jeweled or engraved with a monogram. Other umbrellas with tall Directoire handles have leashes of plaited leather tongs in red green and white curled around them like a whip.

The Regular Route.

"How many miles an hour does your motor car make?"

"It depends on circumstances," answered Mr. Chuggins. "Naturally, we're much slower going from the house to the repair shop than we are going from the repair shop to the house."—Washington Star.

N. Y. AMUSEMENTS.

The next play to be presented by the New Theatre will be "Don," a comedy by Rudolf Besier, which has already won success at the Haymarket Theatre, London. The story centres about the adventures of a young man, who with sincerely generous motives, undertakes to rescue an attractive wife from the oppression of her husband. The complications ensuing from this endeavor are said to be exceedingly clever. The play, will show the stock company in a new light. Following "Don" comes "Beethoven," a drama with incidental music. This has to do with incidents in the life of the great composer and will interest students of music as well as devotees of high class drama. "The Blue Bird," the dramatic fantasy from the pen of Maurice Maeterlinck, will have its premier later in the season

All New York and Chicago as well is laughing at "Seven Days," the new comedy which Wagenhals & Kemper are offering simultaneously in New York at the Astor, and at the Illinois Theatre, Chicago. "Seven Days" is a scream from start to finish without a dull moment, and will not bring a blush to the youngest person who sees it. The characters are some of the smart set quarantined in their house in New York through the illness of the cook, and their attempts to escape through the coal hole and the windows are very funny.

A discussion has arisen in the Middle West, where both of Charles Frohman's traveling "Thief" companies are now playing, as to whether this great Bernstein play is essentially a "woman's" play or not. It is unquestionably a woman's play, but where is the woman's play which is not pre-eminently a man's play, also?

LOVE MAKING IN PORTUGAL.

Marriage, as in the lives of many, is certainly the most important event in that of the Portugese woman. And what is more, in the early days of courtship it is attended with some romance. For there is less of business and more of romance in the ways of the Portugese lover. This is how the Portugese cavalier conducts his love affair. If he sees a pretty girl in the street with whom he would like to become acquainted he follows her. He follows her in face of all difficulties—chaperones and duennas—right up to the very door, and he notes the address.

Next day he comes again, and if the young lady approves of him she will most certainly be on the lookout. But sometimes hard fate—an angry guardian or a stern parent—prevents her from so doing, and then the gallant youth is kept waiting.

So if during a ramble through Portugal one should notice a young man loitering at the corner of the street or gazing intently at a house, one must not imagine that he meditating a burglary or anything so desperate, but know that he is merely a harmless and amorous youth gazing at the windows of his lady love.

But be sure if there is a way she will not keep him waiting long, for the Portugese girl is a past master in the art of harmless intrigue.

Soon she leans over the balcony and smiles at him, and the happy youth, thus encouraged, ties a note, in which he declares his undying passion, to the cord which the fair lady has dropped from the balcony. The next day the young man, buoyed with hope, comes again, but this time he is bolder, for he rings at the door.

If the inquiries which the lady's parents will doubtless have made prove satisfactory, he is admitted to make the acquaintance of the young lady and her family. And then, should he please, and the lady's father be prepared to give the necessary marriage dot, wedding bells will end the little romance. Think of the delightful possibilities of a walk in Portugal! Who knows but what demure little Emelia may not meet her future partner for life?

Another Secret.

She—She told me you told her that secret I told you not to tell her.

He—The mean thing! I told her not to tell you I told her.

She—I promised her I wouldn't tell you she told me, so don't tell her I told you.—Boston Transcript.

His Own Business First

One of the disadvantages of selecting an individual to act as Executor or Trustee of your Estate is that the very qualities which would make him a good executor are those usually monopolized in his own business.
If, at any time, a choice was necessary his own business would come first—yours later. When

HERE IS A USEFUL "BEEF DICTIONARY"

Every housewife should be conversant with the different cuts of meat. Too many limit their knowledge of the anatomy of a cow, for instance, to a steak and of a sheep, to chops, and, as a matter of fact, are a little hazy as to just what part of the animal these cuts are from.

In the current number of The Delineator, a writer gives some interesting and valuable information regarding the cuts of beef. She puts the description of the various cuts tersely and in a way that is easy of comprehension. It would be well for the housekeeper to study this table or "beef dictionary" that she may know exactly the cut she wants and what is more, know when she gets it. This dictionary mastered, the range of dishes is greatly extended and one's bill for meat may be cut down:

Loin—The loin of beef is sub-divided into porterhouse or short cuts, T-bone and sirloin. The porterhouse consists of the first five or six steaks from the small end next to the ribs. Next to this come the T-bone steaks, regarded by many as the very choicest part of the loin. The last six or eight steaks next to the round are known as the sirloin. The tenderloin is the inside portion of lean meat near the rib end of the loin.

Round and Rump—The rump is the fleshy portion over the thigh. After it is cut off, the round extends on down to the shank, having only one bone near the centre.

Flank—A section of lean meat overlies the flank, which is stripped off and is known as the flank steak. The balance of the flank is mostly used for sausage and hamburger, but can be boiled.

Ribs—This section consists of the first seven ribs and is mostly used for roasts. The cut nearest the loin is considered the choicest and sells for the most money. Next to the chuck the meat is deeper and rather coarse.

Chuck—The lower eight or ten inches of that portion marked chuck is known to the trade as the "clod." This lies just above the brisket and extends up to the lower portion of the neck. This is cut mostly for pot roasts and contains much lean meat. Most of the chuck is cut into steaks, the best portions being on the end nearest to the ribs. The portion next to the neck usually sells for pot roast or boiling.

Plate—The plate is the lower portion of the carcass below the ribs, and taking the covering of the belly. It is mostly used for boiling, but contains some good meat.

Shank—That portion of the shank from the knee or heel to the cut above is fleshy, though coarse, and is mostly used for boiling. The lower part is mostly bone and sinew and is for soup and boiling. In the forelegs this is called the shin

Neck—This part usually sells with a part of the chuck and is fit mostly for boiling. It is fleshy but coarse.

Sirloin Ends—In some markets the ends of the sirloin and T-bone steaks, which run down into the flank, are cut off at the point where the flesh widens and are sold separately. These ends are coarser than the loin meat, but properly cooked, are as good as any part of the animal.

A MESSAGE.

Earth! thou hast not any wind that blows
Which is not music; every weed of thine
Pressed rightly flows in aromatic wine;
And every humble hedgerow flower that grows,
And every little brown bird that doth sing.
Hath something greater than itself, and bears
A living word it every living thing.
Albeit it hold the Message unawares.
All shapes and sounds have something which is not
Of them; a Spirit broods amid the grass;
Vague outlines of the Everlasting Thought
Lie in the melting shadows as they pass;
The touch of an Eternal Presence thrills
The fringes of the sunsets and the hills.

She Understood.

She looked at the well filled shelves.

"Are all these new books?" she asked.

"Yes" he answered.

"And how many are really worth reading?"

"Madam," he replied, "do you ask me as a bookseller, or as a friend?"

She looked at him and understood—and went away empty handed.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Gave Her Age Away

"On what grounds, madam, do you desire a divorce from your husband?"

"Intolerable cruelty; he put the date of my birth in the family Bible."—Chicago News.

Good Guess.

Bill—I see the mines of a Montana town have a combined payroll of $3,000,000 a year.

Jill—They must be Butte's then.—Yonkers Stateman.

"The Bullet Proof Woman," is one of the big attractions at Proctor's this week. The trick of a man shooting a bullet through the woman and breaking a target directly back of her, is clever. McCauley & Morrisey in the sketch, "The Lunatics," convulsed everyone with the absurdity of the situations and is a cure for the blues. Sam Morris, the German comedian, tells new stories and sings new songs, while Copeland and Phillips, are classy entertainers with songs and dances. The Paris flood pictures will be shown today for the last time.

COMMON COUNCIL'S ROUTINE BUSINESS

Aside from the action taken in granting the liquor licenses, there was little business of importance at the special meeting of the Common Conucil, last night. According to the promise made to Trade Board President William Jeffery and a committee of hackmen, Mr. Clay, of the license committee, offered an amendment to the hack ordinance, which was adopted on two readings and ordered advertised.

These amendments changes the hour when a double fare can be charged from 12 midnight to 11 o'clock, and permits the hackmen to charge fifty cents for the first passenger and twenty-five cents for each additional passenger, when taken from a point within the city to a point without. This would mean a fare of $1 for four passengers, instead of seventy-five cents under the old rule, and the justice of the change was not apparent.

The Plainfield Construction Company, owners of the Stillman tract, petitioned the Council to provide sanitary sewers in the vicinity of Sherman avenue, where the tract is located, explaining that it desires to sewer that property. The matter was referred to the sewer committee.

The rules of order of the Council were made the bylaws, according to the usual custom, on motion of Mr. Buxton. He also offered a resolution authorizing the refunding of $38, an assessment levied against the Public Library and reading room, for macadamizing on College place, because it was made in error, the library being a public institution.

The petition of the F. L. C. Martin Automobile Company for the cancellation of an assessment made on property owned by the company on Randolph road, was partially granted, it having been shown that the assessors made an error, which was admitted. Upon the advice of Corporation Counsel Marsh, $75 was remitted, but the request for the cancellation of a tax on property at Randolph road and Cameron avenue, was denied. The above action was taken throught a resolution offered by Mr. Buxton.

Mr. Buxton then referred to a similar petition received some time ago from William Mazzocco, of Cameron avenue, and at his suggestion this petition will be taken up and considered by the sewer commission, the councilmanic finance committee and corporation counsel.

TAFT WILL ADDRESS WOMEN SUFFRAGISTS.

Washington, Feb. 25.—The suffragettes corra'ed the President yesterday. He consented to make a speech, opening the annual convention of the National American Woman's Suffrage Association. He stipulated that his appearance should be in no way construed as an indorsement of the votes-for-women movement.

Mrs. Rachel Foster Avery, first vice-president of the national organization, and Miss Emma M. Gillett, as a committee from the association, called at the White House to invite the President to attend.

The convention will be held in Washington, at the Arlington Hotel, April 14 to 19. Three hundred delegates will be in attendance.

GUIGUES PROPERTY SOLD.

New Brunswick, Feb. 25.—The Federal Trust Company of Newark, bought an unoccupied mansion on Water street, Perth Amboy, at sheriff's sale here Wednesday afternoon, the property of Albert A. Guigues, of Newark, for $15,250. Sheriff William H. Quackenboss made the sale, the decree against the property being $26,413.16. The property sold included riparian rights on Staten Island Sound and land at the corner of Lewis and Rector streets.

Mr. Guigues decided to put up a $30,000 house adjoining the house of W. Parker Runyon, upon the bluff off Staten Island Sound. Plans were prepared by Piggott & Matbesius, of Newark, for a thirty room house and Ira B. Crouse, of Perth Amboy, got the contract to build it. Mr. Guigués who was a manufacturer of leather goods, had some financial difficulties and the Newark architects recovered a judgment against him for $1,488.92. The contractor secured a judgment for $10,328.46. Other claims brought the amount of the decree up to $26,413.

Rev. F. St. John Fitch, of Montclair, will occupy the pulpit of the Park Avenue Baptist church, Sunday morning and night.

PLAINFIELDERS FIGURED IN THE YALE FENCE RUSH.

The annual freshmen-sophomore fence rush was held at Yale College last Tuesday, according to a time-honored custom. It has long been the rule that on Washington's Birthday the sophomores shall wear high hats and carry canes to chapel; it is the freshmen's duty to try to relieve them, if possible of their "stove-pipes."

Murray Rushmore and Theodore Booth, of this city, were both participants in this event; Rushmore being a freshman and Booth a sophomore. Despite the rain, the upper classmen appeared resplendent in "toppers" and carrying canes. Not in years have such garments been seen as those worn by the freshmen, corduroy trousers, overalls, bath robes, oil skins and numerous other coverings.

After about an hour's fighting someone called quits and although a few sophomores were still wearing their hats, the freshmen had the most hands on the fence, giving them the victory. Since entering college, Rushmore, who was a last year's student at Leal's has been prominent in college affairs. He just missed making the freshmen football team, more than one hundred candidates trying for it. At present he is a member of his class crew squad, over ninety others having been dropped. His scholarship average up to the mid-year, was only a little below that which would have entitled him to mention on the honor list.

Soccer Game Tomorrow.

Soccer football will be revived tomorrow in Plainfield after a lapse of eight weeks on account of the weather. The Plainfield Association Football Club will meet the Riordan A. A., of Harrison, on the Clinton avenue grounds at 3 o'clock. This team is one of the strongest in the State and will make the locals hustle to win.

EXPLOSION RENDS THREE; ONE VICTIM MAY EXPIRE.

New Brunswick, Feb. 25.—Three men, who came here from Italy, were seriously hurt, one probably fatally, in an explosion of dynamite at the quarry of Shanley & Montgomery, at Rocky Hill yesterday morning. A blast failed to go off Wednesday afternoon, but did this morning while the failure was being investigated. One man lost his arms, eyes and nose. The others were not so seriously hurt. Dr. Reeves took the men to Mercer Hospital, Trenton, by train this morning.

ADVERTISE IN THE DAILY PRESS

The Island of Regeneration

By Cyrus Townsend Brady

Illustrations by Ray Walters

(Copyright, 1908, by W. G. Chapman.)
(Copyright in Great Britain.)

He rose heavily as he spoke and felt his way around the table hand over hand. He approached her. She let him do it. She shrank a little closer together, every muscle tense for action. She was no longer a woman; she was a human tigress and her philosophy was gone. He was too drunk to see—it, too incapacitated to take warning.

"That's right," he continued as he lurched nearer to her. "Stay right there. I'm coming to you as fast as I can and when I get close to you, we'll kiss, and—"

He was by her side now. He straightened himself up with a spasmodic effort, released his hold on the table and stretched out his arms toward her. And then she sprang at him. How she did it, she could never tell, but in some way her outstretched arms, grasping for his throat, struck him in the breast. Unsteady on his feet, he went down as if he had been shot. Such was the violence of his fall that the momentum carried her with him. She fell upon him with all her force. His head went back and struck the deck with a frightful crash. She herself was almost stunned by the violence of her own fall, although his body broke it.

She arose and stood over him for a minute and then she lifted her foot and brought it down upon him. He had said she was a mad woman and it was true. She was crazed by what she had heard, by the horror of the situation. She had not changed her dress for dinner that afternoon. She was wearing a pair of light boating shoes. It was lucky for him. If she had worn evening slippers with high, rigid heels, she would have mashed his face beyond recognition. As it was, she left horrible marks upon it. He lay absolutely motionless. She could see that he was still breathing and was not dead. If she had had a weapon she might have killed him in the fury and transport of her rage. This wretched philosopher! As no resistance came from him, she presently stopped, the feminine in her slowly rising to the fore.

She realized now that the irrevocable had happened; that there was no longer room for two of them on that ship. As the mists of passion cleared away, although the fire of rage still burned in her heart, her mind cleared also. She thought with such rapidity as she had never thought before.

First she picked up a cloak, threw it about her and went on deck. A cabin attendant was standing at the companionway, as was always the case, waiting a possible summons. She told him that his master was ill and did not desire to be disturbed. He did not even want the dinner things cleared away. He wanted to be left entirely alone until morning. The servant smiled slightly, she thought, in the light from the cabin skylight. She noticed that it was a moonless night, cloudy, overcast, for she could see no stars. She knew what that smile meant; that the man realized what sort of sickness his owner and master was liable to. She bade him tell the officer of the deck her message and then dismissed him.

Then she returned to the cabin and carefully locked the door. She glanced at the man as she did so. He lay just as he had lain before. She bent over him. He was still breathing, she noted with—was it regret? But she wasted no time over him. Time was the most precious of all things to her at that moment.

She had a clear and definite plan of action. She knew exactly what she intended to do and how she intended to do it. Fortunately the means of escape were at hand. They had passed one or two tiny islands during the day, mere treeless spots of sand or coral in the vast of the ocean, but prospects that others more inviting might be raised had caused the man to order the power tender to be got overboard. This was a good, substantial boat, 15 feet in length, broad-beamed and built for heavy seas, yet powerfully engined and capable of good speed. By his direction the tanks had been filled and everything overhauled so that it would be in readiness for use. The sea was very calm and the gentle air scarcely raised a ripple on its surface. To save the trouble of hoisting it aboard again, the tender had been left trailing astern at the end of a long line. It would be ready for instant use. She would escape in that. She knew how to run the motor and how to steer the boat. She had done it many a time.

Carrying her heavy boat cloak she entered her cabin, hastily packed her bag with what things she fancied she would need, returned to the table, took from it every scrap that was edible and portable; without much regard for the niceties she made it up in a heavy parcel which she tied with napkins. She remembered that the water tank in the launch had been filled, so that for a time at least she would lack nothing. Carrying bag and bundle in her hands and with the boat cloak over her arm and a straw hat tied on her head, after one long look at the man, she turned and went aft and re-entered the starboard after stateroom, her own.

The boat's painter had been affixed to the starboard side of the yacht. She opened the stern window and looked out. She leaned far out and by great good fortune in the darkness caught the painter. The boat of course, was swinging to a long rope. She pulled at this line cautiously, although the effort taxed her strength to the utmost. Indeed, she seemed possessed of a fictitious strength for the time being else she never could have accomplished her hard task. But she managed to get the boat practically under the cabin at last. She fastened the painter to her bed, which was of brass and securely screwed to the floor. Then she cut off the line and tied the bundle of provisions and her bag and cloak to the end of it. These she dropped down into the boat. Among the petty articles was a sharp sailor's sheath knife fastened to a lanyard. She slipped this lanyard into her blouse. Then she climbed up on the port sill and essayed the dangerous descent herself. She was glad that she was a strong, athletic woman, used to trusting to her own skill and powers, for it was no easy task to slide down that rope and get into a boat trailing along beneath the counter of a yacht going perhaps 12 knots an hour. Fortunately the engine was well aft and the bow of the launch was high out of the water; else her weight would have pressed it down and the back wash from the yacht would perhaps have swamped the launch.

At any rate, she succeeded, although after she got her foot in the bows she slipped and fell. But that she fell straight aft upon the cloak and bundles she would have hurt herself severely. If she had not fallen that way, if she had pitched to the right or the left she would have gone overboard and that would have been the end, for she knew that she would have died rather than appeal to that ship for help. She was fearful that the noise of her fall might have attracted the attention of some one on the deck, but the poop of the yacht was usually deserted at night and it was unlikely that any one would be up there.

Scrambling to her feet, she drew her knife and severed the taut rope that held the launch to the yacht. It parted instantly. She was whirled backwards and sideways with a suddenness that again almost threw her out of the boat. For one agonizing moment the launch lay full in the broad beam of light that proceeded from the bright cabin window she had left. For one agonizing moment of suspense she hung there and then the swirl of the wave carried her into the darkness.

She lay directly in the wake of the yacht, and the launch was pitched up and down by the waves made by the rapidly moving ship with a violence of motion that was sickening. There were a pair of oars in the boat, but she did not break them out. She just drew herself down in the stern sheets and lay there waiting. She knew that the clatter of the motor could be heard a long distance in so still a night and over so still a sea, and therefore, although her impulse was to start it at once, she restrained herself and waited, watching the yacht rapidly disappear. She could mark her course easily by the light from that cabin window. Her ear was keen and she listened until she could no longer detect the beat and throb of the steamer's engines. Then she rose and started the motor.

The boat was provided with a compass, and although she could see no star, she was able to set a course which was directly at right angles to the course of the yacht. She realized, or at least she thought so, that she would be pursued. She believed that the yacht would retrace its course. She decided that those aboard her would reason that she would endeavor to put as much distance as possible between herself and the yacht, and therefore she would sail straight away from it. Consequently, she went broad off to starboard at right angles to the other course. The gasoline tanks were both full. Inasmuch as the boat had been designed for extended cruising in shallow waters, there was enough fuel to keep the motor going for over 30 hours at full speed. The motor was capable of developing at least ten knots per hour. By the same time to-morrow night she would be 240 miles away from the present spot. The yacht was going 12 knots an hour. Her escape would probably not be discovered for ten hours. By that time the yacht would be 120 miles away. They would be 150 miles apart by morning, measured on the hypotheuse, and by night, who could tell? At any rate, she had now done all that she could.

Her condition was desperate; her prospects gloomy beyond expression. She was alone in a small power boat which would be helpless, the sport of wind and waves, after perhaps 30 hours. That boat was alone in the great expanse of the Pacific ocean. Somewhere about there were islands probably. Indeed, on the charts those seas were dotted with points of land, but they were small, inconsiderable, uninhabited, unknown. In that little boat she might pass close by many of them without seeing them. She had provisions, such as they were, and water sufficient perhaps for a week or ten days. After that unless she landed somewhere she would drift on until she starved and died. If a storm came, the launch probably would not survive it. Her chances of escape, in any event, were worse than problematical. The end was almost certain.

But she was happy. The first real ray of happiness which had entered her soul since the beginning of the great awakening, which had culminated in the frightful scene of the night, illumined her being. As she sat in the stern sheets, her hand on the steering wheel, listening to the steady drumming of the motor, seeing the black water broken into foam by the boat's bows flash by her, keeping the launch steady on her course by the aid of the compass needle, her eyes turned ever and anon to the fast diminishing point of light which marked the rapidly disappearing yacht, and she realized that she was free. She had hurled out of her path—and how she exulted in her own prowess; it was something of a salve to her soul for the wretched humiliations which had been heaped upon it—she had hurled out of her path and stricken down as any other animal might have done him who had brought her to this awful pass. She was away from him, free from him. She was once more, so far as wind and wave allowed, the master of her fate, the mistress of her destiny.

She was glad in her heart, too, that there were to be no physical consequences from her brief alliance. She did not realize that there were to be other consequences which not even all the water of the seas over which she floated could wash out. There was a strange elation in her soul. She felt as if in some way she had vindicated her right to be. There was something yet in her philosophy and did opportunity serve, could she get free from the dangers that encompassed her, she vowed that she would prove it.

All night long she stayed awake, keeping the launch in her course. When morning broke she was absolutely alone upon the ocean. Standing erect upon a seat, from her low vantage point she could see nothing but smoothly undulating sea. She breakfasted sparingly from her scanty store and resumed her post at the wheel. She was tired and sleepy, but while the little engine was alive she could not leave it to its own devices. She must hold on her chosen course as long as the motive power remained. She could not lose a moment while that motor throbbed and beat. She must be alive with it. There would be time to sleep when it was exhausted. She must put as many leagues between her and pursuit by holding the direct course as long as was possible.

And so she sat there grimly, hands clutching the wheel through the long day and through the longer night and well into the following morning. It must have been half past ten on the morning of the second day before the motor stopped. The silence, after the ceaseless drumming of a night, a long day, a longer night and a still longer morning, struck her with the same strange sense of shock. She calculated that the motor had been running for 38 hours and that she had gone 380 miles at least on her course. She had seen nothing whatever of the yacht.

The chances that it would pick her up, even if it came about and cruised for her, a lonely speck in the ocean, were millions to nothing. At any rate, she had done all she could. Her philosophy for once stood her in good stead. There was nothing more to be done. She was dead for want of sleep. The sky had been slightly overcast since she had left the yacht, but there had been no storm and weather conditions looked just as they had and seemed to be permanent.

Taking the precaution to examine the gasoline tanks and finding that indeed they had been drained of the last drop, she carefully closed and locked them, thereby assuring her salvation, and spreading the boat cloak in the stern sheets with her bag for a pillow and her straw hat tied over her face to shield it from the sun, she instantly dropped to sleep.

Don't Wrestle With Furnace Clinkers
Clinkers just naturally pass right through the grate of the Boynton.
If they hesitate, the cutting bar smashes them. There is no chance of clogging. The intense and uniform heat of the reduces nearly everything to the finest ash. That's because a square pot develops more heat per unit of fuel than any other kind. That's economy.

The Boynton has some other exceptional features too—the fresh air supply—the dust flue—the square ash pit. Any BOYNTON dealer will be glad to explain how these points reduce the care and cost of up-keep.
There are BOYNTON heating plants of all kinds. Ask about our Round or Sectional Boilers for Steam or Hot Water. Also Ranges.

TO REMODEL CHILDREN'S DIET.

The discovery is made that it is not so much lack of food as improper food which causes East Side New York school children to faint at their desks. School principals are at work on a plan to correct these conditions. This is in effect a proposal to improve and regulate the national diet. It meditates an attack on an established institution. It is true that the American dietary has been a standing subject of European criticism for generations. It scandalized Dickens and Mrs. Trollope and it continues to excite the concern of visitors from abroad. French chefs have recently begun to find something to commend in it, but their observations have been confined to hotels where European standards of cuisine obtain. For all that, the reproach of our pie and baked beans and hot breads remains.

Yet it was on this diet that Gettysburg and Appormattox were fought. On it the telegraph, the telephone, and the electric lights were invented. The Concord philosophy was evolved on pie. Considering what a nation we have grown to be through the violation of dietetic law, the wonder must be what we might have become if they had been respected. If the youthful East Side digestive organs are unable to cope with the food provided for them something should be done through playgrounds and a larger allowance of fresh air to strengthen them for the task. If city school children are to grow up to build subways and Hudson river tunnels their digestion must not be mollycoddled.

JOURNALISTIC OPINIONS

Colby in a New Role.

That former Senator Colby is a man of great versatility is apparent when we consider that, today, he is in the employ of the Gillespie steel pipe interests, and in such capacity is working to have the Legislature pass a law that would give the Hudson County Water Company the right to divert 10,000,000 gallons of water daily from New Jersey to Staten Island.

When the head and front of the New Idea propaganda ant king pin of the reform movement sat in the senate, he strenuously raised his voice against the proposition to divert water from New Jersey to Richmond borough.

"Conservation of New Jersey resources" was his battle cry, and it was a popular one. He opposed monopolies and cried down corporations.

He had little respect for lawyers who represented corporate interests, and despised the lobbyist who buttonhold legislators and used his influence for or against measures that were calculated to affect the interests of corporations one way or another.

Today, Mr. Colby is asking that the legislature make it possible for the Hudson County Water Company to sell New Jersey water to the people of Staten Island at its own price, it to pocket the profits.

He is no longer demanding that the natural resources of New Jersey be conserved.

His voice is no longer lifted against the monopolistic corporation, and he has found it convenient, it is said, to do a little button-holing himself, recently, in the corridors of the State House.

Let us pray!—Trenton State Gazette.

How to Get the Sentiment.

"It is a sheer waste of time," says the Paterson Press, "to introduce in our Legislature bills to legalize the sale of liquor on Sundays. The sentiment of the people of the State outside of its large cities and one or two of its seaside resorts, is overwhelmingly against such a proposition." This is probably true. The majority of the people would, it is generally believed, oppose the legalizing of Sunday selling; yet if this be their sentiment why does this majority tolerate the practise of illegal Sunday selling?

Laws cannot be enforced unless public sentiment is behind them. This is a statement now usual everywhere, officially and unofficially, and there seem to be two conflicting majority sentiments, (1) that which opposes legalizing the Sunday traffic, and (2) that which objects to legally interfering with the Sunday traffic. Which is really the true public sentiment?

There is one way, and only one way, of definitely answering this question, and that is by a direct, simple referendum. If the question whether Sunday selling should be legalized were put to the people, at a special election, solely on its own merits, without being mingled or associated with any other question, issue or policy whatever, public sentiment would be made known. Every other method is guesswork.

Only once in the modern history of this State has the referendum policy been adopted with reference to excise matters. This was in 1888. It applied to counties and not to the State as a whole, but it is a significant fact that counties which had a full, fair chance to vote on it went "dry," and others were in a fair way to do the same when the referendum act was repealed. Since then the people have had no direct opportunity to vote on this question.

Presumably, a great many people, legislators and politicians in particular, don't want this question of public sentiment settled.

There is a very good reason why the professional politicians do not want a direct mandate from the people on these questions. It would take from them one of their best methods of bargaining for votes. It would weaken that species of corruption on which machine politics thrives. The candidate could not arrange with the so-called "saloon vote" to support him on his promise that he would see to it that the law would be "liberally" enforced—that is, used to play politics with, enforced against those "who did not vote for me," while "those who voted for me" would be "taken care of."

If upon a referendum the people should overwhelmingly vote against all Sunday traffic, the authorities everywhere would simply have to enforce the laws. There'd be no excuse for saying that the people did not want the laws enforced. The moral effect would be absolutely irresistible. And if, on the other hand, a majority voted for more liberal laws, those now on the statute books that cannot be enforced would be repealed. Better fewer laws, well enforced, than a mass that are ridiculed ignored, defied, violated continuously and held in contempt. There is, however, no probability that the people of the State as a whole will be given the opportunity to express their sentiments on this issue.—Newark News.

THE GIRL WHO WOULD BE LIKED.

There is much needless moaning over unpopularity and selfish favoritism among some girls. They blame others for their lack of success socially when the fault lies with themselves.

Do you wonder why you are not liked as much as other girls in your set? Look in—not out—for the reason.

Instead of saying, "Of Course Mary gets invited—she has money!" or questioning the good taste of a hostess in visiting Isabella, who is plain and poor, when she might have had you, ask yourself, "Why am I not invited?"

Sometimes, if you are honest in your questioning, the answer will be, "There is no reason why I should be invited: not everyone can be asked every time, and Mrs. Blank has been kinder to me than courtesy demanded."

There is no surer way to have a discontented life than to expect to ring in on every invitation that is given. Learn to recognize social obligations and you will cease to hunt slights.

More difficult is it to trace lack of success to your own failings. The girl who is sweet when it pleases her and rudely indifferent at other times; the girl who takes all and gives nothing, who accepts favors as her due yet neglects the common courtesy of a call; the girl who abuses hospitality by conspicuous flirtation in corners or by rudeness to other guests; the girl who can only be pleasant to men or to those who she thinks can advance her interests, may each and all be honestly surprised that invitations grow fewer.

To answer truly, no matter how that answer cuts deep, is not given to most of us. It is a trick worth cultivating, especially when the question is the important one, "Why am I not liked?"

Almost invariably the secret of being liked is to be likable. The girl who is honestly determined to give pleasure—not to be pleased, which is something quite different—rarely falls short of success.

If we want to be liked, few of us are so unfortunate that we fail, provided our desire to win favor is not mere selfish policy or mean currying of good will. Often the girl who tries hardest to be liked because of the benefits in store for popularity falls short, where her self-seeking friend, who is likable because she herself likes others, not what those others may give, wins out.

Don't get soured and pessimistic if you think your charms are unappreciated. Make it your business to be so agreeable that liking cannot fail to come your way.

LITTLE MONEY IN OSTRICHES

Australian Raisers of Beautifully Feathered Birds Get Small Returns for Their Work.

The first attempt to raise ostriches in Australia was made by a Mr. Malcom, who in 1880 brought 100 young birds from South Africa to South Australia. In the following year the parliament of South Australia enacted a law which granted to the first person who should exhibit 250 ostriches more than one year old about 2,400 acres of land suitable for ostrich farming. The conditions were satisfied by the South Australian Ostrich Company, which was founded in 1886 with a capital of $75,000. The company received land near Port Augusta on Spencer bay, but in spite of this assistance the company has never paid a dividend, although it now possesses 1,100 ostriches, all of which were imported from South Africa. There is a still larger ostrich farm on the shore of Lake Albert, and smaller farms are scattered through the colony.

In New South Wales ostrich farming was first attempted in 1897, by Barracluff, who imported six pairs of ostriches from northern Africa, and now possesses 84 birds.

Queensland and Victoria possess only small ostrich farms, which have not produced very encouraging results. In all there are now about 2,000 ostriches in Australia. The inferior feathers are used at home and the more valuable ones are exported, chiefly to Germany.—Scientific American.

FOR THE CONTRIBUTION BOX

A Convenient Arrangement for Giving Early and Often in Use in a Greek Church.

A custom among attendants of the Greek church at Trebizond explains the use of certain tokens which have been presented to the American Numismatic society.

According to the Journal of the society sometimes several collections are made during the service in these churches. Even should there be but one, the visitor may desire to make a special contribution at the shrine or picture of some of the saints whose intercession he desires to secure, or he may wish to purchase a candle for use in some of the ceremonials in public or private devotions.

On entering the church, therefore, he exchanges a certain sum of money with the deacon at the gate for an equivalent amount of these tokens. He is thus able to respond to the calls for the various offerings during the service or to deposit his gift at the shrine of the saint by using one or more of these tokens as he may be disposed, yet without any heavy demand on his purse. These church tokens are sometimes of brass and sometimes of paper.

The Transfer Was Old.

With a transfer ticket punched to expire at 12 o'clock, an elderly woman got on a car.

"I can't take this, lady," said the conductor. "You see, it's marked for 12, but now it's ten minutes of two. The ticket's been dead for nearly two hours."

"Well," was the woman's reply, "I took the first car I could get after leaving the bank. I had to wait to have my interest figured up."

"If it took 'em two hours to figure the interest on my money I wouldn't argue about a transfer. I'd pay my fare or ride in an auto," said the conductor.

The woman made no retort, but fished a nickel out of her handbag and gave it to the conductor.—New York Press.

Deadheads Who Must Be Coaxed.

Concert givers in Germany find it more and more difficult to get an audience. Free tickets by no means insures one. A Berlin journal tells how audiences at recitals (Berlin often has more than 50 of them in one week) are apt to be made up.

Miss N——, who plays or sings, sends out about 200 tickets, some of them to prominent persons. One of these is the wife of Prof. X——. She kindly accepts the tickets, but has no intention of attending the concert, so she gives them to her dressmaker, who in turn bestows them on her assistants, who possibly may go to the concert. In one case it was found that of 200 free tickets only 47 were used.—Musical America.

Filipino Dolls' Houses.

Filipino youngsters are by no means badly provided for as regards amusement, seeing that they enjoy the luxury of a life-sized doll's house—though the latter, it must be remarked, is but slightly different in proportions and appearance from the residences of the adult population of the Philippines. The climate in these parts is so equable that the inability of most of the parents to provide their offspring with other than very scanty clothing is of no consequence; indeed, clothing for children under the age of ten years is regarded as redundant and an unnecessary expense.—Wide World Magazine.

Almost Libelous.

A speaker at a recent press banquet, recalled a quarrel between two editors, says the St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

"But Smith," he said, "got the best of Brown unquestionably when Brown, who owned a small farm, bought a mule.

"Smith printed a paragraph about this purchase and headed it, 'Extraordinary Case of Self-Possession.'"

"Trifles Necessary to Attain Perfection."

Perfection is no Trifle

The many little "Trifles" neccessary in building a Perfect Piano, and which are passed over or neglected in most factories, are carefully considered by the makers of the

Hallet & Davis

From the beginning, from the time the first Hallet & Davis piano was made (1835), up to the present time, its makers (this is the third generation) have taken a pride in their handiwork, the pride of honest workmen; a careful attention to the "trifles," the little things not seen by the purchaser; painstaking examination of every bit of material; minute inspection of every working part.

"Good enough" never has, never will pass muster in the Hallet & Davis Shop. It may be good enough to pass unnoticed, may never be seen or detected, but "good enough" means slighted work, and slighted work has no place in our factory.

"Perfection," or the nearest approach within human possibility, is, and ever has been the goal we strive to attain. Not to make a piano that is "good enough" but to endeavor with all our experience, skill and knowledge of the piano maker's art, honesty of purpose, and all backed by unlimited capital, to make a perfect instrument.

In use today are many Hallet & Davis pianos, 30, 40 and even 50 years old, still giving forth sweet sounds, still responding to the exacting requirements of the musician, living testimonials of the honest workmanship of their makers. No piano can give such service unless there has been strict attention paid to the "trifles" that are passed over by most factories.

A Hallet & Davis in the home is evidence of good judgment and refined taste. It also means, "perfect piano satisfaction."

CONSOLATION.

The morning light is dim and late,
My spirits droop and lag;
I wish the day would kindly wait,
And labor wouldn't nag.
The situation, though, is not Without its comfort here;
My buckwheat cakes are smoking hot,
The maple syrup's clear.

Last night with friends I tarried long,
Though knowing I should rest;
A tenor captured with a song
The girl I liked the best.
This morning, looking in the glass,
I mourn my hapless lot;
But never mind. I let it pass—
The buckwheat cakes are hot.

The day looms up before me dark,
A day with cares beset;
I feel I'm quite an easy mark—
I wish I could forget.
With joy I see the buckwheat cakes
Send out their fragrant steam;
The maple syrup hunger wakes—
The breakfast it a dream

The day's no longer dark and cold,
My pulses steady beat;
My spirit's arragant and bold
And life is passing sweet.
The girl may have her tenor chap,
And happy be her lot;
For her I do not care a rap—
While buckwheat cakes are hot.

Labor Saver.

"Now they have perfected a mechanical contrivance for setting up tenpins."

"Well, well! What next?"

"Oh, I suppose a device for knocking them down."

A MASTER-PIECE

OF MASTER PIANO BUILDERS.

Mathushek & Son Pianos are not turned out in lots of a dozen or more.

Each Mathushek & Son Piano is a separate, distinct and individual creation.

On it has been concentrated the skill and experience gathered in more than a half century of piano-building. The time taken, the skill engaged, the quality of materials employed in the production of a Mathushek & Son, make each instrument an artistic masterpiece—a piano that will be cherished and appreciated for a lifetime. It is the only really artistic piano selling at a moderate price.

KEPT MULES ON THE MOVE

Hitched to Speeding Automobile Team for a While Had the Time of Their Lives.

Here is a story from Manhattan with vaudeville features, not to mention the hard luck:

A farmer living on Deep creek, several miles east of Manhattan, had a thrilling experience with an automobile and a team of mules. The farmer recently had purchased a new machine, and on one of his first trips tried to cross the creek at a ford. He put the clutch at high speed and waded in. For some reason the engine went dead in midstream. Cranking failed to revive it. After a number of useless efforts, the farmer secured a team of mules, hitched them to the stubborn auto and dragged the machine across the creek and up the bank. The driver had left the clutch on at high speed, and from some unaccountable cause as soon as the machine was on level road the engine suddenly revived, the machine started forward with a bound and struck the mules squarely in their kicking apparatus. There was something doing immediately thereafter. The mules started off full tilt with the machine chugging after them; the driver being occupied with the mules, could not give the machine much attention. The machine was soon going at a great speed, striking the mules on the heels again and again. Both team and machine became unmanageable; but the mules suddenly jumped to one side, bringing the machine sharply around and causing it to strike a bank of earth, thus bringing the strange runaway to an abrupt end.—Kansas City Journal.

WANTED HER TO KNOW VALUE

Shipper Didn't by Any Means Object to Having the Girl Find Out What His Gift Cost.

A young man brought a package into the main office of an express company on lower Broadway the other day and asked the receiving clerk to send it to a town up state.

The clerk weighed the package and then asked the young man if he desired to declare the value of it. The young man said he would and put the figure at $75. Then the clerk marked in a corner of the package in very small letters "V75."

The young man asked the meaning of "V75."

"That is the abbreviation of value $75," said the clerk.

"Why do you print it in such small letters in an out-of-the-way place?"

"Because most folks do not care to have the value marked in letters that will attract attention," replied the clerk.

"Well, I tell you, if this was just an ordinary package, I would not care," said the young man, "but the truth is that this is a present I am sending to my intended up state, so if it is agreeable, will you kindly mark that 'V75' in big letters up near her name, where she'll be sure to see it?"—New York Sun.

Post Offices in Competition.

When the post office was first opened at Kai Feng, China, the clerks had a fight with some men who bought stamps and refused to go away until the stamps were licked and stuck on their envelopes for them. The foreign post offices in Palestine are usually convulsed by a spirit of keen competition. If a parcel exceeding the regulation weight or size is taken to an office and refused the traveler in the majority of cases has only to threaten to take it to a rival office and it is straightway received without a murmur. So keen is the rivalry between some of these offices that residents in Palestine possess a free post within certain districts. Between Jaffa and the surrounding colonies, and also within Jerusalem, the German and Austrian offices make no charge for the delivery of local letters.

Cast Bronze Coronets.

A curious archaeological discovery has been made in the Russian province of Poltava. It consists of two antique coronets of cast bronze. One is 5½ inches in diameter, about one inch high, and has 20 denticulations, and the other five inches in diameter, 1¾ inches in height, and has 17 denticulations. Both are made in two pieces, joined together by a hinge. The time rust with which they are covered and their general character leave no room for doubt as to their authenticity. The articles were found in the possession of a Russian peasant, but where and how they were originally unearthed is unfortunately not known.

Small Talk as an Art.

The art of small talk is one that many women try to cultivate, and there are instances of clever talkers who find employment as exponents of the art of light conversation. Their method is to read the newspapers daily, to keep in touch with the latest books, to know something special about all the new plays, and to invent small scraps of information just bordering on the scandalous. While the society woman is undergoing treatment at the hands of the hairdresser her expert conversationalist sits by her side and chats, as it were casually, on the subjects of the moment, so that her bon mots may be remembered for repetition.

Unnecessary.

Hewitt—You are married, aren't you?

Jewett—That's a nice question to ask the father of three children.

Not Believing Because Not Understanding

By LOUISE HEYWOOD
In Christian Work and Evangelist

There are those who do not believe the Bible because they do not understand it—who do not believe in God because he is veiled in mystery.

What do we understand? The smallest leaf that glistens in the sunshine and quivers in the breeze is incomprehensible to us. Were we to try millions of years, we could not make one. The blade of grass grows silently from the tiny seed, we know not how. Slowly, slowly the acorn sends forth a tree which defies wind and storm in its strength and majesty, and Ruskin looks at it with wonder to say, "What a thought it was when God thought of a tree!"

Look at the flowers, so varied in their beauty. Whence do they derive their color and fragrance? How is it possible that so much loveliness can be centered in a lily or a rose? How is it done? We are dumb before these thoughts of God expressed in the grass, flowers, trees, and in all living, growing things. And there are mightier things than these. Who understands the law by which we and all other objects on the face of the earth are kept from being thrown off into space in its rapid whirl on its own axis, as it majestically travels on its ceaseless journey round the sun? Look into the heavens on a clear winter night, and comprehend, if you can, what you behold. We do not even understand ourselves. Who can explain the union of the soul and body during life, and the separation of the same at death? Who can tell when and how the soul-life comes to us? And nothing can be more wonderful and mysterious than the reproduction of species throughout the animal and vegetable kingdom.

Thus we may go on from one thing to another until we are forced to cry out, "Alas, we know not anything!" and to feel that we are tossed upon an ocean of uncertainty and unrest without a rudder to direct our course, unless we look upon everything as the work of an infinite God of Love and Omniscience, who holds the universe in the hollow of his hand; who directs and disposes all things for our highest good; who has created all the beauty and loviness of this world for our happiness, and without whose notice not even a sparrow falls to the ground. Then, indeed, we can rest in him and be satisfied, and not expect to understand all his wonderful works, not to fully comprehend him or his word.

He has revealed himself to us in his word, in nature, and in the person of his Son so fully that we may love and honor him, and delight to do his will, and be at peace with him. And we may enjoy to the utmost all the beauty and endless mystery of nature in her richness and profusion, recognizing in all the handiwork of him in whose regard we are sinful, ignorant creatures, and yet his noblest work. Perfect manhood and perfect womanhood are glorious. "In the image of God created he them." And bearing about with us something divine, we may be kings and queens upon the earth; but only as we are the obedient subjects of our heavenly King, toward whom disloyalty is the highest treason, justly punishable by banishment from his presence forever.

What honor he bestows upon us in calling us his children, and in making us joint heirs with Christ in the heavenly inheritance; in holding us in his great arms of love to soothe our cares and sorrows, that we may be able to bear that which is inevitable on account of our own sinful natures and the sins of those with whom we come in contact. Were we as pure as nature, did we carry out the true purpose of life as does a blade of grass, what a heaven this earth would be! But the curse of sin is upon us all, and the only way to struggle out of its chains, the only way to attain to pure womanhood and to pure manhood, is by the help of Jesus Christ.

He who gives to the flowers their perfume and color, to the skies its blue, to the clouds their splendor, to the forest trees their varied shades of green and their brilliant autumnal hues, to the elements their power for good and ill, to the earthsuake its terror, to the lightning its tongue of flame and its voice of thunder, can do infinitely greater things than these in cleansing our hearts in the blood of Jesus, and restoring us to his favor, and to a piece of his kingdom. And can we refuse to believe and accept this most wonderful of all mysteries because we cannot understand it? Must we wait for a clear insight into the things of God before we believe in them? Can we make ourselves as gods to pry into that which is hidden from us? Is it not absurd to expect to know what God only knows? The finite cannot fathom the infinite, and who can find out God?

God is love. This one attribute of love surrounds us, fills us, upholds us, encircles us so that nothing can touch us that does not come through this circle of his love. Nothing can annoy or vex us that he does not permit.

True Religious Ideals.

There is nothing religious about a church service unless it is the soul's aspiration after the highest, a reaching after fullness of life, a search for God and goodness, unless here men and women come together to lift up their hearts, to look upon the visions that inspire and to yield themselves to compulsion for better things.

THE BANISTERS.

What They Tell the Dwellers in New York's Tenements.

Many a grewsome bit of wisdom is gleaned by settlement workers. The other day a woman of philanthropic tendencies trudged miles looking for rooms for an unfortunate family that had to move. After she had made a selection that would fit their scant means the mother of the family went around to see the rooms before moving in.

"Oh," exclaimed that wise tenement dweller, "we'd be worse off here than where we are! This place is too unhealthy."

"How do you make that out?" asked the settlement worker. "It strikes me as being better than most houses of its class."

The woman pointed to the banisters, which ran up through the five flights of stairs to the roof in a ragged, broken line. "Coffins," she said grimly. "That's what that means. Coffins is terrible hard on banisters. There are too many deaths here to suit me."

And when the settlement worker learned that many tenement dwellers really do judge of the healthfulness of a house by the condition of the banisters she concluded that that place wouldn't suit her either.—New York Press.

WOMAN.

A Mystery That Keeps Man Eternally on the Guess.

"When woman has ceased to be a mystery she will cease to be of special interest to man," said one among the loveliest of her sex, and she is able to speak as one having authority, for she is comely and has been alive long enough to know whereof she speaks.

And, come to think of it, she is about right—she is right.

It isn't because woman makes of herself a mystery. She's a mystery in spite of herself. And nature alone, being man's superior on earth, seems to be playing woman so as to keep man ever guessing, for as soon as he has succeeded in figuring out one of her equations she hands him another, and so on, and on.

At first the young man thinks he knows all about all women, but by the time his locks begin to whiten he is ready to concede that he doesn't even know all about one. Or do you know all about her?

To the laddie they are all kissable, or nearly all, but as time passes the kissable list shortens and shortens until at last—well, you may answer for yourself, but no doubt it is quite short unless you belong to the promiscuous brotherhood.—Pittsburg Gazette-Times.

Lure of the Heroic.

Why is baseball the game of the summer instead of croquet, and football the game of the autumn instead of tiddledewinks? It is the element of conflict, of struggle, that gives to the diamond and the gridiron their empire over the imagination. The whole man goes into baseball, whereas croquet cannot contain the entire personality of any except a very weak dilution of masculinity. The normal man likes a game that tries the player's thew and sinew, eye and brain, heart and courage.

The fact of the matter is that nothing is more attractive to men than difficulty, hardship, danger. The call of the heroic is irresistible. A case in point is that of a man who left one position for another a few months ago. He turned his back on friends and a sure success to grapple with difficulties of a most unusual kind. His employers offered him everything they could give him to induce him to remain. But one thing they could not duplicate—the opportunity for a struggle such as tries men's souls. That was more to him than the material reward.—St. Louis Republic.

Tip to the Wayfarer.

"Well," demanded the stern faced woman as she leaned over the red handled broom, "what do you want?"

"Lady," said the wayfarer with the long beard and matted chin, "I'm an actor by profession and in hard luck."

"Well, what have I to do with that?"

"Why—er—I was thinking if you could spare me a quarter to get a shave and a hair cut I could get a job in the role of Virginius."

She eyed him disdainfully.

"Oh, that's a poor excuse," she said, with a curl of her thin lip. "Go up to the town without a shave and a hair cut and get a job in the role of Rip Van Winkle."

And before he could say another word she started to unchain the dog.—Chicago News.

The Moon.

The moon's mean distance from the earth is 237,000 miles. When it is at the perigee—nearest point—it is 225,000 miles and when at the apogee—farthest point—more than 251,000 miles from the earth. The actual diameter is estimated at 2,153 miles, or a little less than three-elevenths of the earth's diameter. The moon's volume is therefore about one forty-ninth that of the earth, and its mass is one eighty-eighth of the earth; consequently the force of gravity is so much less at its surface than it is at the earth's surface that a body weighing 1,000 pounds here would weigh on the moon only 163 pounds.

One Who Knew.

"Does any one in the class," asked the teacher, "know the origin of the corn laws?"

"Yes, ma'am," answered the shaggy haired pupil. "They were written by John Bunion."—Chicago Tribune.

There is no killing the suspicion that deceit has once begotten.—Eliot.

Women Suffrage Is Moral Issue

By Rev. Dr. John Roach Straton
Pastor of Seventh Baptist Church Baltimore, Md.

I am in favor of woman suffrage. As a churchman I am strongly in favor of it from a moral standpoint. The moral side affects every woman in this country. There are 7,000,000 working women in this country. About 1,000,000 of them are widows. As a class they are much underpaid, for the same kind of work done by men higher wages are paid. Take the school teachers of the country: About 75 per cent. of them are women. In that profession they are far superior to men and yet they are not paid as high salaries as men teachers. In the factories, stores and other places where women are employed their pay, as a rule, is small. The question arises as to what can be done for the protection of these women. It is a question of justice, as well as a moral one. They should do as the men have done, form themselves into unions and demand their rights. As individuals the laborers of this country did little, but as soon as they united and became politically strong, they secured, through their unison of political strength, the eight-hour day, better wages and better sanitary conditions in the shops where they are employed. If they had not a political value they would not have secured those rights. Women may expostulate as long as they please, but so long as they are politically bound they can do but little.

I am not in favor of unrestricted female suffrage. I believe the vicious and ignorant should be excluded from the right of the ballot. The American women to-day represent the highest standards of virtue and intelligence of any country of the world, and I believe they would vote as intelligently as men.

Women are acquiring more property year after year. This is especially true in New York city, where the women pay more taxes than the men, and yet they have no voice in the way their property should be handled. We have got to face the fact, whether we want to or not, that we are living in an advanced age—an age in which conditions change rapidly. Every moment in the past has had its elementary period, in which the object sought has been compelled to fight its way to a successful issue. I firmly believe the present movement for woman suffrage will be crowned with success within a decade.

It would enhance her value as a woman and a mother if she took a part in making the laws affecting her home and children. A mother sees her child only about one-fourth of the time. The rest of the time the child is in school, on the street or at the playground, and all the time it is being affected by the laws controlling schools, streets and playgrounds.

The suffragette movement has gone to extremes. It is like many other movements which have had to fight their way before they became a success. In time the disagreeable features will be eliminated and the real merits of the question will then stand out. Next to the altar of God the ballot ought to be the holiest thing on the soil of a free republic, and if woman's gracious womanhood and refinement is thrown about it, it will be so.

Women will vote independent. That has already been demonstrated by the fact that it was the women's vote which re-elected Judge Ben Lindsey, in Denver, last fall. Judge Lindsey was the nominee on a reform ticket. A clean man through and through. Against him for re-election was the corporation forces and the saloon. They combined to defeat him, but the women voted independently, and it was due to their vote that he was re-elected. Woman suffrage is bound to come, and on that point I fully agree with Justice Brewer. Our economic conditions are changing. Divine Providence is changing society and bringing it to a still higher level.

A Prayer.

Gracious God, we thank thee that in thy grace we can find life and light. Kindle our souls afresh into high and holy desire, that all our common life may be possessed by a heavenly purpose. Quicken our vision that we see the sublime possibilities which are ours through Christ. Help us to keep ever in view thy gracious promises which are light and strength and peace when thy hand we cannot see and shadows of sorrow cloud our earthly way. Increase our hope and make perfect our trust in thy constraining and all sufficient love, and draw us to a closer walk and a deeper communion with thyself. Fill our hearts with the kindness of Christ and lead us to walk gladly in lowly paths of service and simple duty-doing till we reach the better land where eternal joys await.

Conscience in Business.

There is a new conscience in commercial affairs. The banking house and the factory become stern teachers of morals, not simply because the law is rigorous, but because we are coming to realize that there can be no success that is permanent, nor profit that is worth while, no fullness of living except as we accept and are dominated by Spiritual ideals, except as we set character and conscience before other considerations.

Don't put yourself in the power of the man no dog ever wants to follow.

NOT TO IMITATE UNIFORM

Fraternal Societies Oppose Bill of Interest to Federal Government.

INTERESTS PYTHIAN KNIGHTS.

Proposed Law Would Stop Uniformed Rank, K. of P., From Wearing Insignia Similar to U. S. Troops.

Members of uniformed fraternal organizations in this city are expected to join a country-wide movement among uniform societies to defeat a United States Senate bill which if passed, will make it a misdemeanor for any person, not in the army, militia or navy, to wear on his uniform any device, strap, knot or insignia used on the uniforms of the regular United States army, National Guard or navy.

Uniformed Rank, Knights of Pythias, with a total drilled army of 40,000 members, is one of the strongest opponents of the proposed measure. Crescent Company will take action on the matter next week.

The circular which has been distributed by Major-General Arthur J. Stabbart, of the Uniformed Rank, to every division in the country, quotes the bill as follows:

"Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress, That any person who shall wear any uniform or any device, strap, knot or insignia of any design or character user as a designation of grade, rank, or office such as are, by law or general regulation, duly promulgated prescribed for use of the Regular Army of the United States, or similar thereto, except members of the army, navy and marine corps of the United States, and the organized militia and naval militia of any State or territory or the District of Columbia, officers and members of independent military organizations, members of associations composed of soldiers or sailors honorably discharged from the service of the United States members of the Order of Sons of Veterans and Confederate Veterans, and such persons as may be authorized by the laws of any State or Territory or District of Columbia so to do, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and, on conviction thereof, may be fined not more than $50, or imprisoned not more than thirty days, or both."

The bill was introduced by Senator Dick, of Ohio.

Crescent Company, of this city would be affected by such a law. The members of Uniformed Rank, K. of P., have shoulder straps very similar to those worn in the United States army. On each of the straps, knots and other designations of rank, however, is a calla lily, used expressly for the purpose of distinguishing them from regular army suits.

The circular letter distributed to all of the Uniformed Rank companies, K. of P., says that "40,000 men are training or being trained under existing drill regulations of the regular army at no cost to the Government or the various States, not altogether for their own gratification, but so that they may the better serve their country in time of need; that the cardinal principle of the organization is loyalty to the flag and country, and that over 5,000 members gave their services, and many their lives, in the Spanish-American War."

They claim that in their biennial encampments they receive test rides, camp life, field drilling and practice in warfare that makes them always ready to be called into service by the Government when their services are needed.

FURLONG'S LOCAL CALL INVESTIGATED BY SLEUTHS.

Investigators into the conduct of Magistrate Furlong, of Brooklyn, who is on trial in that borough for alleged bribe taking, were in this city yesterday looking up particulars of a visit made here last April by the accused judge. The register of a local hotel was taken to New York for the purpose of being used as evidence in the trial.

Detective Lieutenant Van Wagner, of the New York detective bureau, took the register with him, through the courtesy of the proprietor of the hostelry.

Mr. Kassler to Leave.

Louis Kassler, for the past three years in the employ of M. & A. Tepper severs his connection with that firm tonight and will go into business for himself at 164th street and Broadway, New York. Mr. Kassler will open an up-to-date haberdashery. His many friends in this city will wish him success in his new enterprise before he leaves town.

Deputy Charles McCarthy and staff, of the Independent Order of Foresters, visited Metuchen last night.

ACCEPTS THE CALL TO LOCAL CHURCH

Rev. Gabriel R. Maguire, of Cleveland, Ohio, has answered the call extended to him by the Park Avenue Baptist church, and an announcement will be made at the church service tomorrow.

The committee does not wish to make known today the contents of the message, but it has been learned that it is favorable, and it is believed that Mr. Maguire has accepted.

Mr. Maguire began his preparation for the ministry abroad and obtained his theological training at Knox College, Toronto, Can. He was a classmate of Rev. Dr. William Patterson, who has been pastor of the Bethany Presbyterian church, of Philadelphia. For six years Mr. Maguire was a missionary in the Congo. While there he got the jungle fever, which necessitated his return to this country. He then accepted a call to the Calvary Baptist church in Cleveland, O., where he has been for twelve years. When he entered upon his duties there the membership was small, but it has since increased to between 800 and 900. He preaches to a congregation of more than a thousand people every Sunday.

SURPRISE TO MR. AND MRS. CHARLES B. STEPHENS.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Stephens, of 20 Grandview avenue were surprised by about twenty of their friends last night, who walked up and took charge of the house for an evening's enjoyment. The event was one to make another happy chapter in the lives of the couple and fully carried out that purpose. The Ladies' Aid Society of Warren chapel, were the instigators of the fun and under their careful preparations a decidedly merry evening was spent.

Games, singing and instrumental music made up the program of entertainment which was followed by a little supper. Those present were: Rev. J. O. McKelvey, Mrs. Will Demarest, Mrs. George Demarest, Miss Louise Demarest, Mr. and Mrs. Gibson Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wheeler, Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Green, Al. Everett, Mrs. Benjamin Moore, Mrs. William Bacon, Mr. and Mrs. George Hoagland, Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Stephens, Miss S. Cole and Mr. and Mrs. J. V. Coles.

Death of Miss Emmons.

Miss Anna M., daughter of Mrs. Lydia A. and the late John Emmons, of 29 Stone street, died early today. The funeral service will be held Monday morning at 10:30 o'clock and the interment will be made at New Germantown. Miss Emmons was the oldest of a family of five children and had been ill for several months. She is survived by her mother, two sisters, Mrs. Albert Thorn and Mrs. John Clark, and three brothers, William, Fred and James.

MEAT PACKERS INDICTED

Armour, Morris, Swift and Other Houses Accused of Conspiracy.

ALL ARE IN THE MEAT TRUST.

These Are the Concerns Which Are Accused of Robbing the Public and Must Answer in Court.

Six corporations and twenty-one individuals, forming the so-called Meat Trust, were indicted yesterday in Jersey City by the Grand Jury of Hudson county. They are accused of conspiracy and of creating a monopoly, enhancing the price of meat and poultry, and deliberately carrying a shortage in the supply of articles necessary for the food of the people.

In particular the connection of the National Packing Company with Armour & Co., Swift & Co., and Morris & Co., is traced through the personnel of their directorates, and it is alleged that cold-storage warehouses have been used to keep food commodities from the consumers. All of these acts, it is declared, were to the "great wrong, injury, and oppression of the public of the said city and of said county and of the State of New Jersey, to the evil example of all others in like case offending and against the peace of this State, the Government and dignity of the same."

The corporations accused are the National Packing Company, Morris & Co., Swift & Co., Armour & Co., the Hammond Packing Company, and the G. H. Hammond Company. The individuals are J. Ogden Armour, A. Watson Armour Arthur Meeker, Edward Morris, Louis F. Swift, Edward Tilden, L. A. Carton, Thomas E. Wilson, Thomas J. Conners, F. A. Fowler, Charles H. Swift, L. H. Heyman, James E. Bathgate, Jr., George H. Edwards, F. V. Cooper, D. E. Hartwell, Ira N. Morris, Henry P. Darlington, Lemuel B. Patterson, and A. A. Fuller.

The indictment was handed up without any form or ceremony yesterday afternoon by Foreman Throckmorton to Justice Blair, and the Grand Jury at once withdrew to its room to continue its investigations.

Ira N. Morris sent a lawyer all the way from Chicago last Wednesday to point out to Prosecutor Garven that he had resigned from the Directorate of Morris & Co., last year, and that, therefore, he should not be included in any proceedings taken against the packers. Mr. Garven at that time assured Mr. Morris' lawyer that he had not been indicted, but the Grand Jury, basing its action on what was done by the defendants in March 1, 1908, did not

N. P. H. S. WINS CUP

Defeats P. H. S. in Final Game of the Season — Score 34 to 27.

PROTEST AGAINST PRIVILEGES.

N. P. H. Players Claim Favortism is Shown P. H. S. for This Particular Game.

Before a large and enthusiastic crowd of spectators, the P. H. S. basketball team was defeated by the N. P. H. S. five in the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium, yesterday afternoon by a score of 34 to 27. The contest was fast and clean throughout. This game decided the championship of the interscholastic series, the cup going to N. P. H. S. This is the second year they have won the honors.

The North Plainfield team, claiming that favortism was shown in allowing the P. H. S. five to practice mornings at the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium, when they should be at school, so as to get used to the court, served notice on P. H. S. several days ago that they would withdraw from the league, but would play the game as scheduled. This they did and the borough boys won a great victory.

All through the first half and for a time in the second half, P. H. S. looked like a winner, but suddenly the borough boys braced up and surprised their opponents as well as the spectators, by their fast playing. When the whistle blew at the end of the first half, the score was 17 to 13 in favor of P. H. S.

From the start to the finish of the contest it was nip and tuck There were cheers after cheers when N. P. H. S. scored the first goal, but Plainfield soon followed with several goals and kept up the spirits of their admirers for a time. Stine distinguished himself by his fine shooting, while Dunning and C. Smith divided the honors for second place.

Morris and Lidgate played a great game for P. H. S., while Doane distinguished himself in shooting fouls. Conroy put up a classy game, also. Lidgate was the first player knocked out, but he was back in the game in a few minutes. There was lots of passing throughout the contest. Although the playing was close, North Plainfield missed a number of shots for fouls. Just before the second half was concluded, Overton made a pretty shot from centre.

At the beginning of the second half neither team scored for a while, but N. P. H. S. soon woke up, and scored rapidly. At this time Stine and Conroy distinguished themselves by making several fine shots.

During the latter part of the second half the greatest excitement prevailed. N. P. H. S. was crowding the city team very fast, running up points rapidly until the score stood 20 to 20. Then Morris made a pretty shot from centre, bringing the score up two points. North Plainfield was on the alert, too, and added two more points to their score. The playing continued in this seesaw way until Plainfield tallied 27 points, and that was the best she could do. N. P. H. S. was still game, running their score up to 34. In the last few minutes of play neither side scored and the whistle blew with the score 34 to 27. The lineup:

N. P. H. S.—Forwards, Conroy, Stine; centre, C. Smith; guards, Dunning and H. Smith.

P. H. S.—Forwards, Morris, Manley, Clark; centre, Lidgate, Morris; guards, Overton, Doane

Goals from the field—Morris, 4; Manley, 1; Lidgate, 2; Overton, 1; Clark, 1; Conroy, 2; Stine, 4; C. Smith, 3; Dunning, 3; goals from foul—Manley, 1; Lidgate 3; Doane, 4; Conroy, 4; Stine, 2; Dunning, 2. One point awarded P. H. S., and two points awarded N. P. H. S.; time of halves, 20 minutes; referee, Line; timer, Collier.

Funeral of Jonathan B. Smith.

The funeral of Jonathan B. Smith, who died on Wednesday, was held at the residence of his daughter, Mrs. G. R. Vanderhoef, 917 West Front street, yesterday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. The serives were conducted by Rev. Dr. John S. Zelie, pastor of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church. The interment was in Fairmount cemetery, Newark, this morning.

Equal Suffrage League to Meet.

The Equal Suffrage League of Plainfield and North Plainfield, will meet at the residence of Miss May Willard, 954 West Seventh street, on Monday morning at 10:30 o'clock and listen to a paper on "Education and the Ballot," by Edward J. Hamilton, D. D.

2ND REG'T AT TRENTON

Major-General Wanser Reviewing Officer of New Jersey Troop.

A DRILL THIS AFTERNOON.

Company K, of This City, Left on Special Train—The Order of the Day—Col. Dungan Absent.

The Second Regiment, N. G. N. J., which includes Company K, of this city, will assemble in the Trenton Armory tonight for the purpose of tendering a review to Major-General P. Farmer Wanser, commanding a division of the State troops. The review was arranged as a compliment to the General by Colonel Nelson Y. Dungan, commanding the regiment. Owing to the death of his son, Colonel Dungan will not be at the head of the regiment tonight. His place will be taken by Lieutenant Colonel Forman.

Company K, under the command of Captain Ketchel, will leave this city this afternoon for the capital city. The trip will be made by the Central Railroad and en route Companies I and C, of Elizabeth, Company K, of this city, and Company M, of Somerville, the other commands of Major Martin's battalion, will board the train. Many friends of the local soldiers will attend the review as spectators. A number of the officers' wives took the trip.

This afternoon there will be a regimental drill in the Trenton Armory. The men have been ordered to wear their olive drab uniforms, and will be in light marching order, which means that they will carry, aside from their rifle, the haversack and canteen. The officers will carry revolvers and field glasses.

Elaborate preparations have been made for the stay of the troops in Trenton. The field and staff of the regiment have been ordered to report to the commanding officer at 3 o'clock. The non-commissioned staff and field music will report to the adjutant at the same hour. The band will assemble at the armory at 8 o'clock.

The guard detail has already been arranged. Lieutenant Albert I. Littell, of Company K, this city, will be officer of the guard.

The companies must report at the armory not later than 3 o'clock. Arrangements have been made to feed the men in the city. The "mess" call will be sounded at 5 o'clock, and the companies will be marched under command of officers to restaurants indicated by the commissary. Little freedom will be allowed the enlisted men. The officer of the guard has been ordered to allow no enlisted man to leave the armory without a written permit signed by the company commander.

First call in the afternoon will be sounded at 3:15. Assembly will be sounded at 3:25 and adjutant's call at 3:30.

Special Music at Grace P. E. Church.

The twenty-second in the series of Sunday afternoon organ recitals will be given at Grace P. E. church tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock by S. Frederick Smith, organist and choirmaster of the church. The program will include Meyerbeer's Coronation March, a pastorale by Guilmant; Epithalame, MacMaster; and Nevin's Slumber Song. On Sunday afternoon, March 6, the choir will repeat the sacred Lenten cantata "Olivet to Calvary," which was sung so effectively on February 18.

Going South on Business.

A legal matter in Florida requiring the presence of one member of the firm of John H. VanWinkle & Son, the junior member, John H. VanWinkle, Jr., will leave on Monday for a ten days' trip to that State.

FIRE STOPS REHEARSAL; BLAZE IN TRINITY S.S.

Sparks from an exploding electric light bulb ignited the draperies and decorations and interrupted the rehearsal of the Junior Christian Endeavor Society at Trinity Reformed church yesterday afternoon about 5:30, and incidentally created considerable excitement. Chief Doane estimates the loss at $200. The firemen did splendid work and their alertness prevented a disastrous fire. The blaze was extinguished with one tank of chemicals.

When the fire started R. V. Kinney was assisting his wife and others in the decorations. He was arranging the tinsel and fancy draperies around the electric light chandlier in the primary department of the Sunday school room, when the bulb cracked, the sparks igniting the decorations with lightning like rapidity. The flames shot out in all directions the fire making quick destruction of the decorations.

Before the arrival of the firemen Mr. Kinney and George W. Cole held the flames in check. The news that Trinity church was on fire reached the grocery store of J. A. Smith & Brother on West Front street, and more assistance came. Among those who rushed to the scene were Fred E. Smith, Chief Charles Meyer, of the Scotch Plains fire department, C. Sharkey and Captain William Daly. While fighting the blaze before the arrival of the firemen Mr. Kinney and Mr. Cole sustained a number of severe burns on their hands.

While the damage is placed at the $200 mark the interior of the room is badly scorched and blackened by the smoke. The matting on the floor and a number of chairs were destroyed and the upright piano case was badly damaged. Several pictures were also burned.

The fire necessitated the postponement of the entertainment, which was scheduled for last night. The committee will announce a new date in a few days.

The sessions of the Sunday school will be held as usual tomorrow afternoon, the insurance companies allowing the cleaning up of the room.

"THE HEART OF A KING," BY HIGH SCHOOL PUPILS.

"The Heart of a King," a story by A. Russell Weekes, dramatized by Nelson Ramsey, was presented at the Plainfield High School, yesterday afternoon, and was considered one of the best sketches yet given. There were only three persons in the cast. Everitt Smith distinguished himself as a prince, while Nelson Ramsey took the part of a captive, calling forth much sympathy from the audience.

Osgood Sewall took the part of the secretary with great success. The plot centers about a prince whose people have risen up against him and as a last resort, he has a youthful captive brought in, and after obtaining the necessary information poisons him. The play ends with the capture of the castle by the insurgents and the prince being shot.

A Small Blaze.

Timely discovery of a piece of pipe covering burning in the basement of the Woodhull & Martin building probably prevented a destructive blaze at 8 o'clock last night. The discovery was made by the baker while he was passing through the cellar. The flames were confined to a pile of boxes and a quantity of debris. The damage was but $50.

Rev. Dr. Charles E. Herring, of the First Presbyterian church, will exchange pulpits tomorrow morning and night with Rev. Charles E. Dunn, pastor of the Tioga Presbyterian church, Tioga, Pa.

THE "MAN WHO THINKS"

Has Something to Say About the Fire Alarm Whistle.

MAKES A GOOD SUGGESTION.

Unnecessary to Move the Siren From Present Location—More Economical, Too.

What appears to be a gathering storm of protest against having the fire alarm whistle placed at the Spicer factory, became visible as well as audible yesterday afternoon. Residents in the neighborhood of West Third and West Fourth streets and Arlington and Madison avenues, are nearly frantic from the noise from the factory, so they say, and to have the added siren of the fire department they declare, is the last straw.

A Daily Press reporter made a trip about the above named thoroughfares yesterday and found that the rumors of strenuous objection were not entirely false. There is much noise and vibration from the Spicer plant which do not conduce to comfort and rest, so the people say, but at the time of the visit the scribe observed no unsual sounds.

Later in the day the "Man Who Thinks" stopped the reporter to ask why he (the reporter) was in so big a hurry. He got the answer and was moving away when an idea penetrated his brain and immediately took strong root.

"Say son," he blurted out, "do you know I've got the great scheme under my hat—what? Do you know the city can have that fire whistle all to the cahoots without spending any 500 simoleons a year? Well, that's what she can and this is the how of it.

"You just put down what I'm telling you, see? The P. S. C. people ain't going to move their building, are they—No? well, then, what's to hinder the city from installin' a compressed air tank with an automatic shut-off and a motor to run the outfit and leave the durned whistle where it is now?

"It's cheap compared to present plans. The only power they'd need then could be taken from the trolley wire and there you are! Speakin' for myself I think it's a grand idea and you can say for me that I don't want any pay for makin' the suggestion."

The reporter listened with a great feeling of respect for the man who thinks and records with a due appreciation the little lecture on civic economy for the benefit of the Press' readers as well as for the consideration of our Common Council.

WALTER DAMROSCH CONCERT PROGRAM.

Following is the program for the concert to be given by Walter Damrosch and the New York Symphony Orchestra at the Plainfield theatre, Wednesday night, March 2.

Part I — Overture Mignon, Thomas; Symphony No. 5, Beethoven, 1, Allegro con brio; 2, Andante con moto; 3, Allegro (scherzo); 4, Allegro-Presto; prize song Die Meistersinger, Wagner.

Part II—Scherzo op. 45, Goldmark; Symphonic Poem, "Les Preludes," Liszt; Andante Cantabile, Tschaikowsky; March Slav, Tschaikowsky.

Young People Enjoy Social.

A happy company of young people enjoyed a social evening in the Congregational church parlors last evening under the auspices of the Girls' Mission Club, of which Miss Edith Bently is president. The room was beautifully decorated, the scheme being unsual and decidedly attractive. Games and contests helped to pass a very pleasant evening. An intermission was taken for refreshments.

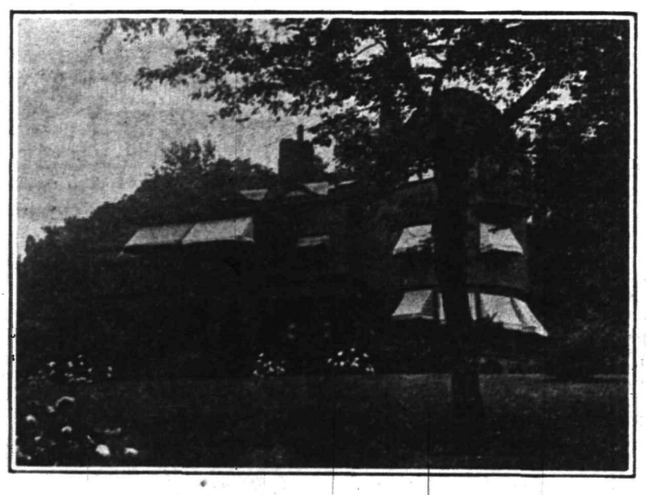
HANDSOME MOUNTAINSIDE PROPERTY PURCHASED BY ERNEST S. SUFFERN IN PICTURESQUE MONTCLAIR



Ernest S. Suffern's New Home in Montclair.

Ernest S. Suffern, formerly of the borough, has purchased a fine mountainside property in Montclair. The estate is one of the handsomest among the many beautiful residences on the slope of the Montclair mountain. It has a frontage of over three hundred feet on Highland avenue and extends back to the summit of the mountain and the town line. The house sets about two hundred feet back from the street. It commands a magnificent view of New York and the harbor. This property is the most valuable of several parcels of land recently purchased there by him. The other properties are residential sites which Mr. Suffern has purchased for investment. Within the past ten days he has removed from Elizabeth, where he has recently been living, and taken possession of his Highland avenue residence.

Mr. Suffern is well known in Plainfield. He is the son of Edward L. Suffern, of 16 Sycamore avenue, and is the only member of the family who has removed from this city. He is a partner of the accounting firm of Suffern & Son, which house has rapidly risen within the past few years to a prominent position as perhaps the leading firm of New York accountants.

The picture of Mr. Sufferns new home is reproduced by permission of the Montclair Times.

WHAT'S THE POPULATION OF CITY AND BOROUGH? HERE'S A CHANCE FOR YOU TO MAKE A GUESS

What's the population of Plainfield? What's the population of North Plainfield? These are among a thousand and one questions put up to this paper from time to time by those who seek information on what not of The Daily Press. Even the city and borough officials, now and then, appeal to us to tell them and all we can do is to hazard a guess.

Arrangements are now being perfected by the Federal Government to take a complete census of these United States, and very shortly the work will be begun in this city and in the borough.

The Daily Press will give $10.00 in gold to the man, woman or child living in Plainfield giving the nearest correct guess as to the city's population as announced in the forthcoming official census. The resident of North Plainfield who comes nearest to guessing its population five dollars will be given. It is not necessary to be a subscriber to this paper to qualify; in fact there are no conditions other than that you be a resident of the municipality of which you make a guess as to the population. All guesses must be made over the signature of the contestant; no attention will be paid to anonymous communications, following the regular policy of this paper.

The contest is now on. It will close on April 30, 1910. As a matter of convenience fill out this blank and mail or deliver it to "Census Contest," The Daily Press, Plainfield.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

The pretty residence of Joseph Ferrell, on the outskirts of North Woodbury, was burned Thursday.

A frog was heard croaking Thursday at Canton, and one resident killed a snake that measured three feet.

George C. Norris, a constable, of Mightstown, was stricken with appendicitis while attending court in Trenton.

Joseph Abbott, of 443 Main street, Paterson, an employe at the Reliance Silk Company, fell and sprained his wrist while he was going to work Thursday. He was treated at the General Hospital.

P. William Fulled, of Gloucester City, whose twelve-year-old son was run down by one of S. C. Childs' wagons three weeks ago and who died, has started suit for damages against the company.

Mrs. Bertha Madden Baldwin and Edward Sanderlain, who have been residing in West Millville, were arrested Thursday on a charge of bigamy preferred by Mrs. Sanderlain, who was Miss Charlotte Shute, of Salem.

The railroad has been making many improvements in the shipping facilities at the depot in Woodstown, and now intends to erect snow fences to prevent snow blockades at the deep cuts between Woodstown and Camden.

So nearly blind that he can scarcely distinguish daylight from darkness, James J. Carr, working at Wall Rope Works, Beverly, among machinery where one false move would probably mean his death, is one of the ablest workmen in the place.

The old iron works plant in the upper end of Gloucester City, which had been purchased by the late Henry G. Morse about three years ago for the New York was reported, was to have been converted into a steel plant, is being carried away by wood hunters. The buildings are delapidated.

Philip Prettyman, section boss at the Elmer Railroad station, was killed by a train there about dusk Wednesday night. No one was present when the accident occurred, and no one was aware of the fatality until portions of the body were found strewn along the sides of the track.

Rumor of a proposed new railroad terminal in Atlantic City were revived yesterday when officials of the Chelsea National Bank told of an offer made them by railway officials of the Pennsylvania for their property on Atlantic avenue just in front of the present train sheds.

Through the labors of the Franciscan Friars of St. Elizabeth's church, Paterson, carried on ever since he was assassinated at the altar by an anarchist over two years ago, Father Leo's name will be perpetuated by a sanatorium for the treatment of tuberculosis in Denver, Col. A site of fifteen acres has been purchased near the southern edge of that city for the purpose. Father Leo's body lies in the cemetery of the Franciscans in Paterson.

Master E. Earharde Brown, six years old, will be the chief figure at an interesting event scheduled to be held at Ocean City, Saturday, March 5. His father, E. E. Brown, is a member of the firm of H. F. Saylor & Co., boat builders, of Ocean City, and he has had the Saylor firm build him a modern seagoing yacht fifty feet long and with all the comforts one wants on a modern yacht. It is to be called Buster, and will be launched with E. E. Brown, Jr., as sponsor. Plans are being made to have the launching worthy of the beauty of the craft.

On the charge of atrocious assault and battery, Samuel Bouterri, of 86 River street, Paterson, was Thursday arrested by Constable Jordan and held by Justice of the Peace Keys for trial before the Court of Special Sessions. The complainant is John Micolle, of 102 West Twenty-seventh street, who, the latter part of January, was stabbed with a pair of shears so severely that he became a patient at the General Hospital. He was discharged as cured Thursday. Before Justice of the Peace Keys he made the complaint that he had been stabbed by Bouterri in a barber shop during an argument over a shaving cup.

U. S. Importing Shoes Now.

New York, Feb. 26.—England is beginning to send shoes to this country. Hitherto the trade has all been the other way, but the reduction of the duty from twenty-five per cent. to ten per cent. has changed the situation. Since February 1 twelve separate consignments from Leicester have come in at this port. The Leicester manufacturers use American machinery and American methods, but employ cheaper labor than is possible in this country. The first consignments are in the nature of an experiment. If successful, the Englishmen will make a determined effort to get a foothold in this country.

Miss Jennie Ord, of this city, is visiting relatives at Belle Mead.

Miss Amelia Luders, of East Millstone, has been visiting relatives in Plainfield for a few days.

UNION COUNTY RANKS SECOND IN ACTIVITY

President E. R. Collins, of the Union County Board of Agriculture, in an interview with a reporter, said that he has learned from the State Board of Agriculture, of which he is a member, that the Union county board stands second in the State in activity. The farmers of Cumberland county are first as active agriculturists. President Collins, who is a member of the State committee on the farmers' institute train, talked on the plans for the coming tours.

The State Board of Agriculture will send out two institute trains this year, one on the Central Railroad and the other on the Pennsylvania Railroad. Last year the initial experiment in this direction was made, and it proved a success. President Collins has the honor of first promoting the institute train project in the State.

In the large cities of the State each year the farmers have what is called an institute. Here the producers get together and listen to instructions from professors of the State Agricultural College on the raising of various fruits and vegetables. There are many farmers living in remote parts of the State who are unable to attend these conferences, so the State Board of Agriculture determined that the institute should be taken to them.

Last year a train was sent through the southern part of the State on the Pennsylvania Railroad, and great interest was aroused.

The train on the Pennsylvania Railroad through the southern part of the State will be run this year on March 9, 10, 11 and 12. The train on the Central Railroad will be run on March 17, 18 and 19. Mr. Collins said yesterday that the schedule for the Central Railroad trip is about complete. The train will work west of Somerville. On the main line stops will be made at Whitehouse, Annandale and other places up to Highbridge. The Highbridge branch will then be traversed, stops being made at Carys, Hoffman, Flanders and Ledgewood. On the Lake Hopatcong branch stops will be made at Dover and Rockaway. A run will be made on the German Valley branch to Chester, and on the Somerville branch, Flagtown and Flemington will be visited.

Each institute train will have three coaches and a combination baggage and cafe car. Probably six instructors from the State College will accompany the trains. In towns where stops will be made for the night lectures will be given in the town halls and under the auspices of the local Board of Agriculture. The subjects discussed will be based on the kind of farming done in the vicinity of each stop.

Notice of the coming of the train will be posted through the localities several days before the trips are made so that farmers can prepare to go to the stations where the train stops. At each stop lectures will be given at the same time in all three of the cars. Those interested in the raising of corn can receive instruction in one car; those interested in potatoes in another, and those interested in cattle in the third.

On the main line the topics discussed by the professors will be potatoes, the raising and cultivation of the peach and apple trees, small fruits, soil preparation and cultivation. On the Highbridge branch, apple-growing, sheep and cattle-raising will be the chief subjects considered. On the line from Hopatcong Junction, cattle-raising, forestry and the preparation of the soil will be discussed. At Chester, potatoes, apples, corn and stock-raising will be the subjects, while on the Flemington route common farm topics will be lectured upon.

Dr. E. B. Voorhees, president of the State Board of Agriculture; Franklin Dye, of the State Board, and President E. R. Collins, comprise the committee in charge of the trains, and will accompany them.

HERE AND THERE.

Lemuel B. Woolston, of Fairview avenue, while looking over some old papers recently, discovered an order of dance given here on Thanksgiving Eve, November 26, 1873, by Co. E., Third Regiment, N. G. N. J. It was announced as follows

"First Military Hop of Co. E, Third Regiment, N. G. N. J., at Laing's Hall, Plainfield, Thanksgiving Eve."

Among the names of those on the committees will be recalled by many of the older residents of the city. They were designated this way:

"Committee of arrangements, red and white badge, J. DeCamp, L. B. Woolston, C. Williams; reception committee, white and blue badge, R. R. Davis, William Morecraft, J. Everette; floor committee, red, white and blue badge, W. C. Smith, F. Shepherd and James F. Buckle."

Mr. Woolston in speaking of the hop said that it was a great success and that it was largely attended by the best people of the city.

Fred Smith, of Raritan, has been visiting his sister, Mrs. Joseph Weaner, of this city.

B. C. Kenyon, of West Seventh street, has returned from a business trip in the south.

"Trifles Necessary to Attain Perfection."

Perfection is no Trifle

The many little "Trifles" neccessary in building a Perfect Piano, and which are passed over or neglected in most factories, are carefully considered by the makers of the

Hallet & Davis

From the beginning, from the time the first Hallet & Davis piano was made (1835), up to the present time, its makers (this is the third generation) have taken a pride in their handiwork, the pride of honest workmen; a careful attention to the "trifles," the little things not seen by the purchaser; painstaking examination of every bit of material; minute inspection of every working part.

"Good enough" never has, never will pass muster in the Hallet & Davis Shop. It may be good enough to pass unnoticed, may never be seen or detected, but "good enough" means slighted work, and slighted work has no place in our factory.

"Perfection," or the nearest approach within human possibility, is, and ever has been the goal we strive to attain. Not to make a piano that is "good enough" but to endeavor with all our experience, skill and knowledge of the piano maker's art, honesty of purpose, and all backed by unlimited capital, to make a perfect instrument.

In use today are many Hallet & Davis pianos, 30, 40 and even 50 years old, still giving forth sweet sounds, still responding to the exacting requirements of the musician, living testimonials of the honest workmanship of their makers. No piano can give such service unless there has been strict attention paid to the "trifles" that are passed over by most factories.

A Hallet & Davis in the home is evidence of good judgment and refined taste. It also means, "perfect piano satisfaction."

N. Y. AMUSEMENTS.

At the Liberty theatre, 42d street, west of Broadway, the sensational London musical comedy, "The Arcadians," is having a great run. The company of 100 includes the London favorites.

"The Dollar Princess," the best of all musical comedies, is packing the house at the Knickerbocker, Broadway and Thirty-eighth street, with the best cast of 100 ever seen on Broadway. Seats now selling a month in advance.

Leslie's Weekly says of "Alias Jimmy Valentine:" "A play that sends 'Raffles' back to the infant class." That's no exaggeration for it is the greatest detective play that ever struck Broadway and hit it hard for the dollars that the playwright and manager are reaping. H. B. Warner, as the star, is worth the best words of the critic and he has got them too. Matinees Wednesday and Saturday at 2:15. Evenings at 8:15. Wallack's theatre, Broadway and 30th street. Tickets now selling in advance.

Mlle. Gerville-Reache will be heard for the first time this season at the Metropolitan Opera House in one of her best roles, Annita, the heroine of Massenet's thrilling one act musical war-drama, "La Navarraise." It will be given on Monday evening with Pagliacci. The Navarraise cast will be a brilliant one, including MM. Dalmores, Dufranne, Huberdeau, Nicolay and Crabbe. Pagliacci will be presented with an equally brilliant cast. In response to many requests from subscribers Orville Harrold, the young American tenor, will be heard again as Canio and Mlle. Cavalieri will be Nedda. Others in the cast will be MM. Sammareo, Crabbe and Venturini.

John Mason and a company of his own will present Sophus Michaelis' masterful Danish drama, "A Son of the People," at The New theatre Monday evening, February 28. Seven presentations will be made, and on those nights the Hackett theatre, where Mr. Mason is playing in "None So Blind," will be closed. When Mr. Michaelis, a Danish writer of note, presented his play to The New theatre some months ago, he suggested that Mr. Mason would be the ideal American actor to portray the principal masculine role. At that time it was impossible to make the necessary arrangements, but when The New theatre wished more time for the rehearsals of "Sister Beatrice," scheduled for production on Monday.

Instead of Shakespeare spelling "ruin," as was said once, the Bard's works now mean prosperity of the first order. No better illustration of this can be had than in the remarkable demand for seats for the limited season of Shakesperean dramas and classic comedies announced for the Garden theatre, New York, by that splendid acting organization, the Ben Greet Players. Boxes and blocks of seats have been subscribed for the entire ten weeks' season by a long list of men and women notables, the names of Mrs. George Gould, Andrew Carnegie, Otto H. Kahn, Jacob Schiff, George Foster Peabody, Mrs. Francis Hyde, Mrs. C. H. Dodge, Mrs. Albert Ledoux, John Berwind and Joseph Tuerbach, selected at random from the many enrolled, being conclusive evidence of the striking hold this project has upon the interest of New York's Four Hundred.

Harry B. Harris is presenting at the Savoy theatre, Sydney Rosenfield's new four-act play, "Children of Destiny," with a cast of extraordinary merit. A young Washington girl learns from her fiancee there is a cloud upon her parentage, and the engagement is broken off. The scene shifts to the Riviera. The fame of fair Rosamond, as she is known, has traveled far and wide, and men of rank and wealth are in her train. Running parallel with the life of Rosamond, one of the "children of destiny" appears Edwin Ford, who is haunting the fascinating halls of vice that abound in Monte Carlo. He has a stinging headache. He has thrown his career to the winds, and seeks in drink and dissipation forgetfulness of his early sorrows. Not knowing each other's previous history, both possessing physical charm out of the ordinary, these two people—children of destiny—meet.

UTTERED BOGUS CHECK AND IS SENT TO JAIL.

Washington, N. J., Feb. 26.—On a charge of forging the name of Charles E. Van Allen to a check for $27, which William Goebel cashed, Arthur J. Fisher was taken to Belvidere jail Thursday night by Constable Charles Carling, after a hearing before Justice of the Peace J. R. Lindaberry. The young man admitted the forgery. Van Allen lives at East Stroudsburg, Pa. Goebel is news agent of the Lackawanna Station. Goebel preferred the charge against Fisher. The check was dated July 20, 1909, and was drawn on the East Stroudsburg National Bank. The indorsement of Fisher was in the same handwriting as the writing in the body of the check and the signature, although Fisher asserted that a companion made out the check and he only forged the name. Fisher left town after cashing the check and did not return until Wednesday, when Goebel caused his arrest.

The young man has always been considered weak-minded.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

GOLF.

Professional and amateur golfers are interested in the selection of a course for the next open championship tournament of the Metropolitan Golf Association. Several courses have been mentioned; in fact, offered in an unofficial way, and there is no doubt that an earlier selection will be made than last year.

A member of the Deal Golf and Country Club said last night that that organization could do no worse than go after the metropolitan open, especially as it has already filed a written application for the national amateur championship tournament next year. Continuing, the member remarked:

"So far as I know, a majority of the United States Golf Association and Metropolitan Golf Association officials have not played at Deal in several years, and consequently have no idea of the many and varied improvements to the course. By welcoming the professionals during the coming season leading exponents of the game from both classes would be attracted, and, of course, given every opportunity for seeing with their own eyes what they have thus far only heard of in a vague sort of way. A recommendation from those who figured as contestants in the metropolitan open might help some in paving the way for the national championship a year hence."

An official of the Essex County Country Club, which has greatly improved its course of late, stated the other day that Essex would probably hold some sort of an open tournament this season. There is a bare chance of the West Orange club securing the New Jersey championship competition. Nassau and St. Andrews have also been mentioned with regard to the metropolitan. There will be little expense attached to the tournament, now that the association has voted to pay the entire prize money from its own treasury.

HAWTHORNES WANT TO PLAY JERSEY TEAMS.

The Hawthornes of Flatbush, one of Greater New York's leading semi-professional teams, have decided to travel on Saturdays this season, instead of playing on their home grounds, Hawthorne Field, as in the past. Sunday games as usual will be played on Hawthorne Field, which, by the way, is one of the best in Brooklyn.

The baseball team enjoyed a very successful season in 1909, winning more than seventy-five per cent. of the games played. Several of the nine's crack players attracted the attention of league scouts and will make their debut in professional company. Among those going away are two catchers, one being Johnny Kling, who has been signed by the Brooklyn National League team, and who is said to be considered a find by Manager Dahlen. The other catcher is Leo Fogler, brother of Joe Fogler the bicycle rider. Local fans will have an opportunity to see Leo in action, as he has been signed by the Utica New York State League team, which will do its preliminary training in Newark. He has a good arm, is a good batter, a clever bunter and is unusually fast on his feet. Other players signed are McAuliffe, a pitcher, with York, Pa., in the Tri-state League; Gillen, an infielder, with the same club, and Wood, an outfielder, with Brockton in the New England League.

Despite losing these valuable players, Manager Buek has signed new talent and is confident that his team will prove stronger than ever. He is anxious to arrange Saturday games with the leading clubs of New Jersey. If desired will give return date for a Sunday game at Hawthorne Field. H. E. Buek, Hawthorne A. C., Flatbush, N. Y., is the manager.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

The Brotherhood of the First M. E. church held a meeting in Vincent chapel, last night to plan for the season's work.

The next communion service at Hope chapel will be held Sunday evening, March 13, with reception of new members.

The regular communion service will be held at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church Sunday, March 6. There will also be reception of new members.

The offering of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church for the Anti-Saloon League work amounted to $1,053, of which $145 was in cash and the rest in pledges.

Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie, pastor, will preach at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church tomorrow morning and night. In the evening there will be a fifteen minute organ recital.

Rev. Ora J. Shoop, pastor, will preach the last of a series of sermons tomorrow night at Grace M. E. church on the topic, "The Old Testament's Strongest and Weakest Man, and the Reason."

Mr. and Mrs. Irving Waldron, of this city, have been visiting Mr. Waldron's parents at North Branch.

Mrs. A. D. Edgar, of East Front street, has been visiting relatives at Lebanon.

exclude him.

Among those about the Hudson County Court House was Lemuel B. Patterson, one of the defendants. It was said that he wished to appear before the Grand Jury. Just as soon as Prosecutor Garven heard that he was flitting about the corridors he applied to Justice Blair for the issue of a capias for his arrest. Mr. Patterson had guessed that the Court House was no place for him and slipped away just as two detectives started in search of him. He had not been found last night and had presumably hurried out of the State to New York.

The indictment is a length document, and was drafted by former Assistant Prosecutor Joseph B. Noonan, who has been retained by Mr. Garven to assist him in the prosecution, and by Judge-efect James F. Clark, of the North Hudson District Court. It is couched in the quaint verbiage which New Jersey has retained from the English law, and has been drawn up with the greatest care in the hope that the closest scrutiny of the packers' counsel will detect no flaw in it.

It enumerates the Directors of the National Packing Company in the years 1907-8-9-10, aal of whom, except P. A. Valentine and Kenneth K. McLaren, are indicted. Of them the indictment alleges that Kenneth K. McLaren, J. Ogden Armour, Thomas J. Conners, and Arthur Meeker constitute a majority of the directors of Armour & Co., and that Edward Morris, Thomas E. Wilson, and Kenneth K. McLaren constitute a majority of the directors of Morris & Co., and that Edward F. Swift, Louis F. Swift, and L. A. Carton are directors of Swift & Co.

Mystic Shriners at Newark.

Salaam Temple, Mystic Shriners, of Newark, entertained some two thousand members with their families at Krueger's auditorium in that city yesterday. Members from Asbury Park, Paterson, Spring Lake and other parts of Northern New Jersey were present. An entertainment under the management of Daniel W. Quinn assisted by Press Eldridge furnished fun for the large audience. Louis V. Aronson, potentate of the order made the address of welcome.

Dangerous Signs Removed.

Several advertising signs which had been placed over the sidewalk on the corner of West Front street and Somerset, by a clothing concern, were ordered removed by the police this morning. The signs were a menace to pedestrians passing that corner.

Plain Field Notes and Queeries

By Druid

Ever since Cain set the fashion of striking his Abel brother, cane raising has added its hurtful mischief to the quarrels of brothers-in-trade. We all know that the innocent bystander gets the worst of it if he tries to make peace when matrimonial jars are smashing. Philadelphia, as an admiring universe knows, is the one and only man-made City of Brotherly Love, the abode of saiutly Friends who quake at nothing except at the sight of true-born Philadelphians wearing the brand of Cain. But there are others than true-born, and a tribe of aliens, let us hope are just now lashing up the pacific city into the semblance of an Atlantic storm.

Be the causes and merits of the row what they may there is one supreme interest that towers above the tallest storm talk of both parties, even when standing on each others' heads, and that is the interest of the innocent bystander—the People of this country. If the Declaration of Independence is only a gas balloon, if the Constitution is merely a set of copy-book sentences, then we, the People, had better drop the familiar boast of our greatness and majesty and settle down to an understanding that our "right to life and happiness" depends on our diplomatic skill in humoring or squaring any stray gang of Canites who want to take the one and ruin the other fancied "right." But if the Constitution and the Law are living realities then those who for any grievence whatever allow themselves to kill, shoot, or strike any man, woman or child fellow-citizen, proclaim themselves by the smallest act of deliberate violence Aliens, Outlaws and Enemies of the Nation, and brutish defiers of the least as well as the greatest of us to—not merely happiness and life, but to the common freedom of our streets and cars without disturbance. In these days of laxity in putting down the murderous-minded killers of public and personal peace there seems to be a call for the People once again to form a National Vigilance Association, under the root law of majority rule, and in no kid gloved fashion re-assert our supremacy over presumptuous minorities who, in their mad rage for brute rule, count our men, women and children as of no more consequence than vermin.

President Taft enjoys the enviable distinction of being as gay and festive and light hearted a "good fellow" as he is a sober and pondery man of weight. He should have had himself born in Philadelphia, for never did mortal man so love his brother men as he. And just now it would have given him the right, higher even than that of his lofty office, to go down to that unruly town and judiciously sit upon its disturbers. That would flatten out their presumption and probably be their finish. He would do it, of course, in love, not in wrath, for that is the sin of a bony—not a bonny man. The other evening he "dropped" in on the New York Police Lieutenants at their annual dinner in the Waldorf-Astoria (no place can out-glory their fame). President Taft had previously dined at the Washington Day celebration of the Society of the Cincinnati, at which he crowned the Maker of the Republic by pronouncing him "safe and sane," for which news much thanks. He must have "dropped" as gently as a paper balloon as the hilarious Lieutenants were able to blow their whistles (which had been well wetted) with steam enough to drown the band and its "Star Spangled Banner." The President had smilingly claimed brotherhood with the whistling bobbies as "enforcers of the law and defenders of the rights of persons and property, and you are giving everybody (yes, everybody) a square deal." So he gave them a round joke and a genial all-around joker is he.

* * *

We of this favored city of Plainfield are far above the temptation to criticize our overgrown, noisy neighbour t'other side of Newark water. Our serene contentedness with our spacious groves, ever visible sky, luxurious mansions that are not palatial shams but happy homes, graceful streets, churches that never wrangle, and the Brook that rarely babbles, all these civic blessings keep us serenely indifferent to the roaring riot that shakes the very air of Gotham and rattles the brains of its long-suffering inhabitants. We envy it not, neither do we delight to taunt it. No; it is bliss enough for us to hear its own unhappy denizens do their own growling.

Mr. F. Hopkinson Smith is one of New York's most distinguished citizens, a worker, a painter, a writer, and a builder of lighthouses. He paints scenery while on his yearly European tours, and sells his pictures here, also his novels and plays. He persists in being a Southerner, however, and at the dinner of the Southern Society the other night he up and spake thus:

"All here tonight have a feeling of exile. People are kind to us here, but it is because they want our brains to lead them on to success. It is hardly twenty-five years since the Southerner was considered as lazy and quixotic; "When, however, the old type of Southern gentleman passes away who will teach the present generation manners? We live in the most insolent city on the face of the globe. That is a hard statement to make, but it is true. Hardly a street car conductor or a policeman gives one a civil answer. Thousands are courteous here, but it isn't in their blood as it is in ours."

These jovial dinners seem to spring leaks in the loving bosoms of Gotham's most petted children. Now, it does not jar us when a mere Australian editor takes a column to whisper in the ear of New Yorkers that they "are brusque and curt in manner and inclined to be uncivil," don't clean their streets well, and charge double prices for lunches in the upstart hotels. This does not fret our placid souls, because it is just so. Wait till Plainfield sweeps New York and Hoboken into its boundaries and the world will see a metropolis worthy of the name!

Between the lines of some of the expert editorials crowing over the alleged complete decease of the panic of 1907, a close reader occasionally catches a whiff as of the passing, or approaching, ghost of a panic, which may be a new one, or the old one broke loose. But of course prosperity is with us, is come to stay; we are too rich for a ragged regiment of panics ever to hope to make us poor. We know how to run the store and how to keep any gang of tramp peddlers at a safe distance. Just for the fun of making a little scare, you know, we like to let a greenhorn come in and show up his rubbishy wares. So last week we were tickled to life when he read in our papers that a German firm have won the contract to supply three great turbine engine plants to use Niagara as their power. These complete fifteen turbines furnished by the same firm, and exported to us. Other German steel concerns have won contracts for 400 coke ovens, of a capacity of 3,000 tons of steel per day, and of all places in the world, South Bethlehem, Pa., is the customer that binds itself to pay some $1,500,000 for these ovens. Some of us have been under the delusion that Germany bought this kind of stuff from South Bethlehem and Homestead.

The great watch factory at Waltham, Mass., has shut down for a month, which means a shut out for its 4,000 wage earners. And at last our dear friends the Japanese are able to supply England and the U. S. with exact imitations of our shoes, laces, etc., with our trade marks on them at prices that leave a good profit when retailed at 10 per cent. below our cost price.

Notice to Pastors.

The pastors are respectively requested to send their Sunday notice in by mail or messenger any time during the week and not to wait until Saturday and then to telephone them. As these notices are published free of charge, it is expected that the pastors bear in mind that the time of the reporters is as much occupied as is theirs, especially on Saturday mornings. Three or four of the clergy persist resorting to the telephone for this purpose and this request is intended for them.

—Miss May Morris' lecture on Pageantry and the Masque, Monday afternoon at the Hartridge auditorium, will be illustrated by steropticon. Her lecture treats of the following subjects:

Passion Plays. Description of the pageant-wagons and their order. The Coventry plays.

Popular Pageants and Royal Progresses: the King's entry into his good city of London. A contrast: The Lord Mayor's show today and the entry of Richard II. into London.

The Triumphs of Emperor Maximilian.

Coronation of Anne Boleyn. Hans Holbein. The Jousts at Westminster

The later Court Masque. Ben Johnson's Masque of Queens. Inigo Jones.

Conclusion: Petrarch's Triumphs.

Why Blatz Smiles.

Counsellor Francis J. Blatz was wearing the smile that never comes off this morning, and with reason. The stork visited his home in the early hours of the day and left a happy reminder of the second anniversary of the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. Blatz. It was a boy and weighed eight pounds. Mr. Blatz was busy shaking hands and receiving congratulations all day today.

Corporation Notice.

Notice is hereby given that the following Ordinance has been introduced before the Common Council, read the second time and ordered engrossed preparatory to its third reading, and that it is the intention of the Council to adopt the same.

J. T. MacMURRAY
City Clerk.
Plainfield, N. J., Feb. 24, 1910.

AN ORDINANCE

To amend an Ordinance entitled, "An Ordinance providing for the licensing and regulating of peddlers, hawkers, cartmen, and the owners and drivers of vehicles used for hire; and concerning street traffic regulations," approved February 18th, 1910.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. That Sec. 10 of the ordinance to which this is an amendment be and is hereby amended as follows: By striking out of subdivision (a) of said section the following words, "from any point within to any point without the aforesaid limits the further sum of twenty-five cents for one, two or three passengers, in addition to the sum above provided," and inserting in place thereof the following words: "from any point within to any point without the aforesaid limits the sum of fifty cents for one passenger, and twenty-five cents for each additional passenger."

Also that said section of said ordinance be and is hereby further amended by striking out the word "twelve" where it occurs in the proviso of subsection (a), and inserting in place thereof the word "eleven."

AMONG OUR NEIGHBORS

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

Fred Clark, who has been ill for several weeks with pneumonia at his uncle's home at Newark, is convalescent having improved so that he was able to return home yesterday.

Services tomorrow at the Baptist church will be held at the usual hours. Morning preaching, 10:45; Bible study, 4 o'clock; B. Y. P. U., 7:15 p.m.

The Baptist A. C. basketball team took a large crowd of rooters with them last night, when they played the Presbyterian team at the Y. M. C. A.

Township Clerk Edward L. Hand and Tax Collector John L. Hatfield returned last night from a two weeks' pleasure trip to Sanford, Florida.

Anthony Alberts and family have removed from Union avenue to the Meyer house on Forest avenue.

John Miller has resigned his position with the Seeley Paper Mill Co., after a service of twenty years.

Clarence Clark, of Westfield avenue, is improving from a severe attack of pneumonia.

Miss Susie Parse, of Front street, was the guest yesterday of friends in Rahway.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

A successful entertainment and dance was given last night in the new Oak Tree school-house for the benefit of the school piano fund.

Francis Miller, is suffering from an attack of bronchitis and is under the care of Dr. F. J. Hughes.

Miss Elizabeth Maguire is now able to be about the house after a long illness.

William Reilley, Jr., is confined to his home by an attack of grip.

Skating still continues on the lake although the ice is very rough.

P. J. McDonough was in New York yesterday on business.

James Gallagher visited Plainfield yesterday on business.

GREAT COUNCIL CUTS RED MEN CHIEF'S PAY

Economy was observed yesterday at Trenton at the closing session of the Great Council of Red Men of New Jersey, by reducing salaries of officials. The great sachem's salary was cut from $500 a year and traveling expenses to $200; the senior and junior sagamores' salaries of $150 a year were dropped, but they will have their traveling expenses paid by the order. The great keeper of the wampum's salary of $50 was dropped.

Great chiefs elected were formerly installed yesterday by Thomas K. Donnelley, past great Incehonee of the Great Council of Pennsylvania, assisted by Past Great Sachem John E. Poore, of Philadelphia.

At the closing session Past Great Sachem Joseph E. Nowrey, of Camden, was unanimously indorsed for great junior sagamore of the United States, and his name will go before that body, which will meet in annual session in September, at Toledo, O.

Representative chosen Thursday to attend this session were instructed to approve the movement for an increase of 5 cents per capita, in the assessment for the orphans' guardian fund.

The committee appointed to take charge of the project of installing a home for indigent Red Men and their wives and bring the matter before all tribes consists of Past Great Sachems William Newcorn, Herbert F. Stetser, Harry J. Rathbone, Daniel M. Stevens, Thomas Harris, Robert F. Lutton and Gill Hannold.

ELIZABETH TO OPEN TUBERCULAR HOME.

A pavillion which has been purchased by the members of Trinity Episcopal church, Elizabeth will be ready, at Fanny street and Newark avenue, in that city, to receive tuberculosis patients within a week. The cottage is a portable one, similar to those which have proved successful in other cities. Advices from the manufacturers are to the effect that it is ready for shipment.

The camp was purchased at an expense of $250, and it is hoped will serve as an incentive to the city to make more extensive arrangements for the care of tubercular patients. It is argued that the cottage will afford an opportunity for a close study of the pavilion system by local physicians, the health authorities and others who have been interested in the crusade.

Picking One's Company.

President William H. Taft was in Newark last night. We don't know why, but he was.—New Brunswick Home News.

For the same reason that Wm. S. McAdoo will speak at the Plainfield Board of Trade banquet though he declined to speak at a similar function in New Brunswick.

Mrs. Cora Bowser, of this city, has returned after a pleasant visit with friends in Brooklyn.

CHILDREN IN PLAYLETS FOR SAKE OF MISSIONS

"The Sleeping Beauty," and "The Lost Prince," two playlets, were given with great success by the Sunshine Mission Band, of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, yesterday afternoon and evening. The attendance in the afternoon was good and last night the chapel was thronged with people. Everything went off without a hitch and the young people in the playlets were heartily applauded throughout.

The affair was arranged by Miss Harriet Goddard and Miss Elsie Goddard, who coached the young people in their parts, and the result would do credit to older people. The participant were line perfect. The proceeds from the entertainment will amount to about $135 to be used for missions. The casts for the playlets are as follows:

"The Sleeping Beauty"—the King, Lelia Hedges; the Prince, Marion MacClymont; Peter, his Squire, Augusta Burke; Lord in Waiting, Louise Patterson; the Queen, Dorothy Lyon; the Princess, Eleanor Iredell; Fairy Malvolia, Elizabeth Brown; Fairy Benvolia, Frederica Quentin; Lady May, Elizabeth Browne; Lady Bet, Pauline Sandford; Lady Sall, Janet Lane; Lady Priscilla, Elizabeth Burke; Chief Misstress of the Ink Bottle, Elinor Bucklin.

"The Lost Prince"—Magician, Ellen Hovey; Duessa, his sister, a witch, the ursurping queen, Janet VanVliet; Clodia, the banished queen, Janet Fox; Christian, son to Clodia, Jennie VanZandt; two elves, Helen Patterson, Marjorie Bird; Flora, Eleanor Brown; Cricket, a dog; Palestrina, a bird; pages, Louise Patterson, Marion VanZandt; court ladies, Frederica Quentin and Pauline Sandford.

The entertainment was followed by the sale of home-made candy.

Bitten by a Dog.

Richard B. Lowrie, who boards at 215 East Fifth street, was bitten by a mongrel dog near the corner of Fifth and Watchung avenue last night. His wounds were treated by Dr. Mark Clawson. W. Scott Terry, when seen this morning, told Detective Sergeant Jno. Flynn that the dog was a tramp cur and had been around the neighborhood for two or three days and no one knew where it came from. It will be shot if caught.

Case Postponed.

The case of Cora Graves against Cornelius Webley, the colored youth, whom she accused of assault, was again postponed this morning until next Saturday. None of the witnesses nor the complaint and was on hand today.

Carrying It Too Far.

"He has always favored Peary, you know, but I think he carries his prejudice a little too far."

"In what way?"

"He eats nothing but un-Cooked food."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Mr. Becker's Funeral Tomorrow.

The funeral of John Becker, who died yesterday, will be held tomorrow afternoon from the residence of his son, John Becker, Jr., 56 Watchung avenue, North Plainfield at 3 o'clock.

Mrs. A. C. Penn, of West Seventh street, has recovered from an attack of grip.

H. C. Sinn of West Seventh street, is detained at home by an attack of tonsilitis.

The executive committee of the Plainfield Kennel Club at a meeting last night fixed the date for the annual bench show to be held here. The date is Saturday, June 11, following the horse show, and it will be held at the horse show grounds. It promises to be bigger and better than ever as all of last year's entries will be seen and many new ones, too.

The bench show committee comprises A. G. Hooley, J. C. Haywood, E. S. Feickert, Charles E. Faber, R. W. K. Anderson, Edmund Rushmore and Frank W. Thompson.

SEEING EUROPE.

"And did you go through Berlin while touring abroad?" asked the caller.

"Did we, dear?" said the wife to her husband.

"Yes," replied the busy man behind his paper; "don't you remember we bought some gasoline there?"

"And Paris—did you stop in Paris?" continued the caller.

"Did we, dear?" asked the wife of her better half.

"Why, of course. Don't you remember we busted a tire there and had to have a new one put on!"—Yonkers Statesman.

Made-in-Britain Joke.

"Yeas," drawled the English visitor to the club, "over in our country we never go into a Turkish bath after a meal."

"That must be a London Punch joke," laughed one of the club members. "You would hardly expect to find a meal in a Turkish bath."

"By Jove, I don't know. I have often heard of chaps who go into Turkish baths and over 'eat themselves."

Down at Bacon Ridge.

"By cricky," said the old postmaster at Bacon Ridge, in solemn tones, "things would be serious in this here town if a fire broke out during the next twenty-four hours."

"Firemen sick?" queered the soap salesman.

"Worse than that. It's wash day and every blamed one of their red shirts is hanging out to dry."

Not Curious.

"No," said the statesman, "I shouldn't care to go to the north pole even if it could be done in comfort."

"But think of what a strange place it is. Whichever way you turn you are looking south—"

"That's just it. I have had trouble enough with a solid south."

A Street Dialogue.

"There she goes, the belle of the town. She has beautiful eyes. Don't you think so?"

"I can cheerfully testify that she has one beautiful eye. I couldn't see the other on account of her flat-brimmed hat."

AT LEAST.

"I remember your wife as such a dainty and pretty little thing, and yet they tell me she has turned out a fine cook."

"Turned out a fine cook? She has turned out half a dozen of them within the last three months."

In a Devonshire Churchyard.

Charity, wife of Gideon Bligh,
Underneath this stone doth lie.
Nought was she e'er known to do
That her husband told her to.

Sorry He Spoke.

Mr. Dubbs (with newspaper)—It tells here, my dear, how a progressive New York woman makes her social calls by telephone.

Mrs. Dubbs—Progressive. Huh! She's probably like me, not a decent thing to wear.

Hard to Suit.

"Miss Uglamugge says you are the poorest photographer in town."

"You can never size up a woman. That old maid's pictures did not look a bit like her and still she was displeased with them."

Lucky.

"Have any luck on your hunting trip?"

"No, but my guide had pretty good luck."

"What'd he get?"

"Nothing. I didn't hit him once."

Strong Habit.

"That fellow made money, but he certainly is a fakir."

"Indeed, he is. Why, the habit was so strong, that's why he built his new house on a bluff."

Coming and Going.

"What, six dollars for dyeing that cape? Outrageous!"

"Well, ma'am, the increased cost of living has caused us to increase the cost of dyeing."

Realistic.

The Soubrette—Did you ever hear the new barytone sing "Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep?"

Low Comedian—Yes, twice—and it made me seasick both times.

He Wasn't to Blame.

The Bore.—"It strikes me that I have met you before somewhere?"

The Bored.—"If you have it wasn't my fault, I assure you."

AN ORDINANCE

Providing for the Licensing and Regulating of Peddlers, Hawkers, Cartmen, and the Owners and Drivers of Vehicles used for hire; and Concerning Street Traffic Regulations.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. That the Mayor of said City is hereby authorized to grant licenses under his hand and the seal of the city to so many and to such persons as he shall think proper, of good moral character, and otherwise qualified according to the provisions of this ordinance, and to incorporated companies, to carry on, wholly or in part, within the limits of the city, the business of peddler, hawker or cartman, to drive or keep for use for hire a hack, omnibus, stage, truck, motor vehicle or other vehicle for the transportation of passengers, baggage or merchandise, according to the provisions of this ordinance; and the City Clerk shall keep a detailed record of all licenses so granted.

Sec. 2. That every application for any such license shall be in writing, signed by the applicant, stating his place of residence, and the purpose for which such license is asked. Every applicant for a peddler's or hawker's license shall specify whether he proposes to conduct his business with a horse and wagon or with a handcart or on foot without wheeled vehicle. Every applicant for driver's license shall endorse on his application the names of three reputable citizens to whom reference is made as to the character of the applicant. Every applicant for a license for a motor vehicle shall set forth in his application that his motor vehicle has seating capacity for at least four passengers, and that he has equipped his said motor vehicle with a taxameter of standard make affixed to the front axle of said motor vehicle and so constructed and adjusted as to indicate automatically on the dial of said taxameter the charges for distance in accordance with the charges fixed by this ordinance. Every applicant under this ordinance for a license of any kind shall definitely agree in his said application to conform to and abide by the regulations prescribed or to be prescribed hereafter by the Board of Police of the City of Plainfield with the approval of the Mayor, to regulate traffic upon the public streets and with respect to the standing and movement of vehicles at or near the several railroad stations and other places of public assemblage or crowded vehicular traffic.

Sec. 3. That no person or corporation shall pursue, in any manner carry on, as owner or as agent for another, within the limts of said city, the business of peddler or hawker without being first licensed therefor, according to the provisions of this ordinance, under a penalty of ten dollars for each and every offense, provided that nothing herein contained shall prevent farmers and gardeners from selling the products of the farms owned or occupied by them, or milkmen from carrying on their business in said city without a license under this ordinance.

Sec. 4. That no person or corporation shall drive, keep or use for hire or wages, or cause to be driven, kept or used for hire or wages any cart, truck, hack, omnibus, stage, motor vehicle or other vehicle for the transportation of passengers, baggage or merchandise of any kind, wholly or in part within the limits of said city, without being first licensed therefor, according to the provisions of this ordinance, under penalty of ten dollars for each and every offense, (provided that none of the requirements contained in this section shall apply to owners or drivers of any livery stable vehicles, other than those vehicles kept by them for the use of passengers solicited at the railway stations or elsewhere within the city limits. One license and only one shall be required for each cart, truck, hack, omnibus, stage, motor vehicle or other vehicle, but for each driver other than the owner of such licensed cart, truck, hack, omnibus, stage, motor vehicle or other vehicle, a separate license shall be required.

Sec. 5. That each license granted under the provisions of this ordinance shall expire on the first day of March next following the granting of the same, and shall state the object for which it is given, the name of the person or corporation licensed, the number of the license, and the date of its expiration, and shall be signed by the Mayor and attested by the City Clerk and countersigned by the Chief of Police.

Sec. 6. That for licenses under this ordinance the fees to be paid shall be as follows:

For license as aforesaid:

(a) To the owner in case of a hack, omnibus or stage with one horse $5.00
(b) To the owner in case of a hack, omnibus or stage with two horses $7.50
(c) To the owner in case of an expressman with one horse and wagon $5.00
(d) To the owner in case of an expressman with two horses and wagon $7.50
(e) To the owner in case of a truckman with one horse and wagon. $5.00
(f) To the owner in case of a truckman with two horses and wagon $7.50
(g) To the owner in case of a cartman with one horse and wagon. $5.00
(h) To the owner in case of a cartman with two horses and wagon $7.50
(i) To the owner in case of a motor vehicle, as defined in Chapter 113 of the Laws of New Jersey for the year 1906..... $10.00
(j) To the driver in case of a separate driver's license additional to the owner's license..... $1.00
(k) To the owner in case of a peddler with one horse and wagon..$25.00
(l) To the owner in case of a peddler with hand-cart..... $20.00
(m) To the owner in case of a peddler on foot without wheeled vehicle $15.00

A duly licensed expressman, truckman or cartman may have one assistant for each licensed wagon. A duly licensed peddler with horse and wagon may have one assistant and only one.

In each instance the license fee shall be paid to the City Clerk prior to the issuing of the license, and shall be paid by the City Clerk to the City Treasurer for the use of the city. In addition to the fee for license herein-above specified, every person or corporation licensed shall prior to receiving his or its license pay to the City Clerk the City Clerk's fee of fifty cents for issuing the license.

Also in addition in each case $1.00 to be deposited with the Chief of Police for badge, said $1.00 to be returned on return of badge.

Sec. 7. That no person licensed under this ordinance nor any person in the employ of any person or corporation licensed under this ordinance, shall stand or remain upon any sidewalk or in any street or any other public place in this city, for the purpose of soliciting custom or selling or exposing for sale any wares or merchandise longer than ten minutes at any one time, if requested to move from any such place by any officer of the city, or by the owner or occupant of any premises in front of or opposite which any such person may then be as aforesaid; but upon such request to move, such person so requested shall move with the vehicle, goods, wares and merchandise in his charge to a point at least 250 feet distant from the point from which he may be requested to move before stopping for the purpose of soliciting custom; and at no time shall any person or corporation licensed under this ordinance, or any person in the employ of such licensed person or corporation, solicit custom in such way as to obstruct travel or cause annoyance or damage to any person, or solicit custom or proclaim merchandise for sale in a loud or boisterous manner; and at all times any person licensed under this ordinance, or any one in the employ of any person or corporation licensed under this ordinance, shall move from any point in any public place or street at which such person may be awaiting or soliciting custom or selling or exposing for sale any wares and merchandise, when requested so to do by any police officer of the city. And any and every person or corporation which shall violate any of the provisions of this section shall, on conviction, be punished by a fine not exceeding twenty dollars. Provided, that nothing in this section shall be construed to prevent the licensed hackmen, expressmen or truckmen from standing with their vehicles on North Avenue for a longer time then ten minutes subject to the other provisions of this ordinance.

Sec. 8. That every person or corporation so licensed with respect to any hack, omnibus, stage, motor vehicle or other vehicle for the transportation of passengers must have a lamp on both sides of each vehicle which must be lighted from one hour after sunset to one hour before sunrise and shall as soon as licensed, cause the number of his or its license to be permanently and conspicuously placed or painted in figures, not less than one inch and a half in height, upon the outside of the lamps on both sides of each vehicle for which said license shall have been granted, and every person so licensed, and the driver of every such vehicle shall wear in a conspicuous place upon his person, while engaged in the business for which the license shall have been granted, so as to be easily seen, a badge to be furnished by the city, with the corresponding number thereon, and shall also place and keep fastened within his vehicle in a conspicuous place to be designated by the Chief of Police, a card or plate to be furnished by the city with the words, "Hack License," and the number of the license and the year for which it was issued, and also a card or plate to be furnished by the city specifying the rates of fare and other regulations.

Every expressman, truckman and cartman, as soon as he or it receives a license shall fasten permanently on each side of his or its wagon a plate to be furnished by the city with the words, "Licensed Expressman," "Licensed Truckman," or "Licensed Cartman," as the case may be, with the number of the license and the year and date for which issued, and every such license and every driver therefor shall also wear a badge, which will be furnished by the city, on which the number of the license is plainly displayed. All cartmen licensed for the collection of ashes and other waste material, shall provide themselves with wagons or carts to be approved by the Street Commissioner and shall sign an agreement to transport and dump and must transport and dump all such material in places designated or to be designated by the Street Commissioner. Any violation of any of the foregoing provisions of this section shall not only subject the party licensed and the driver to the penalty hereinafter provided, but for the second offense, to a revocation of the license.

Every peddler with horse and wagon shall as soon as licensed place on each side of his or its wagon a plate to be furnished by the city, giving the number of his or its license and the year for which licensed, and every such person, and every person acting on behalf of a corporation so licensed, shall wear on his person in a conspicuous place, a badge to be furnished by the city with the corresponding number. If the wagon or badge is loaned, hired, or allowed to be used by any other person than the person lawfully entitled, that shall constitute an offense under this section, and in addition to the penalty hereinafter provided, shall subject the owner to a revocation of the license.

Every person licensed as a peddler with hand-cart or on foot without wheeled vehicle, and every person acting on behalf of a corporation so licensed, shall wear on his person in a conspicuous place a badge, to be furnished by the city, with the number of the license, and if this badge is loaned or hired or allowed to be used by any other person than the person lawfully entitled to wear it, that shall constitute an offense under this section, and in addition to the penalty hereinafter provided, shall subject the owner to a revocation of the license. Every person or corporation violating any of the provisions of this section of the ordinance, shall, on conviction thereof, be punished by a fine not exceeding twenty dollars for each offense.

Sec. 9. That any license granted under this ordinance may be suspended or revoked by the Mayor or City Judge upon proof to the satisfaction of either that such licensed person, or in case of a corporation, any person acting on its behalf, has been guilty of fraud with respect to making charges against any passenger or passengers, or that the owner or driver of any motor vehicle has practiced fraud with respect to the recording by his taxameter of the distance traveled, or the charges for distance, or has violated any other city ordinance, or without justifiable cause has been disrespectful toward any passenger or toward any person seeking to become a passenger; provided that no license shall be so suspended or revoked without reasonable opportunity first afforded to the licensed person or corporation to be heard on his or its own behalf; and every person or corporation who or which shall during the suspension or after the revocation of his or its license, carry on the business for which such license was granted, shall, on conviction, be punished by a fine not exceeding twenty dollars for each offense.

Sec. 10. That any person or corporation licensed under this ordinance to use for hire or wages any hack, omnibus, stage, motor vehicle or other vehicle for the carriage of passengers, may charge therefor the following rates, but no more, that is to say:

(a) As to all vehicles except "motor vehicles" as defined in chaper 113 of the Laws of New Jersey for the year 1906, for the carriage of any passenger or passengers from any point within to any point within that part of the city included within the following boundaries, that is to say: beginning at a point where the northeasterly side line of Johnston Avenue produced would intersect Green Brook; thence along said line and the northeasterly side line of Johnston Avenue to North Avenue; thence in the same course in a direct line to the northwesterly side line of South Avenue; thence along said side line of South Avenue to the easterly side line of Woodland Avenue, produced; thence along said line and the easterly line of Woodland Avenue to the southerly side line of Martine Avenue; thence along said side line of Martine Avenue to the easterly side line of Hillside Avenue; thence along said side line of Hillside Avenue to the southerly side line of Randolph Road; thence along said side line of Randolph Road to the southwesterly side line of Plainfield Avenue; thence in a straight line to the intersection of the southwesterly side line of Spooner Avenue with the southeasterly side line of West Eighth Street; thence along said side line of West Eighth Street to the southwesterly side line of Grant Avenue; thence along said side line of Grant Avenue and the southwesterly side line of West End Avenue to the northwesterly city line in Green Brook; thence following the northwesterly city line to the intersection of said city line with the northeasterly side line of Johnston Avenue, produced, the point and place of beginning; twenty-five cents for one passenger carried and fifty cents for two or three passengers carried from the same point to the same destination at the same time and from any point within to any point without the aforesaid limits the further sum of twenty-five cents for one, two or three passengers, in additioon to the sum above provided: provided, however, that after twelve o'clock at night until five o'clock in the morning, the charges may be double the said fares; and whenever any such hack, omnibus, stage or other vehicle shall be engaged by the hour the person licensed to use for hire or wages any such hack, omnibus, stage or other vehicle may charge one dollar for the first hour and seventy-five cents for each additional hour.

(b) As to all "motor vehicles" as defined in Chapter 113 of the Laws of New Jersey for the year 1906: For any number of passengers from one to four inclusive, for the first half mile or fraction thereof, thirty cents, for each quarter mile thereafter, ten cents; for each six minutes waiting, ten cents; and for ordering such motor vehicle within one mile and a half from any stand or station to the point ordered at which the passenger or passengers enter said motor vehicle, no charge shall be made; and for ordering such motor vehicle more than a mile and a half from any stand or station to the point at which the passenger or passengers enter said motor vehicle, a charge may be made at the rate of twenty cents for each mile or fraction thereof in excess of one mile and a half; provided that children under ten years of age shall not be counted as passengers if accompanied by older persons.

(c) That any person licensed under this ordinance as Expressman may charge for the delivery of each trunk, bag or other piece of baggage the following rates but no more, that is to say: from any point within to any point within the boundaries described in paragrapa (a), twenty-five cents and from any point within to any point without said boundaries, fifty cents.

That every person or corporation licensed as aforesaid and the driver of every hack, omnibus, stage, motor vehicle or other vehicle for the carriage of passengers or baggage who shall demand for any service mentioned in this section more than the amount or rate fixed herein for such service shall, on conviction thereof, be punished by a fine not exceeding twenty dollars for the first offense, and by a fine not exceeding twenty dollars and a forfeiture of the license which may have been issued, for any offense subsequent to the first.

Sec. 11. That the first applicant to any person or corporation licensed to drive, keep or use for hire or wages any hack, omnibus, stage, motor vehicle or other vehicle for the transportation of passengers wholly or in part within the limits of the City of Plainfield, shall be entitled to conveyance to any point that that said applicant may desire to reach within the city limits; and any refusal on the part of the driver or owner of such licensed vehicle to comply with the request shall render liable said owner or driver to a fine not exceeding twenty dollars for the first offense, and twenty dollars for a second offense, and twenty dollars and the revocation of the license for a third offense.

Sec. 12. No owner or driver of any hack, omnibus, stage, motor vehicle or other vehicle shall, for the purpose of securing custom, occupy with his vehicle any portion of the street in front of any railroad station or any place of public assemblage or entertainment in such a manner as to obstruct public travel. It shall not be lawful at or near the said railroad stations or at or near any place of public assemblage or entertainment for the owner or driver of or any person connected with any such vehicle, or any person acting for or in the interest of the owner or driver of any such vehicle, to proceed beyond the curb line for the purpose of soliciting or securing custom, and it shall not be lawful for any such aforesaid person to solicit custom in a noisy, persistent or offensive manner. Any person or corporation violating any of the provisions of this section shall, on conviction thereof, be punished by a fine not exceeding twenty dollars for each offense.

Sec. 13. The Board of Police of the City of Plainfield, with the approval of the Mayor, is hereby authorized to prescribe and promulgate from time to time reasonable regulations, not inconsistent herewith, with respect both to licensed and unlicensed vehicles, to regulate street traffic generally, and particularly to regulate the standing and movement of vehicles at or near the several railroad stations and other places of public assemblage or crowded vehicular traffic. It shall be the duty of all owners and drivers of vehicles to comply with such regulations, and any person who or corporation which shall fail to comply with any of such regulations shall be deemed guilty of violating this section, and, on conviction thereof, shall be subject to a fine not exceeding twenty dollars for each offense. The intention of the Common Council is that this section shall be deemed to be separable from the other sections of this ordinance, and not essential to the validity of said other sections.

Sec. 14. That if any section of this ordinance shall for any reason be held to be unconstitutional or invalid, it shall not affect the other provisions of this ordinance.

Sec. 15. That the Ordinance entitled "An Ordinance to provide for the licensing and regulation of peddlers, hawkers, cartmen, motor vehicle, hack, omnibus, stage and truck owners and drivers," approved March 14, 1882; and ordinances amendatory thereof and supplemental thereto; and the ordinance entitled "An Ordinance to regulate the standing of hacks, stages, etc.," approved December 16, 1874, and ordinances amendatory thereof and supplemental thereto; and all other ordinances and parts of ordinances inconsistent herewith, be and the same are hereby repealed, and all ordinances and parts of ordinances which were repealed or abrogated by any ordinance hereby repealed shall continue to be so repealed and shall be deemed abrogated.

Adopted by the Common Council, Feb. 18, 1910; approved by the Mayor, Feb. 18, 1910.

How She Escaped.

Pauline, who had been attending school for almost two weeks, was telling of the misbehavior of some of her little classmates. At her mother's question as to whether it had ever been necessary for the teacher to speak to her, Pauline answered, quickly, "Oh, no, mamma." Then, "She had to speak to all the class but me this afternoon." "Why, what did she say?" "Oh, she said, 'Now, children, we'll all wait until Pauline is in order.'"—The Delineator.

The Sun's Vapors.

"Chromosphere" is the name given to a layer of incandescent vapors in the sun, enveloping the entire photosphere. The chromosphere consists chiefly of hydrogen and an element known as helium. The so-called "prominences" are due to projections of hydrogen that are shot up to enormous altitudes, with velocities exceeding 149 miles per second. The name chromosphere is given to this solar envelope on account of its beautiful rosy hue.

Aristocratic in Misfortune.

One may read in a guide book of Venice, compiled for the benefit of strangers, this notice: "When visiting this palace strangers should show themselves especially generous in their tips, as the prince who occupies this palace has no other means of support than to share in the money given to his domestics."—Le Cri de Paris.

The Anchor of Good Literature.

What is, of all books, the world's "best seller?" It will astonish some persons, it will do the hearts of multitudes good, to learn that each year there are printed and sold 17,000,000 Bibles, giving that book an indisputable lead over all its possible competitors. There is still hope for our literature.

Already Here.

CHAPTER VIII.

Cast Up by the Sea.

Day was just breaking again when the woman awoke. Reference to her watch which she had taken the precaution to wind just before she retired disclosed the fact that it was four o'clock in the morning. She had slept unbrokenly since 11 o'clock the morning before. Her sleep had been a stupor of utter and complete exhaustion. Added to the tremendous physical strain of keeping awake and attending to the duty to which she had enforced herself had been the further strain of the terrible events on the night in which she left the yacht, and the apprehension of pursuit which had been continually with her. Her first motion, indeed, was to rise to her feet and scan the horizon. With relief indescribable her scrutiny descovered nothing. She was still alone. Neither the yacht nor any other vessel nor any smallest speck of land was silhouetted against the circling sky line.

She sat in the boat musing a long time and then woke to the fact that she was hungry. Again she satisfied her appetite sparingly from her scanty and rapidly diminishing store of food and drink, and then putting the past resolutely behind her, hoping and perhaps fancying by some exercise of her will power finally she could put it behand her forever, she gave serious thought to her condition.

She realized at last that she in the hands—another would have said of God! she said of chance. The fact that she was so helpless; that all her learning and all her training, and all her skill and all her power were of no avail, made the situation the more galling. Was there nothing that she could do? She reflected deeply and as she did so the breeze sprang up. She judged that the period during which she had slept had been calm and still. Any violent rocking of the boat would have awakened her. Indeed, she felt bitterly cramped and stiff from having lain so long on the hard floor, which only the boat cloak, thick and heavy, made a tolerable bed.

The coming of the breeze stimulated her imagination. It was a gentle breeze. She noticed that it blew from the direction whence she had come by her compass course. If she only had a sail of some kind the boat would be driven along. She must move somewhere. She had heard of ocean currents and drift but she doubted whether the boat was moving, at least sufficiently fast or in any definite direction to make any difference. Unless she got somewhere, she would slowly starve and die just where she was. She stepped forward in the boat and examined the oars. There was a sort of a deck forward over the gasoline tanks. She thought that she might make shift with the remains of the painter, of which she had a good length, to fasten one of the oars in an upright position against it. There were bolts and rings of various sorts on this little deck. She could step the handle of the oar between cleats or ribs at the bottom. At least she would try.

Her training had not been manual, but she was bright enough to supplement her lack of skill and after some hours of hard work she actually got one oar in an upright position and securely lashed. Out of the heavy cloak—more a huge circular than anything else—she improvised a sail with the other oar as a boom thrust across the boat between the mast and the little forward deck. The coat had been heavily braided. She ripped the silk braid from the edge, cut off the hood of the cloak and managed a triangular sail laced by the silk braid to mast and boom.

The boom was immobile and the only way she could sail was straight before the wind. If the wind shifted, she would shift with it. She had some slight control over the vessel with the helm, but that was all. It was noon when she finished her labors, but she was more than satisfied with what she had accomplished, for the cloak was big enough to give an appreciable way to the boat. She guessed it might be three or four knots an hour. That would be nearly 100 miles a day. She could eke out her provisions and water for five or six days longer and she could go without for two or three days after the last drop and morsel had vanished. Perhaps she might run down a habitable island in that time. Possibly, although this possibility was more faint than the other, she might be seen by some vessel and picked up. At any rate, all she could do was done. She felt better, too, because she had made a human contribution to the determination of her fate. She was no longer absolutely at the play of chance. For five days she sailed steadily on, the breeze remaining even and holding unvaryingly true for that period. She learned the trick of lashing the wheel at night and so was able to take as much rest as her tired, worn and racked body permitted in the confinement of the little boat.

She had abundance of time for thought. Time was when she had reveled in such opportunities, but there was less enjoyment in the chances afforded her now. That she who had lived in the high realm of speculation should suddenly become a woman of action, fighting for life, struck her as a strange thing. Insensibly the conditions of her present existence modified her philosophy. It seemed different, a smaller thing. She was less sure and confident of herself alone in the great immensity than in the crowded city. There were no applauding thousands. She breathed no air of adulation. She was alone with her soul. The man who is alone is always face to face with God, though his eyes may be hidden so that he cannot see the Divine. It was so with this woman.

Never had she so craved other companionship. She would have been happy if she could have believed that there was a God, for had there been a God she would not have felt so deserted. So she fought on against her soul and her circumstances—a losing battle.

The sixth day opened dark and gloomy. The wind had risen during the night. The day broke heavily overcast. Even to her inexperience she could realize that a storm was at hand. She had seen nothing during the period; that is, nothing of which she could avail herself. Twice, once to starboard and another time to port, she had passed low lying islands, dim on the horizon. She had no way of checking the boat or of changing its course to run down either of them. She had to go on just as she was. She realized that she could never land unless she were driven directly upon some island that might lie in her course. She knew, too, that the chances that might happen were very remote. She had daily diminished the portion of food and drink she allotted to herself. She had husbanded everything with the utmost care. On the sixth day they were gone. She awoke with a frightful craving which intensified as the day drew on.

She was thankful for one thing that the sun was veiled, although she heat in the humid, heavy, overcast air was something almost unbearable. Under the freshening breeze the boat went much more swiftly than heretofore. She had that satisfaction, but she had the apprehension that if the wind grew any stronger her sail, serviceable as it had proved and stout as it was, would be torn to pieces. The silk braid had done splendid service, but she marked that it was now strained to the breaking point. Again the helplessness of her position came upon her. She could not take down the sail. In the first place she was afraid to leave the helm and in the second place she realized that if she started to furl it she could only do it by cutting the lashing and at the first cut the whole thing would blow away. So she held on. There was nothing else to do.

The night fell in a burst of rain which was most grateful to her, but which was a forecast of a fiercer blow, and at midnight the hurricane broke in full force upon the little boat. The first blast tore the sail from the lashings. By a lightning flash she caught a glimpse of it for a second, whirled away like a great bird. For some reason, perhaps because one or two shreds of cloth still clung to the mast, and perhaps because the broad blade of the oar offered some surface for the thrust of the wind, she was able by the exercise of constant vigilance and all the strength of which she was capable, to keep the boat before the wind. Hitherto she had had no idea of the violence of the wave motion. It was with difficulty that she kept herself from being dashed to pieces against the sides or hurled overboard in the mad whirling and plunging to which the launch was suddenly subjected. It was caught up by one wave after another and driven on for hours. She could not tell how long. She lost all consciousness of time and of everything else except that she must cling to the helm. The boat was still hurled forward. One great wave after another would seize her, uplift her and bear her on. The strain upon her arms was terrific. She locked her teeth and hung on, breathless, exhausted, yet determined.

But there was a limit to her powers and she felt that it had been reached. Yet she did not deliberately let go. One final and terrific heave jerked her away from the wheel. She fell sprawling in the bottom of the boat, but had sense enough to lock her hands around a thwart and lie there. The launch broached-to in an instant. She was turned broadside to the waves. Fortunately she did not capsize instantly and the next breaker filled her. She lay, her gunwales flush with the water. Her motion was still violent, but less jerky. She was swept ever onward by the vast undulations.

The indomitable woman clinging to the thwart managed to keep her head out of the water. She realized that that was the end and yet while she had a remainder of strength, while she could draw a flickering breath, she would not give up. The boat, being water-logged, did not pitch so much as before and she was able to maintain her hold, although every wave that broke over her drenched her again and again.

She wondered why the boat did not sink and then she realized that the empty gasoline tanks which she had closed and locked, prevented the final catastrophe; that the boat was in a certain sense a life boat; that it would float so long as the water pressure did not succeed in opening the tanks. Therefore, she was for the moment safe. The only immediate danger would be the capsizing of the boat which would throw her out. Since the launch was already full of water the woman did not was likely to happen.

She held on, her vitality gradually growing weaker, hoping for the morning and an abatement of the storm. She had no idea of time, of course. She could not tell what the hour was. It was still dark, however, when a strange sound smote her ear. She heard it above the wild scream of the wind and the awful beat of the waves. It was a crashing sound, a battering sound, a fearful, protentous sound. The boat ran forward more swiftly now. She wondered the reason. Taking advantage of a brief lull, she abandoned her grip on the thwart and rose to her knees. Immediately in front of her she saw a white wall disclosed to her by the lightning flashes. She did not know what it was. The roaring sound came from thence. She was being borne rapidly toward it. She was nearing it with astonishing swiftness. The boat was moving more quickly now than at any time since she had been in it. At last it broke upon her consciousness that the white wall was a mass of foam; that the sea was crashing against some hidden shore and that great breakers were there.

The land that she had longed for indeed lay athwart her course. In another moment she would be in that mass of boiling foam. Well, she had fought a good fight. The end was at hand. With some instinct of the heroic, death would not find her lying down. Desperately she struggled to her feet and stood, balancing herself to the wild onward rush of the boat. The wall of foam was close at hand. For one second she threw out her arms and the next moment, with a crash which she could feel if not hear, the boat beneath her feet was lifted up and hurled on something fearfully solid. She was thrown through the air like a bolt from a catapult. A wave struck her in the back and beat her almost into insensibility. She was tossed and driven half unconscious over the space of shallow water and rolling sea upon a sandy shore. Blindly she crawled on. The waves seemed suddenly to have lost their power. She did not know that she had been thrown past a barrier reef and carried over a lagoon and dropped on a sea beach; that only the most unusual and gigantic waves could reach her, but she knew that they had little power to harm her. And so she crept desperately and doggedly on until she fell forward in the warm sand and lasped into absolute and total unconsciousness.

CHAPTER IX.

Latent Passions.

The three years which had elapsed had made a vast change in the relations between the man and the woman. In the beginning and for a long time hers had been the dominant position. So absolutely had she ruled that to him she had been as a god. So entirely had he obeyed that to her he had been a devotee. Once she discovered his ductility and had begun to teach him, the relationships had commenced to change. Gradually each had recognized the humanity of the other. Together students they had naturally approached a common level. Every new knowledge she imparted to him was an abdication of some of her supremacy. Every new knowledge he acquired was an inspiration to her high level.

Three years is a short time in the educational life of a human being, but she brought to her side of what was slowly developing into an equation the highest training, a natural ability to impart what she knew, an absolute devotion to the endeavor and an entire freedom from other interests. So fascinating had the experiment been that she had scarcely missed the rest of the world. I wonder if he had been a woman instead of a man if that absorption would have resulted from their intercourse?

On his part, he brought to bear upon the problem of learning, it was soon developed, an intellect which although entirely untrained was unusually acute, a faculty of acquiring knowledge as great as was her ability to impart it and a reasoning capacity which kept pace with his other qualities. Indeed, the main thing with which she had to contend at first was his lack of application. But so soon as he had learned enough to enable him to realize the importance of learning more she had no trouble on that score. It was as if a mature mind had been brought to bear upon the problems of adolescence. He grappled with things in that way. Whatever she taught him, he learned, he mastered all; and the mastery inspired him to learn more.

His mnemonic ability was prodigious; for all the years of his life he had not been storing up the insignificant, the immaterial, the unnecessary, in his brain cells. He remembered all that she taught him with unvarying accuracy. His was a powerful, vigorous mentality which had known nothing and upon which she wrote what she pleased. To the judgment of a man he added the receptivity and ductility of a child.

She had taught him first of all to speak and then to read; then rudimentary mathematics such as he could do in his head. There was nothing that she could devise that was practicable for writing. There was no slate on the island, the rock was not suitable. Therefore he had never learned to write, although he knew what writing was, for she had explained it to him, and had made shift to teach him the Arabic letters. She also taught him geography, astronomy, natural sciences, and above all, history. She unfolded the kingdoms of this world and the glory of them before his vision, touching lightly, as has been the fashion of such unfolders, upon the misery and the shams. His was a singular knowledge indeed. There were some things about which she was reticent, being a woman, and some things she could not tell him at all; but being a man, with imagination quickened, he thought of these things the more—for these were some of the deeper things of life and nature!

But the change in the relations between the two were not greater than the change in the woman herself. She was no longer a philosopher. That which she had disdained, she admired; that which she had abhorred, she loved; that which she had refused, she accepted. She was a Christian in belief as last. Alone, or practically so, face to face with God in his world, God in His Book, God in humanity, her specious ideas of life and her relationship to it had broken down. She had learned to kneel beside that man and pray. She had learned to seek elsewhere than in herself for power to enable her to live her life and fulfill her tasks.

She had not wished to be a Christian. She had fought against it, struggled wfth it, agonized over it, but a compelling necessity was upon her. The convictions of her conversion tore the veil from before her face, dispelled the mist that hung about her. She saw herself as she was, a woman who under the influence of wrong ideas, false conceptions, had branded herself forever. No, not in the eyes of that God whom she had learned to fear, not in the eyes that Christ whom she had learned to love, but in the eyes of men; yet she was a woman who was pure in heart. Perhaps these thoughts and this consciousness had more to do with keeping her content even that her intense pre-occupation in the man and her work, for she realized what she would have to face if she went back to the world which had mocked her while it applauded her. That world, therefore, she now began to fear. The one being upon earth with whom she could be associated, who knew nothing about it, who could cast no stone at her, she realized was the man whom she had made, and this man looked to her almost as men look to the Divine. Yet she felt that some day he would have to know. Some day she would have to tell him. What then? That feeling was ever with her. She constantly asked herself that question and found no answer.

Indeed, it was he who had taught her the truth of Christ. She had not been able, she had felt a strange unwillingness, if indeed it were possible, to break down the lingering remains of faith in that man. That babble of childish prayer had, in some strange way, caught her heart strings. It was the one memory of intelligence that had remained to him. Now that he was capable of expression, again and again he had told her of the dim recollection of a long voyage in an open boat with a woman and some animal, which she knew must be the dog. He could remember nothing of the intercourse between him and that woman except that she had been good to him—sometimes that is as much as the wisest recall of a mother—and that she had taught him and made him say always that prayer whose coherency and meaning to her intense surprise she found herself imparting to him. And she could not make up her mind to take from him the reality of the only recollection that remained to him.

Her new belief, as has been said, was both joy and sorrow to her. Save for her experience in the ship she had been happier in her philosophy. She had suffered grievously through her trust in it and in man, but her consciousness that she was fundamentally right in her beliefs had consoled her. Now to feel that she had been wrong; that she had thrown away under the leading of a false light what she could never again—Ah, no Magdalene ever wept bitterer tears at the feet of Jesus than this woman in her hours of solitude over her mistaken past, her loss and shame

CURED TO STAY CURED.

How a Plainfield Citizen Found Complete Freedom From Kidney Troubles.

If you suffer from backache—
From urinary disorders—
From any disease of the kidneys,
Be cured to stay cured.

Doan's Kidney Pills make lasting cures.

Plainfield people testify.

Here's one case of it:

Mrs. J. Mottley, 546 West Sixth street, Plainfield, N. J., says: "Doan's Kidney Pills cured me of kidney trouble three years ago and I have never had a return of it since. I am glad to confirm the public statement I gave in favor of this remedy at that time."

The endorsement to which Mrs. Mottley refers was given on August 26th, 1905, and was substantially as follows: "About two months ago I was seized by a severe backache and dull pains in the top and back part of my head. I could not rest well and had no strength or energy to do my housework. Doan's Kidney Pills which I procured at Randolph's drug store, gave me prompt relief and I am convinced that they are a first-class remedy."

JOURNALISTIC OPINIONS

Raising the Maine.

Assemblyman Schwartz is not alone in his desire to have the Maine raised. Encouragement of the project, to which he has succeeded in committing the New Jersey Legislature, is coming from all parts of the country. In its issue today the New York Herald says editorially: "In demanding that the wreck of the Maine be removed from the mud of Havana Harbor the two thousand who gathered in Carnegie Hall on Sunday to honor the memory of those who died in that disaster, voiced the desire of the American people. National honor, fairness to Cuba, and the safety of navigation require that the ship be raised. But far weightier than all these is the demand that decent sepulture be given those brave fellows now sleeping their last sleep in the battered hulk. The mud of Havana harbor is no grave for American sailors." The agitation for the raising of the Maine, if pushed urgently enough, should bring forth results. The attitude of so influential a State as New Jersey should not go unnoticed by our representatives in Congress.—Elizabeth Journal.

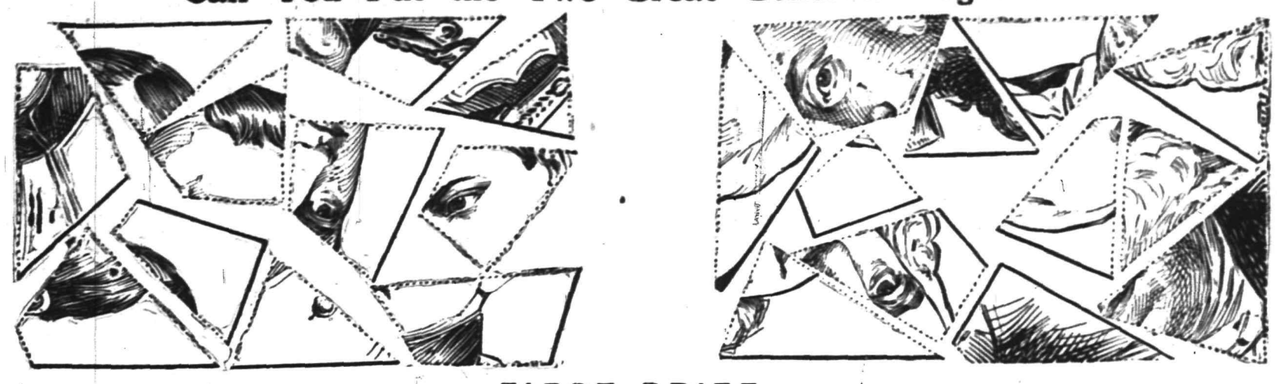
Do You Want A Fine New Piano Free?

HISTORICAL PRIZE PUZZLE

Can You Put the Two Great Generals Together?



FIRST PRIZE:

$325 PIANO ABSOLUTELY FREE

SECOND PRIZE---$125 CERTIFICATE OF CREDIT, Other Prizes See Below

$8,000 Worth of Additional Prizes

Wouldn't you like a fine, new $325 piano? Solve this puzzle picture. You have the same, fair opportunity as anyone else to win. This is the most liberal offer ever made to those desiring a piano. It is a gigantic publicity contest. Our factory advertising appropriation for this spring is to be used where it will do piano buyers the most good. Instead of spending the money in magazines, we intend to give away a piano free, and also distribute hundreds of fine pianos, at prices never before possible, to prize winners. Start today and try for this piano.

There is no catch. Everyone has an equal opportunity. Cut out the little pieces and paste them together and you will have two of the world's greatest generals. One a famous general of the American Revolutionary War and the other the most famous general of France, who was defeated at the battle of Waterloo. The most artistic correct answer will be given the $325 piano absolutely free.

THE PRIZES—First prize—A fine new piano, valued at $325. Second prize—A certificate of credit for $125. Third prize—A certificate for $100. The next six best answers will be given a credit certificate for $90. Following these in groups of 6 or more, each contestant sending in the next best answer will be given a credit of $1 less than those previous—that is, six at $89, next six at $88, etc.—until the amount has been awarded.

Special Advertising appropriation. In addition to the above prizes the Company will voluntarily issue to each of the remaining contestants a special certificate of credit of $25 as an award for their effort in the contest.

These certificates are good on the purchase of any New Hallet & Davis, Conway or Kimball Piano or Player-Piano in our warerooms at regular retail price. Time of certificate is limited. Certificates cannot be applied on any purchase made previous to March 10. Only one certificate may be applied to the purchase of one piano.

THE JUDGING—Disinterested judges will be chosen who will select the winner, and the decision of the judges will be final. All prize winners will be notified. Judges' names will be announced.

TO REMOVE OBJECTION TO SITE FOR HOSPITAL

Peter Backes, of Trenton, counsel for Bishop John McFaul, of the Trenton diocese, has prepared a substitute for the bill introduced in the House by Assemblyman Crosby, of Ocean, designed to regulate the establishment, construction and maintenance of hospitals, sanatoriums, or preventoriums for the care of persons affected with tuberculosis. The substitute has been presented to the Committee on Revision of Laws, of which Assemblyman Pierce of Union, is chairman, and it is understood that it will be reported for the bill originally drafted in the interest of Lakewood, which seeks to prevent the location of a preventatorium in that place.

The substitute provides that any person or persons who desire to establish an institution for the treatment of tuberculosis must first obtain the consent and approval of the State Board of Health. Application under this proposed act are to be made in writing and must give the name of the municipality in which it is proposed to locate the building, accompanied by a description map of the premises to be devoted to the uses authorized by the act. The State Board of Health shall fix a time and place for a hearing on such application, and the applicant must give at least two weeks notice in some newspaper published and circulated in the municipality of the hearing to be given on the application.

Mr. Backes stated today that notwithstanding the opposition of certain persons in Hopewell Township against the establishment of a sanitorium for the treatment of tuberculosis dieases under the patronage and supervision of the diocese of Trenton, Bishop McFaul will go on with his plans to utilize the 150 acres that he has purchased on the Hopewell-Pennington road for the erection of a central administration building, together with a number of shacks at different points on the farm. Mr. Backes says that there is nothing in the law of 1907, under which application for a permit was made to the township committee of Hopewell, but which later was withdrawn when opposition developed, that requires the Bishop to secure the consent of the municipal authorities before carrying out his project of establishing a sanitorium for consumptives. The law of 1907 applies only to individuals or corporations conducting hospitals or sanitoriums for profit, but the Bishop's project is a charitable enterprise and is therefore exempt from the operation of the statute. Mr. Backes explains that when application was made to the Township Committee it was not anticipated that there would be any objection to the location of a sanitorium on the ground purchased by the Bishop for that purpose, and that the application was a mere formality not actually required by the law in the circumstances of this particular case.

PLAN STATE COTTAGE FOR HOMELESS BOYS

At the request of the Committee on Juvenile Delinquents of the Union County Board of Freeholders, County Attorney W. R. Codington, of this city, has drawn a bill providing authority for Boards of Freeholders to appropriate money for the purpose of erecting a cottage, to be used by boys sent from the county availing itself of the right, at the Fairview Industrial School for Boys at Frenchtown, Hunterdon county. The bill will be introduced by Senator Gebhardt, of Hunterdon.

The bill is designed to permit Union and other counties to build cottages on the Fairview farm, which consists of 150 acres, where delinquent and homeless youths may be sent and taught useful occupations. Under the proposed plan all that would be required of the county would be to pay the original cost of the cottage and the board of the boys actually sent to the home from that county. The proposed bill has the endorsement of the Union County Board of Freeholders.

Patriot Contributed $100 for Drinks.

Washington Heights has one patriotic citizen. His name is William J. Johnson, and he lives at 555 West 160th street. RIGHT TO THE BALLOT

Edward J. Hamilton's Address Before Equal Suffrage League.

NOT FOR THE IGNORANT.

Proof of Education Should Be Given Before One Is Allowed to Vote —The Privilege Is a Trusteeship.

"The Relation of Education to the Ballot," by Edward J. Hamilton, of this city, was the subject of an address given this morning at the home of Miss Mary Willard, in West Seventh street, under the auspices of the Equal Suffrage League of Plainfield.

Mr. Hamilton said in part:

"This has always been cherished in our country especially since the War of the Revolution and the founding of the Republic. To it we owe the marvelous system of free schools on which the several States of the Union expend half their revenues; and it was with the thought of providing a large body of wise, well-principled citizens that our universities, colleges and other institutions of higher learning have been established both by public and by private liberality.

"One would think that only those inhabitants of our land who can give some proof of their education should be entrusted with a share in our government; and also that all who can give such proof should be permitted and expected to participate in the choice of our lawmakers. Neither of these have so far been generally adopted by the people of the United States.

"In most of our commonwealths we have what is called manhood suffrage, which means that any person of the male sex, no matter how ignorant and illiterate he may be, has the right to vote, provided only he has reached the age of twenty-one; at the same time, every person of the female sex, however intilligent, educated and cultured she may be, is denied that right. This inconsistency in our laws calls for correction unless it can be shown that no change can be made in our electoral system without detriment to the public good.

"Of late years the movement for female suffrage has excited much interest in this country and in some of our States has made such progress that the question of a constitutional amendment has been submitted to a poular vote. In four States the measure has been adopted and has been in successful operation for a number of years.

"In Wyoming, Colorado, Utah and Idaho, women vote at all elections. In twenty-six States and Territories women vote for school officers and on school questions. In one State, Kansas, municipal suffrage is allowed to females; and in four States also, where certain matters are submitted to taxpayers, women who own property have the same right to vote as men respecting such matters.

"The exercise of the elective franchise is a solemn and important function; it should not be entrusted to the ignorant and the irresponsible. The right to choose rulers and to make laws belongs to those who are qualified for it, but not to everybody. We cannot agree with those who assert that the right to vote is one of man's inalienable rights which he cannot forfeit except for crime. While the suffrage should be the privilege and the duty of all who are fitted for it, and likely to use it wisely, it should be withheld from the incompetent and the unworthy. It is not a personal right, but rather a trusteeship in which the citizen represents not himself alone but also every other member of the body politic."

Mr. Dunn Goes to Clinton.

Col. William C. Dunn, for the past year clerk in the Kensington Hotel, left this morning for Clinton, Hunterdon county. Mr. Dunn has made innumerable friends during his stay in Plainfield and will always be remembered for his kindly genial disposition.

OBSERVED FORTIETH WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

The fortieth wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Winn, of New Hope, Pa., was celebrated Saturday afternoon and evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Winn, 204 Clinton avenue, this city. Eight children were born to the couple and all were present and over twenty grandchildren. The couple received a number of congratulatory telegrams and letters from relatives and friends. Supper was served. The couple received a number of gifts, including a profusion of cut flowers.

Among those present were C. H. Ames, F. J. Stelle, the Misses Ruth E. and Elsie M. Stelle, of Millington; Mr. and Mrs. Resne Magee and Walter Magee, of New Hope, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. Fred Winn and children, of Warrenville; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Winn and children, Mrs. Stephen Hull, Mr. and Mrs. Forester Hartpence and Harold, Norman and Edith Hartpence, Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Whitely, Mrs. Hattie Spuming, Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. ROOSEVELT AND PINCHOT ARE CLASSED AS MODELS

Rev. Charles E. Dunn, of Tioga, Phila., who occupied the pulpit of the First Presbyterian church yesterday in exchange with Rev. Dr. Herring, preached an unusually practical sermon in the evening, bringing from a much used text a clearer meaning, and conclusions of a sort to cause his hearers to think deeply. Theodore Roosevelt and Gifford Pinchot were hailed as prophets to the country and as models of latter day "wise virgins.

Mr. Dunn took the parable of the "Wise and Foolish Virgins" as a text and used the thirteenth verse of the twenty-fifth chapter of St. Matthew for his text, "Watch therefore, for ye know neither the day nor the hour." He described graphically the wedding customs of that time, telling the congregation that in the parable Jesus was propounding one of the greatest doctrines man has ever heard.

Mr. Dunn gave as the two reasons for watching for the coming of Christ. First, because we know he is coming. Second, because we do not know when. Jesus Himself commingles two great lines of thought and these are the practical applications: All the crises of human life come suddenly. The change from sinful to righteous living is but the incident of a moment. But the preparation for the crisis in your life and mine has been going on for centuries. Theodore Roosevelt saw more keenly than any other man of the time, the waste and wanton ruin of the country's resources and he was equally farsighted enough to prepare and execute the remedy. He saw in Gifford Pinchot the man to whom could be entrusted the task of practical application of his ideas and we are getting results now.

Without this prophetic vision of our former president a crisis would have come some time when our country would be crying out for lumber, water, oil and other necessities and found them wanting. But now we can await the coming of the crisis with equanimity and calm, knowing that provision is made for the future needs of the country. It is the old story in a new light. One which will bring honor to him who conceived the need and provided for it.

"It is not necessary for one to go into retirement to await the coming of the Lord. I believe the only preparation required of us is the faithful performance by every man of his duties in the daily rounds of life. The Lord then will find him watching and waiting for Him. That crisis in life is in your life and mine today, every day and hour."

In the morning Rev. Mr. Dunn spoke on the preparation of man through God, for the crisis of life, the sermon making a splendid prelude to his discourse of the evening. Large congregations enjoyed both sermons.

Harold McKay Eleven Years Old.

Harold McKay was given a birthday surprise party at the home of his aunt, Mrs. Margaret Hansen, on East Second street, Saturday afternoon, which was attended by about thirty guests. The affair was arranged by Miss Kennena Hansen, and was a delightful function. The decorations were southern smilax and red carnations. Master McKay, who was eleven years of age, was the recipient of numerous presents from his friends. Refreshments were served.

DEBATED LOCAL OPTION

Swackhamer Won in Warm Political Discussion With Martine.

THE DEMOCRATS SO DECIDED.

Minority Party's Club Hears Debate Between Two Good Campaigners and Makes a Decision.

Plainfield Democrats put themselves on record as being in favor of the enactment of a local option at a meeting of the local Jeffersonians on Saturday night. The meeting was in line with conferences that are being conducted by Democrats on the question in all sections and is an indication that the Gubernatorial plank of the Democracy in 1911 will contain a strong local option plank

Fifty Democrats were present at the meeting which was featured by a spirited debate between Plainfield's pair of oratorical giants, former Assemblyman S. S. Swackhamer, who spoke in favor of local option, and James E. Martine, who opposed the resolution. From the forensic display from Assemblyman Swackhamer emerged triumphant, as the vote was tow to one in favor of the resolution.

In presenting the cause of local option Mr. Swackhamer contended that there is a healthy sentiment in Plainfield and throughout the State in favor of the enactment, and that it was up to the Legislature of the State to respect the sentiment. "The Republican Legislature for the last two years," said Mr. Swackhamer, "has been asked to adopt such a measure, but the yhave simply laughed at the requests of the thousands of local optionists. It has virtually said 'you may vote for us as senators and assemblymen, but you shall not vote on local option.'"

Mr. Swackhamer also declared that the people were entitled to home rule. "Citizens of Plainfield have a right to voice their sentiment on the liquor problem, just as much as they have the right to vote on the other great issues that confront them in the campaigns. It is only following out the doctrines of Abraham Lincoln and George Washington. To refuse the people a right to vote on this question is taking their liberty away, and that is a deliberate violation of the constitution of the United States."

Mr. Martine in opposing Mr. Swackhamer declared that local option, if enacted, would mean the taking away of personal liberty of the citizens. "The people don't want prohibition, as where it has been tried it has proved impracticable. I doubt if there is a sentiment in Plainfield for the enactment of a local option law; if there is I have heard of it before coming to this meeting."

In reply to Mr. Martine, Mr. Swackhamer declared that local option was not a prohibition measure, and repeated that the people had a right to vote on the issue.

Leroy T. Ellis, president of the club, also supported Mr. Swackhamer in his contentions in a vigorous speech. Jacob Voehl spoke against local option. He declared that the people did not want it and sided with Mr. Martine in declaring that it was a strike against liberty. Several others who were present also spoke in favor and against the resolution.

When the vote was taken it was found that the local option contingent had won out by a vote of two to one. After the meeting adjourned there were numerous arguments, and it was close to 11 o'clock when the gathering dispersed. It was one of the most exciting political meetings held in Plainfield among Democrats in some time.

A conference of Democrats will be held at Trenton in a couple of weeks when a local option plank will be framed for submission to the Democratic State Convention.

Supreme Chief to Address Foresters.

The Plainfield Courts of the Independent Order Foresters, and Courts from nearby places, have engaged the Plainfield theatre for Thursday night, March 1, when Supreme Chief Ranger Elliott G. REV. MR. CASSELBERRY GETS $50,000 LEGACY

Rev. W. W. Casselberry, former pastor of the First Presbyterian church, at Dunellen, but who is now engaged in mission work in a suburb of Philadelphia, recently fell heir to $50,000 in cash, the legacy being bequeathed to him by the mother of his first wife, who resides in South Jersey. Only a year ago Mrs. Casselberry, the pastor's second and present wife, was enriched by a $58,000 legacy.

Despite the two substantial windfalls in the family Mr. Casselberry will continue in the missionary work. For several years he has been a missionary enthusiast. At the time he resigned the pastorate at Dunellen two years ago, it was understood that he left to take charge of his present past at a much smaller salary than he was receiving at Dunellen.

JAMES R. DERBY DEAD IN SIXTY-FIRST YEAR

James R. Derby, aged 60 years, formerly a resident of this city, died Saturday at his home at Mt. Carmel, Pa. The first information regarding the death caused a report to be circulated that it was R. Wilson Derby, son of James R. Derby, who resides in Cleveland, but the mistake was made in telephoning.

Mr. Derby, who was a machinist, resided on West Front street, this city, until about four years ago. He was a past master of Mt. Carmel Lodge, F. & A. M., and at the request of that lodge, Jerusalem Lodge, No. 26, F. & A. M., of this city, will conduct the funeral to be held from the First M. E. church tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock. The burial will be in Hillside cemetery. A delegation from Mt. Carmel lodge will accompany the remains to this city.

THIS NEW AUTO DAMAGED; MR. LOTT IS UNLUCKY

Leonard W. Lott was unlucky yesterday. He went out for a spin in his new Cadillac automobile and the machine is now reposing in the garage of Allen B. Laing knocked out of all semblance to a useful motor car and it happened just this way:

Mr. Lott, who lives on First avenue, Fanwood, had just purchased the car and wanted to give it a good try out. So in company with a chauffeur from Laing's garage he went out for a spin. Turning into Front street from Park avenue Mr. Lott was forced to make a short turn to avoid a headon collision with another automobile whose owner is unknown, and in making the turn Mr. Lott's machine ran up onto the ice and the rear wheel skidded, throwing it into a tree on the sidewalk. The chauffeur was thrown from his seat and his arm went through the glass wind shield. Fortunately he was not injured, neither Mr. Mr. Lott. But the front of the machine was badly wrecked.

The damaged automobile was towed to Laing's garage for repairs.

Death of Mrs. Schloss.

Mrs. Minnie Schloss, wife of Moses Schloss, manager of the Scheuer store on West Front street, died this morning at her home, 326 East Front street. Mrs. Schloss left no children. The funeral will be held on Wednesday afternoon at 1 o'clock from her late residence and the interment will be at Elizabeth.

Special Musical Service.

A special musical service will be held at Trinity Reformed church next Sunday evening, when the quartet choir will be assisted by Mrs. Walter David, harpist, of New York city. Mrs. David is a talented musician and has been heard here on several occasions with much pleasure.

Miss Henrietta Agans.

Miss Henrietta Agans, died at the home of her brother-in-law, John Wyman, this morning. She was about fifty years old and was a frequent visitor to this city. She was a native of Reading, Hunterdon county. The funeral service will be held on Thursday.

Continues Gospel Talks.

"From the Hill Difficulty to Vanity Fair, was the subject of the third in the series of illustrated Gospel talks on "Pilgrim's Progress," by Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss at the First Baptist church last night.

Rehearsal of Y. M. C. A. Orchestra.

The Y. M. C. A. orchestra will hold its regular weekly rehearsal tomorrow evening in Y. M. C. A. Hall, instead of tonight. The next concert by the orchestra will be given on Tuesday evening, April 5.

NEW CATHOLIC CHURCH

Dunellen Congregation is Making Preparations to Erect Larger Edifice.

NEGOTIATING FOR LAND NOW.

Plans Made to Transform Present Church Edifice Into Commodious Hall for Public Entertainments.

Dunellen Catholics, owing to the increased attendance at the services in St. John's church, are going to have a new house of worship in the near future. During the past two years the present edifice has proved altogether inadequate to properly accommodate the congregations at the Sunday masses. It is understood that the new church will be erected and ready for occupancy by January 1, 1911.

It is the plan of Father Dunphy and the trustees to secure a tract of ground adjoining St. John's rectory, is satisfactory terms can be arrived at with the owners. Negotiations have been pending for some time and the deal for the land is likely to materialize at any time.

The recent fair conducted in the church netted a snug fund for the new church fund and other enterprises will be arranged after the Lenten season.

The plans are to erect a church which will seat more than twice the number the present church will accommodate. When the new edifice is erected the present church will be altered and transformed into a hall which be utilized for public entertainments and concerts.

MRS. JOHN HARTPENCE DIES AT HOME OF MRS. MOORE.

Mrs. Eleanor Hartpence, wife of John P. Hartpence, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Annie R. Moore, 443 West Fifth street, on Saturday, after four years of suffering. The funeral will be held tomorrow morning at her late home at 9:30 o'clock. The service will be in charge of Rev. Dr. Charles M. Anderson, assisted by Rev. C. S. Kemble. The interment will be in Prospect cemetery, Flemington.

Mrs. Hartpence is survived by her husband, her daughter, Mrs. Moore and two grandchildren. She came here thirty years ago with her family and afterwards moved to Orange, thence to Newark. She had been here about a year and a half.

AGED SEXTON OF FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH PASSES AWAY.

James Ross, for thirty-three years sexton of the First Presbyterian church died last night at the home of his daughter, Mrs. David Kelly, 239 East Third street, from the infirmities incidental to old age. Mr. Ross was in his eighty-fourth year and had been ill but two weeks with a general break down. He is survived by a granddaughter, Margaret and Mrs. Kelly. Mr. Ross was a native of Plainfield and had lived here all his life.

The funeral service will be held at 2 o'clock on Wednesday afternoon and interment will be made in the North Plainfield cemetery. Revs. Drs. C. E. Herring and Lewis Bond will officiate.

Mrs. Alex Kane Honored.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Alex Kane, on East Second street, was the scene of a merry gathering on Saturday evening. The affair was a birthday surprise in honor of Mrs. Kane. Thirty guests were present and an enjoyable time ensued for all. Dancing, music and refreshments were the features.

All-Day Missionary Rally.

An all-day missionary meeting will be held at the First Presbyterian church tomorrow. The morning session will be held at 10:30 a. m. and the afternoon session will begin at 2:30 o'clock. Luncheon will be served at 12 o'clock. Addresses will be made on home and foreign missionary work.

Join National Brotherhood.

The Brotherhood of the First M. E. church, on Friday night, adopted a new constitution and joined the National Brotherhood of the M. E. church, now being one of the chapters of that order.

Error Corrected.

An error caused us to say that Rev. Dr. John S. Zelie conducted the funeral services of the late Jonathan B. Smith in Saturday's issue. It should have read Rev. John Y. Broek.

Y. M. C. A. Quintet.

Plainfield Y. M. C. A.'s basketball team scored a notable victory over the Trenton Y. M. C. A. quintet on Saturday night by the score of 34 to 29.

LOCAL OPTION HEARING ON AT TRENTON TODAY

In the Assembly Chamber of the State House at Trenton this afternoon of the liquor and anti-saloon forces of the State are participating in the hearing in the local option bills that are pending in the Legislature. Two bills, one introduced by Senator Gebhardt, of Hunterdon, and the other by Assemblyman Ridgeway, of Salem, are alike and the duplicate of the act introduced by Senator Plummer of Salem last winter and defeated.

The Plainfield Christian Endeavor Union telegraphed this morning to Senator Ernest R. Ackerman and Assemblyman Schwartz, of Union county, who are members of the committee having the Local Option bill in charge, urging them to report the bill favorably. Several Plainfielders interested in the movement are present.

T. Frank Burke, the Superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of the State, sent out hundreds of thousands of circulars calling his followers to arms, and from most of the pulpits of the State yesterday preachers urged their parishioners to go to the hearing and swell the crowd. Gov. Glenn, of North Carolina, is the chief speaker in behalf of the act.

FUNERAL SERVICES OF MISS MARY N. MEAD

Funeral services for the late Miss Mary N. Mead, who died at Hampton, Va., last Wednesday, were held Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the home of her niece, Mrs. John Doull Miller, 222 East Second street. Rev. Dr. John Sheridan Zelie, pastor of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church conducted the services. The quartet choir from the church rendered three hymns, favorites of Miss Mead, "Ten Thousand Times Ten Thousand," "No, No, It Is Not Death," and "The Strife Is O'er."

Many beautiful floral tributes were received and particularly one from Hampton Institute in which so much of Miss Mead's interests laid and another from the Scotch Plains public library, which was started by Miss Mead. Other magnificent pieces were received from the many friends of Miss Mead.

The bearers were the six nephews of Miss Mead, Augustus B. Shepard, Burlit H. Shepard, Rutherford M. Shepard, Fred M. Shepard, Lawrence M. Mead and Larkin Mead. The interment was private.

A short service was held at Hampton Institute before Miss Mead's remains were forwarded to this city, at which all the students of the institute were present, as a mark of the esteem in which she was held there.

BAPTIST YOUNG PEOPLE ELECT OFFICERS AND PLAN A SUPPER.

The Young Women's Missionary Society of the First Baptist church has elected these officers: President, Miss Helen Armstrong; vice-president, Miss May Shreve; treasurer, Miss Bessie Flanders; recording secretary, Miss Pauline Denton; corresponding secretary, Miss Aimee Conant.

The society will give a supper on March 17, and the following heads of committees have been appointed: Refreshments, Mrs. William Kennelly; soliciting, Mrs. R. C. Brown; reception, Mrs. Francis K. Anderson; decorating, Miss Pauline Denton; tickets and printing, Miss Carrie Coombs.

Broken Wire Stops Traffic.

The trolley wire at the corner of Watchung avenue and Second street snapped last night at about 11:30 and in falling broke the window of the vestibule on a Netherwood car, shocking the motorman. Sergeant Overbaugh and Patrolman McGinley remained on the spot warning people of the danger until the Public Service repair gang got busy. Traffic was delayed about an hour.

Pastor's Aid Elects.

The Pastor's Aid Society of the First Presbyterian church has elected these officers for the coming year: President, Mrs. Clarence E. Bond; first vice-president, Mrs. A. E. Hoagland; secretary, Miss Katharine Lounsbury; treasurer, Mrs. Freeman Shotwell. The society has a balance of $500 in the treasury. Plans for an Easter supper are being discussed.

Rachael Vail.

Rachael Vail, aged about eighty years, died at her home at Dover on Saturday afternoon. She was an invalid and had been confined to her bed for several years. She had many friends in this city and was a member of the Society of Friends of the Ranodiphville meeting house near Dover. The funeral and interment will be made at the latter place.

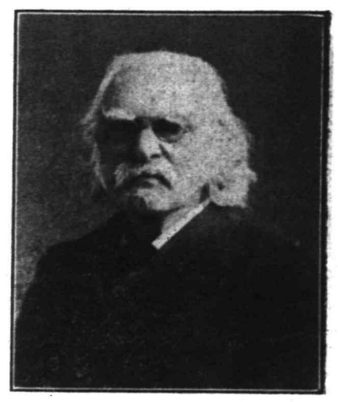
DEATH OF COL. DIETRICH

Personal Friend of Lincoln and Grant Dies in His Eighty-ninth Year.

VETERAN OF THE CIVIL WAR.

One of the "Forty-Niners;" a Customs' Official; Postmaster and a Merchant—Lived Here 34 Years.

Colonel John Dietrich, one of the best known citizens of Plainfield for the last thirty years, and a familiar figure about the city, died at 4:30 o'clock this morning at his home on Arlington avenue, of the infirmities of old age. He had been ill only a week. He was a personal friend of Lincoln, Stephen A. Douglass and



Col. John Dietrich.

Grant and his happiest moments were those when he gave reminescences of them and exhibited tokens of esteem they had given him.

Colonel Dietrich was born at Belvidere, Warren county, March 15, 1821, and was eighty-nine years of age. He was educated at Belvidere in a school house which his father John Dietrich, and Jacob Kleinhans built, which was known as "Stone Academy." It was his parents' desire that he should have a college education, but he wished otherwise. He began with a firm at Newark to learn the tinner's or tinker's trade. He took a position in the accounting office, but this did not suit him and he quit. He then went to Bloomington, Ill., where he had a brother in the hardware business. In this he was successful, and in company with another brother, Martin, they went to Bloomington in 1832. Col. Dietrich then being eighteen years old, went to work in his brother's establishment. He remained there for ten years and thoroughly learned the trade. Later he started in business for himself with as nephew for a partner.

In 1849 while on a trip to New York to purchase goods, he got the gold fever, which was then spreading over the country. After seeing his goods started west he wrote to his partner for $300 to enable him to reach California. He got the money and started for the Pacific coast.

It was a long journey "around the horn" and several months were required for the trip from New York to San Francisco. A ticket could be purchased from New York to San Francisco, via Panama, for $100, subject to delay at Panama waiting for connecting steamer. Col. Dietrich chose this plan and in company with a number of distinguished men made the trip.

En route it was learned that there was only one vacant stateroom left on a connecting steamer and that was sold to the highest bidder. Col. Dietrich was almost frantic. His money was nearly exhausted. Finally, he offered to set up a stove and for this work secured passage on the steamer.

Col. Dietrich was among the first arrivals in the gold fields. Investing his money in a rocker, tools and grub stake, which he carried, he reached the diggings in an exhausted state, but with enthusiasm. In a few months the colonel accumulated quite of fortune for those days.

Col. Dietrich washed gold for nearly two years and at the end of that time returned to Bloomington, with over $10,000 in gold. From that time he prospered exceedingly, soon erecting a large four story building. It was at Bloomington that he met Lincoln, and began a friendship which he counted the most eventful and pleasing in his life. Lincoln lived at Springfield, Ill., and in company with Stephen A. Douglas, frequently visited Bloomington to try cases. The colonel heard Lincoln's first public address at Springfield in 1842. From an intimate acquaintance, he always branded as false all reports reflecting upon Lincoln's temperance.

It was on one of his visits to Lincoln at Springfield that the colonel

Gigantic Sale of Granite Ware

BEGINS TUESDAY MORNING, MARCH 1st, at 9 A. M.

The merchandise in this sale will prove the cheapest and largest ever shown in this city. 200 cases of the famous Grey Granite Ware have been bought by us direct from the factory (the Royal Granite, but not so labeled) at 50 per cent. less than regular price, which consists of all kinds of Kettles, Pans, Pots, Pails, Cups, Wash Boilers, etc., as enumerated descriptively below.

On account of the enormous quantity and bulk of these goods, we could not handle the sale successfully in our own store. We have therefore engaged the store next door, 130 West Front Street, for 30 days, where the sale will take place.

Owing to the low prices at which these goods will be sold, the sale will be for cash only. See window display.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

The alterations in the Presbyterian church in connection with the installation of the new pipe organ is being pushed rapidly along. It is expected that the congregation will be able to worship in the church next Sunday. In the morning the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper will be observed. Several new members will be added as the result of the recent revival campaign.

Former Principal Cathers of the New Market school, has returned to Philadelphia, after a visit with William Piddington. Mr. Cathers is now connected with a preparatory school in the Quaker City.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dilts have returned to the borough after a short residence in Jersey City. Mr. Dilts is planning to erect a dwelling in the spring.

Mrs. Ella Kennedy has recovered from a threatened attack of pneumonia.

The borough Board of Education will hold a regular session tomorrow night.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

The trolley company should do something to put an end to the rowdyism on the late cars Saturday nights. The respectable patrons who are obliged to use the service, are subject to insults and remarks, and no attempt is made by the conductors to stop the nuisance. Saturday night one of Westfield's bright and promising youths, came near getting his just deserts, as the result of annoying a woman passenger whose husband happened to be on the car. When it looked like trouble the young man made himself scarce and dropped off the car at Richmond street.

The special meetings which have been held during the past week by Rev. Mr. Hollingshead at the Methodist church, were brought to a close last night. The attendance at the meetings was very good and the spiritual interest manifested was most encouraging to the pastor.

David R. Clark, of Newark, spent Sunday with his mother, Mrs. Benjamin Clark, who has been seriously ill at her home on Prospect avenue.

The little touch of spring yesterday soon converted the sidewalks into small rivers, making walking very unpleasant.

The regular weekly meeting of the B. Y. P. U. was held last night in the parlors of the Baptist church.

A well attended weekly meeting of the Epworth League was held last night in the Methodist church.

Charles Fuchs, the butcher, has purchased a new horse to be used in his delivery service.

Principal S. Dana Townsend spent the week-end with relatives at Orange.

W. J. KEARNS TELLS WHY HE WANTS NEW COUNTY.

Before the Men's Club of the Presbyterian church at Basking Ridge, after the regular order of business was disposed of, William J. Kearns, on invitation of the club, explained the reasons for forming a new county, to be called Bernards, from the townships of Bernards and Bedminster, now a part of Somerset county, and Passaic township, now a part of Morris county.

The speaker disclaimed all personal or political motives for favoring the formation of the new county and wished to consider the question from a business standpoint only. He said the new county would contain nearly twelve thousand inhabitants or more inhabitants than the other counties had contained when they were formed. The area of the proposed county is a geographical unit. The population is homogeneous, which makes possible to form a county government free from political cliques or combinations. The intelligence of the people, he said, is such that the political boss would soon become a "rare avis."

Bernards township alone paid this year $50,000 to Somerset county. A county government, economically administered, would cost many thousand dollars less than this amount. To prove his assertion, the speaker mentioned Cape May county, in which the total expenses, exclusive of the State school tax, amounted to only $23,000. The people of Bernards, paying the large amount specified, get little or no benefit from it, he said. They are goverened by non-residents whose only interest in this part of the county is to get its good money for gold bricks. Their votes are anxiously sought to keep their political bosses in office. After being cajoled out of their money and their votes, they are ignored.

Mr. Kearns urged that all present should so make their wishes known to the manipulators of affairs that the new county may become a political entity and this manifest injustice to the people be righted.

RAHWAY PLANNING FOR A BIG PARADE.

Rahway firemen are arranging to hold a parade in that city next October. It will take from $3,000 to $4,000 to carry out the project. Of this amount Deputy Sheriff W. H. Wright has pledged $500. A committee has been appointed from the various companies as follows: Chief H. L. Lamphear, Kennedy, Crowell, Helmstadter, Franks, Bedow, Rearke, Miller, Gruener, Hyer, Leonard, Randolph, and Kelley, representing the fire companies, and A. Edward Woodruff, J. M. Tufts, John Coffey, Frederick C. Hyer, James B. Furber, H. B. Rollinson, William H. Wright, W. T. Weber, Ray Mayham, Charles H. Angelman, T. H. Roberts, Guy M. Howard, D. Armstrong, F. O. Graves, F. BURNED TO DEATH AS SHE WAS GETTING MEAL.

The wife of William H. Garrison, a Republican freeholder, of Elizabeth, was burned to death Saturday morning by her clothing igniting while she was cooking breakfast on the kitchen stove at her home. The General Hospital ambulance was summoned, but the victim was dead when it reached the house, 1019 East Grand street. Her body was frightfully burned. The fatality caused much excitement in the neighborhood. Mrs. Garrison was about thirty-five years old, and is survived by her husband and two children.

Mr. Garrison is a clothing cutter and is employed in Manhattan. He had left home only a short time before the fatality.

Mrs. Garrison started to get breakfast for the two boys after her husband's departure. The couple also have a married daughter.

Mr. and Mrs. John D. Griscom and daughter, Edith, of Sycamore avenue, will leave this week for a six months' tour abroad.

F. S. Overton, of Rockview avenue, who is connected with the Ingersoll Rand Company, has gone to Denver on a business trip.

—Mr. and Mrs. Gustave Gesswein, of West Front street, will remove April 1 to The Bristol.

Springtime Silk Sale

Our Most Staple Fabric in This Event

We do, by odds, the largest silk business in the State of New Jersey. Naturally so, for we carry the highest grades of silk, keep everything unworthy out of the store, and present more kinds of silks to choose from, a far greater variety, use more space for the display, give you better light to choose in and more salespeople to wait upon you than any other two or three stores in the State combined.

Just because we handle only good grades of silk does not imply that you have to pay an extravagant price for silks here. On the contrary, we have large lines of silks at extremely low prices, and we fully satisfy the demand for the moderate priced goods; but in doing this we do not forget those who want the highest grade fabrics, so we have plenty of silks at $1.50, $2 and $3 a yard.

We are special-pricing some of the best kno wn silks this week, and we will be glad to haveour friends and patrons take advantage of the re ductions.

If Baby Wants a Carriage

Let It Come From This Store

Of course there are some other stores selling baby carriages, but there is not one in the United States that we know of that shows more styles nor better makes, nor sells at lower prices than we do. Surely that is sufficient reason why you should come here when you want a carriage for baby's comfort and pleasure. Why waste time and take chances picking from a small stock with scant variety, and perhaps questionable makes?

More than fifty different styles are here already, and new ones are arriving almost daily so that there can be hardly anything you might wish forin the way of a carriage or go-cart that we cannot supply you at a moderate price.

Block Baby Carriages, English Perambulators, Pullmans, Sleepers and Collapsible Go-Carts.

Reed and wood bodies, leather and reed hoods; finished in natural colors, oak, blue, green, blue and white enamel; almost all of them have rubber-tired wheels.

Prices run from $10 to $50.

We Sell Baby Carriages on the Easy-payment Club Plan.

PICK ANY OF THESE SPLENDID COATS and CAPES at $5.00 and $10.00

10.00 to 14.50 Coats and Capes at 5.00
15.00 to 29.50 " " " " 10.00

If you were buying a coat or cape for only two months' wear you might well afford the prices we are asking for these—$2.50 a month for the privilege of wearing a fine coat or cape—dressy, dignified, fashionable—is surely little enough; or $5 a month, for two months, for coats or capes of very high class, distinctive in style, made of excellent materials, is a small consideration for any woman who thinks well of being rightly dressed.

We do not know how any woman, whose winter coat shows signs of wear, who could look upon these and not buy one or two of them. Just think, there is going to be about three good wearing months from now till real Springtime for these coats and capes, and they'll be just as good next Fall, for the styles are changing but slightly, as you will note when you see the Spring fashions.

None of these coats will be exchanged, and none will be sent C. O. D. or on approval.

Summer Rugs Ready for You

The time for changing the rugs in the city nome fast approaches and forethoughtful housekeepers are making plans for the changes to be made in the Springtime, selecting floor coverings, draperies, etc., and those having summer cottages to equip are already busy picking out the furnishings they will need.

It is none too early, therefore, to display these Summer rugs in such profusion as we do. It gives you an early opportunity to make your selections. We will deliver when you say so.

You are not likely to find such a collection of rugs anywhere else.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

GOLF.

According to a letter received from the South relative to the recent professional golf tournament held over the links of the Augusta Country Club, a contestant succeeded in winning on his home green. In other words, Dave Ogilvie, who holds forth at the Morris County Golf Club in the summer and then migrates to Augusta for the winter season, won first place from a fairly strong field. It is a matter of record that in nineteen out of twenty open events for professionals the home expert fails to lead the field. In the Augusta tournament William Oaks, a homebred from Macon, finished second, while "Nipper" Campbell, of Brookline, and Jack Jolly, of Newark, tied for third and fourth moneys. The weather was colder than had been expected, which possibly accounts for the rather high scoring.

Most of the American professionals who went abroad this winter have been playing a great deal in Scotland, dsepite the fact that the weather has been unpleasant a good part of the time. Dave Hunter, of the Essex County Country Club, has been visiting with relatives at Prestwick, where the turf through the fairway was found in such excellent condition as to enable him to use a driver instead of the brassie. In a round, or, rather, part of a round, with his brother Jack, who is the Scottish champion, some exceptional scoring was recorded. Jack went out in 32, the best he had ever made at Prestwick, and the total might just as well have been a stroke lower, as the Scot missed a wee put on the ninth green. Dave reached the turn in 37, where he stood five down. Rain put a stop to the round after the pair had played fifteen holes.

BREINTNALL TO CLAIM OFFICE OF ADJ.-GEN.

Formal notice has been served upon Governor Fort by Robert H. McCarter that the latter, as counsel to R. Heber Breintnall, is about to institute proceedings to show that his client and not Wilbur F. Sadler, Jr., is, in view of the declared unconstitutionality of the Vredenburgh act of 1909, the actual adjutant-general of the National Guard.

General Sadler, who now holds the office, was appointed to the place after General Breintnall "involuntarily retired," when the Governor, on March 2, 1909, approved the Vredenburgh act compelling the retirement of any commissioned officer of the National Guard who had attained the age of sixty-four years.

met General Grant, with whom he afterwards served in the Civil War. The colonel disposed of his interest in the hardware business at Bloomington in 1860 and moved to Chicago, where he went into business with a man named Wells. He sold his interest there in 1862 and went to Washington and entered the Government service in the treasury department. He remained there until 1863, "when," as the colonel tells it, "my conscience would not allow me to remain away from the front any longer. I was an Abolitionist and as such felt that I had helped to bring on the war."

And so he left Washington and went direct to Vicksburg and was assigned to a high place in the quartermaster's department, where he continued until Vicksburg fell and the First Meridan Raid was organized and he was appointed colonel of the First Mississippi Regiment on guard at Vicksburg.

At the surrender of Vicksburg, Col. L. Morton Montgomery, chief of Gen. Pemberton's staff, was selected to carry the news of the surrender, under a flag of truce, to Gen. Grant, and while the terms were being arranged between Grant and Pemberton, Col. Dietrich and Col. Montgomery remained under a large oak tree conversing.

At the end of the war, Col. Dietrich was appointed surveyor of customs at Galveston; also other positions of trust, including that of postmaster at Calvert, Texas. He took the postoffice to straighten out affairs and suppress disorder. He did it so effectively that he received a notice from the "Ku Klux" that he would have five days to leave the community. He paid no attention to the notice and had the satisfaction of winning the respect of the entire community.

In 1876 peace had settled over the south so that Col. Dietrich retired and came to Plainfield, where he married Miss Margaret P. Laing, of this city, his second matrimonial venture. He has lived a quiet life since then, contented and happy and had the respect of everyone who knew him.

When his wife died several years ago she left the property occupied by her and her husband on Arlington avenue, as a home for the Religious Society of Friends, with the provision that the colonel should have a room there as long as he lived. In addition he was furnished with board. The house has been used as a home for the Friends and will continue as such according to Mrs. Dietrich's will.

The colonel has a daughter living in Concord, N. H., and as her name is not known, efforts will be made to locate her today. He also left a niece, Miss Addie Dietrich, of this city, who is now in Los Angeles, Cal., having been a member of the Cook party which made a trip around the world. She decided to visit in California for a time. There is also another niece in Missouri and one in Seattle.

The funeral services will be held from the late home on Arlington avenue, Thursday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

FAIR AND FORTY.

Life isn't so bad when you are 40! It isn't half so sorry and sad as it may seem to the very young. Fair and 40 has a positively sacrastic ring to youthful ears, but the world is on the whole, pretty considerate and things usually are evened up for us in the long run.

You see, my dear, the woman of 40 really never thinks of her age at all, and doesn't once realize that she, of all people, looks it even if she is it.. Or again, if she is one of the unbiassed sort who sees herself as she is, and is trying to delude no one—no, not even the census man—she believes wholly in the advantages of increasing years. She has an outlook that is denied to youth, for hasn't she weathered all her disappointments and come out sweet tempered? Aren't the saw edges all rubbed off? And would she want to be as spicy as she used to be long ago, when she knew that all you had to do was to stand your ground, talk louder and wail a little, if need be, to get exactly what you wanted?

Smiles have largely taken the place of tears in the philosophy of the woman of 40—or really 50—because, you see dears, there's very little change for a good long while when once you are 40. You seem to just stay 40 on indefinitely, and enjoy the satisfaction of a few well-worked-out theories and their answers which you have evolved for yourself, and, incidentally, for your relatives and younger friends, from some of the very perplexing questions that beset your youth.

Forty isn't so old as to be at all terrifying, and the wisdom of your years occasionally wrests a position—if you want one—from the grasp of insufficiently or inexperience.

Age has compensations—even fast increasing age; it commands a hearing for "the poor soul," although a youth has taken the floor by force and intends to keep it. Then, when you get to be 40, you are generously permitted to chaperon yourself and this, too, makes life less a burden than when, convention demanding it, you—still in leading strings—were led forth to your destination and dragged back again.

And, besides, age entitles at times—other things being equal—to a trolley car seat.

Imported and Domestic Linoleums

We invite your attention to our new Spring stock of Linoleums, comprising all the very latest tile designs, especially adapted for kitchens and bath rooms. We guarantee the Linoleum we sell and should like to tell you more about the structure of it, which makes it more valuable than its price. You can buy so-called Linoleums for almost any price. That kind is made merely by covering indifferent coarse cloth with a sort of paint which looks pretty when you put it upon the floor, that's all you can say for it. Good Linoleum is made of oil and cork and on the proper mixing of these ingredients depends the life of it. Come in and see our excellent display.

Demonstration of the Regina Pneumatic Cleaner

Easy to operate, most powerful suction; best workmanship and materials guaranteed; light and compact, noiseless and efficient. The housekeeper's best friend. What more can we say, except possibly this, that "The Regina" was designed and made by the same skilled mechanics who make the famous "Regina Music Boxes," which fact alone is a strong guarantee of its worth. We have critically examined every one of the 57 varieties on the market and this is the only one so far that we can safely say is all that is claimed for it. We'd be pleased to demonstrate it to you.

The Price is $25.00

OLD TESTAMENT MAN SUBJECT OF DISCOURSE

At the Grace M. E. church last night the pastor, Rev. Ora J. Shoop, preached a strong and instructive sermon on "The Old Testament's Strongest and Weakest Man—and the Reason." In Mr. Shoop's opinion Samson was a giant of prodigious strength, in the days of the Israelites. In part Mr. Shoop said:

"Samson, the strong, Judge of Israel, in a wild, barbrous age.

"Samson, a giant of prodigious strength, examples of whose prowess we have in the Book of the Judges. But he used his power against the enemies of Israel. What a surrpassing amount of energy is wasted on the inconsequential, on the unproductive. The Divine Creator endowed man with strength to be utilized in productive effort, and when it is dissipated on the degrading vicious things of life, man dishonors his God. Samson purposed to serve (though in a rude, bungling way) his people.

Samson was a man of unsurpassed physical courage. He moved single handed against the enemies of his country. He does not always show wisdom, but he never fails to impress us by his personal bravery.

"Samson, the physical giant of unsurpassed courage gave himself for his nation. For twenty years he judged Israel and held back her enemies. It seems quite impossible for us in this age to reconcile ourselves to the selection of Samson as judge of God's people, but we must always remember that God has always made us of human instrumentality in maturing His plans, and He has always made use of the best instrument at hand. The surprise is that God has been able to do as much as he has with such rude and wild natures as this Samson's.

"Notice some temptations of the great and strong.

"The temptation to be less than they ought to be in the high quality of their manhood. At first an imperceptable tendency to relinquish the fine traits of personal purity and sobriety. But this tendency soon grows into bold and positive habits of vice.

"The temptation to disregard the obligations of their trust. Indulgence in sin destroys the vital sense of personal responsibility. Samson nearly lost it and because of this lost his life. Kings and emperors have lost it and because of this have lost throne, and life. We have in our day the singular anomaly of bank presidents and mayors of cities, men of influence and honor in various positions of responsibility, degraded from their places, stripped of their citizen's clothes, and clothed in the uniform of the criminal; and imprisoned for a term of years.

"The wreck consequent upon loss of manhood and broken trust. No man can with safety daily with sin; no man who has any regard for his future, temporal or spiritual can afford to indulge in sin. Sin, like fire is a bad master. When Samson lost his power this sin, his enemies came, put out his eyes, bound him and took him to prison, where he was compelled to grind their mill. This is no worse than the modern criminals above referred to, who are at enforced labor in our prisons. So low a man of strength may fall thro' indulgence in sin.

"How a man may conserve his strength and avoid falling a prey to the seductive temptations of life.

"Enlist activity and permanently in some good work.

"Avoid entagling alliances with all forms of evil.

"Maintain open and regular communication with the Divine. The supreme trouble with Samson was his failure to enclose any vital touch with his source of power.

"His loss was gradual, but after awhile it became apparent that God had departed from him. A man with God departed from him is a poor instrument to battle for anything that looks to the upbuilding of humanity. After all a personal, confident faith, in a personal, benevolently disposed God is the only true safeguard of man, facing the trying situations of modern life.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

The month of February, 1910, marks the completion of the twenty-fifth year since Walter Damrosch took up the conductor's baton, upon the death of his father, Leopold Damrosch, in New York city. A quarter of a century ago America was a pioneer musical land with New York and Boston as outposts of musical Europe. Today across its three thousand thickly populated milse, it possesses a high order of musical civilization, active, intelligent and self-reliant. Many men of ability and ideals have contributed to this remarkable advance—and advance, which in velocity and extent may safely be considered the most notable in the history of music. No name, however, is more intimately connected with this growth, in its broad national aspect, than that of Walter Damrosch, who with his orchestra will be at the Plainfield theatre Wednesday night.

Accident on the Central Railway—Early Saturday morning last, ten empty cars attached to the westward bound stock train, on the Central Railway, ran off the track at Middle Brook, between Bound Brook and Somerville.—The regular trains were delayed for about three hours while the debris was being removed, which detention elicited from some of the waiting passengers at the depot expressions more emphatic than polite.

"View not these columns with a critic's eye,
But pass the little imperfections by."

The Senior Editor having gone to Northern New York on business requiring his attention (to shoot Bears, Bisons, Antelopes Woodcock and Quail), it is hoped our indulgent readers will not make any fine points on any little mistakes that may inadvertently have crept into our columns this week.

We notice among the many arrivals of business men in our city, that of Mr. John Tobin (advertisement in another column) Boot and Shoe dealer, in Marsh's new building. His stock, which is being shelved and arranged, is well adapted, we should judge, to the wants of the community, and certainly possesses the merits of being very handsome.

Louis Schwartz, of Elizabeth, has a cow which he will wager can trot a mile inside of three minutes. He offers $10,000 for the cow that can beat her.

October 5, 1871.

The members of Warren Engine Co., No. 3, of North Plainfield, last week presented their foreman, John Cass, with a silver trumpet. The presentation was made at the engine house, and was received by Mr. Cass with a few well-timed and appropriate remarks, after which refreshments were served up at Herold's saloon, Somerset street, and hilarity and mirth reigned supreme.

Mr. L. B. Boice has broken ground for a handsome store building on Somerset street next to the engine house, to be occupied by him (we understand) as a first class drug store.

From the first day of September, 1870, to first day of June, 1871, there were manufactured in the First Collection District, composed of Atlantic, Camden, Gloucester, Salem, Cumberland and Cape May counties, 21,205 gallons of apple whiskey.

Three years ago Martin Smythe purchased and planted on his farm in Burlington county, a thousand Concord grape vines, for which he paid thirty dollars. He informs us that his sales of fruit from these vines, the present season, amounted to four hundred dollars net. The vines occupy much less than two acres, and the ground between the rows has been used for other crops. His thirty dollars appears to be a safe investment sure to be more productive as his vines grow older.

Wm. G. West, of Deal, near Long Branch, has sold his farm of 93 acres to a Mr. Conklin, of New York, for $60,000. Not many years ago the same place was bought for $1,800.

See advertisement of Messrs. Gaston & French, in another column. These gentlemen come well recommended, and will offer to the public a fine assortment of goods, which they guarantee to sell as low as the lowest. Give them a call and inspect their goods.

TWELFTH NIGHT.

This day, or night, is the twelfth day after Christmas, and is that on which the festival of the Epiphany is held.

Twelfth Night marks the end of the Christmas season. On this evening companies are supposed to assemble and spend a few hours in mirth and jollity. In olden times a large cake was baked, in which a bean was placed. The one who obtained the piece containing this was pronounced king for a year. The bean king then held a mock court, and closed his reign over all festivals on the next Twelth Night, when he gave a feast, and when the next king was chosen. This custom existed in France and in Germany and traveled over England.

It is called by many the Three Kings' Day, in allusion to the legend that the Wise Men were three kings.

It is a day of "cakes and characters." In England the pastry shops are illuminated and cakes of all sizes and degrees of decoration are displayed.

Masked, the people indulge in merrymaking and hilarity, and the Lord of Misrule is over all.

In the home Twelfth Night is celebrated by wonderful "twelfth cakes" and cider.

As a sign that the season of festivity is over the Christmas greens are taken down and burned.

WHAT THE COMING SUMMER DRESSES WILL LOOK LIKE.

Womanly interest already centres round the summer gown. Not the heavy pongee coat suits, nor the lightweight cloths which we will be buying first for spring wear, and not even the heaviest linen costumes. The flimiest of lingerie frocks, all made of mull, lace and embroidery, have claimed the momentary admiration of womankind. They are the usual first showing, made for Southern travel and exhibited as models for those we will be making later.

These advance notes are a decided help and provide for the home dressmaker just those early suggestions for which she yearns.

She is either making the first few summer dresses or repairing the last few that are left over, according to her own particular system; and an idea—even one—will be of untold assistance.

Now, we are sure of the girdle, but also we have faith in the persistence of the panel, which brings us to that evidence later on.—Many of the sheer white dresses will be simple enough; others will be overelaborate; some will be made of embroidered swiss; others of plain mull. But most of them will show a combination of girdle and princess panel. The front breadth, and sometimes the back, continuing from collar to hem, show the princess line, while the under-arm sections of bodice and skirt are girded together by a wide or narrow band. These belted sides offer opportunity for more fulness, which will be let in in the form of skirt gathers—a very few—at the waist line.

Fashions are essentially the same in outline. There is no great change in fulness at any given point, which would naturally disturb the outlines as we know them at present.

Changes in outline are the most exciting, and at the same time the most depressing. When the whole general exterior of woman changes her last year's clothes are a dead loss and she finds herself at sea. It is too hopeless to contemplate, and there is cause for thanks that the coming season will usher in no such vital differences.

Even in those frocks with a girdle crossing the front breadth and in the belted linen dress the profile has not altogether departed. There is no evidence of the much-pouched waist front to disturb the long panel line we are now accustomed to, and the added tunic is fitted very like the skirt of a year ago.

Numerous belts are the cry, and we have the evidence of our senses to prove it. They are shown, even now, in crushed shape made of colored suede and in the straight band of shiny leather. Any gown that will admit of such an addition may have it, according to dictates from Paris.

The Russian note is strong, and the belt is as much a feature of this Eastern garb as is the tunic.

Frocks for spring and summer wear are showing every variation of the belt from the merest strip across either front or back to whole belts of narrow band width and wide curved or crushed ones. As for tunics, they have dropped down upon every summer gown in one form or another, whether they take the shape of the overskirt tunic, the apron front, the wide sash drawn round the upper half of a kilted skirt, or whether they are the Russian coat tails to the belted blouse.

Again, the tunic may be merely that in effect, a deep tuck let into the middle of an otherwise plain skirt, or a band of ornamental trimming so placed as to suggest a straight or a shaped tunic.

Take them, one and all, add them, and divide them to get the average, their outlines have not changed. Women will look, in the main, very much as they did a year ago.

WOMAN'S SWEET CHARM.

Very few women realize what an effect a sweet voice has on a man. A woman may be very pretty to look upon, may be faultlessly and bewitchingly attired, and attractive in every way, and yet too often, directly she opens her mouth and speaks the spell is broken, the charm gone. And this need never be.

Very few voices are so naturally bar that they will not succumb to training, and the voice can be trained to be just as sweet and gentle as we please to make it.

A woman should speak in a low voice. She should not allow her voice to raise itself to a high pitch. A shrill-voiced woman is terrible. She should not shout her orders to the servants down the stairs nor call to anyone who may be in another part of the house. This shouting and raising of the voice spoils the tone and quality of the voice and tends to make it harsh. A pretty voice is a powerful attraction in a woman, and she who would add to her charms a wondrous fascination should cultivate a coice "ever soft, gentle and low."

Chance to Make Up.

"I thought our engagement was off, but there may be a chance to patch up matters."

"Then she didn't send back the ring."

"No, she wrote me to call for it."

WILLIONS OF BUGS THAT PREY ON US

That this is the age of bugs, more than 100,000,000 species now being known to science, was the statement yesterday at Ithaca, N. Y., of Professor A. D. McGillivary, of the State College of Agriculture, in an address on "Insects and the Transmission of Disease." He said:

"The number of species of insects which are known to science at the present time is estimated at 100,000,000. Some of these are very rare, but many of them occur in quantities as to make even estimation difficult. Among the insects which occur in great quantities are locusts and grasshoppers. In 1889 on the shores of the Red Sea these pests covered 2,000 square miles of land, and in spite of the fact that a single insect would weigh only about one-sixteenth of an ounce the entire mass of locusts was estimated to weigh 42,850,000,000 tons, and this was not exceptional, for the next year there was even a worse scourge.

"The kissing bug is real and was so called because it bit persons on the face usually when they were asleep. The insect formerly fed on bedbugs and this is the reason given for its attacking persons while asleep. Probably a large per cent. of the bites which were laid to spiders came from the kissing bug.

"The spider is comparatively harmless and none of the kinds to be found in the northern United States are poisonous. Even if they were the insect would be unable to penetrate the human skin to introduce the poison. The bite of the true tarantula is no more dangerous than the sting of a bee, although some of the varieties in California and other warm parts of the country probably are poisonous.

USED MARKED MONEY TO TRAP ALLEGED CHEAT.

Jersey City, Feb. 28.—Charged with bribery, impersonating an officer, and getting money under false pretenses, Raymond Stanton, a nephew of former Recorder Stanton, of Hoboken, was Friday morning committed to jail by Judge Queen in default of $1,000 bail.

Stanton was arrested Friday by Sheriff James Kelly and Process Server Thomas Madigan while he was in front of the courthouse. It is alleged that he called on Mrs. Otto Stenger, of Cambridge avenue and Gifford street, and collected various sums from her on the pretense that he was a constable, and the money was to be used in providing comforts for Mrs. Stenger's husband, who is an inmate of the State hospital at Morris Plains. In this way it is alleged that he got at least $50 from the woman, and it is believed much more.

Stanton had met Stenger in jail, and it is said that he had no trouble in collecting the money. Finally the woman became suspicious and communicated her suspicions to the sheriff. She told that official that Stanton had said he was an employe of the sheriff's office.

A plan was made to catch Stanton. Mrs. Stenger's niece agreed to meet the young man Friday morning in front of the courthouse. She was on time and so was the youth. She passed over a marked $10 bill to Stanton and when he was in the act of putting it in his pocket he was arrested by the officers.

DIDN'T STEAL HORSE; HE "EMBEZZLED" IT.

Freehold, Feb. 28.—Because he had the custody of a horse which he unlawfully sold, Jacob Wilson, of Long Branch, was adjudged not guilty of stealing the animal from William Layton, a Long Branch liveryman, as charged in the indictment. It was held the indictment should have been embezzlement.

The affair happened on September 9, 1908. Wilson had been employed by Mr. Layton, and was told to take a certain horse from the stable to Dr. Haight's hospital that night. Instead, Wilson took the horse out and sold it and then disappeared. He was indicted, but was only recently apprehended, and yesterday he was placed on trial before a jury. After the State's case was presented Mr. Wilson's counsel, Thomas P. Fay, made a motion for a direction by the court of a verdict of not guilty, holding that, as Wilson was in custody of the animal, he could not be held for stealing it, but that the charge should have been embezzlement, if any. Judge Foster upheld counsel's contention and Wilson was discharged.

Cranberry Sherbert.

Wash a quart of cranberries and put them, still wet, into a double boiler. Add no water, but cover closely and steam until tender and broken to pieces. Take from the fire and press out all the juice by putting the berries into a vegetable press. Add to the juice an equal amount of cold water and stir in enough sugar to make as sweet as desired. Flavor with the juice of a lemon, pour through a sieve and freeze.

Successful Furnace Fires

PATENTED

The BOYNTON Square Fire Pot

makes tending the furnace easy, but best of all it makes a joyous fire. Round fire pots burn strongly through the center with a rim of half dead clinkers at the edge and when you shake the fire the middle drops out. You've noticed it. Fires built in BOYNTON Square Pots are all live coals. A shake down is an even shake. The whole fire settles. There is no waste. The fuel being equal, a square pot will develop almost twice the heat, or the same heat for about half. The square pot is our patent and can be had only in the BOYNTON furnaces. We have a dealer in your town. He will be glad to show you.

There are BOYNTON heating plants of all kinds. Ask about our Round or Sectional Boilers for Steam or Hot Water. Also Ranges.

SHERIFF'S SALE—In Chancery of New Jersey. Between Sarah V. C. Beardslee, complainant, and The Metropolitan Mercantile and Realty Company et al., defendants. Fi. fa. for sale of mortgaged premises.

By virtue of the above-stated writ of fieri facias to me directed I shall expose for sale by public vendue, at the Sheriff's office, in the Courthouse, in the City of Elizabeth, N. J., on at two o'clock in the afternoon of said day, all tract or parcel of lands and premises situate, lying and being in the City of Plainfield, in the County of Union and State of New Jersey:

WEDNESDAY, THE TWENTY-THIRD DAY OF MARCH, A. D. 1910,

Beginning at a point in the northwesterly side line of West Fourth street, distant in a southwesterly course thirty-one and twenty-five one-hundredths (31.25) feet from a point in line of land now or formerly Ida R. Opdyke's; thence running in a southwesterly course along the northwesterly side line of West Fourth street thirty-one and twenty-five one-hundredths (31.25) feet to a point and making a corner; thence running in a northwesterly course through their land and making a new line one hundred and fifty-six and seven-tenths (156.7) feet to a point in the rear line of West Third street lots and making a corner; thence running in a northeasterly course parallel with West Fourth street thirty-one and twenty-five one-hundredths feet to a point and corner of their other lands; thence running in a course of south forty-two degrees and fifty-five minutes east one hundred and fifty-six and seven-tenths (156.7) feet to the point of beginning. Together with the land in front of the same to the middle of West Fourth street, to be used as a public street. Being known and designated as number 616 West Fourth street.

Being a part of the premises conveyed to The Metropolitan Mercantile and Realty Company (a corporation of New Jersey) by Ida R. Opdyke and husband by deed dated January 12, 1904, recorded in Union County Register's office in book number 427 of deeds, pages 257, etc.

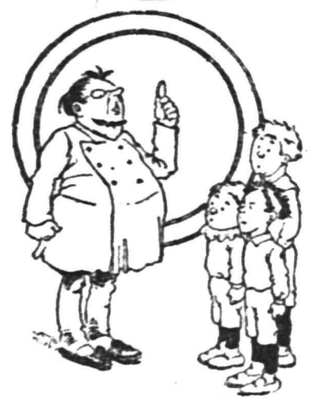
A SOJA BEAN COW.

"I'm a-goin' to sell my cow,
Ain't no use to keep her now;
Ain't no use a-gittin' out
'Fore daylight, or thereabout
Feedin', milkin', creamin' stock
Bundled up in overalls.
No, sir-ee," said Amos Green,
"I shall plant a Soja bean.

"In the papers I hev seen
In Japan they hev a bean
You kin plant an' raise an' boil,
With a mighty little toil,
Then you kin squeeze out, I swow,
Milk ez good ez any cow
Milk that's white an' pure an' clean
Frum the Japan Soja bean.

"What's the use a-raisin' hay,
Foolin' all your time away
What's the use a-doin' chores
When you jest could stay indoors,
Settin' by the stove, an' boil
All your milk an' save your toil?
No, siree," said Amos Green,
"I shall plant a Soja bean."

JOHNNIE KNEW.



Teacher (testing the knowledge of a class on the value of coins)—Well, what is that?

Johnnie—Heads, sir!

Queer Language.

And doctors don't work on a dock,
Crack shots do not shoot at a crack,
Blacksmiths are not black, it is said,
And hack-writers don't write in a hack.

Overtime.

"Richard," said the letter carrier's wife, "will you walk the floor with baby awhile"

"Oh, I suppose so," grumbled the man; "but this night male carrying is fierce."

"Never mind, dear," was the comforting response; "It's a short route, you know."

Better Opportunities.

"You say she obtained a better position. Less work?"

"No, more work."

"More money?"

"No," less money."

"Then how in the world can you say that it is a better position?"

"Her new boss is not married."

Always employed.

"What do you mean, sir," demanded the irate housewife, "by circulating the report that I am an idle gossip?"

"Madam," responded the corner grocer suavely "you do me grave injustice. I said you were the busiest gossip within ten blocks."

Different.

"Do you believe in the application of the golden rule?"

"I am a school teacher."

"What has that to do with it?"

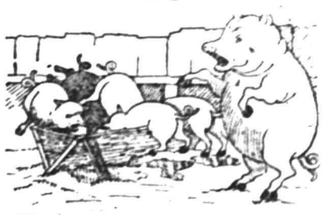
"It is the application of the wooden rule that brings results."

The Natural Reason.

"Why is Mrs. Cashit's fine new whispering gallery with its rubber plants so unpopular?"

"Paradoxically, because it is a telling success."

IN PIGDOM.



"Can't you children behave a little more like pigs and less like bargain-counter human beings?"

Gas-Laden Atmosphere.

If it is true, as science teaches,
That sound waves travel on for years,
The air is full of wasted speeches,
Likewise, also, useless cheers.

Almost.

"Well, we had a scorching summer, didn't we?"

"More of a joy riding summer, the auto has put the old-fashioned scorcher pretty well out of business."

Getting Wise.

Scribbles.—"Have you realized anything from your poems yet?"

Rhymer.—"Well, I'm beginning to realize that they are not poems."

Squoze.

"I hope he didn't squeeze your hand in the conservatory last night?"

"He tried to, but he found he was a lemon squeezer."

Well Posted.

"Is he a well posted man?"

"I should say so. He knows exactly what all this trouble with Nicaragua is about."

Its Defect.

"Do you think the telephone is a home is a paying investment?"

"Well, is doesn't always answer."

The Island of Regeneration

She had hours of solitude, too. Early in the life they lived, she had laid down certain regulations. He was in the formative period then and had unhesitatingly acquiesced in them. So far those regulations had neither been abrogated by her nor broken by him. A cave upon the farther side of the island had been found and that was his home. They breakfasted together at a certain hour, which he told by means of the sun and she by her faithful watch. The morning was spent in study. In the afternoon they separated, each passing it in accordance with individual preference, but he rigorously kept to his side and she to her side of the island during the period. Certain dividing lines clearly established and understood marked which was his and which was hers. At supper time they met again and passed the time together in conversation until the rest period arrived. Things had to be this way else life would have been unendurable. They lived on the natural products of the island which were varied and sufficiently abundant to fulfill all dietetic requirements.

She had also taught him things not learned from books. Among them, truth, honor, duty and dignity—all the virtues. Her instruction had been—first, that which was natural—ethical merely, but afterward it had grown spiritual. Unspotted from the world he, and she washed white she hoped and prayed in spite of spots, they lived a life of idyllic innocence. Yet because he was a man and she was a woman, strange fires glowed beneath the outward calm, strange ideas and desires and thoughts rose from both hearts. This was inevitable. Her original relation to the man had been one of so great superiority as to be fatal to the early development of any feeling but the maternal. Even now she possessed the superiority which association with her kind, her longer training and her greater opportunities had given her. And yet she could only recognize that to the impartial view considering his abilities and opportunities he stood quite on a level with her. Perhaps had he enjoyed her chances he might have stood higher.

She began to idealize him, to dream about him, to wonder. She trembled on the verge of passion. She knew his to be a brilliant mind. She divined his to be a knightly soul. Physically, in face and figure, no more splendid man, untrammeled by base convention, ever stood upon the earth's surface. Grace and strength mingled in harmony that was as striking as it was full of charm. She had no opportunity to test his courage, for no physical danger ever menaced them. But she believed in his manhood thoroughly.

The woman had had bitter experience with love. Following what she believed to be the highest inspiration she had wrecked her life and brought herself to this pass. The revolt in her soul at the thought of the man who had so degraded her, or who had so taken advantage of her ignorance and innocence—the more complete since they were covered by a confidence of knowledge and sophistication—as to allow her to degrade herself, convinced her that what she had mistaken for divine light was only a false fire, an ignis fatuus which had led her into the marsh and slough of slime and shame. She loathed the thought of that man. She had loathed, when she had been thrown upon that island, the thought of all men. This one had given back her confidence in her kind. Yet sometimes she wondered whether that confidence were warranted or not because of him. Suppose he should come in touch with the world, what would happen? Was he, too, capable of breaking a woman's heart? Would he do it? Was her's the heart? What would the soiling touch of the sordid conditions under which life was lived, as she had known it, do for him? Would he still be unspotted? Would he think her the same? She had taught him many things. But how should he learn to fight temptations, temptations with which he had no experience, which never came to him, she fondly dreamed.

Yet she had confidence in him. She had confidence in God, and we cannot have confidence in God without some confidence in man. The converse, too, is true. Therefore she believed. She was confident that he would rise supreme in the face of every test. She wondered if the test would ever be applied to him, if she would be there to see. She found herself praying for affirmation in both matters. Her belief in him would only be belief founded upon hope until he had been tried. There was a doubt about him that must be resolved; she must resolve it. She could never be satisfied, in spite of her belief, until she had done so. The very fact that she thought so keenly upon the subject; that she was so interested and engrossed in the situation was evidence to her that she cared more for the man than she had dreamed it possible.

And what of him? For once her intuition failed her. She wanted to see him tested and tried; she wanted to see him tempted and triumphant, but he was all of that in those very hours in which she fancied him so unthinking. It never occurred to her that he might entertain an earthly passion for her. She still, from ancient habit, believed herself so far above him that such an ambition would have been little less than sacrilege to him. She lulled herself to sleep with that idea. She believed, she knew, of course, that all that was needed was a suggestion from her. To love is the lot of man. This man had seen no other than her. If she said the word, it would be accomplished. She held the only key to his heart; her hand could unlock it on the instant. She forgot the master key and the Master Hand.

He had controlled that strange trembling that used to take him whenever he touched her, but she could feel his pulse beat and throb when by chance there was any contact even of the casual between them. Sometimes he had asked her strange questions which she had put by, and sometimes she caught him looking at her in strange ways that sent the blood to her skin, and sometimes turned her pale. Yet she lived in the fool's paradise. She did not awake to the possibilities of that which she had made him because her apprehension of him had not kept pace with his apprehension of her. To her he was still in some degree the creature that he had been and sometimes she thought upon her growing love for him with a feeling of shame as if it were a condescension, a derogation.

She did not know what blood was leaping in the veins of the man and how he taught himself, because she had instilled in him honor and decency and Christlike self control, to repress these things. She did not know how much faster he had learned certain things than she had intended. She did not know how instinctively he had leaped to conclusions which she imagined were still latent in his mind. This was a good man, this was an honest man, this was a gentleman, this was a Christian man. There was no question about his faith. It was as simple and abiding as it was sincere. The early Christians who had been brought in personal touch with the Master and his men were not more faithful, acceptant and devoted. Yet this was a very human man in spite of all these things, a man of splendid vigor and health with all a man's impulses, hopes, dreams and aspirations. And he loved her.

He, too, sat upon the white sands of the gemlike island and looked out into the far blue of the Pacific washing the distant shores and lands peopled with strange creatures of history and romance and he, too, wondered. He had had no experience with men and the world and he longed to get away and to take her away.

She had long since discovered that he was a gentleman, an innate gentleman; that he had been well born, and she had seen to it herself that he had been well bred. Yet no mortal man ever went through greater fires of unknown and mysterious temptations than he. He forced himself not to speak words that burned. He checked the free course of thoughts that bubbled and seethed within his brain, and the relationship between them remained that of mistress and man, teacher and taught, friend and friend. It was he who so maintained it, though of this she was unaware.

And he, too, longed for some hour to come when he might with right and decency and dignity speak the words which some day he must speak or die. He was not versed in the ways of women. He had no store of knowledge, no lesson of experience to fall back upon. He knew but one woman. He could not predicate from any petty maxim, or from any ancient aphorism, or from any worn out philosophy, what she would or would not do under certain conditions. Indeed, he only thought that he loved her and he must tell her or die in the concealment.

WIFE'S RUM BATHS AS BASIS FOR ACQUITTAL.

Through a novel defense, Julius Zore was acquitted at New Brunswick on Saturday of selling liquor without a license and on Sunday. Mrs. Zore, the jury was told, has not always been in good health and had been indulging in rum baths. This accounted for a two-gallon jug of whiskey the police found and confiscated at her husband's restaurant. Witnesses told of having tea parties there, but were ignorant of the question of buying drinks.

MODERN RAG DOLLS.

Although the daintiest type of little girl is fascinated by the pink and blue silk doll with flaxen curls and fluffy ruffles, there is a dear old rag dolly that is nearest the heart of every real child. This is the mother love coming out for something to coddle close, and it ought to be encouraged.

Modern fashion in doll dom sanctions the rag doll in peasants dress, and, as a whole, they are of unusual countenance, some home-made looking, others done by foreign artists in the toy districts of Germany, but all of them suggesting the possibility of at least home dressing.

A very little study of the peasant dress of each foreign country will prove their origin, and supply copy for the mother who is chief doll maker for her own children.

Coarse bits of dress materials, left-overs of crimson and blue, odds and ends of ribbon velvet, pieces of gingham, and even of plaid wool, to use for the peasant apron, will be the necessary equipment for the outfit.

The gathered gingham apron is as much a part of the peasant garment as are the sleeves made of material unlike the dress.

These dolls of different countries are an education and a joy; as interesting to make as they are lovable when finished.

Sufficient Sewer Signatures.

It was announced today that a sufficient number of signatures have beensecured to the borough sewer petitions which will enable the Council to go ahead at its meeting on Friday night and make preparations for the special election to put the matter before the voters for their approval.

Held a Musical Service.

The choir of the Temple Baptist church gave a musical service, last night which was much enjoyed by a large congreagtion. In this connection the pastor, Rev. J. W. Musson, the pastor, preached a sermon on the topic, "Praying for a Revival."

HARRISON TEAM MET WITH A DEFEAT HERE

The Plainfield Association Football Club defeated the Riordan A. A., of Harrison, on the Clinton avenue grounds, Saturday afternoon by a score of 6 to 2. The Plainfield team in starting the game made a rush on the visitors' goal, which was cleverly cleared, but the local boys immediately returned it and a scrimmage took place, but no scoring resulted.

After fifteen minutes of play the Plainfield team got away with a run, and a nice cross from Kenny was caught by Bennett, who scored the first goal for the home team. Upon resumption of the game the local boys made right for the visitors' goal and following a scrimmage, Sutton put in a dandy cross, which Braidwood put through making the second goal.

At this point of the game it was evident that the Plainfield team was a sure winner. In a few minutes Braidwood scored the third goal. Half time was called with the score 3 to 0 in favor of Plainfield.

After starting the second half, the visitors awoke to the fact that they must play better football to win, and there was an improvement. The home team kept so close to them, however, that they did not get far and in a quick run down-field by Sutton, a nice pass from him was caught by Braidwood, who added the fourth goal.

The visitors now played desperately and in a scrimmage Quinn scored the first goal for his team. Then the Plainfield team rushed the ball down-field, when Braidwood took one more for the locals. The vistors tried another run on the home goal and Quinn again scored for them, making the score 5 to 2. After five minutes' play the locals scored another goal and this ended the scoring, the Plainfield boys winning by a score of 6 to 2, which was a fair indication of the form of the teams. SOUTH ORANGE GIRLS DEFEATED BY P. H. S.

The South Orange High School girls' basketball team defeated the girls' team from the Plainfield High School, on the local court, Saturday afternoon by a score of 25 to 22. The local five did not play up to its usual form, while the South Orange girls played very fast throughout. At the end of the first half, the score stood 14 to 12 in favor of the visitors.

Earlier in the season Plainfield defeated South Orange at the latter place by a larger score. Miss Yunck played the star game for South Orange. She not only scored all the goals from foul but, also all but three of the goals from the field for her team. Miss Thomas scored the remaining three goals from the field. Miss Newell and Miss Stewart did the best work for Plainfield. The lineup:

South Orange—Forwards, Miss Yunck, Miss Thomas; centre, Miss C. Rodman, Miss E. Rodman; guards, Miss Brown, Miss Giblin.

Adds $2,500 Towards Elks' Home.

Upon receiving a report from the Building Committee, in Montclair, favoring the erection of a new clubhouse there members of the Montclair Lodge of Elks subscribed an additional $2,500 to the fund for the structure. The committee has two sites in view for the new club house, and at the next meeting one of these probably will be chosen.

An Illustrated Lecture.

Rev. Dr. Charles E. Herring, of the First Presbyterian church, will give an illustrated lecture on "Palestine" at Trinity Reformed church, Friday night, March 11, under the auspices of the Boys' Mission Band.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

Rev. C. J. Greenwood, pastor of the Westfield Baptist church, will be the speaker at the Salvation Army mid-winter camp meeting tomorrow night.

Miss Louella C. Harris, who has been the soprano soloist at the First Baptist church, for more than fifteen years, has resigned her position to take effect May 1, because of poor health.

Tomorrow night at the Netherwood Reformed church there will be a congregational meeting for the purpose of making a formal call to Rev. Royal R. Stout to become the pastor of the church.

The Sacrament of the Lord's Supper will be held Sunday morning, March 6, and the Sacrament of infant baptism will be administered on Sunday morning, March 13 at Trinity Reformed church. Preparatory services on Friday evenings.

Cardinal McCloskey, the first American Cardinal of the Roman Catholic church, is to be honored in memory by a celebration of the 100th anniversary of his birth in the Cathedral of St. Patrick, New York, soon after Easter, date to be announced. Plans are being made by Archbishop Farley, who was for years Cardinal McCloskey's private secretary. John McCloskey was born in Brooklyn, March 20, 1810, and pursued his collegiate studies at Mt. St. Mary's College, Emmitsburg, Md., but made his post-graduate studies in France and Rome. He was made cardinal in 1875 after a long experience in parish work, as president of St. John's College, Fordham, and as archbishop. His body is buried in the crypt of the cathedral, under the high altar, over which is suspended his red hat. Cardinal Gibbons, of Baltimore, then archbishop, who preached the funeral sermon of Cardinal McCloskey, is his successor and only other cardinal America has had.

While the general public in this country has been invested in the recent elections in England and the relative prospects of Unionist, Liberal, Nationalist or Laborite, the elections of the convocations of Canterbury and York have apparently escaped attention. The Established Church of England is bound up with the historical progress of the nation and with its political fortunes. When general elections take place in England at the dissolution of Parliament the convocations of Canterbury and York are also obliged to hold new elections. Opportunity is thereby given for an expression of ecclesiastical opinion of conservative or progressive sort. A trial of strength usually take place between high and low church parties. The sentiment in favor of the disestablishment of the church is not alone an expression of nonconformist churches. In the church itself there is a steady growth of this sentiment because of the feeling that the Church of England is hampered by the State. An independent form like that of the Protestant Episcopal church of America is regarded in favorable light. Another element that finds State control of the religious institution undesirable is the younger men of the clergy who are imbued with the spirit and ideals of socialism. The church elections usually bring out the strength of the different points of view.

"NEW IDEA" ALREADY AT SLATE MAKING.

In the expectation of an early and brisk campaign, "New Idea" Republican leaders from Essex, Hudson and Passaic counties have been holding a series of informal conferences at the Republican Club, New York. Prospective candidates for Governor, United States Senator and Congress have been considered, and tentative slates have been made, only to be altered at subsequent confabs. The latest program of the conferees, subject to change, reads like this:

For Governor—Chancellor Mahlon Pitney, of Morristown.

For United States Senator, to succeed John Kean—Governor John Franklin Fort.

For Congress from the Seventh District—William P. Martin, of the Eleventh Ward, Newark.

For Congress from the Tenth District—George L. Record, of Jersey City.

There is no positive indication that the foregoing slate will be submitted to the electorate at the September primaries. Certain it is that some of the "new idea" leaders have given it lengthy consideration. Other persons have been considered for the Gubernatorial and Senatorial nominations, and several of those considered have not been dropped entirely, but at the present time the Pitney-Fort-Martin-Record program has met with favor in the eyes of those who have been in conference.

Effort has been made to settle positively upon a full slate for the purpose of submitting it to a general conference to be called in the spring.

Ministers Acceptance.

Rev. Gabriel Reid Maguire, pastor of the Calvary Baptist church, of Cleveland, Ohio, has accepted the call to the Park Avenue Baptist church, as stated exclusively in The Daily Press on Saturday.
